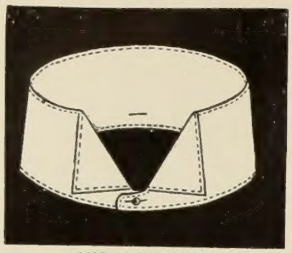
696 D 2 I E

THE DRY GOODS REVIEW AND MEN'S FURNISHER

PROGRESSIVE NUMBER

EIGHTEENTH YEAR



JANUARY 1907

SINGLE COPY 25 CENTS

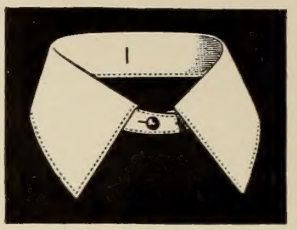
THE MACLEAN PUBLISHING COMPANY LIMITED

MONTREAL TORONTO WINNIPEG

SHIRTS, COLLARS and CUFFS

HIS MAJESTY

SHIRTS



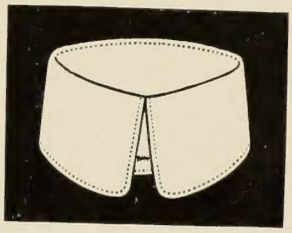
We make a specialty of white shirts.

Our $9.00 fancy bosom, pleated and negligee, shirts are unequalled values.

TRADE

JOHN FORSYTH & COMPANY Favorite MADE IN BERLIN CANADA

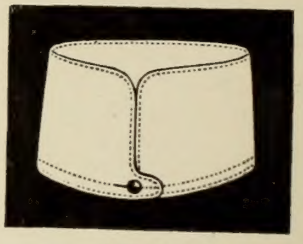
MARK



DOC

COLLARS

Favorite collars, fit perfectly, and are unexcelled in quality.



Superior in finish and are sold at popular prices.

LUSTIG

John Forsyth & Co.

BERLIN

PIERPONT

FANCY PARASOLS

We look for a large increase in the sale of Fancy Parasols and have anticipated your requirements with the most complete line we have yet shown.

We solicit your orders—

Samples now in the hands of our travellers.

The

Irving Umbrella Company

LIMITED

MANUFACTURERS

79-83 Wellington St. W., Toronto

"ROOSTER BRAND"

A Happy and Prosperous

New Year to all our Customers and Friends

ROBT. C. WILKINS

Manufacturer, - MONTREAL.

SPRING, 1907

¶ We announce for the Spring Season of 1907, a larger, more complete and better assorted stock, in all our Departments, than ever before.

¶ Our buyers have been in touch with the best markets of the world, and have been able to secure many lines, at advantageous prices. We have values which will appeal to the Merchant looking for profit-bringing goods.

¶ We ask for a consideration of our samples now in our travellers' hands.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED
WINNIPEG, MAN.

GREENSHIELDS & CO. LIMITED
VANCOUVER, B.C.

COTTONS

We wish to inform our many customers, and the trade generally, that it will be greatly to their interests, to place their orders at once with us, for the different lines mentioned below.

We can positively state that the goods are exceedingly hard to get; in fact, since we bought these lines for Spring 1907, they have advanced in price from 2½% to 10%.

White Cottons, Grey Cottons, Denims
Cottonades, Sheetings, Pillow Cottons
Hessians, Canton Flannels.

—A complete assortment—

OVERALLS

We believe we have the best range---and the best made garments. We can offer our lines of Overalls at manufacturers' prices. We are in a position to do this on account of our having arranged for the manufacturing of these goods.

Write for prices and particulars

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg, Man.

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver, B. C.

Special Drives

IN BLACK AND COLORED

Mercerised Sateens

28 and 32-inch also in black special mercerised extra special in black only ; 30 and 31-inch Suesine Sateen (the latest finish).

We have a very large range of Percalines staples, such as, Jeans, Silesias, 40-inch Casbans, Foulard Cambric, Percales, Turkey Red Cotton Canvas, Bunting.

Window Hollands

54-inch Italians, 32-inch Beatrice,
Pocketings, Hair Cloth
Special values in 34-inch Cotton Cashmere.
28-inch Cotton Serge in all shades.

Complete assortment of shades of above mentioned lines always on hand.

We are particularly strong in Taffeta Linings

40-inch Selfast Taffetta lining to retail for 20c.
30-inch Jap Soie " " " " 20c.

(IN BLACKS AND COLORS)

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

New Years mean New Ideas

Our department is full of new IDEAS

An illustration of our label for 1907

A mark of distinction

amongst Wash Goods

See that your stock benefits from ours

"Where Wash Goods Reign Supreme"

Greenshields Limited

Montreal

Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited, Vancouver

Three selling qualities in

Pewny's Kid Gloves

GOOD FIT. GOOD STYLE. GOOD WEAR.

Besides every pair is guaranteed.

All the latest shades and styles in Spring 1907 assortment

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

Housekeeping Linens

Immense assortment of fresh new goods at specially close prices.

We have been fortunate enough to secure all lines in this Department at last year's prices, and give our many customers the opportunity of placing their orders for Spring 1907 on this basis.

2 LEADERS

DAMASK TABLE LINEN

Our special 68-inch cream No. 210x and Bleached Damask, line No. 223, 66-inch, all linen. Complete assortment of Crash Towellings, Washed Crashes, splendid selling lines.

TOWELS---The best range ever offered by us.

TABLECLOTHS---With Napkins to match.

Large variety of entirely new designs.

Fancy Linens, Tray Cloths, Runners, Centre Pieces, in Scotch, Irish, Austrian, German and Japanese manufactures.

Sole Agents for Canada for the Celebrated Linens

MANUFACTURED BY

JAS. & THOS. ALEXANDER, Ltd.

DUNFERMLINE, SCOTLAND.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

FURS

1907

FURS

A Big Growing Business

SOMETHING NEW IN FURS

1907

FURS

A Most Profitable Business

We have made great preparations for 1907 and promise you a bigger assortment to select from, and better values than ever.

Samples Ready for January 1st

DO NOT MISS SEEING THEM

BEAR SKIN COATS

CONTROLLED LINES

Every mail brought us repeats for these popular Bear Skin Coats. The best values shown—and we control them for Canada. We regret not being able to fill all orders last season, but you can help us by placing your orders early for 1907.

We will show samples about February 15th

"SHIELD BRAND" ready to wear garments mean success—we prove it.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

SILK SELLERS

For Spring 1907

The newest effects in Tartans, grey check and figured Empire effects, the very latest novelties in silks for silk waists and suits.

ALL COLORS IN

Sateens, Taffetas, Tamalines, Japanese Silks, Natural Chang Tung Silks, Poplins, Ordulines, Crepe de Chene, and other fancy silks.

CHIFFON TAFFETAS

A splendid range of white, cream and black chiffon Taffetas, Satins, Duchesse Satins, Failles, Bengalines, Gros Grains, Armures, White Broches, White Bengalines, Moires, Tamalines, Lousine Surahs, Bonnet's Peau de Soie, Black Silk Pailette, Black Messaline, White Faille, Black Silk Morette.

VELVETS AND VELVETEENS

Special values in black and colored Silk Velvet, Black Silk Mantle Velvets, etc., Velveteens in black and all colors, including a special range of corded Velveteens.

CORDUROY VELVETEENS

All the above lines are worth special attention for Spring buyers.

Courtaulds Crepes Courtaulds Hat Crepes

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

1907 A White Season

¶ Every well-informed buyer is aware that White Goods will score a remarkable success during the coming Summer.

¶ We predict that the following brands will aid considerably in the vogue of White Goods.

MUNSTER 28 and 32 in.
(Linen Finish)

ULSTER 28 and 32 in.
Slightly heavier plain cloth. (Linen Finish.)

LIMERICK 28 and 32 in.
(Soft Finish)

BELFAST
Slightly heavier. (Soft Finish)

ALSO COMPLETE LINES—

Victoria Lawns
Nainsooks
Lisle Muslins
Duck Costumes

¶ We recommend a careful immediate inspection.

THE WOMAN IN WHITE
SUIT OF MUNSTER CLOTH

ANY GOOD JOBBER WILL SHOW YOU THE GOODS

The Montreal Cotton Co.

Works at—VALLEYFIELD, Que.

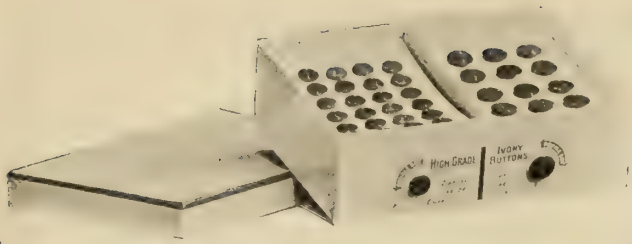
Main Sales Office—
MONTREAL

THE "PLANTAGENET FRILLINGS"

For Ladies' Underwear of all kinds, Pillow Slips and all Bed Appointments.



For Children's Hoods, Robes, Full Dress and Bassinette Trimmings.

SEE OUR LATEST PRODUCTION, "JAP SILK PLANTAGENET,"
THE SPECIAL PRODUCTION OF THE LARGEST FRILLING HOUSE IN THE WORLD.

THE ABOVE PATTERNS, AND MANY OTHERS, ARE MADE IN A VARIETY OF WIDTHS

EXPERT judges agree that "Plantagenet" Frillings exceed all other makes (for the above purposes) in beauty of design, quality of material, finish and cheapness. Drapers in England—almost to a man—stock "Plantagenet," and also some of the largest Canadian firms.

BUTTONS

Pearls, Ivories, Metals and Covered

Next to the C.P.R. comes the Merchants Button Co., for covering Canada.

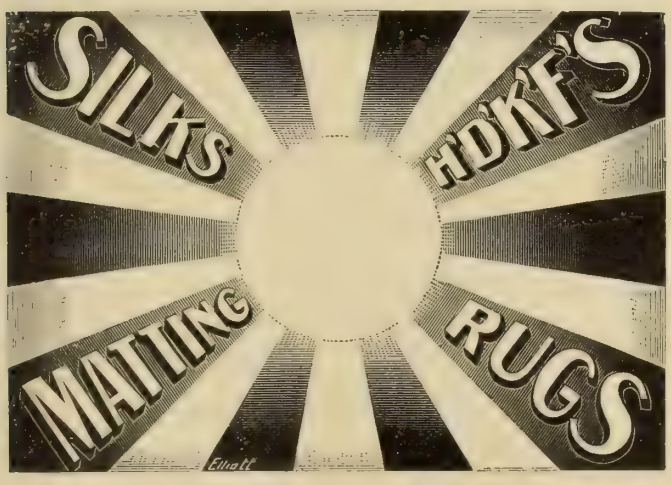
Our Buttons are finer than ever.



Our Travellers are delighted with the new samples, so will our customers be when they see them.

Our "Motto" is to improve your trade; "if we do," you in return will improve ours.

Our Double Box has proved itself a winner; join the thousands that use it.

Merchants Button Co.

Waterloo, Ont.

K. Ishikawa & Co.

Manufacturers and Importers

24 Wellington Street West,

TORONTO

Plain Glove Talk

You know that 1906 saw unprecedented conditions in the foreign and domestic glove trade—high prices and scarcity of goods—and if you're my customer you KNOW I kept old values and delivered the goods.

It's a bit of valuable history that shows my plan of doing business.

As I have my own tannery, I might have sold leather at the ruling figures and made money, but, frankly, I am in business to stay and believe in protecting you.

1907

Fall Line Ready

1907

My representatives are now out with a complete range for Fall and Winter 1907. The line embraces Unlined, Silk Lined, Wool Lined and Fur Lined Gloves for Men and Women.

It's mighty close figuring but it's enough for you to know not only old prices, but old values are maintained.

My Mocha Gloves at $9.00 and $10.50 are as good as ever.

The quality and workmanship are beyond reproach. After the first sale the Gloves make the next. That's how quality works for you and me.

Action and plenty of it is sure to follow the introduction of my gloves.

For a prosperous 1907 Glove Year let me help you.

FRED. GALIBERT

MONTREAL

Glove Manufacturer, Leather and Fur Dresser

ESTABLISHED 1791.

Horrockses'

Longcloths, Nainsooks,

Cambrics,

India Longcloths,

Sheetings,

Ready-made Sheets,

(plain and hemstitched).
HORROCKSES' name on each sheet.

Flannelettes of the highest quality.

N.B.—SEE "HORROCKSES" ON SELVEDGE.

Horrockses, Crewdson & Co., Limited

Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers.

PRESTON, MANCHESTER, LONDON, ENGLAND.

THE

DOMINION LINEN MFG. CO.,

Limited

BRACEBRIDGE, ONTARIO

MANUFACTURERS

Cream and Bleached Damask Tablings.

Bleached Damask Cloths,

Napkins, Towels and Towellings.

Dress Linens, Dowlas, Tea Cloths.

The best value in the trade

Write us for samples

COMPLETE STOCK CARRIED IN TORONTO

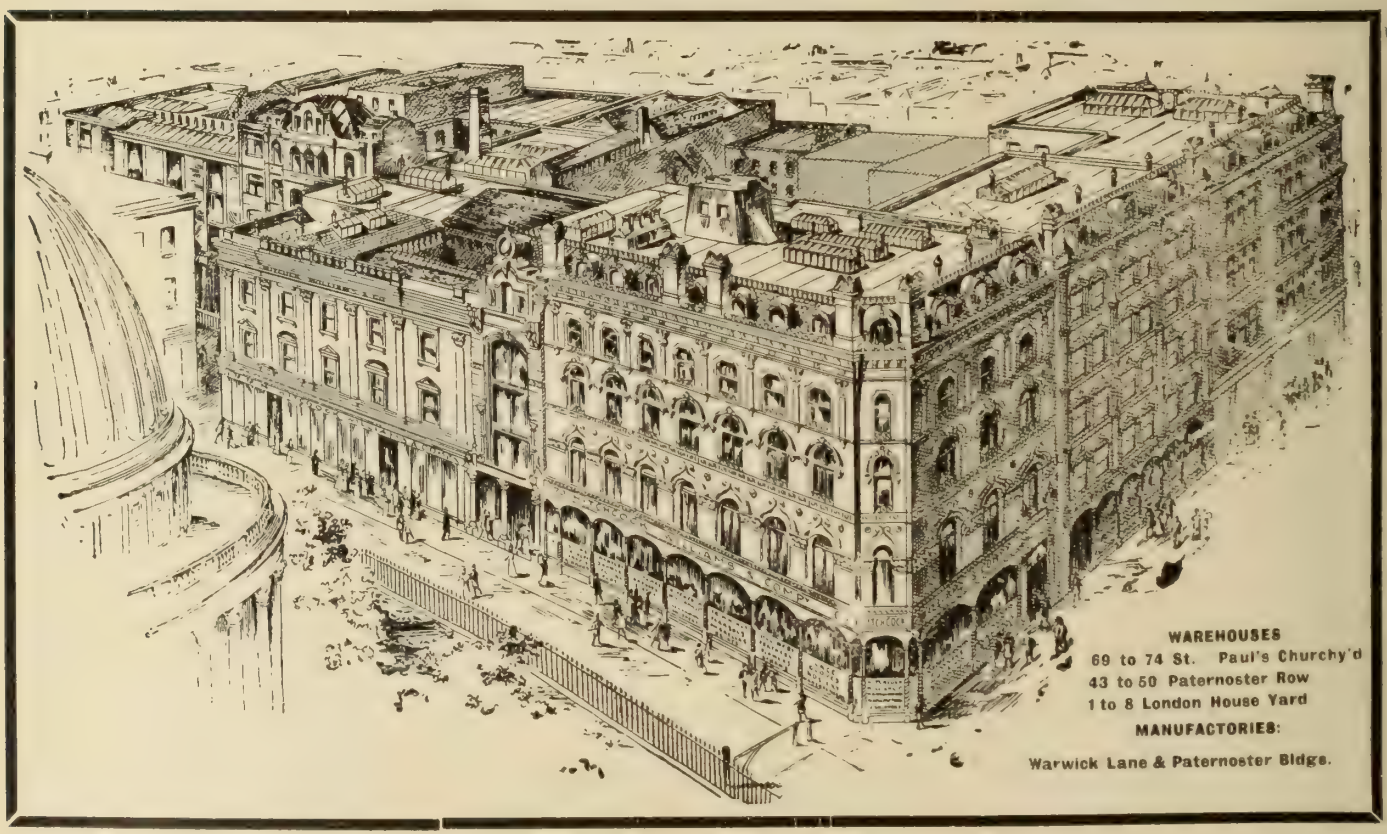
Sole selling Agents for the Dominion

WALLACE, BLAKE & SHOULDICE

SUCCESSORS TO E. B. WALLACE & CO.

79 Wellington St. W., TORONTO

HITCHCOCK WILLIAMS & CO.



Manufacturers and Shippers

ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD

LONDON, ENGLAND

Telegrams—"CHURCHYARD LONDON"—A.B.C. Code

Telephones—Nos. 152 and 163 G.P.O. Central

Represented by Mr. A. W. Cliffe, central quarters Windsor Hotel, Montreal, from March 31st to June 20th and from October 1st to December 10th. Our representative carries a fine Range of Samples in Ribbons, Allovers, Laces, Nets, Chiffons, British and Foreign Dress Goods, Printed Cotton Dresses, Silks, Velvets, Millinery and Millinery Materials, Flowers, Feathers, Straw and Felt Hats.

H. W. & CO. THE HOUSE FOR NOVELTIES

High-class Lace Robes, and Material for Robes, carried in stock. Letter Orders receive special attention.

Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal

The Lace Warehou

always in the lead in the Lace trade has again made a new record. More orders having been booked so far for spring 1907 than in any one year of its history.

Almost every description and quality of Lace has been displayed in our collection and notwithstanding the fact that repeated advances in cost have taken place during the past few weeks not a single price has been changed by us, and all will remain the same throughout the season.

The same applies to Lace Curtains and all kinds of Lace Fabrics and articles of Laces, of which we carry the most extensive line in this market.

VEILINGS are shown in large variety of the newest makes and patterns and in latest colorings.

LACE SCARFS and LACE COLLARS, we show in almost endless variety and newest styles, also Chiffon Crepe de Chene and Silk Scarfs.

EMBROIDERIES, SILK, CAMBRIC and SWISS, by the piece and also in carton and box lots.

SILKS of newest makes and colorings.

RIBBONS, Plain Faille, colored Moire, colored Satin, Mousseleine, black double faced Satin, Glace, Millinery and Fancies, all in latest shades of colorings.

CHIFFONS, GAUZES, Nets and Crepes in all makes. Some of our Chiffon allovers in the new Dresden patterns, and printed in colors and fancy spots, stripes and artistic designs, are simply ravishing.

DRESS TRIMMINGS and GIMPS, Fancy Braids and Ruchings are almost as big a specialty with us as Laces and it would be impossible for us to enumerate the enormous variety of newest styles, designs and colorings we show in these lines.

Kyle, Cheesb

Montreal: 93 St. Peter St. Winnipeg:

use of Canada

BELTS, Black Patent Leather, Silver and Gold, White Kid, Cloth, Silk black and colored, Corslet Belts, etc., everything new in Belts.

COMBS, HAIRPINS, BUCKLES, SMALLWARES, ETC.

HANDKERCHIEFS, PLAIN, FANCY and EMBROIDERED, boxed single dozens and in cartons of 5 dozen each.

READY-TO-WEAR LINES include Children's Cashmere, Silk and Stuff Dresses, White Dresses, Washing Robes, Frocks, Pelisses, Aprons, Overalls, Cashmere Cloaks, Serge Costumes, Ladies' Black Satin Under Skirts, Rainbow Skirts.

BLOUSES of our Rainbow Brand, made in Silk Lawns, Laces, etc , are as the brand implies, the brightest, newest and prettiest thing to be seen in the waist line anywhere.

HOSIERY, GLOVES, UNDERWEAR and WHITEWEAR, etc., we carry a full range of, throughout the season.

DRESS GOODS, to which we devote the entire first floor of our big building, is an ever increasing line with us and our plan of handling only the latest and choicest makes in this department has led to the unqualified success we have had in this line.
Among the almost numberless makes, we offer for this season Black Mercerised Bengaline, Black and White Checks, Tweed Checks, Mixture Suitings, Mohair Suitings, Stripe Suitings, Lustre Brilliantine, Wool Panama, Canton Tweeds, Black Corded Lorents, Costume Serges, Mohair Taffeta, Wool Crepe de Chene, Wool Taffetas, Canvas Suiting, Wool Drap Chiffon, Wool Imperial Satin, Wool Voile, Silk and Wool Eolienne, Silk and Wool Santoy, Striped Popelin, Wool Amazon, Botany Check Suitings, Melange Suitings, Shepherd Checks, Albatros and Ombre Plaid Suitings, also our special Mirror Poplin.

COTTON, piece Dress Materials include Printed Leno, Printed Cords, Cord Tape, Printed Organdie, Printed Mercerised Stripes, Printed Net Stripes, White Brocades, Split Lace Stripes, Leno Stripes and Checks, Spot Costume, Fancy Emb Leno, Mercerised Brocades and Checks, French Lenos, Cotton Voiles, Delainettes, Moire Stripe Mattings, Tape Striped Muslins, Lappet Spot Muslins, etc., etc. Plain Victoria Lawns, Nainscoks, India Linens, Persian Lawns and Coralettes.

FANCY FRENCH BLOUSINGS, 27/28 inch, in rich and beautiful designs.

"QUEEN'S GATE" Indelible Dye Cashmere Hose, Black and Tan, all sizes, our exclusive brand.

rough & Co.

ILVESTER WILSON BUILDING

England: 35 Milk St , London

The Montreal Home of

THE LACE WAREHOUSE OF CANADA

93 St. Peter Street

Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co.

THE STANDARD BRANDS

OF

LINEN THREADS

BARBOUR'S

KNOX'S

FINLAYSON'S

FRANK & BRYCE, Limited

Toronto MONTREAL. Quebec

BATTING

GUARANTEED FREE OF THREADS AND OTHER WEAK AND LIFELESS STOCK

NORTH STAR, CRESCENT

AND

PEARL COTTON BATTING

Quality for this season still better than ever. The best at the price. Made of good pure cotton—not of shoddy. Ask for North Star, Crescent, and Pearl Batting. Be sure you get these brands.

Robert Henderson & Co.

Dry Goods Commission Merchants

181 and 183 McGill St., MONTREAL

RYLANDS & SONS LIMITED

MANCHESTER, ENG.

Cotton Spinners

Merchants

Manufacturers

Bleachers

Dyers

Finishers

Makers of the Celebrated Dacca Calicoes and Sheetings

WORKS:

Heapey,

Longford Works,

Gorton.

WORKS:

Swinton,

Wigan,

Chorley.

Capital, $14,500,000; Employees, 12,000

DEBENHAMS FOR NOVELTIES

WEST END HOUSE

DEBENHAMS (CANADA) LIMITED

TORONTO

You never can know enough of a good thing.
And if it be two good things so much the better.

ALL

DRESS SHIELDS AND HOSE SUPPORTERS

BEARING

KLEINERT'S NAME

and Trade Mark

Are High-Class but not High-Priced

SOLD BY ALL THE LEADING JOBBERS

EXCLUSIVE MANUFACTURERS IN CANADA of the FOSTER FRONT PAD BELT HOSE SUPPORTERS

I. B. KLEINERT RUBBER COMPANY

TORONTO

HAVE YOU READ

The

BUSY MAN'S MAGZAINE

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS FOR BUSY PEOPLE

Each issue contains a varied and selected number of articles from the world's leading magazines. This publication is really an ideal magazine, embodying as it does all the best features of the best periodicals.

We are most anxious that you examine a copy closely.

The Busy Man's Magazine is on sale at all bookstores, or it will be sent regularly for one year to any subscriber to THE DRY GOODS REVIEW for $1.50.

Have your subscription commence with our JANUARY NUMBER.

THE BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE

Toronto, Canada

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE COMP'Y

FIRE AND MARINE.

Incorporated 1833

CASH CAPITAL, $850,000.00.

TOTAL ASSETS, $2,119,347.89.

LOSSES PAID SINCE ORGANIZATION, $27,383,068.64.

HEAD OFFICE, - BRITISH AMERICA BUILDING,
Cor. Front and Scott Sts., Toronto.

HON. GEO. A. COX, President. J. J KENNY, Vice-President
P. H. SIMS, Secretary. and Managing Director

THE METROPOLITAN BANK

Capital Paid Up, - - $1,000,000
Reserve Fund, - - $1,000,000
Undivided Profits, - - $ 133,133

We Solicit Your Account

GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS

Drafts bought and sold.
Letters of credit issued.
Collections promptly attended to.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

open at all branches.
Interest allowed on all deposit of one dollar and upwards.

Australian Trade

is worth looking after. The following figures are extracted from the official statistics of imports into Australia :

	1903	1904
Socks and Stockings	£1,162,449	£1,236,743
Towels and Handkerchiefs	281,194	390,821
Cosies, Cushions, etc,	117,125	159,856
Curtains	74,050	92,446
Frillings	13,019	18,836
Piece Goods (various)	4,826,523	6,134,389
Sewing Silks, Twists, Threads and Cottons	261,160	275,085
Umbrellas, etc	42,842	54,536
Boots and Shoes, etc'	702,543	767,581
Carpets and Rugs	329,610	489,454
Hats and Caps	372,133	427,876
Yarns	74,412	106,585
Feathers	21,546	34,825
Trimmings	215,984	247,279

The Draper of Australasia is the organ of the drapery and kindred trades of the Antipodes, and is subscribed for by all the leading firms in Australia and New Zealand.

You may obtain advertising rates and secure space by communicating with the American representative, J. C. Halsby, No. 1, Broadway, New York City, who will also supply specimen copies on application.

Publishing Offices

Melbourne, Fink's Buildings
Sydney, Post Office Chambers
London, 112 Wood St.
New York, 1 Broadway

THE TELEPHONE

Is a companion, friend and servant combined
Invaluable for convenience in the household.

LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE SERVICE

Has no equal for the facility it affords in business life.
Full particulars as to rates and service at the nearest office of

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

WESTERN ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Incorporated 1851

FIRE AND MARINE

Head Office	Capital -	$ 1,500,000.00
Toronto, Ont.	Assets, over - -	3,460,000.00
	Income for 1905, over	3,680,000.00

HON. GEO. A. COX, President.

J. J. KENNY, Vice-President and Man. Director.

C. C. FOSTER, Secretary.

Money

CAN BE SAVED BY MEANS OF AN ENDOWMENT POLICY.

YOU CAN ONLY SECURE SUCH A POLICY WHILE YOU ARE IN GOOD HEALTH.

Pamphlets and Full Particulars regarding the New Accumulation Endowment Policy sent on application.

Confederation Life

ASSOCIATION

W. H. BEATTY, President.

W. C. MACDONALD, ACTUARY. J. K. MACDONALD, MANAGING DIRECTOR.

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO, CANADA.

W. M. Whittingham & Co.

GENERAL

Shipping, Forwarding, Railway, Insurance, and Commission Agents and Warehousemen.

ESTABLISHED 1891

Head Office: Liverpool, 22 Water St.

and at

London, Manchester, Birmingham, Hanley, Swansea, Cardiff, Newport, and Hamburg

AGENTS IN CANADA:

H. V. COWIE, 476 Temple Bldg., Montreal

W. R. BEGG, 88 Bay Street, Toronto

A CHILD CAN OPERATE IT

Make Your Own Buttons

WITH THE

NEW DEFIANCE BUTTON MACHINE.

Make all kinds of covered buttons, rim, half-ball or flat, complete to make three sizes of button.

$7.50

Call or send for samples of our work.

Defiance Button Machine Co.,
266 Greene St., Cor. 8th St.,
NEW YORK, U. S, A.

Smallwares and Notions For Spring

We have the newest things in our line and a good assortment. Try us.

WRINCH, McLAREN & CO.
52 BAY ST., TORONTO

TRADE MARK

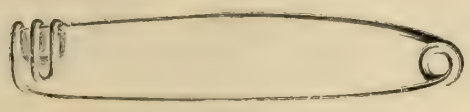
This design a guarantee of quality

Red Brown Wrapping

For Furniture Packing.

ALL WEIGHTS ALL SIZES

Strong, Tough and Stiff



A Sure Protection to Destination.

SAMPLES AND PRICES WITH PLEASURE.

CANADA PAPER CO.
TORONTO LIMITED MONTREAL

This is an illustration of another

ENGLISH MADE SAJONIC TRADE MARK SAFETY PIN

Size 4

NICKELED STEEL "SKELETON" IN 4 SIZES.

Carded or Boxed in Dozens.

J. NICKLIN & CO., - Birmingham, Eng.

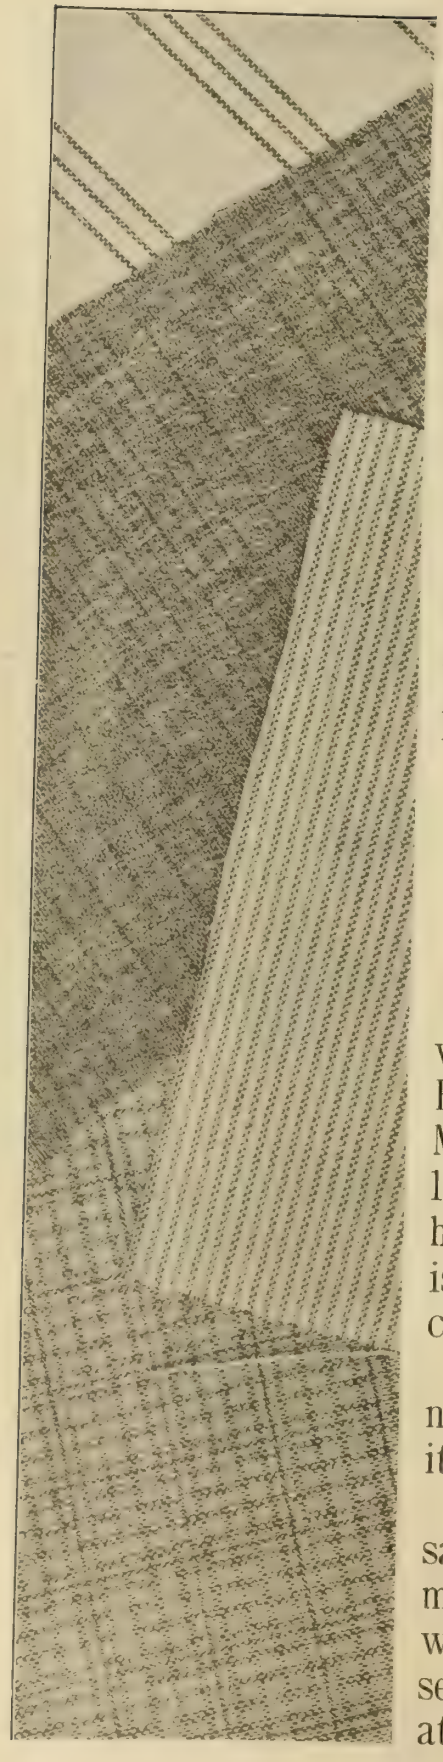
Fownes

Fownes Gloves

Now Located at

Rooms 1 to 4 Coristine, Building

Montreal



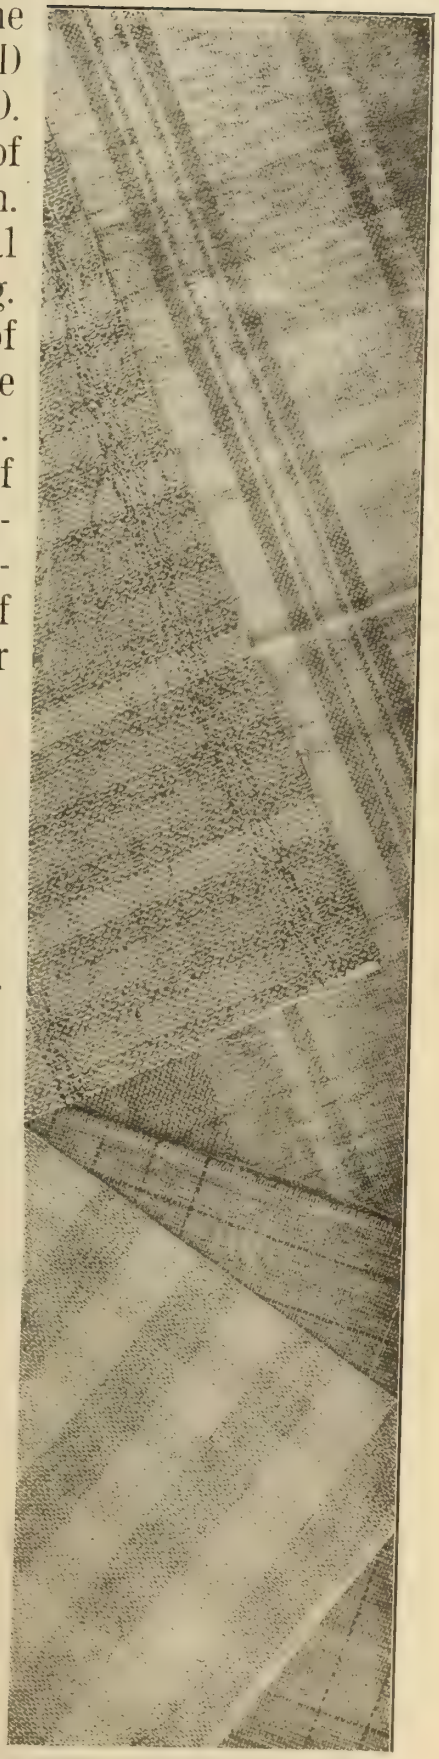
FOWNES BROS. & CO.

Glove Manufacturers

Coristine Building, - Montreal

LONDON WORCESTER NEW YORK PARIS MELBOURNE

Gloves



The best Mohairs in the world are BRADFORD DYED AND FINISHED. They are best because of the B.D.A. Dye and Finish. Bradford is the original home of Mohair weaving. Here the possibilities of this splendid yarn were discovered and perfected. The peculiar climate of Yorkshire, the natural sulphurous waters, the inherited skill of families of weavers, all play their part in the story of

BDA

Every Dress Goods Buyer worth the name knows BRADFORD DYED MOHAIRS. It's his knowledge of them that makes him buy. This knowledge is just as convincing to his customers.

Pass it along in your newspaper talks, and see it sell the goods.

When you say Mohairs say BRADFORD DYED, multiplying the number of words by three and the selling force by a hundred at least.

The Bradford Dyers' Association

BRADFORD, ENG.

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

SPECIAL IN

GINGHAMS

Ginghams in enormous demand. Mills sold up for the season. Supply insufficient for the demand.

We can offer the following lines while they last:

1,000	pieces	Checks and Fancies
3,000	"	Canadian Chambray
500	"	Real Scotch Galatea, Plain and Stripes
600	"	Real Scotch Chambray
300	"	Real Scotch Cord, in the Newest Effects
700	"	Real Scotch Plaid and Dress Checks

Very fine goods and pretty effects.
The newest thing in Ginghams.

Wrapperettes. Clearing lines at less than mill prices. Write for samples.

We have full stock at old prices

Shirtings, Flannelettes, Domets, Apron Gingham, Analine Moles, Extra Heavy Moles, Napped Flannelette Sheeting, Cotton Dress Goods, Skirtings, Etc.

While in the city call on us, we shall take pleasure in showing you our stock

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

P.O. Box 28 WINNIPEG Arthur and King Streets
Entrance on both streets

Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Department

In this department we carry everything in Made-up Garments for WOMEN AND CHILDREN, including a complete range of

BLOUSES, SKIRTS,
SILK WAISTS, UNDERSKIRTS,
NIGHT GOWNS, CORSET COVERS, DRAWERS, WRAPPERS,
E. T. CORSETS
RAINCOATS, MANTLES,
CHILDREN'S DRESSES,
CHILDREN'S HEADWEAR,
WOMEN'S MOTOR COATS,
GOLF COATS, Etc.

All Letter Orders Given Particular Attention

A Large Variety in all These Lines

SPECIAL—We are offering special values in FALL BLOUSES, SILK WAISTS and LADIES' JACKETS.

Sole Selling Agents for the famous

E.T. Corsets

Write us for Book showing Styles

54, 56, 58, 60 ARTHUR ST.	WINNIPEG Entrance on both streets	53, 55, 57, 59 KING ST.

Greenshields Western Limited

Priestleys' Cravenette

Many poor cloths are stamped Cravenette. Cravenetting is a process that can be applied to either good cloth or inferior cloth. A cheap Cravenette is a bad investment, for the simple reason that the colors are not fast and it will only keep out the rain for a short time.

Should you want rainproof material that will give all round satisfaction then buy PRIESTLEYS' Cravenettes. They are made from the best of wool and are guaranteed fast dye.

Our Mail Order Department is up-to-date

Greenshields Western Limited

P.O. Box 28

WINNIPEG

ARTHUR AND KING STREETS - - ENTRANCE ON BOTH STREETS

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

HIGH-GRADE MEN'S FURNISHINGS FOR SPRING

Never since our opening have we been favoured with such an immense placing business for spring.

We are compelled to think that our handling of the very finest grade goods is responsible for this gratifying increase to our Men's department.

If you have not yet seen our range write us a postal, for our representative to call on you. Many lines are being sold out and, further, the present indications are that deliveries will be unsatisfactory to those who leave their buying to the last minute. Note the following:

SOFT FRONT SHIRTS, with or without cuffs attached, in all the newest patterns to retail from 50c. to $2.00.

STIFF FRONT SHIRTS—While these are not nearly such good sellers as the soft fronts, there is always a staple demand for same, and we are showing a splendid range.

SPRING AND SUMMER UNDERWEAR—Our range is complete in Wool, Cotton, Merino, Linen and Silk, which we believe cannot be surpassed by any house in the trade.

HALF-HOSE, NIGHT ROBES, PYJAMAS, SUSPENDERS, NECKWEAR, GLOVES, COLLARS, CAPS, SWEATERS, RAIN PROOFS, ETC.

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

P.O. BOX 28

WINNIPEG

ARTHUR and KING STS.
ENTRANCE ON BOTH STS.

Laces and DRESS TRIMMI

Easily the Largest and Best

¶ Our importations of high-class merchandise for the Spring season are commensurate with the big business impending in all classes of these goods, and are larger than ever before.

In Shape to Make Deliv

Laces Stronger Than Ever. The outlook has never been brighter. The Spring season 1907 will no doubt prove to be a record breaker in all lace departments. Manufacturers are overburdened with orders.

Many import orders given by other houses for Spring delivery will only be partly filled or not at all.

Our stocks are complete, and Spring novelties are arriving daily. They were never more beautiful. Careful buyers should secure goods at once if they do not want to be disappointed.

Vals last season had the largest sale ever seen. This season they will be even better property. Our stocks, from the cheapest to the finest sets, have no equal in Canada.

Plauen Laces of all descriptions are very good property. Our stock ranges are without equal, and samples should be carefully inspected.

Square Mesh Medallion. Imitation Princesse Border.

We invite you to call and inspect our

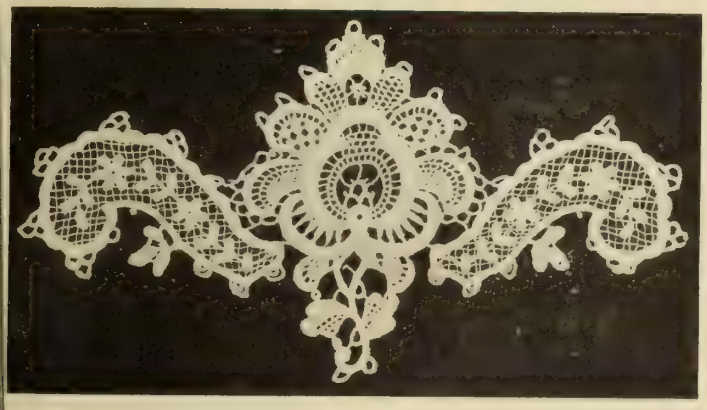
KONIG and

Victoria Square

Offices and Manufactories: BRUSSELS, PARIS, CALAIS, LYONS,

Embroideries

NGS, VEILINGS



Assorted Stock in Canada

¶ They comprise staple goods and late novelties in uniqe designs, notably the new square mesh goods from the principal lace markets of Europe.

eries Just When Needed

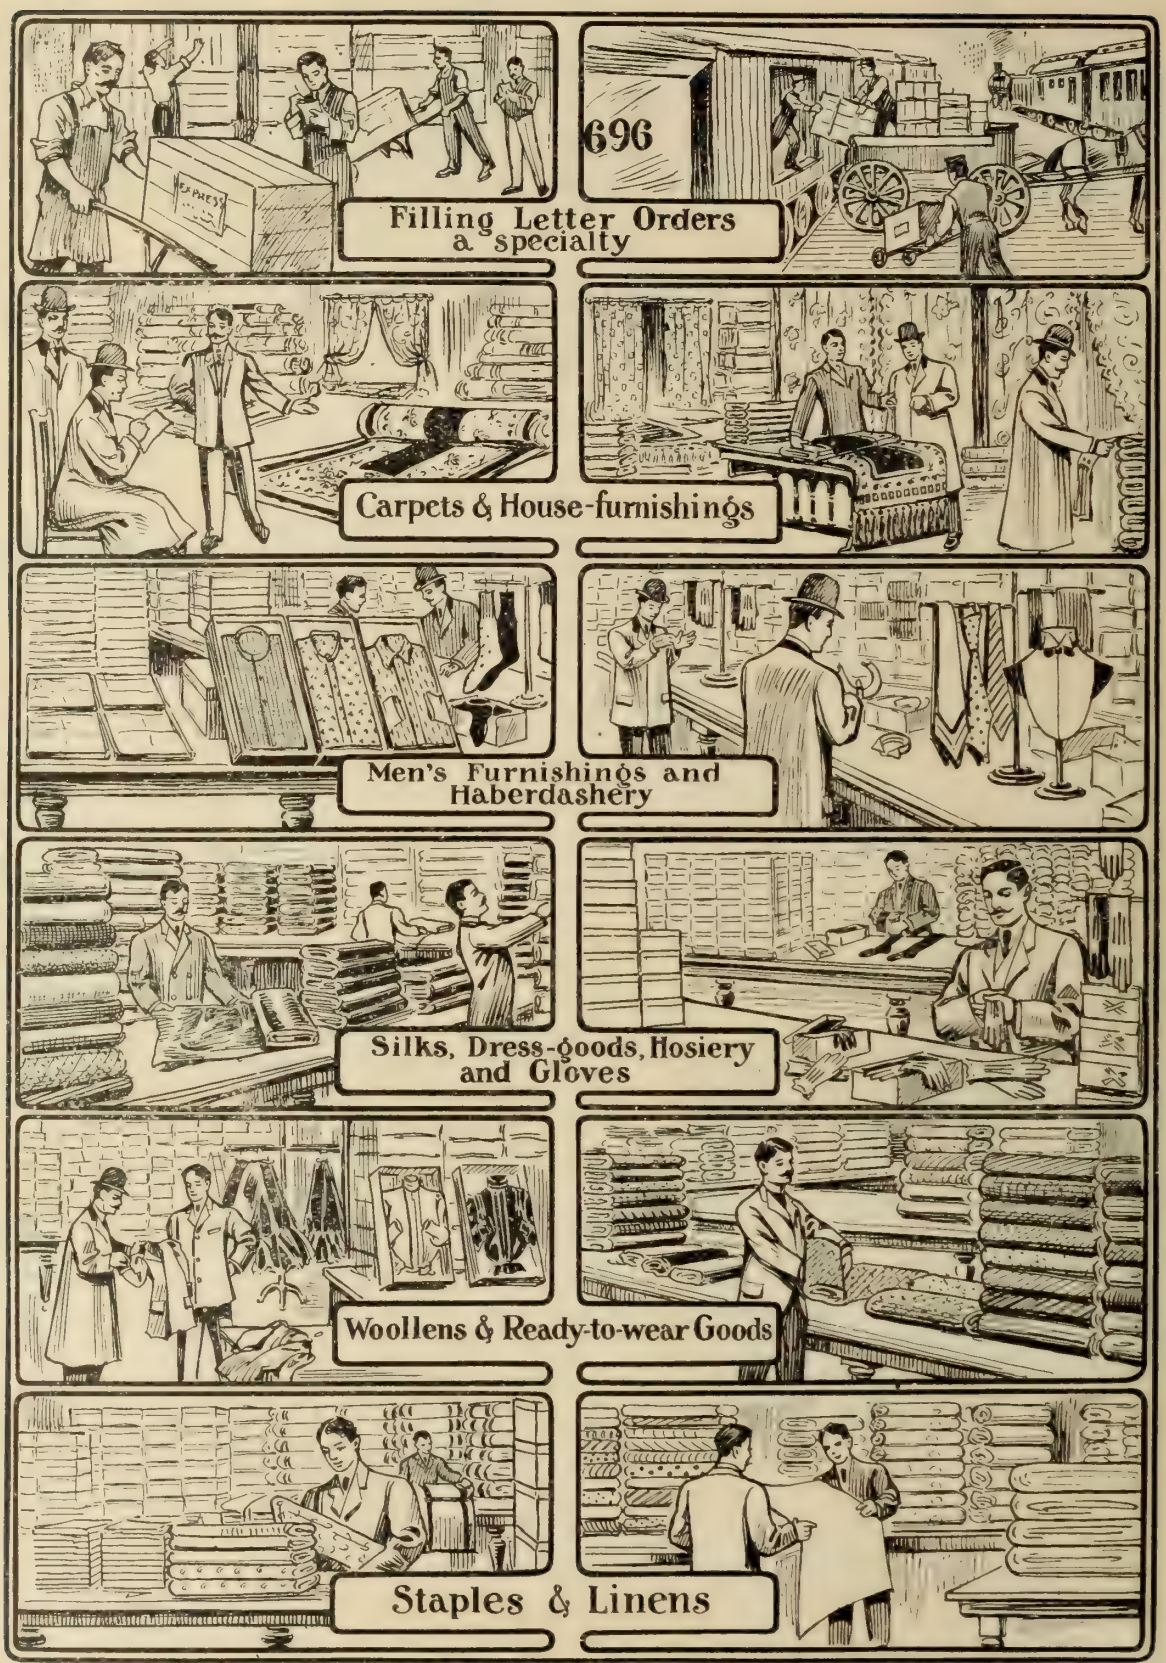
Dress Trimmings. Pull Braids are in strong demand, and a scarcity will exist throughout the season. Our stock is complete in plain and fancies.

Embroideries will again be a great fashion. St. Gall makers are overburdened with orders for a long time to come, consequently deliveries are slow and uncertain.

Square Mesh. Venise Festoon.

We make our own goods in St. Gall thus assuring prompt deliveries of our clients' orders. Our stock range has become a household word in the trade, and should be inspected.

Veilings. Our stock range of veilings is complete, comprising novelties and staple lines. Individual Chantilly Veils have been good property during the Fall. They will, without a doubt, be even better during the Spring.



Special attention to our Veiling Department is kindly requested showing, or see our travellers' samples

STUFFMAN

MONTREAL

PLAUEN, NOTTINGHAM, ST. GALL, LONDON, NEW YORK

Just a reminder that we are still leading in the above departments.

JOHN MACDONALD & CO., Limited

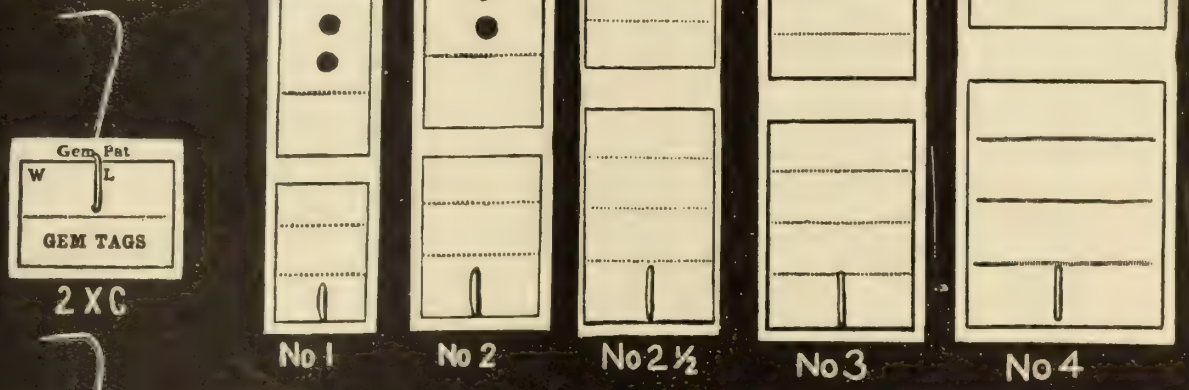
Wellington and Front Sts. E.

TORONTO

THE DANCYGER'S SAFETY PIN TICKET CO.

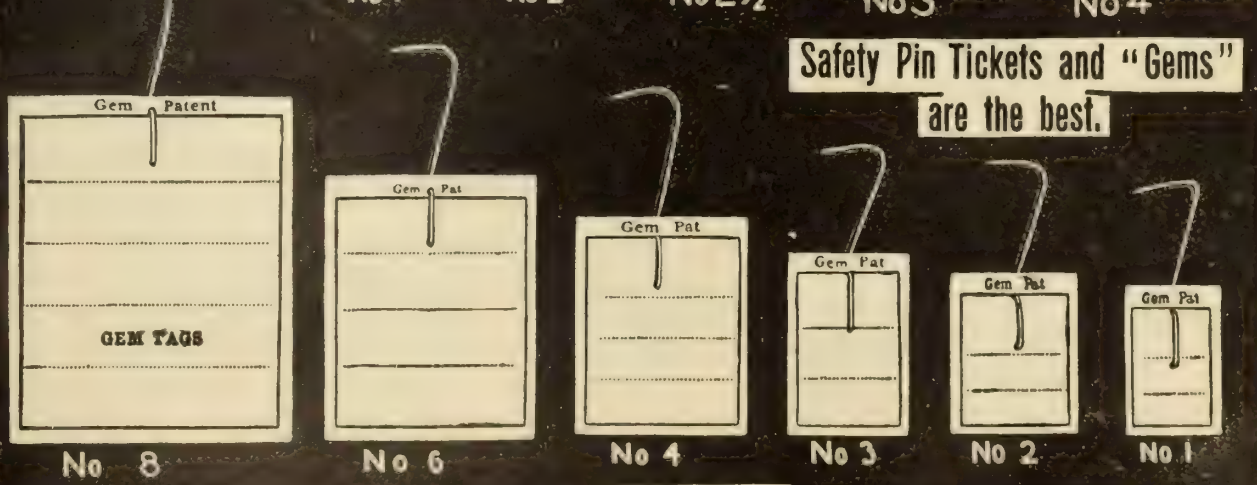
Main Office and Factory:
DAYTON, OHIO, U. S. A.

MANUFACTURERS

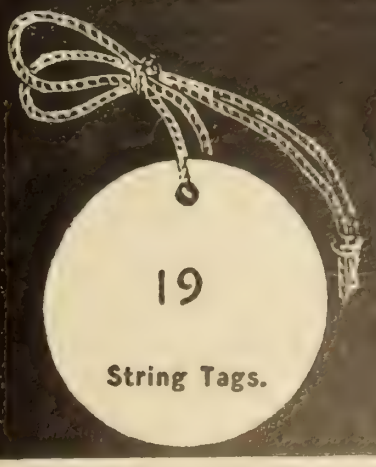


Branch Factory and Office:
TORONTO, ONT., CANADA.
77 YORK STREET

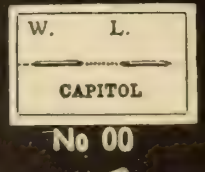
We solicit your correspondence, and will forward samples on application.



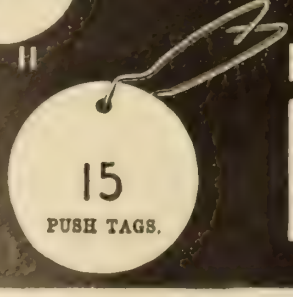
NO DANGER IN USING THE DANCYGER'S SAFETY PIN TICKETS.

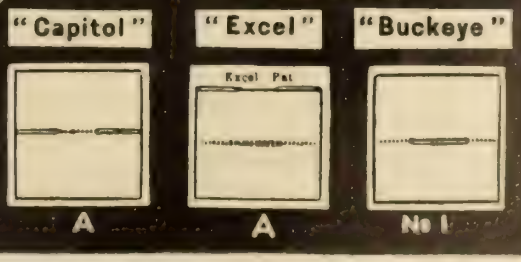


SAFETY PIN TICKETS



Safety Pin Tickets and "Gems" are the best.





Address all orders to 77 York Street, TORONTO

JANUARY—and a Thorough Cleaning Up of Dry Goods Stocks

The merchant who goes carefully over his stocks at the commencement of the year, when stock-taking is the program, and sends to these works to be re-dyed and finished any soiled, faded or off-color goods, will have little "dead stock" to go on his inventory.

We make the old stock new again and ready to be sold at current prices alongside other goods on shelf or counter.

—30 years' satisfactory business with leading —merchants all over the Dominion is proof of —what we can do for you.

R. PARKER & CO.

DYERS AND FINISHERS

TORONTO, CAN.

J. Y. SHANTZ D. B. SHANTZ

THE

Jacob Y. Shantz & Son Co. Limited

BERLIN, - ONTARIO

Manufacturers of

Fine Lines of Buttons

IVORY, HORN, PEARL, PEARLETTE

All leading Wholesale Houses handle our goods in Canada, and leading Button Houses in the U.S., who recognize our goods as of the best manufactured on the continent.

FACTORIES: BERLIN, ONT., BUFFALO, N.Y.

WAREHOUSE: CHICAGO, ILL.

Cable Address, "MACKER," Winnipeg. Office, 511 Ashdown Block

McRAE & WALKER

Manufacturers' Agents and Wholesale Jobbers

WINNIPEG

Correspondence solicited from manufacturers desiring live, up-to-date representation in the West.

"LESTERINA"

The new make of

UNDERCLOTHING, PYJAMAS, ETC.

Wholesale only, from

Anderson, Son & Co., Leicester England

Agents

MUNDERLOH & CO., Montreal and Toronto

John M. Garland, Son & Co.

Spring Program
January
1907

Costume Materials Park Tweeds
Chiffon Tweeds
Loma Tweed
Princes Tweed
Trafalgar Tweed
Cream Jacquards
Printed Dimitys
Corded Lawns
India Linens
Crepe-de-Chines
Paris Wool Taffs
Chiffon Broadcloths
Cream Panama Cloth
Novelty Blouse Goods
Staple and Novelty Linens
Ready-to-wear Blouses and Skirts
Smallware Novelties
Men's Suitings and Trimmings
Fancy Vestings
Carpets, Curtains and Netting
Men's Furnishings

H.P. H.P.

What?

The most Width, Weight and color that is shown to-day by any maker of Print Cloth at 8c.

The strongest Print plank in the House.

H.P. H.P.

Ottawa - - Canada

LEADERS OF PERFECTION

The Dontear REGISTERED HOSE SUPPORTERS

The Clasp for the "Dontear" Hose Supporter is the most Compact, Neatest and Strongest in Grip ever invented, and is just the thing to complete our vast styles of Hose Supporters, such as

The ORIGINAL BELT and the CAN'T-B-BEAT

The front piece of

The "Original" Belt Hose Supporter being made out of one piece, not only gives the straight front effect, but distributes the strain all around the waist line.

Lightest in Weight,
Strongest in Wear,
Comfort in itself.

The "Original" Belt Hose Supporters with

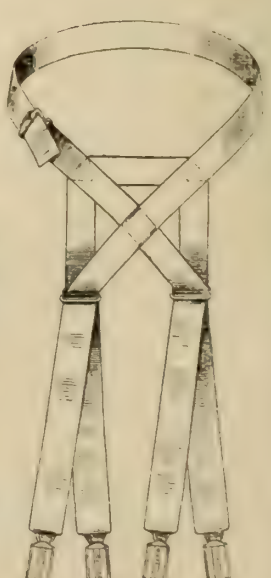
"Dontear" Clasps.

The Dontear

With Rubber Grasp And Dainty Clasp.



The Dontear

With Rubber Grasp And Dainty Clasp.

Waist Holder and Skirt Supporter being made of corrugated rubber, which holds the waist in proper position, does not injure the most delicate material, while the clasps maintain a firm hold of the skirt. The only Self-Adjusting Waist and Skirt Supporter on the market.

The Eisman Novelty Mfg. Co.

Patentees and Sole Manufacturers

77 YORK ST., - - TORONTO

The W. R. Brock Co. (Limited)

TORONTO

THE general scarcity of certain lines of goods, throughout the trade, the difficulty about deliveries, the steady advance in prices which started about 3½ years ago and has continued without interruption up to the present time are facts so well known to every business man in the country that emphasis or comment regarding them are not necessary here, we merely prophesy that the same conditions will exist for Spring 1907, and in a more acute degree and beg to draw attention to the following :

Spring Leaders

— 1907 —

Dept. A.

No. 75—	500 pcs. White Cotton (extra fine Madapolam)	to retail at	....	10c	regular	12½c
RAB—	400 " " " (heavier quality)	"	....	10c	"	12c
B BB—	100 " " " (special heavy make)	"	....	12½c	"	14c
15—	200 pcs. Bleached Factory	"	....	12½c	"	15c
	65 bales 36-in. Bengal Grey Cotton	"	....	10c	"	12c
6614—	300 pcs. Imported Oxford Shirting	"	....	10c	"	12c
213—	500 " " "	"	....	12½c	"	15c
	500 pcs. 40-inch Indigo Apron Gingham	"	....	12½c	"	15c
	500 " Silkenos (high finish Indigo, plain and bordered)	"	....	15c	"	17½c
	1000 pcs. Rockfast Drill, guaranteed the genuine cloth and finish	"	....	15c	"	17½c

Special Note to the Trade:

We do not carry the common make of "Rockfast Drill" and warn our customers to beware of imitations so branded to deceive. We have the sole control in Canada of the genuine article.

The W. R. Brock Co., Limited.

Dept. B.

32-in. Fine Taffeta Prints, can be retailed at 12½c
26-in. Printed Swiss Spot Muslin, can be retailed at..... 12½c
26-in. Printed Fine Organdy Muslin, " " 12½c

The above three cloths are confined to The W. R. Brock Co., Ltd., Toronto, Montreal and Calgary.

IX —23 x 42 Bleached Diaper Fringed Towels, can be retailed at ..... 10c worth 12½c
B127—22 x 44 Fine Huck, " " " " ..... 25c " 35c
HR1—R. B. Crash Toweling, can be retailed at ..... 6c " 7c Tiger—60-in. Cream Damask Tabling, " " ..... 35c " 45c
110—28-in. Striped Flannelette, " " ..... 6c. " 7c
EE —31-in. Plain Saxony Flannelette, " " ..... 10c " 12½c B18 -36-in. Black Percaline, " " ..... 12½c. " 15c

Dept. C.

KG43 42-in. Victorian Rippline, all shades, can be retailed at..... 75c
500—38-in. " Velour Cashmere, " " " 50c
JA124—50-in. " Chiffon Venetian, " " " $1.00
HW57 -40-in. " All Wool Coating Serge, can be retailed at ..... 50c.
FE —50-in. " Cream Coating Serge, with colored overchecks and stripes, can be retailed at ..... $1.00 and $1.25
Special—30 pcs. only (Bonnet's) Black Peau de Soie, can be retailed at 1.00
Special—10 " " 36-in. Taffeta, " " 1.25

The above lines are confined to The W. R. Brock Co., Ltd.

Dept. D.

100 pcs. each of the well-known brands Celtic and Premier Worsteds, Black and Indigo, at a great deal below present market price.

75 Pcs. 56-In. Rain Coatings, thoroughly shrunk, in all good shades of Greys and Olives, 30% below regular price.

200 pcs. 28-in. Fancy Worsted Trousering, light and mid Grey shades.
200 " 56-in " Suitings, light, mid, and dark Greys and Blues.
1000 " Linen Canvas, Black, White and Natural, extra value.
100 " each 54-in. Serge Lining, 3 qualities, H105, H113 and H125, at old prices.

The W. R. Brock Co., Limited

Dept. E.

English Brussels Carpets, can be retailed at ..... $ 90 regular $1.05
" " " " " ..... 1.05 " 1.25
English Velvet Carpets, " " ..... 1.30 " 1.50
English Tapestry Carpets, " " ..... 60 " 70
60-in. Lace Curtains 3½ yds, " " ..... 1.00 " 1.25
38-in. Art Muslin, " " ..... 10 " 15
40-in. " " " ..... 13½ " 17½
38-in. Window Scrim, White and Ivory, can be retailed at ..... 10 " 12½

Dept. F.

Kantuch—Hermsdorf Black Cotton (best value in the trade) to retail at 25c
HH6—Stainless Black Cotton Hose (nothing to equal them), to retail at.. 12½c to 15c
Llama—Our Well-known Black Cashmere Hose, to retail at..... 50c
Gaiety—Black Cotton Hose, embroidered, " " 25c
Invader—Stainless Black Cotton Hose (balance of a large contract) to retail at 10c or 12½c
111, Brockbest, New Cairo—Three well-known lines of Black Cashmere Hose, large sizes, can be retailed at 25c
98—Black Cashmere Hose, double knee and all improvements, can be retailed at 50c
100 gross Book Pins—200 pins in a book, can be retailed at 3c
Shoofly, Skidoo, Go Home, and Shoot—4 lines of Self-opening Umbrellas, primus frames, to retail at $1.00, $1.25, $1.50
L34, L36—Victoria Lawn, to retail at ..... 12½c and 15c
G20, G11—White Persian Lawn, right finish and weight, to retail at..... 15c " 25c X62, X63, X65—White India Linen, bought when the market was 20% lower than at present, to retail at ..... 10c 15c " 25c

Dept. H.

M138—Men's Natural Wool Shirts and Drawers, to retail at..... 75c
M596—Men's Neglige Shirts, light grounds, detached cuffs, to retail at 50
Big 4 Men's Striped Drill Work Shirts, large size, fast colors, to retail at..... 50c
Rockfast—Extra Large Men's Striped Drill Work Shirts, to retail at 75c
Viking—Black Cashmere ½-Hose, extra fine gauge, to retail at 25c
Benison—Men's Tan Unlined Kid Gloves, the best value in the market, to retail at $1.00

Dept. G.

HER LADYSHIP GARMENTS

One of the lines featured on our free illustrated advertising circular, which works for you night and day and sells more goods than the help in your store.

D 266

White mull, tucked yoke, all-over embroidered front, ¾ and long sleeves 34-42

Are made and priced to sell, and the present season is demonstrating that the buying public is daily turning towards this noted brand. See the complete range. It will be time well spent.

The W. R. Brock Company, Limited

TORONTO

MEN AND METHODS

Department Store in Small City Some Splendid Cash Businesses—Keep What People Want —Merchant Questions Necessity of Stock-Taking — Start Xmas Selling Earlier — Other Matters of Interest and Importance.

ST. CATHARINES DEPARTMENT STORE.

The McLaren & Company department store was the pioneer of the cash business in St. Catharines, and its trade has grown to large proportions. Nearly everything is carried that could reasonably be handled by a house of this kind. Hardware, groceries, and drugs are not included. Men's furnishings and clothing are confined to an exclusive section, and appear to be right up-to-date.

The store bids for trade through a large district. Liberal advertising space is used in the St. Catharines, Niagara Falls and Welland papers. All matter is prepared by a specialist connected with the staff.

Two deliveries a week are made to Merritton and Thorold, and one to Niagara Falls and Port Dalhousie. Several wagons and horses are maintained. Parcels are delivered anywhere in the district free of charge but an effort is made to limit such service to purchases of $35 and over.

The business was established in 1848, and at that time dry goods, groceries and liquors were carried, and later dry goods alone. About ten years ago the various other departments were added, and the cash system adopted.

Crockery and glassware are located in the basement, which is roomy and well lighted.

A good deal of space on the second floor is allotted to furniture, in conjunction with which, of course, are carpets and other house furnishings. Business in this department is very active.

Boots and shoes are found a nice line to handle. One excellent point is that they do not take up very much room.

The notion department is given all possible prominence. Everything is displayed in small counter lines. "People coming in," said the manager of the store, "see first of all the notions; they buy one thing, and are induced to take others, because the stock is so arranged that it invites inspection, and every article can be seen readily."

On the second floor is a ladies' rest room, nicely fitted up. It is found that customers go there chiefly to use the writing desk.

Salespeople are required to stay in their own departments. This means extra expense, but better service, and that is worth a great deal more than the difference.

Want books are utilized in every department. The manager keeps in close touch with all sections of the store and endeavors to know the customers, their needs, etc. He encourages suggestions from the staff.

Prices quoted by the big city department stores are watched constantly, and it is a rule of the firm that they shall not permit themselves to be undersold.

Friday is bargain day, and goods to be sold at a reduction are displayed in the windows early in the week. Change in displays is made twice every week.

Each department is conducted as a separate store, and stock is taken twice a year.

Salespeople are all paid by salary, without any commission arrangement.

Christmas display and sales are started always about December 1. When people are induced to buy early, the rush that always comes the last week is relieved considerably, and the store is able to give better service. The whole of a large room on the second floor, ordinarily occupied by furniture, is given over to toys. From Dec. 1 a staff of twenty clerks is usually employed here alone.

Underwear is kept in linen-covered stock boxes, 500 in number. These cost $1.50, or thirty cents apiece.

All old papers are pressed and sold to the paper mill in Merritton at 45 cents per cwt.

The store's method of handling parcels, and of estimating cost of doing business, are dealt with in another part of this issue.

NO FORMAL MILLINERY OPENING.

Madill & Anderson, St. Catharines, do not hold a formal millinery opening. They just announce that on a certain date they will be ready to do business, and, to start with, there are not a great many trimmed hats shown. This plan, they find, operates very successfully, and the stock is kept clean. Supplies are purchased mainly from hand to mouth; comparatively few are imported. The firm accord a large share of the credit for the success of this department to the lady in charge. She has pronounced creative ability, knows her customers, pretty nearly what they want, and what will suit them.

In marking ready-to-wear garments at a reduction, alterations are always taken into consideration. For instance, an article that would otherwise be placed at $5 is sold at $5.50.

The fact that people in general are prosperous, is demonstrated by the increased sale of dress goods, and the demand for better qualities. Where formerly the bulk of this store's business was done on 25 cent goods, the price now runs from 50 cents to $1.25, with 75 cents as the leader.

It is the practice to give a reasonable cut on some thing every week as a trade drawer.

The store does a cash and credit business, but collections are made very closely. "We have not lost $25 in six years," one of the firm told The Review.

The store interior has a roomy, neat appearance. A 40-foot addition was made recently.

KEEP WHAT PEOPLE WANT.

The Jas. C. Tait Co., St. Catharines, have a fine store, bright, and modernly equipped. They are located on a corner, a circumstance which provides them with excellent lighting facilities.

Furs are one of the strongest departments. They have an entire section to themselves on the second floor, and a large stock is carried.

The company have their own delivery wagons, and a good system for handling parcels. They keep away from bargain sales as much as possible, being firm believers in the steady method of merchandising. Formal millinery openings are held, and these occasions are made "show days" for the entire store. Carpets are quoted at a price, "made and laid." No charge is made for alterations in the ready-to-wear department, except on garments sold at reduced price. The dressmaking trade is large, and this branch is managed by a lady who has been with the company for eight years.

In conversation with The Review, Mr. Price, manager of the store, made this remark: "The longer I am in business the more I dwell upon this point; keep the goods the people want."

BUSINESS ON CASH BASIS.

Inksater Bros., St. Catharines, have done a strictly cash business since starting in St. Catharines eight years ago. They were materially assisted in the adoption and maintenance of that policy by the fact that a local department store broke the ground two years previously. Conditions have advanced so that St. Catharines is now practically a "cash city."

The firm buy their millinery supplies from hand to mouth. "When you consider interest and insurance we are just about as far ahead," said S. J. Inksater, "not to speak of the minimum of risk in regard to accumulation."

"Mail order house prices do not bother us much," he stated further, in discussing local trade conditions in general. We sell many things for less than they do. Just the other day a lady came in and asked to see a coat, at the same time quoting a price which Eaton's had advertised. We had exactly the same garment marked cheaper by $1, and made the sale, besides convincing one more customer of the fact that the home stores could compete successfully with the metropolitan houses.

St. Catharines has a good deal of outside competition, but the stores are of a good order and strong in the protection of the home market.

The city is connected by electric railway with Thorold, Merritton and Port Dalhousie. The fare from no one of these places is more than 10 cents.

All of the stores are obliged, by city by-law, to close at six o'clock ordinarily. The closing hour Saturday evening ranges from 9.30 to 10 o'clock.

H. R. Inksater, the elder of Inksater Bros., died on October 20, after an operation. He was 36 years of age. The remains were interred at Paris, his former home, obsequies being conducted under Oddfellow auspices. A widow and a young child survive.

A SPLENDID NEW STORE.

The new store of Farthings, Aylmer, is illustrated in another part of this issue. It is one of the very finest of its size in Canada, the ideas being taken from a 14th street store, New York. The firm, up till last summer, occupied premises having a frontage of 18 feet. The adjoining building, with a frontage of 22 feet was purchased, and the two made into one.

Over 100 feet of glass cases are used, and all mantles and clothing are carried in oak wardrobes.

The millinery showroom has a very inviting appearance. A feature worth special mention is a circular seat, heavily upholstered in leather, built round one of the pillars. It adds a luxurious touch.

The carpet department extends across the front of the second floor, and is exceptionally well lighted. The dimensions are 40 x 30 feet. A reserved stock room on the same floor measures 40 x 60 feet.

The enlarged store was finished about September 1. The purchase of the additional property and cost of alterations, amounted to between $10,000 and $11,000.

The only criticism that can be offered as to store arrangement has to do with the location of the men's clothing department. It must be very materially handicapped by being placed near the mantles, and on the same floor with general dry goods and millinery. We would very strongly advise that, if at all practicable, this department be removed upstairs, perhaps to the room, 40 x 60 feet, now used for reserved stock. It has been demonstrated in many cases that clothing must be separated from dry goods. We have seen several successful departments of this kind on the second floor.

Farthing's state that their business is pretty nearly all cash.

McLaren & Co's Department Store, St. Catharines.

ONE OF THE BEST IN CANADA.

The Mickleborough store, St. Thomas, is the best retail dry goods property in Canada, outside of the larger cities. A good idea of its exterior appearance may be gained from the illustration given in this issue of The Review. The dimensions are 66 x 120 feet, and three floors and basement are occupied. The building was erected four years ago. All interior fittings are of quarter-cut oak.

The light is exceptionally good all through, windows having been made as large and numerous as possible.

A diagram accompanying the exterior view of the store shows the arrangement of departments on the first floor.

The front half of the basement is occupied by clothing and linoleums. It does not seem to us that the former department comes up to its possibilities.

In the rear section of the basement, but in such a position that it receives good light, is a large sample room, which is a great convenience to both the store managers and commercial men. The former economize time, and the latter are always sure of having their goods well examined.

On the second floor the carpet department runs down one whole side of the building, and in connection with it are curtains, shades, etc. On the other side are the millinery rooms, and ready-to-wear and fur departments.

The third floor is given over almost entirely to dressmaking. There are three dressmakers, each occupying her own set of rooms—reception, fitting, dressing and work rooms, and wardrobe. On this floor also is the carpet sewing department.

Millinery is a good line with this store, and a large staff is employed.

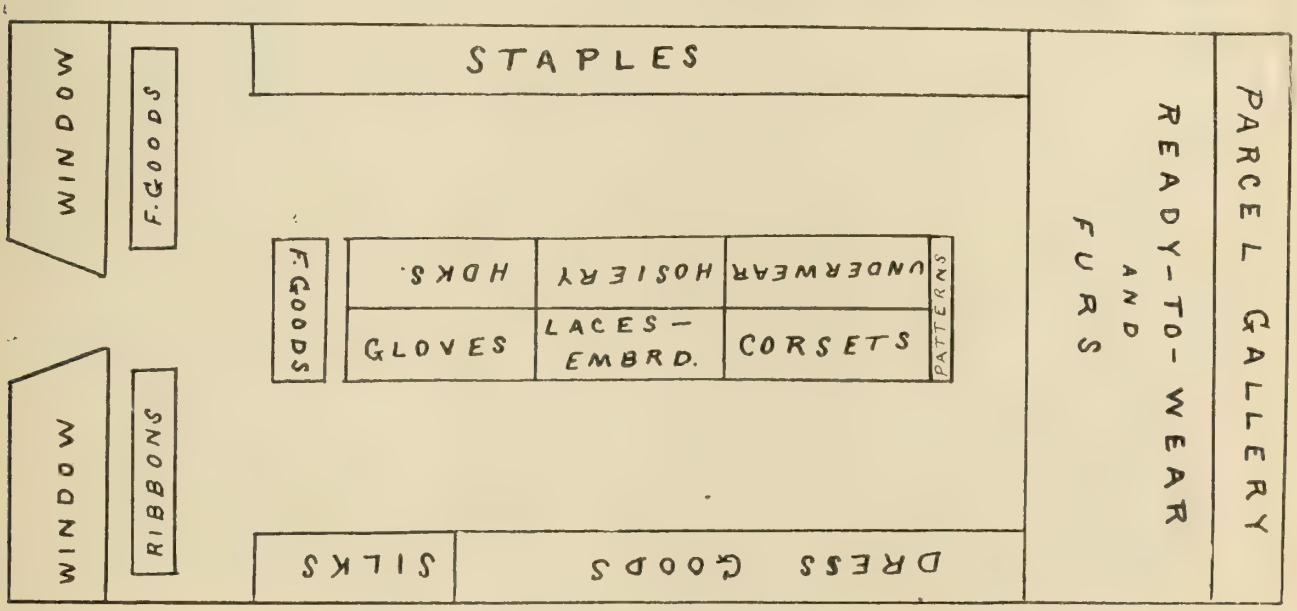
The floors all through the building are double, with asbestos felt between. The steam heat goes direct to the third floor from the boiler, so that in circulating through the pipes and radiators below, the condensation is always ahead of it, thus doing away with the disagreeable noise that is present in connection with steam heating systems of the ordinary stamp.

Mr. Mickleborough has been in business in St. Thomas for 35 years. "I built up my trade on good goods at good values," he told The Review. "We do not cater to cheap trade at all."

This store employs a staff of over 100 hands.

START CHRISTMAS SELLING EARLY.

The Northway Co., Chatham, sell on strictly cash terms. They hold formal millinery openings, and cater to the better class of trade. Millinery is one of their best departments. The attractiveness of the show room is enhanced by a circular pillar seat, upholstered in green. Dressmaking is found very good. In the ready-to-wear section no charge is made for alterations, except in the case of reduced prices. "People would have no use for a garment if it did not fit properly, and would object to paying extra for any work that might be necessary to make it do so," said the manager. The store fills quite a number of mail orders. There is a very nice rest room for ladies on the second floor. Hosiery is kept in stock boxes.



The Review asked the Northway manager how soon he considered that Christmas business could be started. He answered that he had come to the conclusion that trade on holiday goods could be opened up in November.

Fancy goods are displayed at the front of the store in three very fine cases, two 12 feet long and one 13 feet. The latter is the largest that could be procured. All are fitted with glass shelves and electric lights.

DROP STOCK-TAKING.

"I have just been thinking over an idea, that other merchants would, no doubt, regard as impracticable," said G. Chant, St. Thomas, to The Review. "It is that of doing away with formal stock-taking altogether. Mind, I have not decided to do so, but the thought occurred to me that, perhaps, such a change might be possible, and I have been figuring it out.

"Stock-taking is a heavy task, and while it is in progress the store's customers get scant attention. I am a cash buyer and everything in my store belongs to me

Arrangement of Departments in T. Stone & Sons' Store, Chatham.

It is nobody's business but my own, how much stock I have. Of course, the man who is obliged to make his purchases on time must take stock for the information of creditors. What is to prevent me using the time consumed in stock-taking in booming business and increasing my sales?"

The Review wanted to know how he would go about it. He said that he might, by means of stock sheets, keep track of the goods in his store, so that he could tell at any time just what they amounted to. Then in January, instead of piling in to take stock, he could go through his shelves and throw out all undesirable goods. This would occupy but a short time, and clearing sales could be initiated right away. Mr. Chant is not sure that the difference in his receipts would not more than make up for any loss that might suffer through not handling his stock thoroughly.

The Review cannot agree with Mr. Chant. In the first place the weeks during which stock is taken are naturally slow, and it requires something mighty good to rouse the buying public to any great activity. There are reasons why the stock sheet spoken of might not show what stock was in the store. Then, the system does not provide the merchant with any information as to goods that may be damaged in some way.

The title, "The Cheap Store," has a force in connection with a plan which Mr. Chant follows up successfully. As he puts it himself, he is "one of those merchants known widely as cash buyers, who are constantly being offered job lines." He buys a good deal in this way, but generally only goods which regularly have a value that everyone knows. Take, for instance, 25-cent oilcloth; if he could buy it so as to sell at 18 cents he would figure on drawing a great many people, and disposing of much other stock besides the oilcloth. The public in this case would be well acquainted with the fact that the cheapest standard price in oilcloth is 25 cents.

The Jas. D. Tait Co., St. Catharines.

STILL IN BUSINESS AT 70.

H. G. Broderick, St. Thomas, is 70 years of age, but he has no idea as yet of retiring from business. "I would not be satisfied," he said, and added with a smile: "Do you remember what Horace Greeley said in this regard? It was that the first year after retiring, a man became morbid, the second year he took to patent medicine, and the third he died."

Mr. Broderick is firmly convinced that the steady method of merchandising is the best. "No clap-trap goes. Business may be carried on for a while in that way, but it will not last. The first principles to be laid down are good goods, good values and proper attention to customers.

"A merchant must be truthful in order to get the confidence of the public, and once that is accomplished he is safe.

"If I were speaking to a young man starting out in business I would counsel him regarding little savings. Often merchants do not bother about securing a cash discount that may amount to only $1. I'll take the discount every time, no matter how small it is."

In speaking further on the value of honesty, Mr. Broderick said: "I have had clerks come to me and state that they had a customer, say, for some dress goods, and had sold a piece of $1 a yard materials for $1.25. They thought it a smart trick, but I brought them round smartly to the opposite view. I will not allow such practices, because it is dishonest, and, further, it is bad policy. I take a great deal of satisfaction out of the knowledge that some people have bought every dollar's worth of dry goods from me since I started here thirty years ago, and have never had cause to complain."

Good salesmanship, to Mr. Broderick is a fine art. "There is a way of doing and saying everything that has a good effect upon customers," he said, "and it should be studied diligently. Take for instance, the case of a lady coming in to buy some dress goods. Your price is quoted, and she states that the same material can be purchased at ———'s for less. It is a good salesman who can grant the necessary reduction, sell the goods, and send the customer away without any impression that, ordinarily, the store is high-priced. The explanation given her must be frank, reasonable and convincing."

Mr. Broderick knows nothing about millinery, but the department is in charge of a good manager. One season, in other hands, there was quite a loss, and among other stock left over were about 150 straw shapes.

CHANGE DEPARTMENTS ROUND.

T. Stone & Son, Chatham, formerly had millinery on the first floor at the rear, and ready-to-wear garments upstairs. The departments have changed places to the material advantage of both. Mr. Mills, who is connected with the firm, and who formerly managed the G. B. Ryan & Co. store at Berlin, said: "We change other departments round frequently, for we believe it induces people to go about the store more than they otherwise would."

Dressmaking is conducted in two sets of rooms, one on the second and the other on the third floor.

In connection with the sale of rugs special orders are taken for parquet borders.

"Our turnover is more than 40 per cent. larger than it was several years ago," said Mr. Stone, "and our credit business has decreased. Then there are numerous sales that go through the books, which should really be considered as cash. Take millinery, for instance, that is picked out one day and paid for the next."

This business was established in 1852.

LARGE FURNITURE DEPARTMENT.

C. Austin & Co., Chatham, have a choice location, right opposite the market. It is the intention of the firm to make some alterations in the interior of the premises next spring. To estimate from the outside the amount of floor space in the building one would likely place it at little more than half what it really is. The reason for this is that it is not only L-shaped, but the L has a double base.

From the main street one enters the dry goods section, about 60 feet deep. This connects with the men's furnishing and clothing departments, 45 x 70 feet, forming a right angle. The latter connects with the furniture department, at the rear, which is of the same dimensions. Each of these has its own show window and entrance from the side street. The store occupies three floors.

Clothing is an important line. Five salespeople are in charge. No suits are sent out without being re-pressed and having all of the buttons sewn on tightly.

The dress goods stock is kept in the way which we described in "Men and Methods" for November.

Three years ago the firm put in a stock of furniture, and the venture has proved very successful. A good class of trade is served. All the finer upholstering work is done on the premises. In speaking of his reason for starting this department, Mr. Austin said: "When people are going to furnish a house they generally visit all of the stores. iThe one that can sell the furniture generally furnishes the carpets."

An excellent plan in the dry goods section is the use of tables arranged down the centre of the floor. Hosiery is displayed on one, and practically sells itself. Bargain goods are put out in this way also.

Mr. Austin had a show case made some time ago that is of the same height as an ordinary counter. The advantage is that dress goods can be sold over it Salespeople stay in their own departments, and transfer customers. Different sections of the store are connected with the office by means of a private telephone system.

Millinery does no more than make both ends meet, and that is considered satisfactory.

NO MORE BARGAINING.

"One thing that the stores here have gotten over in the last few years," said a merchant, "is the habit of allowing customers to bargain with them. I have had persons come in, and after inquiring the price of an article, ask what I would take for it. Thank goodness those days are gone. We sell for cash now, and it is the best system of doing business."

AS OTHERS SEE US.

The Review happened to get into conversation with a leading citizen—a professional man—of a good-sized Ontario town recently. Speaking of the different stores, he remarked: "Mr. ——— is a great man for advertising bargains. I am not well up in the methods of merchandising, but it strikes me that the store which continually exploits that point lowers its standard in the eyes of the public."

MERCHANTS STARTED MARKET.

Before the organization of a Merchants' Association in Simcoe, the town had no market. When the merchants got together they were not long in formulating a plan to induce farmers from the surrounding country to come in one day a week with their produce. They guaranteed to take care of everything that remained unsold, and still do so.

The Christmas market is strongly encouraged, many prizes being offered for the best butter, poultry, etc.

POORLY LIGHED STORE.

A store which we were in recently is so dark that artificial light has to be used most of the time. This is partly due to overhead displays, but mainly to the construction of the front. A few alterations would not only save this merchant a heavy bill for lighting, but, apart from that, would pay him handsomely by making his store a much more pleasant place in which to buy goods.

ST. THOMAS' BIG CASH STORE.

"The Big Cash Store," St. Thomas, is conducted by The Anderson Co., formerly Northway & Anderson. For ten years business has been done on a strictly cash basis. Five years ago the present fine premises, illustrated in this issue, were occupied. The inside dimensions are 110 x 110 feet, and the store is located on a corner. The equipment is splendid.

One thing that Mr. Anderson points to with no little satisfaction, is the manner in which the stock of staples is kept. It is in charge of a Scotchman who was thoroughly grounded in the work in the Old Country.

On the second floor there is a stockroom for parcel goods, that is required to be always neat and clean. A certain amount of space is allotted to the head of each department, and he is made responsible for it.

Tables are used profusely for display purposes, and everything possible is out where it can be seen.

The dress goods stock occupies 110 feet of shelving, running down one side of the store.

Good window displays are maintained, and that there is excellent scope for good work along this line may be judged from the cut shown.

Several water taps in different parts of the store are a convenience that customers appreciate, especially during the warm weather.

GOOD ADVERTISING

The Editor of this Department will Answer Questions on Advertising and will Criticize Advertisements which may be Submitted to Him.

JANUARY CLEARANCE SALE.

Many women have what some people call a mania for bargains. There are others who are not very particular about prices so long as they are fairly moderate. But the bargain hunters outnumber the other class. The men who offer the most and best bargains, get the best trade. Women who are attracted by a few cut prices, very often buy ten dollars worth of goods at the regular price, and one dollars worth on which there is a saving of fifty per cent. and go home satisfied. They may not save very much but they will plan their shopping so as to take advantage of whatever savings there are offered. You should hold special remnant sales often enough to keep your stock pretty free from them. Special, reduced price clearance sales should be on the programme often enough to make everything go out of your store before it goes out of style. It is better to be a little too early than a little too late with a sale of goods likely to soon go out of season. While a cut price sale, a little too early, might result in the loss of some full price sales, it will better please those who buy, insure the sale of more goods, and enable you to commence the forthcoming season in better shape.

SINGLE THEME ADS.

The majority of dry goods advertisements are representation of the store rather the the store policy.

An advertisement is representative of the store when, to a certain extent, it enumerates the articles that are in that store.

An advertisement is representative of the store policy when it systematically seeks to catch the attention of readers, not for one day but every day.

An advertisement covering, say, a range of forty articles is generally not as effective as an advertisement specializing on one article in a smaller space.

This is not the case with departmental stores, for some people follow their ads like sheep follow the bell-wether.

But with the average retailer, seeking, in competition with others, to gather in orders from newspaper space, and at the same time build up a business reputation for himself, it is certainly the case.

"Printer's Ink" tells of a house that printed daily newspaper advertisements, in which a large section of the stock was briefly summarized—"Fall overcoats, $12 to $30; suits, $10 to $35, etc." Somebody advised the concern to advertise a single suit or overcoat at one time. This was done, with a talk on methods of making, materials, etc. The result of such concentration became apparent immediately. In a few weeks a great number of men were coming into the store bringing with them the "clipped out" ad.

"Printer's Ink" continues: "One thing at a time is a fundamental rule in publicity. One thing all the time is a better rule. The large mass of advertising printed today tends to cause confusion in the minds of readers. An advertiser who fills his space with miscellaneous offerings rather increases this confusion, but strong exploitation of a siogle article makes his commodity, his name and selling plan a luminous point that both attracts attention and fixes his advertising in the memory."

Try advertising a fur coat, skirt, underwear, etc., each at one time.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

Some one has said that we first look at picture books and thereafter all through life are influenced by pictures. Writers have twisted the parable until they almost make it state "Use illustrations in all your advertising."

With the progress of the paper salesmanship idea two distinct classes of advertising illustrating have come into prominence. The first is that wherein the advertiser illustrates his statements by picture, the second wherein he shows a photograph of his goods. The first class of illustrating is generally considered beyond the pale of retailing. It belongs chiefly to big magazine advertisers. The second class is as much the retailer's as anybody's.

But the retailer in his eagerness to keep down expenses goes in for the generality of illustrating. In other words uses "stock" cuts.

Undoubtedly stock cuts are better than none, because almost any kind of an illustration catches the eye quicker than type.

But the trouble is stock cuts are oftentimes misleading.

If a dry goods man is advertising a special skirt, and sticks in the ad a cut of any skirt, it stands to reason some people are going to figure out false plans.

It would seem that where a retailer does not wish to use specially-made etchings it would be well to insert

A GREAT SCOTS NIGHT

Hallowe'en, and Hallowe'en weather, bring thochts o' Winter and Winter Claes. Ye needna gang ony where else when in search o' the best store. We have a' that is best in the Claething line. Maist of it cam frae Bonnie Scotland and that ither great country we annexed mony years ago ca'd England. Let us fit ye oot aince, and ye'll likely come back a second time. Gin ye gang to the great Concert the nicht, come tae us for yer Shirts, Ties and ither Furnishings, and we'll please ye also in that line.

WM. CURRIE,
CLOTHIER
423 Notre Dame Street West in the body of the ad. a note to the effect that the cut shown does not illustrate the particular line talked about.

The illustration would then have the special and only duty of doing "signal" service.

TRADE TEMPTERS.

Have you tried the package slip as a means of getting inexpensive publicity? This slip is supposed to be stuck on all parcels going out, the name and address of the buyer being inscribed on lines marked out for the purpose. Below the name and address is some note on your goods, a coming sale, special price offerings, etc.

Did you ever try to get a mailing list by enclosing "name" cards in parcels and offering a premium for those returned in a certain time with names and addresses?

Do you send your newspaperman items relating to yourself and your store—alterations, additions, etc.,—anything that makes news for the paper, yet advertising for you?

When you send out mail matter do you get full weight for your stamp by enclosing circulars, etc?

Did you ever make any arrangements with your hotel

Warm Underwear

Some men want all-wool or nothing; other men wouldn't wear wool if they got it for nothing. So here are kinds to suit all tastes and purses, from the man who wants luxurious underwear at $8 a suit or more, up to the careful buyer who wants good serviceable underwear at a couple of dollars a suit or less. Indeed, we have rattling good underwear at $1.50 a suit. We invite you to come and look.

W. & J. WILSON

Clothiers, Hatters and Haberdashers

83 Government St., Victoria, B.C.

man whereby farmers who dealt with you could have their horses looked after without trouble or expense to them?

Do you use show cards generously?

Do you let the window bulletin do "inside" advertising for you?

HOW TO PREPARE COPY.

"Our silent partner" says: "One good way to prepare copy is to set down separately each argument about your proposition that seems convincing, then select the strongest—just a few of them—and weld them together into a readable, understandable ad."

The idea is all right in essence but in this "hurry up" age you must have an easier and more rapid method. The writer has read lots of theories about how to "grind" copy—some of them comprising pages of books—but the only one he believes to be efficacious for the busy retailer is to simply jot a heading down and then to scribble away thoughts suggested by the heading.

If a clerk writes the ads. he could keep a book of headings so that if he is feeling heavy, the book will act as an impetus when the eye and brain themselves will not.

The value of jotting the heading down first (contrary to the wiseacres) is that it starts the ad.-writer going right away.

Whereas to follow "Our Silent Partner's" suggestion in its entirety means, in nine cases out of ten, the ad.-writer will fidget around for the first "say" and be exasperated long before he gets the last one. The start is the main thing in ad.-writing, from the ad.-writer's standpoint.

PUBLICITY COMPLETENESS.

Did you ever give a thought to the fact that you put all your advertising weight on the very goods people expect you to have and oftentimes neglect the very line people don't know you carry?

You're not the only merchant who makes this mistake. Grocers get into the way of advertising tea and coffee and neglect soap and confections. Hardwaremen boom paint and lawn mowers and forget about sporting goods and silverware.

Now is there any valid reason why you should not occasionally run an ad. on umbrellas, gloves, hose supporters, leather goods, embroidery, hoops, corsets, curtain poles, linoleums, wall paper, smallwares, novelties, etc?

You may say that you advertise the lines that get the most business. Certainly! the most business because you advertise them. All your prospective buyers are not looking for new hats, or the latest in skirts. They may be looking for some line you have allowed to go out of stock in the belief sales were bound to be small.

Try the advertising remedy where orders are small and see if they will not increase.

Some Extracts From Ads.

"If you buy your fancy winter vests and flannel shirts from us you get something out of the ordinary."—Finch, & Finch, Victoria, B.C.

"Our overcoats this year are the pink and perfection of good taste."—A. Bristol & Son, Picton, Ont.

"The season for showing Fall and Winter dress goods and jackets is now at its height. We have a very large and up-to-date stock."—F. B. Newcombe & Co., Kentville, N.S.

"It would take a book to tell what bargains we have, so come in and see for yourself."—The George Cobley Co., Frank, Alta.

"We want every woman in P.E.I. to know about our fur department."—Moore & McLeod, Charlottetown, P. E.I.

"Girls' jackets in all the leading colors and styles."—Geo. Knowling, St. John, Nfld.

"Now is the time to buy your fall and winter underwear."—Will J. Whelan's, Quebec, Q.

"Something new in dress materials. It will be worth your while to see these."—R. O'Leary, Richibucto, N.B.

"An excellent stock of ladies' neckwear just arrived. Latest styles and patterns, prices very reasonable."—G. N. Eaton, Prince Albert, Sask.

"We are now prepared to show you all that's new in staple and fancy dry goods."—C. H. Post, Brockville, Ont.

"In blankets we have them in white, red, grey, green and brown at all prices."—Riggs & Whyte's, Cumberland, B.C.

"The richest and smartest of all autumn millinery is here displayed in enchanting profusion of chic street hats, and superb creations for formal dress wear."—William T. Lee, Owen Sound, Ont.

"We have also received a nice line of men's shirts, gloves and caps."—A. & R. Loggie, Richibucto, N.B.

"If you have not tested the high character of our clothing, we trust you will not fail to do so the present season."—Cornell & Travis, Indian Head, Sask.

"Bring the children to us for their winter outfits, and we will furnish them with the very nicest, neatest, warmest, most comfortable hats, hoods, coats, etc."—Allenby's, Hespeler, Ont.

"Every department is well stocked with all the latest goods for Fall and Winter 1906-07."—Cummings & Rennie, Truro, N.S.

"Take a glance over these fur goods prices and come and make your selection."—McIntyre & Castell, Belmont, Manitoba.

Our sheepskin-lined coats are the best thing we know of for working men."—S. A. McDonald, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

"Mothers, bring in your boys. We like to see them wearing Star Store Shirts. They look so well in them."—The Star Store, Wetaskiwin, Alta.

"Extra special bargains in ladies' and gentlemen's fine furs will be offered to the public this week."—S. Kerner, Fredericton, N.B.

"We bought these blankets early this season before the advance in the wool market prices and can save you money."—G. R. Ashwell & Son, Chilliwack, B. C.

"An investigating spirit on your part will lead you to the conclusion that S. Saunder & Co., can give you the best overcoat value for your money."—S. Saunder & Co., Berlin, Ont.

"This week will be quite an advent in our skirt department."—Faguy, Lefinay & Frere, Quebec, Q.

"We recognize the fact that people want good attention, good service, good merchandise, low prices."—J. W. Ryan & Co., Kentville, N.S.

"Splendid blue serge sailor suits in sizes from 21 to 36 inches, trimmed with white or self braid."—Carsley & Co., Winnipeg, Man.

"The money value in each garment is invariably up to Nelson quality. The only trouble is they wear too long."—Alex. Nelson & Co., Montreal.

"Trimmed millinery in a remarkably beautiful range of colors, styles and effective combinations."—Spence's, Kingston.

"No, we can't go into descriptions of our hearth rugs. You must see them in our south window."—Gordan & Keith, Halifax.

"An unusually fine assortment of children's jackets."—A. & S. Rodger, St. Johns, Nfld.

"Have received direct from Glasgow a large lot of linoleum and cork carpet which we invite you to call and examine."—J. A. MacCaul & Co., Indian Head, Sask.

"The glad hand of welcome will be extended to all who visit our men's furnishings department during the next few weeks when there will be displayed a superb collection of furnishings."—M. Trainor & Co., Charlottetown.

"Special stock of pure all-wool blankets."—Woods & Taylor, Galt.

"Newest in dress goods, latest in furs."—J. W. Taylor & Co., Vancouver.

"These coats are all well cut, beautifully made and guaranteed to fit and wear well."—A. C. Baillie & Co., Picton, N.S.

"This season we have secured an extra choice selection of ladies' ready-to-wear waists and we here quote a few of our lines."—Campbell & Titsworth, Lacombe, Alta.

"Lace curtains in a splendid assortment of styles and prices up to $12.00 per pair."—Weddall's, Fredericton.

"Protect your feet and ensure good health by wearing the good warm and reliable stockings sold by this hosiery house."—John E. Boles, Ingersoll.

"Latest styles in French millimery. Latest styles in English millinery. Latest styles in felt and fur hats, feathers, wings and flowers and hair ornaments."—Glover, Fry & Co., Quebec, Q.

"It is a pleasure to show you our many lines of furs."—McDougall & Secord, Edmonton, Alta.

"Ladies', men's and children's clothing."— C. C. Crawford, Glen Ewen, Sask.

"Boys' wool sweaters from 39 cents up."—Vineberg & Goodman, New Glasgow, N.S.

"Our millinery department is extremely busy, but so organized we can take care of and promptly deliver the largest or smallest of rush orders."—Henry Young & Co., Victoria.

"To buy a raincoat there's no place like Bibby's."—The H. D. Bibby Co., Kingston.

"The first store in Moncton to introduce the new styles."—E. C. Cole & Co., Moncton.

"Men's light and heavy underwear."—Hoffman & Jacobs, Manitou, Man.

"New and up-to-date neckwear, wine shades in 3-inch four-in-hands."—H. H. Brown, Charlottetown.

"Best value in ladies' hose, commencing at 25 cents."—Hosterman's, Stellarton, N.S.

"Extraordinary values in real pure eider down comfortables."—Macaulay Bros. & Co., St. John, N.B.

"Removed to the Mackey Block, Oak Street, but still doing business."—Harry Clavir, North Bay.

"Lace and chiffon collars, 70 cents."—G. H. Johnston's, Lethbridge, Alta.

"For quick selling we have prepared a special line of new trimmed sailors, turbans, and fancy shapes."—Mrs. Fawcett, Morden, Man.

"Wall paper is one of our specialties, and we have a stock away ahead of anything you can see elsewhere."—Frank Lush, Deloraine, Man.

"Bear in mind this is not a bankrupt stock of cheap, shoddy plunder, but the cleanest and best selected stock of up-to-date wearing apparel to be found in all Picton County."—Gaffen Bros. & Co., New Glasgow, N.S.

"Special showing of ladies' coats, skirts and costumes for this week."—A. Ross & Co., Chilliwack, B.C.

"I've tried them all, was the remark of a lady when purchasing white wool blankets at our store on Saturday, but such values as these I have not met before."—Peter Farrell & Co., Fredericton.

"This space is reserved for McMurdo & Montgomery who are opening up a brand new stock of men's furnishings, etc., in the Dreard Block, on or about Nov. 10."—McMurdo & Montgomery, Wetaskiwin, Alta.

"A heavy shipment in all lines of dry goods to hand."—H. C. Disney, Oxbow, Sask.

"Allow us to show you a corset that is both comfortable and elegant, and very moderate in price."—The H. E. Maddock Co., Uxbridge, Ont.

"Royal Irish poplin ties."—E. Chapman, Vancouver, B.C.

Ad. Criticisms

Wm. Currie, Montreal.

The ad. of Wm. Currie, Montreal, is shown in this issue, is distinctly original. The Scotch is pretty good, too.

There is no reason why the men's furnishing man should not get up first class stuff. He has a good subject, and original treatment is within reach of all.

Douglas & Co., New Glasgow, N.S.

This firm employs the candid style in seeking glove business.

A line used in opening was: "You have only one pair (of hands) and they have to do you for a lifetime." The succeeding argument is worked out in what appears to be a successful manner.

Halliday & Stinson, Chesley.

The Chesley merchants prepare attractive advertising. Halliday & Stinson's millinery and dress goods, announcement made fine reading. It was sufficiently conservative to be free from all taint of sensationalism, yet sufficiently individualistic to carry weight as a personal message. The typography was fair.

J. F. Cairns, Saskatoon.

Mr. Cairns is characteristically western in publicity matters. His big ad. in the "Phoenix" was breezy in style, yet replete with argument. Prices appeared freely and white space made reading easy. The layout was effective.

F. Simard & Cie, Quebec.

F. Simard's ads. are conventional in that name of firm is to be found at top and bottom, and all headings are plain.

This company could profit by imparting some animated feelings on dress goods merits, etc., into their ads.

W. & J. Wilson, Victoria.

"Warm Underwear" was not a good enough heading for Wilson's ad. The heading might have been "The Why and Wherefore of Underwear Satisfaction" or "Underwear That Suits."

W. & J. Wilson are "jolliers." Their preachment savored of an essay but the peroration was pointed.

Miss Morgan's, Fredericton, N.B.

Miss Morgan was rather non-commital in her millinery announcement. No adjectives were used, no descriptions were given, no prices were to be seen. A little more direct argument could easily find a place in Miss Morgan's ads.

Eoll & Clements, Fort Willian.

Fur-lined coats made a "talkable" advertising subject and Eoll & Clements need make no apology for their interpretation of the possibilities. Their ad. was convincingly written, well displayed, and a first-class etching was brought into service. White space used with discretion gave the ad. a chaste look.

John Wootton, Manitou, Man.

Mr. Wootton's ad. was just as plain in text as it was gaudy in typography. Insufficient border to surround a page ad. was used and the chief heading was none too suitable in size. John Wootton's ads. would be greatly improved with the addition of a few appealing sentences on quality or merit.

MacLellan Bros., Charlottetown.

They believe in being effusive. Their advertising bubbled over with superlatives. Yet while this is ordinarily considered a weakness MacLellans seemed to establish a point in favor of their overcoats.

MacLellan's ad. is poorly displayed.

Compton & Montgomery, Wetaskiwin.

They secure artistic type effects for their ads. in the "Times," but their "say" is overstaid. A little personal talk never does any harm and the chances are it will strerghthen dry items and rows of figures. Compton & Montgomery, illuminate your ads. more Layton & Beck, Westville, N.S.

Large space was put to good service by Layton & Beck. Ten item-panels (four of which we show) surrounded with about one half-inch of white space and a strong border, make the most striking ad. to be seen in the "Free Lance," Westville.

350 Yds. Heavy Wool Dress Goods
Light Grey, Dark Grey, Green
50c for 33c

Full Range of Sateen and Moreen Underskirts
60 Black Underskirts, worth $1.00 for 69c

Lot of Woolen Dressing Jackets
$2.25, $2.50 and $3.00 for $1.48
Lot Dressing Jackets, $1.45, $1.90 for 98c

500 Yards Wrapperette
All Patterns—10c for 7 1-2c
Full Stock of Wrapperettes—all prices

Layton & Beck's Style.

Of course Layton & Beck's ad would be ineffective with a less striking layout because the matter itself was just a group of items. This shows how an advertiser missing one essential to a successful ad made fair use of another essential and "got there."

Hollinrake & Co., Ingersoll.

Some meritorious booklets from Hollinrake & Co., have been reviewed in the Good Advertising Department, but the ad under consideration was one of the first bits of newspaper publicity from this company that has been examined by the department. Furs were the topic and the space allotted about 135 lines, double column.

An excellent line cut drew attention to the ad. and the wording was sufficiently "open" to be easily perused. But a little more persuasion and snap would give the various statements the necessary "open sesame" to confidence.

Archibald Wright, Winnipeg.

He knows how to win attention to his announcement, surrounded by other announcements. He adopts the columnar style, shows white space generously and tops his ad. with a circular drawing giving the streets leading to Wright's store.

The ad. which we examined was set in nonpareil modern, leaded, and the hanging indention was worked out successfully in the chief and subsidiary headings.

Mrs. D. R Murphy, Quebec.

This ad. had an excess of matter, consequently it looked crowded. Millinery was the subject and an etching impressed this fact on the mind of the reader.

McBean & Co., Georgetown.

They conduct "The Mammoth House" and that inscription found the topmost place in their ad. The body type stood up remarkably well for a town newspaper and the illustration couldn't be better.

McBean & Co., adhere to a single theme and marshal all the facts and figures at their command.

These ads. should produce tangible results.

Prince Bros., Battleford, Sask.

They turn out creditaqle ads. All their statements are pertinent, clear and forceful. Discretion is shown in the adaptability of wording to space. In the one examined a border might have been used to give symmetry to the whole.

McKean & Co., Westville, N.S.

The ad. of McKean's was symbo,ical of the pleasing way of essaying to enthuse the reader. It was a first class specimen of the "so much" information, "so-much" argument class of salesmanship on paper. An attractive drawing embellished the ad.

—⟡—

THE HOME ECONOMIST.

W. W. Mann & Co., Stittsville, Ont., still issue their "Home Economist," previously reviewed in this department. Mr. Mann is now making a feature of "With the Editor" items. The quality of these items will be seen from the following :

Comparisons of prices and qualities will invariably result in buying here.

We quote prices and show the goods. You act as the judge. We're willing to abide by your decision. That's how we have always done business.

Money saved. It happens here every day. Good reasons for it—no high rent to pay, expenses always kept down—we're satisfied with small profits, we buy in large quantities—and there's no red tape about our way of doing business.

Permanent patrons are won by fair treatment. Our Store has more permanent patrons than any other store in the country. We know it to be true and you do too, if you have ever traded here. If you hahen't it would be wise to investigate, wouldn't it ?

AFTER THE SHUTTERS ARE UP

Baumer was making a few purchases at the stores, and while being served saw a sovereign lying on the floor. Quivering with excitement, and glancing to see that no one was observing him, he quite accidently dropped one of his gloves on top of the coin and picked up the glove—but not the coin, which still remained on the floor. Just as he was in the act, however, an assistant approached and blandly said :—

"Good evening, sir. Will you allow me to show you a bottle of our celebrated liquid glue, which sticks—"

But Baumer had vanished.

* * *

Traveler (leaving hotel): "Well, landlord, here's a pretty how-d'ye-do; you go and charge me half a guinea for a bed, when you know pretty well that the house was so full I had to sleep on the billiard-table."

Landlord : "Well, sir; please look at the rules pasted up on the wall there : "Use of Billiard table one shilling and sixpence an hour ! "

* * *

Dressmaker : "And would you have leg-of-mutton sleeves, Madam ? "

Customer : "Most certainly not ; I am a vegetarian."

* * *

One day a man entered the shop of a hatter named J. Dodging and asked for the loan of a hat, promising to return it on his way back. The hatter consented, and the man departed.

A week passed and the man had not returned it, so the hatter went in search of him, and, meeting him, exclaimed : "Do you know who I am ? I am Dodging, the hatter ! "

"That's strange," replied the man. "I was doing the very same thing myself."

* * *

Customer: "You say, then, that this material is the latest?"

Shopman : "The very latest, madam ? "

"But will it fade in the sun ? "

"Why, it has been lying in the window for two years, and look how well it has stood."

* * *

Grub : "I've had an offer to go to work for a London wholesale house. What would you do if you were in my shoes ? "

Friend (after a careful inspection) : "I think I should black 'em."

* * *

A man we know has a pet aversion. It is the modern office boy. He can stand the old-fashioned breed which whistled all the time he was in the office and played marbles when sent with messages of special importance. But the new breed with the blank expression and a supercilious contempt for everything sets him rampant.

He went to see an old friend the other day, and a pert specimen of the loathed new breed was on duty in the outer office.

"Whom do you wish to see ? " he asked icily.

"Mr. ——, my little man," said our friend urbanely.

"And what is your business with him?" came the next startling query from the mannikin.

Our friend went purple and coughed hurriedly. Then he turned with a smile of angelic sweetness.

"Tell him, my good sir," he said genially, "that I wish to ask his hand in holy matrimony."

* * *

"Well, I secured an order all right," said the new salesman, glowing with pride and smiling contentedly.

"But you lied to her," protested the proprietor. "You told her they were genuine old Irish lace——"

"No, I didn't. She simply said she didn't want any 'bogus imitations,' and I assured her ours were genuine."

* * *

Shopwalker: "What are we to do with Heavyhead? He is always falling asleep."

Proprietor: "Oh, send him to the nightshirt department, and tell the customers that our nightshirts are so excellent that the very look of them sends the salesmen to sleep."

* * *

"I never ask a gentleman for money," said a tailor.

"But suppose he doesn't pay you?"

"Well, if he doesn't pay me within a reasonable time I conclude he is not a gentleman—and then I ask him.

* * *

"Here, my dear," said the husband, producing a handful of sovereigns; "here are ten pounds I won at cards at the club last night. You may have it to buy that dress you wanted.

Reluctantly the conscientious wife took the money, then said with an expression of rigid rectitude:

"I simply hate the idea of using money gained in such a way. Henry, promise me that after you have won enough for me to buy a hat to go with the dress you will never again touch those awful cards. I don't want my husband to become a gambler."

* * *

Business Man: "Now, look here, didn't I tell you not to show your face here again?"

Persevering Commercial Traveler: "You did, sir; but I can't leave my face at home, can I, when I come here?"

* * *

Jenkins was a junior clerk to Mr. Skinflint. He had been pretty hard at it all the week, and, feeling that he had about enough of it, he strode into the managing director's office with an air of determination that even the senior clerk envied.

"Mr. Skinflint," began Jenkins, in an injured tone, "as the office-boy has been ill all the week, I have had to do his work as well as my own. As this is pay-day, I thought it just as well that you should know this."

"Just so—just so!" answered his chief. "Let me see, your salary is $5 a week, I think, and the office-boy's $2.

"Yes, sir, quite right," answered Jenkins, full of hope and ideas as to how he would spend the extra money.

"And," continued Mr. Skinflint, in a gentle tone, "you managed to do all the duties in your usual office hours?"

"Yes," agreed Jenkins.

"H'm! Well," said old Skinflint, "working half the week for yourself is $2.50, and the other half for the office-boy is $1. Your salary for the week will therefore be $3.50!"

* * *

A Laughable but rather embarrassing case of mistaken identity occurred the other day in a large draper's shop. A gentleman who is a little too fond of joking entered the shop for the purpose of meeting his wife at a certain counter. Sure enough, there stood a lady dressed, to his eye, at least, just like the woman he was after.

Her back was turned and no one was near her; so he quietly approached, took her by the arm, and said, in a voice of simulated severity: "Well, here you are, spending my money as usual, eh?"

The face turned quickly towards him was not his wife's; it was that of an acrid, angry, keen-eyed woman of about fifty years, who attracted the attention of everybody in that part of the shop by saying, in a loud, shrill voice:

"No, I ain't spending your money or no other man's money, and I'll——"

"I beg your pardon, madam," cried the confused gentleman. "I supposed you were my wife, and——"

"Well, I just ain't your wife, nor no other man's wife, thank fortune, to be jawed at every time I buy a yard of ribbon! I pity your wife if you go about shaking her like you did me. If I was her, I'd——"

The chagrined joker waited to hear no more, but made his way out of the shop, amid the titters and sly chuckles of those who had witnessed his confusion.

NEWSPAPERS AND MAIL ORDERS.

Competition from retail mail order houses has become so strong on the other side of the line that the local newspapers have taken up the campaign in protection of their home markets. One of them recently made the following comment on the situation:—

"When the catalogue comes from a mail order house, draw an easy chair to the table where the light will shine full upon the page, and put on your glasses that no bargain may escape your eye. What a wonderful book it is, to be sure? Wonderful for what it does not contain as well as what it does. You will miss some things you would be glad to see. Where is their offer to pay cash or exchange goods for your wheat, oats, corn, beans, butter, eggs, and hay? How much do they pay for cattle, sheep and hogs, f.o.b. at your depot? How much tax will they pay to support your schools and educate your children—for improving roads and bridges; the support of the poor of the county; for the expense of running the business of the township, county and state? On what page is their offer to contribute money to the church? What line of credit will they extend to you when your crops are poor and money gone. When through illness or misfortune, you are not able to send 'cash with order' for your groceries, clothing, farm tools and crockery?"

SOME GIFT ARTICLES.

Articles to feature prominently in Xmas advertising and window displays: Neckwear, gloves, mufflers, smoking jackets, bath robes, dressing gowns, jewelry, handkerchiefs, umbrellas, etc.

Under the heading "Bargains by Post," the London Daily Mail publishes an advertisement offering "30 Solid Bed Room Suites" for £7 15s. each. We pity the poor postman!

Cash Basis of Doing Business

Views of Some Merchants who Conduct Strictly Cash Stores—Very Loose Credits Prevail in Many Communities.

The tendency of the times is toward the cash basis of doing business, a tendency carefully fostered by all good merchants. Many strictly cash stores are enjoying a large measure of prosperity in towns and cities where it was predicted that they would last just about long enough to eat up whatever capital the proprietors invested in them. Even in small communities where the extending of credit was regarded as a fixed policy, the system is being operated with marked success.

Numerous large, and eminently prosperous houses, do not pretend to sell for cash only, but they watch their credits so closely that losses through bad accounts are reduced to the minimum. As a matter of fact the majority of them extend very little credit.

On the other hand, we find merchants who carry accounts on their books for months, and even for a year or two, under such conditions that we believe, in the great majority of cases, collections could be made within a reasonable length of time if the proper methods were only adopted and rigidly maintained.

One store that we visited recently gives a discount of 5 per cent. on all cash purchases and is well pleased with the result.

In touching on the state of affairs in numbers of small towns we can do no better than quote what a general merchant said to us not long ago :—"Another thing that is bettering the position of the general store is closer collecting of accounts. There is no reason why this cannot be done. In some instances you find merchants are backward about asking payment within a reasonable time, because they are afraid of offending old friends. If they are going to be up-to-date and gain a standing where they can look competition square in the face, accounts must be rendered regularly, and settlement insisted upon. By lax methods in this respect a great deal of money is lost. The time is approaching when every merchant must be able to buy for cash and and get his discounts. How can he do so if his customers are not made to adjust themselves to more business like terms ?"

Following are the views of several merchants who are selling on strictly cash terms —

—⟡—

THE RITCHIE CO., BELLEVILLE.

"About eight years ago we found we had over 1600 accounts on our books, representing about $30,000 out standing. We thought that money would be a lot better in our till than where it was. We made up our minds to two things : first, that we would collect the money, and, secondly, that we would discontinue sending out goods, except for cash.

"We had been doing business on the cash and credit plan for forty years, and it was not without some uncasiness that we carried out such a radical change. We did a lot of advertising concerning the benefits of a cash business for both buyer and seller. The result was that, the first year, without running any special sales, we increased our receipts over $9,000 above what they had ever been before, and, best of all, we had the money. This in the face of the fact that we were insisting upon the payment of all accounts.

"Some of our friends told us we would ruin such a long-established business, but we felt strongly on the subject, and stuck to our guns. Our business has increased each year in a manner to almost surprise ourselves.

"Think of the benefit of having that $30,000, with which to take cash discounts. We make far more out of the use of the money than we made in profits on the credit sales, when losses through bad accounts were deducted.

"Others may think and act as they please, but we are for cash, and, we think, not without good reason."

—⟡—

A. L. GARLAND, ST. THOMAS.

St. Thomas is a railway centre, and as the great majority of citizens receive their salaries or wages but once a month, a situation is created under which one would think that a large amount of credit would be extended. All of the stores catered to the natural tendency of trade until The Anderson Company started eight or ten years ago. They were the pioneers in the cash system of doing business, and, apparently, they have made a decided success of it.

"My business from the start has been strictly cash and one price. It was uphill work for the first year, but since then it has gone ahead at a fair pace. My increase since the first year has been 78¼ per cent., and 1906 exceeds 1905 by 58¼ per cent.

"The great advantage in selling for cash is that you do not have to worry over unpaid accounts, and can better finance a business, as you can count, from week to week, just about what your sales will likely be. Under the credit system you may expect large payments at a period when you need the money, and meet with disappointment. Then if you have not a large capital, you have to postpone your engagements with your creditors. This has a tendency, if continued, to weaken your credit.

"Then again, supposing you have bought heavily for a season's trade, and it turns out to be a bad one. At stock-taking time the cash man might show a heavy stock; but better than a low stock and the balance in book debts, which, to my mind, are estimated too liberally when they are cnnsidered to be worth 75 cents on the dollar.

"If you have the stock you can curtail your purchases along certain lines for the coming season ; if the book debts and low stock you will have to buy as heavily as if you had had a good season and sold for cash. This increases your liabilities, and were you to continue along this line you would in time build up a very large liability, with a big portion of your assets simply book debts.

"There is satisfaction to me to know that in the goods have not sold I have them on my shelves, and I fancy that is the way the wholesalers look at it.

"I advertise a cash business, and seldom get applications for credit. When I do get a few and state the facts, usually I find that the people making application spend a great portion of their money at my store afterwards.

"Another thing : suppose a lady is getting credit at a certain store, and finds at the end of the month that she is a little short. She postpones settlemeot till next pay day, and in the meantime invariably stays away and buys her goods at a cash store. I have known dozens of such instances here in the past few years.

"A man who sells for cash has another advantage: He makes more friends. A credit store often has to push for settlement of some accounts, and this leads to bad feelings. The upshot of it is that the customer transfers her patronage. Perhaps she goes to a cash store and at the end of the year finds that she is money in pocket."

T. G. A. FORMAN, WOODSTOCK.

"In discussing this question one is led to ask: What can one say, what argument can be made, in favor of a strictly cash, as against a credit business, that has not been said or made many times before? In the consideration of it one is compelled to recognize that there are many who have made a comparative, while others have made a splendid success of a credit business. It must be readily understood that if there be any advantages in a credit over a cash business, or vice versa, these advantages must be such as may be counted ultimately in cold, hard cash. Any who give intelligent thought to the subject know that the great advantage, if such there be, in a cash over a credit business, must rest in the single fact that in the former there occurs no risk of loss through unpaid accounts. Were all capable of paying and willing to pay there would be little to say in favor of the strictly cash business, except in its lessening of the expense account, through the fact that there is always either stock or cash on hand as an immediately available asset. And after all, perhaps, this is the greatest of the adavantages which in the commercial world go with the strictly cash business; the business man or firm needs only the one stock of merchandise with which to do business. They have either the goods, or the money with which to buy more. They do not have a considerable stock in the hands of customers, as well as on their shelves, the former of which can be carried only as an additional bill of expense.

"Any or all who have had the pleasure—or otherwise—of conducting both kinds of business know well that a carefully conducted and successful cash business is a paradise compared with the other. Of course those who have always carried 'the other' and feel their inability to change, 'the other,' with all the worries and disappointments which accompany it, is the only thing for them.

"The great essential in a successful cash business is faith—or confidence, if you will - both in one's self and the public to which he caters. One must believe that it can be done, that he can do it, and that the public will respond to his efforts to supply reliable merchandise at carefully considered cash prices.

"It is not sufficient to eliminate credit; it is absolutely necessary to convince one's customers, by the goods and prices placed before them, that it is in their own interest to pay cash.

"The successful cash business cannot be made by eliminating profits as well as credit. It can be built up and maintained only by a thorough system and diligent attention to it—by a system of buying and selling that will ensure the confidence of the buyer and the necessary margin to the tradesman. That means not too much, but just as certainly not too little profit.

"After all is said and done, it is the staple or everyday goods, where the styles change less rapidly, and there is less likelihood of depreciation, that afford to all dealers the surest grounds for success through profit, whether the business be carried on upon the cash or credit plan. Smaller margins do not allow much for depreciation in values through rapid changes of style. Therefore the wisdom of adhering widely to the everyday goods, and narrowly to the more fickle ones is only too apparent.

"At this point it might not be out of place to remark upon the loss so liable to occur to the retailer through these rapid changes to which the dry goods trade appears to be particularly subject. The successful dry goods business, whether for cash or credit, can be accomplished only through selling goods at a profit. And after all, a great deal of the success is attributable to judicious buying to buying goods that will sell, will sell quickly, and at a fair profit. By a fair profit I mean a profit that will please both merchant and customer.

"The reason for the failure of many businesses lies in an injudicious outlook. The proper outlook is the present and ultimate satisfaction of customers.

"It may take time to convince the people, but they can be convinced, that the best basis for the buyer and seller is the strictly cash basis."

"The Big Cash Store"—The Anderson Company St. Thomas.

WIMS & CO., BELLEVILLE.

"We find no difficulty at all in conducting our business on the cash system. About twelve years ago, when we were in Deseronto, the idea struck me that the ready cash system was the proper one to steer a business to success. We advertised in the local paper that on a stated date we would close our books forever; that we would give no credit to millionaire or beggar, layman or clergyman after that date. The result proved so satisfactory that we have maintained that policy ever since.

"We have some trouble with approbation customers. They take our goods and send in word that they will keep them and call in a day or two. Sometimes their memories are poor, but we never forget to remind them, with the result that we get the cash for our sales.

"The shoe merchants of our city entered into an agreement about two years ago not to give credit or allow goods out on approbation. This agreement is still in force, and so satisfactory has it proven that the shoe men will continue it." Mr. Wims adds: "To my mind the dry goods merchants could do the same, with pleasure and profit to themselves.

"I am a firm believer in the ready cash system, and during the balance of my mercantile career it is the platform on which I intend to stand or fall."

R. C. BURNS, BRANTFORD.

"Of my first venture in the retail dry goods field, in a place where about half the business was credit, and too much of it remained on the books, I have few pleasant recollections. Contrasting that experience with the past eight years that I have been in Brantford, doing a purely cash trade, I have no hesitation in advising any man to adopt the cash basis.

"Make it cash, and stick to it. No matter how small the business done, with proportionate expenses, any merchant will enjoy it better, have less worry, live longer, and I believe in nearly every case will be better off."

TWO EXTREMES.

In discussing with The Review the cash basis of doing business one merchant made reference to come conditions that prevailed in many districts years ago, under the "truck and trade" system. "I was in business," said he, "in a country town, and prided myself somewhat on my salesmanship. I had a customer one day for a pair of trousers, and after a great deal of trouble I landed him. You man imagine my surprise when he asked me to accept manure in exchange for the trousers. I refused, and asked him if there was really anyone in town who would make a transaction of the kind. He said Mr. —— did. Thank fortune that merchant is now out of business."

Cost of a Modern Store Front

Farthings of Aylmer put in one of the Very Finest of its Size at a Cost of Less than $2,000.

During the past year a great deal of money has been spent in the improvement of retail dry goods premises throughout Canada, and 1907 will witness much greater activity along this line. Present day conditions not only demand that a merchant and his goods shall be right up to the minute, but that they shall have bright, modern surroundings. In the face of strong competition from mail order houses, and stores in larger centres that can afford to carry heavier stocks, the local dry goods man realizes that, in order to protect his trade, he must offer good goods at fair prices, buy for cash, and, besides these prime essentials, make the equipment of his store such that the public will find it a pleasure to go there and do their buying.

People boast of large and well equipped dry goods stores in their home communities, almost as they would of splendid municipal institutions. They are pointed out as one of the very best evidences of the fact that the community is prosperous. Under such conditions merchants may hope to reduce to a small figure the amount which their customers spend at out-of-town stores.

In view of the many improvements that are contemplated, the accompanying cut of a modern store front, with the cost of building it, in detail, should be interesting. The store is Farthing's, of Aylmer, a town of 2,300 population, and over $10,000 was spent in remodelling it last summer. Now it is certainly one of the finest of its size in Canada. The dimensions are 40 x 120 feet.

A feature of the window is that it comes out flush with the brick columns on each side. This gives an extra foot of space, and, besides, greatly enhances the appearance of the front.

The entire metal work is painted and sanded in imitation of grey stone. The lion heads and all signs are done in gold leaf. In the window below the dividing bars used are 1 3-8 inches wide, finished in polished nickel.

The front, both inside and out, is finished in golden oak (natural wood). On the outside the very best carriage varnish was used, and it imparted a bright appearance that will last.

The interiors of the windows have each a ten-inch border of inlaid parquetry flooring, and in the centre a heavy green carpet, which is matched by heavy plush curtains.

The entrances are made with bent corners, and the vestibules are tiled.

The necessity of pillars or other obstructions either inside or outside the windows is obviated by the use of a 40-foot steel girder across the front. In the second storey above the windows, a large truss, similar to that in a bridge, connects with the steel girder by means of an iron bar, and makes a very substantial front.

Following are the items of cost as furnished by Mr. Farthings :—

Metal work, cornices, etc.	$ 200
Luxfer prisms	250
Plate glass	630
100 feet of transom bars	94
Steel girders	100
Tile vestibules	50
Material and labor, 1st floor	250
Material and labor, 2nd floor	125
Painting, etc., about	60
Signs	75
Electric fixtures	40
Parquetry flooring	71
Carpets	25
Plush curtains	40
Total	$ 1,960

Mr. Farthings took his ideas for this front from a 14th street store, New York. "We have made a pretty heavy outlay," he said to The Review, "but I think our town warrants it. Our sales for the month of October showed an increase of over one-third."

It is not out of place here to make some reference to the interior fittings of the store. Oak wardrobes are used in both men's and ladies' ready-to-wear departments. There are over 100 feet of glass counters, or silent salesmen. Three cases are each [illegible] in length, with rounded corners. The millinery show room has a circular pillar seat, upholstered in leather.

AN UNUSUAL SITUATION.

"Conditions differ in different places," remarked an Ontario dry goods man, and added: "I encountered a good instance of this not long ago. We bought out a business in a town not far from where our main store is located, and gave the manager whom we had appointed a set of rules for the employes. One of these was that clerks should place themselves at the disposal of customers as soon as they entered the store. Strange as it may seem, this rule did not work. The people of the town in question insist upon taking a look round for themselves; they have always been used to doing so, and we soon saw that it would be injudicious, at the present time, to attempt the introduction of any new procedure in this regard. It is an unusual situation, but it certainly exists just as I have told you.

FARTHINGS, Aylmer.

HAVE TRAVELERS VOTE BY MAIL.

Among commercial travelers there is a movement in favor of such amendment in the law as will permit them to vote by mail. There are eighteen or twenty thousand travelers in Canada, and, under present conditions, an intelligent vote is lost.

Systems of Handling Parcels

Some Stores of Medium Size that have Up-to-Date Equipment — A Very Live Question Just Now.

The Review has had a number of inquiries from merchants in regard to parcel systems that are being successfully operated in stores of medium size, and we find that this matter is one of considerable interest throughout the retail trade. We have obtained information from various sources, that should prove of value to those who are thinking of adopting more up-to-date methods along this line.

In the great majority of cases the practice now followed is to have clerks making sales wrap up the goods, which are afterwards delivered by boys employed for that purpose. The objection to this, in the first place, is that clerks consume a great deal of time—when they might direct their energies much more profitably in another direction—at a class of work that could very well be concentrated in one department, and looked after with greater expedition, and also a saving in expense.

* * *

Take a busy day, and count, from the checks, how many parcels a clerk has wrapped up. Make an estimate of the length of time he probably occupied in doing so. Go through the same process of calculation with respect to each one of your salespeople, and add up the result. Figure what this would amount to in a week, month and year, taking into account that every day is not a busy day. Get to the root of the question and find out, as nearly as possible, what you are paying for the time that your sales force spends in wrapping goods. It may be a rather rough estimate, but it will serve the purpose. Then ascertain what it would cost you to put in a parcel equipment, and place a competent employe in charge of it.

* * *

There is another standpoint from which this matter must be viewed. Consider how many more people your clerks could wait on, and how much better attention they could give, in a rush, if they were untrammeled with parcel work. Is it not reasonable to suppose that each one of them could make a few more sales in a day than he is doing, and with greater satisfaction to your customers? When people crowd around your counters every moment must be put to good purpose. Delay may turn business aside in favor of competitors, and, perhaps, your store is said to be a very tiresome place at which to purchase on a busy day. Your clerks get the reputation of being slow, when the fault really lies with the system that you oblige them to follow. All these things must be included in the calculation of what your present method of handling parcels is costing, and whether or not it would pay to drop it and install up-to-date equipment.

* * *

There is still another point that must be mentioned, and numerous merchants may regard it as the most important. It is the desirability of having all goods checked over before they go out, a work coming within the province of the parcel department.

* * *

The above has to do with parcels before they leave the store. Delivery is the next step to be examined. What system shall be adopted in this respect depends upon the style of service that customers demand, and upon the extent of the business transacted. The reason we have given precedence to the former consideration is that we have found some places of as high as 15,000 population where the same exact system of handling parcels does not prevail as has been found a necessity in other places of less than 10,000 population.

* * *

It is sometimes very difficult to get boys who can be relied upon to exercise the desired amount of care both in handling goods and seeing that they invariably reach their proper destination as quickly as possible. Very often, in a desire to secure better service, with the minimum expenditure, merchants of all classes have clubbed together in supporting an independent parcel delivery. Many have found it necessary to abandon this in favor of their own equipment.

* * *

The department store of McLaren & Co., St. Catharines, requires a good system at all times. Goods sold are sent to a central desk. They are quickly re-measured and wrapped up, to be either given to the customer or classified for delivery. During the busy season a number of boys are employed for the purpose of carrying parcels to the desk, and, when necessary, returning them to the clerk making the sale. The latter's number, taken from the check, is attached by the parcel clerk, so that there is no chance of confusion or delay.

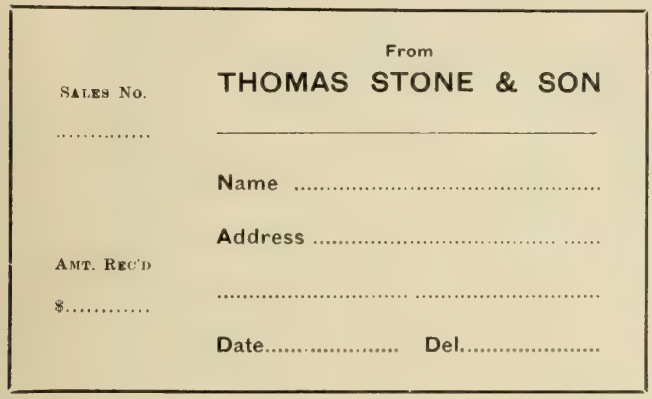
Parcels for delivery are entered in a book, with number of salesman, time sent out, driver's name, etc. Drivers are held responsible for all parcels which they receive.

* * *

This store uses several wagons, and will deliver almost anything of reasonable value in the district surrounding St. Catharines, although an effort is made to establish a minimum of $35 or $40. Deliveries are made twice a week to Merritton and Thorold, and one to Port Dalhousie and Niagara Falls.

* * *

The Anderson Company, "The Big Cash Store," St. Thomas, handle parcels in about the same way as McLaren & Co., except that they use a carrier system, working on the same principle as the ordinary cash carrier, by means of which each department has a speedy means of sending goods to the desk. When the re-measuring is done, the name of the purchaser, address, salesman's number and time to be delivered, are entered up. When the parcel goes out the time is checked and name of driver taken. The delivery men are held accountable for goods in their charge. The company has its own wagons.



* * *

Thomas Stone & Son, Chatham, have two horses and wagons, representing an investment of about $1,000. All parcels are conveyed, by means of a carrier system, to the desk, which is located in a gallery at the rear of the store. Those which customers desire to take with them can be checked over in a very short time and returned.

The counter checks used by this firm have an extra division, something after the style of the one here produced. It calls for the name and address of the purchaser, amount received, number of salesperson, date and time of delivery. This is for use of the parcel department. The usual check form is attached, but the two are separated as soon as the goods are measured. The name of the buyer, etc., is copied into a book, along with the time wagon leaves store and name of driver. The latter is responsible for goods.

There are three deliveries every day—10.30 a.m., 2.30 p.m., and 5 p.m. If necessary it is always possible to make a fourth delivery at noon. This system is found to work very satisfactorily. If a customer calls up to say that a parcel was to have been received at a certain hour and had not arrived the book tells what time it left, and the reassuring answer can be given that it is on the way. Not a single parcel has ever been lost.

We know of a merchant in a city of 15,000 population who gets a flat rate of $12 per week from the concern operating delivery wagons. This is a pretty cheap service. Another dry goods man has all of his parcels delivered by a grocer in an adjoining block. A Berlin store employed a man to open boxes, act as porter, and also drive delivery wagon. He combines these duties very nicely. The store had an arrangement with a local livery for a horse and wagon, all the year round, at $6 per week. The livery stood cost of wear and tear, and provided a fresh horse whenever desired.

* * *

J. C. Tait & Co., St. Catharines, The Northway Co., Chatham, A. W. Cressman, Peterboro, and The Ritchie Co., Belleville, are some other stores which have their own delivery outfits.

The merchant who finds that he must for the present rely on boys to deliver his parcels can generally introduce some improvements into his system. Geo. Vickers, Barrie, and Orillia, has a register in which each boy signs his name opposite the parcels he is to take, and marks down also the time that he leaves. This not only furnishes a method of fixing responsibility for mistakes, but discourages loitering. It is known just where each boy has gone, what time he left, and about how long it should take him to make the trip.

Some of the Most Successful Ideas

A short time ago The Review wrote a number of merchants in different sections of the Dominion, asking them this question: "What was the most successful idea you ever put in force?" Some have given a general outline of methods essential to the building up of a prosperous business, and, naturally, there is considerable sameness about the single ideas expressed by others. From all of the replies we have picked the following:—

"Individuality has a great deal to do with a man's success. See first that you are right, and then go ahead. Above all, keep your character unstained, and this, combined with ordinary intelligence, will generally bring a substantial reward."

"Selling for one price, and that strictly cash."

"Keeping well stocked with the goods that the people want."

"1. We endeavor to study carefully the needs of the people, thus, as far as possible, buying the goods that will sell readily."

"2. We buy where we consider the best value is obtained, pay spot cash, sell on a moderate margin, and endeavor to use our people right, believing that gradual progress is safer in the long run than to become wealthy in a few years by unfair methods and practices. External vigilance and stick-to-itiveness will lead to fortune."

"The idea of doing business on a spot cash basis is the most successful one we have ever put in force. If any of your readers are thinking of doing likewise we will be pleased to give them any information in regard to our experience in this departure."

"Paying strict attention to my own business."

"Keeping everlastingly at it is the best idea that I know of."

"My most successful idea was to sell for cash."

"Advertising, followed up by attending closely to business, and conducting business on business principles."

"Strictly cash, and one price to all."

"After being in the dry goods business for eight years, and having made a competence, I may be pardoned for expressing myself strongly. My most successful idea was to cut out all intoxicating drink, and all the would-be "good fellows," who fail to see that they are ruining merchants whom they invite, during business hours, to drink with them. Like oil and water, they do not mix."

"On first going into business I thought the best thing I could do was to sell on credit to anyone who would be likely to pay me. At the end of three years (in 1876) I put in force my present cash system, and have continued to sell goods for cash ever since. I am sure this is the most successful idea I ever put in force. From what experience I have had in the cash system, I am convinced that it is the only true way to do business."

"When we commenced business we adopted the rule: "Strictly one price, and satisfaction, or your money back." We consider that this has contributed largely to our success, particularly in our clothing and furniture departments, as in many xases these two lines are sold on the get-any-price plan."

A men's furnisher writes: "The point most prominent in my mind just now is that when a customer inquires for an article, the merchant should show all stock possible near his idea, and then tell the truth. By this policy he may lose a sale, but never a customer."

Another men's furnisher says: "Solid window displays which command attention and draw the passing crowds exactly to the point—result, direct sales."

We submitted the question just at a busy period, and numbers of merchants may not have found time to reply. We would be glad to hear from them now.

A Beattie & Co, St Marys.

A. Beattie & Co., St. Marys.

A. Beattie & Co., St. Marys.

A. Beattie & Co., St. Marys.

Competition of Catalogue Houses

The Only Methods Which The Local Merchant May Effectively Employ in Meeting it — Big Expansion of Eaton's Business.

Two years ago the mail order business of the T. Eaton Co. was divided by the establishment of their Winnipeg store, which has taken charge of all trade from the West. That, of course, made a big reduction in the activity of this department at the Toronto house. Not for long, however. Now the latter alone has as large a business as was formerly received by the company from the whole of Canada, and, besides this the Western trade has increased very materially.

While most merchants realize that the retail mail order business has grown, there are few, if any, who would credit it with such expansion as that indicated above, in the single case of Eaton's. However, what we state is a fact, and one to which, we believe, every retailer ought to give some consideration in his forecast of prospects for 1907.

* * *

The Review has made some study of the means which a local merchant may effectively employ in protecting himself against the competition of mail order houses. Our conclusion is that he will find the solution of the problem —if such it may be called—in the development of his natural advantages, and in a thorough comprehension of the methods which are used to induce people to make purchases from catalogue.

* * *

In the first place let us enumerate the advantages which a local merchant has over the catalogue houses They are :

Location.

1. He knows the peculiar demands of his local trade, and can supply the exact goods wanted.
2. He can have a wide personal acquaintance with customers.
3. He can add new goods and new styles almost daily, where catalogue houses publish a general list but once or twice a year.
4. He can do a credit business, if he wishes, with responsible parties, while catalogue houses demand cash in advance.
5. His clerks can draw trade by their personal acquaintance.

The location of the local merchant makes the consumer desire to buy from him, because :—

1. He can see the goods he is purchasing.
2. He can get the article as soon as needed.
3. He can purchase without the inconvenience of writing a letter and getting a money order.
4. He can exchange any article not satisfactory without delay.
5. He can be waited on by a personal acquaintance.
6. Prices being equal he feels it a civic duty to patronize home industries.

Store.

1. He shows the goods, not pictures or descriptions of them.
2. He can use show windows to attract trade.
3. He can cultivate the shopping habit among customers by making his store attractive.

Transportation Charges.

Goods are received by him in such quantities that freight or express charges per item cost consumer less than when shipped from catalogue houses.

* * *

Foremost among the methods which have developed catalogue business is advertising. A study of the form of publicity used will give a merchant much instruction as to how he shall best counteract the efforts to break into his field. If mail orders are injuring him he may at once resolve upon doing a better class of advertising and more of it. Let him note the fine descriptive matter which the catalogue houses use. This is one of the strongest means they have of making their goods appear attractive. Take the following items, clipped from one of Eaton's ads :—

"Pretty Smyrna rugs. Size 30 x 60 inches. Reversible. Rich, glowing color harmonies. Floral and Oriental effects."

"Genuine French kid gloves—the favorite dollar kind—much wanted because of the splendid value. Nice, flexible, give and take kid. Sound oversewn seams. Two-dome fasteners. Gusset fingers. Imperial points. Colors, tan, mode, beaver, fawn, oxblood, navy, pearl, black and white."

These were picked out at random, but they give some idea of the point we wish to convey. Advertising should be designed to create a desire for the goods advertised. A great deal of that done throughout the country falls away short of the mark.

* * *

Catalogue houses make big bid for trade from the standpoint of cheap prices, still in many instances we find the local merchant offering the same goods for less money. "We can compete with them in everything but advertised bargains," one dry goods man, J. M. Farthings, Aylmer, told The Review a short time ago. "I was in one of the Toronto department stores this Fall," he continued, "and saw fur-lined coats at $85, that we were selling for $75." It will pay the local merchant to give some attention to the price consideration. He can occasionally pick up merchandise at such figures as will enable him to offer as good inducements in this respect as the catalogue houses. The man who can buy all of his goods for cash—as it is often advisable to do, even if it is necessary to borrow the money from the bank—will have a substantial advantage in quoting such reasonable rates as will make his store a splendid place to purchase at all times. Cash discounts, we have often remarked, represent, in a fair-sized business, a sufficient amount in themselves to satisfy a merchant, after expenses have been paid. This means that a man paying cash for everything and getting his discounts could really sell his goods at just such profit as would cover his cost of doing business. Discounts comprise in a great many cases all the profit that a catalogue house asks.

* * *

Cash discounts are a large element in the question of better buying. Another has to do with assortments.

Small range of goods in the local stores is one of the things which act most strongly in sending business to the catalogue houses from numerous communities. Even if this stock be small in quantity, have it bright and up-to-date, with as big an assortment as necessary to satisfy the demands of the local market. In this connection, a merchant should make it a point to know what lines his customers are purchasing most heavily from catalogue.

* * *

Then there is the drawing power of a neat, attractive store. A prolific cause of increase in catalogue trade in some smaller towns and villages is the untidy, unattractive, and even uncouth appearance of the stores. Stocks and prices may be right, but that fact loses its weight when business is attempted in slovenly environments. There is no excuse for such conditions as we have found in some stores, one of which we commented on editorially in the November issue.

* * *

The importance of good service in the store cannot be underestimated. It will go a long way toward making buying pleasant, and hold patronage.

* * *

In many towns and cities that we have visited merchants inform us that mail order business is falling off year by year. After going through their premises, and noting their methods we can well believe that this is so. They are working along the lines above described, and competition from the catalogue houses is to them no longer a problem. They have discovered that it can be overcome, or, at least, reduced to the minimum if approached in the proper way. They realize that it is legitimate and that it must be met in the same way as the competition of any other firm. "A man who lies down before it deserves all he gets," said a merchant to The Review the other day.

* * *

The smaller towns, villages and country districts are furnishing the bulk of the catalogue business. The local retailers here need to spruce up and go after trade as though they meant it. Every one of them—as well as those in the large centres—should have a mailing list, and put a mail order plan of their own in operation. A great many stores have done so, and find that this department can be developed readily. We will be glad to furnish our readers with information in this regard at any time.

* * *

Various methods, different from those which we have outlined, have been attempted in the States, but they have all been ineffective, and, more than that, served to draw closer attention of consumers to the catalogue business. Retailers there have come to learn that abuse is injurious to themselves, and people answer the patronage-of-home-industry cry by saying that they have a right to buy where they please. The only successful way to meet competition of catalogue houses is to study the reasons why your customers trade with them, and give them better reasons for trading at home. By doing so you may improve local conditions so that there will be no considerable trade go out of town. It may be taken for granted that there will always be a little that you cannot hold, and, perhaps, would not find it worth while making the necessary effort to do so. However, see that it is of as small a quantity as possible.

In conversation with the proprietor of an excellent store in one of the Ontario towns we were told that, although prices quoted compared with those of mail order houses, the latter did a big business in the town. "We even sell better than they do," said this merchant, "but the trouble is people don't know it." We pointed out that what he needs is advertising. The only medium that he now has is a weekly newspaper. He is going to introduce more descriptive matter into his space and supplement it by a mailing list.

A BONUS FOR BUYERS.

Regarding a form of procedure calculated to remedy the evil of too heavy stocks, James Wood, of the Glasgow, Scotland, firm of Woods & Selby, sends The Drapers' Record the following outline of a plan he adopted five years ago, and which he has found to work very simply and satisfactorily :—

"In the event of it being found in the annual departmental trading account, made up by a firm of chartered accountants at the end of the financial year, that the stock in the department has been turned over not less than the number of times prescribed by the firm at the beginning of the financial year as the minimum number of times the stock in the department should be turned over during said financial year ; and it being found that the department has earned not less than the percentage of gross profits on the total turnover of the department prescribed by the firm, a bonus of 2½ per cent. (subject to deduction or addition, or cancellation altogether, as in the events aftermentioned) on the sum by which the turnover of the department has increased, compared with the turnover of the immediately preceding year, shall be paid to the buyer of the department.

"In the event of the gross profit on the total turnover of the department being (½ to under 1 per cent.) less than the prescribed percentage of gross profit on the total turnover of the department, then the bonus shall only be 1¼ per cent. on the sum by which the turnover of the department has increased as aforesaid ; and if the gross profit of the total turnover of the department is 1 per cent. less than the prescribed percentage, then no bonus shall be paid.

"In the event of the stock at the date of stocktaking being more or less than the prescribed amount for the department, 2½ per cent. on the sum by which the stock exceeds, or is less than, the prescribed amount will be added to or deducted from (as the case may be) the bonus payable to the buyer in respect of increased turnover in the department.

"Should the stock in hand of a department at the stocktaking exceed the prescribed amount by 10 per cent. or thereby, then no bonus shall be paid to the buyer of the department in respect of any increase in turnover.

"No bonus shall be allowed on an increase in the gross profit of a department, but, should a department show such increase in profit and at the same time a slight increase in stock, the increase in profit may be set off to some extent against the increase in stock.

"No bonus will be paid for a shorter period of trading than one year, namely, from stocktaking to stocktaking."

The Cost of Doing Business

Only a Few Merchants Know—Some Conduct Departments as Separate Stores—The Scientific Principles of Business.

According to calculation by commercial agencies, only seven out of every eighty-six men—8.13 per cent.—going into business are successful. Not all of the rest fall into the hands of the assignee; a great many struggle along from year to year, winning a mere existence, and perpetuating methods that hamper competitors who know how to progress and are trying hard to do so. An analysis of the situation is bound to prompt the conclusion that there are numbers of men in business who should be engaged in some pursuit which does not call for so much ambitious endeavor along scientific lines.

The estimate of 8.13 per cent. will be questioned; we have been told that it is too high, and that 5 per cent. is a liberal figure.

The commercial agencies advance the following as the chief reasons for non-success: Inattention to business, lack of capital, inexperience, loose credits and speculation. Applying these to the retail dry goods trade, the first may be classed as an elementary consideration that no merchant, who is worthy of the name, need have impressed upon him, lack of capital is something for which he cannot be blamed, inexperience, if accompanied by ordinary common sense, very seldom touches dry goods; loose credits are certainly a prolific cause of failure; speculation, of the nature indicated, may be passed over with the comment that few dry goods men we know of go outside their businesses to find investment.

Scientific Principles of Business.

The great majority of merchants who go to the wall do not, we believe, do so through deficiency in knowledge of merchandise, but, rather, because they have not mastered the scientific principles of business. Many of them in graduating from the management of departments in other stores do not develop much more ability and energy than were required in the old positions. They continue to be good buyers and salesmen, but fail as merchants because they are poor financiers. Perhaps, after the smash comes, someone points out that where they lacked chiefly was in not knowing what it cost them to do business.

This is one of the most important problems that a large proportion of the trade has before it at the present time. The Review cannot emphasize the fact too strongly, and we will endeavor each month to collect information in this regard that shall be of solid value.

Only Small Percentage Know.

"Ninety per cent. of retailers," said a business man recently, "cannot tell you what it costs them to do business, and it is the absence of that knowledge which causes a great many failures."

The old school definition that profit is the difference between the cost price and the selling price is erroneous. The expense of doing business must be subtracted from the profit. Very often that is impossible, for the simple reason that the former is the larger figure. The merchant will be fully aware of that, but he may be entirely at sea when it comes to an examination of details. This may be due to bad or inefficient methods of bookkeeping, but more likely to failure to include in the cost of doing business all the items of expenditure which should properly come under that head.

Some Items to be Reckoned.

Take interest on the capital invested. If a man were operating on borrowed capital he would pay interest. If he borrowed half his capital the interest on his own money would be as legitimate an item of expense as the interest on what he had borrowed. This should include, also, interest on the value of stock not paid for, and on all outstanding accounts. If he carries $1,000 or $30,000 on his books the interest on that is certainly a proper item in the cost of doing business.

Then there are rent, taxes, light, heat, wages, advertising, insurance, delivery, etc. Even if the merchant owns his premises he should reckon rent, or interest on the value of the property, which amounts to about the same thing. His own salary is another item. If a manager were employed a salary would have to be paid him. If a man is the active head of his own business, he should have a salary just the same. It might be said that his profits are his salary. That is putting it in the wrong light, and placing him in a worse situation than a mere manager. If the business failed the latter would lose only his position. He risks nothing. The merchant risks all he puts into the business. Surely his profits cannot be regarded as salary. Profits should be something quite distinct, something over and above that.

Depreciation on stock and plant, repairs and renewals must be considered. Every merchant should figure the percentage of depreciation and provide for it. Bad debts certainly have a place in the list also.

Generally the system followed by merchants who have a system at all is to figure up all the items mentioned above as a charge against their profits as a whole, and strike a percentage. Others—and they are greatly in the minority—departmentize their businesses, and apportion general expenses, thus making each section stand entirely upon its own feet, just as separate stores would have to do.

Departments as Separate Stores.

In estimating their cost of doing business, McLaren & Co., St. Catharines, treat department as a separate store. It is charged with all goods stocked, advertising space, salespeople, salaries—clerks are required to stay in their own departments—and whatever other expenditures are made solely on its account. A certain valuation is placed on floor space, that near the entrance being set at a higher figure than any other, and so on. The portion of rent which, say, the dress goods section pays depends upon its location and the amount of space that it occupies. Taxes are divided in the same way. Heat and light charges are made according to space, and insurance according to the value of the stock. Expenses that are of a purely general nature, such as manager's salary, delivery service, parcelling, stationery, office staff, postage, etc., are apportioned on the basis of stock and sales—1-3 on the former and 2-3 on the latter. The bigger the stock on hand the greater proportion of general expenses a department must pay. Stock is taken twice a year, but the store's system is such that it is possible to tell almost any time how each section stands. No credit is extended, so that bad debts do not enter into the reckoning. Interest is charged on capital invested.

Good System in Chatham.

C. Austin, Chatham, has figured his cost of doing business by departments for a number of years. Even while his own turnover was comparatively small he found the system a very profitable one. He divides his store into the following sections and requires each one to show a fair profit: 1, dress goods, silks and dress trimmings; 2, wash goods and staples; 3, smallwares, hosiery, gloves and fancy goods of all kinds; 4, clothing and men's furnishings; 5, furniture carpets and draperies; 6, ready-to-wear garments; 7, millinery.

Each department is charged with goods received are credited with sales. Expenses incurred within itself are charged direct, insurance according to value of stock; rent and other general expenses according to space and location.

"By this system," Mr. Austin told The Review, "I know just what it costs me to do business in each of seven departments. I know that it costs 8 to 10 per cent. more to sell goods in one than in another, and it is pretty valuable information. At the end of every month I can tell just how each department stands, and compare it with the standing the previous year. Here is a summary which shows what quantity of goods was bought in November, 1905, and also in November, 1906, with the sales also.

"A splendid feature connected with this system is that a weakness in any part of the business can be quickly detected. A short time ago my figures showed that one department was not doing so well as it should. I at once investigated and found a good, legitimate reason for the drop in sales. The remedy was at once applied and everything is running smoothly again.

"I find a great deal of comfort at a slow time is looking back and seeing that, perhaps, business is even better than the previous year."

In a General Store.

Following are the views of an Ontario general merchant on the best system of estimating cost of doing business:

"What can or cannot be considered as a proper charge on profit is often asked.

"We contend that the cost of doing business has a prospective and retrospective side, and can be considered as a theory or a fact.

"To the young man about to start in business the prospective cost must appeal. To him it is a hazy dream; after years of business it often becomes an awful nightmare.

"We will, then, consider the cost of doing business from the standpoint of an investor. What must the young man consider as a legitimate basis of considering cost? All men enter business life for one reason—that of making money. Capital, time, energy, are devoted to that end, and the margin between cost price and price realized (commonly called by the misnomer "profit"—frequently a loss) must carry the business ship to the harbor of success or leave it a derelect upon the sea, a menace to the trade of those who navigate the same waters, dangerous to other interests limited only in proportion to its size, the practical result of not being able to discern between profit and loss. Stocks may differ—as may communities—but when a man draws say $5,000 from the bank and invests it in stock he must be in a position at the end of a period of time to withdraw that amount plus a profit above interest or he has not succeeded.

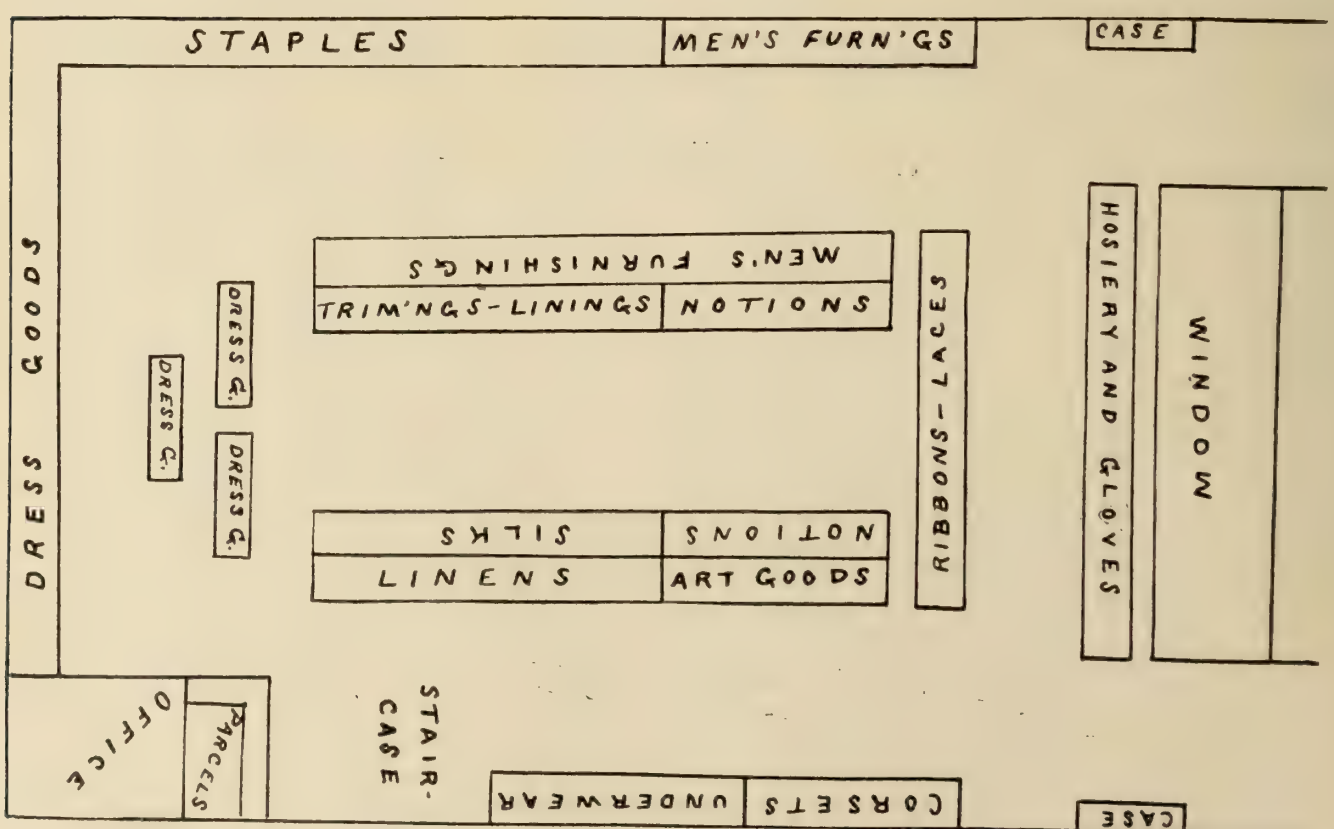
"To the beginner we say, over-estimate rather than under-rate the cost of doing business. It's safer. You invest say $5,000 cash in a stock of general merchandise. You estimate you can do $15,000 worth of business on this investment (we believe that the average stock in Ontario is not turned over more than twice, however). In order to do this you will have to charge against profit: Salaries (other than your own), rent of store, light, heat, taxes, insurance, advertising, freight, cartage, express, office expenses, depreciation of value of stock, and if you are doing a credit business, depreciation of value of book accounts also. We submit the following and contend that a man who hopes to succeed is not safe to alter the estimate only as time and experience together with the yearly balance sheet prove his ability to do so.

"To do a $15,000 business on a $5,000 stock of general merchandise we estimate the cost as follows:

	Per year.
Rent of building	$200.00
Salaries
Man	500.00
Girl	250.00
Boy	200.00
Insurance on $5,000 at 1¾	88.00
Light and heat	100.00
Advertising, 1 p.c. on amount of business	150.00
Taxes	50.00
Freight, cartage and express	300.00
Office expenses	100.00
Interest on investment, 6 p.c. on $5,000	300.00
Ten per cent. on $2,000, cost of collecting book accounts, together with bad debts marked off	200.00
Add to this the depreciation in the value of his stock, worth say 80c. after one year	1,000.00
Total	$3,438.00

"We have $3,438 as the estimated amount of the legitimate cost of doing this amount of business. In many items our figures are too conservative, and you will notice we have not taken into consideration the salary of the proprietor, this because we consider the above table as fixed expenditure, a tax against the business which must be met, while the proprietor's salary may be decreased or increased as business may warrant. The man who goes into business for one year, then sells out, may consider himself most lucky if he can do so without an actual loss, while the man who remains in business would not have to consider depreciation of stock more than from 5 p.c. to 10 p.c. per annum, save only the year he should wind up his business, when after five years his stock would perhaps be worth 75 per cent.

"It will then be clearly seen that under ordinary circumstances a man must average 33 1-3 per cent. advance on net cost (not 1-3 advance on invoice, as much could be said about the importance of the cash discount and its place in a business man's success). But following up our example, 33 1-3 advance on cost would mean a gross profit of $3,750, or a salary for the proprietor, providing he remains in business, of roughly, $1,000."



"If every business man felt that departure from the above, whether business extravagance or cutting of prices, etc., meant a cutting of his salary (the only item of cost not fixed) fewer business failures would have to be reported."

* * *

We invite all retailers to discuss this subject in the columns of The Review. We feel sure that an exchange of opinion would be of very material value.

J. Mickleborough, Limited, St. Thomas.

Rough Diagram of Ground Floor, J. Mickleborough, Ltd., St. Thomas.

Successful Millinery Departments

Editor The Dry Goods Review,—My millinery department has never shown a profit; in fact, there are seasons when it does not pay its own way. I know it is a very difficult department to handle, but I have determined to put it on a better footing. I am tired maintaining it simply as an attractive feature. You are in touch with stores that have made millinery a profitable line. Any information as to the methods employed will be very much appreciated.

"INQUIRER."

In the first place we may say that we have found merchants making good profits out of millinery, both in cities of 15,000 and villages of 1,500 population, and, in the former case, a couple have actually declared it to be the best paying branch of large businesses. This, of course, is exceptional; the great majority consider they are doing quite nicely if there is no deficit at the end of the season.

During the last few years several merchants that we know of have dropped the formal opening, and state that the change has been a most satisfactory one. They simply announce the sale of fall and winter, or spring and summer millinery, as the case may be, for a certain date, considerably in advance of competitors. A limited stock is shown, but in advertising, a great deal of stress is laid on the fact that fresh goods and new styles will arrive every day. Hats which the milliners make up to-day are put in the showroom to-morrow and cleared out, to be replaced the following day by to-morrow's productions, and so on. It is claimed that this does away with stock accumulation.

All but a very small percentage of the merchants are firm in their belief that a formal opening is the thing. Generally it is made a "show time" throughout the whole store. There is always sure to be a big crowd, and sometimes an orchestra is provided for its entertainment. Sales are never expected to run very high on this day; people are invited to look around and enjoy themselves. One store in Ontario issued invitations to men a year or two ago, and quite a number dropped in with their wives. Most of them said it was the first time they had been in a dry goods store in years, and they found the visit quite a novelty. It will have to be something pretty good that materially increases the popularity of the formal opening. One of its strong points is the scope which it affords for elaborate display. A large showing of hats is required at the outset, and a big consideration is the fact that public favor is divided into two or three shapes, rejecting the others.

The first point in building up a successful millinery department is the engagement of a good milliner. They are not over-plentiful and when a merchant does find one it will generally pay him to make it worth her while to remain. A Peterboro man gives his head milliner $20. a week, and, doubtless, would go higher sooner than lose her. She has made the department one of the very best in his store. There is, undoubtedly, a good deal in a milliner knowing thoroughly the trade to which she must cater. The manager of a Western Ontario store said recently: "Our milliner has been with us for twenty-two years, and she knows, as nearly as possible, what our customers want. She is capable of buying so that there will be very little accumulation at the end of a season. If a merchant gets a good milliner he should try hard to keep her. She will easily save the difference between the salary—if that is the consideration—he would have to pay her and that at which he might have to pay a successor."

We were in a store, in a town of less than 4,000 population some time ago where a turnover of $10,000 was made in the millinery department in 1905.

"This department," said a Brantford man," is the biggest attractive feature any dry goods store can have. Even if we lost $200 or $300 a year on it, we would still consider it paid. We figure on a gross profit of 100 per cent., and about 15 per cent. net. Salaries are high and we have to count on accumulation as a dead loss. We take this into consideration in marking our prices."

In order to reduce accumulation to the minimum most merchants import only staple goods, and buy the remainder of their supplies just as needed. "We do not import a dollar's worth," the manager of a good sized store in Eastern Ontario told The Review.

The Late David McMurtrie
A Director of John Knox & Co., Hamilton.

A splendid idea that we found in one successful department was this: Customers are promised that no two hats alike shall be sent out. This assures every lady of something with an individual touch to it.

We have heard the remark made by several merchants that they could easily do a larger business in this line and make less money. They are careful not to go into it too strongly.

A large number of exclusive millinery stores have been opened during the past year, and appear to be generally successful. The fact that the milliners are buying for themselves naturally makes them very careful in buying.

If "Inquirer" would like us to investigate any particular points in connection with the management of a millinery department we will be glad to do so.—Editor.

Business Management

By HOWARD R. WELLINGTON.

This Closes the Series of Articles on the Subject of Book-keeping.

In order to show how the surplus in the business is made up, a statement of Assets and Liabilities is shown herewith. It would be interesting for the merchant to have the items on these statements arranged in the same order for each year or period and comparisons could then be made periodically with previous years to ascertain the condition of the business from time to time.

As previously stated, when an account has a debit balance it must be one of two things—an Asset to the business or a Loss. When there is a balance at the credit of an account, it must be a Liability or a Gain.

Cash, accounts receivable, merchandise on hand, expense items prepaid, also coal and wood on hand, bills receivable, equipment, etc., are all Assets of the business, while accounts payable, bills payable, amount due bank, etc., are all Liabilities.

In addition to the above mentioned Assets and Liabilities is the proprietor's capital account, which is treated as a Liability. J. M. Russill, personally, and his business are not the same, that is, J. M. Russill has invested money in a business and the business owes him, therefore, the capital account of his business is a Liability of the business.

This is the last of the series on book-keeping for the retail merchant. There are, of course, more elaborate systems than those outlined in these articles, and slight changes are invariably necessary to fit in with the particular business, but in a general way we have endeavored to give those interested a fair idea of how to run a set of books, using double entry. The various methods and the books and forms may look cumbersome at first sight, but will be found very practical when used

Statement of Assets & Liabilities

Assets				Liabilities
Cash	On Hand		50 50	Accts Payable	T. Thomas	100 00
Mdse.	" "		4500 00		S Peter	30 00
Expense.	Sundry items prepaid etc		140 00		R Ramsay	15 00
Bills Rec.	J Simpson	50 00			T. Little	100 00
	S Jones.	30 00			J Jackson	27 50	272 50
	J Jenkins	150 00		Bills Pay.	T. B Scott		200 00
	S Brown	28 00
	C. Clear.	30 00	288 00	Bills Pay	Bank Discounts		1500 00
Accts Receivable	J Jones.	30 00
	T Brown	50 00		Expense	Sundry items		30 00
	S Best.	100 00
	S Test	20 00		J M Russill	Capital &c.		6681 00
	S Thomas	30 00			(Ist Instl)
	T Simpson	25 00	255 00
Equipment	Sundry items		750 00
Real Estate			3000 00
			$ 9983 50				$ 9983 50

FIG. 1.

Business Basis Should be Mutual

Our country's growth is proverbially world-wide. Our increasing business is keeping pace with its advancement,—the past season being an incentive to still press forward.

Our aim is to secure a new record during 1907

Our reputation for fair and liberal treatment in all trade matters is well-known to our friends. To retain their confidence and support, we have pleasure in stating for our mutual benefit that our merchandize in all departments has been the most carefully selected and replete in variety we have ever shown.

Our lines should aid all who handle them to succeed—

Domestic and Foreign Staples

Household Linens

Plain, Printed and Fancy Wash Goods

Dress Fabrics Silks

Fancy Goods Dress Accessories

Special—Embroideries and Laces

Hosiery, Gloves and Underwear

OUR REPRESENTATIVES ARE ON THEIR RESPECTIVE ROUTES.
SEE OUR SAMPLES.

BROPHY-CAINS, LIMITED

MONTREAL

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS. QUICK SHIPPERS

Why Retailers are Organizing

Some Questions Which Various Associations Have Taken Up—
One Appoints Collector to Look After all Overdue Accounts.

Among the many good things which the past year brought was the re-amination iof numerous Merchants' Associations throughout the country. During 1907 we hope sincerely to see much greater progress made in this respect. How so many retailers can remain blindly apathetic, in the face of very evident advantages to be gained through active organization, is something difficult to understand.

The majority of towns of fair size have had associations of local merchants at one time or another. Interest was maintained until the supply of live subjects for discussion ran low, and then it died a natural death. A few of the original promoters hung on for a time, but they too finally lost all enthusiasm. Each year afterward a sort of half-hearted meeting was held for election of officers. None of the positions were very highly prized, and, in fact, they had very often to be almost forced upon someone, with the assurance that he wouldn't have anything to do anyway.

Association is Good Business.

We have heard a good deal about jealousy between merchants being one of the greatest barriers to the operation of associations in such a way as to bring about any substantial good. While this point must certainly be considered, we believe that its importance has been highly magnified. Close competition, in its various phases, may sometimes make it hard for all merchants to get together on a friendly footing, but it should not prevent them from meeting for a purpose just as thoroughly of a business nature as the duties they perform within their own stores. We firmly believe that if a fair representation can be secured at the organization meeting, and the proceedings of the regular sessions be made of sufficient interest to hold the ground already gained, it will not be long before almost a full membership is attained. Then the question is how to keep the interest alive. There need be no fear on that score at the present time; subjects are plentiful, and many of them are of great importance.

We are not propounding a theory in saying that when the substantial value of such organization is realized there seldom is any difficulty in getting retailers of intelligence and progressive spirit on the list of members. We know several cases of this having been accomplished. Even if some prove stubborn they will eventually fall in line on the basis of business advantage. By regular association a man is apt to find out that his competitor, to whom he has become almost a stranger, is not such a bad fellow after all, and a better feeling springs up. This alone makes organization worth while, although it is by far the minor feature.

Most Merchants See Advantages.

Very few merchants anywhere will directly state that they do not feel the need of an association to deal, in the first place, with local conditions—bad debts, etc.— and then with questions of wider application. Perhaps each one in a certain town is dissatisfied with, for instance, the time of closing. He is afraid to take the initiative in making a change for fear the others would not follow and he might lose trade. This probably goes on for years until a Merchants' Association is formed, and the matter is settled up in a few minutes. There may have been a tendency to slaughter prices, and this also can be adjusted. An Association is divided into a number of sections, according to the various trades represented—dry goods, hardware and grocery sections, etc. They combine in dealing with matters of general import.

Stratford Has Collectors.

An association at Stratford is showing considerable activity for the first time in some years, and it has not been long in accomplishing something. One of the first decisions reached was that members should not sign any petitions circulated for subscriptions to any social function, bazaar, organization or meeting except as private individuals. They rightly claim that they have been imposed upon in this regard, and will stand for it no longer. They deem it unfair that they should be canvassed for subscriptions to nearly everything, while citizens generally are approached but seldom.

The bad pay question has also been taken up, and a "black list" established. A collector has been appointed to clean up as many old accounts as possible. They amount to many thousands of dollars. It is likely that the association will also have a permanent solicitor.

On the list of matters to be dealt with at regular meetings are freight rates, advertising, stock-taking, bookkeeping and cost of doing business. Others will be added shortly, and we hope to see the retail mail order business slated for discussion at an early date.

Annual Banquet at Guelph.

The Guelph association recently held its first annual banquet, and the affair was indeed a very pleasant one. A prominent dry goods man, in speaking to one of the toasts, said that the business done by Guelph retailers amounted to $2,000,000 in a year. They were, therefore, not an unimportant body and had a right to be heard. In the past they had not realized their strength. The regular meetings held were, among other things, conducive to good feeling and this naturally led to good prices and good profits. Another speaker said that the association was saving merchants of the city a lot of money.

Dealing With a Railway.

Woodstock merchants found their organization a good thing recently in dealing with some grievances which they had against the radial railway running from there to Ingersoll in regard to freight and cartage.

Blacklisting Delinquents.

The Galt association has formed a "black list." When an account has been running for some time, and the merchant sees no chance of a settlement, he sends a printed form, supplied by the association, to the debtor, warning him that if payment is not made within a certain time he will be blacklisted. This usually has the desired effect, but if not, the secretary of the association writes, and if without result, the debtor is placed on the black list.

JOHN KNOX COMPANY, LIMITED

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS, - - HAMILTON, ONTARIO

New Year's Greetings

To Our Friends and the Trade Generally, We Wish a Bright, Active and Prosperous 1907.

Thanks for the share of trade you favored us with during the past year. A continuance of your confidence will be appreciated, and assure you of our best attention.

Our Range of Samples for Spring has never been larger, nor more complete. It will pay you to keep in touch with us this year, our business is expanding every month.

We Advise Liberal Buying, the market is still rising, and you will find it safe and profitable to anticipate your wants a long way ahead this year.

Give our Travellers an opportunity to show you our splendid ranges. A full line from all departments now on the road.

BANK OF MONTREAL REPORT

Eighty-ninth Annual Meeting of Shareholders—Satisfactory year's work—Canadian Trade Conditions Reviewed by President.

The eighty-ninth annual general meeting of the Shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held in the Board Room of the institution, at Montreal, on Monday.

There were present: Hon. Sir George Drummond, K.C.M.G., President; Mr. E. S. Clouston, Vice-President and General Manager; Sir William C. Macdonald, Hon. Robert Mackay, Messrs. James Ross, A. T. Paterson, R. B. Angus, Michael Burke, F. S. Lyman, K.C.; Angus, W. Hooper, James Tasker, B. A. Boas, George Durnford, Henry Dobell, J. S. Keoch, M. S. Foley, John Beattie, R. G. Starke, H. Cameron, W. Blackader, James Kirby, K.C.; James Croil, Lieut.-Col. Prevost, H. Paton, W. Stanway, A. G. Ross, W. D. Gillean, Rev. G. H. Parker, (Compton); M. O'Shaughnessy, John Turnbull, J. Scott.

On the motion of Mr. R. B. Angus, Sir George Drummond, President, was unanimously voted to the chair, and on the motion of Mr. W. Stanway, seconded by Mr. James Tasker, it was resolved: "That the following be appointed to act as scrutineers: Messrs. F. S. Lyman, K.C., and Angus W. Hooper; and that Mr. James Aird be secretary of the meeting."

THE GENERAL STATEMENT.

The General Statement on 31st October, 1906, is as follows:

Liabilities.

Capital Stock		$ 14,400,000.00
Rest	$ 11,000,000.00
Balance of Profits carried forward	159,831.84
	$ 11,159,831.84
Unclaimed Dividends	2,228.01
Quarterly Dividend, payable 1st December, 1906.	360,000.00
		$ 11,522,059.85
		$ 25,922,059.85
Notes of the Bank in circulation	$ 12,036,097.00
Deposits not bearing interest	30,842,380.93
Deposits bearing interest	99,059,070.61
Balances due to other Banks in Canada	141,564.73
		$142,079,113.27
		$168,001,173.12

Assets.

Gold and silver coin current	$ 6,282,607.49
Government demand notes	5,374,510.25
Deposits with Dominion Government required by act of Parliament for security of general bank note circulation	520,000.00
Due by agencies of this bank and other banks in Great Britain $5,597,767.93
Due by agencies of this bank and other banks in foreign countries 3,027,768.24
Call and short Loans in Great Britain and United States 29,784,242.00
	38,409,778.17
Dominion and Provincial Government securities	1,346,087.68
Railway and other Bonds, Debentures and stocks	8,999,865.20
Notes and cheques of other Banks	4,418,994.19
		$65,301,842.98
Bank Premises at Montreal and Branches		600,000.00
Current Loans and Discounts in Canada and elsewhere (rebate interest reserved) and other assets	$101,814,453.38
Debts secured by mortgage or otherwise	183,955.04
Overdue debts not specially secured (loss provided for)	100,921.72
	102,099,330.14
		$168,001,173.12

Bank of Montreal,
Montreal, 31st October, 1906.

E. S. CLOUSTON,
General Manager.

The Directors' Report.

The report of the Directors to the Shareholders at their eighty-ninth annual general meeting, was then read by Mr. E. S. Clouston, vice-president, as follows:

The Directors have pleasure in presenting the Report, showing the result of the Bank's business for the year ended 31st October, 1906

Balance of Profit and Loss Account, 31st October, 1905		$ 801,855.41
Profits for the year ending 31st October, 1906, after deducting charges of management, and making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts		1,797,976.43
		$2,599,831.84
Dividend 2½ per cent. paid 1st March, 1906.	$ 360,000.00
Dividend 2½ per cent. paid 1st June, 1906.	360,000.00
Dividend 2½ per cent. paid 1st September, 1906	360,000.00
Dividend 2½ per cent. payable 1st December, 1906	360,000.00
	$1,440,000.00
Amount credited to Rest Account	1,000,000.00
		2,440,000.00
Balance of Profit and Loss carried forward		$ 159,831.84

The sub-agencies at Fort Rouge (Winnipeg) and Ste. Anne de Bellevue, mentioned in our last report as about to be established, were opened shortly afterwards. Since the last annual meeting branches have also been opened in the city of Mexico and at Saskatoon, and sub-agencies at Fenelon Falls; St. Henri, Montreal; Upper town, Quebec; and Bank street, Ottawa.

The Ontario Bank having intimated that is was in difficulties and would have to suspend, this bank, on 13th October, last, assumed all its liabilities, under a guarantee of other banks against loss, and it is now being liquidated.

In view of the change in the number of directors made by resolution of the shareholders at the last annual meeting, and in order to bring the by-laws of the bank into accord with the Bank Act, as at present, it has been thought well by the directors to have the existing by-laws consolidated and amended to date. This has been done, and they are now placed before you for confirmation.

All the offices of the bank, including the Head Office, have been inspected during the past year.

G. A. DRUMMOND,
President.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

The vice-president then spoke as follows:

As the president will deal with the business of the country generally, I will only refer to the statement of the affairs of the bank presented to you. You will notice that the chief features are increases of about $11,000,000 in deposits bearing interest, and about $13,000,000 in our current loans. These changes took place principally during the last month of our fiscal year, and are the result of our undertaking the liquidation of the liabilities of the Ontario Bank. The profits show an increase of $160,000, due partly to the good rates ruling in London and New York, where we are compelled to carry a considerable portion of our reserve funds. The other changes are of minor importance, and do not call for any special comment.

When in October the deplorable condition of the Ontario Bank was submitted for the consideration of a number of bankers, it was thought best, in the interests of all concerned, that the bank should be liquidated, and, with the view of allaying any excitement which would probably be detrimental to the interests of the commercial community generally, it was decided that this bank should undertake to assume all the liabilities of the Ontario Bank, under a guarantee from other banks in the event of the assets being insufficient to discharge them. The bank is also a party to the guarantee, and we have agreed in addition to pay $150,000 for the goodwill of the business . We do not anticipate that there will be any claim under the guarantee. The liquidation is proceeding quietly, without any public excitement or disorganization of the business of the country, with a minimum of cost to the shareholders of the Ontario Bank, and without the loss of a dollar to either noteholders or depositors. The record of Canadian banks in this respect is excellent. During the last quarter of a century, by failures of banks, which could be organized under our present banking laws, the loss to depositors has been under $750,000. The noteholders, of course, have lost nothing. I speak only of banks that could be organized under our present acts. Other banks during that period failed, involving loss to both depositors and noteholders, but they were acting under old charters and under conditions which do not now exist—in one case there was no double liability. Out of the 12 banks that have suspended since 1880, five only could obtain charters under our present system.

With respect to the general business of the country, I can only repeat my remarks of last year, that we are still in the full flood tide of prosperity. Railway earnings continue large, immigration is satisfactory, and the farming community share with manufacturers and merchants the general well-being; but in its wake it is feared will follow over-expansion, inflated values and increasing speculations, particularly in real estate and mining stocks, leaving wreckage behind when the tide ebbs.

There is still time to set one's house in order and keep it there, but the tardy should remember that the prolongation of the day of grace may add to the severity of the day of reckoning.

THE PRESIDENT'S REMARKS.

The president, in moving the adoption of the directors' report, said:

In accordance with a practice of many years' standing in this bank, I attempt a brief review of the general trade of the country.

Beyond question the general condition is one of great prosperity.

In all or nearly all branches of trade, manufacture and commerce, considerable advances in the volume of trade have taken place, as compared with the preceding year.

The port of Montreal is now, it is satisfactory to note, much more widely recognized as the eastern port of the Dominion, and its efficiency the concern not of the province of Quebec specially, but of the whole Dominion. It is therefore not entirely satisfactory to note that the business of the year now ending shows little, if any, advance over the previous year.

The improvements of the port proceed but slowly, and much remains to be done in the harbor, the channel, and the gulf, to make it possible to claim Montreal a model port.

The present extreme rates of marine insurance are a great disadvantage. Upon the whole the shipping business shows a fair season's business, due in part to a greatly increased importation of goods and increased passenger trade, and the shipowners appear to be fairly well satisfied.

In this connection, it is in the highest degree satisfactory to note the improved volume of passenger business, due largely to the appearance on the route of four new steamers of the Allans and Canadian Pacific Railway Company. These boats, if only the pioneers, do much to remove the reproach which forced Canadian travel to New York and Boston, and prevented almost entirely general travel from reaching Canada, in effect placing Canada and Canadian interests in the background. We have the shortest sea route from Europe, and are only beginning to secure a reasonable share of a business which may include not Canada alone, but a large portion of the Western United States.

Taken in detail, I may say the various important departments of trade and commerce have done well.

The hardware trade reports "a larger business during the past year than at any former period in the trade's history."

The new application of iron and steel in building structures added to the demand for other standard purposes have caused a famine in these materials and unexpected delays in many enterprises.

The dry goods trade is reported as never better, and one feature to which I may refer later on, is the much better and more expensive goods now in demand.

In wooollens the report is that while still under a cloud from the operation of the preferential tariff it is better than last year, prices of all classes having advanced.

In cotton, advances in prices and an active demand are reported. Here again buyers are said to be taking goods costing seven to eight cents a yard, when not long ago four to five cents sufficed.

Boots and Shoes.—The demand has been good. Prices it is said have not advanced in proportion to the advance in the raw material, though now from 5 to 20 per cent. above last year.

In leather a large business has been done in the home trade, at an advance of one to two cents per pound. Raw hides having advanced all round about 25 per cent.

Wool has brought very high prices during the year.

Some idea of the value to the farming community of the cheese and butter trade may be found from the following figures.

Cheese. — The cheese exported to Great Britain during the present season was of the value of $22,401,132.

Butter.—Of butter, $4,433,891, and including what remains to be sent over, we reach a total of over 33 millions of dollars. To these must be added the home consumption, which is every year growing in volume and importance.

The great feature of the hour is, however, the development of the North Western provinces — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—in which the capacity to produce excellent qualities of all kinds of cereals seems to be assured beyond question.

Of wheat alone the present crop is estimated at 85 million bushels, the quality undoubted; the area under cultivation is greater than last year, but the yield per acre is about 19 bushels, as against 23 last year.

If the other grains such as oats, barley and flaxseed, are taken into account, and cattle exported to the value of eight millions of dollars, we are assured that the farmers have shared in the general prosperity .

The number of acres of Canadian Pacific lands sold from January 1st to October 31st, 1906, is 1,080,000, as against 653,000 acres in the corresponding period of 1905.

The number of immigrants entering Canada through Canadian Pacific gateways from January 1st to November 7th, 1906, is 132,000, as against 96,000 in the corresponding period of last year.

The best evidence of the extraordinary activity of trade is to be found in the railway traffic, which is trying to the utmost the resources of the roads; new rolling stock is being put into service as quickly as acquired, and the demand is still unappeased.

In addition, we have three great trunk lines engaged in active construction.—The Grand Trunk to reach the Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the Canadian Pacific in great stretches of extension the pace being only limited by the supply of labor.

The current complaint is of the increased cost of living, and it is an interesting question how far this is due to any increased cost of what are called the necessities of life, or to an advance in the style of living and the increased use of luxuries. Doubtless both enter into the case, but this is too large a subject for adequate treatment on this occasion.

In this matter some evidence may be adduced from the fact that the dry goods and other trades report the more costly class of goods now being sold.

There is abroad in the world at large a prevalent idea that capital and corportions of all kinds are antagonistic to the general welfare. Now it would be an interesting question how much of our present prosperity is founded on substantial realizations of our own, and how much is due to an increased confidence in our future on the part of outside capitalists.

The absurdity of regarding capital with suspicion is evidenced by the fact that the vast additions to our railways and other enterprises essential to the opening up of our country would be impossible without the aid of outside capital.

It would be contrary to all experience to hope for an unbroken continuance of the present condition of prosperity—periods of reaction and of suspended enterprise may be expected, but we may be assured that the surest means of postponing their coming and dealing with the bad times when they come, is the exercise of prudenec and caution to prosperous times like the present.

I beg to move: "That the report of the directors, now read, be adopted and printed for distribution among the shareholders." If any shareholder has any questions to ask, we shall be pleased to answer them.

The motion for the adoption of the report was seconded by the vice-president, after which Rev. G. H. Parker asked several questions in regard to dividends, and also as to the bank's premises, which were replied to by the president and the vice-president.

Mr. B. A. Boas spoke on the dividend question, and advocated the possibility of higher dividends in the future.

The report was then unanimously adopted.

Confirm Amended By-laws.

It was moved by the president: "Resovled that the consolidated amended by-laws of the shareholders of the Bank of Montreal, laid before the shareholders and read, be and the same are hereby confirmed, adopted and passed by this meeting of shareholders, and that the same be sealed with the Corporate Seal of the Bank, countersigned by the president thereof."

This was seconded by the vice-president, who remarked: I think it is hardly necessary to read the by-laws through; they are before the shareholders, and the changes are small and few. In paragraph III, the number of directors is increased from nine to ten. Paragraph VI. governs the election of an honorary president, which is a new position. No. X. had to be changed in order to enable us to carry out the quarterly dividends and the closing of the bank's books. As to No. XI., under the old by-laws, if we appoint any local director, he had to be qualified to the extent of twenty shares. We have though it was hardly necessary to ask a local director for any qualification. No. XIII. has been stricken out, as it is provided for by a footnote.

The motion was then adopted, after which Mr. B. A. Boas moved:

"That the thanks of the meeting be presented to the president and directors for their attention to the interests of the bank."

This was seconded by Mr. Henry Dobell, and was concurred in unanimously.

Mr. A. T. Paterson moved:

"That the thanks of the meeting be given to the general manager, the assistant general manager, the inspector, the managers, and other officers of the Bank for their services during the past year."

In making the motion, Mr. Paterson said that the importance of the staff to the Bank was a point which must be patent to everybody. The success of the Bank depended in the first place, upon the chief officers, but the subordinate staff had a hand in carrying out their several offices. The extension of a bank's business necessarily carried with it an augmentation of the staff. When he first joined the Board of the Bank of Montreal the staff was under 300 ; now it was, he believed, somewhat over 1,000.

Sir William Macdonald seconded the motion, which was unanimously adopted.

The vice-president thanked the shareholders, on behalf of himself and staff, for their kind expression of appreciation.

Mr. H. Paton moved, seconded by Mr. John Turnbull :

"That the ballot now open for the election of directors be kept open until 2 o'clock, unless fifteen minutes elapse without a vote being cast, when it shall be closed, and until that time and for that purpose only this meeting be continued."

This was unanimously concurred in.

THE DIRECTORS.

The ballot resulted in the election of the following directors :

R. B. ANGUS,
E. S. CLOUSTON,
THE HON. SIR. GEORGE A. DRUMMOND, K.C.M.G., E. B. GREENSHIELDS,
HON. ROBERT MACKAY,
SIR WM. C. MACDONALD,
A. T. PATERSON,
ROBERT G. REID,
JAMES ROSS,
THE RIGHT HON. LORD STRATHCONA AND MOUNT ROYAL, G.C.M.G.

Conditions Governing Prices in 1906

An Interesting Review of The Raw Material Markets for the Past Year—Great Difficulty in Buying Goods.

Nineteen hundred and six, notwithstanding its prosperity, will go down to history in the dry goods trade as an exceptionally difficult one in which to do business. Prices for all the leading textiles were high and tending upward, and because of some feature of the situation, stocks of raw materials were not up to par. For the greater part of the year it was not quite a question of price, although buyers did not altogether relish that point; the difficulty lay in being able to get goods at all.

The spinners have, in many cases, been largely responsible for the price situation, and in cotton fabrics the biggest advances of the year were made when the price of raw cotton was tending downward. No relief seems to be in sight, for in spite of the large increase in the number of the world's spindles, the production of cotton yarn is away short of demand.

In woolen fabrics it would seem that about the highest point has been reached, as Australia is regaining her old producing capacity. The decline, when it comes, promises to be gradual, and it will be well for the industry if this promise is borne out. No change is expected in the price of fabrics in the next few months, and even now the tendency is upward.

Silk was the only cheap textile at the beginning of the year, but crop shortages and increased demand sent it up also. Prosperity seems assured for some time to come for Ireland's one great industry and nothing but good reports are heard from that quarter.

Continued peace and prosperity are in prospect all through this year. There is a further development of the trade revival in Great Britain. The remarkable prosperity of the United States continues. Canada has just closed the largest trade year in her history, and is entering upon one that gives even larger promise. The British Colonies, with perhaps the exception of South Africa, are flourishing, while Russia is the only big nation which is not increasing her buying capacity.

———

Wool

The most notable feature of the marketing of the wool crop of 1905 was the very large proportion sold in Australasia. This was partly due to the scarcity of wool, the absence of stocks in the manufacturing centres, and the desire of buyers to secure supplies at the earliest date possible. Another contributary factor was the large increase in the crop. Growers were not quite sure that the high rates would continue, and rushed the wool into the market in an endeavor to sell at the prevailing prices. Buyers themselves were uncertain and those from Yorkshire held aloof at early sales, allowing continental buyers to secure the bulk of the crop. This uncertainty passed with the year, and 1906 opened with hardening values in both hemispheres, and buyers who had previously held off came into the market freely. The January sales in London further strengthened the situation, and the series closed with all kinds of wool distinctly higher, cross-breds showing an advance of 5 per cent..

The high price of merino wool, some years back, had led to the free use of cross-breds, and they had attained such popularity that values were very high. Some doubt had existed previous to these sales as to whether they would maintain their position, but as they were not so plentiful, and as consumption in the manufacturing districts was large, competition was keen, and values were enhanced. Widespread prosperity was also affecting the position of merinos, as, owing to increased purchasing power, fine fabrics were coming into vogue, and values were also advancing in these wools.

Would these values be maintained, was what the trade was asking, in the early part of the year when the bulk of the Australian clip reached Europe. Merino wools had already arrived in considerable quantity, and had passed into consumption, as the tendency in favor of fine fabrics was on the increase. Also the stocks, not only of raw wools, but of manufactured goods, had become greatly reduced by the recent years of famine and more than one big crop, it was felt, would be required to restore anything like normal conditions. Though the price of cross-breds was relatively higher than that of merinos, the increase in their production was small, and the increase in consumption so great that there was no immediate chance of the supply overtaking the demand.

In Australia the market was hardening under the keen onslaught of the buyers and the statistical position of wool, in spite of the big sales since the season opened, was almost as encouraging as it was at the same time in 1905, and the end of the Australian season was in sight.

The March series of sales in London brought out keen competition, as well as advanced prices. The bulk of the Australian clip had arrived, and had been absorbed, and the offering from that quarter was less than usual at these sales. The manufacturing end was busy, mills were working night and day; wool was badly wanted, not only cross-breds, but merinos also. Cross breds were in short supply, not only from Australia, but also from New Zealand and South America.

The demand at the sales, accordingly, was keener for cross-breds than for merinos, and the fine-haired staples. Advances were from 10 per cent. to 15 per cent. for these wools, and from 5 per cent. to 10 per cent. for merinos, over prices ruling at January sales. The East India wool sales also confirmed the general upward tendency.

April found values established, in all classes of wools, upon the highest ratio of the London sales, with holders confident that they would be maintained. Bradford spinners had large orders on hand for yarns made from cross-bred wools. They were holding prices firm, and were independent as to further orders. Indeed predictions were that these wools would go still higher.

The May sales in London brought out a full attendance and brisk competition, the superior lots being taken by the French and German buyers. Merinos scored an advance of 5 per cent., and cross-breds fully maintained their recent high level. The excitement was great in the market when it became evident that the May series of sales would establish all kinds of Australian wool on a higher price level than that of the previous March.

The crop of 1905 was a record one from the grower's point of view, for, though the number of sheep in Australia before the drought had not been reached, never be fore had a crop been lifted that had proved so profitable to the growers. There have been seasons when some one grade of wool has ruled higher, but never one in which the whole crop was so valuable. The Melbourne correspondent of The Financier gives the total value of the 1905 crop as £25,719,750, against £23,794,500 in 1904. In 1905 the clip totalled 2,001,000 bales, or 368,000 more than in 1904. In 1904 the average value per bale was £11 and in 1905 it was £15.15.

Towards the middle of the year spinners of merinos and fine worsted or botany yarns were well under contract. Manufacturers who use fine wools were busier, as also were makers of fine woolens. Hosiery makers, spinners and manufacturers in Yorkshire and on the continent were being pushed for deliveries.

Little wool was available in Australia, but buyers there were still keen. Wool was at such a high level that no one cared to carry much stock, and a hand-to-mouth policy was ruling. In England buyers were waiting for the home clip, but as the British farmer had very definite notions as to its value, little relief was expected when it arrived.

The clip of 1906 was beginning to come into the market in Australia, and the early sales were most successful, competition being well sustained, chiefly by French, German and Japanese buyers

A distinct feeling of nervousness was manifested previous to the opening of the July sales, and reports were circulated that wool was already on the down grade. Some weak holders of merinos took fright and cleared holdings quite below ruling rates, and their example was followed in more than one instance by holders of the British clip. This also affected the sales, but it is probable that the best rates were obtained the first days, for when buyers got going it was readily seen that wool was badly wanted and closing rates were practically those of May sales. More hesitation developed after the sales nnd some Bradford top makers reduced their quotations to a small extent. Some grades of British wools also added to the weakness, but luster wools remained firm, as there was considerable buying for the States.

Predictions of a heavy crop were made from Australia, and authorities there say it will reach over 2,000,000 bales. The question now seems to be: Will any decline take place when the clip begins to come forward freely. Stocks in Europe are very low, and trade continues good. By the time the new clip arrives the old one will have vanished.

Much, it is said, depends upon the action of the growers, for should they again rush wool into the market as was done last year there will be danger of a general slump in prices. For months past now it has been predicted that the top of the market has been reached, and that a general decline may be expected. Though there has been some check in the upward tendency, the market seems as yet to be far away from any decided drop. Spinners and manufacturers are exceedingly busy, and there are practically no stocks of either fine or low-grade wools on the market.

The fifth series of London sales drew out a full attendance of buyers. Merinos were bought up by continental buyers chiefly at an average decline of 5 per cent. In cross-breds. fine-haired parcels ruled fully up to the July purity, but inferior grades were about 5 per cent. lower, and sliped wools, of which there was a liberal supply, were from 5 per cent. to 10 per cent. easier. South African wools sold up to previous quotations with the exception of inferior grades, which ruled about 5 per cent. weaker.

In Australia a quietness reigned, that was not without a suspicion of manipulation on the part of buyers, and some sales were cancelled. There promises, however, to be a big influx of buyers for the series of sales attendant upon the marketing of the new clip. Cable advices from Melbourne state that buyers from all parts were well represented at the October sales. There was a good assortment of wool and the demand was brisk, and quotations ruled fully up to those of the opening sales last season, for all the better class of greasy merinos, but other descriptions showed an average loss of 5 per cent.

Later reports state that broken weather is retarding the clip, and rendering delivery of loads of wool difficult at the country railway stations. The clip, therefore, is coming to hand slowly, and receipts are away below those of last year. It is also said that the previous estimates of the new crop is too large.

The market in Europe has since recovered the slight weakness displayed at the fifth sale, but what will happen when the bulk of the 1906 clip arrives it is impossible to predict. The feeling is gaining ground that the talked-of decline will hardly materialize, and that dealers who have sold below present prices for early delivery in the new year will find themselves caught. The new clip is from two to three weeks late in arriving, and stocks are unusually low in Europe. Buyers who are compelled to come into the market for immediate supplies are paying higher rates than were current three weeks ago, and combed cross-breds can now be purchased at lower rates than the raw wool.

Because of the high price of wool, Canada will have over 1,000,000 lbs. to export. The bulk of this is usually consumed at home, bat the price is so high now that it cannot be profitably used here, and dealers are seeking to market it in England.

Textile Mercury :—Good, sound conditions continue in wools, for, after all, the Alpha and Omega of the whole business is the continuance of a good consumptive trade. If the recent fall in cross-bred values has been made to order, it must (as in the case of merinos) pass away. Go where we will, sound manufacturing conditions prevail. There is briskness everywhere; consequently, the consumption of wool is assured. Users no doubt are justified in trying to get the staple as cheap as possible, but these forward sales seem to many a curse, and are done purposely to precipitate a fall.

A difficult task confronts any man who tries to forecast the future. We do not think fine wools this year (1906) will show a great deal of change either up or down. What is bought of any quality has to be delivered with all possible speed; but users do not seem disposed to buy anything to stock. They are now proposing to hold back until the weight of the Australian new clip comes to market, and then to see how it can be tackled. Our own feeling is that if legitimate trade demands be allowed full play, current prices will be fully maintained. At the same time there are so many financial interests to be preserved, coupled with dear money and the universal desire to buy at less, that we should not be surprised next Spring to see things a trifle less. At the same time consumption is quite equal to absorb every ounce of extra material; and if users will look matters fairly in the face, there should not be a great deal of change. Last year importers tried to "bluff," especially in cross-breds, and were afterwards hurt badly. This should deter them from repeating the process, in which case cross-breds should maintain their position. For the time being a cautious policy seems as if it would pay best in the long run.

Cotton

Generally speaking, an anxious and exciting time has been experienced by those who have had to do with the distribution, manufacture and selling of cotton. The demand for cotton fabrics during 1906 has been immense. They form the only apparel of many millions, not only in Asia, but in other tropical or semi-tropical countries, and there is a steady and constant demand from these quarters of the globe. The revival of trade in Europe, a continued prosperity upon this continent, and more than all the popularity of cotton fabrics, the high price of wool, etc., are all contributory factors.

The year 1905 closed with activity general both in the cotton spinning and weaving industries. Spinners, especially those making fine counts, were exceedingly busy, and yarn prices, particularly those of fine and medium grades, were stiff, and firmly maintained. Raw cotton was fluctuating in price, but had reached an average figure above 12c., and was showing signs of still further advance. Crop estimates for 1905 were still unconfirmed, and, from time to time, the conflicting reports would send the market soaring, or cause a sudden drop, according to whether they favored the bull or the bear interests.

Late in December bank failures in the cotton belt induced freer selling, and there was a decided drop in raw cotton—middlings, at 6.31d spot at Liverpool, and as the month progressed the market ruled easier. Hopes began to be entertained that prices would reach a still lower level. Towards the end of the month ginners reports came to hand, showing that 9,998,111 bales had already been ginned, and confirming those previously-made estimates that placed the crop in the immediate neighborhood of 11,000,000 bales.

The easier price of raw cotton gave a great impetus to trade, and serious complaint of delayed deliveries began to be heard—the demand for cotton goods being decidedly active at the beginning of the year.

Towards the end of February, bull speculators made several attempts to advance prices, but for the time being were hardly successful, though it became increasingly evident that a rise might be expected, in the near future, simply because consumption was so great.

March opened with American cotton lower than at the beginning of the previous month, and the drop resulted in large business. The fall was not, however, reflected in the price of piece goods, as manufacturers were so fully engaged that they were enabled to hold rates. The middle of March saw interest shifting from the crop of 1905 to that of 1906, because of reports of acreage seeded for the new crop. The total supply was estimated in some quarters at 14,077,000 bales, and after deducting 11,600,000 bales for consumption, there would be available 2,470,000 bales, as the visible supply at the mills. Therefore, there was every prospect of an abundant supply of raw cotton.

Spinners, however, were in a position to firmly maintain their prices, and especially in fine counts there was an increasing difficulty in securing deliveries. Manufacturers were fully employed—those who were making specialities being particularly busy. The high price of cotton goods was making trade with the Eastern markets difficult, not because goods were not wanted, but because prices and dates of deliveries were difficult to arrange.

April saw raw cotton again up to 12c., a hardening tendency being evolved by a report of bad weather in various parts of the cotton belt. Buying was moderately free, because of the extensive engagements for the Spring trade, and the encouraging tone of the general demand for manufactured goods.. The movement "into sight" also was smaller than at the same time in 1905, and this feature was not without its effect upon buying.

The final statement of the Census Bureau, showing that 10,778,000 bales of 500 lbs. had been ginned came as a surprise to America, and the market fell off as much as 40 points, but later recovered. This falling off was not reflected in Liverpool, and the rebound in the States established 12c. as the official quotation.

By the end of April an easier feeling manifested itself, and was further strengthened by good reports from the crop centres. The feeling was, however, that cotton prices would be maintained at a fairly high level during the remainder of the season, the governing factors being the strong and healthy tone of the demand, which, it was felt, was of sufficient weight to keep values from dropping abruptly, to any extent.

The end of May saw another decline in raw cotton that was difficult to account for, as an official report of deficient rainfall had just been received. No doubt, however, manipulative influences had been at work. Reports of the crop were conflicting. The Southern Cotton Association estimated the acreage of the new crop at 27,735,870, or an increase of 2.76 per cent. over 1905.

June witnessed an irregular market in the raw staple, with a tendency towards lower values. Early in July a bull report of the Bureau caused the market to advance a few points. It soon eased off, but not to any extent, being upheld by manipulators on both sides of the Atlantic. Increased interest began to develop in the condition of the growing crop, which, according to the most reliable accounts, promised well. Raw cotton remained around 12c., however. Crop estimates of 13,000,000 bales drove values down below 12c., but spinners failed to come into the market freely, as they hoped for still more advantageous terms. Yarns became a little easier to buy, and early deliveries were not so hard to obtain.

The early part of August brought a considerable decline in the States, and also in Liverpool, where futures reached 5.15d. As the new cotton began to arrive in considerable quantities, points became easier to negotiate. Spinners, however, were not pressing for business, and yarn quotations by no means reflected, as a rule, the fall in the raw material. Continued pressure for deliveries against old orders continued, and certain numbers of yarn were difficult to obtain. In Lancashire, it was reported that manufacturers had orders that would keep looms employed for 10 months or a year ahead. Some talk of cancellations was indulged in, but manufacturers were unmoved. By the end of August a decided slump in cotton values had occurred, and, in the opinion of many, the bottom had not yet been reached. The market was a difficult one, and the outlook for the future such as to baffle the closest observer. Crop prospects were exceedingly good, and this feature alone suggested lower prices. Spinners had a fair number of orders behind them, but some signs suggested weakness. Still there was an increasing anxiety for quick delivery on the part of users. The trouble in raw material brought out more inquiries for piece goods, but as prices were difficult to arrange, not much business developed. Some cancellations because of late delivery, were recorded, however.

In the first half of September ginners' reports showed 403,209 bales, as against 469,500 at the same time last year. Neill Bros. gave out that the crop in the Atlantic States was even greater than in the big crop years, a result, by the way, of intensive farming. The belief gained ground that the crop was of big dimensions, and wild talk of 12 or 13 million bales was heard. It was sure that Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas promised an abundant crop. American "middlings" hovered about 5.50d and some brisk selling took place, 12,000 bales changing hands in Liverpool one day.

Up to the last week in September reports of the maturing crop were all that could be desired. It was late, but it was abundant. Stocks in Liverpool were low, but plenty of the staple was expected in the near future. Lancashire expected a large yield, but it was felt that every bale would be needed. Producers of yarns, were in an undoubtedly strong position, and, notwithstanding the many new spindles at work, the production was scarcely enough to meet the demand. Manufacturers had no stocks on hand at the weaving sheds. Pressure for delivery began to show, and spinners who could promise early delivery obtained special prices. The cloth market was exceedingly difficult, and sellers complained that little headway could be made, though there was an extensive inquiry.

Owing to storms and floods, in the latter part of September, and the beginning of October, prices in raw cotton were again pushed up. Markets became irregular and values changed almost every hour. Up to the middle of the first week in October, Lancashire had received 195,000 bales, against 200,100 bales the previous year, and the Continent and Japan 321,000 bales, against 394,000 last year at the same time.

October closed with raw cotton erratic and unsettled. The yarn market, in sympathy, was also unsettled, and only users were buying who must have supplies. Spinners, however, were deeply engaged, and manufacturers were said to be paying premiums for deliveries. In piece goods circles trade was restricted by the fact that prices were not, in the opinion of buyers, in accordance with the values of raw cotton, but as manufacturers in practically all lines were behind in their deliveries, prices of piece goods held firm.

The general tendency was upward and in Lancashire there was some talk of a general stoppage of looms. Spinners got higher rates, and premiums were paid for early deliveries.

In November spot cotton at Liverpool hovered about 5.60d. Spinners bought more freely and covered their sales in yarn from day to day, in futures. The general opinion was that the estimate of 13,000,000 bales was too high, and that 12,000,000 bales would be nearer the mark. Even if the former figure were reached indications pointed use being found for every bale.

The wide-spread activity in factory buildings, not only in Lancashire, but in all manufacturing centres, and the large increase in the number of the world's spindles, speak plainly as to the confidence felt in the future of the industry. Many new mills are finding it difficult to secure hands, and there is a growing scarcity of operatives both in Lancashire and America.

Silk

To understand rightly the silk situation in 1906, and the casuses of present conditions, some little recapitulation must be indulged in. The month of July really opens the silk year, for it is then that the new season's crop begins to influence the market. The producing centres are widely distributed, but the principal ones are Northern Italy and Southern France, in Europe, and Japan and Southern China, in Asia.

The crop of 1901 was a large one, but, as the looms of Europe and America were fully employed, so was the demand. Prices of goods, however, were not exactly satisfactory, and manufacturers complained bitterly of the absence of profits, and, in consequence, raw silk declined during the first part of 1905. Steady consumption continued, which brought stocks down to a low ebb, in both Europe and the East.

April, 1905, prices were low, but buyers held off hoping for even better terms when the new crop came into the market in July and the following months. May and June brought bad news from the most important producing centres ; the weather was reducing both the quality and the quantity of the Italian cocoons; China promised a poor crop, and from Japan also a deficit was advised. The price of cocoons rose 30 per cent. to 36 per cent. in Italy, and 15 per cent. to 20 per cent. in France, and a general rise in raw silk was unavoidable.

Manufacturers unable to obtain more for finished fabrics, and somewhat sceptical also of a shortage, resisted the putting up of prices, but when it became apparent in July that the deficit was real the United States buyers came strongly into the market and pushed prices in Japan much above European quotations. In September, 1905, the American demand slackened, and that market began to show signs of over-production. Stocks began to accumulate in Yohohama, and the Japanese became anxious to turn them into cash. Thus, in spite of the manufacturing activity in Europe, a fall in the price of raw silk developed in Japan that extended to the other markets. A slight improvement took place in December, 1905, owing to better prospects in New York, as well as the steady demand from the European mills, a contributary cause being also the forming of a syndicate in Milan to support the prices of Italian silk.

Stocks in Europe were very light at the beginning of the present year, though somewhat larger in the far East. During the three months ending March, prices for raw silks were not only maintained, but exceeded those of July, 1905, the beginning of the silk year, so much that the average was 10 per cent. higher than that of any of the previous 10 years, showing a gain of nearly 5 per cent. per month since January. This was not the result of any speculation, but was occasioned by active buying to support immediate needs, chiefly by the European manufacturers.

With small stocks in the hands of both producers and manufacturers, and with the requirements of the European industries urgent, prices for raw silks remained firm, the volume of business being restricted by the fact that holders and producers were inclined to advance quotations beyond the limits to which manufacturers, who had small supplies on hand,, would go. Thanks, however, to the activity of manufacturing in Europe, and to the low ebb of stocks, prices not only remained firm, but showed a decided improvement. During the Spring and early Summer labor troubles, notably a series of strikes of weavers of chiffons, tulle, etc., and of packers also, helped to further enhance the cost of production of the finished fabric.

The approach of the new crop made buyers more cautious in their operation, a caution that was necessary, as prices were fully 10 per cent. over those of 1905, and April brought the contraction of business that usually proceeds the marketing of the new crop. Contrary to what usually takes place, this reserve on the part of buyers had hardly any influence upon prices. This was accounted for by the strong statistical position of the raw material, for the crop of 1905-6 had only produced 18,500,000 kilos, against 20,500,000 in 1904-5, and stocks were low everywhere. Prospects for the new crop were also not universally bright, as cold weather had retarded the growth of the leaves in France, and the first Canton crop had also been reduced by unfavorable weather.

The silk crop for 1906 is now assured as a fairly large one, but in spite of the dullness in America, quotations for all kinds of silk remain high. This is partly due to the smallness of available stocks, there being a decided scarcity of old silk in the market to tide over the waiting time before the new crop becomes freely available.

The crop in France is a little short of that of 1905; but the Italian crop, owing to the good quality of the cocoons, is about 20 per cent. to 25 per cent. better. The yield in the minor centres of Syria, Brutia,, Caucasus, Turkeystan and Persia has been good. The estimated crop in Yokohama is from 95,000 to 100,000 bales, but the big demand from the native weavers will reduce the quantity available for export to from 90,000 to 92,000 bales. The weather has been generally favorable to the Chinese crops, and up to date the average is large—notably so in the case of the fourth crop, which shows 11,000 bales, against 7,000 in 1904, and 4,500 in 1905.

Notwithstanding the fact that the new silk is coming into the market in great abundance, prices in Europe are firmly maintained. In the Far East the market is active, and some sharp rises have taken place. In America silk fabrics can be said to be at present only fairly active, but this decline in piece goods is more than offset by the largely increased demand for other uses. The European mills are fully employed, chiefly in making soft, light makes of silks such as taffeta, chiffon, mousselines, gauzes, tulles, etc. The ribbon manufacturers, both in Europe and the United States, are extremely busy, and the manufacturers of long gloves, silk underwear, hosiery, laces, trimmings, etc., are using enormous quantities of silk. There is also an increasing fondness manifested for fabrics of silk and wool, silk and linen, and silk and cotton.

A disturbing feature that is likely to stiffen prices for the finished fabric is the action of the silk dyers in forming a union that has for its object the obtaining of sufficient profit to cover the advances in labor and raw material.

Flax

Stocks of flax, yarns and cloth were very small when 1906 opened, and spinners and manufacturers were booked far ahead. Prices were high and tending upwards. The state of Russia, it was feared, would have a detrimental effect on the flax supply, as that country is a large producer of coarse and medium grades.

The summer reports of the 1906 flax crop were of a satisfactory nature, as up to date the weather had been fairly favorable, not only in Ireland, but also on the continent, but wet weather in September retarded somewhat the marketing of the new crop.

By the end of October Irish flax was coming forward in fairly large quantities, and was readily bought at firmer prices. There was also a good demand for the Dutch and Belgian product. Irish flax continued to come forward and November saw it in considerable quantities. It was quickly disposed of at good prices. The Russian crop is in good demand for the use of continental and Scotch spinners. Courtrai flax is selling well.

The year 1906 has been an excessively prosperous one for the staple industry of the North of Ireland. At the early part of the year complaint came from the manufacturers that, considering the price of yarn, profits were cut too close. The demand for linens during the year has been so great that manufacturers have been able to even up, and steady advances in values have marked the progress of the year.

So great has been the demand for yarns that spinners have occupied an excessively strong position. They have been over-sold for the greater part of the year, and 1906 is closing with yarns in brisk demand, prices still on the up-grade, and many spinners are contracted away ahead for the whole of 1907. Continental spinners are quite as well employed and yarn rates generally rule higher than those of Belfast.

Notwithstanding the hardening quotations, business goes on increasing, and a gratifying feature is that much of this increase is coming from the colonies. Canada, in particular, is becoming a large buyer. The United States is decidedly Ireland's best customer for all varieties of linen goods. About 52 per cent. of the entire production of Irish linens goes there, each year showing an increase in this direction. Linen lawns, sheer linens, and dress linens in wide widths, form a very large proportion of this business. They are used for waistings, robes, and under-garments. Prices have advanced during the last three months from 10 per cent. to 12 per cent., but this does not seem to have had the slightest effect upon the demand, and at present there are no factories without from three to five months' work ahead.

St. Gall, Switzerland, is becoming a large customer for embroidery linens, and thousands of pieces are being made exclusively for that market. Irish linens are also being sent in increasing quantities to Japan, from whence they are returned embellished with embroidery, etc. There is a very large demand for Irish hand embroidered linens, and in no class of Irish goods are deliveries harder to obtain. A very large development has taken place in the trade in dress linens, great improvements having been made in the class of fabrics produced, and since 1900 the output here has more than trebled. This is a new feature of the linen industry that appears to have gained a firm hold upon the public, and one that, from present appearances, har come to stay.

BACHELORS OF COMMERCE.

The suggestion made by Professor Ashley, of Birmingham, that in every great city there should be an university providing a commercial training, and that "Bachelor of Commerce" should be one of the degrees, has met with considerable favor. It seems to us an excellent notion. The plan would develop and dignify the retail trade and commerce of the nation. It would draw a higher quality of brain and a better class of people, and thus produce better results than are at present achieved. Something of the kind has already been done in America, and in Boston even the public schools teach the girls and boys how they may best fit themselves for commercial life. In commercial life all over the world there is inclined to be an amateurishness, a rawness, an "underdoneness." Young people are not specially fitted for their occupations. They are green and awkward, and there is a want of earnestness and effort among them. These things would be overcome by a little systematic training. But university training alone would not suffice. There must also be apprenticeship, for many things can be learned in the shop that cannot be learned out of it.—Draper's Record.

WOOLLEN MEN AND THE TARIFF.

A deputation of woolen manufacturers, comprising John Dick, P. H. Burton and D. H. McKay, Toronto; E. T. Dufton, Stratford; Joseph Horsefall, Montreal; J. Hewton, Kingston; James Kendry, Peterboro, and S. T. Willett, Chambly, waited upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier and asked that the duty on certain woolen fabrics be restored from 30 to 35 per cent. under the British preference, and for the removal of ambiquities in the description of other tariff items, so as to prevent increases or decreases of duty that were not contemplated.

PRACTICAL—SALESMANSHIP

The Value of Decision Illustrated — Attention to Customers—Over-rating of Goods.

Attentiveness to customers should be instant, in season and out of season, from the moment the customer crosses the threshold of the store until he is out on the street again. There is nothing which customers more invariably resent than indifference on the part of the storekeeper or his clerk. To go into a store and be forced to stand about without being recognized is a kind of treatment which goes against the grain of human nature, and will not be tolerated by the average American. Of course, there are times in almost every store when there is much business to be done in a small time, and it is absolutely necessary to keep several customers waiting. This does not mean, however, that there is any necessity for the proprietor or his assistant to fail to give a pleasant word of greeting to those who are obliged to wait their turn.

It is an easy matter for the storekeeper or the clerk to give a nod of welcome and a word of excuse to those who cannot be immediately served. The customer who has been pleasantly greeted and told that he will receive attention in a few minutes will wait cheerfully, whereas he would leave the store in ill-humor if his presence were entirely ignored. The ability to keep waiting customers in good humor and make them feel that they are not neglected is one of the most valuable qualities a storekeeper or a clerk can possibly possess. Just ordinary courtesy and attentiveness demand very little time, and they are far more valuable than flattery or argument in the sale of goods.

In this connection it should be said that flattery is a very poor crutch for a salesman to lean upon. The average American citizen is generally shrewd enough to detect flattery and invariably resents it. Instant and unfailing attentiveness are worth volumes of flattery in the upbuilding of a good trade, and the salesman who is always promptly attentive to the customer's needs and who does not "slop over" is a trade-getter and trade-keeper of the highest order.

Tell the Truth.

Perhaps it will be thought that a word of caution with regard to the over-representation of goods is entirely superfluous and ungracious. I wish this were the case, but I fear that the observation is not all out of order. Very often the zeal and ambition of the clerk carries him further in this direction than his employer would wish him to go. Again, there are those in the merchandizing business, as in every other business, who allow their desire for gain to impart an elastic quality to their conscience, and who lose sight of the fact that nothing can be more fatal to their final success than misrepresentation, no matter how mild.

As a sheer matter of policy, it is far better for the merchant to understate than to overstate the merits of his goods. When a merchant gains a reputation in his community for never misrepresenting his goods he is on the high road to success. He will command the trade of his neighbors and he will hold it against obstacles.

In selecting his clerks every merchant should give careful consideration to securing those who have tact, pleasing manners, and all that is included in the term "a good personal address." At the same time, it will be well for him to remember that a clerk may have all of these qualities and still be a comparative failure. Many a merchant employing quite a force of clerks has been perplexed by the problems presented by this matter of the personal equation. Here is a clerk, for example, who outclasses all his fellow-workers in personal popularity with customers. His graces of manner attract the patrons of the store to him to a degree which marks him as an exceptional favorite. In spite of this, the totals of his sales from week to week fall below several of his co-laborers at the counter. He puts in as many hours as they do and works as diligently as they. Here, on the face of things, is a clear contradiction which is decidedly puzzling to the merchant. What is the difficulty?

In nearly all cases of this kind, and they are so numerous as to be almost general, I believe the cause of the trouble lies in the fact that the popular clerk, who has decidedly the lead over all his fellows, lacks in decision. Not long ago I saw an interview on this very subject in which the superintendent of one of the big State street retail stores, in Chicago, hit the nail squarely on the head as far as this point is concerned. He related how he had been puzzled to reconcile the fact that the most popular clerk in the fancy dress-goods department took about third rank, so far as the volume of his sales was concerned. The young man had a decided charm of manner which naturally attracted customers to him, and it was apparent to the management that this clerk had practically first call on a large percentage of the customers who came to the department to buy.

At last the superintendent decided to give his personal attention to the solution of this very interesting and practical riddle. To this end he stationed himself near the fancy dress goods counter and began to watch the young man at his work. A young matron came down the aisle, passed a clerk who was at liberty to wait on her, and went direct to the young man in question. It so happened that the superintendent was acquainted with the woman, and knew, from having waited on her himself before promoted to an executive position, that she was not especially difficult to please.

The Fatal Fault.

She handed the clerk a sample of goods of which she was having a skirt made, and told him she wished to get the material for a waist which would be appropriate to wear with the skirt. He looked at the sample, turned around to the shelves and started to take out a bolt of goods, hesitated, went to another, and then to still another. Then he drew out two or three bolts, looked at them and finally shoved them back into place. After making several false motions of this kind, he at length returned to the first bolt of goods which his hand had touched, drew it out and displayed it on the counter.

To the keen eyes of the watchful superintendent it was apparent that the indecision of the clerk had communicated itself to his customer, and, after examining the goods in a somewhat indifferent way, she asked if he had not something else more attractive. Then he took down the bolts which he had glanced at in his hesitating pilgrimage along the shelves, showed them to his customer and discussed with her their relative merits. Still, she was apparently unsatisfied, and he once more ranged the shelves and brought down other patterns. There was more conversation and further comparison of goods, and for the third time he turned about and began to forage in a somewhat hopeless and hesitating way along the shelves.

More than once the customer seemed to be on the very point of decision, but finally she offered an apology, and, saying that she would come again, she left the counter without buying.

In the meantime, the clerk whom she has passed by had waited upon three customers and sold to every one of them. His manner of work was this : He gave very careful attention to the description of the goods wanted by his customer, and in each case asked one or two questions to bring out more clearly the desires of his patron. But in each instance after he had learned this he turned round and his hand went unhesitatingly to just the right goods. There was decision in his manner, and he placed the bolt of cloth upon the counter with the remark : "I think this is just what you wish." The watchful eye of the superintendent had taken in his movements as well as those of the popular clerk, and he was convinced of two things : first, that the taste or judgment of the clerk who made the three sales was no better than that of the popular clerk who failed to make his sales; second, that the decision with which the less popular clerk acted was the secret of his success.

The conclusion of this superintendent were, to my mind, entirely correct. He found out why the man who attracted the fewer customers was able to make the greater number of sales. Incidentally it may be added that the popular clerk remained at the fancy dress goods counter while the other was promoted to the head of the department.

Time and again, in my own experience, I have seen this incident paralleled. The gift of closing a bargain is by no means a common one, and it is left out of the composition of many clerks who are otherwise well equipped. And right here it should be added that without this gift all others are of no avail. No matter how skillfully the negotiations may be conducted up to the "sticking point," unless they go beyond that point they are useless. Though indecision on the part of the salesman is the besetting sin which generally causes his failure, there are other elements which contribute to this undesirable end.

One of these is the inability to shut out other matters from the conversation of the moment. Only the unskillful salesman will allow his customer to drag him into general conversation when he is actively engaged in displaying goods and attempting to get his patron's decision. This does not mean that it is not wise to chat pleasantly with customers about social and personal matters, but it does mean that this should not be done when once the business of selling is really in hand. Anything that distracts the mind of the customer from the vital point at issue is always to be avoided. Let all the "visiting" be done before the display of goods has begun.

Before leaving the subject of what the storekeeper should consider in the selection of his help, let me say that, as a general thing, the employment of relatives is to be avoided. It is not an over-statement of the case, I think, to say that traveling salesmen are well agreed upon the fact that when they find a storekeeper whose force is made up of his sons, daughters, nieces and nephews, he is considered as struggling under a distinct handicap, and his progress is watched with especial care. This is, perhaps, only another way of saying that the man who selects his assistants because they are relatives is not at liberty to make the selection on the broader line of their real qualifications for the work in hand.—S. P. Higinbotham, in Saturday Evening Post.

Footwear in a Dry Goods Store

Footwear is the only article of ladies' attire that is not generally carried by dry goods stores, although we have lately visited several which do a very nice business in this line. With capable management such a department should have some advantages over the exclusive store.

Department stores have been giving great attention to the boot and shoe section. In most cases it is now considered an important and profitable branch. When large manufactories give them sole agencies and continue them year after year, they must be satisfied with the amount of business done. Some large stores, catering only to ladies have a flourishing footwear trade, the stock being turned many times each year.

It is realized that this section requires skilful handling, as the various sizes, widths and styles make it difficult to choose stock. A manager, therefore, should devote himself to a close study of his customers. A want book would be indispensible.

A lady goes to a dry goods store for the other articles of apparel ; there seems no reason why her patronage could not be attracted to a first-class footwear department. It would recommend itself first from the standpoint of convenience, and with the right goods and proper services an effective bid could be made for all her trade. A store not carrying men's boots aad shoes should never fail to have a select stock of men's slippers. These are articles, which, apparently, the ladies deem it their perogative to purchase for the men of their household.

G. E. Fraser Sons, Picton, are a dry goods firm conducting a large and profitable shoe department.

The High Prices.

Prices at present are very high, but in many places where an attempt is being made to establish a trade retailers hesitate to advance. They carry a good stock, and when prices jump they still hold their original price and instruct the manufacturer to keep up the quality under any circumstances.

Felt lines have not been selling well, and as they cannot be carried over, retailers are reluctantly compelled to sell them at a sacrifice. This year ladies' gaiters are selling remarkably well, and they are shown in all shades to match the costumes, and in all lengths.

Manufacturers are face to face with what they consider to be a very serious problem of supplying the demand. Some factories are over-burdened with orders and there is a shortage of skilled labor. The price of shoe stock was never higher, and the demand for better quality of boots and shoes has greatly increased. Hides that last year were bought at three cents have now advanced to thirteen cents. Sole leather has advanced greatly in price, and a shortage is reported. Calf has also advanced, but kid remains steady although high.

TIMELY TOPICS

A Single System Which Saves Money—How Exaggeration Lost a Sale - Care in Writing Orders.

It is undoubtedly the best policy for a merchant to understate rather than overstate values. If the customer is not sufficient judge to see at the time that there is a tendency to exaggeration, the quality of the goods will reveal itself later on, and a feeling of distrust toward the store at which the purchase was made is inevitable. Generally customers know qualities, and whether they do so or not it is the wise merchant who always assumes that they do, and acts accordingly.

We stood in the leading dry goods store of a fair-sized town not long ago, when a customer, to all appearances a farmer, came in to purchase some underwear. A salesman took charge of him at once, and spent a good deal of time trying to sell a more expensive article than he wanted, which was a gross error of judgment. If a customer states decidedly that he desires a certain grade of goods, that is what he expects to be shown first. It is good policy sometimes for the salesman to then introduce a better grade and invite comparison, but never in an insistent way. We have yet to see a customer who could be forced into a purchase.

Among other things the salesman mentioned above said: "Now this underwear will last you eight times as long as any other that you can buy anywhere for the same money." The customer looked first as though he wanted to laugh at the ridiculous statement, and then, perhaps, the thought occurred to him that he must have been sized up as a man of poor intelligence. At any rate he froze right up and, saying that he "might come in another day," went out.

We met this same man at a store down the street a few minutes later. He was looking at underwear, and it didn't take him long to pick out what he wanted.

There is a good moral in this for some merchants.

* * *

A dry goods man in one of the larger Ontario towns found that his clerks often made mistakes in their checks, generally in the way of addition, and continued to do so despite his request that they exercise more care. He increased the salary of the young lady who kept his books, and in addition to her regular duties she was to quickly run over every check just as soon as it came to the office. This could always be done before a customer was away from the counter. Many errors were detected and adjusted. The merchant was able to pay his book keeper $5 a week extra and have a good surplus besides out of the money which this system saved him. He has continued it for several years.

* * *

We hear complaints from a number of wholesalers that retailers in sending in letter orders are sometimes very indefinite in their description of goods. Some of them are even careless, and the result is that they cause a great deal of inconvenience to the man handling their orders, and run the risk of shipments not arriving just when wanted. It is an easy matter to remedy. In writing an order the merchant should ask himself: "Have I made everything so clear that there is no chance of a mistake." Sometimes a description which is thoroughly comprehensible to himself may not be so to the wholesale house.

* * *

We have made reference before now to the advantages accruing to a store through the steady method of merchandizing. One of the best of concrete examples came to our notice a short time ago. In a small city an old-established store does a large business and makes no fuss about it. Progressive methods are employed, but care is taken to avoid anything that approaches sensationalism. For years it has gone steadily along dispensing good goods at fair prices, and accumulating profits and a reputation for reliability. The latter is now its greatest advertisement, and, consequently, a very valuable asset. The proprietor is getting up in years, and he may look back over a business career covered with honor, both in the eyes of his customers and competitors. The latter spoke of him to The Review as a successful man of fine principles.

PETERBORO FIRM ENLARGED.

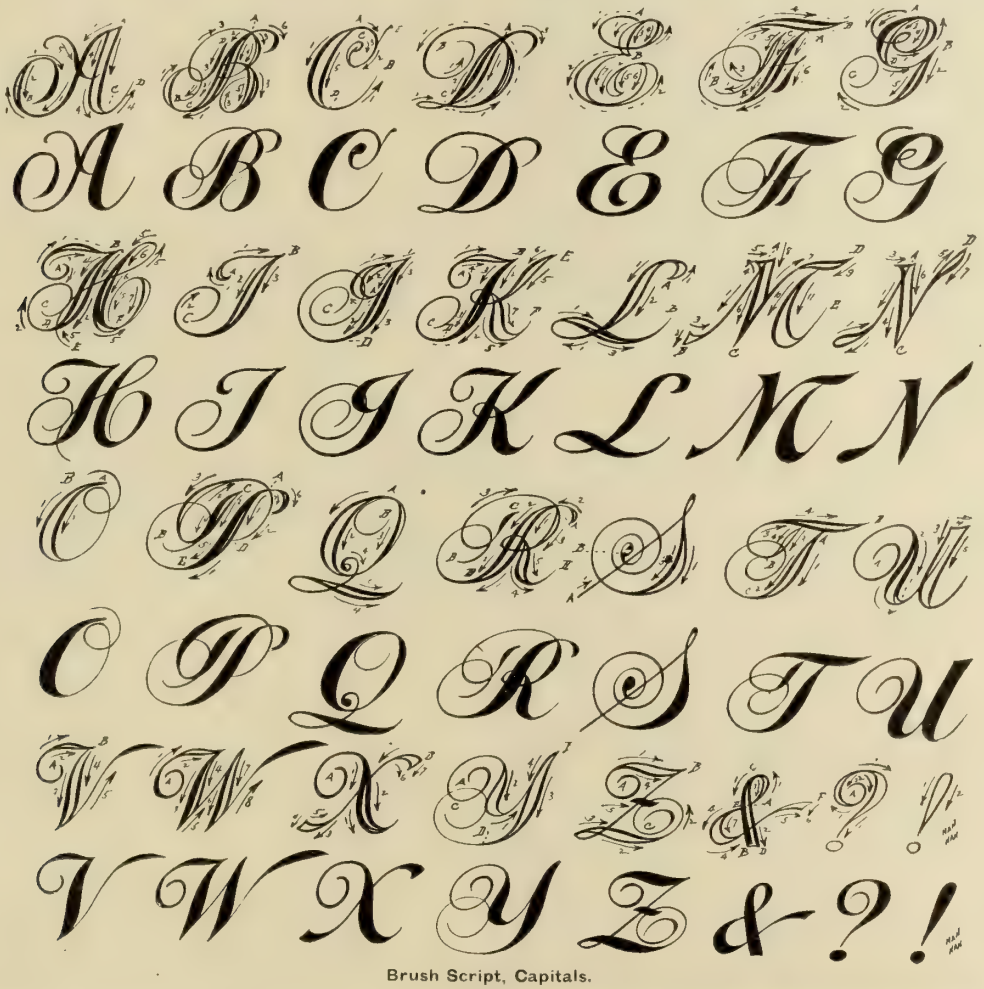
The old-established business now being carried on in Peterboro by R. Fair & Co., will, after February 1, be conducted by Robert Fair & Co., Limited, with a capital of $75,000. Mr. Fair, who will be President and Managing Director, is taking in with him George R. Browning, who has been associated with the business for four years, and J. F. Moore, recently of Napanee. The Peterboro papers each give a couple of columns of space to the announcement of this change.

MERCHANTS AND BAZAARS.

"Although I am in sympathy with the laudable purposes for which church bazaars are held," said a merchant the other day, "I cannot help thinking that they are an injury to the general trade of this city, and that they ought to be restricted to a certain extent. Each bazaar realizes at least three or four hundred dollars, and half of that sum, at any rate, is made directly from goods which the different stores donate. Scarcely a day goes by now but I have perhaps as many as three ladies ask me to contribute to a church bazaar. I give them a blanket, a quilt or some other article, which they take and sell in competition with me.

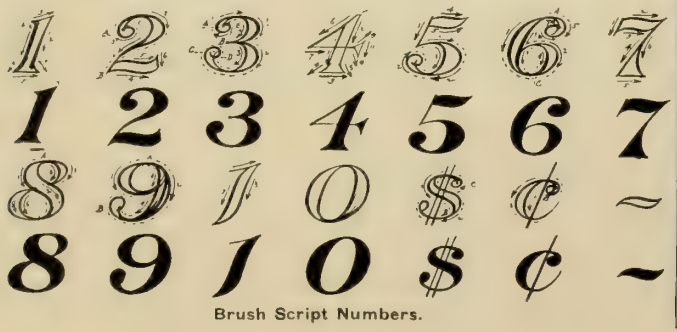
"It is true that it would be difficult do do away with bazaars, but I think if the merchants could get together and form a mutual protective association and decline donations of any kind, or else agree to give a cash subscription, it would be a move in the right direction. It is impossible for one merchant to do anything alone, for if he refuses and others do not, he is likely to lose the trade of the ladies interested in the undertaking."

The Review has stated its views on this matter before now. Merchants, as merchants, should absolutely decline to make contributions of any kind or description, but should insist upon being accorded the same privilege of independent judgment as private citizens, without prejudice to their business interests. This has been done in some places with good results. A merchant's association furnishes the best medium for bringing it about.



SHOW CARD WRITING

BY CRAFTSMAN.



(Continued from December Number.)

Brush Script.

Brush script letters are mostly used on show cards when they are larger than any letters that can be made with the stub pens. Very few card writers can do this work with any degree of perfection until they have had much practice, but, this art once acquired, these letters in combination with script scrolls, present a work of beauty. The first illustration (Fig. 1) will be found an excellent example of brush script, executed on a grey card with white ink and shaded with black. The rapidity with which they were formed in no manner mars their beauty or the symmetry of the slant.

Brush Script, Capitals.

Brush Script Numbers.

The second illustration (Fig. 2) represents a fine example of brush script scrolls. The scrolls, though the simplest in construction, are the most difficult to execute properly. Only the simplest of the lines, such as are used to construct Fig. 30, need ever be used on show cards. These strokes must be made just as you would make shaded script letters with an ordinary pen. A light sweep of the free brush, a gradual, gentle, and then intensified pressure as you approach the thickened centre of the curve, a gradual lessening of the pressure, and the faintest possible touch of the extreme point of the brush as you raise it from the card, and the stroke is completed.

Fig. 2—Script Brush Scrolls.

Practice these very often and you will soon find that you can master any of them and make many others of perhaps greater beauty.

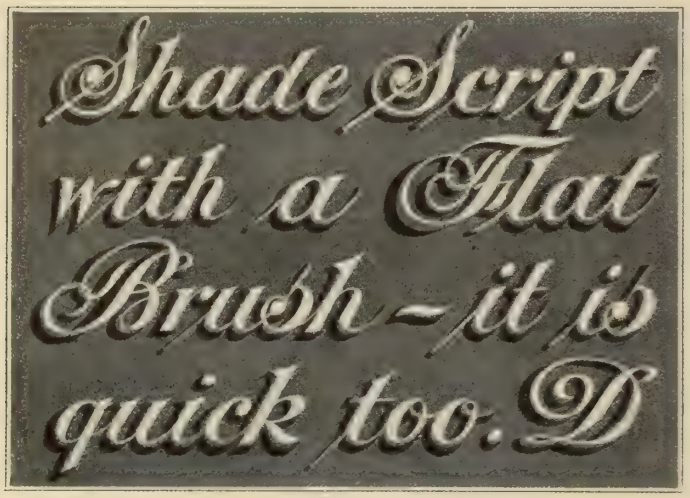

Fig. 1—Shaded Script.

Brush Script, Lower Case.

The lower case letters are comparatively easy to write. The brush should be held exactly as in Fig. 11 of December article, the little finger resting very lightly on the paper. A glance at the outlines of the lower case letters herewith illustrated (Fig. 3) will reveal the delicacy and rapidity of the brush strokes. The curved strokes on S, G, and Y can only be written properly if done rapidly.

Executed with the Air Brush.

Brush Script, Capitals.

The more simple forms of script, when writing capitals with a brush, look too primitive on a show card, and those with curved lines, as shown here, are needed to form a suitable contrast with the lower case letters. The larger you practice these letters the more readily you can write them.

Make 3-inch squares for your first practice, and write the letters at first with a lead pencil, being sure to write them entirely free hand, and resting on your pencil point so lightly that the pencil marks can scarcely be seen after you have made the letter. Now take your No. 5 brush and practice outlining the letter F. Stroke 1, from A to B, gives you the stem stroke for many other letters. Stroke 3, from C to D, teaches you another important sweep of the brush, which is also part of many of the other letters.

Arm and finger movements, with the lightest possible touch of your fingers on the paper and on your brush point, are what you must practice. When you can do this—and it will take you some time—then make every letter entirely freehand. Do the same with your No. 7 and No. 11 brushes. When using the latter, make your letters six inches high.

(Continued in February.)

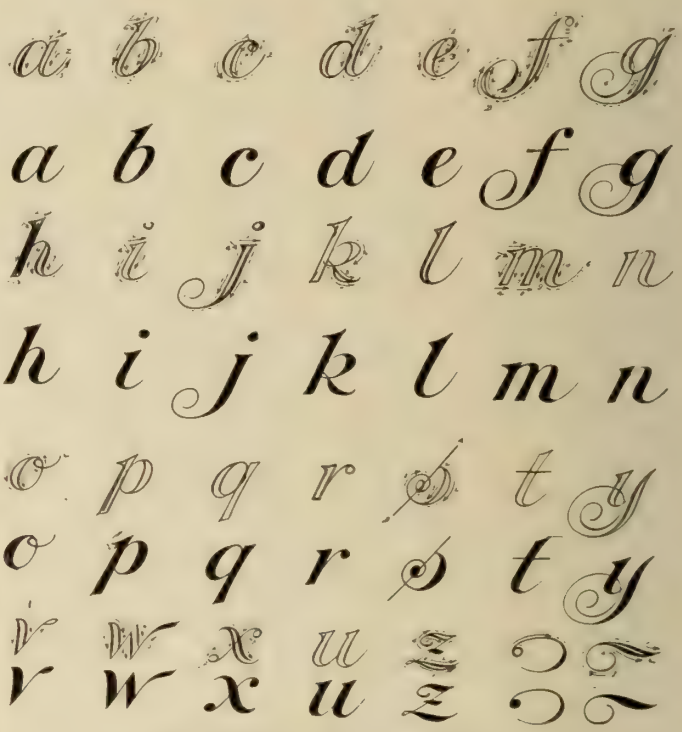

Fig. 3.—Brush Script, Lower Case

UP-TO-DATE IDEAS IN SHOW CARDS.

We reproduce in this department a group of show cards made by T. E. Weaver for the department store of Crowell's, Limited, Sydney. The work was all done freehand with Nos. 1, 2 and 3 red sable brushes. A couple of original ideas, dealing with topics outside the mercantile field, are included. The merits of the various cards speak for themselves.

The use of fashion cuts, pasted on the cards, is well illustrated. This idea is effective as well as ornamental.

The Review invites other card writers to send in samples of their work, the actual cards, or, as in this case, a photograph showing a group of them.

The wages of about 15,000 operatives in cotton mills in Southern New England and Western Massachusetts were advanced at least 7½ per cent. last month.

EARNINGS OF A MAIL ORDER HOUSE.

An official of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the big mail order house at Chicago, said recently: "Our gross earnings this year will be considerably more than $54,000,000 and the increase over last year will be more than 33 1-3 per cent. Profits have increased not in such a ratio during the year, but they are entirely satisfactory. Enough will be earned over and above dividends on the preferred stock to provide a surplus that will permit the payment of dividends on the common stock in a few months."

ANOTHER COTTON COMPANY.

Cotton mills will be built at Shawinigan Falls, Que., by the North America Cotton Co., recently organized with a capital of $2,000,000 preferred, and $1,000,000 common stock. The Dominion Textile Company will hold the controlling interest. They found it necessary to form this new company, because they are prevented, by the charter, from increasing their capital beyond $10,000,000. It is reported that a staff of 1,800 hands will be employed. Power can be procured from Shawinigan Falls. Valuable concessions have been arranged for from the town, and it is expected that the whole project will be completed by the Fall of 1907.

LEFT $300,000 TO EMPLOYES.

The distribution of $300,000 left by the late Marshall Field to over two hundred of his employes, who had served the firm long and faithfully, has been completed. To all who had been in his employ over twenty-five years $100,000 was left, divided in amounts ranging from $250 to $1,000, according to the terms of the will:—"I desire that such distribution shall be made among those most in need of aid, but having regard nevertheless to the length of service of the several distributees, and their faithfulness and zeal."

In addition to this fund of $100,000, Mr. Field left to his private secretary, Arthur B. Jones, $100,000; to James Simpson, assistant manager, $50,000; to Edward Nevers, an old-time employe of the wholesale house, $10,000; to A. H. Hawxhurst, for years insurance manager of the firm, and to Chapin A. Day, a confidential clerk, each $10,000; to R. M. Hitchcock, head of the wholesale shipping room, $5,000, and to Richard Maher, a driver, $3,000.

Show Cards Made by T. E. Weaver for the Department Store of Crowell's Limited, Sydney

"THE HANNAN STORES."

A Dominion charter has been granted "The Hannan Stores, Limited," with headquarters at Montreal, and capital stock of $100,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators are John J. Hannan, merchant, Montreal; Lawrence Hannan, merchant, of Danville; Henry Marks, manager; Francois A. Revol, manager, and Henry J. Elliott, advocate, of Montreal. The objects of the company are to manufacture articles of every description and kind, made of cotton, wool, silk or other material, and import, buy and sell any and all goods of a similar class, and generally carry on, in Canada, the business of general merchants, in such articles; to take over the business carried on in Montreal by John J. Hannan, as merchant and dealer in men's furnishings.

What is Your Book-Keeper's Time Worth?

BUSINESS SYSTEMS LIMITED
SYSTEM THE SECRET OF SUCCESS
TORONTO

Is your ledger arranged on any special system?

Ten minutes wasted six times a day looking for an account means a daily loss of one hour. On a ten hour day, this means a loss of a month a year.

And your book-keeper has more than six accounts a day to look up.

Can you afford it?

* * * * * *

Business Systems ledgers are all built on the loose-leaf principle.

Business Systems make your ledger accounts run alphabetically; if an account runs over the space you gave it, you merely drop in another leaf.

Business Systems loose-leaf ledgers open perfectly flat and give a level writing surface.

Write us today for full particulars.

This will not obligate you in any way and will enable us to tell you exactly how Business Systems may be most economically applied to your accounting department.

BUSINESS SYSTEMS
LIMITED
83 SPADINA AVE.
TORONTO, CANADA

?

Why do the most successful merchants in the country use our Life Model

WAX FIGURES?

Because they add such a wonderful charm to

STORE DISPLAY

A. S. RICHARDSON
MANUFACTURER
62 Hayter Street, - Toronto and 40 Victoria Sq., MONTREAL

WE CAN SUPPLY ALL YOU NEED IN STORE DISPLAY FIXTURES

WE ORIGINATE,

manufacture and promptly supply everything we advertise.

As the oldest, largest and only complete house in the display form and fixture line, we are in a position to do this. Our Cuts are made from Our Goods. Originality is a rare quality and in this respect we are unique.

Write for particulars of our new form models for 1906

Catalogue Mailed upon Application.

J. R. Palmenberg's Sons

Suit Form No. 60 P.

FACTORY 89-97 W. Third St.
710 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, U.S.A.
(ESTABLISHED OVER 50 YEARS)

WINDOW DRESSING

THE ART OF DISPLAY

INTERIOR DECORATION

SPRING DISPLAYS.

The Christmas display having ended, February sales are next in order, and then comes that oft-repeated question the window trimmer has to ask himself: "What am I going to do about the trims of Spring goods." Each year it seems to be a harder problem to solve. The trimmer who is wise will look ahead and have some kind of an idea of what he is going to do to make his displays attractive. During this month and February, trade is generally a little languid, and this is the time to get to work and plan out the trims of the new Spring goods.

No. 1.—Dressed by H. Robinson for R. McKay & Co., Hamilton.

Lay Plans Ahead.

In past articles in these columns The Review has presented some excellent ideas in backgrounds, fixtures, etc., that are right up to date, and in keeping with the new methods of display. Perhaps, Mr. Trimmer, you have not studied these or given them the consideration you might have. Why not look up the back numbers (you should keep every copy for reference) and see if there are not a few draping fixtures you could have made now that,you are not so rushed. Perhaps from the different ideas shown in former numbers of The Review, you could find an appropriate setting that you could be working on in the dull weeks ahead, that would be "something different" from what you have had, and something that would command comment and bring good results as well. As a rule most trimmers leave everything until the last minute and keep putting off from time to time any fixed plan or idea of what would be proper. This is a big mistake, as half the labor and expense can be saved by "taking time by the forelock" and planing out a scheme weeks in advance.

Suggestions for Spring Windows.

To come back to the suggestions for Spring, The Review offers the following: As there is nothing more appropriate than foliage, flowers and blossoms for working up backgrounds with, we can suggest nothing better than schemes made up with copies of Nature's own conceptions. Flowers, buds and foliage will be greatly in evidence in the windows of the large American houses. All kinds of ideas can be conceived with these vines, sprays, etc.—they are on the market now—used in conjunction with the new Spring goods. These are not expensive and we will be pleased to give any of our readers information as to where they can be purchased, and the cost of any flower or vine desired. The ivy, which is one of the first of Nature's family to show its lovely plumage in the Spring, might be used in schemes of background works. The "morning glory" vine is also very suggestive. These vines are made in yard lengths and blend themselves admirably to displays of Spring goods. We submit a rough sketch of a backing appropriate for dress goods, millinery, shoes, furnishings, etc. The following description explains it: The idea is suitable to a window about 15 to 20 feet long and about 6 or 7 feet deep. The design borders slightly on the "Art Nouveau" and it would be easily constructed as it simply consists of three pieces of framework, one for the back and one for each end. As regards a color scheme, the frames could be pleated with some light material, sateen or silkoline (plain) or stretched on tightly. The best covering, however, for all similar ideas is felt. This would be cheaper and would look better than the sateen. On the extreme back of window use a plain curtain net or a pretty Madras muslin hung straight down from a rod. The back frame should be placed about 3 or 4 inches from this curtain. In the openings of the frames hang the ivy or morning glory vine, (morning glory preferred on account of the purple and pink blooms on it) and the intervening space from ends of the vine to the floor could be filled up with a curtain, say a pretty cream or green sateen or silk, hung on a brass or wooden rod. The design is merely intended to convey a simple and effective idea of what could be done with comparatively a small outlay. While this sketch is made at random, there are many ideas in it that any trimmer can take and adopt to suit his own idea, and conditions in his windows.

Windows in American Cities

In New York the tendency in the matter of display is toward what is called artistic simplicity. As a rule the windows are very plain, but the goods are of the highest quality. The window interiors are mostly finished in mahogany, with plain panelling. The window trimmers rely on the beautiful goods they have to show as the sole attraction. Displays of costumes, millinery, dress goods and silks predominate in the big department stores. There is a very noticeable similarity in all the windows in New York, as regards backgrounds. As stated before, they are nearly all made of mahogany. As a change they all (or nearly all) use green silk plush curtains hung on heavy brass rods across the whole length of the back of the window. Even at Xmas. there is very little change from the every-day idea of dressing. The trims of smaller articles, such as shoes, gloves, hosiery, etc., are shown on pedestals and glass shelves. Everything is generally on a very plain, neat, dignified style of dressing. Very few goods are shown at a time. Three or four pieces of dress goods well spread out usually constitute a dress goods display in a large window.

No. 2.—Dressed by H. Robinson for R. McKay & Co, Hamilton

Background Suggestion for Spring Opening Window. Suitable for any class of goods and most windows.

In Chicago may be seen more elaborate settings, as regards backgrounds and the accessories to the displays. While the window backs in New York are mostly of mahogany, Chicago windows all have mirrors. These run to a height of about seven feet and have a cornice of mahogany along the top. All the big stores in Chicago are on the one street (State street) and you can almost go out of the entrance of one big store right into that of the next. The window displays in Chicago do not bear the similarity to each other that those in New York do and it is the sight of a lifetime to see the State street windows at night. Almost one long mass of beautiful displays, elegantly illuminated, run as far as the eye can see. From a window trimmer's standpoint, it is a spectacle that is not soon forgotten.

CRITICISM OF WINDOWS.

If you have a photograph of a display that you would like criticized, send it along and we will have expert opinion on it, and give you the good and bad points in connection with it.

No. 3.—Dressed by H. ROBINSON for R. McKay & Co., Hamilton.

Cash Prizes For Displays

The Review Offers $15, $12, and $8 for the Best Christmas Window Trims.

As The Review is desirous of making the pages devoted to talks regarding window dressing as interesting as possible for its readers, we solicit the co-operation of all who are interested in this subject. If you have an idea that you think a good one, why not let us have it? There is nothing like an interchange of ideas. If you have a new idea in a dress goods, silk or muslin drape; if you have a new idea in a fixture, a good background or anything that you think of interest to anyone else, don't hesitate to let us have it, and in return you will get ideas of others that you may be able to turn to profit in your own house.

We have made an announcement of a Christmas window dressing contest. Cash prizes of $15, $12 and $8 will be presented, and, further, for every window outside of the prize winners that we reproduce—and the number will not be small—we will pay the sum of $5.

Photos must reach us on or before February 1, 1907, and the contest is open to every window trimmer in Canada, except those of the Simpson and Eaton stores, Toronto. They are barred on account of the great advantage which their extensive facilities would give them. Full description of windows must be given in each case—materials used, fixtures, etc.

No. 4.—Dressed by H. Robinson for R. McKay & Co., Hamilton

Value of Interior Decoration

By H. Robinson

Much has been said of the value of attractive window trimming, which we all know is the cheapest and best advertisement a merchant can have; but too little attention is paid to interior decorations. Very often the interior of a store fails to support the claims and promises made for it by the advertisements and window displays I believe that a special attraction inside attracts many people who have never been in before. First impressions count for a great deal; at least the first impression a visitor receives upon entering a store often determines whether or not that visitor will become a customer. To be sure she may not buy anything then, but it gets her started in the store's direction. It introduces her in a pleasant manner to the interior of the store and the merchandise. Through this introduction she may buy later on, so the merchant who sees that his place of business is bright and attractive is bound to reap a substantial reward in patronage.

H. ROBINSON

* * *

It is not necessary to go to any great expense, although some of the large firms in New York and Chicago spend enormous amounts in interior displays. A store of any pretentions will do well to greet the people of its town with decorations of some sort which are in keeping with the season. For a spring opening display what is a more appropriate decoration than to have your store transformed into an orchard, as it were, by using small trees in blossom, or when you have pillars on the ground floor, making apple trees out of the pillars by covering them with bark and wiring on natural branches any size you wish, which have been covered with artificial blossoms and leaves. You can even have the scent of the blossoms by spraying on apple blossom perfume.

* * *

Many pretty ledge trims can be arranged in different ways with the use of blossoms and foliage

* * *

Where you have a centre space in the store, a good idea for Spring is a fountain which can be made in size according to the space you have. This fountain can be made very attractive banked up on the outside with rocks, moss, flowers, etc. Have gold fish, pond lilies and ducklings, etc., in the water. The fountain can be made so as to have a large palm tree in the centre. This idea, if properly carried out, makes a very attractive centre-piece for interior or window decoration.

* * *

Revolving figures showing off costumes form another feature worth considering, which by the use of fan motors can easily be constructed. Statuary as it is now offered in its cheapened composition, and attractiveness equal to the genuine terra cotta productions, offers another suggestion that abounds in artistic decorative help. Palms (natural prepared) are now used very extensively for summer decorations. They are the original leaf perpetuated by a chemical process. The sap, growth and life are arrested, every other detail of the live plant, as well as the fresh, life-like appearance, being retained, and in many instances a detection of difference is utterly impossible. Electric lights in strings with bulbs about 18 inches apart can be used in many ways to great advantage for decorating arches, booths, ledges, etc., etc. The bare wires can be covered with artificial vine or leaves and fireproof shades for the bulbs made of leaves, flowers or paper.

* * *

For Fall displays Autumn foliage, maple leaves, natural grape vines and artificial leaves and bunches of grapes can be used in hundreds of different ways.

* * *

In many cases it is impracticable to have expert help to take charge of this work exclusively, for in the majority of cases it only needs a little suggestion to start somebody's head a working. There is always someone in the store's force who has a liking for the work, who would appreciate an opportunity to carry out ideas in mind. Besides a suggestion to go ahead, a little encouragement and friendly criticism will have a beneficial effect on the work.

Some New Drapes

We present in our illustrations some new drapes that are original and easily constructed. The fixture on which drape Fig. A. is made is new and was designed for Simpson's (Toronto) and has not been used elsewhere as yet. It is made somewhat after the "mission" idea, so popular with the leading houses just now. It consists merely of an upright strip about 32 ins. square, on a heavy base and a drapery ring, finished in old iron or brass, attached to top. The drapes explain themsleves, and any experienced trimmer can see the idea at once. A great many drapery designs can be made on this fix-ture. It may be made in two heights, say 4 feet or 6 feet. It adapts itself readily to displays of lace curtains, upholstery goods, wash goods, flannels, embroideries, laces, etc. We recommend this as something entirely different from the average idea and its cost is very small. The ring can be purchased for about 60c in iron, and the brass, gun metal, nickel, or antique-finished kind, for about $1.00. When one considers the many displays in which it can be used its cost is certainly small.

FIG. A.

FIG. B.

Drape Fig. B., is an entirely new conception, and is called the "Umbrella" drape. An umbrella is fastened to an upright on an angle and the goods are thrown carelessly over it. With these stands in two heights a very creditable trim of dress goods can be arranged. The same idea can be used for trims of men's tweeds, by substituting a cane or a man's umbrella for the ladies umbrella (see illustration).

Each month The Review will endeavor to give one or more good ideas similar to these and we ask our readers to send us any photos or sketches of drapes that they have invented. Perhaps you can improve on some of those shown on these pages from time to time. Let us have your ideas in exchange for what we can give you and by so doing you will be helping us to create a great interest among our Canadian window dressers, which will result ultimately in the advancement in display work of all concerned.

H. ROBINSON'S WINDOW.

No. 1 shows silks, dress goods and trimmings. The background was the same as in all the windows for the Fall opening. The framework was made of 1-2 in. pine lumber, and after complete, was veneered with what is called oak fibre veneer, which made a very rich finish and gave the appearance of antique oak.

The design in upper background was a freize paper pasted on cotton, and a frame made of pine strip and veneered with oak fibre.

The lower background was dark red velour plush, pleated on. This made a good, permanent background for any display. Yellow chrysanthemums and prepared asparagus fern, artificial grapes and leaves were used to trim background. Strings of small electric lights, 1 candle power, with shades of grapes and leaves were also used.

The floor of window was covered with a plain green carpet. Along with the silks, dress goods and trimmings was a Paris gown.

This scheme of decoration was carried out in all the windows for Fall opening.

No. 2 was a millinery window, showing five hats and a Paris gown. No. 4 may be described in the same way.

No. 3 was a carpet and housefurnishings window. It needs no description. The decorative idea was the same as in the others.

EVENING FABRIC DRAPE.

This is intended for showing evening fabrics, such as chiffon, voiles, eoliennes, marquisettes, etc., but would also be splendidly adaptable to the displaying of high class washing materials. The diagram shows the fixture, which is only another form of the half-circle idea so much used lately. A piece of silk plush or other material is first arranged over the stand as a backing for the all-over lace or net. The manner in which the rest of the draping is accomplished is best explained by the illustration itself.

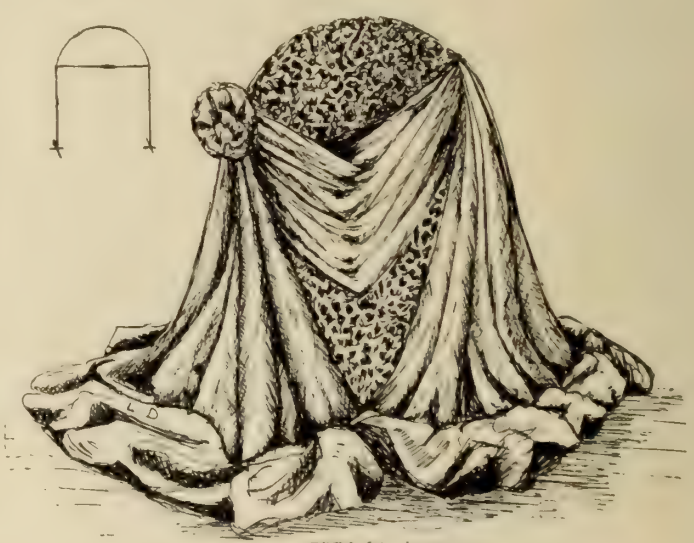
WRITE US FOR INFORMATION.

We will be pleased at any time to furnish our readers with information regarding decorative materials, fixtures, etc. If you would like advice in reference to window arrangement let us know and we will cheerfully aid you with our ideas, based on observation and study in the big retail houses in the United States and Canada.

Let us again emphasize the value of interchange of ideas through the medium of The Dry Goods Review. Some idea that you have in mind may be the very one that another trimmer is after, and vice versa.

A SATISFACTORY EXPLANATION.

Distracted Mother (at her daughter's wedding)—"Oh ! oh ! oh ! What shall we do ? The groom hasn't come, the guests are beginning to giggle, and my daughter is in a faint !"



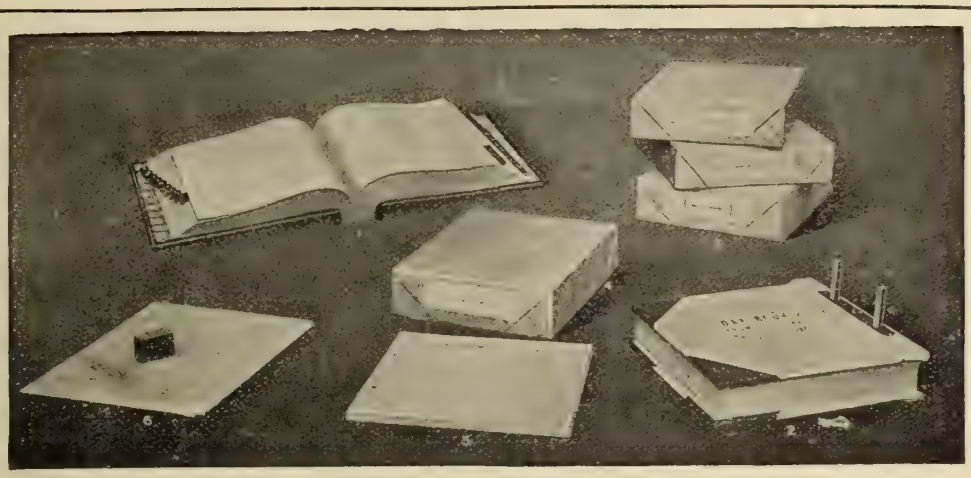


FIG. C.- Evening Fabric Drape

Friend of the Family—"Calm yourself, madame. I saw the groom, only two hours ago, entering the Great Dry Goods Emporium at the corner. He said he had forgotten to get gloves."

Distracted Mother (suddenly breaking into smiles)—"Oh, then it's all right. He's probably waiting for his change."—(New York Weekly.)

Stores System $15.50

No. 1—Current Binder, Heavy Canvas Binding and Index. No. 2—Day Book Binder, heavy canvas binding, for filing duplicate accounts. No. 3—1000 Duplicate Monthly Statement Blanks, size 9 x 11, your name or the title of your firm being printed with the address. No. 4—150 Ledger Leaves, 125 for customers accounts and 25 for general accounts. No. 5—12 Recapitulation Blanks, for monthly total of sales. No. 6—14 Sheets of Carbon Paper. 1 Box of Manifold Pens.

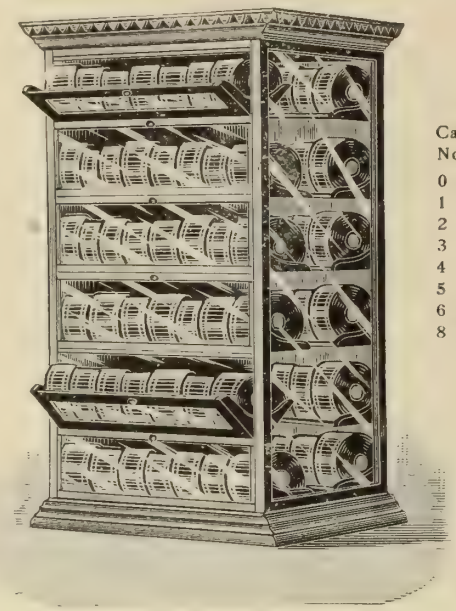
OUR reputation for making practical labor saving systems to handle business accounting has covered this continent, and is gradually working through Europe. A particular specialty is our system for taking care of bookkeeping in a retail business.

We have just put this special one, known as our "Stores System," on the market. Though low in price, it is a very complete and an ingenious outfit. It is not merely a monthly account system, but includes also the Ledger feature and recapitulation system of sales. It is on the unit plan—the only successful method by which books can be kept—one account to the page. The photograph herewith, and the explanation below it, will give you an idea of just exactly what you will get for $15.50.

This system will enormously reduce the work of handling your bookkeeping and facilitate your general business. It will pay for itself in clerical service value in no time.

Employing our Stores System means that each customer's account is made out daily, items being entered from the Counter Check Books or Counter Blotters. These entries are made in duplicate by one writing, through the use of carbon paper. The ledger sheet faces this account, and at the end of the month it is totalled and amount posted to the ledger leaf. The account is then detached at the perforated line and posted to the customer. The duplicate sheet is removed to the Day Book Binder and becomes a detailed record, to explain the ledger entry.

Send for this outfit to-day — $15.50 F. O. B. Factory, Brampton, Ontario.



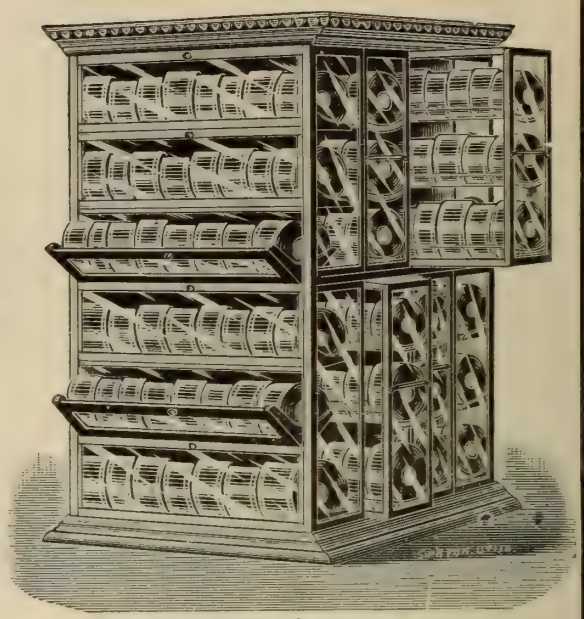
The Copeland-Chatterson Co., Ltd.

General Offices, Toronto — Works, Brampton, Ont.

Montreal: - - - - - - - - Liverpool & London & Globe Building.
Winnipeg: - - - - - - - - - - - 141 Bannatyne Ave. East.
Ottawa: - - - - - - - - - - - - - - 14 Citizen Building.
London, England: - - - - - - - - - - - 43 Cannon Street, E.C.
European Factory: - - - - - - - - - - - Stroud, Glou., Eng.

Ribbons - Ribbons - Ribbons.

Display them Properly by Using a Practical Ribbon Cabinet.



No. 2 Ribbon Cabinet

PRICE LIST

Cabinet No.		Capacity Bolts
0	27¼x 6½x26½	50	$ 6 00
1	28¾x14 x26	100	10 00
2	28¾x14 x38	150	13 50
3	28¾x18¾x38	250	18 50
4	28¾x23¾x38	325	23 00
5	28½x27¾x38	400	26 00
6	28¾x32½x38	475	30 00
8	28¾x43¼x43½	700	42 00

Capacity based on No. 7 Ribbon.

MADE OF OAK
ANTIQUE FINISH

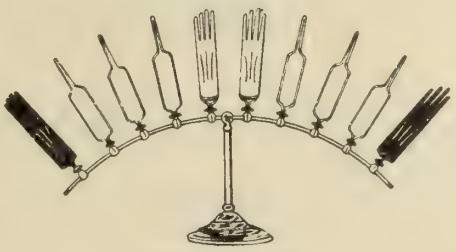
No. 4 Ribbon Cabinet

No. 0 Ribbon Cabinet opens from one side. Nos. 1 and 2 open from two sides. Nos. 3 to 8 open from four sides.

Sold by the Leading Jobbers of Dry Goods and Notions. Send to the manufacturers for Catalogue, which describes not only the Ribbon Cases, but various other Fixtures for the Dry Goods Trade, and the list of jobbers through whom the fixtures may be ordered.

A. N. RUSSELL & SONS CO., Ilion, N.Y., MANUFACTURERS OF DRY GOODS STORE FIXTURES

Shipping Department System



is as necessary as system in any other department. Our Spring Clip Binder does the trick at a reasonable figure. Write to-day for information.

UNIVERSAL SYSTEMS

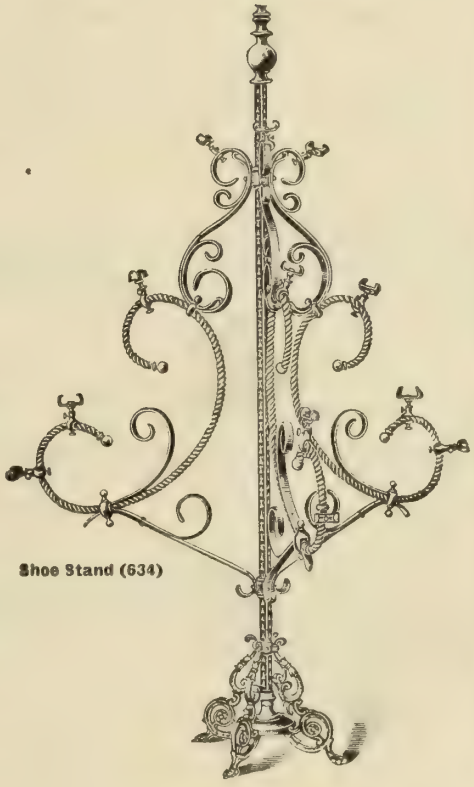
LIMITED

8-10 Adelaide St. West, Toronto

14 Bank of Ottawa Bldg., Montreal, Que.

Glove Stand (632)

Facts You Ought to Know



Tie Stand (635)

Our fixtures for display purposes are unique.

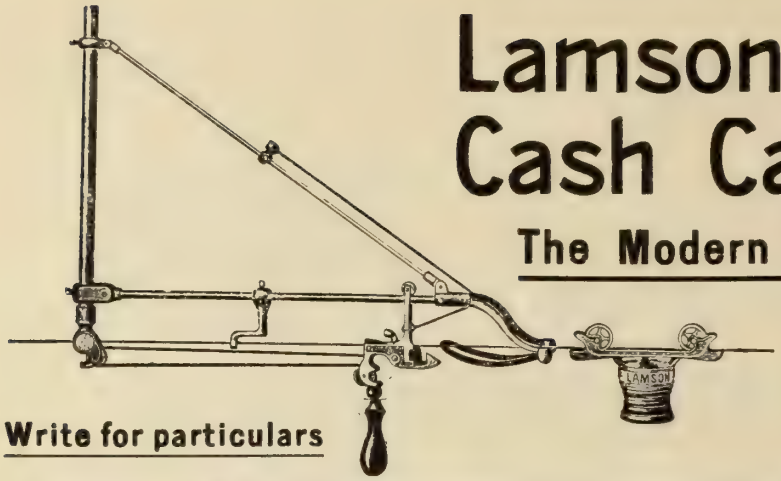
The designs are varied and chaste.

Quality is impressed on every fixture which leaves our premises.

A post card brings our handsomely illustrated catalogue. You ought to have it on your desk for reference.

Shoe Stand (634)

Plume Stand (419)



Bust Stand (636)

Hat Stand (396)

Toronto Brass Mfg. Co.

17-21 TEMPERANCE STREET TORONTO

Lamson Rapid Spring Cash Carrier

The Modern Labor and Money Saver.

Write for particulars

LAMSON CONSOLIDATED STORE SERVICE CO.
126 Wellington Street West, TORONTO.

BRITISH AMERICAN DYEING CO.

The Largest and Best Equipped
DYE WORKS
In the Dominion
SEND FOR PRICE LIST

GOLD MEDALLIST DYERS

JOSEPH ALLEN, Manager

Dress Goods, Cloths, Tweeds, Drills, Ducks, Cottons and Velveteens, Hosiery Yarns, Gloves, Braids, Etc.

DYED, FINISHED AND PUT UP

ALSO

Feathers, Silks, Velvets, Ribbons, Lace, Etc.

All Work Guaranteed Unequaled

MONTREAL, TORONTO, OTTAWA, QUEBEC

The most attractive Show Cards

ARE MADE WITH THE

FOUNTAIN AIR BRUSH

WRITE FOR CATALOG.

THAYER & CHANDLER, 160-164 W. Jackson Boulevard :: :: CHICAGO

ELECTRIC SIGNS

advertise you night and day. Without question the cheapest and most effective method of advertising to-day

We have excellent proposition to make in most Canadian cities for merchants to use electric signs.

Let us hear from you, and we will send you circulars.

The Martel-Stewart Co., Limited
Montreal, Canada

CONDENSED ADS.

AT A COST OF

2 CENTS PER WORD

All clerks requiring positions will do well to invest a few cents in the Dry Goods Review and state their requirements.

Those merchants who wish to dispose of their business can in ert their ad. under a box number and we will forward any replies. This ensures secrecy to those that desire it.

The Review is read by 90 per cent of the entire trade. This ensures your wants being read by the merchants throughout the Dominion of Canada.

ADDRESS ALL CORRESPONDENCE TO

THE DRY GOODS REVIEW
10 Front St. East, TORONTO
232 McGill St. MONTREAL

MENTION

DRY GOODS REVIEW

IN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS

TRADE INQUIRIES.

Since the publication of the last report there have been received the following inquiries relating to the Canadian dry goods trade. The names of the firms making these inquiries, with their addresses, can be obtained upon application to "Superintendent of Commerce, Ottawa." Please quote the reference number when requesting addresses.

1442. Cloths and serges.—Yorkshire firm manufacturing all classes of army, navy, railway, police, carriage and uniform cloths and serges would be pleased to open up correspondence with Canadian firms interested.

1475. Wool.—A Banbury woolen firm is open to purchase Canadian wool.

1498. Ready-made clothing.—Yorkshire firm manufacturing all kinds of fustian, cord, moleskin, velveteens and other kinds of ready-made clothing desires to get into touch with Canadian buyers.

1529. Carpet paper felt.—A Manchester firm requests prices and samples of carpet paper felt from Canadian manufacturers of same.

1530. Quilts and toilet covers.—A firm manufacturing quilts and toilet covers wishes to extend its Canadian trade, and will furnish prices to Canadian importers.

1531. Flax seed.—A Liverpool firm wishes to correspond with Canadian exporters of flax seed.

1532. Flannel shirts, collars, cuffs, etc.—A Manchester firm, with factory in Londonderry, wishes to enlarge its Canadian trade, and will welcome correspondence from Canadian importers of white and colored and flannel shirts, collars, cuffs and pyjama suits.

1536. Machinery.—Yorkshire firm, manufacturing all kinds of worsted yarn finishing and general textile machinery, hydraulic pumps and accumulators, etc., desires to introduce their goods to Canadian buyers, and are open to hear from a suitable Canadian firm to represent them in Canada.

1538. Weaving machinery, etc.—A Yorkshire firm invites inquiries from Canada for all kinds of textile weaving machinery, looms, dobbies, under-motions, lags, beams and dressing frames, and invites correspondence.

1539. Flags, bunting, etc.—Yorkshire firm, manufacturing all kinds of flags. bunting, etc., desires to get in touch with Canadian hardware and dry goods dealers handling these goods in Canada. Inquirants are also desirous of appointing agents in the principal Canadian cities.

1543. Yarns, etc.—Yorkshire firm is desirous of corresponding with Canadian buyers of wool, tops, worsted, yarns (woolen and cotton yarns). Inquiry is also made for a Canadian representative.

A CHRISTMAS REMINDER.

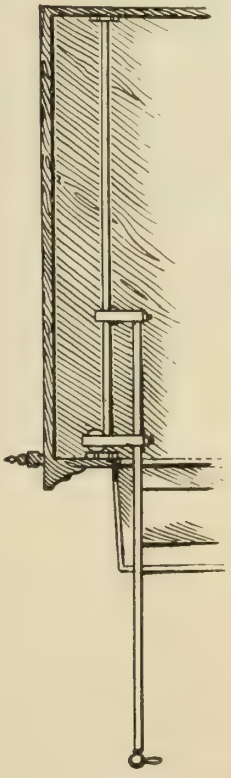
Rev. Father A. E. Burke, the familiar delegate to the Annual Convention of the Maritime Board of Trade, who has been a member of the Prince Edward Island contingent for years, remembered the MacLean Company's special representative this year, by a dainty souvenir, in the form of a post card, on which was a life sized photograph of the priest-delegate, surrounded by suitable holly border in tint of green.

The "Best Christmas Wishes" extended are cordially reciprocated with Father Burke.

INTO BUSINESS FOR HIMSELF.

C. W. Dunning, who has lately resigned his position with John Macdonald & Co., to enter into the commission business on his own account, was presented with a handsome cabinet of sterling silverware by his late fellow employes as a token of their esteem. John Macdonald, president of the company, made the presentation.

A MODEL STORE
FOR 1907



Our Circular Cloak Rack

is the aim of every merchant in prosperous Canada. Good fixtures are a sound investment. Delfosse Fixtures and Forms have helped many a merchant's trade. When you come to make your plans consult us. Our catalogs illustrate all modern fixtures. May we mail you the latest issues?

A Specimen of Our Fine, Pure Wax Heads

Our Ball-bearing Trolley Wardrobe Rod

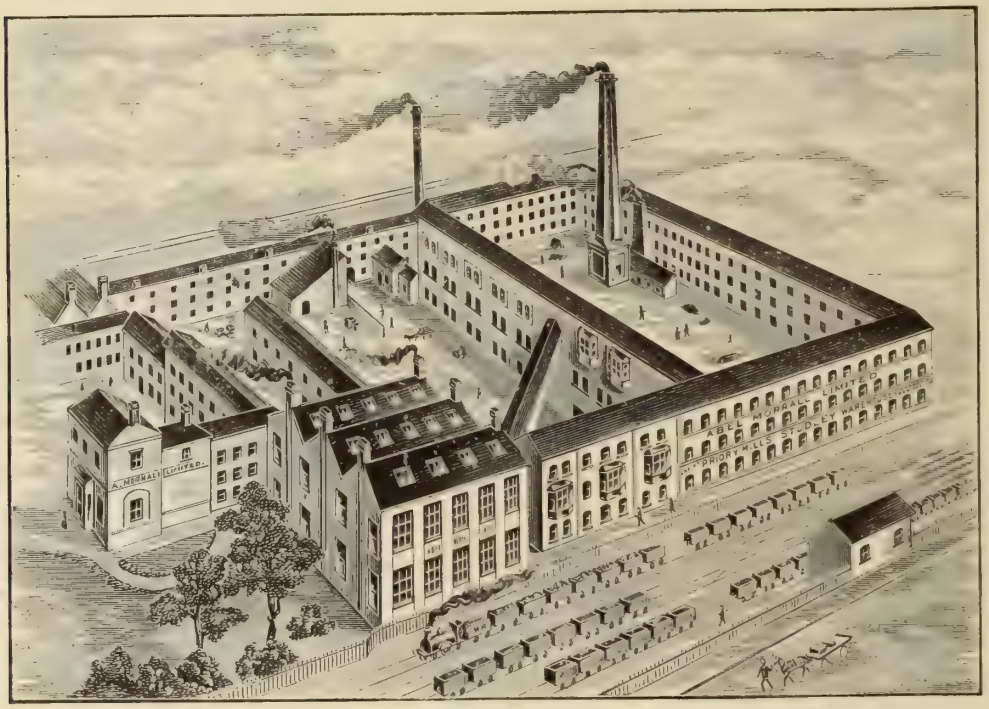
One of our specialties is the 20th Century Wardrobe, patented July 8, 1902.

If you are going to improve your Ready-to-Wear Department, this system will appeal to you.

••••

Write for particulars

DELFOSSE & CO.
Canada's Greatest Fixture House
5 Hermine Street - MONTREAL



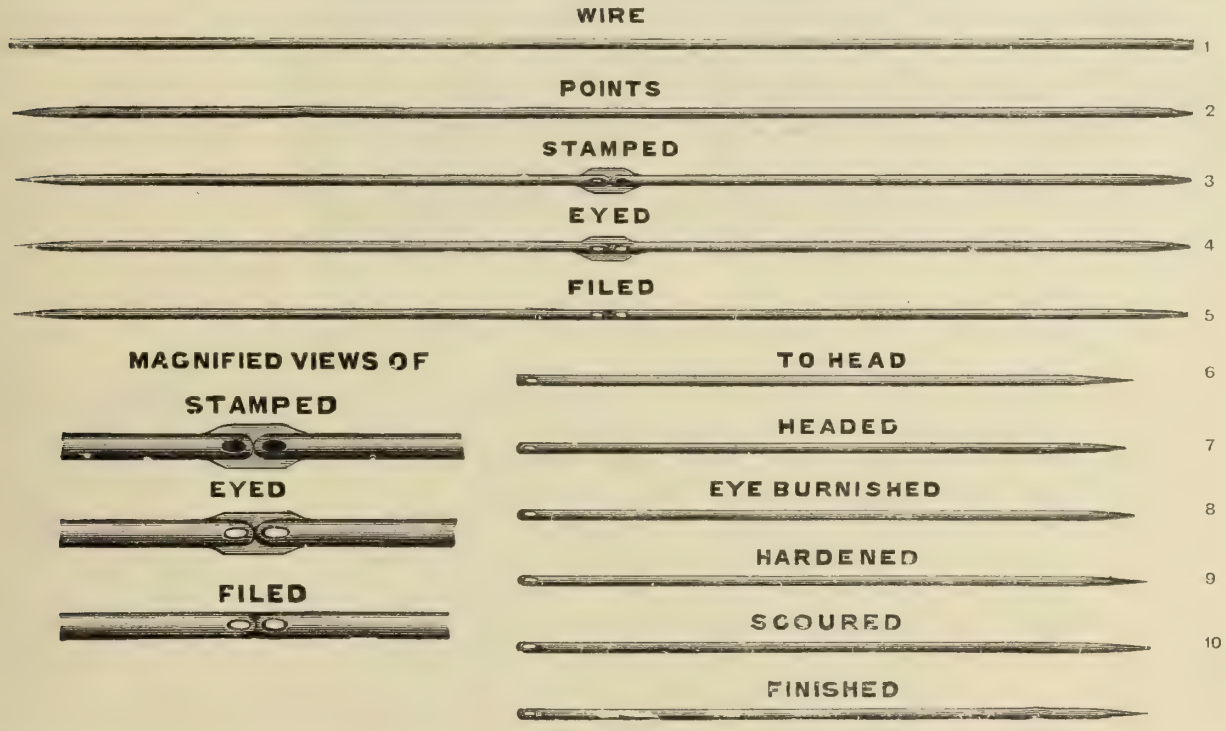
Clive Works, Redditch

Some interesting facts about the manufacture of Needles and Glass Headed Toilet Pins

By Abel Morall, Limited

Our correspondent has had the pleasure of going through the mills of Messrs. Abel Morrall, Ltd., Redditch, England, the celebrated makers of the above articles, and the notes taken by him, with the illustrations, we hope may be of some interest to our readers.

NEEDLE-MAKING—Redditch, the centre of the needle industry in England, is situated in the beautiful county of Worcestershire, about 12 miles south of the city of Birmingham, and has a population of nearly 20,000 inhabitants. The town dates back to somewhere about the 16th century, but was then only a hamlet. About the year 1700 we find traces of the manufacture of needles, which has gradually raised it from its humble position to the one it now holds as Capital of the Needle Region. From its first introduction at the early date above-mentioned, to the present time, the needle trade seems to have had a special attraction for this district. Notwithstanding the efforts that have been made from time to time to remove the trade to various places, in no single instance was the attempt met with anything of success. The honor of making the first needle belongs, without doubt, to our first parents, Adam and Eve; indeed, we may with safety regard them not only as its first makers, but also as its first users, for if "they sewed fig leaves together" in the garden of Eden, the natural inference is that they must have had a needle of some kind to sew with. It is, therefore, not unlikely that the needle was the first implement (if so it may be called) invented by man. There is mention made of a man practising the art of needle-making in London, in the year 1543. This appears to be the first record we have of the manufacture in England. About a century afterwards we find a family making needles at Long Crendon, a small village in Buckinghamshire. It is not until the year 1700 that we find the trade introduced into the Redditch district at a mill near Studley, about three miles from Redditch. There is record of a firm of the name of Morrall, Archer & Morrall making needles at a mill near Studley, in, or about, the year 1785. This firm is said to have made nearly half of the needles sent out of the district at that time, in fact the name of Morrall is, and always has been, a great one in the needle trade. Needles, at this date, and for many years afterward were made singly, no machinery being introduced into the first processes of their manufacture until the beginning of the last century. In 1811 Abel & Michael Morrall invented a machine for stamping the first impression of the eye on the needles. An addition to this process was made in 1830 by Abel Morrall and two others. A few years previously (viz—in 1825) Abel Morrall first brought out the "GROOVELESS" needle. In the same year buffs (for giving an extra polish to the needle) were first used by the trade. In 1839 Abel Morrall invented a machine to burnish and make clear the eyes of the needles. Needles subjected to this process do not cut the thread. Shortly afterwards, by the aid of this machine, he was enabled to introduce the famous "EGG-EYED" needle (now so largely used) the shape of the eye rendering the then usual process of drilling unnecessary and indeed impossible.



View of Clive Works, Redditch, England.

The wire for needle-making, which is of steel, comes from the wire mills of Sheffield and Birmingham, and is delivered to the needle manufacturers cut into lengths (see figure 1) in various gauges, according to the size of needle required. These wires are in bundles of about 25 thousand, tied up similar to bundles of asparagus one sees in a fruiterer's store. Each wire is required to be perfectly straight, and to make them so, the bundles are put into two iron rings (slightly apart) and thrust into a furnace, where they remain until red-hot. They are then withdrawn and put upon an iron-slabbed table. A steel bar slightly curved, in the shape of an archery bow (technically termed a "rubbing file") is inserted between the two iron rings, and the bundle of wires, by pressure, is rolled backwards and forwards until every wire comes in contact with the rubbing file, and by this process they are all made perfectly straight, and are termed "stiffs." When the wires are cool they are ready for the next process. The "stiffs" are now delivered into the pointing mill, for the process of pointing (see figure 2). It will be remembered that the wires are the length of two needles, thus requiring a point at each end. Our correspondent was told that the process of pointing in the old days (before the introduction of machines) was done by hand, the pointer holding a number of wires and sitting down before a revolving stone placing the ends upon it, similar to axe-grinding. This was a very dangerous occupation, the red-hot steel grindings from the wires, locally called "twitters" were apt to fly into the pointer's eyes and cause intense pain, with a possible chance of losing his sight. Happily for these men, there were fellow-workmen who were adepts at extracting these "twitters" from the eye, by simply using their pocket-knives. A story is told of a doctor who happened to witness one of these extracting operations, being horror-stricken at their daring; yet it is true that an oculist, who had heard of the skill of these men, and not feeling himself competent sent a gentleman 200 miles to Redditch to have a fine steel point taken out of his eye. It is gratifying to learn that the patient returned home much more comfortable than when he left. Fortunately these dangers are considerably lessened by the use of the present pointing machines. The reader will see, in the illustration of the pointing mill, these machines at work. The stone, it will be noticed, is hollowed out in the centre, the spindle running through the middle of the stone; these are placed into position in the machine and revolve at a very high speed, the wires being carried over the revolving stone by a slow moving wheel which allows each wire to come in contact with the stone sufficiently to allow the end to be pointed, a powerful fan carrying away the steel filings and dust that were formerly so dangerous to the pointer. The workmen in the illustration are seen grinding the wires over the stones. When the wires are pointed at one end they are reversed and put through the machine again to complete the two points (see figure 2). The wires are now pointed and ready for "stamping," but before they leave the pointing mill they are put through a small ingenious machine (called a "skimming machine") which clears away, in the centre iof the wire, any dirt or "scale" caused by the heating process described above.

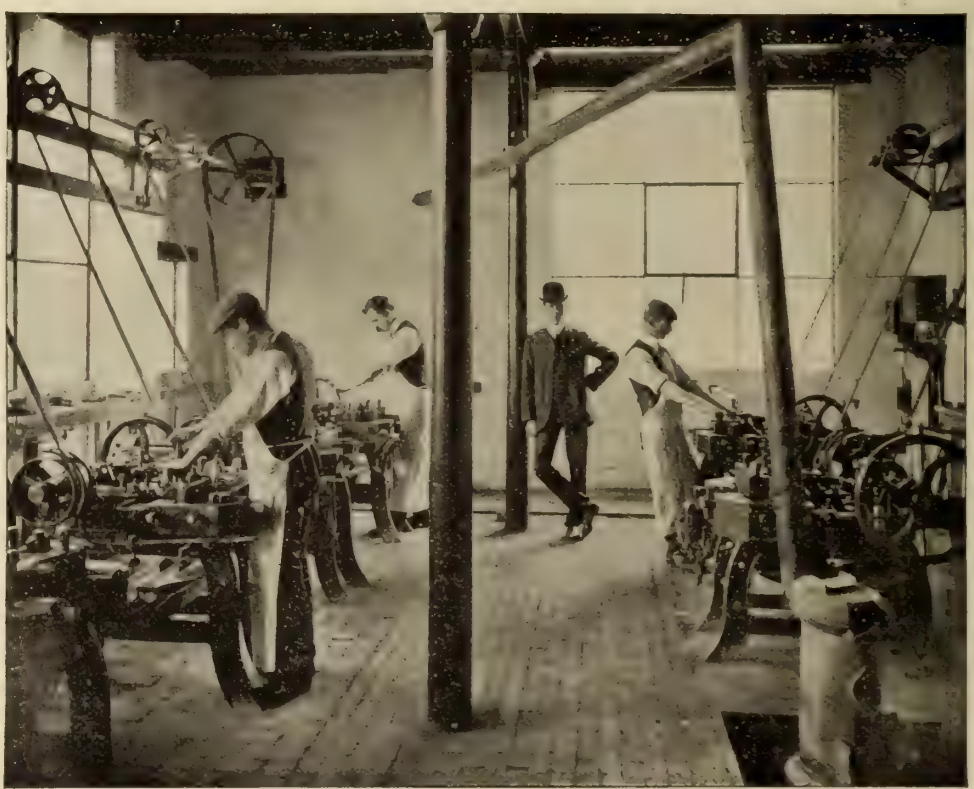
Leaving the skimming machine the wires are taken to the stamping shop. This is where the impression of the eye is stamped upon the wire (see figure 3). The impressions are first made into small steel blocks or dies. One die is put into the bed of the machine and the other is fixed on a spring stamp. The wires are automatically placed against the one die while the other, released by a similar action, "hits" the wire lying on the corresponding die. The "hit" stamps the impression of the eyes, (it will be seen in figure 3 that two eyes are stamped) upon the wires, which are now released and drop into a receptacle underneath the machine. We may mention that the "tool-maker" is one of the best paid workmen in the needle trade, and rightly so, as his work of making the die requires not a little skill. The wires being now stamped, are ready for the process of "eyeing" or "piercing" (see figure 4). This process is done by an automatic machine, each being attended by a female worker (see illustration of "eyeing"). This machine carries each wire in front of two steel points, which automatically pierce each wire as it is placed into position before the points

A FEW PROCESSES OF NEEDLE MANUFACTURE.



The flattened sides, from the process of stamping, are utilized to keep the wires in a correct position for receiving the points. As the wires are pierced they are thrown out into a receiver at the back of the machine. We have now completed the wires as in figure 4, the next process being to get rid of the flattened sides caused by the process of stamping (as figure 5); this is achieved by threading a number of the eyed wires on a thin wire through each eye. Upon each wire are perhaps 150 to 200 double needles which are now put under two springs which hold them, at their points, quite firmly, while the "burr" or flattened sides are filed away from both sides of the needles. The two rows of needles are now held together by only a small thin portion of steel (see figure 5) and by bending each row of needles backwards and forwards they are broken apart, each row of needles (they are now for the first time the proper shape of a needle) being held by the thread of wire, similar to herrings strung up in a fishmonger's store. This breaking the two needles apart, naturally leaves the top of the eye rough and unsightly (see figure 6) To take away any roughness and to round off the top, the string of needles is held by a pair of large pincers (called "clams") which grip them by the points, the top or eye part of the needles projecting. These are allowed to touch a revolving stone which grinds off, or "heads" the rough ends, and completes the needle as seen in figure 7. This process completes the "making" of the needle, but they are soft and the wire is black, many further processes being needed before we see the bright, shining, hard needle, so familiar to our women folk.

A Needle Pointing Mill.

The needles are now ready for the process of "burnishing" the eye (see figure 8) this is done by threading the needles on a fine steel wire, which has a roughened surface. These wires are stretched out on two steel "props" across a moving rack, the needles hanging exactly as clothes would hang on a clothes-line. The rack is now set in motion by machinery, moving backwards and forwards at a good speed. The needles are all twisted and forced by the movement, up and down the roughened wire. This clears the eye of any roughness caused by the process of "eyeing," making the inside of the eye nice and smooth, and prevents cutting the cotton or thread. In lower qualities of needles this process of "burnishing" is left out entirely.

Machines Stamping Eyes of Needle.

The process of "hardening" (figure 9) as the name implies, is to convert the soft wire into hardened steel. The "hardener" is a man whose work is most important in needle manufacturing. Knowledge, experience and skill, with a keen watchfulness are important qualifications of the good hardener. Having received the needles from the burnishing shop they are placed in two rows upon an iron pan, which is put into a glowing furnace until red-hot. The pan is then taken out by very long pincers (owing to the great heat) and the needles thereon are emptied into a vat, a cold cod-oil, which immediately "hardens" them. When lifted out of the oil by a kind of sieve the needles are quite hard and brittle. After being washed in soap-suds and dried in saw-dust they are subjected to a "slow," or less heated oven. They are then rolled backwards and forwards in order to give every needle the same exposure. This process is called "tempering," and gives to the needle that "spring" or elasticity which is so characteristic of the best quality brands. It is really the most important process the needle has been at present subjected to, and requires a highly skilled workman. They are now quite black with a thick scale upon them, caused by the fire. From their troubles in fire and oil the needles emerge only to submit to greater in the scouring mill (see figure 10). They are laid on a strip of canvas cloth, with emery dust, oil, and soft soap. One edge of the cloth is turned in, and the other turned over, the roll being then firmly bound round with strong twine. The bundles thus resembles a "rolly-poly" pudding or a magnified sausage. The machines for scouring resemble an oblong table, in appearance like an old-fashioned mangle; they are about 33 inches wide and boarded up at each side. On these tables are placed several rolls of needles (as described), and upon these rolls are placed long, heavy wooden slabs, called "runner-blocks." These are held in position by cranks, which move the slabs backwards and forwards upon the rolls. Thus the needles inside the rolly-poly are kept on the move, the friction, with the oil, soap, and emery dust, clearing away the scale caused by the hardening process, and they emerge quite bright. We must mention that these "runner-blocks" are kept going for six days of 12 hours a day. When taken out the needles are well washed and again made up in similar rolls, but this time the mixture is olive oil and putty powder, which give the beautiful dark gloss to the needles. Six times are the rolls opened and the needles washed, dried, and done up in fresh rolls and scoured. They are in the Scouring mill altogether about eight days.

As may be easily imagined, the needles in the scouring mill become tangled, and many eyes get broken. To get them all put straight, and the defective needles abstracted they are taken to the "hander and weigher"—a woman who will sort out the broken eyes, broken points, and bent needles—in fact, all defective needles are very carefully taken away from the perfect ones. So expeditiously is this done that an experienced "hander" will pass separately, under her finger, about 35,000 needles per hour. The "sorter" or "hander" will then lay on the table a row of needles and with a piece of rag round the forefinger of her right hand will press against one end of the layer and withdraw all needles with the points facing her right hand, leaving one way of lying, not eyes and points mixed up.

The needles are now counted and weighed into bulk parcels of one thousand and two thousand needles, ready for the next process, "finishing" or "polishing." (See figure 11). This process is somewhat similar to the pointing, in fact similar machines are used. The needles are put into a "hopper" which doles them out in a row at a time over a roller or "buff," which is dressed with a preparation of emery, etc. These rollers revolve at a very high speed and give to the needles passing over them a beautiful finish or "gloss." The needles are now ready for "inspecting." This is done by women who pile the needles up in heaps three or four inches high. They are then rolled towards them one at a time, and all those that appear imperfect or do not roll evenly are thrown aside. It is a process to which Messrs Morrall pay particular attention, in order to guard against the possible chance of an imperfect needle getting to the users of them. In fact, Messrs. Morrall claim that the absence of complaints from their customers is, no doubt, owing to this strict supervision.

After the needles are inspected they are ready for the "sticker" and "paperer"; this is female labor, the sticker counting the needles out into 25s (the number of needles to the paper) and sticking them into cloth or paper, as the various markets of the world require. The needles are afterwards placed in wrappers with a label top and bottom to hold the strip of cloth in position, packed in boxes of 40 wrappers, which are then packed in zinc lined cases and carried by the steamship to the various ports of the world.

Needle "Eyeing" Machines.

Needle Furnishing

GLASS-HEADED TOILET PIN MANUFACTURE -The manufacture of glass-headed toilet pins is not quite so complicated as needle making, but there is a variety of processes even in their manufacture. Glass-headed toilet pins were not made in any large quantities in Redditch until recent years. In fact Messrs. Abel Morrall seem to have boomed the trade, and claim to manufacture as many of these articles as are made by all the other manufacturers in the district.

The wires for the pins are (like the needle wire) delivered in lengths to the manufacturer, and are pointed in exactly the same way (see figure 1 needle making). They are then cut through in the centre which makes two pins. The shanks are then taken to the hardener, who hardens and tempers them in the same manner as he does the needles, viz—in fire and oil. We believe the same methods are not employed by foreign competitors, but that a cheaper way of hardening and tempering is resorted to. Hence the high class reputation the English pin has obtained.

From the hardener they are handed over to the scourer who scours them in the mill on similar lines to the needles (see description in needle making). From the scourer the pins are taken to the "blueing" department; this is where the beautiful blue color, so familiar to ladies, is given to the pins. The method of blueing is as follows:—The pins are placed in a revolving drum, heated by gas jets, until the required color is obtained. This process further secures an elasticity of temper which is so much superior to that of foreign competitors. They are then put to cool and are ready for the process of "blowing" the glass head on.

The glass for toilet pin heads is manufactured in long thin sticks (as seen on the tables in the above illustration). It is made in various colors but black and white are the most used. The heading machine (the patent of which is controlled by Messrs. Abel Morrall, Ltd., in England) is capable of heading 86 per minute of what is commonly known as the "Berry pin," and 65 per minute of their now celebrated "Mulberry pin." It would weary our readers to detail the various methods which follow, but suffice it to say the heads are assorted into sizes by an ingeniously contrived machine, invented by Messrs. Morrall. They are afterwards stuck in rows of 40 pins, rolled by a machine into the form of a berry and placed into the tubes; labelled and boxed ready for the market.

Machines "Blowing" Glass Heads on the Toilet Pins.

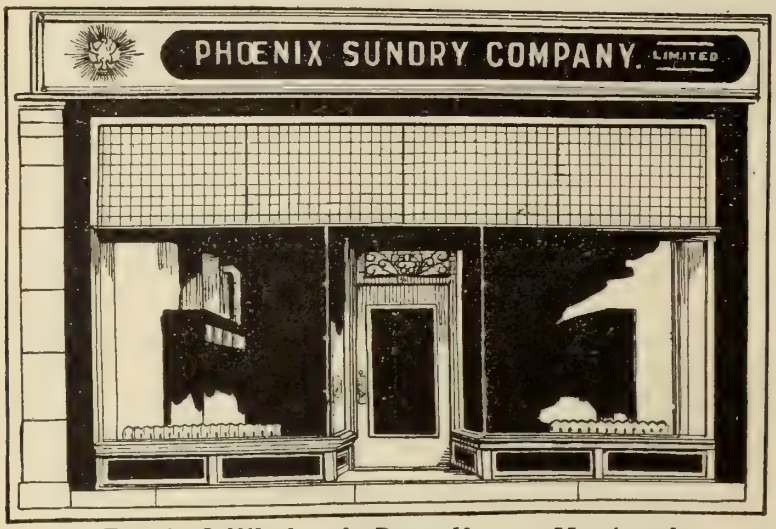
The heads of the pins are blown singly, by hand, that is—all the solid heads, and these are made up in various ingenious ways for the market. To mention a few only of Messrs. Morrall's hat pin novelties—The Cone, The Round Card, The Easel, The Crown, etc. It is simply surprising, not to say bewildering, if one can but see the huge variety of heads this up-to-date firm places upon their specially made nickel plated hat pin stems, for which Messrs. Morrall are renowned. All the better class hat pins are furnished with these nickel plated stems, which are very elastic and are, therefore, much stronger than the stems usually made by foreign manufacturers. We notice this firm commences the manufacture of an article and finishes it right through, even to the nickel plating and gilding of the pins, having put down a rather extensive plant for these two processes.

The pins being now headed are taken to the furnishing room (see illustration). This is a large room containing about 60 female workers. The pins are stuck into the cubes, so familiar to our Canadian women-folk. At one table were a number of girls sticking pins into sheets of paper. As a matter of fact the cubes and sheets which the workers in the illustration are seen furnishing were (we were told) being done for Canadian orders, and were to be shipped that week.

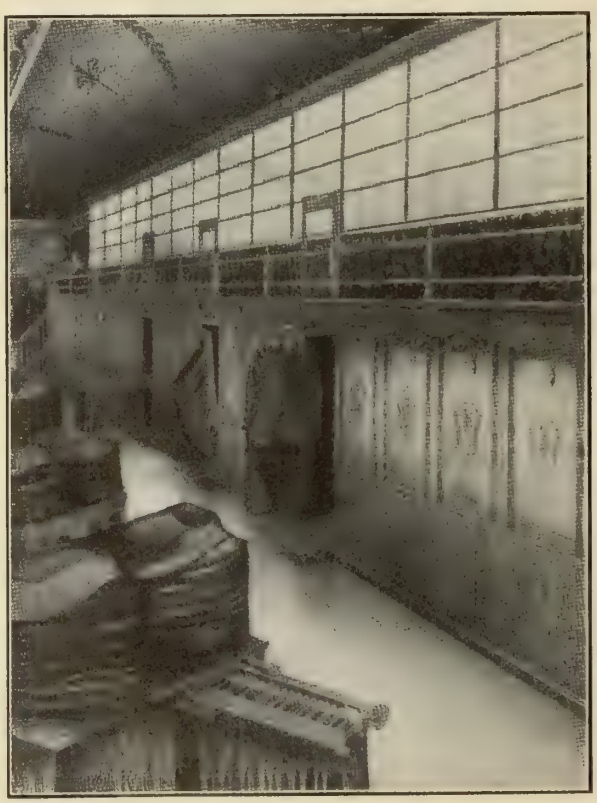
Messrs. Morrall showed us their pearling room. This is where the heads of the lace pins and hat pins are dipped in a solution specially manufactured on the premises, which gives to them that beautiful "pearly" lustre so popular with ladies to-day.



Toilet Pin Furnishing Room.

Needles and toilet pins are very small articles of daily use, and it is somewhat difficult to realize the amount of labor and ingenuity required in their manufacture. We hope our description of the same will have interested our readers, and that they will give heed to the fact that though only insignificant articles in themselves their manufacture gives employment (in Messrs. Morrall's mills alone) to 500 hands.

ONE OF OUR NEW



STORE FRONTS WITH LUXFER PRISM TRANSOMS and PATENT TRANSPARENT PLATE GLASS CORNERS

Front of Wholesale Drug House, Montreal

WRITE OR SEE US FOR FULL INFORMATION

LUXFER PRISM CO., Limited - TORONTO

Section of Modern Store Equipped with our System

Weir Wardrobe System

PATENTED

For the Economic and Scientific Handling of Men's and Women's Ready-to-wear Garments.

Sectional Wardrobes—each complete in itself

Fitting Rooms, Stairways or Dummy Fronts, all of uniform style, size and height.

Capacity: High Boys—in 30 in. frontage—50 Suits
Low Boys —25 Suits and 25 pairs odd Trousers.

Hardwood or Metal Roller Bearing Slides. Price list and catalogue on application. Estimates furnished.

Intending purchasers are specially requested to see our Trouser Slide and Suit Counters—the only thing of the kind in existence.

Weir Wardrobe Co. of Canada, Limited

Head Office and Factory: Mount Forest, Ont.

U. S. Factory: Mason City, Iowa

INVESTIGATE

our claim to be called

"The Assorting House of Montreal"

by sending us your order

The W. R. Brock Company, (Limited)

MONTREAL

"Craftana"

THE HALL-MARK OF Registered No. 262,005

Maximum Comfort and Durability at Minimum Cost.

FIRST in the Field and STILL LEADING.

Made on the GRADUATED PRINCIPLE, and starting with TWO THREADS in the TOP, it increases in WEAR-RESISTING PROPERTIES as it descends. Thus THE LEG HAS THREE THREADS, THE INSTEP AND FOOT FOUR, and the HEEL and TOE FIVE. By this process the WEIGHT and STRENGTH of the Sock are where they are most needed IN THE FEET, making it essentially

A HALF HOSE FOR HARD WEAR

Absolutely Seamless.
Perfect in Fit.
Guaranteed Unshrinkable.

THE ACME OF PERFECTION IN FOOTWEAR

SOLE AGENTS FOR CANADA: R. HENDERSON & CO. MONTREAL and TORONTO

Manufactured by W. RAVEN & CO., Ltd. Leicester, Eng.

Underwear, Hosiery, Socks, Mittens, Toques, Golfers, Sweaters, Overhose, Etc.

Made to sell at popular prices and all

GUARANTEED

Our samples are now in the hands of our travellers who will call upon you shortly with a full range of our samples.

Dominion Brand Hosiery, bearing our guarantee ticket, is made to wear. Buy the best and get satisfaction.

A. BURRITT & CO.

Dominion Hose and Underwear Mills MITCHELL, ONT.

Health Underwear

Only the best of the finest Nova Scotia wool is used in Stanfield's Underwear—knitted in ideal factories and as perfectly as modern methods can. The shrinking is done without injury to the long-fibred porous quality of the wool—so that Stanfield's Underwear absorbs and evaporates the perspiration thrown off by the body, and keeps the skin well-ventilated and active. Stanfield's is the healthiest of good Underwear. Write for samples. Address

STANFIELD'S LIMITED
TRURO, N.S.

Remember the names:

Stanfield's Unshrinkable (for men)

and

Truro Knit (for women)

124a

1907

"Tiger Brand" Underwear FOR MEN -- FOR BOYS

TIGER BRAND

Fleece Lined, Plain Knit, Elastic Rib and Fine Worsted

FALL SAMPLES NOW IN AGENTS HANDS.

THE GALT KNITTING CO., Limited

GALT, ONT.

DO IT NOW

SEE THAT YOU HAVE YOUR SPRING ORDER BOOKED FOR

"Hygeian" Registered
UNDERWEAR

FOR PARTICULAR PEOPLE

Made in all Styles, Sizes and Weights

The very latest statistics prepared show how great the demand is likely to be on all lines of goods that cotton enters into the process of manufacture.

This points to higher prices for raw cotton and the continued scarcity of the finished product for many months to come. In view of the sold-up condition of the market, the present situation should be carefully considered by buyers. "'Nuf sed."

Wishing our customers continued prosperity for 1907. Believe us to be,

Yours truly,

HAMILTON, CAN. EAGLE KNITTING CO., LTD.

We want to look after your requirements on "Hygeian Waists"

LOOK FORWARD to bigger hosiery profits in 1907

Start now by writing for our 48-page booklet entitled "The Story of a Successful Hosiery Week" and carry only black stockings that bear the brand of "Louis Hermsdorf, Dyer."

This

Cut is FREE to all who ask for it on their firm's letter paper. Proofs of other cuts on request.

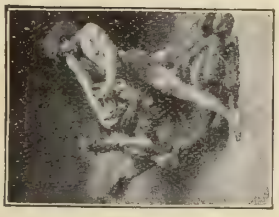
Louis Hermsdorf
Dyer

Works: Chemnitz, Saxony.

AMERICAN BUREAU: 200 Greene Street, New York

PRINCESS RIB

The genteel stocking for Boys and Girls. Made of fine double Egyptian Lisle Yarn.



ROCK RIB

Strong as Gibraltar

The Stockings made especially for Boys' and Girls' hard wear.

Made of Three-ply Specially Strong Yarn.

HERCULES RIB

The Limit of Strength

E. H. Walsh & Co., Sole Selling Agents, Toronto and Montreal

"PATON'S SCOTCH"

WIDELY IMITATED

If Paton's Scotch Yarn, made in the Factories at Alloa, Scotland, was not real good yarn, no one would think of trying to imitate it;—why do Yorkshire manufacturers try to produce imitations of Scotch tweeds?—there must be, of course, something desirable, and which is the same reason why so many try to imitate Paton's real Scotch Alloa Yarn.

Some Unscrupulous Spinners not only try to imitate it, but actually label their yarn (which has never seen Scotland) with the word "Scotch." Don't you think there's some reason for this?—and if it is a good one, then why buy the imitation for the Real article, when Paton's Real Scotch Alloa Yarn is known the world over for Warmth, Strength and Easy Knitting?

If your customers don't know this, don't you think it's time they did, taking your own interest in consideration?

John Paton, Son & Co.,

Alloa, Scotland

PHILIP DE GRUCHY, 207 St. James Street, MONTREAL

Sole Agent for Canada

PREMIER FINISH

TRADE MARK

NON-SHRINKABLE

SQUIRREL BRAND UNDERWEAR

PURE WOOL

Cartwright & Warners

LIMITED.

Loughborough, England,

WOOL IS A NON-CONDUCTOR, keeping the heat in and the cold out; it is the most porous of all materials, permitting free circulation of air next the body. Made for Men's, Women's and Children's Wear.

Guaranteed

Obsolutely Unshrinkable.

CARTWRIGHT & WARNER'S name on a garment carries with it the value of a hundred years' successful experience in the manufacture of the best knit Underwear in the world, and stamps it with a character of superiority that places it above and beyond all others in a class by itself.

R. FLAWS & SON, Agents, Manchester Bldg., Toronto.

FALL SEASON 1907

Our representatives are now on the road with a full assortment of Fall Underwear for Ladies, Men and Children.

AGENTS:

McCLUNG & BURNS, 117 Wellington St. West, TORONTO

J. A. MURRAY, SUSSEX, N.B.

A. L. GILPIN, 232 McGill St., MONTREAL

BRYCE & CO., Box 238, WINNIPEG

Watson Manufacturing Co., Limited, Paris, Ont.

Knitted Goods

Hosiery
Underwear
Golfers

Review of Year's Trade

Business in Hosiery and Underwear Satisfactory — Better Qualities in Demand.

In knitted goods, as in all other branches of the dry goods trade, prices are high, but in no way do they interfere with the sales. It was thought in the beginning of the year that, as prices were not materially advanced, and cost of production had greatly increased, the quality would inevitably suffer. It has been jocularly remarked that poor quality had much to do with the increased consumption, as the articles wore out quicker and had to be replaced by new goods. It is well known that in every quarter there has been an improved demand for better goods. People had the money and were willing to spend it in purchasing garments of a good class. Even in the small centres of the West, where in recent years ,the cheap, heavy goods had the run, there has been ready demand for better qualities, and price was a secondary consideration.

Slow Deliveries.

The only disturbing feature of the situation during the past year was slow delivery. While this is attributed to scarcity of help and shortage of yarns, there is another reason that should be considered. The mild weather of last winter had much to do with the carrying over of large stocks. This made the retailers delay the placing of his orders for Fall, and there was a chance that the same state of affairs might be repeated. When it was seen that the demand was to be greater than any previous year, orders poured into the factories, with the result that it was found impossible to meet the demand.

SECTION OF UNDERWEAR AND HOSIERY DEPARTMENT.
The W. H. Scroggie Co., Montreal.

Canadian Manufacturers Advancing.

When the surtax was imposed on German merchandise it had the effect of pretty well shutting out the German woolen knitted goods, and it was at once noticed that both British and Canadian houses improved their goods considerably and took full advantage of the situation. In cotton goods rapid advances have been made, and many of the manufacturers, realizing the difficulties of securing yarns, are taking steps to supply this deficiency by installing spinning machinery of their own. With this acquisition, and with the improved facilities, which are being introduced every day, greater things are looked for in the near future. Not only have the mills turned out more goods this year, but the qualities have improved very much. The majority of the knitting mills have, within the past few years, doubled their plants, but their capacity is still inadequate to the demand. New ones are being built and others are in prospect. There is everything to indicate the future success of the industry, and with the growth of the country and the increase of wealth, there is assurance that reliable knitted goods will still be in heavy demand. High class English lines have been active, while American underwear has only done a limited trade.

The Best Selling Lines.

From the opening of the Fall trade there was a demand for white underwear of elasticity. Greys moved slowly. The average price paid was $4.50, against the $4 lines last year. The coarser ribbed lines which met with active demand last year were among the slow stock. When the year's business is summed up it will be found that, contrary to all expectations, combinations sold less than ever, in the large centres especially. The demand for ladies' fleece-lined vests experienced a falling off. This, some assert, was due to the narrow margin of profit on them given by the manufacturers, but this is a rather uncertain reason, for it must be remembered that the poor quality of these napped goods a few years ago had a great tendency to dissatisfy the consumers. This year, however, the nap was greatly improved and the goods were pushed on the market at unprofitable figures with the hope of restoring confidence in fleece-lined underwear. There has been a scarcity of knitted goods right through the season, which was responsible for many sales being lost.

Retail circles report an increase of 25 per cent over last year's business and that throughout the seasons for heavy underwear and hosiery the demand was unceasing. There were only a few disappointing lines, but when the lines most in demand ran short the slow ones were pushed to the fore and there was no difficulty in disposing of them.

Golfers and Sweaters.

The amount of business done in sweaters and golfers is considered satisfactory, when compared with the sluggish state of the market a few years ago. Some four or five years ago there was a good business done on these articles when they were practically new on the market, and they attracted the attention of fashionable ladies. This set the pace, and the following year they were worn generally. The year following these cheap lines were introduced on the market, with the result that they dropped them altogether. This encouraged some manufacturers to turn out high class Norfolk jackets as well as Eton jackets and they met with good sales so far as the high priced goods were concerned. Fine combinations of silk and fine wool were used in making some lines of high class goods, and met with ready sale. It is thought that so long as manufacturers refrain from imitating these lines with some cheaper ones the sales will increase as the value as an outing garment is well appreciated, but at the same time there is a strong inclination on the part of many to discard any article when it becomes too cheap. Manufacturers have also done good business with underskirts and shawls, and greater results are expected for next year.

Knitted Goods Display.

During the past year more attention than usual was given to display of knitted goods. A good idea carried out in many of the large stores was to have the underwear and hosiery departments facing one another. Between them display tables were arranged on which were placed some of the lines carried. These two lines being closely allied to each other aided the sales greatly. It was simply a step across the aisle, and the matter of sizes were better understood by the salesladies. The accompanying illustration explains this idea. It was realized some time ago that ladies had a strong aversion to underwear being displayed on forms, and this was dispensed with. The rush of business and the large range of goods carried required ample room on the counters to enable proper handling, so the tables in the aisles were utilized to a great extent. Goods could either be shown on the table or in the boxes, but during a rush it is better to have them lying flat on the tables, arranged in the various sizes and styles. An effective and decorative display is made by using colored tissue paper placed inside the ladies' garments. This shows the trimmings and other points of the goods to perfection, and at a glance every point is seen. It has been the practice of some stores to change the colors of the paper each week, pink being used one week and blue the following. At special sales or displays the decorations are usually carried out in one color effect. With the aid of small racks ladies' vests are neatly displayed among the golfers and other knitted goods. Colored hosiery was brought in to play a prominent part, and colored combinations of many articles in the department.

Hosiery

Spring Orders Completed—Good Demand for Cotton Hosiery for Spring—Slow Deliveries Expected.

Sales of Winter lines of heavy wool hosiery have shown great improvement during the past month in retail circles, owing, no doubt, to the colder weather necessitating heavier foot-wear. The supply of heavy, long stockings, used as over-stockings by children, is practically exhausted as the rush for them after heavy snowfalls could scarcely be met. Black and blues were, as usual, the leaders, but when these were exhausted other colors were eagerly purchased. Many reds were disposed of with the beginning of the winter sports. All sizes were required and in the majority of cases they lead to the sale of toques, sashes and mitts to match. These lines of hosiery used as overstockings, having the double heels and toes, were very scarce, and the next heavy lines were pushed to the fore with good results when there was no longer a choice of sizes and lengths in the required lines.

As stated before in these columns, ankle lace hosiery have not been ordered in as large quantities for next Spring. This is due to the inability of the jobbers to secure sufficient stock at a safe date for delivery. The embroidered gauze lisles, which were spoken of as probable substitutes, have so far met with good sales and in all probability will justify expectations, the orders for Spring delivery being fairly large.

A line in regard to which there was much diffidence a short time ago, but which is now meeting with better demand, is the elastic knee cashmere hosiery. This has been a most difficult line to introduce, but it is now on the market to stay, apparently, for the merchants handling them are sending in repeat orders. They are of moderate price ($2.40) and are a good, serviceable stocking.

Whites and greys are undoubtedly the leaders for Spring, but at this late date, contrary to the expectations of highly esteemed authorities, there is a slight demand for tans. This gives rise to the belief that many have made a mistake in the selection of colors. Some jobbers who had several cases of seconds in tans a few months ago have now cleared their stock and are demanding more from the manufacturers. The assurance of tan shoes being in vogue this Spring is responsible for this change, but it is too early to predict exactly how this will affect the other colors in hosiery, as the question was thought to have been settled some time ago when merchants bought their stock to suit the shades of ladies' summer dress goods.

The proposed changes in the tariff will not affect the market. Only on one line is there a reduction of about one per cent. on the preferential basis. All other lines are not materially affected and the changes are so insignificant that even at this date none of the interested jobbers have given the tariff the slightest consideration. Canadian cotton and cashmere lines both increased trade during 1906.

Golfers and Sweaters

Styles for Next Fall Will be Changed Considerably—Initial Orders Are Encouraging.

Initial orders for ladies' golfers have been satisfactory all along the line, and everything points to a better year than the past few years. The business done in 1906 has, apparently, encouraged the manufacturers to put on the market something entirely new in the way of Eton jackets. The color combinations shown are exceedingly tasty, the favorite being the white with sky embroidered silk trimmings. Other combinations are black and white, white and red, black and red, cardinal and white. The Eton jacket for the Fall of 1907 is made in the 3-4 length, the weave is much smaller and the material much closer, the sleeves are also of the 3-4 length and are loose, drooping from the shoulder. Pearl buttons are used more extensively this year and the trimmings are a little broader. There are various styles shown. One popular line has the collar straight but low, with the weave much smaller than that of the body of the garment. The idea of this is to have it tight fitting, without being cumbersome. Another style shows a flat collar very low with high and square lapels. Then there is a neat vest, which has no sleeves at all, and is intended for those wearing fancy sleeves on their waists which would crush under a too sleeve.

The Norfolk jackets show little change in their new models for 1907. They are being made in heavy wool, and are designed for comfort in cold weather. Extra fine qualities are being shown, and the combination colors are very effective. It is evident that the trade and manufacturers are striving to keep the quality up to the standard so that they cannot be copied in cheaper lines. This was disastrous to the trade a few years ago and a repetition of it is to be avoided.

The new sweaters have the colar much looser, to permit its being put over the head without ruffling the hair. It rolls downward, and has a very neat appearance, besides having the qualities of comfort. The honey-comb weaves are meeting with a good demand, and these effects are carried out in the little folks' jackets. Brass buttons, turned-up cuffs and a V-shaped neck make a generally useful garment.

The prices on the new Eton jackets are not so high as last year. The garments are shorter and of lighter material.

Underwear

Scarcity of Heavy Lines—Better Class of Goods Practically Exhausted—Few Novelties for Spring.

Stock in the underwear department has been greatly depleted since the beginning of the severe weather, there being but little left in retail circles. So active has been the call for heavy goods, that the January sales show a vast difference from the sales of January a year ago. Then there was a large stock which, owing to the poor weather, remained inactive and even a marked-down sale could not make it active. This year there is little or no stock to dispose of at a sacrifice. There is every promise of the demand keeping up throughout the entire winter; especially is this the case when it is known that ladies wear their heavy underwear well into the Spring, not venturing a change during uncertain weather.

A singular feature of the knitted underwear for Spring, when the high prices for yarns are considered, is that so few of the lines have been openly advanced in price. Initial Spring orders are now completed, and early deliveries have already begun.

The cost of production is much greater than in former years, and the marvel is that so few advances have been enforced. Spring samples give assurance that qualities will be maintained. Canadian manufacturers are rushed to full capacity and orders from abroad are uncertain as to date of delivery. Staple lines for Spring are in greater demand than ever and prices are bound to be stiff.

In the novelty lines of Spring underwear there is a decided tendency towards the soft, clinging vests. In some lines there is seen a clever copy of the real ribbed wool in a combination of wool and silk. There are also cheaper ones in fine wool which copy closely the fine lisle thread goods. Macho vests have met with brisk demand so far. These show embroideries woven into the yarn. Balbriggan goods will be much in favor for Spring wear, and new ideas, which are calculated to dispense with the wearing of the long underskirt, are, to all indications, doing a great business.

OUR TWEEDS IN AUSTRALIA.

D. H. Ross, Canadian Commercial Agent in Australia, writes: "Samples of Nova Scotian tweeds arrived too late for this season's indents, but the qualities and some values are of such a nature as to offer encouragement for future business."

DOMINION TRAVELERS.

At the annual meeting of the Dominion Travelers' Association, the financial report showed a surplus of $28,000. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, E. D. Marceau; Vice-President, John Patterson; Secretary, Robert C. Wilkins; Treasurer, H. W. Wadsworth; Directors, E. E. Guilbault, A. J. Brown, A. L. Friedman, James Robertson and Major John T. McBride.

"Ceetee" Underwear is made from the finest Australian Wool in two and three ply Yarns, is full fashioned, no rough seams. never gets hard with washing, retains its shape and elasticity.

Made at Galt, Canada, by THE C. TURNBULL CO. LIMITED.

Jaeger Pure Wool

TRADE MARK

ON JAEGER UNDERWEAR

CAUTION

Our attention has lately been called to various advertisements inserted by dealers in their local papers, describing goods as "JAEGER" which were only imitations of the genuine article. We therefore warn the trade generally that such use of our name is an infringement of our rights and renders the users liable for damages.

All genuine "JAEGER" goods bear our name or Trade Mark on a label attached to the goods.

DR. JAEGER'S SANITARY WOOLLEN SYSTEM COMPANY LIMITED

Wholesale Warehouse—301 St. James Street, MONTREAL

This garment will spring back into place when let go.

See That Needle?

It makes the difference. In knitting the garment it gives an elasticity possible by no other means.

ELLIS SPRING NEEDLE UNSHRINKABLE UNDERWEAR

fits perfectly because of this elasticity. The wearer appreciates this the instant he dons a garment.

The dealer who gives prominence to Ellis Spring Needle Underwear will get a hold upon men's trade that is steadfast.

Two-piece and Union Suits, all weights, Spring, Summer, Winter.

We are sole makers of Spring Needle Ribbed Underwear in Canada.

Trade Mark.

THE ELLIS MANFG. CO.
HAMILTON

MONYPENNY BROS. & CO., Selling Agents
TORONTO and MONTREAL

Peerless REGISTERED Underwear Co.

Manufacturers of

Ladies' Children's and Men's High-Grade Ribbed Underwear, also a Full Range of... Ladies' and Children's Fine Hosiery; Men's Half Hose

The very enthusiasm of the business we are doing makes us emphasize the fact to you

THAT

Before making your purchases you should see our range. In the meantime we are in a position to look after your immediate wants on

HOSIERY, WAISTS and MITTS

(THREE SPECIALTIES WITH US).

In the course of a month our representatives will be in a position to put our range for Fall, 1907, before you, and we bespeak for them a fair proportion of your business.

REPRESENTATIVES

ONTARIO—Peerless Underwear Co.
Myles Building, Hamilton

QUEBEC—L. A. Prevost
232 McGill St., Montreal

MANITOBA—A. J. SNELL
Box 705, Winnipeg, Man.

BRITISH COLUMBIA—Geo. A. Campbell
P.O. Box 1026, Vancouver, B.C.

MARITIME PROVINCES—G. A. Woodill
20 Granville St., Halifax, N.S.

THE PEERLESS UNDERWEAR CO.

Hamilton, Can.

There's a reason for our Success.

¶ To build up a dependable trade in your underwear department, you must sell underwear of the "dependable kind," —made right and of honest value.

¶ You want to cultivate the acquaintance of your customers, and you cannot do so if they do not come back for more.

¶ Sell the Simpson lines of underwear. They meet the requirements, of honest value, and popular price.

JOSEPH SIMPSON SONS

KNITTING MILLS - - - TORONTO

Two Disastrous Fires

Much Damage Done in Montreal Wholesale Dry Goods Districts.

In the early part of December, Montreal was visited by two disastrous fires, which did damage to about $750,000. On the night of Monday, December 3rd, fire broke out in the Excelsior Cloak Co.'s premises, Notre Dame street, and before its progress could be checked several small manufacturers were wiped out, and about thirty firms suffered damages more or less by smoke and water. Coming at a very busy season for the cloak manufacturers, the greatest loss to them is that their employes have left them, and as this class of help is scarce and orders on hand are large, there will be a great loss sustained before things are in running shape again. The fire spread to McGill St. and numbers 230 and 232, where many offices and manufacturers agents are located, suffered much damage by water. The total damage done has been estimated at $175,000. The new addresses of those suffering the greatest damage are herewith given :— G. Goulding & Son, millinery, $5,000, Dollard Lane ; Perrin Freres, $10,000, 302 Lagauchetierre St.; Standard Neckwear Co., $10,000, 320 Notre Dame St. West ; Excelsior Cloak Co., $10,000, 284 Notre Dame St. West ; E. L. Rosenthal, $5,000, 856 St. Lawrence St. Among the dry goods firms suffering more or less damage by water are : National Skirt Co., $1,000 ; Belding, Paul, $2,000 ; British Importing Co., $1,000 ; J. K. Wallace, $500 ; A. D. McPherson, $200 ; John H. Shaw, $500 ; Geo. S. Plow, $500 ; Clement Dorila, $500 ; L. O. Prevost, $500 , Montreal Woolen Mills Co., $200 ; G. H. Evans, $500 ; A. L. Gilpin & Co., $200. Six days later, Sunday, December 9th, fire broke out at number 12 St. Helen St., in the very centre of the wholesale dry goods section of the city, and at one time the flames threatened to wipe out a large area. As it is the damage done has been estimated at $400,000. Three buildings were completely gutted and two damaged by fire and water. Matthews Towers & Co. were the greatest losers, having lost their entire stock valued at $80,000. They are now located at 302 Lagauchetierre St.; Canadian Underwear Co., $75,000, now at 505 St. Paul St.; Thos. May, $35,000, at 16 Lemoine St.; Yorkshire Importing Co., $30,000, now at 69 St. Lawrence St. Those sustaining loss through smoke and water were ; W. J. Dauval, $5,000 ; S. T. Greenleese & Sons, $4,000 ; J. Arthur Paquet, $5,000.

A Great Fire Sale.

Incidental to the fire, C. A. Workman's clothing stock, which was damaged by water, was put on sale the Saturday following. Mr. Workman has not used the daily papers for advertising for the past year or so, but on this occasion he used extensively the columns of the French and English press. It will be remembered that this firm have carried out some novel advertising schemes, one of which was to have a marriage performed in their window. On this occasion the sale was first announced through the medium of an immense sign which covered the entire frontage and side of the premises. It was advertised as the greatest sacrifice that ever took place in Canada and under the immense letters in emblazoned colors was the assuring information, "The man who always keeps his word." As stated, the columns of the French papers were used in advertising the sale. On the opening morning of the sale, so great was the crowd that six policemen were required to keep it under control. Only enough to keep the clerks busy were allowed in at a time, and when they were served they left by another door. The rush kept up for several days, but when the attendance began to wane Mr. Workman had recourse to the press. Half-page advertisements were used and the result was that the crowds again began to gather. Once more the value of advertising is here exemplified, and even Mr. Workman, who had so long disregarded newspaper publicity, was forced to confess, through his very actions, that when a crowd was required an advertisement in the papers was a necessity.

OPEN CANADIAN SAMPLE ROOMS.

E. D. Arnaud, the Canadian Commercial Agent in St. Johns, Nfld., has called the attention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Asrociation to an effective method employed by American manufacturers for selling their goods in Newfoundland. A number of them club together and appoint one representative who opens a place for the display of full lines of the goods which he has for sale. The sample rooms are kept open all the year round The proprietors are there twice a year for two weeks at a time. During the rest of the time attendants are in charge. The goods shown include dry goods, hardware, boots and shoes, chinaware and fancy goods of all kinds. Mr. Arnaud is given to understand that the parties interested have been well repaid for their trouble. Instead of sending travelers to the Island for a week or two, Canadian manufacturers would likely find it an advantage to have their goods represented all the year round. One man could handle a number of lines.

FURS CORNERED IN BY-GONE DAYS.

Among the furriers of to-day many are the stories of the old timers when merchants were successful in cornering the supply of a certain fur. Some made fabulous sums by this means, and were greatly aided in building up enormous businesses. It is told of one Montreal man that he cornered the supply of a certain fur without having the money to do it. After making the purchase in Europe, he returned to Canada and through his relatives secured the necessary funds to meet payments. Within a few months he was enabled to repay the money, and had a large balance that made him independent for life. Another story goes that, in the days when Canada was quickly asserting herself as a fur consuming country, a Montreal gentleman was on a trip to Germany, and while in Leipzig, the great centre for Persian lamb skins, purchased a whole cellar full of these skins on condition that the seller would keep them stored for one month. The purchaser then started for Canada, but returned to Leipzig before the draft of the purchasing price, $250,000, was due. In truth the man did not have the money, nor could he raise it, but when in Leipzig he sold the lot for $309,000 and from this paid the $250,000 due and thus cleared $59,000. This was a master stroke of foresight, and no one begrudged the man his little rake-in.

CLEANING AND RENEWING FURS.

A technical engineer tells of the following method being used in Russia to clean and renew furs :—

Bran of rye is heated in an iron or earthenware vessel, being well stirred all the time, until it has become as hot as the hand can stand. The bran is then poured upon the fur and thoroughly rubbed in. The fur is then brushed with a clean brush or pounded till all the particles of bran have been removed. The fur has then gotten back its former lustre ; even white furs thus treated appear like new.

Crescent Brand
Hosiery and Underwear

S. Lennard & Sons
DUNDAS, ONT.

Manufacturers of all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's

RIBBED UNDERWEAR

in Cotton, Wool, Worsted, Merino, and Silk, and "Bolton's" process for Unshrinkable Underwear.

GUARANTEED UNSHRINKABLE AND NON-FELTING.

SOLE SELLING AGENTS

The Richard L. Baker Co.

Empire Bldg., Wellington St. W. TORONTO, ONT.

ADAMS LOCKSTITCH HOSE

Wins Lasting Customers Wherever Shown.

Its Special Features:

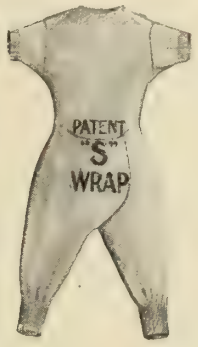
10 FOLD KNEES
6 FOLD ANKLES

give it a wearing quality equalled by no other hosiery on the market.

A. E. ADAMS & CO.
LEICESTER, ENG.
Manufacturers

WALTER WILLIAMS & CO.
301 ST. JAMES STREET
MONTREAL
33 MELINDA STREET
TORONTO

WHOLESALE ONLY



We have been appointed sole agents for
JOHN GUNNING & SON, Limited, - BELFAST, Ire.
LINEN MANUFACTURERS

THE LEADING
English Underwear
JAY
Unshrinkable Woollen
UNDERWEAR

SPECIALITIES:—

LADIES' COMBINATIONS fitted with the Patent "S" WRAP, which affords complete protection where this is most necessary. No button is needed, and the garment does not drag when wearer is sitting.

Any Garment shrunk in Washing will be replaced.

Gentlemen's "STAR" Seated Pants & Drawers.

NO SEAMS at fork, up back, and down inside of leg to chafe, or give way.

EXTRA SPLICED with great freedom of movement.

These Specialities can also be obtained in Merino, and Silk and Merino.

SEE THIS MARK — THE JAY FINISH TRADE MARK UNSHRINKABLE. — ON EVERY GARMENT

Wholesale only:
Messrs. I. & R. Morley and Geo. Brettle & Co.
LONDON, ENGLAND.

A. Schwersenski & Co.

452 St. Paul Street, MONTREAL

MANUFACTURERS OF EUROPEAN FURS FOR JOBBING TRADE ONLY

MARMOTS, HARES,
CONEYS,
LAMB, OPPOSSUM

In all latest styles.

Buyers are invited to examine our samples before purchasing on the other side.

IT IS TO YOUR INTEREST TO SEE THE LINE

PAYING PROSPERITY

¶ Paying prosperity is the portion of your Fur Department if you are the dealer who sells my Furs—A bold statement, but Furs, priced right, quality right and styles right enable you to sell my Furs at a good profit.

¶ One indication of Canada's prosperity which comes strongly to my notice everyday is the increasing demand for my Furs—

¶ Prosperity is my lot and a prosperous 1907 is yours if you sell my Furs as the backbone of your Fur Department.

A. J. ALEXANDOR

504-506 ST. PAUL ST., MONTREAL

THE CANADIAN FUR TRADE

The Trade in 1906 was Good—Some Reminiscences The Outlook For Next Season.

In reviewing the principal features of the year's trade, the fact that the unusually mild weather of last winter and the late opening this season did not materially affect the trade, stands out prominently. Furs are in general demand and the very earliest movements indicated that small furs would be very strong. In anticipation of this manufacturers stocked heavily, but despite their best efforts they could not supply quickly enough, the demand for stoles, caperines, throw-overs and other small neckwear. These occupied the full attention of the manufacturers during the early months of the season. Factories were kept working overtime, but sufficient help could not be secured, and this was responsible for a few orders being cancelled. Naturally the unfavorable weather caused keen disappointment to those who had stocked heavily with the heavy lines of fur garments, but the extraordinary sales of small furs amply compensated for this,

When the demand for ladies' jackets and fur-lined coats began, a few manufacturers complained that the orders on hand for small furs hampered them in the making of the heavier fur garments. This rush has been kept up throughout the season so far. Assorting orders have so far been much larger than was expected, and it might be said that the only disappointing lines were men's fur-lined and fur coats, and caps. Men's furs are considered a necessity, and while the weather continued mild there was but little demand for them. With the coming of December's very favorable weather, these furs moved with a snap and sales proved to be beyond even the most sanguine expectations.

High Priced Lines.

It was evidenced early in the season that the best and most expensive furs would meet with the greatest sales. Price seemed to be no object, but to obtain the best quality was apparently the chief aim in making a selection. Muffs of the flat, or Empire style, with tails, claws and heads used for trimmings, have had a remarkably good demand. There was some diffidence expressed in the early season as to the sale of these articles, as the weather was thought not conducive to good sales. It was, therefore, a pleasant surprise when it was discovered that ladies purchasing an article of fur neckwear were eager to match these articles with a muff.

Serviceable Styles Best Sellers.

It has been clearly shown that while ladies wish to procure the best in furs, they, at the same time, have shown a decided preference for styles that are serviceable. The ultra-fashions were lightly patronized, and this would prove that the reason for purchasing the best furs was that the purchaser intended to wear the article for many seasons, and had no thought of discarding an expensive article for something more fashionable a few years hence. The Russian blouse with the deep revers has undoubtedly been the top-notcher of the season. Ladies' fur-lined ulsters have done a very good business and it is more than likely that next year will bring even better demand.

Prices have remained high throughout the season, and the brisk demand for the best lines at the outset immediately dispelled any misgiving that might have been entertained as to how the prices would be met. Generally speaking, trade has been better than last year, the average sales over last year being conservatively estimated at 40 per cent. increase.

THE EARLY DAYS AND PRESENT CONDITIONS.

It is not more than twenty-five or twenty-seven years ago that the fur trade of Canada was carried on by comparatively few wholesale houses, those of note being Greene & Co., Silverman, Boulter & Co., James Coristine, Heingen, Gnaedinger & Co., all of Montreal; A. A. Allan & Co., Gillespie, Ainslie & Martin, both of Toronto, and Paquet, of Quebec. At present, in Montreal, the centre of the fur business in Canada, there are at least forty fairly large wholesale fur houses doing a prosperous business. In the early days the furs worn were confined to a very limited class, the styles few, but what they may have lacked in this direction was made up in the quality, which even to-day cannot be excelled. Nothing but the best was used, and when people bought furs it was with the idea that they would serve a life-time; a man never expected to outlive his fur coat, and it was a standing joke that it would be inherited by his son. Although the prices then were exceedingly low compared with to-day, the country was sparsely settled, money not so plentiful, and furs not so fashionable. Furriers could then get the greater quantity of their raw furs within fifty miles of the city, trapping was easy, as fur-bearing animals were more plentiful. Yet for all that, people living in cities looked upon the wearing of fur garments as belonging to the habitants of the rural districts, and it was not until more recent years that fur coats attracted the attention of fashionable Canada. Many can yet remember when trappers used to bring their collections to Montreal and dispose of them either to the furriers or to the Hudson's Bay Co.

Persian Lamb Fur Market in Russia.

Then there was only a small proportion of the furs retained for home consumption, the great bulk being shipped to European centres. To-day the trapper's collection is much smaller, and owing to the increased consumption of furs, there is keen competition in securing the trapper's skins. With the country becoming more settled the fur-bearing animals have been greatly depleted, as the timber was cleared to make room for the plow. We have now to depend on the more remote and less frequented districts such as Labrador, Hudson Bay, and on the north of the McKenzie River. The wanton slaughter of buffalo and the beaver is regretted by all, and the wisdom of the authorities in prohibiting further killing of these animals is highly lauded by all concerned. Not many years ago nearly all otter skins used in making fur garments came from Canada; now there is only one Canadian otter used in every fifty. Canada from a fur producing country, is developing into a fur purchasing country of considerable importance.

Prices Compared.

A few comparisons of the prices paid for raw skins a quarter of a century ago and the prices to-day gives a fair indication of the rapid increase, governed by the laws of demand, and should prove of interest:—

	25 years ago.	Present.
Beaver	$1-65 per lb.	$1.50
Canadian Red Fox	75c to $1.25	$3.00 to $4.50
Musk rat	5c to 10c	18c to 32c
Lynx	80c to $1.25	$9.00 to $11.00
Mink	$1.00 to $5.00	$6.00 to $7.00
Otter	$9.00 to $15.00	$40.00 to $50.00
Persian Lamb	$2.50 to $3.50	$8.00 to $9.00
Seal	$28.00 to $30.00	$40.00 to $50.00

Price of Garments Compared.

For a coon coat $35.00 was considered an extravagant price, to-day $100 to $125 is the usual price for good coats. Persian lamb caps, which brought then $5.00 or $6.00, now cost from $9.00 to $12.00. Seal caps which brought then $9.00, to-day range from $22.00 to $25.00. Wombat coats which then brought $10.50, now cost $22.00 to $25.00. Muffs made in the old round styles sold from $11.00 to $12.00, but as now made in a variety of styles, the Empire, or flat style, being the most fashionable with tails and claws used as trimmings, bring $75.00. Very few furs since then have declined in price, black bear being about the only exception. Not many years ago this fur was very much in demand, but when the British government discarded these skins, which were used for saddle mats, they declined materially in price and have never regained their old demand.

The Limited Lines Carried.

The old time fur traveler had very few samples to carry compared with he of to-day whose sample trunks are among the largest and most numerous on the road. The best selling articles in the past years were fur caps, collars and double-lined, fur-lined boas. Fur caps were sold in great quantities, and on this line the dealers chiefly relied for the best of their trade. Fur caps were not long ago considered an essential winter head covering for ladies as well as men. Boys and girls, too, were not considered well dressed if they did not have a fur cap during the winter months. Now there are very few caps worn, their place has been taken by the high fur collar. Boas were made in three or four lengths, with but little attention given to styles as compared with the present time. The neckwear of to-day was unthought of, and the art of cutting not far enough advanced to experiment on any line beyond the conventional shapes of these days. In the coats worn, there was but little pretence at style. The long straight coat was considered the only possible style and to follow the style of sleeves worn on other coats of the day was thought to be an impossibility. The fur muffs were made only in the round style in various circumferences and lengths, and the ends of the muffs were made of cloth. The top, or covering, was fur, and occasionally a tassle used for trimming was noticed, but apart from that no attempt was made to change the style.

Travelers used to sell garments many times without carrying samples. The limited styles were familiar to all dealers, but to-day the manufacturer's traveler is often confronted with the difficulty of taking specially ordered garments of unique and unusual styles. While there is still a great demand for the ready-to-wear fur garments it is one of the difficulties of the fur trade to-day to meet the different demands that are made upon the cutters.

Modern Methods Compared With Old.

Great attention is given now-a-days to the cutting and finishing of furs, yet it is admitted that the garments of old, though lacking variety of style, had the wearing qualities in them. In the old days there was not the same great skill shown in the cutting and trimming of furs, which at the present day is reduced to a science. While modern methods have improved upon the old processes there has been introduced into the trade many tricks. These methods, originally intended to improve furs, have been sadly perverted in some cases, and are made now to cover up defects. Dyeing furs to imitate more expensive furs and producing them as genuine is carried on every day to a great extent. Mink, which is a fashionable fur, is often nothing more or less than Japanese and Chinese weasel dyed to represent the mink. In the old days, when fewer fur garments were sold, infinite care was taken in even the slightest detail to turn out a flawless garment.

The fur cutting to-day is so fine a trade that almost any style can be followed, and quite frequently strange demands are made on the cutter's ability, but it is seldom that he is proven unequal to the task. There are those in the trade who can devote much patience to turning out what a Montreal judge declared was, "champion crazy patch work." The peircing of remnants, together is also a modern science, as well as dyeing, and often people are lured into buying these trashy articles as genuine goods of the first water

The advisability of buying goods from a reliable house, which will not misrepresent its wares, is apparent. Such a house will, if necessary, show the goods thoroughly and compare them with cheaper lines in order to demonstrate where the difference in the price and quality lies, but in cheaper houses where goods will not stand the scrutiny of expert eyes, the utmost circumspection is advised. Furs are too expensive an article on which to take chances by promiscuous buying. Care in the selection of a good firm is the first step required if reliable furs are required.

THE PERSIAN LAMB CENTRE.

For the accompanying illustration of the great Russian fur centre, Niji Novgord, we are indebted to Neyer J. Isaacs, who acted as private secretary to Mr. Goldberg, of the British Canadian Fur Co., Montreal. Skins are shown lying in the open "Messa" or market, where the Persians bring their collections of lamb skins. This spot is the Mecca of all buyers of furs from different parts of the world. The collection brought into the market this year was comparatively small, owing to the disturbances in Russia, and also because a tax was levied on everything sold in the Niji Novgord market. This had much to do with the price increasing.

Outlook for Next Spring

No Radical Change in Styles Has so Far Been Contemplated—No Definite Plans Announced.

Not until the middle of January will any definite plans be made known regarding the lines for next season. So far no Canadian outlooks have been published, nor have the manufacturers yet decided exactly what they will specialize. The present season is being carried longer into the winter than was anticipated, and not until stock is reduced and orders filled will serious attention be given to the making and arranging of samples. Owing to the very late fall, and the rush of orders which came in with the cold weather, manufacturers have been engaged in filling orders until an unusually late date

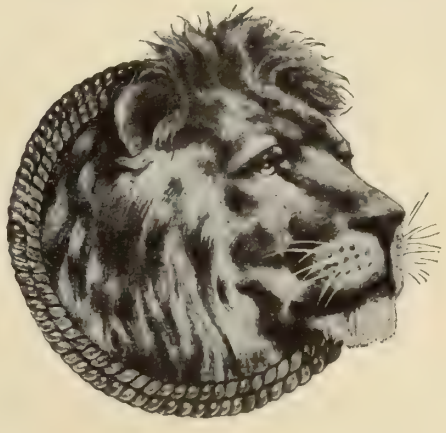
From what can be gleaned at this unsettled period, it appears that any attempt that might have been made to supplant the popularity of mink has dismally failed ; there is nothing to take its place so far as price goes and so long as other furs remain high, mink will continue to hold a forward position. The supply of Persian lamb is only fair at present ; there are plenty of the lower grades, but people seeking a lamb jacket are desirous of obtaining the best qualities. Of these there is a shortage reported, and while prices have not shown a very great advance, it is felt that should there be an unexpected demand the price will be governed accordingly. Seal is also expected to be too high to make it a possible leader over mink. Electric seal, however, sold better than was anticipated throughout the present season, and it is thought it will continue to do good business next season. One thing is certain regarding next season, and that is that, since all furs for jackets are to remain so high, there will be greater sales of fur-lined coats than ever before. Linings are expected to retain about last year's prices. It is thought that the trade done in them this season is merely a small fraction of what will be done next season. The same may be said of muffs. The flat muffs have been merely introduced this year, while next year the sales will greatly increase. Small furs will be as popular as ever before, especially the better qualities.

No radical change in this year's styles has so far been contemplated for next season. The American styles have not yet been made known. Canadians are very conservative, and even if anything were to be introduced which was entirely new, it would have to be modified before it would be saleable in Canada. Those who have thought of giving any consideration to the question claim that it would be disastrous to the trade to make any radical change. Beyond, perhaps, a tighter sleeve at the wrist, a slight droop to the shoulders, or a difference in the revers, there will be no great change made in styles which have given so much satisfaction to all concerned. It has been hinted that ladies' fur-lined coats will have the sleeves altered slightly, the tendency being towards the coat sleeve.

There is every indication that a great season is in store, the prosperity of the country continues, furs are fashionable and in great demand, and continued success of the Canadian fur trade is assured.

GREENLEESE
1907 FURS 1907

¶We take this opportunity of thanking our many customers for their generous support during the past season.



¶The fire in St. Helen St. on Dec. 9th, has caused no interruption to our business. We are now busy with samples for the coming season and our Salesmen will be out with them after March first.

¶If your trade is in good goods it will pay you to wait and see these samples before placing your order.

A Prosperous New Year to All.

S. T. Greenleese & Sons
LIMITED
8 ST. HELEN ST., - MONTREAL

ALL OUR FUR GARMENTS
CARRY THE FOLLOWING TRADE MARK

We believe 1907 will be a record year in the Hat and Fur trade—Our plans are made accordingly.

MAY 1907 SEE YOU PROSPEROUS

John Edgar & Co.
33-35 St. Francois Xavier St.
MONTREAL

M. SILVER & Co.

THE RELIABLE
FUR HOUSE

Wishes You Prosperity

12-14 ST. JOHN STREET

MONTREAL

The Best Resolution

you can make this year to aid your Fur Department is to order your

Persian Lamb Jackets

from

The Specialty Fur House

McComber & Cummings

516 St. Paul Street,

MONTREAL

A Partnership Wanted

How about your fur orders ? Now's our best season, and if you're hurried a bit to deliver the goods —Let us help you !

We've got the facilities, the experience and the reputation. We'll guarantee to make your customers your friends for all time. If you haven't our catalogue—it would interest you — better send for it.

WM. E. ORR & CO.

Manufacturing Furriers

The House of Reliability, Excellence and Style.

93 Yonge St., TORONTO

TEXTILE
DOMINION
CO·LTD·

Canadian Prints

represent the cumulative progress of years of painstaking weaving and steady improvement in color perfection.

They embody every modern advantage.

The generous trade during 1906 and heavy orders for 1907 delivery are appreciated and will be a guarantee for added success.

It pays you to push Canadian Cloths

PRINT WORKS
COLONIAL
TRADE MARK

PRINT WORKS
MAGOG
TRADE MARK

You can always get what you want in our Smallware Department.

Investigate by mail

Cotton prices are going up

The time to place your order is the place

NOW

The W. R. Brock Company (Limited)

Montreal

K K K K K K K K

K

K K K K K K K K

"That indefinable quality called 'CLASS.'"—

These are the KINGCOT
lines for 1907:

GINGHAMS
DRESS GOODS
APRON GINGHAMS
SAXONYS
FLANNELETTES
DOMETS
SHIRTINGS
OXFORDS DENIMS
GALATEAS
TICKINGS
COTTONADES
AWNINGS

KINGCOT cottons are offered to the merchant who discriminates as the one line of cottons surely suited to the tastes of buyers who discriminate between ordinary values and extraordinary values. Kingcot cottons have "class"—they afford better value, better selling-power, simply because that "class" idea dominates their makers and is evident in every yard of the goods themselves.

KINGCOT Cottons sell better than ordinary cottons simply because Kingcot are beyond the competition of all ordinary cottons in all save price alone.

K K K K K K

STAPLES AND RAW MATERIALS

Record Year's Business Done—Lines Much Improved — Prices Advanced on Bleached Goods and Shirtings—Outlook for Spring of 1908.

Like all other lines in the dry goods business, staples have had record sales during the past year. The prosperity of the country is reflected in the great demand for the best grades, and 1906 has been a period of fine possibilities for the cotton companies. For years they have struggled to gain the confidence of consumers, and to do this they have had many difficulties to overcome. As comparatively new industries they had to combat early prejudices, and it was with the utmost difficulty that their goods were marketed. The mills now run full time, and often overtime, while, a few years ago, the demand could be supplied in a few months. Then it was a common occurrence to auction off, or sell at a big discount, many cotton stocks, but now they are remarkably low and scarce.

The vastly improved demand for tickings and sheetings substantially denotes the rapid growth of the country. To every little hamlet throughout the Dominion have been shipped staples connected with home building. This has added greatly to the jobber's number of customers, and wherever one line is introduced it invariably means that other lines are taken the following year. The large sale of denims and other lines for overallings is a good indication of the enormous increase of laborers in the multiplied industries of the Dominion. The improved demand for the better grades of ginghams, prints and other wash dress goods, reflects the general prosperity.

The cotton situation throughout the year has presented many strained situatians; yarns have been exceedingly scarce and high priced ; the mills in the United States and England have been over-run with orders, and in many cases those from foreign sources were turned down. When it was found that orders could not be filled abroad, there was so great a demand for the Canadian products that many lines had to be withdrawn. Prices have been advanced, from time to time, but as this could not be avoided, there was an intelligent understanding of the situation, and in no way did it cause dissatisfaction.

Another great feature of the year's trade was the confidence reposed in the domestic goods. The textile companies realized their opportunity of gaining a valuable position, when consumers no longer could depend upon other countries for supply. They at once raised the standard of their products, in many cases regardless of cost, and in this manner they secured a safe foothold in the market. Altogether the year has been thoroughly satisfactory, the demand has been steady throughout, and the period has closed with stocks low and sales high and active.

BLEACHED GOODS ADVANCED.

The recent advance on bleached goods and greys, of 1-4 to 1-2 cent, and on sail ducks of 1 1-2 cents per yard, was not altogether unexpected and it is only reasonable, in the face of the prevailing conditions, to expect further increases. With raw materials soaring, and a scarcity of all yarns, it is believed that a further increase in the near future is inevitable. The prices are regulated in these goods not only by demand but by advanced cost of production. Sheetings are selling better than ever, the demand being for the better qualities. It is found that there is great difficulty in keeping up the stocks ; there is no idle line, as when one grade is exhausted the nearest approaching it is quickly snatched up. The cutting-up trade is complaining of supplies lacking, but it is thought that now navigation is closed, and orders which were rushed through prior to its closing are now filled, that full attention will be given local delivery. There is every reason to believe that this is now the object of the companies.

DENIMS AND TICKINGS.

Reports to the effect that tickings are hard to obtain are borne out by the fact that in all places stock is very low and over-sold. Repeats are hard to get, but better delivery is assured for the end of January. The heavy tickings for nattress making are in active demand, and for this purpose there is not sufficient supply.

Denims for overall and making-up purposes are still in great demand, to which, apparantly, there is no end. Dissatisfaction is expressed in some quarters over the shortage at present, but it should not be forgotten that when it was possible to get early deliveries a few months ago the opportunity was not taken advantage of. Prices are firm, but are not likely to be advanced for some time. At the same time there is certainly no chance of a decline, and orders should be placed at once in order to assure early delivery after Spring orders. It is learned, on good authority, that in justice to their customers having orders already booked, the manufacturers refused to accept new orders from new sources.

ALL LINES OF SHIRTING ADVANCED.

On December 17th all lines of shirting were advanced 1-4 to 1-2 a cent per yard. A glance at the recent cotton developments will prove conclusively that this is no more than could be expected. The advances are more marked on the shirtings of 36 in. widths which are used for cutting-up purposes. The demand for shirtings has lately been enormous, the market has been strained and developments since the tariff adjustments have been largely the cause of the advance. The new rate of duty is not advantageous to the manufacturing situation, as it leaves no chance for the manufacturers to resort to foreign countries to supply their present stortage of stock. Fortunately this advance comes when Spring orders are well in hand, but should repeats be frequent, it will leave the manufacturers of shirts in a strange predicament. It would be the most difficult task imaginable to increase the price of a dollar shirt, and retailers under these circumstances will not be prepared to give an advanced price to the manufacturers. The range is large this season and have been eagerly purchased. In many cases only limited orders have been accepted in order that all could get some share.

DEMAND FOR GINGHAMS AND FLANELETTES.

Ginghams are still maintaining their popularity for Spring trade, but none sell so well as the reliable staple gingham. Country trade is very active in pinks and light blues, while larger centres show a tendency towards checks of black and white and small stripes. The average demand is for the 10c. lines, but it is noticed that the class of goods taken by the cutting-up trade is of the better qualities.

That the public require some educating in the buying of ginghams is quite evident from the fact that they are lead by the old fixity of prices and are blind to quality. As will be remembered, the listed prices of ginghams remain unchanged when nearly all other lines were advanced. The cost of production is much greater than in former years; mill supplies are at least 100 per cent. dearer, wages are at least 10 per cent. higher, and the scarcity of cotton yarns has materially advanced their prices. Despite these facts, the listed prices are tenaciously held and the jobbers and retailers are unwilling to give way to the new condition of affairs. Prices are the same, but it should not be overlooked that as the ginghams cannot be produced at the same price the quality must suffer in consequence. Any person buying ginghams will ask for a line at a certain price, taking it for granted that it is the same thing obtained at the same price some years before. The existing conditions should be thoroughly understood. It seems the agitation in the States at present against the fixed prices must soon reach Canada, or else the quality of the goods must suffer to the extent of being unsalable.

Flannelettes are still holding a secure place in the market. The tweed effects, greys and whites, are in big demand for making-up purposes. Saxonies and all nap goods continue in high favor, the demand is steady and everything points to an improvement as the Spring approaches.

OUTLOOK FOR SPRING OF 1908.

Textile manufacturers are planning for the best display of textiles ever shown on the Canadian market. The prints being prepared for the Spring of 1908 will be a great improvement over the designs shown this year, which were thought to be the best possible to produce. With improved methods, and with the better demand, there is everything to encourage the best efforts. The Canadian product has been well received, and everything points to the demand continuing active for many seasons to come. In every branch of the industry the preparations for next season promise to surpass all previous standards. With the American and European markets unable to fill Canadian orders, it is a wise policy to aim at the best, for when a dull time comes it will prevent the Canadian consumers from seeking foreign goods when as good can be produced at home.

The Canadian supply of cotton yarns is decidedly short. The mills at present are well sold up, and the indications are that prices will remain high and firm. The cotton yarns have an upward tendency, the supply on the market at present is quickly snapped up, and the close buying which is likely to ensue in consequence will, it is feared, make the market frantic.

The recent ginners' report is far above the most sanguine expectations—12,500,000 bales. When this report was issued it had the effect upon the market of cotton declining half a cent. Spot cotton is now selling at 12½ for the best grades, but the Southern farmer, it should be borne in mind, will not sell his cotton at a low figure and this fact, together with the amount of damage done to the crop by early storms, leaves a scarcity of good cottons for the making of yarns. Foreign sources of supply are sold ahead, as far as two and three years, so that even if the demand should fall off during the next two years, the tariff being reduced on American prints would not help the situation in Canada to any appreciable extent.

New Cotton Mills

Will be Built at Shawinigan Falls—Dominion Textile Company Behind the Project.

A matter of great interest to the Dry Goods trade in general is the news that a large cotton mill will be erected at Shawinigan Falls, Que. For some time there has been considerable talk of furthering the output of Canadian textiles to keep up with the growing demand. There is plenty of room for a large mill, and if it can better the supply, which at present is inadequate to the demand, it will be the greatest boon to the country.

Shawinigan Falls, besides being an ideal place for power, has also the valuable and important advantage of being a place where there is plenty of help to be obtained. There are a great number of French-Canadian families at Shawinigan, Grand Mere and Three Rivers from which can be secured competent mill hands.

The company will be known as the North America Cotton Company, and will have a capital of $2,000,000 preferred and $1,000,000 common. The Dominion Textile Company will have the controlling interest. Stock will be offered to the public.

A contract has already been made with the Shawinigan Water and Power Co., which will supply the mills with 25,000 horse power at a low rate. Plans are now being prepared for the buildings by E. P. Sheldon, of Providence, R.I., whose firm has constructed the largest mills in New England. When completed the mills will rank with the best in America. Before the Fall of 1907 it is expected that they will be completed and in operation.

Shawinigan's railway facilities have been greatly improved since the building of the line to Three Rivers. This will give first-class connections with other railway and steamship lines at Three Rivers.

HEAVY PRINTS ACTIVE.

Deliveries from the mills are more satisfactory than was anticipated, warehouses are being filled up, and although many lines are oversold, there is a marked assurance of late repeats being accepted, should the deliveries continue to be hurried through. The mills are now recovering from the stress of orders., which taxed them to full capacity, prior to the close of inland navigation. Orders on the cheap lines are being rushed through, and manufacturers are turning their best attention to the running off of the better lines.

The heavy print C cloth is fulfilling all expectations. Nos. 10 and 20 are big sellers. The latter line is of great appearance, and its make-up is beneficial to the retailer. It has the duck fold and has cloth-lined bands. This favor. Deliveries on the C cloth are expected to be slow, duce as a fit substitute for the H.P. cloth, is more successful than in the early months and is daily growing in favor. Deliveries on the C cloth are expected to be slow, but after the 15th of January it is hoped that they will be more satisfactory. No. 100 is a line of exceptional good value and is a favorite with the trade. No. 10 of

Nazareth Waist

—We've been making Nazareth Waists for twenty years, and selling them as fast as we could make them.

—To-day we're making more and selling more than ever.

—How is it in your store ?

—Are you selling more than you did yesterday ?

—If not, there's something wrong and it's time to get busy and push them, for they bring mothers to the store, and mothers carry the family pocket-book.

—We'll supply the electros, show-cards, ready-to-use-ads, and window suggestions free.

—A postal will do the business.

THESE

CANADIAN WHOLESALE HOUSES

Carry complete lines of the Nazareth Waist

ST. JOHN, N B.
The Vassie Co., (Ltd.)
The London House Wholesale
Manchester, Robertson & Allison
Scovil Bros., Limited

WINNIPEG, MAN.
R. J. Whitla & Co.
Greenshields Western, Ltd.

HALIFAX, N.S.
W. & C. Silver
Smith Brothers

TORONTO
John Macdonald & Co.
Gordon, Mackay & Co
W. R Brock Co (Ltd.)
Burton, Spence & Co., Limited
Beatty, Kerr & Verner
Denton, Mitchell & Duncan.

HAMILTON, ONT.
John Knox Company, Limited

VANCOUVER, B.C.
The Gault Bros. Co.

KINGSTON, ONT.
Macnee & Minnes

LONDON, ONT.
R. C. Struthers & Co.
Robinson, Little & Co.

MONTREAL
W. R. Brock Co. (Ltd.)
Greenshields Limited
Hodgson, Sumner & Co.
A. Racine & Co.
Brophy-Cains, Limited

This mark woven in Red is on every genuine Nazareth Waist, and it means something.

E. H. WALSH & CO.

TORONTO AND MONTREAL.

CANADIAN REPRESENTATIVES.

ADDRESS, ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

Nazareth Waist Co.

350 BROADWAY

NEW YORK

the low lines is also a good seller, and is eagerly bought. The navies are the leaders in the darker shades, but the light colors have by far the better demand. Grey prints are improving in demand, and only recently the demand for all greys has so greatly improved that jobbers have over-sold and are straining every effort to obtain repeats for their customers.

PROPOSED MILLS FOR LACHINE.

Nothing authentic has yet been given out to the public regarding the cotton mill project for the town of Lachine. Much has lately been said regarding the new company, several prominent names being mentioned from time to time, but those who have the right to speak flatly deny the statements which have appeared in the papers. Upon enquiry The Review was informed that nothing definite could possibly be given out until early in the new year. The gentlemen named in connection with the project are very reticent about the matter, but appear to have every confidence in the plans going through successfully.

Manitoba Dry Goods Trade

Early Advertising and Display Drew Big Business First Part of December.

Winnipeg, Dec. 22.—Christmas trade in Winnipeg is in full swing at time of writing, and, if one may judge by crowds thronging the stores, the volume of business this year is far in excess of any previous year. Persistent advertising in the last days of November and the early part of December, and early displays of Christmas goods did a great deal to induce the buying public to "shop early." The advantages of early Christmas buying were pointed out persistently, and it would seem that the Winnipeg stores had better success than usual in inducing their customers to buy in a leisurely fashion early in the month, rather than leave everything till the last mad rush.

* * *

Unfortunately, this year as last, the Winnipeg stores have seen fit to keep open until 10 o'clock at night during the latter part of the holiday rush. To this rule, there has been, of course, the notable exception of the big department store, which closes every evening at six o'clock. Winnipeg has an early closing bylaw compelling all stores to close at six o'clock, but there is a provision in it allowing the stores to stay open until ten o'clock for a certain number of days before Christmas. The big department store has not taken advantage of this provision, but the other stores, with scarcely an exception, have remained open until ten o'clock. The wisdom of this policy is not very apparent for the public have long been educated to do their shopping before six o'clock, and none of the stores have done very much business after that hour. Of course, the stores are kept open late for the ostensible reason that there are working people who can not possibly shop during the day; but a glance at the customers in the stores at night will soon convince any unprejudiced observer that the great majority of those who are shopping at night belong to the class who could, with no particular inconvenience, do their shopping during the day. A policy designed to accommodate the working classes is not taken advantage of by them; it merely serves to give well-to-do shoppers bad habits. The Winnipeg dry goods stores have a local retail association, and it would be the part of wisdom for that body to make arrangements next year for early closing during the holiday season.

A number of good holiday windows and interior displays have been a feature of the Christmas trade. Archibald Wright & Co., although somewhat side-tracked in temporary quarters on Notre Dame Avenue, have not relaxed their efforts to capture a good share of the Christmas trade. During the month of December they have had a number of particularly fine displays of specially imported laces and handkerchiefs..

G. D. McKay & Co., at "The Shrine of Fashion," have used their windows to splendid advantage in the display of ladies' costumes and dress accessories.

The T. Eaton Co., as usual, have shown a number of artistically dressed Christmas windows.

* * *

Wholesale houses report that sales of Spring and Summer goods are already very encouraging. Travelers have been on the road with the first samples of Spring goods, and they find the trade in optimistic mood and ready to buy liberally for 1907 requirements.

* * *

The only fly in the ointment, so far as the Western trade is concerned, is the fact that, owing to various causes the railways have not moved so much wheat out of the country as they did up to this time last year. This means a money stringency, as it is the wheat money that pays the country store bills.

WALLACE, BLAKE & SHOULDICE.

The firm of E. B. Wallace & Co. was formed in January, 1906. Mr. Wallace was the only active member until July, when he was joined by Mr. Blake, and on January 1, 1907, by Mr. Shouldice. The firm name was then changed to Wallace, Blake & Shouldice.

The whole business career of Mr. Wallace has been identified with the linen and handkerchief trade. For ten years he was closely connected with the industry in Belfast, and then for many years buyer for the Wyld, Darling Co. After the big fire of 1904 he was with Gordon, Mackay & Co., as buyer, until he founded the present business. He is recognized in the trade as being one of the best posted men connected with the linen and handkerchief business in Canada.

Mr. Blake entered business with Caldecott, Burton & Spence, when they first opened in Toronto, and he remained with the firm for fifteen years. After severing his connection with them he for five years represented Gault Bros. & Co., and later English and continental firms selling the wholesale trade.

Mr. Shouldice received his first business training in the retail dry goods business, but for the past sixteen years has represented H. P. Eckardt east of Toronto.

MARITIME TRAVELERS.

The annual meeting of the Maritime Commercial Travelers' Association was held at Halifax. It was reported that the membership stood at 781, compared with 105 in 1882 The election of officers resulted as follows: President, J. B. Douglas; Vice-Presidents for Nova Scotia, Chas. Blackie, H. E. Pyke, James C. Jones, A. Milne Fraser; Vice-Presidents for New Brunswick, R. A. March, D. M. Doherty, Alex. Binning, Henry Thomas; Directors, E. Y. Rowland, D. Rutherford, G. H. Laidlaw, B. N. Barnes, C. C. Starr, S. F. Thompson; Treasurer, O. E. Smith.

Rhys D. Fairbairn (Limited)

MANUFACTURERS

WE HAVE ADDED

Shirt Waists

TO OUR LINE OF

Neckwear, Belts, Frillings, Ruchings and Skirts

SAMPLES SHOWN BY OUR TRAVELLERS

Toronto—8-10 Wellington East. Montreal—204 St. James St.

"PATON'S"

Tailor's Linen Threads,

Sole Sewing and

Wax Machine Threads

"ARE THE BEST"

IN NO COMBINE

Get Samples and Prices.

Sole Agents:

GEO. D. ROSS & CO.

MONTREAL and TORONTO

Commence the New Year Right

BY STOCKING WITH

OUR IVORY BUTTONS

Prices and Quality tell the story

¶ We have increased our facilities to meet all requirements of the trade. Assortments sent on approval.

MANUFACTURING AND JOBBING TRADES

IMPERIAL BUTTON WORKS, Ltd.

45 DORCHESTER ST. WEST, MONTREAL

Prizes For Clerks

WHO HAVE IDEAS OF THEIR OWN

EACH month THE REVIEW will award Premiums of $2 and $1, for the two best ideas submitted by clerks. These ideas may relate to any department of the Dry Goods business. As interest in these competitions becomes wider, we will increase the value of the prizes.

Merchants should encourage their employes to become competitors. It will exert a fine educative influence over them, and induce them to think along the lines that will be beneficial both to themselves and their employers.

Address all Correspondence to "Competition" Department

THE DRY GOODS REVIEW

TORONTO MONTREAL WINNIPEG

MONEY MAKING RIBBONS

The Buying Season is Here

¶ You have been reading about the advances in the price of raw silk and know this has affected the ribbon market.

¶ We are covered for the Spring and Summer season and have the goods at old prices.

¶ We advise you to look forward to a large demand for Ribbons and to BUY NOW, if not covered, for the entire season in as far as possible.

FANCY RIBBONS

The vogue of fancy Ribbons is marked by the new trimming ideas in Hats and Gowns. Our stock is filled with the latest creations of the foremost European factories. Samples and prices will interest you. Send for them.

DEBENHAMS (CANADA) Limited

The House for Standard Makes of Ribbons and Silks

Quebec : 43½ St. Joseph St. Halifax : 70 Granville St. Ottawa : 111 Sparks St.

18 St. Helen Street, MONTREAL

Millinery Lines Ready for Early Buyers, January 25th.

LACES

Valenciennes, French, Nottingham and German, in immense range of effective patterns.

ALLOVERS

Orientals, Guipures, Valenciennes, Black, Light Butter, Paris, White.

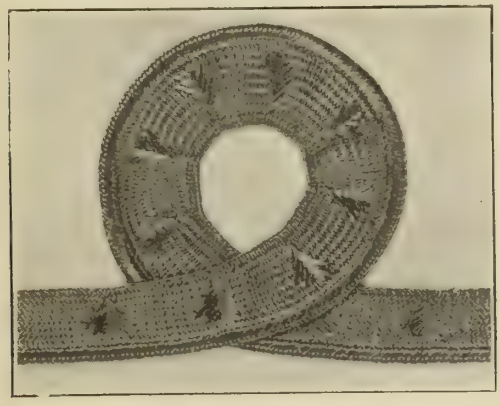
EMBROIDERY STRAPPINGS

Muslin, Nainsook, Cambric. Complete range.

DRESS TRIMMINGS

Appliques, Pull Braids. All colors.

Travellers now showing our Spring range of Ladies' Neckwear and Belts



SANDERSONS, LIMITED

172 Front St. West, TORONTO

DRESS ACCESSORIES

General Prospects

The fancy dry goods business has developed largely in the past decade, and what is relatively a short period, has seen a great increase in the number of the firms engaged in this branch of the trade. Many houses that, only a few years ago, were just starting, or were comparatively small then, are now large and flourishing, as the growing prosperity, and the increasing wealth and population of the Dominion is providing a large outlet for this class of goods.

Two-Tone Embroidered Pull.

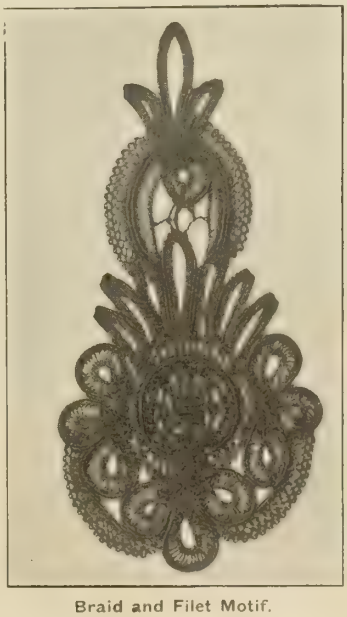
Owing to the fact that the second value—that is, the fashion value, is supreme, it requires a large measure of forethought and ability to properly develop such departments as laces, trimmings, ladies' neckwear, gloves, ribbons, etc. This, however, is largely off-set in the eyes of most merchants by the large profits earned, and by their attractive power.



The prospects are very bright for 1907, rendered all the more so in this section by the promised return of the vogue of dress trimmings. The phenomenal demand for lace continues, and there is no abatement of fashion's favor in this respect. There is of necessity a steady sale for umbrellas, and the call for better goods has added largely to the growing prosperity of the Canadian firms engaged in this industry. Parasols, owing to the fact that the season of 1906 was a long and profitable one, and one that left the retailer with an unusually clean stock, promise a greater development in 1907. The veiling counter is always a money maker, and there is every prospect of a splendid season. La Parisienne has at last taken up the Yankee fashion of the floating veil, and is draping herself in yards and yards of veiling. This is bringing into prominence the individual veil, which was such a money maker a few seasons ago. There is an increasing activity in ribbons, which the advancing prices are not likely to check, and more high class and expensive ribbons than ever before are being ordered out for the Spring season.

In spite of the aggravating slowness of deliveries, 1906 has been a most prosperous year in the glove section. There promises to be a big demand in 1907, and everything is right for the sales end, but a repetition of last year's troubles is in sight, when the obtaining of supplies is considered. The year opens with a decidedly optimistic outlook for ladies' neckwear, owing to the improved showing made for holiday trade, and its increasing vogue in New York. Wash neckwear promises to be rather an uncertain factor during the heated months, and some curtailment may then take place, but as for other lines, and also other periods of the season, the prospects are decidedly good. Frillings begin the year with augmented prospects, as the attached collar is all in their favor, and the sale of other neckwear novelties should be amply sufficient to cover the partial failure of just one item.

Trimmings, Braids and Buttons

Decided Revival in Dress Trimmings—The Return of Drop Ornaments, and Embroideded Chiffons Predicted.

The undoubted feature of the new year to date is the revival in the demand for dress trimmings. Braids have been good throughout the past year, are still very strong, and styles are developing. Pulls of artificial silk are now embellished with a raised edge, and show a pattern in the weave. Two-tone effects of this class are decidedly effective, the combination of two colors lending life to the appearance of the braid. There is another good feature about them that should be noted: You can match up your dress materials from a lessened stock, as the one braid can be used on more than one shade of cloth. Thus a pull of green and brown will go with a wide range of shades of either color, thus effecting a welcome reduction in the stock to be carried. There are many handsome effects in black pulls—indeed the big demand is for black trimmings in all colors. Military effects in suit trimmings are bringing a big demand for mohair braids, and narrow braids and soutaches are being freely used by all the leading ladies' tailors and by the ready-to-wear garment trade.

Braid and Filet Motif.

Drop ornaments are coming back, and the past few weeks has seen a call upon importing houses for any old stock of this description that they may have on hand. There is little change in the character of these goods, and any merchant who has stock of this description lying by, would do well to bring it forward. All kinds of ball and drop trimmings are coming into vogue, and a few fringe effects are tentatively shown, as are also handsome braid and cord motifs. All through the big call is for black, and it is more than probable that these motives will be much used upon the Fall coats of 1907.

Another old friend, the embroidered chiffon trimming, that had such a long run, is to the fore. Handsome band trimmings of embroidered silk, black on black, and white on white, and also Persian and pompadour effects are shown. Tapestry effects and shadow embroideries on chiffon are other novelties. Woven bandings and motifs in a big variety of colorings and patterns for vest effects are again included in the new lines.

Lace Drape Veil, as Worn in Paris.

Covered, crochet, and metal buttons are all selling for 1907, and some very handsome novelties are showing. Odd shapes are featured in trimming buttons, and these are effective when covered with spun silk in basket patterns. The pearl and metal effects are extra beautiful. As in all other lines, for the opening year variety rules. Tiny buckles, slides, etc., are also big sellers.

Alfred Defries, of Defries & Johnstone, manufacturers agents, Carlaw Building, is now in England. Mr. Defries will be back in Canada early in the new year.

Veils and Veilings

Revival of the Drape Veil in Paris and New York—Manner of Wearing it Illustrated.

A steady trade has been done during the past year in the veiling department, but signs are not wanting that 1907 will show a considerable increase, for in addition to the popular mesh veils, the auto veils, etc., the individual drape veil is again coming into fashion, and should this fully develop a splendid season will materialize. There is no doubt as to its vogue with the classes, that is assured, so much so, in fact, that it is bound to show increased signs of favor with the popular trade. The wearing of a drape veil is distinctly an American fashion, and a revival of it hitherto has always come from New York. This time it comes by way of Paris, where the fashionable woman is now enveloping her head and shoulders in yards and yards of veiling. Beautiful lace veils draped around the hat are also well shown. The illustration we give is straight from Paris and shows the veil draped as only a Parisienne can do it, and in such a manner that the hat is not covered. A fine mesh veil, either without dots, or with only one or two far apart, is adjusted with precision over the face and hair, and then the individual veil is gracefully draped over the brim of the hat.

These veils are of many colors, soft shades of brown and mode being in great favor. Grey is also good, and nattier and dull, dark blues. Many shades just off white are also shown, and also black. Lovely Chantilly veils are shown, and also net or chiffon veils with a Chantilly border. A rich veil is of a heavy princesse lace, woven with the net, not appliqued. As the season developes other novelties doubtless will appear, but the retail trade must remember that veils have to be shown to be sold.

Umbrellas

Orders for Spring delivery are well in hand, and the volume of business done shows that the trade is alive to the fact that much difficulty is experienced in getting metal accessories used in the manufacture of umbrellas. The American supply is very uncertain as yet, but fortunately, Canadian manufacturers have ordered ahead and no shortage is expected. A word of commendation is due the Canadian makers on the improved lines they are selling to the trade this year. Among the lines may be mentioned the latest styles of Congo and boxwood handles, trimmed and untrimmed. They possess not only the quality of style, but are made of the best of materials.

As usual, there has been a demand for early orders on the standard lines for country trade, strong covering and heavy ribs being the chief merits sought. Little demand has been made for colors. The selection of handles requires a good deal of care. Straight handles are most popular this season, and that with the round knob for ladies is accepted as the favorite. The variety is greater than ever before, and novelties are numerous, old silver playing a prominent part. Some neat and novel designs are seen in old gold. In this line may be mentioned handles in the shape of a heart, with engravings of laurel wreaths, festoons, shields and coats of arms. Gun metal is also in good demand. The leading designs are the golf club and horse shoe effects. A handsome handle is in boxwood with old silver inlaid at the knob. It is made up in such designs as horse shoes, hearts, shields, etc., suitable for inscription. Pearl handles, both clear and smoked, are holding a good place in the lines bought for Spring.

Portrait Felix. EMPIRE ROBE WITH DIRECTOIRE COAT OF BROCADED SILK. Creation Maison Dieuillet.

During the past few years the demand for umbrellas has not been so brisk, on account of the prevalence of dry seasons.

Ladies' Neckwear

A Splendid Holiday Trade Done—1907 Promises Better Than Anticipated.

The Christmas trade has brought a decided boom in ladies' neckwear, the demand reaching such proportions that most of the houses called their travellers off the road early in December, as orders up to date were so large that the factories had all they could do to turn out those already received by the end of the year. The past Fall has been a decidedly busy one, and has witnessed something like the old-time demand for ladies' neckwear, and this condition promises to continue now that the holiday trade is past.

Dainty lines of novelty effects are now being produced

NOVELTY STOCK COLLAR.
Shown by Rhys D. Fairbairn.

for the mid winter trade, and travelers will be out with them early in January.

Neckwear is again to the fore in New York, and reports from there say that there is a complete revival in the demand, and that the stores are full of new things in the neckwear line. As in other sections of the trade, variety rules, and the daintiest of chiffon effects are shown side by side with the plainest tailored styles.

Collar and cuff sets are decidedly good, both in lace and in lace and embroidered batiste. Gold is again used as a decoration for neckwear, and some of the very smartest of the new effects have a decided touch of gold trimming. The pretty stock we illustrate shows how this touch of tinsel is used, and also a number of other new touches. To begin with, the shape is the latest, coming as it does to a little point in front and having neither tabs nor jabots. Folded half-wheels of crepe-de-chene, sewn with tiny gold beads, decorate each side of the front, and are connected with a motif of heavy lace—Valenciennes, by the way, being not much used for the moment, its place being taken by Venise, guipure, etc. There is a cluster star of pearl and gold beads above the motif, and the ruching is set on by a row of gilt soutache braid.

Silk tailored neckwear is again shown, and is expected to again become popular, though, no doubt, the more dressy semi-tailored styles will be the big sellers in this market. It is certain that neckwear will sell, and sell well, with perhaps the exception of the heated Summer months, and also that practically all kinds will be wanted. New effects in the popular Peter Pan collar are noted, one of which is of eyelet and heavy padded embroidery. There is also a string tie of embroidered lawn to match. Stocks, and collar and cuff sets, of shadow embroidery are also expected to be popular. Embroidered stocks and tabs and turn-overs that show little touches of novelty are looked upon as good property.

Taking it altogether, the prospects for the coming season are much more satisfactory now than was anticipated a month or so ago, and a good season's trade is safe to be done if only retailers will keep in view the fact that it is novelty that is the winning card in the neckwear department.

Lace

Another Big Year Promised—Variety the Keynote—Square Mesh Laces the Decided Novelty for Spring.

Buyers lately returned from St. Gall, Plauen, Calais and England, speak strongly of the vexed question of delivery. The reason for this, it is pointed out, is that every country is prosperous and the demand for laces as a dress accessory is greater than it has ever been. Each market is keeping up a constant clamor for immediate delivery of laces, and those in close proximity to the lace producing centres have a slight advantage. Nottingham, where the nets are made, cannot turn out the goods quick enough to keep the embroiderers of France, Switzerland, England and Germany supplied. At such a time the buyers usually wax abusive over the uncertainty of orders, and the independent manufacturers treat such persons to a turn-down. It is noticed that the houses treating their buying sources indulgently, and appreciating the circumstances responsible for the conditions of the market, are treated with much more consideration by the manufacturers.

Prices will be much higher than last year on account of the raw materials and labor being very high, and also the demand far exceeding that of the past few years. It is felt that some of the lines are so far advanced that the prices are almost prohibitive. This furthers the belief that the greatest demands will be on the medium priced laces. Valenciennes will be stronger for Spring, as it is considered a desirable accessory to the sheer white dress materials which will undoubtedly predominate during the coming season, the nets particularly holding the attention of the trade. Paris is giving a great deal of attention to the square mesh laces, and other large centres are falling into line.

Filet effects are spoken of as good for Spring and certain houses are counting on them as certain lines.

Late samples from Europe in the majority of cases have white foundations. The ecru and ivory tints seem to have declined in popularity to some extent.

Calais is producing Venises this year to a great extent, and they are of exceptionally high grade. From that source deliveries are hard to obtain.

Altogether the season promises to be a very busy one in laces, and it is strongly advised that, in order to assure requirements being covered, there should be no delay in ordering.

The recent tariff changes on lace embroideries are not Aren't "Lion Brand" Hose just right?

Next time you're in Montreal, visit our Lace and Embroidery Department.

There's a good reason.

The W. R. Brock Company, (Limited) giving the satisfaction that was at first anticipated. The complaint is that it is not sufficiently specified. No mention of black or other colors certainly causes confusion. There is apparently very little understood regarding the meaning of the item. Silk embroideries are not sufficiently changed to make any material difference.

Montreal

Import orders for the coming Spring and early Summer are about in, and agents and importers are well satisfied with the volume of trade done. 1907 promises a bigger selling return than 1906, and as that year was far in advance of any other yet experienced in Canada, the outlook is very bright. Better grades are the big sellers, and this tendency—the outcome of increased prosperity—will help to swell the profits in the department.

Medallions, separable galoons, and motives are also in active demand, and bands and insertions are freely used. There is really no one favored lace, though filet and Cluny are the latest comers. Everything is selling, both heavy and light—Venise, baby Irish, guipure and the nets. The orders for all kinds of Valenciennes have been of an astonishing size from all parts of the Dominion. The finer torchons also have been very well taken.

Gloves

1906 Has Been a Record-Breaking Glove Year—Deliveries Slow for Spring.

It may be said that 1906 was the best year the trade in the Dominion has ever experienced, and in many centres the glove turn-over has been nearly double that of 1905. The greater activity has been particularly noticeable during the closing months of the year, and there has been a big increase in the trade done during the holiday season. Deliveries, however, have been very slow, and customs clearings show that very few shipments have arrived in Canada during the months of November and December. Manufacturers in France are greatly hampered by the unprecedented shortage of lamb and kid skins, and the factories are booked far ahead. The high prices have not affected the demand, and orders, particularly from America, are unusually large. Orders now are most difficult to place, and, owing to the early date at which Easter comes, there is a great clamor for early repeats. It is noticed that there is a covert desire in some cases to cling to stock in the hope of benefitting by the advance in prices that is now inevitable in the Spring. The most noticeable advances are on glace gloves, which show an increase of 20 per cent., and suedes are advanced on an average of 50c. per dozen.

On account of the extraordinary demand, manufacturers have been delayed in the sending out of their samples for the Fall of 1907. News comes from the manufacturing centres that, owing to the scarcity of skins, an effort will be made to reduce glove lengths, as it is feared that when prices advance much higher trade will be restricted, and to avoid this economy of skins is strongly urged.

By far the largest orders have been placed for black glaces, the 12 button being the popular length, and the 16 length holding second place, while the 18 and 22 moved out but slowly. Leather tans in colors have done about 75 per cent. of the business, but the demand for medium and golden tans strengthened towards the end of the year. Unexpectedly there has been some call for oxbloods and a few greens during the latter part of the season, but this is not considered as indicating any coming vogue for these colors, but as coming from the old style idea of gloves to match the gown. Black suedes have received a fair share of the business for Spring, and greys have done better than anticipated.

British manufacturers, who had turned their attention to making silk gloves, have found that they can only half supply the home demand, and that foreign orders are beyond consideration. Merchants are constantly expecting advances, but so keen is the situation considered that there is no thought of price; the question of delivery is the great source of annoyance. Prospects are good for a tremendous glove business in 1907, if only the goods can be obtained, and everything depends upon the manner in which the manufacturers meet the demand that is taxing every source of supply to the utmost.

Ribbons

The Year's Trade—Market More Strained Than Ever—Prices Again Advanced.

The year 1906 presented some peculiar features in the ribbon situation, but, taken as a whole, it has been a satisfactory one to the trade. Throughout the year there has been a great scarcity of silk yarns. Raw silk has been constantly advancing, especially Italian silks, which are largely used in the manufacture of ribbons. The year has been marked by advance after advance, but the higher prices have not checked the demand, and trade steadily improved as the year progressed. Trade has been of such a nature that the difficulty with jobbers has been to keep up the supply. The year's business has brought forth many new ideas, which have found favor and built up an increasing demand for novelties, and meeting this is now the task before the trade. Fancies and Dresdens opened the year, but tartans gradually took a firm hold. As the year advanced wider widths came to the fore. Buyers will long remember the year 1906 as one in which they had the greatest difficulty in getting orders placed in Europe.

Wholesalers, realizing the size of the ribbon season that confronts them, and that their collections on hand are inadequate, have instructed their buyers to secure as much stock as possible, and the difficulties which make it almost impossible to carry these instructions out are known only to those who have tried to place orders abroad. French manufacturers are virtually bought up, and buyers can no longer place orders in Germany. London supplies are practically exhausted, and while the state of the silk market, which at present averages over 35 per cent. over last year's prices, remains the same, as it is there will be no prospects of a decline. The large amount of ribbon used for millinery and other purposes is, of course, responsible for the increased demand. Broken checks on a white ground is one of the latest novelties. New effects in warp prints are also shown, as well as fancy stripes. Tartans are stronger than ever before, but while they will undoubtedly be big sellers, stripes are regarded as the real novelty.

Manufacturers are dropping their cheaper lines, upon which their profits are small, and are giving all their attention to the production of better lines. Corded ribbons are holding preference over plain, and although all widths are taken, the big sellers are those of four or five inches.

Velvet ribbons are in big demand, and as they are the trimming of the moment in New York, and are expected to be freely used as an accessory to the sheer dress goods for Summer wear. Black silk ribbons are good property for Spring, as they are always wanted when white is in vogue in dress materials.

With the beginning of the year a further advance of about 5 per cent. to 10 per cent. seems inevitable

WHB WHB

Walter H. Barry & Co.

THE RIBBON HOUSE OF CANADA

Ribbons

Anticipating a scarcity of both plain and fancy Ribbons for the Spring Season, we have made ample preparations for a large influx of business.

During the season we will be in shape to offer specially good lots at advantageous prices.

Buyers should keep in touch with us.

234 McGILL ST. - MONTREAL

PEOPLE WANT THEM

That's the whole story. Depend upon it that public opinion is not far wrong when it is so strong and universal regarding the quality of

STOREY'S GLOVES

You can't afford to disappoint the public.

The Storey Quality is the result of half a century's experience. Knowing glove quality you'd recognise Storey Gloves as unequalled on sight. Have you got 'em? Remember—the "call again," customers buy Storey Gloves at another store. Seems that it's strictly up to you.

W. H. STOREY & SON, Limited

ACTON, ONT.

"The Clovers of Canada," Established, 1868

P. C. STYLE! P. C. VALUE! P. C. MATERIALS!

ALL ECHO PROSPERITY

The Goodness of P. C. Corsets has long been established

The style, shape is up to fashion's needs. To-day, fashion demands the medium high bust, the well rounded, well defined waist line. P.C. Corsets give this effect properly, with perfection not only in line and grace, but in comfort.

"Jeanne"

Short girdle, gored hips. Deep lace trimming. Hose supporters attached. White only.

P. C. 125.

For stout ladies, lace sides, long waist. Strong coutil and steels.

Values illustrate our manufacturing advantages.

For the convenience of Western Ontario Merchants a full stock is carried at Brampton, Ontario— F. W. GILLIES, Manager.

Samples prepaid and returnable at our expense. Electros, hangers, etc., supplied to our customers.

P. C. 810.

A Canadian favorite. English coutil. Medium high bust. Four silk hose supporters. All sizes and colors.

"Capital"

A new model. Extra long waist, new high bust. All sizes and colors.

THE PARISIAN CORSET MFG. CO., LTD.

QUEBEC

SOME SNAPS IN

New Spring Goods

Ladies' Wear

Fancy Underskirts in Silk, Moirette-Silk, Lawn and Alpaca. Collars and Collarettes in lace and silk. Silk Shawls, all shades. Underwear in wool, lawn and silk.

Men's Wear

Men's Wool Underwear, Handkerchiefs, Hosiery, etc.

Domestic Goods

Special lines in White Damask Table Linen, with Napkins to match. Towels and Towelling by the roll. Tabling by the yard. Plush Table Covers, various sizes and designs. Tapestry Table Covers, various sizes and designs. Portieres, etc., etc.

Special Line of Laces and Embroideries
Silk Motto Handkerchiefs

Prices from $2.00 up.

L. HIRSHSON & CO.

Buyers and Sellers of Jobs

4 Dollard Street, MONTREAL

Phone Bell Main 2715 Opposite St. Helen Street

The Standard Made Umbrellas

FOR SPRING 1907

will bring Prosperity to your Umbrella Department.

They are made right, priced right.

If our travellers do not call, write for samples.

The Standard Umbrella Mfg. Co.,

82 Youville Sq., Montreal

On London Bridge

There once stood a man,
Dressed in poor clothes;
Holding a tray in his hands,
Covered with Gold Sovereigns.
Above the tray was a card,
With these words, "For Sale"
"Only One Penny Each."
He did this for a bet.
How many do you think he sold?
Only one.
This sale was made to a little Girl who bought it as a play toy.
The thousands of people passing
Did not know there was Such a bargain at their hand.
Now, while we cannot offer you

GOLD SOVEREIGNS FOR A PENNY

Our object in mentioning this Is to tell you that we have Good things to offer you in Boots and Shoes.
But if you do as the people
Did regarding the gold sovereigns
You will never know just

WHAT YOU ARE MISSING

We are not paying for this Advertisement to merely
Write this, but we mean
What we say, in telling you
It will pay you to know
What we are offering.
We know. Do you know?

WRITE US

The Campbell Shoe Co.

Quebec, P.Q.

CANADA CLOAK COMPANY Limited

95-97 SPADINA AVE.

TORONTO

Our spring samples now ready.
Our styles correct as usual.
Our values greater than ever.

CANADA CLOAK COMPANY Limited

95-97 SPADINA AVE.

TORONTO

Our spring samples now ready.
Our styles correct as usual.
Our values greater than ever.

TRADE Laurentian MARK

When you come to make your New Year's resolutions it will be to your interest to see that note is made of

LAURENTIAN BRAND WHITEWEAR

Not forgetting our popular line of Hemmed Sheets and Slips.
Wishing our customers A Happy and Prosperous New Year.

LAURENTIAN WHITEWEAR CO., LEVIS, P.Q.

SPRING 1907

WAISTS SUITS

Late styles from the most authoritative European and American sources will be shown by our travellers shortly. It will be to our mutual interest for you to look at our lines.

THE AMERICAN SILK WAIST CO.
30 ST. GEORGE STREET, MONTREAL

THE Belmont BRAND

Distinctive RAINCOAT Values

Our spring styles mean something to your garment department. They assure you satisfactory business.

New Ideas in Ladies' Black and Blue Cravenette Garments.

Some Striking Tweed Designs.

We think the line is one of the best ever produced.

We invite inspection.

The Growing Raincoat House

The Belmont Manufacturing Co., Limited
131-133 Youville Sq., MONTREAL

When the Skirt Looks Well to YOU and Feels Well to Her—We Say You've Got That Woman!

What makes the skirt look well to you ?

When it fits to, not fits on, Her.

What makes the skirt feel well to Her ?

When it hangs from, not hangs to, Her.

"Griffin" Brand Skirts are made for the critical woman who wishes to successfully stand critical inspection.

Of course all our Skirts are popular-priced.

1907 SPRING RANGE
See Them

Wishing you a Prosperous 1907

THE EMPIRE MFG. CO.

138 Craig St. West,

Montreal, - Canada

WE MAKE Raincoats
AND Tweed Garments
FOR LADIES, MEN and CHILDREN

That's all!

We do it well, though!

That's the reason our Garments are known from coast to coast.

Our Spring line of "None to Beat" Garments

KNOWN

ALL OVER

is, we think,

BEST for Quality
BEST for Style
BEST for Real Selling Worth

Our business has trebled in the past three seasons. There's a good reason.

Our new Spring Catalogue is as good as a trip to market. To-day is the best day to write for it.
It places you under no obligations. Price List and Samples as well if you say so.

"THE HOUSE THAT MERIT BUILT"

Claman Waterproof Garment Company
MONTREAL

General Prospects

It is within the last ten years that the greater expansion has taken place in the manufacturing of ready-to-wear garments. The older firms have expanded and many new ones have sprung up, and both the manufacturing and retailing end of the trade are adopting more up-to-date methods. The garment industry as a whole is becoming a big factor in the industrial life of the Dominion, as the capital invested and the number of people employed are very large. The making of ready-to-wear garments calls for a high class of skill on the part of the worker, and wages paid are on a high scale.

Both Montreal and Toronto are becoming great garment-making centres, and there are many flourishing firms in other parts of the Dominion. The American continent may be claimed as the true home of garment-making, for if the Americans did not first start the industry they certainly developed it and brought it up to its present state of perfection, and it would be strange if, being in such close touch as we are to the United States, it had not shown a big development here. Though Canadian-made garments may in some lines lack the perfection of style and cut obtained in the country to the South, there is one point where the Canadian maker can and does score, and that is his garments are made more thoroughly and show more neatness and precision of finish. Indeed in some lines, when the price limit is considered, notably in white-wear, the Canadian manufacturer has little to learn from the American. This may also be said of the blouses, coats, suits, etc., turned out by some of our manufacturing houses, but they are the ones that specialize.

Never before in the history of the blouse, has it been so much in evidence as it is to-day, and 1907 will, in all probability, be a record year for this garment. Orders are immense, and quite a number of new firms are starting to manufacture it.

The cloak manufacturers have had a splendid season, and for cloak, suit and skirt manufacturers the present year is one of great promise.

More attention than ever is now paid to children's ready-to-wear clothes and in many retail houses this section is being formed into a separate department.

One big trouble that our manufacturers have always had to contend with is the limited market, and the consequent curtailment of output in many lines, and there are few industries that stand to profit more than corset making from the present rapid growth of population in Canada.

Our corset manufacturers are, however, in a high degree progressive, and in spite of all drawbacks, have succeeded fairly well in meeting competition.

Though in certain lines the home industry may be said to control the market, the value of corset importations is increasing, and, no doubt, will continue to do so as there are many lines that the home manufacturer cannot profitably handle.

Owing to recent tariff changes, which allow the manufactured garment to come in at a less duty than is paid for the silk there is some trouble in this branch of garmentdom. A good deal of capital has been invested here, and a fair amount of labor is employed, and it is to be hoped that a satisfactory working arrangement will be arrived at by the Government and the manufacturers.

Shown by the W. R. Brock Co., Toronto.

Raincoat Expansion

Rcview of Waterproof Industry in Canada, and Modern Raincoats.

In no branch of garment manufacturing has the expansion been more marked than in raincoats. Its developments have been rapid, and its success great. Twenty years ago there was not a waterproof coat manufactured in Canada, but to day, little importing is done, compared with fifteen years ago, for in that time the industry has taken firm root, and holds a secure place in the markets of Canada.

SPRING RAINCOAT STYLE
Mfg. by Claman Waterproof Garment Co.

E. L. Rosenthal, the pioneer manufacturer, started at Montreal, in a small way, and though he had been trained in England, knew the methods thoroughly, and could import the same cloth from the same mills, he experienced much difficulty in persuading merchants here that his garments were just as good as those imported. When at length the little trade was established, others followed in his steps, and soon the demand for Canadian made waterproofs grew to such an extent that English houses entered the field by establishing branches here. Other firms brought out experienced men from the Old Country, and a big business was built up.

The business flourished, until a few years back, when there was a flooding of the market with inferior and cheap goods, traceable in the first place to a heavy shipment of waterproof coats, that had been returned, as useless, from South Africa, and which was bought up by a Canadian manufacturer, at the rate of 4 cents per garment, and sold to merchants here at prices ranging from 25 cents to $4.50 each. This caused other manufacturers to put cheaper goods on the market, and the result was that the demand fell off.

Then came the introduction of the rainproof, or showerproof garments, and the manufacturers of waterproofs turned their attention to the making of rainproof coats. This was not found so profitable, as stitching and trimming was necessary, and the expense of doing this far exceeds the cementing, that is used exclusively, in the making of waterproof coats.

The rainproof coat is now recognized as a general utility garment, that is not only serviceable in rainy, but also in chilly weather. It is claimed that the weather in the past few seasons has interferred with the sale of these garments, and this, coupled with other causes, has led to a diminished demand. However, it is pleasing to note that the industry is beginning to take on new life, and in all probability there will be a good business done in the line next Spring, that is, if manufacturers are wise enough to avoid pushing cheap goods. It should be borne in mind that when people demand rainproof coats they want the qualities that the name implies, and are willing to pay a fair price for a good article.

Raincoat makers were not to be downed by the reversal of popular taste, for when there was no longer a brisk demand for their goods, they turned their attention to the cloak business as well. They started in to manufacture coats of proofed tweed fabrics. Coats made from these fabrics are at present the leading fashion, and cannot be turned out quickly enough to supply the demand, but it must not be forgotten that while raincoat manufacturers are doing a great business in tweed cloths, they still carry on their plain colored proofed raincoat business.

Only a few years ago there were but two manufacturing houses in this line in Canada, but to-day, there are numerous firms doing business throughout the Dominion, with Montreal as the chief centre of the industry.

Spring Outlook

Orders Placed Freely on Light Tweed Effects—Rainproofs Promise to do Better.

Sales of raincoats for Spring delivery are greatly improved this year, and nice sized orders are being received, particularly from Manitoba and the Maritime Provinces. Of the colors selling, dark grey leads, followed by blue and black, with brown as a probable color.

Rubberized silk in fawn is spoken of, but manufacturers are not preparing for any great demand for them.

Orders are being placed freely for light tweed effects.

and loose coats are pronounced the proper garment for the Spring trade, as, in addition to being right in line with the style idea, it is, from its easy fitting qualities, a popular one with both retailer and manufacturer.

In retail circles there will be less to sell off at the usual January sales than ever before. The active demand throughout the selling season kept the stocks low, and with the prospects of the style being but slightly changed it will matter but little if the stock is carried over, as the semi-fitting style which had only small sales will not supplant the loose coat, at least not in the Spring. While light grey tweeds are being freely ordered for Spring delivery, there is a growing tendency towards the blue and black cloths. Of course the greys, with the subdued overchecks, will predominate, but as the season advances, it is thought that dark colors and dark combinations will grow in popularity.

Coat Styles

Late Novelties—Short, Smart Models in Coverts and Novelty Cloths for Early Spring.

The selling season for coats has been a long one, and there has been little price cutting done. Where the knife has been resorted to it has been for some special reason, and not to move stock. Indeed, the buyers chief difficulty has been to keep stock up, for the demand has been so insistant that manufacturers have found it difficult to cope with, particularly as they have been hampered by late deliveries and lack of competent operatives.

The late novelties are of unusual interest, as they would seem to foreshadow a return to plain clothes next Fall. Black is, apparently, coming strongly to the fore, and the styles are long, loose and in semi-Empire effects. They are somewhat elaborately trimmed with motifs and drop trimmings, and some show just a glint of gold.

For the Spring trade smart little short jackets are shown, and covert is again included in the range. Long, loose models are also shown, and are sure to be popular as fashion tendencies are all in their favor.

The novelty idea is the cape, but so far the majority of ideas are too radical for the general trade.

Corset Style Tendencies

High Bust Features—Moderate Priced Lines Better Value Than Ever.

Though there are many women who will still buy the medium styles that have sold so well for the past few seasons, the fashionable tendency is all for high bust models. The high bust and deep hip corset is the one advocated by the fashion authorities, and practically almost all of the new developments are along these lines. This is the corset for full and medium figures, but for slender women the model cut away at the hip is shown.

Those who reasoned that the modified Empire styles, that must be now considered as clearly established, would result in a more negligent style of corseting are doomed to disappointment, for, as The Review pointed out some time ago, careful corseting is more than ever a necessity when Empire styles are worn. A trim bust and a slim hip effect must be attained if the Empire gown is to be worn with any grace, and the most careful corseting must be resorted to. Often, too, it is only the thin over-dress that is made Empire fashion, and there is a tight-fitting slip, that fully defines the figure, worn underneath.

Owing to modern machinery, and advanced methods of manufacturing, the higher cost of both materials and labor is not shown in modern priced corsets. So accustomed has the trade become to high style, excellent cut and workmanship, at a very moderate price, that the present efforts made by the manufacturers to give the old values in spite of the fact that every article which goes into a corset has advanced in price—even to the retaining of the hose supporters,—has met with little recognition, having been taken as a matter of course. Corset lines have, practically, not advanced, and in spite of this fact the same high level of excellence has been maintained.

Another change is the growing call for batiste corsets. Not so long since there was quite a distinction between corsets designed for Fall and those for Summer wear. Heavy fabrics were used for winter corsets, but now there is a tendency for those of the higher fabrics for wear all the year round. Corsets now are cut upon improved lines, materials are better adapted to the purpose for which they are used, and they will stand the increased strain while adding considerably less to the bulk of the figure.

TWEED STYLE
Shown by Claman Waterproof Garment Co.

Suits

Many Styles Featured—Growing Popularity of Guimpe and Jumper Models—Tailored Linen Suits.

The same variety that has characterized the Fall trade promises again to be the feature in the coming Spring. No one style can be selected as leading, and in all probability, though there will be models that are extra good sellers, no single style will lead exclusively when the selling season opens.

Just at present the almost-fitting military suit is in high favor, and is regarded as a sure seller. It is somewhat out of the regulation line, and wide military braids are used as the trimming. This is a trim tailored mode, and the short pleated skirt shown with the later models has also a matching trimming of braid. There are quite a number of smart dressy short-coated models, mostly either fitting or nearly so, and also a sprinkling of long effects. For certain sections of the trade a few short Etons are showing.

Jumper models have not suffered in the exclusive trade because the masses are showing a predilection for them. This is possible because the style is capable of so many variations, and jumper effects are safe to be heard from when the Spring opens. Shirt-waist suits are also said to be slated for a return to favor. Smart tailored styles in linen are selling, and preparations are being made for a big business. Shirt-waist suits. Eton suit, and a few longer coated style are shown. Linens are even more fashionable than it was a year ago, and there should be a very big business done in linen suits. Some models are heavily trimmed with lace and embroidery, but the plain tailored models are, even for the better trade, expected to take best.

Infants' and Children's Wear

Dutch Necks and Empire Waist Line—Guimpe and Pinafore Styles for Older Girls.

Exceedingly dainty are the little garments shown for the wear of infants and small children, though it must be said that this is a line wnere a good deal of extravagance is creeping in. There is an increasing demand for fine embroidery, and also in higher lines for hand work which soon runs up the price of a tiny garment. Imported goods score something like an artistic truimph, for the little round yokes are embroidered in bow knots and fancy sprays, and the very full skirts are elaborately adorned with tucks, insertions, lace and lace-edged ruffles, and frills of embroidery, while others have hand scalloped frills and dainty little sprays embroidered over them. Another new feature for the Spring is the introduction of quaint little Dutch neck styles. The high waist line has arrived in tot styles, and the latest frocks have it just below the arms.

White, as usual, in lawns, etc., is favored for children, but a good deal is expected from little dresses of checked gingham. These are nearly all made with a guimpe, separate if the frock is a fairly high priced one, but fastened in if it comes at a popular price.

Waists

Summer Models—Still the Lingerie, With Novelty Touches to Bring it Up to Date.

One of the features of the January sales will be the extreme display of lingerie waists, though the lines on view will scarcely include the very latest models, and will be largely confined to waists that sell at medium and popular prices.

The later features will be embroidered in the Summer samples, which are just now leaving the hands of the designers. The chief features of these new waists are the use of two, three and even more laces in combination, the extra elaboration of the short elbow sleeve, and the many yoke effects.

Valenciennes is sure to be one of the laces used and is most often seen in combination with Baby Irish, but Cluny is rapidly coming to the fore and filet is beginning to be much used. Medallions, particularly those of large size, are also much used. With the coming of warm weather the elbow sleeve is almost the universal one, and it is here that the up-to-date designer is now putting his finest effects. Yoke effects real, or simulated with the lace, are shown in increasing prominence, but there is always a number of little tucks used to give the necesssary fullness. The Dutch neck is also featured in the new lines.

New effects in net waists are shown for Spring and there are also a few models made up in all-over embroidery.

A small line of tailored waists is shown, including the modified Peter Pan, and this model has short sleeves, while the side and box-pleated models have the long skirt sleeve, often with stiffened cuffs.

Skirts

Pleated Models Popular—The Extreme Fashion is Again the Sweep Length.

The circular skirt is—little to the regret of all branches of the trade—a dead fashion, and the sample lines show a complete return to the pleated models. The styles are very varied and machine-pleated effects are well considered. New effects are shown in this class of skirt, and indications are that it will be an extremely popular seller. The latest fashion news is that the sweep length is returning, and some few models are shown. The very long skirt, lying on the ground in the front and sides, and with a moderate train at the back, is now the fashionable model. The popular trade, however, still features the instep-length skirt exclusively.

Spring Negligees and Kimonas

Dressing Jackets Supplanting Wrappers—White and Colored Lawns for Spring.

With the return of Spring, white lawn negliges are again the leading sellers—the Winter aways sees an outbreak of colored effects. Empire effects in various more or less graceful modifications, are well shown, and there are some lovely matinees in this style that are most elaborately trimmed with lace. There is an increasing fondness for colors, and pink and blue are both well shown, as well as mauve, and yellow has also some vogue.

The cheaper dressing jackets that are so much worn, instead of the old-time wrapper, come not only in print and percale, but in black and white, and in fancy flowered muslins.

Wrappers have sold, but they are not taken in the quantities that they used to be. The many fancy effects in negligees, matinees, kinomas, etc., more than make up the difference.

Whitewear

Early Placing Orders a Big Advantage This Year—Manufacturers Cutting Out Least Profitable Lines.

When The Review reaches its readers January underwear sales will be in full swing, and the buyer who has placed his orders early and anticipated liberally will now be congratulating himself on the wisdom of his policy.

He will have all, or nearly all, his garments in stock, and will be able to supply his customers. The man who delayed will now be on the anxious seat, as he will only be partially supplied, and will have to wait his turn before receiving another instalment.

Complaints are sure to be heard, but the manufacturer cannot help matters. He has himself been up against exactly the same situation. He saw that a large increase in trade was sure, and placed orders for materials accordingly, but even the first deliveries were late, and so much time was lost at the beginning of the season that it was impossible to make it up later. Not only were deliveries of lace and embroideries late, but there was a decided scarcity in many grades, as the lace manufacturers have taken advantage of the situation to cut out low lines, and patterns upon which they made little profit. This has made it exceedingly difficult for the garment manufacturer to produce some of his cheaper grades of white-wear, and he is eliminating them from his sample lines, and turning his attention to better grades. This is a condition that he is not exactly displeased with, as it affords an educative opportunity for pressing home the advantage to the retailer of buying better goods. The fact that, owing to the many advances in both material and labor, these garments would have to be very poor to meet the usual prices, has also had a determining influence in favor of the present policy, as it is felt that the garments made to sell at these fixed prices would not add either to a manufacturer's or retailer's reputation. The latter will be able to get along without them, and it will be all the better for his department.

LADIES' WEAR CALENDAR.

The trade always looks to "Ladies' Wear:' for a pretty calendar, and so far has not been disappointed. The one each of their friends will receive this year, is, we are sure they will say, extra attractive. Of course it has to be a lady, and the one pictured is a charming study in grey, with ermine at the throat and wrists, and she looks fearlessly out at you from the brown hair and violet veil that frame her face. She has a bunch of violets in her hat, which gives the title of the picture. The calendar is a very handsome one and the picture from which this dainty figure is reproduced is, it is pleasing to learn, the work of a Canadian artist.

LIMITATIONS OF ARTIFICIAL SILK.

Referring to the manufacture of artificial silk in a Swedish fatcory to be built near Gottenborg, U.S. Consul, R. S. S. Bergh, quotes from an English letter received by him as follows: "Here in England the dresses made from artificial (wood pulp) silk have been discarded because the creases made when the wearers sit down do not come out. It is scarcely possible to distinguish the real from the artificial silk, but this defect has proved fatal for use as dress pieces. I believe it is used in a certain percentage as an adulterant mixture with real silk or for umbrellas or linings in coats, etc., but not on its own merits could it be used as a dress piece."

CATALOGUE HOUSE SUES RETAILERS.

Montgomery Ward & Co., of Chicago, have brought suit in the United States court at Sioux Falls, S.D., against the South Dakota Retail Merchants' and Hardware Dealers' Association and its officers and directors. The mail order house charges that the association is guilty of conspiracy and boycott in attempting to prevent wholesalers, manufacturers, and jobbers from selling goods to the plaintiff. It is alleged in the bill that this boycott has become so effective that the complainant is unable to secure certain goods for shipment. A temporary injunction had been asked for, and Judge Carland, of the United States Court, has fixed January 3 as the time for the defendants to show cause why the injunction should not be granted.

This is the first case of its kind ever instituted in the United States by a retail catalogue house, and is in the nature of a test. Should the case be won by Montgomery Ward & Co., it is said that similar action will be brought in other states.

IRISH TRADE-MARK ADOPTED.

Ireland has now a trade-mark with which her products, manufactured and otherwise, are to be stamped, insuring their genuineness, while a penalty may be inflicted for its improper use. The Cork Constitution says that "it will henceforth be extremely difficult to palm off imported stuff on the public as Irish made, as the trade-mark will be a guaranty of genuineness of the native article, and any attempt to copy it will be attended with considerable risk."

TO SAVE TIME.

A time-saving device that has been found very effective in some quarters is the following: Over the desk of the head of the firm or department, are four electric bulbs of different colors. When the manager is at his desk and at liberty to see callers or clerks, the white light is turned on. When he is out, the green is left burning. The blue means that he is engaged and not to be disturbed unless there is any very important matter to be considered, while as for the red, it implies "Disturb me at your peril!"

FINISHING RE-EXPORT TEXTILES.

U. S. Consul-General, H. B. Miller, of Yokohama, reports that one of the extensive new industrial developments in Japan is in linen and drawn work.

The linen is brought from Ireland and given out by contract in large quantities by piecework, and all designs of table linen, dress work, etc., are produced and exported to Europe and America. Silk waists, gowns, and dress goods are embroidered, the patterns being imported, some from the United States. The work is done in country districts, and men, women, boys, and girls are employed, their wages ranging from 10 to 40 cents a day. There has also grown up in recent years quite a business in the manufacture of linen collars and cuffs. The material is imported, worked into form, and re-exported without having to pay any duty.

IMPERIAL RAINCOAT & CLOAK CO.

An Ontario Charter has been granted The Imperial Raincoat & Cloak Co., Limited, Toronto, with a share capital of $50,000, divided into five hundred shares. The incorporators were William G. Keddie and Charles G. Keddie, travelers; Emma M. Keddie and Helena F. Wellington, married women, and Howard R. Wellington, accountant, all of Toronto. The purpose of the company is "to manufacture, import and sell every description of raincoats, rubber clothing, cloaks, coats, jackets, suits, wash goods, mantles and clothes of every description."

The cotton harvest in Central Asia is extremely good, 17,000 carloads, instead of the usual 12,000 being available for export.

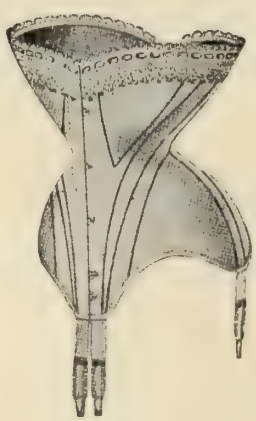
A Sign of Prosperity

The Reliable Waist
None Better Made.

¶ The demand for the Reliable Waist has grown so much that we have again been compelled to double our capacity in order to ensure prompt deliveries.

¶ Our line for Spring comprises the usual line of Silk Waists of all materials, and we have also added high-class Sheer Lawn and Linen goods.

¶ We are now in a position to look after many new accounts, and it's to your interest to get in touch with us.



¶ Our travellers are now on the road showing full range for Spring delivery.

We give Prompt Attention to Mail Orders

I. MISHKIN & CO.

423 St. James Street, MONTREAL

WHY NOT BUY THE BEST

No. 233
Retail 75c.

E. T. Corsets

No. 477—Retail $1.00

E. T. Corsets

No. 802
Retail $1.00

E. T. Corsets are the trade bringers you should stock.

WRITE FOR OUR CATALOG

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS MANUFACTURING CO.

Factory:
St. Hyacinthe, P.Q.

337 St. Paul St., MONTREAL

Toronto Warehouse,
10 Melinda St., Toronto

Newness and Novelty are the things that count in ladies' wear, with very little room for anything in any sense inferior.

We're keeping this business up to top-notch by constantly adding new styles and attractive novelties.

Nothing we can say will so fully endorse our lines for 1907 as seeing the goods and making your own comparisons.

LADIES' WEAR, Limited

Manufacturers of

The "Ladiwear" Brand Waists

Toronto, - Canada

SAMUEL WENER & COMPANY

Manufacturers of "Truefit Brand" Raincoats

The New Raincoat House

Specialists in Men's Raincoats and Ladies' Assured Styles

¶ A new raincoat house with a new idea—quicker and more satisfactory raincoat sales.

¶ The ripe experience of Mr. S. Wener will be taken advantage of in our factory organization, and satisfaction is assured customers in the selling end as Mr. J. Gittleson is in charge.

¶ We feel proud of the line just ready, and think we have as up-to-date styles in Men's and Ladies' Raincoats as it is possible to produce.

¶ Our aim is true fit always. Honest materials, expert specialized workmanship.

¶ Arrange to see the line

Canada's Modern Raincoat House

SAMUEL WENER & COMPANY

Corner Notre Dame and Dupre Streets

MONTREAL

What's in a Name?

EVERYTHING

¶ Your reputation is made by the goods you sell and the values you give—you must maintain it.

¶ Our reputation as makers of Reliable Raincoats for men and women has made the name "Elite" sought for by the buyer.

¶ Our reputation lies in the character of the goods we make and have made for years.

¶ Thus, when you stock Elite Brand Cravenette Proofed Raincoats, you are assured of a reliable manufacturer's guarantee, and as the goods are known by customers you are sure of ready sales.

¶ Elite Raincoats have long held a constant place in the affections of the men and women of Canada.

¶ The retailer of discrimination buys Elite Raincoats because he knows he can readily sell them again.

¶ Examine the Spring line now being shown, and satisfy yourself of the goodness of Elite Brand.

The Montreal Waterproof Clothing Co.

Largest and oldest manufacturers of Raincoats in the Dominion

MONTREAL

Victor Blouses Mean Blouse Prosperity to You and Perfect Satisfaction to the Wearer.

We're giving this department strong attention this season, and the care taken in the preparation of the line is proven by generous orders.

Victor Muslin Blouses Are Right in Every Respect

SELLING TIME IS APPROACHING

Are you fully prepared for the season? Right now we can take good care of your orders. Later all manufacturers will be rushed.

WRITE US YOUR NEEDS

THE VICTOR MFG. CO., - QUEBEC

Look Out For the National Raincoat Man

He will post you on assured

SPRING STYLES

Take a glance at the Ladies' New Tweed ideas, and note the New Styles in our Men's Goods. For a prosperous Spring business get in touch with

THE HOUSE OF RAINCOATS

National Rubber Co.

of Canada

Canada's Largest Exclusive Raincoat House

MONTREAL

The Trade in London, Ont.

Dry Goods Store To Be Greatly Enlarged—Christmas Display—Other Notes of Interest.

London, Ont., Dec. 29.—Plans for a five-storey, L-shaped building have been prepared for Smallman & Ingram, and the work of enlarging "The Satisfactory Store" will be commenced early in the new year. The growth of the business of this store has been marked by the acquisition of adjoining properties, until now the frontage on Dundas street extends across the space formerly occupied by five stores. Recently two store properties fronting on Richmond street were acquired, and these, together with the site of the present store, will be the site of the new Smallman & Ingram building. While their Christmas business was a record-breaker, this firm did not depart from their rule of closing their store every evening at 6 p.m., although for four evenings they opened again at 7.30 to close at 10 p.m.

* * *

The improvement in window dressing and in store fronts in London has been most marked during the past three or four years. A score or more of large electrical signs, many of which are highly artistic, have been put up recently and several merchants have had new and well designed fronts put in their stores. It is well within the mark to say that three times as much is invested by the trade generally along this line now as was spent a few years ago. In the Christmas display there was very little use of automatons or oddities of any sort, the general aim being rather to attract attention by an artistic and tempting display of staple articles and appropriate gifts.

* * *

The Christmas trade in furs showed a decided increase in the sales of the lighter and more expensive goods. There was comparatively little business done in the cheaper grades. The fact that a foot of snow fell in London early in December and sleighing continued through the greater part of the month helped business generally, and the fur business particularly. It was London's good fortune to get this winter weather while the district immediately to the west and south was not so favored, although if conditions favorable to a bigger fur business prevail throughout the district London's fur dealers profit thereby. They reach out for business all through Western Ontario and are getting more every year. In this, as in other lines, London has taken her place as the natural distributing point for the western peninsula.

* * *

In the ready-to-wear clothing trade this season higher priced garments have sold much better than last year and there is very little demand for the cheap lines, J. M. Hickey, local manager for Grafton & Co., says :

The uncertainty as to the site of the new station to be built by the Grand Trunk here continues. The railway company will spend about $2,000,000 in elevating their tracks in and near London, and in other improvements, including the building of a new station and freight sheds. The job of track raising, the biggest of its kind ever undertaken in Canada, has been in progress all year and work on the new buildings will soon be commenced. The present station is on Richmond street, two blocks south of Dundas, and there is a strong feeling among the marchants that the company may build two or three blocks east of the present site. If this is done the extension of the business section of the city in an eastern direction is anticipated, and a pronounced change in the current trade feared. At present there is not a dry goods store in the down-town district east of Richmond street.

Successful Raincoat Plan

You Supply the Materials	I do the Making and Trimming	Result— You Save from 15 to 25 per cent.

¶ My System, which has received the support of representative merchants saves you the larger share of the ordinary manufacturer's or jobber's profit

¶ A concrete, fair example will suffice to explain the plan. A manufacturer charging you $6.50 for a Raincoat makes up his coat about in this way—

3 yards of material, 90c per yard	$2 70
Average cost making and trimming	2 25
At least a profit of about 30% - -	1 55
	$6 50

¶ Your cost, through me, for the same coat, identical cloth, with assured style and fit, is figured thus, granting the material costs you a slight advance, as well as my slight advance for making—

3 yards material, $1.00 per yard -	$3 00
My charge (according to quantity and style) for making and trimming	2 50
	$5 50

The Difference $1.00, is What You Save !

I have a modern factory with every facility.

If you appreciate this saving, you will not forego the opportunity of sending me a coat length for the proof.

The Pioneer Raincoat Manufacturer

E. L. ROSENTHAL

856 St. Lawrence St., - MONTREAL

Fur-lined Coats

SEASON 1907-8.

Wholesale Clothiers

and

Fur Jobbers

who wish to handle a really first-class line of guaranteed fur-lined Coats should communicate with us at once.

A. J. ALEXANDOR

The Fur-lined Coat Man

504-516 St. Paul St., MONTREAL

Geo. H. Evans

COMBS

HAIR ORNAMENTS

HORN PINS

of every description. For the jobbing trade

NEW ADDRESS

118 Bd. of Trade Bldg., Montreal

LIDDELL'S LINENS

The "Gold Medal" brand is known to every housekeeper whose trade is worth having. It means

ARTISTIC PATTERNS
AND SERVICEABLE QUALITY TO HER.

It means SURE SALES and HANDSOME PROFITS to you

WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED PRICE LIST

R. H. COSBIE
30 W. Wellington St. - TORONTO
IRISH LINEN AGENCY

Be Sure You Get The Best

Paton's Scotch Boot and Shoe Laces

"Beat All German Imitations"

COTTON, THREAD,
WOOL,
SILK,
LEATHER and PORPOISE HIDE.

See name on every box. Better value cannot be got. Send for Samples and Prices.

Geo. D. Ross & Co.

Montreal and Toronto

FANCY GOODS AND NOTIONS

A few years ago the notion department in the greater number of stores was given but a small part of the attention which it now receives. Its location was generally obscure, and the principles of display were applied to it in only a small degree. The customer asked for what she wanted and seldom purchased a thing because she saw it and had not previously contemplated getting it. To-day the notion stock of an up-to-date store is a thing of prominence, and rightly reckoned as one of the best percentage paying investments of the place. The notion stock that is kept prominently forward draws business of its own accord. Very often a number of sales are made to a customer who couldn't help seeing some articles that she wanted. All that the department contains is of such a nature that it must be so displayed that it will suggest itself to every customer passing by.

* * *

A decidedly good business has been done in belts during the past year—a condition that promises to continue during 1907. It is impossible to point to any one effect as being in the lead, as rarety is what is now sought for. Within certain limits the retailer will buy anything that strikes him as a good seller. Tinsel effects are again selling, silver at present predominating, and some very effective beltings are on the market of silver, with just a hint of color.

Gold is again coming into vogue in New York, and the latest idea there is the use of ribbon velvet as a trimming. Bead effects are showing for Spring, and are certainly holding their own. Leathers are good, and so are silk effects. Fancy elastics, galoons, and plaid and stripe beltings are shown in great variety.

It is too early to make any extended prediction regarding late Spring and Summer styles, but it is certain that embroidered wash belts will be big sellers.

Beads, and bead effects, beaded belts, vanity bags, etc., are being shown in big variety for the early trade. Coin purses, shopping bags, vanity bags, etc., of gilded chain-work, are among the new effects in bags for Spring. If it were possible combs are more than ever worn, and one of the leading fancy lines in the coming Spring will be fancy combs. Besides the popular Rhinestone settings, those with colored stones will be in high favor. There is some showing of the high Spanish comb, but the straight high band is the big favorite. Jet is, for the moment, much in vogue, perhaps more so in the form of beads and necklets than in combs. Bead necklets, pearls and coral, amethyst, amber, etc., are all big sellers, the style of neck dressing now in vogue requiring some finish of this kind.

The past year has been a most successful one for the sale of fancy goods, and nowhere has the increase been more apparent than in the sale of fancy combs. It may not be known generally in the trade that a fine line of combs now selling on the Canadian market is of home production. A few years ago there were only cheap lines produced here, but when tariff changes were made that favored the industry the higher grades were added. Trade has greatly increased during the past few years, owing to the great vogue for fancy combs, the general prosperity favoring the increased sale of the better lines.

A most popular line of combs has been amber colored, stone-set celluloid. The transparency of these combs, with the clustered brilliants, or Rhinestones, gives a very handsome effect. These stones are all carefully set by hand, thus obviating any complaint in regard to working loose and dropping out. The popularity of this class of comb last year is justifying the trade in carrying it for some time to come.

The metal trimmed Oriental comb, which was introduced early last season, has had a most successful year, especially the stone-trimmed effects, not only in single back combs, but also in sets. Orders for Spring are very large and there is a big demand for sets.

The jet-trimmed combs, which were introduced as a popular line last year, are still growing in favor, and of the plain and colored goods, the black polished, and the dull finished, are having the greatest run.

The trade is taking to sets put up in silk-lined boxes, as they make a most effective display.

Manufacturers are kept working full time, and complaint is heard that foreign orders come slowly to hand. This indicates the universal popularity of combs, and it is quite evident that the trade is anticipating the continuance of the brisk demand for some time to come.

Duty on Packing Cases

Dry Goods Men Interviewed Minister of Finance—Thought it Will be Removed.

Much dissatisfaction has been expressed at the placing of a duty on packing cases entering Canada. A delegation from the Montreal Dry Goods Association waited on the Minister of Finance. It was composed of President Wm. Agnew, Geo. B. Fraser, L. H. Gault, R. A. Brock and W. C. McLeish. Geo. B. Fraser, who acted as spokesman, pointed out the salient points of the question at issue, and to the satisfaction of the delegation, Mr. Fielding assured them that he was in sympathy with their contentions. The grocery and hardware trades were represented also.

It was pointed out that a case coming into Canada usually costs the importer thirteen shillings and sixpence, and when sold never realized more than fifty cents. The spokesman was asked by Mr. Fielding to make a written note of the arguments, and he promised to do all in his power to persuade his colleagues of the justice of the request.

It is the general impression that the request will be granted. It is felt that as the tariff on packing cases stands it gives satisfaction to no one.

NORTHWEST TRAVELERS.

The Northwest Commercial Travelers' Association elected the following officers: President, J. E. McRobie, (accl.); Vice-President, Geo. Wilson, (accl.); Treasurer, L. C. McIntyre, (accl.); Secretary, F. J. C. Cox (re-appointed); Directors, F. W. Adams, W. W. Bole, Geo. Barrett, C. Holden, A. S. Lock, T. A. Montgomery, F. H. Nesbitt, E. Nicholson, W. Stitt, E. L. Thomas, A. E. Wayte and D. J. Dyson.

MAKING IMPROVEMENTS.

The Chipman-Holton Knitting Company, Hamilton, are putting up a two-storey dye house, and expect shortly to install a modern bleaching plant. E. H. Walsh & Co. are the company's Toronto agents.

General Merchant to Railway Magnate

Twenty-five Years Ago William MacKenzie, President Canadian Northern Railway, Was a Village Store-keeper.

(From The Busy Man's Magazine)

Ten years ago an ordinary citizen of the Dominion, to-day, a national figure, twenty-five years ago, a country merchant, to-day president of a great transcontinental railway system, this in brief is the life story of William MacKenzie.

Projects enough to drive the ordinary man to the brink of insanity are fertilizing in the brain of William MacKenzie and, not alone are they fertilizing, but they are being brought to fruition with a rapidity which is positively startling. Without minimizing the share which D. D. Mann has had in the development of the numerous MacKenzie & Mann schemes, it is yet probably true that William MacKenzie has been the creative genius of the combination. It might not even be too far afield to characterize Mr. MacKenzie as the brains and Mr. Mann as the hand in the body corporate, one essential to the other and both working together harmoniously. At least this is the popular conception of this famous partnership.

William MacKenzie holds in his hands the threads of many a project in the field of transportation. Street railways in Mexico and Brazil, in Toronto and Winnipeg, claim his attention, railways in Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario and the Western Provinces, steamboat lines on the Great Lakes. Any one of these schemes would be enough to absorb the energies of the average man, yet thanks to a splendid organization, not only are existing lines efficiently run but roads under construction are being rapidly pushed to completion. In the space of ten years nearly 4,000 miles have been built—a feat unparalleled in the history of railroad construction.

Not so many years ago, (to be accurate about twenty-five), this same builder of railroads was to all outward appearances an ordinary country store-keeper, doing a general business in a little backwoods village, twenty-five miles up the Coboconk line from Lindsay. He used to come down to Toronto two or three times a year and personally buy supplies of groceries and dry goods to stock his store. His business was not marked by any particular brilliancy. Those jobbers, with whom he dealt at that time, remember just one peculiarity about him, which distinguished him from the average run of merchants and gave evidence of an inherent greatness. This was the fact that he never haggled over prices or tried to beat down the jobber. He was above the pettiness of the man, who is forever suspicious that he is being done. As he gave a fair deal, so he expected a fair deal from those with whom he dealt.

The country store-keeper stage was the third in the life of William MacKenzie. The first stage was, when as a boy, he attended the public school in his native village of Kirkfield. According to all accounts his school days were spent after the usual fashion of the Canadian boy and he imbibed enough knowledge to qualify him for the second stage—that of school teacher. But the role of village dominie was not much to his liking. The field was too restricted for his ambitions. The arena of business appealed to him and, giving up his school teaching, he formed a partnership with a Mr. Campbell and went into the general store business under the firm name of MacKenzie & Campbell. After a time Campbell sold out his interest and Mr. MacKenzie took his brother into partnership as MacKenzie Bros.

Even at this early day, Mr. MacKenzie was not content with his achievements. The restless dissatisfaction with present conditions, that characterizes all great men, was upon him and he was ready to branch out the moment an opportunity opened up. As leading business man of Kirkfield he was not slow in cornering a contract for supplying the local railway with cordwood. This gave him a hold on the railroad officials and soon after he was successful in contracting for building some stations on the line. Realizing the future greatness of the country and the consequent activity there would be in railroad construction, he decided to devote himself to this work. He accordingly sold out his business and definitely went in for railroad contracting, taking jobs on the Credit Valley and Midland Railway in succession.

WILLIAM MacKENZIE
The Canadian Railroad King.

Then came the Canadian Pacific Railway project and, along with many others, Mr. MacKenzie hastened to the West. His previous experience gave him some claim to consideration and he effected some successful strokes in the contracting line. Here he met Mr. Mann and, both being in the same work and realizing mutual capabilities, the pair joined hands. The firm built certain of the branches of the Canadian Pacific in the West and the short line of the same road through Maine. After an interval, associated with Mr. James Ross and Mr. H. C. Holt, of Montreal, MacKenzie & Mann built the roads from Regina to Prince Albert, from Calgary to Edmonton and from Calgary to Macleod.

Novelty Linens

We swing into 1907 with the most elaborate showing we ever had of high-grade Linens in New and attractive designs. Merchants can buy to better advantage from the obbing trade of Canada just now than from any other source. Careful buying, months in advance had the effect of discounting to a large extent the recent advances, and speaking for ourselves, our average selling price to-day is 15 per cent. below the market.

NISBET & AULD, TORONTO

Spring Dress Goods

MERCHANTS owe it to themselves to give careful consideration to this stock before placing their Spring orders. We carry a higher grade of Dress Goods than any house in the trade and are ready with all the wanted styles in —plain and fancy Homespuns

—striped and check Tweeds
—plain and fancy Worsteds
—shepherd checks in plain and overcheck effects
—plain Voiles, Lustres and Sicilians
—plain Venetians and Chiffon Broadcloths

The outlook for Spring is decidedly encouraging and buyers should anticipate the demand for better-grade goods. We emphasize quality in everything, and have ready the most attractive displays of really desirable dress goods, at prices that are well worth while.

The phenomenal success of our Dress Goods department tells better than anything else our standing with the trad .

NISBET & AULD, TORONTO

While working on these contracts, the partners made a trip through the Saskatchewan Valley and realizing the richness of the soil there, decided, when opportunity came, to build a road through the Valley on their own account. It chanced that in 1895, Mr. Mann discovered that the charter of the Lake Manitoba Railway and Canal Company, a projected road from Portage la Prairie through the Dauphin country, could be acquired, and, believing this to be the solution of their problem, the partners bought it. This was the beginning of the Canadian Northern System.

The story of the past ten years is familiar to all Canadians. It includes the construction of the Lake Manitoba Railway, its extension to Edmonton, the acquiring of the Great Northern, the construction of the main line from Port Arthur to Winnipeg, the purchase of roads in Nova Scotia and Quebec and the recent building of the James Bay Railway, now known as the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway.

Nor are the public unfamiliar with the plans for the immediate future, which are to bring about the linking together of the scattered pieces. Some projects are still hidden in the mind of William MacKenzie but those that have been brought to light are rapidly being put into execution.

Success, such as few men in Canada have won, has not spoiled William MacKenzie. He is as affable and approachable to-day, as pleasant to friends, as courteous to strangers, as he was twenty-five years ago, when selling sugar sticks to the children of Kirkfield or blankets to their mothers. Snobbishness, the affliction of many men who have only climbed one quarter the distance up the ladder of success, that he has scaled, is entirely foreign to his nature. The common every-day street cars of Toronto, with which indignant citizens find such frequent fault, are still good enough for him and often he will be found riding to town in these democratic conveyances, reading his morning paper and conversing with acquaintances like any ordinary man.

Necessarily his many and varied interests in all parts of the continent and in England, call him away from his home in Toronto frequently. But when he is in the city, no business man will be found to stick more closely to his work. It is no extraordinary sight to see him working away at his office in the Canadian Northern Building until long after office boys, stenographers and clerks have hurried away from the down-town sections of the city. Once an unwilling official, kept there after seven o'clock and in danger of being late for dinner, made a slight complaint and was met with the characteristic reply, "If you want to get along in this business, you'll have to do like me and get your meals whenever you get the chance." That shows the way William MacKenzie plays the game. He has been known to get through a dinner at the Windsor Hotel in Montreal in ten minutes.

Mr. MacKenzie has few diversions. Railroad construction, the linking up of a dozen sections of track, the planning of new roads, the solving of many transportation problems—these are the hobbies which interest him, the games on which he stakes his pleasure. He does not need the relaxation of the race-track, the golf course or the sporting field as an antidote to business worry. Plunging on a race fails to appeal to him and it is doubtful if he ever put up five dollars on a horse. But all this does not mean that he is so absorbed in business as to be unable to derive any enjoyment from the lighter things of life. On occasions he will take a hand in a game of cards or a game of billiards and play with a keenness and a skill that often bring him victory. In fact he puts into every game he plays, whether it be an intricate game on the field of railroad diplomacy or a knotty financial puzzle or merely a game of billiards with friends at home, the same determination and resource that has always been characteristic of him in everything he does.

During the last few years he has surrounded himself with a loyal staff of assistants and supporters, men whose names like that of Lash and Hanna carry weight throughout the land. From these higher officials, down to the clerks in the office—in fact, all the men, to whom he is personally known, he is zealously supported. They look up to him as something a little wiser and greater than other men and have unfailing faith in the ultimate success of all his plans. Towards them all, he shows himself considerate and friendly.

While it may be complained that Mr. MacKenzie has not played the role of public benefactor to any great extent, it must be said to his credit that he is not the man to curry popular favor in this manner. He believes in doing his good deeds in a quiet unobtrusive way, therein following the biblical mandate. His benefactions to his native village are limited only by the unwillingness of his old neighbors to accept them. There, he has converted his old store into a village club, where the men of the place can spend their evenings in comfort and enjoyment. He has also erected a new church in the village. To his parents he has shown himself a dutiful son, doing all that is in his power to make their declining years bright and happy.

The cause of education finds a warm friend in Mr. MacKenzie. Doubtless he remembers with kindly feelings the earlier years, when as a village schoolmaster, he endeavored to teach the younger generation of that day the rudiments of learning. At any rate, it is known that he has bestowed money on Trinity University and, not so long ago, it was through his unsought assistance that the experiments in connection with the discovery of radium, were carried out at Toronto University. That he is fond of literature, may be deduced from the splendid collection of books, which he has made and which is being added to constantly.

To his business associates, Mr. MacKenzie's one great characteristic is his tenacity. He pursues doggedly the purpose, which he has set before him, never faltering or swerving from the paths of action he has laid out. Had it not been for this determination and strength of purpose, the achievements of the past ten years would have been impossible. It is known that his early struggles to secure financial backing in the money markets of London were so disheartening, as to cause any other man to give up the fight. Those, who had an opportunity to watch him at that time recall his indomitable perseverance, as he rose from failure after failure until at length he secured his backing.

Then, too, it is known that in the early days of the Canadian Northern, immense pressure was brought to bear on the partners by the Grand Trunk Railway Company, to induce them to sell out. Even dogged Dan Mann, it is said, was on the point of capitulating, but William MacKenzie had made up his mind that he was going to build and own a transcontinental railroad and from this fixed purpose, nothing could turn him. To-day MacKenzie & Mann have got the pick of the western field and the Grand Trunk has been forced to the North.

Miss Hall, neckwear designer for Rlys D. Fairbairn, has just returned from New York. She reports that ladies' neckwear is a big feature there, and a good season is expected. Novelties are freely shown, she says, and are extra attractive. The newest thing is the touch of gilt.

DRY GOODS REVIEW

AND MEN'S FURNISHER

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE:

Canada, Great Britain, United States, Australia, South Africa and the West Indies - - $2 a year.
Other Countries, - - - - - - - - - $3 a year.
Single Copies, - - - - - - - - - 20 cents.
Invariably in advance.

DIRECTORS:

J. B. MACLEAN, Montreal, - - - - - - PRESIDENT
W. L. EDMONDS, Toronto, - - - - - - VICE-PRESIDENT
A. B. CASWELL, Montreal, - - - MANAGING DIRECTOR

CHIEF OFFICES:

CANADA—

MONTREAL, 232 McGill Street. Tel. Main 1255.
TORONTO, 10 Front Street East. Tel. Main 2701.
WINNIPEG, F. R. Munro - - 511 Union Bank Building Telephone 3726
VANCOUVER, - - - - - - - - - Geo. S. B. Perry
ST. JOHN, N.B., J. Hunter White - No. 3 Market Wharf

GREAT BRITAIN—

LONDON, ENG., J. M. McKim, European Manager, 88 Fleet St., E.C. Telephone, Central 12960.
MANCHESTER, H. S. Ashburner, - - - 92 Market Street

UNITED STATES—

CHICAGO, J. Roland Kay, - - - 1001 Teutonic Bldg.

FRANCE—

Paris - - - - - - Agence Havas, 8 Place de la Bourse

SWITZERLAND—

ZURICH - - - - - Lomis Wolf, Orell Fussli & Co.

EUROPEAN STAFF CORRESPONDENT:
MR. A. E. DACAM, Paris.

ADVERTISING RATES

Are based on $35 a page and will be furnished on application to Mr. A. B. Caswell or to the manager of the nearest office. The value of THE DRY GOODS REVIEW as an advertising medium is unquestioned. The character of the advertisements now in its columns, and the number of them, tell the whole story. Circulation considered, it is the cheapest trade newspaper to advertise in. Advertisements, to insure insertion in the issue of any month, should reach this office not later than the eighteenth of the month preceding.

Office of Publication, 10 Front Street East, Toronto

MONTREAL AND TORONTO, JANUARY, 1907.

NEW ADVERTISERS.

Anderson, Son & Co., Leicester, Eng.
Wm. Bartlett & Son, Toronto
Bank of Montreal, Montreal.
British American Import Co., Montreal.
A. Burritt & Co., Mitchell, Ont.
Campbell Shoe Co., Quebec, Que.
Canada Cloak Co., Ltd., Toronto.
M. Claman Waterproof Garment Co., Montreal.
Dancyger Safety Pin Ticket Co., Dayton, Ohio.
Dominion Oilcloth Co., Montreal.
Forsyth, John, & Co., Berlin, Ont.
Fownes Bros., & Co., Montreal.
Fred. Galibert, Montreal.
S. T. Greenleese & Sons, Montreal, Que.
Thomas May & Co., Ltd., Montreal.
Merchants Button Co., Waterloo, Ont.
Montreal Cotton Co., Montreal, Que.
Montreal Waterproof Clothing Co., Montreal.
Monarch Shirt Co., Rock Island, Que.
Moore Carpet Co., Sherbrooke, Que.
Newey Bros., Ltd., Birmington, Eng.
Tobin Tent & Awning Co., Ottawa, Ont.
Rock Island Overall Co., Rock Island.
E. H. Rosenthal, Montreal.
G. D. Ross & Co., Montreal.
J. Y. Shantz & Son Co., Ltd., Berlin, Ont.
Sanderson's, Limited, Toronto.
Wallace, Blake & Shouldice, Toronto.
Samuel Wener & Co., Montreal.

PARCEL POST LEGISLATION.

During the past couple of weeks The Review has informed every retailer in Canada carrying dry goods that a bill is to be introduced at the present session of the Dominion House providing for the enlargement of the parcel post system, and suggesting a way in which they may effectively oppose the measure. We urged that each one communicate at once with the local member of parliament denouncing the proposal, and stating that he would be expected to cast his vote against it. A large number of merchants have sent us copies of letters and cards which they have written. The announcement came from Ottawa just when Christmas activity was opening up, and retailers had their whole attention concentrated on business. The daily newspapers gave no great prominence to the matter, and as it would likely be overlooked in a great many cases, we considered it our duty to the trade to issue a special circular. From every quarter we have received abundant evidence that the importance of speedy action, along the line suggested, has been appreciated. It is to be hoped that, even in the heat of the holiday rush, no dry goods man has failed to impress upon the M.P. from his district the great capacity for harm that lies within the bill. There is not an individual business, from Halifax to Vancouver, that should not be vitally interested in mustering all available force in opposition to the measure. If there is unanimity in the efforts put forth success is assured.

The proposal includes provision for a C.O.D. system, whereby goods could be sent to any point and collection be made by the post office. It can easily be realized how this would work in favor of the retail catalogue houses, by obviating the necessity of sending the purchase price with every mail order.

Everyone knows that the mail order business done by the few large department stores is enormous, and that it has effected great injury to the small merchants throughout the length and breadth of the country. However, it is small compared with what would be done by them, and exclusive mail order houses that would spring up, if the Government undertook to facilitate it in the manner above outlined.

That the catalogue houses are behind the movement there is little doubt, and it must not be supposed that they would be satisfied to have the Government make a profit out of the delivery business. Of course, it will be argued that lower rates would do the most good to the greatest number of people, a thin disguise to the real object in view. The mail order people care nothing so long as their own ends are served. What they want is the extension of their operations at the expense of the national treasury.

Consumers are not asking for this change in the postal system and they do not need it. The country is better without it. Better far, in the interest of the national life, a thousand independent business men than one business man with a thousand or five thousand employes. The movement, if successful, means the pulling down of small institutions all over the Dominion to build up a few mammoth houses in the big cities. Surely the cities are draining the country too fast now. All that any local merchant asks is a fair chance, and he would certainly not be getting it under the provisions of this bill. He has it in his power to turn aside the blow which it aims at him. Let him do so, and quickly.

CRITICISMS OF THE NEW TARIFF.

The new tariff contains some features to which certain sections of the trade feel justified in objecting very strongly, and the general opinion is that several of the changes made serve no definite purpose and are wholly unnecesary and undesirable. One customs official describes the classification as a "brain racker," and importers declare that in some respects it is past their comprehension.

The duty on textile machinery has been reduced fifteen per cent. Speaking to The Review in this regard one large manufacturer said: "If it is intended for the benefit of existing textile industries, I am afraid that it will not be appreciated. At the present time the woolen industries are in need of all the assistance they can obtain from every source, but I cannot see of what value this will be to them. There are quite a few in the business who are running very close, from a financial standpoint. It will mean to many of these a serious matter, when their bankers state that they can only advance in proportion to the value of the plants, which will now have to be written down to accord with the value induced by the new tariff. I cannot but think that the the Government had some ulterior object in view when this change was made. I can only repeat that, from my point of view, the change was not asked for, not expected, and, furthermore, not wanted."

Then there is the duty on packages. Where the value is not included in the invoice cost of the goods which they contain, but is specified as a separate item, a general duty of twenty per cent. preferential, is charged. If the value is not set down separately, but is included in the cost of goods, the duty on the latter is reckoned on the lump sum. Formerly packages came in free We have yet to meet with any satisfying evidence that the change was warranted. It is a source of both annoyance and expense to importers, and the duty should, in The Review's opinion, be removed. Dealers in fancy dry goods feel it most severely. The nature of the merchandise which they bring in makes it necessary to use very strongly made cases, costing between $3 and $4. If sold these bring about fifty cents at the outside.

As predicted by The Review there is difficulty in defining just what white cotton laces embrace. On the face, Nottingham laces are indicated, but Plauen and Swiss laces may also be described in the same way. If these laces are admitted at twenty per cent. why should a lace that is practically the same, save that it is a cream or ecru, pay at the rate of thirty-five per cent. One importer told us that he had laces coming in and was at a loss to know how they would be classified. This section should be remodelled so that there can be no mistake as to its meaning.

We have heard a complaint against the raise, by fifteen per cent., in the duty on a certain fine grade of yarn which is used by two of the Canadian knitting mills. One of these had over $4,000 worth of the yarn en route when the change was made. The goods to be manufactured from it had already been ordered, and the firm stands to lose a substantial amount.

Silk manufacturers state that they have assurance of a revision granting them more favorable terms.

SOME NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS.

This is the period at which the merchant should take both a prospective and retrospective view of things. He has before him the mistakes of the past year, each one of which may be charged up to experience and turned to good account in the future. A general review of his business, from every standpoint, is in order. If he has not made a greater profit on the whole, or in any one department, than he did in 1905, he must determine the reason and attempt the application of a remedy. He should have a system whereby it is possible to tell, at the end of each month, just exactly how the business stands, then he need not wait till the end of the year to discover weak spots. Has he realized the value of good window display in drawing trade? If not, let him start the new year by giving this matter more attention. Is advertising space in the newspapers filled with solid readable matter calculated to bring people to the store, or is it mainly devoted to "hot air" and unconvincing arguments? It is important that publicity methods should measure up to a high standard. The extent of outside competition, possibilities for cash business, tendencies of the local market, etc., may be studied with profit. It may be that the notion department has been located in an obscure corner of the store, where it has little chance of showing the proper results. Give it a place at the entrance and see what it will do. Let nothing escape examination, from the largest to the smallest matter, and let every merchant start 1907 with the determination that his business shall grow very materially before another new year is ushered in.

RETAINING EXPERIENCED HELP.

In small towns the general idea among male clerks is that when they have received a certain amount of experience they will go away in search of larger opportunities. This applies to almost every line of business. They leave just at the time when they are most valuable to the merchant with whom their apprenticeship has been served and very often their places have to be filled by the promotion of less competent men. So numbers of small stores go on year after year acting as training schools for salesmen, and continually changing the personnel of their staffs. Such was the case, up till a couple of years ago, in a store located in a town of about two thousand population. It had two competitors, who had always claimed the larger share of the business, although the store in question was going ahead splendidly. Besides the two members of the firm three salesmen were employed, and at the time we speak of they had resolved to seek a larger field for their efforts. Instead, however, of allowing them to go, the firm organized a joint stock company and took them into the business. All three remained and worked with an energy that has brought big results. Ask a resident of the town which store appears to be doing the most prosperous trade and he is more than likely ,to mention this one. He may also comment on the excellence of the service which it gives. We were able to detect no peculiar circumstances that would contribute to the company's success ; it seemed due entirely to the fact that all members of its staff were enthusiastic in endeavoring to bring it to the fore.

Other merchnts may abstract from this a solution of the problem of retaining experienced help.

MERCHANTS AND COMMERCIAL MEN.

The traveling representative of the manufacturer and jobber is ubiquitous, and sometimes he claims that his reception by merchants is not as cordial as it should be. The merchant in defence, says that he would be able to do very little else if he gave any time to every commercial man who called upon him. He recognizes thoroughly the value of examining as many samples as possible, for the purpose of comparing prices and qualities, but is forced to draw the line somewhere.

There is one type of drummer who not only does a great deal of harm to himself, but excites a prejudice against his fellows. He's the man who is persistent in the wrong place. A good illustration of this point was given by a merchant who called upon The Review a few days ago. He was writing out an order in his private office, and had only about five minutes to catch the mail, when the door opened and in walked a commercial man, without even knocking. He was told that it would be impossible to talk to him just then, but he persisted. Very much annoyed, the merchant took him by the shoulders and pushed him outside. Fortunately there are few men of this class on the road.

On the other hand, there are times when travelers have a right to expect a little more consideration than they get. We met the representative of a Toronto house in an Ontario city one day, where he had gone in response to a special request from one of the merchants. This was the only call that he had to make there, and he naturally expected to get through in the morning, so that he could leave on the first afternoon train. He arrived about 9 a.m., and it was about 4 p.m. before he was given an opportunity to show his samples. Now we have reason to know that the merchant was not busy in the meantime. His reason for acting as he did we do not know, but, thoughtlessly or otherwise, he wasted a half day of the traveler's valuable time.

MANY SELL ON CASH BASIS.

It is significant that out of a large number of merchants who replied to The Review's query regarding the most successful ideas they had ever adopted, about fifty per cent. cited their change from credit to cash basis of doing business. None of them mentioned any particular difficulties that they encountered in so doing. As a matter of fact, we have intimate knowledge of cases where customers were well pleased with the announcement of the new policy, which, it was promised, would enable merchants to quote lower prices on goods. Of course, there are many stores which do not advertise that they sell only for cash, and yet extend credit. One gives a discount of five per cent. off every cash purchase, and finds the plan very satisfactory.

The retailer who knows that he is getting lots of trade, and that for every piece of goods sold he has the cash in his till, is the man of fewest worries. He is able to take all discounts, and, consequently, offer close prices. He has no bother about over-due bills or bad accounts, and is ready for any competition that may arise.

Everywhere it is found that sonsumers are more willing than ever to pay on the spot. While every merchant cannot sell entirely for cash, there is no one who will find it impossible to watch his credits so closely that loss in this respect will be reduced to a very small amount.

A PROMISE FULFILLED.

We promised that our January issue would be the best special number in the history of The Review. We are satisfied that it is. All of the special articles, and department matter, have been prepared with the idea of reflecting the great improvement of conditions surrounding the trade during 1906, and of course, we have dealt fully with materials and styles for 1907, so far as it is possible to do so at the present time. A good deal of space has been devoted to window and interior display, business management, good advertising talks, show card writing, dry goods men and their methods, store sytems, etc. Altogether we are proud of the number, and we trust our readers will grant that the feeling is justified. During 1906 a number of improvements have been made in The Review, and it may be expected that 1907 will see still more.

We hope that the New Year may hold a large measure of prosperity and happiness for every Canadian Dry Goods man.

MEETING MAIL ORDER COMPETITION

There is no retailer who need be afraid of mail order competition if he is the right kind of a merchant. As one dry goods man said to us a short time ago, "Anyone who lies down in the face of it deserves all that he gets." On pages 60 and 61 we have expressed our views on this matter pretty fully, and believe that we offer the true solution of the problem which confronts so many small retailers. Among other things we advise that they treat catalogue business as legitimate competition, that they make full use of the natural advantages, employ more descriptive advertising, and keep larger assortments and smaller amounts of each, find out on what lines they are losing most trade and make an energetic bid for it, and generally make buying at home more attractive than it now is. In quoting favorable prices, buying as far as possible for cash will help a great deal. In many cases it is advisable to borrow the money from the bank.

Department stores take great pains to keep the amount of their receipts from mail orders a secret. If given out it would startle every merchant in the country. We know that it is immense, and that it is growing very rapidly. The increase is mainly in the smaller centres and rural districts; most of the larger centres are pursuing a progressive policy that is keeping more trade at home every year. We hope to see a general and determined effort along the lines that we have set down, wherever catalogue houses are cutting heavily into the business of local merchants.

Another point that might be touched on is this: Customers should be impressed with the fact that the home stores are always ready to send for articles which they do not keep in stock.

ADDING NEW DEPARTMENTS.

In laying plans for 1907 numbers of merchants may find that they can with very material advantage extend their business by adding new departments. The nature of these additions will depend mainly upon the size of the communities in which they are located, and the manner in which the lines that they have in mind are being handled at the present time. Perhaps it is a small town where trade on certain classes of goods is not sufficiently large to induce the establishment of exclusive stores, and those now catering to this trade are doing so in such a way that many purchases are being made at outside points. If the lines can be readily adapted to a dry goods store, an opportunity presents itself that should be considered.

Take footwear, for instance. We know of places where a smart department in a dry goods store should be successful—a ladies' department, at any rate. Even in some of the larger centres, where exclusive stores are conducted, there seem to be good openings for the latter. Several instances of where boots and shoes have been found a profitable venture by dry goods merchants are cited in a special article in the news section of this issue.

Some merchants who have not heretofore handled clothing may see a field for paying business in this line, but they should bear in mind that, to get anything near the best results, it must be sold in a separate division from dry goods. Just now ready-to-wear clothing is receiving wider patronage than ever before, due to the better quality that is being manufactured. If dealers handling it have shown no disposition to grasp the improved conditions, but still cling to the poorer grades, against which the good class of trade has a very decided prejudice, there probably is room for someone to step in and do well.

Then there is fancy china. Several of the smaller dry goods stores in Toronto stocked this line some time ago, and have found sales quite satisfactory, in spite of the fact that they have to compete with the big department and specialty houses.

The Review's object here is to induce a train of thought in every retailer's mind which shall lead him to a thorough analysis of the local situation, so that if there is a chance for the extension of his operations he will not overlook it. Though he may conclude that it would be inadvisable to add any new departments, he is more than likely to find something to encourage the strengthening of some that he already carries.

There is one line that should, in most cases, be left alone; that is groceries. Where there are a number of specialty establishments catering to this trade, the dry goods man with the department store idea should keep clear. One instance comes to mind of a successful business being greatly reduced simply because the opposite course was taken. The proprietor acknowledged this to The Review. General dry goods, men's wear, and boots, and shoes were handled at first, and the undertaking looked prosperous. Then groceries were put in, and not only did the department fall through, it damaged the other sections very considerably. This was in a good-sized place where specialty stores are numerous, and, as would be expected, they worked hard to oust the new competition. They refused to patronize the store for anything, and influenced others to do the same. All departments suffered in consequence.

By the addition of new departments a merchant widens the range of his returns, generally within his premises, and without any great increase in the cost of doing business. Then it must be considered that they shoulder their share of general expenses, and lighten the load of other departments.

THE GREATEST YEAR YET.

"The ——— Company is doing the largest business in its history."

The name of almost any concern in Canada could quite truthfully be inserted in the blank space. There is not a retail dry goods man using up-to-date methods to whom it may not be applied. Goodness knows there has been opportunity enough, and the merchant who has failed to make good can blame only himself. The conditions that prevailed during the past year may be gauged from the fact that in no line did advanced prices interfere with business. People were never more prosperous, and the great demand was for better class goods. Little fault could be found with the weather at any season, and winter opened up in such a way as to make Christmas trade a record-breaker.

Established 1832

Cable Address:
"LAW," Bradford

SRPING 1907

"Lawrus" Fabrics.

(Registered)

MOHAIRS

Unique Specialite
Mohair De Soie

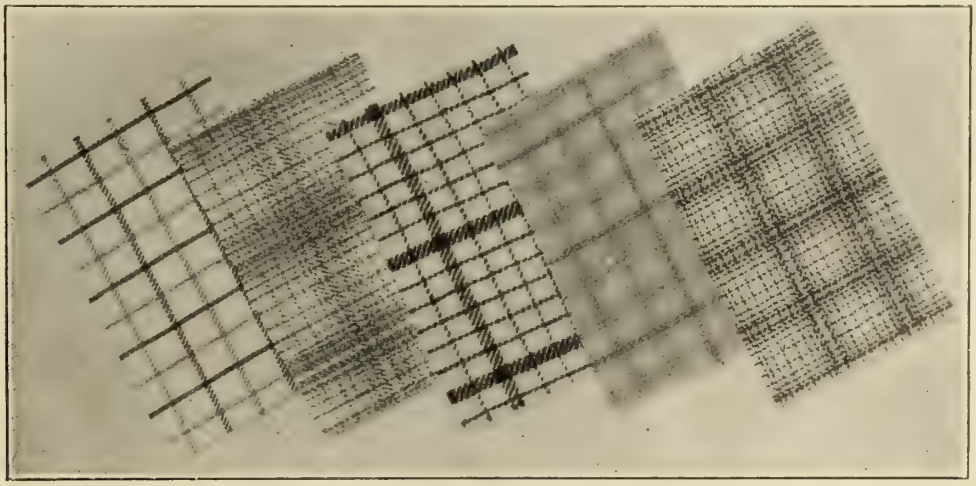
Of Wonderful Texture and Exceptional Brilliancy

Rainproof Goods
Latest Productions
Brilliantine Suitings
At Popular Prices

Law, Russell & Co.

Converters of Bradford Goods LIMITED

BRADFORD AND LONDON



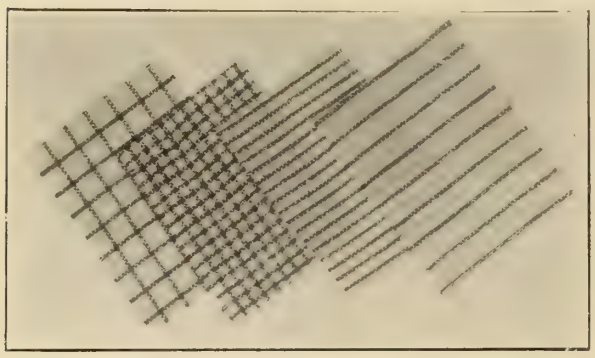
General Prospects

The dress department has always been considered the premier department in the store, and the one by which the general standing of a house might best be judged. When all is well with the trade, and times are good, it is here that improvement first shows, and not only does the increase come from a yardage standpoint, but, what is more beneficial financially, the average price per yard shows a decided increase. Measured by this standard, the present prosperity of the country must be great, for where, a few years back, 50c. and 75c. goods were the leading sellers, now the leading prices are, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and even $2.00. Nor are higher priced fabrics difficult to obtain, and $3.00, $4.00 and even $6.00 materials are by no means confined solely to the shelves of the leading city stores.

Notwithstanding the changes of fashion, which always must be taken into consideration when writing of dress fabrics, the importations of all our leading textiles show an immense increase, not only in the manufactured fabrics alone, but also in those free importations, that may be classed as partly finished or raw materials. Therefore the home mills are not as flourishing as could be wished.

Not only has the standard of price been raised in the dress trade, but the standard of taste also, and the trend of buying is all in favor of more beautiful and artistic shades, colors, and fabrics. Canadian women are beginning to achieve a reputation for being exceptionally well gowned and turned out; and this is due, I believe, in no small measure, to the educative value of the interior and window displays made by our leading city and town stores. No doubt there is still room for improvement in this respect, in many quarters, but in the past few years the big proportion of the trade has been rapidly falling into line.

Nineteen hundred and six has broken all previous records, and is at present the most brilliant year, from a financial standpoint, that Canada has ever seen, but there is every reasonable prospect, that the past year's record will fade before that of the year which is just opening up.



Check Effects in Novelty Woolens
Shown by Brophy-Cains, Montreal

Wide Variety the Feature

Spring Goods Arriving—Repeats Slow—A Mixed Season Ahead.

The wide variety that is the dominating feature in the trade at the present time extends also to the dress department, and with, perhaps, the exception of chiffon broadcloth, it would be difficult to say either just what is the leading fabric or color. The demand is for novelty, and there never was a season where the range of materials and colors selling was so big, and the buying for the season approaching is not narrowing down, as it so often does, to any one fabric or color. This has been the marked feature of the season now closing. Broadcloths have kept up their promising opening, and the leading shades have moved briskly. Blacks have done, and are still doing, a tremendous business. Looking at the orders already booked it is found that dark reds are good, navies good, browns fair, and bottle green very good. The stock has been very low lately, but the deliveries are beginning to come in now. One merchant cabled for repeats when he received his orders, but in reply was informed that deliveries could not be had until late in April. This was impracticable, as at that late date the goods would be useless. Wool voiles, in cream and white, particularly are doing good business for Spring, and light-weight poplins are doing better than was anticipated in the earlier part of the season. Piece dyed fabrics, in dark reds have so far only had a fair sale, and have caused a little disappointment. Panamas are doing remarkably well and have come up to all expectations. Lustres in plain colors are meeting with a better demand, creams, navies, and greys being the favorites in order named. Orders for Spring delivery are found to be heavy on wool cloths, which are generally regarded with favor as the goods for Spring. The cutting-up trade has been complaining about slow deliveries, but this is, in a great measure, due to their having delayed the placing of orders.

Black and White Effects in Fancy Voiles
Shown by Brophy-Cains, Montreal.

All woolen cloths showing subdued checks have sold remarkably well, especially the light grounds. There is some feeling that the checks have been overdone and that some heavy buyers will find that they have over-estimated the demand. Speaking of the most likely pattern to supplant the check and plaid effects, a prominent buyer informed The Review that his next trip to Europe would be one of speculation. There is no color or no pattern that has yet been named as the leader for late Spring, and even in Europe there is a distinct inclination towards a mixed season. Hair line stripes which were spoken of a short time ago are dead at present, and until buyers return about April it will not be known what the market will contain. Suitings of homespun effects are still doing a good business, and those with checks are being repeated often.

The Color Tendency

Fashion Favors Dark Shades or Soft Pastels—Pale Blue a Big Seller.

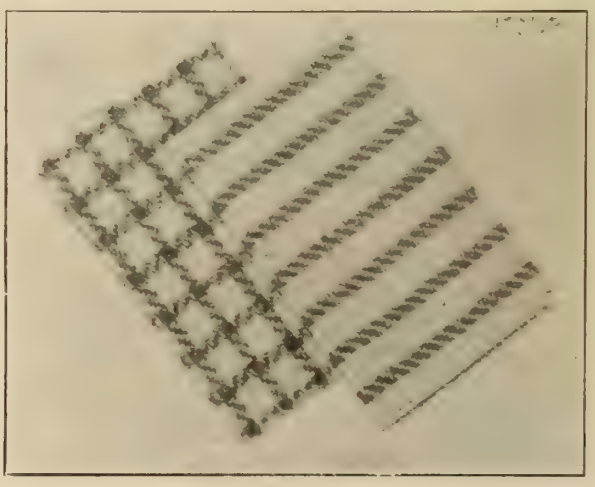
The color tendency for Spring, particularly in the more exclusive trade, is rather remarkable, for there is a decided leaning towards dark shades. On the other hand, when dark color effects are not bought, cream and the softest of pastel tones are taken. Pale blue is in high favor at the present moment, and buyers this Christmas have had extreme difficulty in keeping stocks up in this color, particularly at popular prices.

Grey is good at both ends of the trade, the exclusive trade taking plain materials in soft tones, and the popular trade buying largely of mixed greys in plaids, etc.

There is a feeling for tan and mode shades developing that will possibly influence the season as it advances, and this interest may be said to include very light tans, champagne and some yellowish shades. Yellow has been much worn for some time back in Paris, and has been taken up for evening and reception on this side of the water. It was decidedly in evidence at the New York Horse Show.

Silks and Velvets

Fancy Silks for Spring — Velvets for the Early Trade.



It is rather early yet to say just what is going to be the course of the Summer silk season, but there is a considerable assortment of fancy silks showing, and the highly attractive nature of these silks, combined with the revival that is predicted in the shirt waist suit, and also the silk possibilities contained in the jumper suits and waists, ought to assure a good silk season.

The trade does not lose interest in pile fabrics, and for the early Spring chiffon velveteens are decidedly good, and silk velvets for trimming also are safe to be in big demand. Though fancies are shown, plain velvets are decidedly the best sellers. Brown, navy and green are the best colors in velveteens.

Wash Dress Goods

Sheer White Fabrics Still Leading—Repeats Are Not Assured.

Waist manufacturers have, during the past month, ordered largely on sheer white fabrics, but their orders for

Grey and White Plaid and Stripe Tweeds
Shown by Brophy-Cains, Montreal.

waists of this material are so large that they now regret having ordered so sparingly when they had a chance to get deliveries at an earlier date. It is being evidenced more and more every day that in this line there is an insufficient supply to meet the enormous demand. Many jobbers have sold away ahead of their stock that is now beginning to arrive, and it is expected that later deliveries will be slower; in fact, it is thought that it is impossible to get deliveries in proper time. Other houses have been more fortunate in having taken no chances when a big season was assured, and ordered more heavily on this line. Recent developments show a decided change in favor of sheer colors, especially of pinks and light blues. This, it is contended by many, is due to a scarcity of whites, but it is more than probable that the purchasing of colors is done, more for the sake of variety, and in no way means that the whites are falling into sudden disfavor. The lines selling best are the 25c first and the 15c. line second, and the 35c. line is moving better than was expected, and it is thought that this stock is safe for a later date. The lower grades are inclined to soar upwards, and as quality is the first thing sought at present, the high prices will be taken in preference to the cheaper lines when stock is more scarce.

Portrait Fel . WALKING SUIT: SKIRTOF BLUE AND BLACK PLAID; SHORT COAT OF BLACK MOIRE; BLACK SAILOR TRIMMED WITH VELVET AND BLUE GRAPES. Creation Maison Drecoll.

More muslins are being sold than ever before. They started out better than was expected, but now they are selling very rapidly, and before the month of April many developments are expected in some of the colors. Even in the early months of the sample season many orders were placed without sample, and even now repeat orders come in for immediate delivery. The demand for colored dress muslins is extraordinary at this season of the year, and from many retail centres is heard constant complaint of the difficulty in keeping them in stock.

The silk and cotton mixtures have been improving lately. The mercerized fabrics are moving briskly, and are being used extensively for the manufacture of popular priced waists, whites and greys holding the lead in colors. Many of the designs are exceptionally good, and of highly artistic finish, the spots and figures among these, and brocades being very popular, and repeats are frequent.

Persian and Victoria lawns for ladies' and children's wear are proving to be exceptionally good property. The sheer finished lawns this year are of a greatly improved quality, and are apparently being popularized by the dealers to a great extent. In the fancies the raised Swiss figures are considered slow at present, but the jobbers carrying large stocks of the line think that ere April is passed the demand will be brisk. It is only right to believe so, for with scarcity of whites on other lines, and the demand so strong and steady, there should be a call for every line of white.

There is still some doubt as to the fancy lines of linens. With prices so high there is a feeling that the only safe stock is the plain colors, excepting, perhaps, black and white checks, and woven colored checks and embroidered linens.

The wash goods market for Spring trade is, so far, characterized by a healthy demand for the best of all lines, and active ordering of the lines that are voted as sure. From the present indications of the unusually active market a scarcity of whites seems inevitable and the prudent merchant will take the advice we give to stock well at the earliest possible date.

REFUSED EATON'S ADVERTISING.

In the December issue we referred to the attempt of The T. Eaton Company to contract for advertising space in local newspapers throughout Ontario. Publishers in every quarter have refused to accept the advertising, and in doing so have consulted their own best interests.

Montreal's Expansion

Wholesale Dry Goods Houses Extending Their Premises —Many Firms After Larger Quarters.

In Montreal, at the present time, the prosperity of the country is manifested by the many new buildings in the course of construction, which are to be occupied by wholesale dry goods firms. With the growth of the country, the dry goods business has kept up so steady and enterprising a pace that they have outgrown their present premises. More space and facilities are now required to adequately handle larger stocks, which the increased volume of business demands. The buildings are of the most modern style of architecture and are built of solid stone. They are substantial and practical looking buildings and are being built with a view to solidity, convenience and commodity, and, as well, they will be ornaments to the business section of the city.

It will be remembered that after Greenshields Ltd. were burnt out some years ago, they immediately erected a building on the old site, Victoria Square, which was considered the most magnificent warehouse in Montreal. This warehouse is much too small and at present they have in the course of construction an extension, fronting on Craig St., which, when completed, will give them a little more than double their present space. With the two buildings together the company will have one of the most modern warehouses in America.

McIntyre, Sons & Co., Ltd., are building an extension to their present premises on Victoria Square, which when completed will more than double their floor spare.

The W. R. Brock Co., Ltd., as stated previously, are again to occupy the building on the corner of St. Helen St. and Notre Dame St., when it is completed. Two storeys are being added and it is being altered in many ways. When completed it will be an up-to-date warehouse in every respect. Mark Fisher & Sons are erecting a ten storey building on the southwest corner of Victoria Square and Craig St., which promises to be one of the finest buildings in Montreal. Hodgson Sumner & Co., Ltd., have extended their present premises as far as St. Sulpice St. on St. Paul St. Henry Morgan & Co., Ltd., besides building a large factory on Beaver Hall Hill, are contemplating the extension of their present large store on St. Catherines St. Besides these buildings, many of the large houses of the city are looking about for more commodious premises. Brophy-Cains, Ltd., are to occupy the building at present occupied by Mark Fisher & Sons. Large warehouses which are to be vacated on the 1st of May 1907, are already bespoken in many instances. The success of business during the past few years, and the prospects for its continuance, justify the large and small firms in making ample preparation for bigger business, so that their customers will be assured of every attention.

JOHN KAY, COMPANY, LIMITED.

An Ontario charter has been granted to John Kay Company, Limited, Toronto, with a share capital of $1,000,000, divided into ten thousand shares. The incorporators were Watson T. Bradshaw and Douglas K. Ridout, merchants; Wilson Fenton, accountant; George Kappele, barrister-at-law, and Robert Dixon, manager, all of Toronto. The company is empowered to acquire the business of John Kay, Son & Company; to manufacture, buy, sell and otherwise deal in carpets, curtains, furniture, fittings, furnishings, fixtures and decorations for houses, stores, offices, etc.

Canadian Goods for Canadian People

Harris Homespuns

HARRIS & COMPANY, Limited

ROCKWOOD, ONT.

SPECIALIZATION

is the keynote of success nowadays.

¶ Why should you have to entrust your orders for Braids, Trimmings, Laces, etc., with a house carrying general dry goods ?

¶ It stands to reason you will get faster service if you entrust the orders with a Braids and Trimmings specialty house.

That's Just What We Are

THE LACES & BRAIDS MFG. COMPANY

TORONTO JUNCTION, ONT.

Buyers of Millinery Goods

WE ARE
SOLE MANUFACTURERS
OF THE
"ORB" BRAND HATS

The "ORB" straw factory at Luton is THE LARGEST IN THE WORLD.

In Staple and Fancy Lines we show the best of everything at prices that are sure to interest Canadian buyers.

SAMPLES SHIPPED to the retail trade on supplying usual trade references, description and quality of goods open for.

Special Discount of 15 per cent. allowed off samples.

Will find it to their advantage to make our acquaintance and see what we are offering in

Millinery, Flowers, Feathers
Ribbons, Velvets, Ornaments

We specialize in

MEN'S and BOYS' STRAW HATS
BOYS' JACK TARS
and LADIES' PARIS FASHIONS
in Straws, etc.

VYSE, SONS & CO.
LIMITED

76 Wood St., LONDON, ENG.
LUTON, PARIS AND BRUSSELS

THOMAS MAY & CO.
Limited

. . . . IMPORTERS OF . . . .

RIBBONS, LACES, DRESS TRIMMINGS
LADIES' NECKWEAR, ETC.

FULL STOCK OF RIBBONS ALWAYS ON HAND

TEMPORARY PREMISES

16 Lamoine St., Montreal

The Canadian Millinery Review

The outlook is exceedingly bright for spring millinery. The trade has had two good seasons—the Spring and Fall of 1906. The Fall season just closing has been a record one, and trade has kept up very late. Prices have been high, but this fact seems not to have made any material difference; the people had the money and they wanted the best. The scarcity of the right goods, and the liberal buying, has kept stocks clean, and less price cutting has been resorted to than usual. Millinery is a stock that always feels the benefit of good times, and the present is no exception. The importing houses that, a year ago, were complaining that their new warehouses had been built too big, are now at their wits end to know where to store their goods. There is a big expansion in business, and the millinery trade is getting its full share.

The Syndicate Card

Soft Pastel Shades Indicated for Spring—Some of the Ranges.

The new syndicate card indicates a complete revolution in millinery colors. For the Fall, dull, rich shades have been used, but the colorings on the new card are almost all in soft light tones that most forcibly suggest the coming season. Pastel colorings rule, and there are a number of interesting new shades. Pink and blue are represented by some lovely tones, and the first six shades upon the card are a range of pinks. These begin with a soft creamy shade that runs through gentle gradations into a soft terra cotta. These are all light and rich in tone. The first set of blues is in a soft greyish tone, something after the Copenhagen order. They run from a very pale shade to a medium Alice shade. The other blues are three electric tones, and three soft moonlight blues. The blue shades are very attractive and promise to be very prominent in Spring millinery. A set that has special prominence, from the fact that yellow was so much worn at the New York Horse Show, is that beginning with Tuscan, and running through maize and the stronger yellow down to old gold. Champagnes are, as usual, included, though the name for them is a new one. This year they are to be known as the twine shades. Green is represented by a set of yellowish tones, that shade almost from white to a light olive. There is a lovely group of lavender shades and also three rich purple tones, and also another good range of pinks, running from coral to a light geranium color. Greys and browns are well represented, and there is a good set of biege and castor shades.

Higher Prices for Spring

Higher Prices and Poor Deliveries the Rule in Millinery Goods—Heavy Advance Buying.

Advancing prices and poor deliveries apply to the majority of millinery fabrics. Malines and chiffons, etc., show a big advance over last year, ruling on the average fifty per cent. higher, and not only are advances asked, but repeats are exceedingly difficult to place, particularly when anything like an early date is wanted. The same applies to all velvets, and the manufacturers will make little or no concession for block orders; in fact, in some instances, they will not accept them.

An Extreme Style in a Picture Hat, Showing Some of the New Tendencies.

The straw department is facing the same conditions, as the trade has taken a sharp turn, and the manufacturers of sewn hats find it difficult to meet the demands made upon them. It is so long since pressed goods were of any moment, and the change came so unexpectedly, that the makers are not equipped for turning out large quantities. The machinery could easily be obtained, but the training of operators is a work of time. In the pressed goods the demand this season is falling largely upon chips, consequently the supply is not equal to the demand, and prices are high and advancing. Shapes are very varied, but there are some that stand definitely out. The large picture flops that are now being worn in velvet and felt, are being reproduced in chips and other fine straws. Quite a number of turban styles are shown, and sailor shapes, particularly of the mushroom order will be worn. There is another type that is selling well, and that is the sailor shape that has a narrow front and a long brim at the back. This long brim effect and the high flare at the right are features of the new hats.

A New Turban Shape.

It is a little too early to speak with authority as to trimmings, but flowers are sure—the big rose, at any rate, at the beginning of the season. Maline will be freely used, and feathers, ostrich, paradise, marabout, etc., with wings and birds for street hats.

The Review is giving this month three Paris illustrations showing the latest French ideas in millinery. Some very large hats of the Gainsborough and mushroom order are worn there, and these are loaded with long, handsome ostrich and paradise plumes, with often a single large rose placed a little to the left side of the front. These are either turbans or large drooping flops of velvet or felt, and are trimmed with fancy ribbons, flowers, maline, tinsel effects and a touch of fur. Either large plumes of ostrich or paradise, or large roses are used on these hats. Crowns of fluted maline and large butterfly bows of that soft material are often used. As a matter of fact, every hat is trimmed with maline.

Gold and silver in the shape of gauzes, nets and galoons, have come into sudden prominence. In New York large roses made of gold and silver gauze and gold and silver grapes are much used, and entire toques are made of them, with plumes of ostrich, vulture, paradise or marabout. Some eccentric bandeaux effects are beginning to make their appearance, and it is more than hinted that there will be further developments in the coming Spring. Hats are set at all angles and this is one of the secrets of the wide variety seen, for the poise of the hat makes a wide difference in the appearance of a shape.

Paris has taken to the small theatre hat, which, by the way, has in many cases no crown, but consists of a foundation of wire, concealed by velvet and tulle and supporting trimmings of flowers, feathers, gold and silver gauze, etc. Though this fashion has not arrived, it has paved the way for a more extended wearing of ornaments in the hair.

These take the form of pretty half-wreaths or bandeaux of maline velvet and flowers, further embelished with marabout and paradise for the older women. Milliners could safely utilize this fashion to get rid of short ends of ribbon, velvet, etc., and at least a portion of a prominent show case should be requisitioned for these novelties.

Mushroom Sailor with Paradise Plume

Tea Hats and Hair Ornaments

Tea and Theatre Hats in White, Pale Blue and Pink—Increasing Use for Hair Ornaments.

The city stores are again making a feature of tea hats in soft pale tones, in white, pale blue and pale pink.

Montreal Dry Goods Association

Report for 1906 Satisfactory—Association Was Very Active During the Past Year.

The seventeenth annual report of the Montreal Wholesale Dry Goods Association was read at the annual meeting held in the Board of Trade Building, Montreal, on Wednesday, Dec. 19, 1906. It was with pleasure that the President referred to the large and enthusiastic meetings held throughout the year. They indicated a growing interest in the work of the association, and its influence was more than ever appreciated.

The various questions which had been discussed throughout the year were reviewed, the reports being satisfactory to all. In pursuance of the request of the members, the Provincial Treasurer had been appealed to in regard to the tax on non-resident travelers. The principles of the law were condemned and the repeal of the tax was vigorously advocated. With regard to this, the recent re-assuring statement of Premier Gouin that the tax will be abolished, is most welcome news to the association.

Not only in this direction has the association made its influence felt, but in regard to customs matters it has been most active. A delegation visited Ottawa and interviewed Mr. Fielding, in the absence of Mr. Patterson, Minister of Customs, who was indisposed. Several matters were discussed and the Minister was favorably impressed with the contentions of the delegates, and promised his best efforts to readjust the points at issue to the satisfaction of all. The restoration of the full British preference on certain woolen dress goods was advocated. Fabrics of cotton, flax, whether bleached, unbleached or dyed, was also discussed with the Minister of Finance, and his consideration was promised to the delegates.

WM. AGNEW
President Montreal Dry Goods Association.

Another important question discussed by the association was the reduction of cash discounts, and the limiting of payment of accounts to reasonable periods. This question has engaged the attention of the association for some time, and a basis of payment and terms has been promulgated throughout the limits of the association, and the adoption of a uniform rate has been advocated. It is the hope of the members that this vexed question will soon be settled satisfactorily. The enforcement, by newspapers and certain periodicals, of clauses in their advertising contracts, which enabled them to hold insolvent estates responsible for unused space, was disapproved by the association. The Board of Trade will be asked to promote legislation in this regard. The council of the board made representations to the Attorney General of Quebec in February last, but as the session was near its close, the question was not considered. It will be brought up again at the coming session.

Altogether, the year has been a most active one for the association. Every member has been energetic in making its work effective.

The officers of 1906 were re-elected, as follows: President, Wm. Agnew; Vice-President, R. A. Brock; Treasurer, R. Henderson; Directors, Thos. Brophy, G. R. Martin, R. W. McDougall and R. N. Smythe.

FRANCOIS & CO.

Also at:
Paris
Lyons
New York

92 Wood Street,
London, E.C.

High-Class
French and English
Millinery

Novelties
in Flowers and Feathers
Straw Shapes
Materials, Etc.

C.T.M.B.S. OFFICERS.

At the annual nomination meeting of the Commercial Travelers' Mutual Benefit Society in Toronto the officers elected by acclamation were: President, T. R. Wickett; Vice-President, Jos. Oliver; Treasurer, H. Goodman. There are seven nominations for three three-year terms on the Board of Trustees: R. G. Hector, John Gibson, C. T. Parsons, E. M. Burke, T. F. Corey, J. H. Morin and C. A. Bernard. Another vacancy is for a two year term, owing to the resignation of Jas. Turpin, and those nominated are H. L. Willmott, R. Maxwell, D. R. Hewley, and R. R. Davis. The trustees from outside towns were all elected by acclamation. The annual general meeting will be held January 26.

NEW YORK FASHION FACTS

Mid-Winter Styles
in Woman's Wear.

The wonderful success of the mushroom hat is a conspicuous feature of the present day millinery. Another important feature is the Tam O'Shanter crown, which, when mounted on either a mushroom or straight brim, has caught the fancy of many. The majority of dress hats are heavy in effect. Heavy materials such as velvets, big roses, grapes and feathers are heaped on the hats lavishly, and not infrequently the whole is veiled, with dotted net or Chantilly lace. All of which goes to prove that the American woman loves a large hat, and that no matter how much small hats may be favored in Paris and forced here, they are at the best only a secondary consideration. It is easy enough for fashion to decree that hats are to be small, but quite a different matter to bring about that condition. The picture hat shades the face becomingly, and is altogether too becoming to be entirely ousted. Small hats are, of course, for many purposes, indispensible, but it is the large, and, this season, extremely large hat which is the selection when one can choose between them.

Take for example the hats shown. Both are large and yet the black one is considered absolutely au fait for wear with the most severe tailormade.

Very soon now ones thoughts will be directed springwards by the temptingly lovely clothes displayed in the smart shops for the fortunate ones who can journey southward and bask in the warm southern sun, while we of the North are battling with winter. So far there has certainly been no cause for complaint; the weather for the most part has been ideal, unless by ideal one means snow and ice, and while in a way such things make ideal winter weather, New Yorkers have a different ideal and plenty of excuse for not welcoming snow with delight. The mildness of the weather does not prevent the most lavish use of furs, and at the time of writing fur hats, coats and accessories are the rage, and, of course, velvets and rich clothes which are the most elegant of all winter fabrics.

Among the most conspicuous materials of the season are the checker-board designs, which are especially to the fore in velvets. The checks are fully an inch square and as two distinctly different colors are usually combined, the result is very striking. Street costumes are developed in this material, the velvet being used for the skirt and sometimes the sleeves, and a plain material for the jacket. A stunning gown on this order was in bottle green and black check velvet, a Directoire coat being of cloth in the same shade of green. Large cut steel buttons were introduced on the jacket, and the skirt was a circular model and cleared the ground.

A handsome brocade was a large check of satin and satin in monotone effect.

Among the imported materials for dresses for all occasions, coin dots are a conspicuous design. They are richest, perhaps, when of the same shade as the body of the material, although among the lighter fabrics for evening wear, such, for example, as chiffon or silk, a pasted spot of velvet of a deeper shade is effective.

The trend seems to be for fancy materials: these showing plaids, stripes, figures or coin dots are various in effect, according to the manner of their execution and color schemes.

A novelty is a dress of wine broad-cloth with a coin spot of velvet. There are also cloths and velvets with shadow spots, these being of rather large size.

An extremely effective white chiffon had coin spots of orange velvet in sombre effect. This material was made into a lovely Empire dinner frock, draped over white satin and trimmed around the square, filled-in neck, with French knots done in black on some handsome lace motifs. Knots of black velvet ribbon gave a most desirable note of contrast.

It is quite notable that yellows and salmon shades are much in evidence. These shades are at their best under artificial light, and are especially lovely in goods which are shimmery in effect. Lustrous and smooth finished materials, anyway, are most favored. Satin-finished crepes are charming in dull yellows. One very lovely Empire gown made of this material had panels of embroidery done in silks, and resembling the eyes of a peacock feather. There was considerable green in this embroidery and the color combination, while unusual, was very effective.

Sulphur yellow is the brightest yellow worn, and one of the most trying colors. The other shades are more golden in tone and much more becoming. Some very distinctive gowns worn at the Horse Show were of yellow cloth hand-embroidered and trimmed with fur and lace.

A large black hat and black lynx furs made stunning accessories to one smart costume.

Word comes from Paris that the fashionable waist should match the color of the skirt, and while white waists are, of course, in evidence here the trend would indicate that American women were taking kindly to the fad.

The very extensive vogue of the lingerie waist, and the white waist, whether of silk, net or chiffon, which has been the order of the day for so long, while pretty andpractical, is apt to become monotonous in its uniformity. For this reason the colored waist is hailed with delight by women who strive for a little distinction in their dress.

Chiffon being about the daintiest material, is much used for the separate waists, many of which are made of striped chiffon, either in two shades or with white and a color that matches the skirt with which it is to be worn. Coin dotted chiffons are also in evidence, as well as Persian effects, which are also simulated by using a plain chiffon over a Persian or otherwise figured silk foundation. Plaid silks are veiled in this way with very good effect. Nets are also dyed, but the most successful net waist is of white or ecru, with encrustation of lace. Net waists are also very pretty when worn with a silk or velvet jumper.

Waists continue, for the most part, to fasten up the back and the sleeves range from elbow to three-quarter length, comparatively few having full length sleeves, with the exception, of course, of the strictly tailored waist, which still has its enthusiastic advocate. The newest blouses are, however, distinctly feminine, being dainty and rather elaborate in effect.

Striped chiffons and gauze are by no means confined to the waist industry. Very beautiful evening gowns are developed in these materials. Especially adapted do they seem for the debutante's dancing frock. In white, Nile green, yellow, pink and blue they are charmingly youthful. A pretty foundation is of plain chiffon, which may or may not be over silk. If a very diaphanous effect is desired the silk slip is omitted and two chiffon linings substituted.

Striped gauze and chiffon are charming for negligees, especially those fashioned on the Empire lines, as most of them are.

A lovely negligee in the trousseau of a recent noted bride was made of white chiffon, which had a half-inch stripe of satin. White peau de cygne was used as a lining. The negligee was made with the short-waisted Empire.

A very important feature for wear with the negligee is the under petticoat, which not infrequently is allowed to show, if the gown opens to the hem and flares open.

Whether the skirt be of silk, satin or the lingerie material, it must needs be elaborately trimmed with billows of lace, and yards of ribbon. Spanish or knee flounces are the usual trimming, but they can be ornamented in diverse ways. A band of insertion or beading usually finishes the top of the flounce, and through this wide satin ribbon is drawn and bowed at the left, right or centre, the long ends and loops reaching to the bottom of the skirt. If the negligee is elaborate, a silk petticoat, elaborately trimmed with lace, is really more serviceable and in keeping. Silk skirts are further ornamented with French knots or embroidered effects on the silk.

The Empire trend shows itself in the under world of white almost as much as it does in outer garments. The daintiest night gowns are those suggestive of the Empire, not only in their decidedly short-waisted effect but in their sleeves, which are even more reminiscent of that period. The underarm seam in many instances barely measuring three inches for the very short puff, or the short, flaring sleeve, which is, in reality, hardly more than a shoulder cape, are fashion's latest caprice. Slashed sleeves are very effective when edged with lace and inset with medallions. Sleeves which are in themselves simple affairs, that is, as to cut, are elaborated on to an astonishing extent. Valenciennes, Cluny, and embroidery are employed in the execution of many a charming gown, and ribbon is used to no end, not only as an accessory, but, in some instances, as when, for instance, it is used to outline by a series of puffings an Empire yoke, really as a part of the design. Yokes have been out of favor for so long that one now regards them almost as novelties.

The vogue of the Princess gown makes the question of perfectly fitted underwear of great importance. The slightest fullness, or, for that matter, wrinkle even, in an undergarment means a blemish in the fit of a gown. The result is that the undergarment must be cut to fit snugly over the hips and be finished by a French top which may be dropped below the waist line, since small waists are a coveted possession nowadays. Circular skirts give a very satisfactory flatness about the hips, and, for this reason, this model is popular for the petticoat as well as for the outer skirt.

Silk petticoats have, to a considerable extent, usurped the place of lingerie skirts for evening wear. Those of peau de cygne, messaline, and chiffon taffeta, in white or delicate gas light shades, are exquisitely trimmed with lace edgings, insertions, and motifs, and made even more ornate by the introduction of yard upon yard of ribbon made into long flowing bows. Silk embroidery is used on the wide lace-encrusted flounces. French knots and more elaborate designs are used on some of the daintiest models. Cluny, net lace, or Irish lace are used even more than Valenciennes for trimming. Flounces are cut circular and elaborately trimmed, rather than accordeon plaited, which style is more or less passe. There is practically no limit to the elaboration expended upon the silk skirt for evening wear, or for wear with the dressier negligees.

There was hardly a time when Marabout was as much in favor as at the present time. Not only are Marabout stoles and shawl effects much in evidence, but for millinery purposes they are extremely popular. In the light shades and white nothing could be daintier for theatre wear, while in black and brown it makes a dainty and yet practical accessory to a street toilette. The brown is at the present time particularly smart.

Marabout muffs, great pillow or melon-shaped affairs, in light shades or white, are very effective with evening coats which do not require an added neck piece. Those in white resemble a huge powder puff or dandelion ball and are really lovely for the debutante. Very lovely evening hats are made almost entirely of Marabout, and have a huge rose nestled among the lovely down-like mass. A particularly dainty effect may be obtained by having the rose dusted with gold or silver powder, or, for that matter, a tissue rose or ornament may be substituted.

The really up-to-date girl includes in her wardrobe a collection of dainty nightcaps. You may be sure they are a modernized and beautiful version of the ugly nightcaps of our grandmothers' time, and then, too, they are an economy, which is not the least of their charms.

They are, you may say, a fashion born of necessity, for now that the elaborately-waved coiffure has become a fixed fashion, instead of a passing fad, it behooves all women to keep in the waviness as long as possible for many reasons. First, too frequent Marcelling spells ruin to the hair, second, it is usually prettier when not too recently waved, and third, there is the question of expense, which in many cases is a consideration.

The nightcap makes it possible to have the hair stay in curl through three or four slumbers, indeed once a week seems sufficient for a visit to the hair dresser when climatic conditions are favorable and a nightcap is adopted. There are some charming designs, ravishingly becoming and exquisitely dainty.

Lace, mull and embroidery, the latter usually of the open-work variety, are the materials most in demand, with, of course, the addition of the bewitching ribbon bows, which mean so much in the design.

NELLIE GUNN McCLELLAND.

The Clerk Who Has Useful Ideas

Is The Successful Merchant of The Future—He May Express His Views in The Review and Win a Premium.

The clerk who thinks as he works is the one who can make himself most valuable to his employer, and the latter should be on the alert for such men, so that, by encouraging their suggestions, he may provide the circumstances under which their thoughts can be put to practical use. We know of merchants who have received suggestions of real value from even their parcel boys. There are few employes who cannot, at one time or another, see some way in which an improvement can be made. They are close to details of great importance—those which occur between salespeople and customer—that a proprietor or manager very often finds it hard to keep in touch with. Their experiences are bound to contain a lot of good information.

A system by which a merchant receives suggestions from his employes is of material benefit to both: the merchant is anxious to keep his store up-to-date, and he is willing to reward the employe of bright, progressive ideas. It provides a means by which their relationship may attain a better footing, and anything that tends toward a greater degree of co-operation is always valuable.

The Review is anxious to create among the salespeople a wider interest in their work, and we believe our plan will meet with their favor, as well as that of merchants themselves. It is this: We will offer prizes each month for the two best ideas submitted to us by clerks. These may be of any kind or description so long as they are applicable to dry goods stores. They do not necessarily need to be entirely new; they will be acceptable so long as they are designed to remedy a condition or conditions existing in even a single store. We wish clerks to feel that they may speak their minds freely, and where requested to do so, we will omit the name of a correspondent. To start with the prizes will be $2, and $1, but just as soon as we find a reasonable number taking advantage of this means of expressing their views much more substantial amounts will be offered.

The educative influence of such competitions, particularly upon those taking part in them, is considerable, and anything that helps to make his clerks more efficient should have the support of every merchant. We hope to receive some communications during the present month.

M. W. Schneebeli, President of the Nazareth Waist Co., New York, died on December 21.

An advanced wage scale of five per cent. in the Lowell Cotton Mills, Lowell, Mass., and a raise of pay for the operatives of the mills at Chicopee, went into effect December 17. Nearly 20,000 men are affected. In both cases a ten per cent. increase had been asked by the men. From New Years 56,000 mill operatives in New England will participate in an advance in wages.

Portrait Felix. ROBE OF LIGHT WEIGHT BLACK TULLE PAILLETED WITH CORSAGE OF WHITE LACE. Creation Rondeau.

Paris Fashions

By A. E. DACAM, for "Dry Goods Review."

The New "Demi-Tailleur" Costumes — Some Beautiful Evening Gowns — Features of The Present Mode.

Interesting features of the world of dress are the new "demi-tailleur" costumes made by tailors who unblurhingly poach in the dressmaker's preserves. These costumes are made with a blouse, or rather a "corsage-blouse" of lace, mousseline or any chiffon material, with color effects that recall the skirt and are often trimmed with bands, or small insertions, of the material in such a way that the corsage no longer has the appearance of a blouse, to be worn with any skirt, but becomes part of the costume, which, no one can doubt, is infinitely smarter. The jacket to be worn over this takes the form of a cape bolero, bolero, or open-fronted garment of almost any description. A smart model in this style is made of Aubergine red cloth, the skirt being very long and clinging, with a Greek design round the bottom, in taffetas of the same shade. The corsage of coarse Irish lace, ecru tinted, is made over a red silk foundation and three frills of taffetas draw in the puffed sleeve just above the elbow. The bolero is loose and short, standing quite away from the figure and reaching only to the top of the high draped waist belt. Cut quite low at the neck, it has a round turned-down collar and the sleeves are formed of three large epaulettes (to say capes would be an exaggeration) in graduated sizes.

No. 1—White Tulle, Embroidered Applications of Gold Gauze, Taffetas, Bœtell s and High Draped Belt, Alencon Lace.

* * *

Another costume in pervenche blue is trimmed with a deeper tone of velvet, arranged as wheels round the skirt, the spokes being about half the width of the rim. The corsage, of the softest white satin, is made with a guipure collar and empiecement round the neck, this latter being edged with miniature wheels, which are again repeated on the sleeves. A narrow band of the velvet heads the collar, which is surmounted by a Valenciennes lace. The short jacket, made with half-length bell sleeves is cut quite low at the neck, sloping to form an inverted V in front. There is no fastening, the edges being about two inches apart, and the bottom of the bolero in front is continued for about half a yard, graduating to a point, and is finished by a tassle. The two long streamers in front and the bell-shaped sleeves have a Japanese note that is much sought after at present.

No. 2—Pink Tulle, Embroidered Grapes and Silver Leaves, a Violet Tulle Scarf Fastened at the Left Side and Drawn into the Waist at the Back, from where it Falls Loose.

One still hears and reads much of Empire gowns, but, as a matter of fact, except for evening wear and a certain class of cloaks, it is Empire in name only ; Directoire would be a more correct designation, but even then it would be an evolution only. The belt is very high and pointed at the back. The top point should be between the shoulder blades, and this gradually descends to the correct waist line in front, where it is again pointed. In many instances this belt is a draped scarf of tulle or soft taffetas and long streamers, reaching almost to the hem of the skirt, fall from the back.

* * *

A good evening gown in this style in shown in sketch 1. Made in pale mauve tulle, the sash, shoulder straps and sleeve drapery are carried out in a deeper tone of taffetas. The tulle of the corsage is embroidered in gold and silver, with suggestions of the mauve, and two large sprays of flowers, one at either side of the skirt, are carried out in the same colors.

No. 3—Evening Mantle in "Corail" Velvet, Ermine and Zibeline Collar Trimmed Venise, Guipure and Brown Velvet.

* * *

The second sketch is another evening gown, made in pink tulle and heavily embroidered with bunches of grapes and their leaves—this fruit still remains à favorite trimming. The grapes are raised and carried out in pale shades of their natural color and the leaves are of silver. A deep violet scarf, the shade called evegne, forms a bow in front and is carried over the left shoulder, just fastened to the waist at the back and then left to fall in long ends.

* * *

Black and white tulle are very happily blended in the evening gown here described. The foundation is of white sheeny silk, which is covered with black net. The skirt is made with a few narrow pleats into the waist belt in front and four much wider ones at the back. The low bodice, pointed at front and back, is ornamented with incrustations of white tulle, forming large leaves, with jagged edges, much resembling a poppy leaf. The veins of the leaves are carried out in silver beads and pearls. Round the decolletage is a band of black velvet, the ends joined in front by four different length strings of black jet beads. This velvet crosses the sleeves twice and edges a part, which, longer than the rest and graduated to a point, falls to the elbow. All round the skirt are large bunches of white net leaves and flowers, ornamented with beads and embroidery. These are united by drooping bands of black velvet. At the actual hem the skirt is held out by means of innumerable black mousseline "bouillonxies." Another kind of tulle which is having a certain amount of success is shot or changeant, having reflections of different colors, gold and pink, gold and mauve, silver and blue and many others. The two first look well made up over gold gauze.

No. 4—Cloth Mantle, Trimmed with Velvet and Ermine Bands, Embroidered Cloth Bands and Chenille.

* * *

Soft velvet is much used, more particularly for dinner gowns. A style much in vogue for these heavier materials is to have a decollete bodice of lace or tulle and over that a drapery of the dress material, forming bands over the shoulders, and crossing at the waist. This arrangement can be carried out in many different ways and shapes. It can be voluminous enough to form a blouse in front ; it can have openings through which the corsage is seen; instead of crossing at the waist it can be carried straight down in pleats and fall in long scarf ends, heavily fringed, the two in front reaching to the knees and those at the back almost touching the hem. Another evening gown worthy of note is made of gold gauze, embroidered with roses in silver threads and white chenille. The long skirt is bordered with a band of ermine. The decolletage is trimmed with silver roses and ermine tails.

* * *

New models of cloaks and mantles are still appearing and almost every style and possible material are receiving a certain amount of attention. For evening wear light pastel shades are much in evidence, and for the creation of a single garment satin, lace, chiffon, velvet and different fur will all be employed. Sketch 3 carries out this description very well—the mantle itself is of coral pink velvet, profusely trimmed with Venice lace. The collar is of ermine and zibeline, held together by means of tabs of the cloth and a loop design in a deep colored brown velvet completes the trimming.

Paris Neckwear.

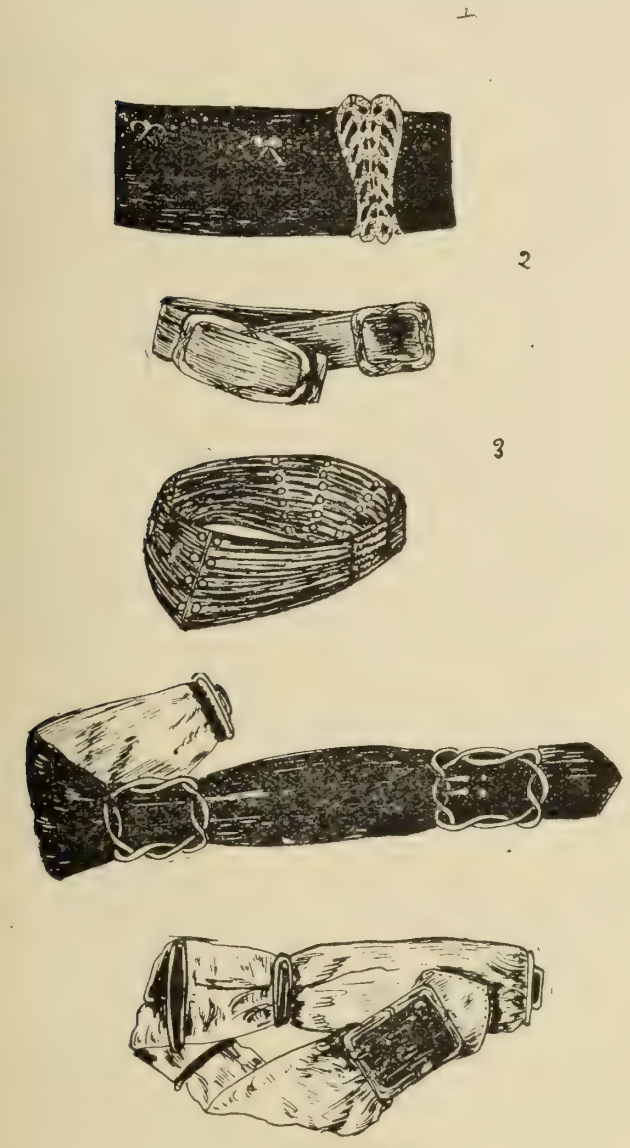
* * *

The last sketch is quite another style, but one which is very popular. The under cloak is sleeveless, the top cape completely covering the arm. This is carried out in a pale shade of violet-de-parme, profusely ornamented with bands of conventional designs cut out in cloth and re-embroidered with chenille. The base of each cape is a deep band of deep violet velvet, edged with narrow bands of ermine. The theatre toque worn with it is very small, much like an inverted saucer made of gold gauze, a velvet rosette and immense aigrette being the only trimming. Just now many hats are seen trimmed with fur, while the whole fur toque is not so common. In some cases a large hat with a round velvet brim will be almost smothered by a large beret in chinchille or salile, while a few roses or bunch of violets just hide the pleats at the left side, or again, a velvet hat will have a band of fur taken round the base of the beret, the head and feet of the little animal being well in evidence, generally, when a beret is in question, falling over the brim at the left side. Very pretty applications of Irish guipure and other heavy lace are used to decorate the fur and have a very rich effect. Bands of fur and ribbon are both used, stretched quite across the hat and drawn into the cache peign. A pastel pink shaded felt, with rather a wide brim, turned down at each side and slightly raised at the back, is trimmed with a sable band, lying across the brim just in front of the crown, and turned down over each side and just appearing in the cache peign of tulle-cheveux; at the left side of the hat is a large bunch of shade pink and brown roses and their leaves. Very long and wide ostrich feathers, very little curled, carried quite round the hat and curling onto the shoulder are a noteworthy feature of the chapeaux-de-luxe. Vulture feathers are also much seen, both as imitating the ostrich, or arranged as a fantaisie, the fantaisies of the present moment defy description, the plumes of as many as five different birds being employed to take one. Enormous bunches of aigrettes, wings, and plumes "piquees a la diable" are to be seen on small theatre toques, which are made of gold or silver tulle and are in themselves miniscule.

A. E. DACAM.



Dress Accessories

One of the latest novelties in the way of neckwear is the lingerie collar and front, the latter being composed of a double box pleat of fine linen, which may be edged with a narrow valenciennes lace or simply hem-stitched. Many of these are seen during the fashionable morning promenade, which at this time of year is the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne. The tailor-made jacket is left open, showing this smart little ruching, which reaches from neck to waist, while the air of warmth, so necessary at this season, is given by a heavy fox stole thrown over the shoulders. Many of these box-pleated fronts are being shown without a collar attached, and are intended to be worn with a starched one. Although at present they are rather exclusive they will most certainly be very generally worn in the Spring.

Sketch 1 represents a black velvet stock, which goes twice round the neck, fastening in front under an enameled ornament, which forms a brooch. The same model is made with various different ornaments, in "bronze-dore," "vieil-argent," etc. No. 2 repeats, in lace, the braces of last summer, and these, made in various laces and with slightly varying forms are having a ready sale and look well worn over a blouse of the same description. No. 3 is a little neck fantaisie in velvet and silk, representing the fruit, leaves and stem of a vine. These are being shown in their natural shades, and also in "coulenes-de-fantaisie," No. 4, in white mousseline-de-soie plissee, is ornamented with lace medallions and black or colored velvet ribbons.

No. 5, made of lace and fine linen, is in the same style as the plissee fronts mentioned above, and in this instance the collar is "en rapport." Nos. 6 and 7 show two fur necklets, in ermine and caracul. The former, sketched with muff to match, is trimmed with its own heads and tails and the caracul has an addition of dyed squirrel.

This season is almost a record one for belts, that is to say, as regards the number sold, for the most popular shapes are remarkable only for their simplicity and good taste. Made in soft, pliable kid, or kid glace, taffetas, silk elastic or velvet they invariably fasten in front with a plain, solid looking frame buckle, the same, as an ornament, being repeated at the back. Some of the models are exceedingly wide, as is shown in the first sketch, which is carried out in black silk elastic, ornamented with steel points, with ornaments to match. No. 2 is also in elastic, the same model being shown in both gold and silver with the Louis XVI. buckle and "coulant" in the same shade. No. 3, in taffetas (all shades) made in tight pleats with elastic sides, is ornamented, back and front, with strass buttons. No. 4 is made in black taffetas and lined with soft white kid, with "bronze-dore" buckles. No. 5, in cream kid, is ornamented with buckle and clasps to match. These two last models are fastened with a hook, independent of the buckle, which is merely a sham. In all the cheaper makes the buckle is used as a fastener, the other end being perforated. The same class of buckle, round, square, oblong and oval, is almost without a rival.

Paris Belt Fashions.

NEW QUARTERS FOR BRITISH AMERICAN IMPORTING CO.

Early in the New Year the British American Importing Company, Montreal, will move from their old building on St. Lawrence Main Street, to their new quarters, Nos. 381 and 383 St. Paul Street. The new premises will give much more room and will enable the company to carry a much larger stock than heretofore. The premises are situated in the heart of the business section of the city, in the midst of the wholesale houses. The main floor of the new building will be used by the company for offices and warehouses. It is 58 x 100 feet, and is fitted up in the most modern style.

MILLS DAMAGED BY FLOOD.

During the recent floods at Truro, N.S., the woolen mills of Stanfields, Limited, were damaged by water and ice. The new factories were at one time surrounded by floating ice and at the time the flood was at its highest point, the water was fifteen inches high in the boiler room. The extent of the damage has not yet been made known, but it is thought that within a short time the machinery will be running again.

MONEYPENNY'S NEW MANAGER IN MONTREAL.

Fred. Caldecott, who for the past four years has been with Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Montreal, and previous to that was with Caldecott, Burton & Spence, Toronto, has been appointed to the management of the Montreal offices of Monypenny Bros., Toronto. Mr. Caldecott takes charge of his new duties on the first of the year. With his valuable connection through the trade in Montreal the success of the office under his management is assured. The offices will be retaind at Room 25, Nordheimer Building, Montreal.

WAY MUFFLER COMPANY.

An Ontario charter has been granted Way Muffler Company, of London, Ontario, Limited, with a share capital of $10,000, divided into four hundred shares. The incorporators were Percy McK. Millman, accountant; William H. McK. Millman and Arch. McPherson, Jr., merchants; Geo. McD. Millar, cashier, and Jared Vining, barrister-at-law, all of London. The purpose of the company is "to manufacture, sell and deal in knitted fabrics and dry goods generally."

It is said that Fownes Brothers & Co., of England, will establish a branch glove factory at Gloversville, N.Y.

Fownes Bros. & Company, have opened Canadian headquarters at rooms 1 to 4, Coristine Building, Montreal. Mr. H. Hawley, who is manager, is closely identified with Fownes gloves in Canada, having looked after this line for many years, when they were sold through Gault Bros., Limited, Montreal.

Proposed Postal Express Service

The Review's Post Card Campaign is in Active Operation — Every Retailer Must Do His Part.

The Dominion House will have before it at the present session a proposal to establish a postal express service, embracing a system whereby parcels may be sent C.O.D. to any part of the country, collection to be made by the post-office. To that section of the public outside the mercantile field the scheme may look good, but the merchant sees at once that if adopted it would work a great national wrong, by doing material injury to every local retailer in Canada, from Vancouver to Halifax. He is convinced that the measure deliberately aims to equip the big catalogue houses with an unfair advantage, which shall enormously increase the business of their mail order department, by despoiling many small merchants and driving them into the hands of the assignee. Even the larger stores, outside the mail order centres, would be affected to a very considerable degree.

As we have pointed out editorially, the announcement came from Ottawa when the Christmas trade was opening up, and the majority of retailers were so absorbed in their business that they missed it entirely and probably would have heard nothing of it until the bill was formally presented to the House. Realizing this, The Review sent a communication to every merchant in Canada carrying dry goods, explaining the situation briefly and urging a plan of action by which the proposed legislation could be defeated. This plan was that each retailer write the local member of Parliament pointing out what effect the passing of such a bill would have, and asking that he vote against it. We have abundant evidence—in the shape of letters from all sections of the Dominion—of the campaign having been promptly started. Enclosed in most of these were copies of communications forwarded to M.P.'s. They indicate clearly the light in which the proposal is viewed, and the extent to which it would hurt the retail interests of the country. Some of the members are merchants themselves, and those who are not will hasten to become acquainted with all the circumstances before casting their votes. If retailers are as active as they should be few M.P.'s will be unconvinced of the injustice of extending the parcel post system in the above manner.

Upon receipt of The Review's card dry goods men in a number of places called on merchants in other lines of business and secured their co-operation. Where merchants' associations existed the members wrote individually and as a body. We have also received assurance from wholesalers and others that they are working with us in organizing all possible opposition to the bill, and commending our prompt notification to the trade.

If any retailers have neglected to follow our suggestion we would urge that they delay no longer. Surely there is no one who does not recognize the importance of the matter.

Very little has been said in the daily newspapers regarding the proposed bill, and only one that we have seen has commented on it editorially. Even then the effect that it would have on the business of local retailers was not so much as mentioned, which is undoubtedly the most important consideration that presents itself. Surprise has been expressed in many quarters that this journal, which is rated as one of the most influential in the country, should assist in disguising as a public benefaction a measure with such capacity for harm. One of the concluding sentences in its editorial is: "In this promised reform there is nothing revolutionary, and the moral sense of the people, as well as of the Government, gives an assurance that no private interest will be treated unfairly." The real object of the bill is the unfair treatment of private interests. Behind it are The T. Eaton Co., and other mail order concerns.

* * *

At a recent convention of hardware merchants across the line the following remarks were made by one of the speakers:—

"A good deal of the work of our Association," said Mr. Bush, "has been directed with your own against parcel post legislation—very effectively too. We were the first business organization to raise a cry against this iniquitious measure. The first appearance before your two organizations of representatives of the National Retail Association was in 1903, when Mr. Bogardus, then our president, addressed you upon the subject. It is with satisfaction we note the growth of opposition to this measure outside our triple organization.

"I have been amazed at what has seemed to me to be almost criminal shortsightedness, when some of our daily papers appear as advocates of this measure—surely with no consideration of the interests of proprietors and stockholders by their editorial writers—since they advocate a plan, which, a veritable boomerang, would sweep away pages of well-paying advertisements.

"Mail order houses, which alone are interested in parcels post—once the measure is secured—will quickly abandon the daily papers for those magazines whose widespread circulation makes them a better advertising medium.

"Let me urge that such united action be taken by your two organizations before adjournment of this Convention, as shall bring the dire evils of a parcel post, as this business organization sees them, to the attention, the thoughtful consideration and the better understanding of the proprietors and editors of the daily papers of this country. Retailers regard it of paramount importance that this matter be brought by you to the attention of the publishers of these daily papers, who will in the next few months mould public opinion for or against this measure.

"The Indiana Federation of Labor, in convention at Indianapolis during the last week in September, went upon record as decidedly opposed to a parcels post. A resolution to consolidate third and fourth class mail was defeated upon the ground that the resolution was practically endorsing a Parcels Post, and, the Convention declared, would especially favor mail order houses, which in their opinion were responsible for cheap production.

"Also at a recent Convention of fourth-class postmasters held in Chicago, a resolution was passed wherein these gentlemen declared themselves squarely against Parcels Post legislation, for the reason that such legislation would be directly in the interest of mail order houses and against the local merchants, a postmaster stating that it would drive most of our town merchants out of business. These incidents, as straws, show the way of the wind.

Manufacturers and Retailers Co-operate

"To learn how we have succeeded with the aid and leadership of the Joint Committee, against standard goods being sold by the catalogue houses, it is only necessary to compare these latest catalogues with former ones. And, for the organization which I represent, I desire to express both to manufacturer and jobber, our appreciation and gratitude for aid and assistance rendered, and the compliance of so many of you with our desires and requests in this matter.

"A few manufacturers have expressed their purpose to continue their business relations with these mail order houses, and in some instances, judging from the prices at which their goods are sold do not care to protect the retailer's interests, even to the extent of regulating the prices at which their goods are catalogued. We, however, continue to hope they will yet view this matter from our point.

"Gentlemen, I would not fairly represent our retail organization did I not emphasize the catalogue house question, though only by brief mention. It is not a theory, but a condition that confronts us in many daily transactions and incidents, nor are words of mine needed for your better understanding of the matter, but herein lies a community of interest that should appeal to us all. We plead for that united and enthusiastic action in this matter, which shall foster and further develop our present system of merchandising, manufacturer to jobber, jobber to retailer, retailer to consumer, rather than the demoralizing methods of mail order houses, which with cut prices, gift-giving schemes, wide-spread money-borrowing systems, that cannot but work disaster upon present-day business methods, seek for their own aggrandizement, usurpation of manufacturer, elimination of jobber and distrust of local merchant. We surely have the brains and courage, when awake to the situation, to stem this tide of business demoralization.

"Rural delivery, trolley lines and telephones are making country and village life more attractive, more desirable every day, a condition most happy for the welfare and prosperity of our beloved country. Will this condition be furthered by any system of business which does away with the retailers of village and town, and puts in their places, mail order houses, hundreds of miles away ?

"A mail order house that controls forty million dollars capital, will certainly increase the number of its factories as rapidly as the quantity of goods it can market will justify. Some of them are also doing so large a borrowing or banking business with their distant patrons that bankers are becoming alarmed at the flow of money away from the towns and smaller cities into the hands of these firms. Such vast amounts of money must be invested, and does it not seem that a syndicate of mail order houses located in the principal business centres, is much nearer realization to-day than when your attention was called to its possibility on a former occasion ?

"Several mail order houses of no small magnitude have failed in the last year, and we believe with the improved methods of the retailers in conducting business, with the prevention of Parcels Post legislation, the aid we render one another, the present business method of manufacturer to jobber, jobber to retailer, retailer to customer, will continue to prevail."

VALUE OF SMALL SAVINGS.

Asked for a message to young men starting out in business, a prosperous merchant, who has passed the three score and ten mark, laid particular emphasis on the value of small savings. They have contributed very substantially to his own services; in fact they laid the foundation for whatever degree of prosperity he may claim at the present time. Now this merchant has never been unduly fond of money; he merely has seen that there was no waste or extravagance in his business. By small savings he means, for instance, taking advantage of all cash discounts, no matter how small the amount.

PRACTICAL OPINION ON SILK.

The Canadian Commercial Agent in Japan writes that a leading Japanese exporter (K. Sugawa), answering inquiry about the Habutai trade in Canada, and other countries, gave expression to the following view:—

"In the Habutai trade I must confess that the Japanese manufacture cannot compete with the European in respect of the art of printing figures on silk, and of giving it a nice shade of color. Japan must produce the best she can of excellent quality of silk textile and sell it at the lowest profitable figure if necessary. This must be the policy of the Japanese trade in silk, as our best business purpose will be to concentrate our attention upon improving our strong points, instead of trying to imitate the excelencies of the strong points of other countries, in the silk trade. As to design, the Japanese design is best realized in Japan, as the English design is best realized in England. As to the prospect of the Habutai trade, what the United States is doing now will most likely be what other countries will do. The United States gets the superior kind of silk manufacture by way of France, and the lowest from Japan, and she manufactures the middle class of goods herself. With all the vexatious conditions the silk trade is full of, we must be thankful to find much encouragement in the fact that export of habutai has been steadily increasing for the past ten years."

THE BRINTON CARPET MILLS.

The Brinton Carpet Co., of Canada, are making rapid progress in the installation of their complete plant at their factories in Peterboro. The whole of the Brussels and Wilton looms are now in running order. The installation of the Brinton patent Axminster looms will very shortly be completed. The large dye house is rapidly being installed, and by the spring of 1907 the whole plant should be in full swing. We understand that the company are considering the advisability of erecting woollen and worsted spinning mills at Peterboro for the manufacture of yarns for their own consumption. Two large Lancashire boilers have already been installed with a capacity of 500 h.p., and instead of the usual expensive and tall chimneys an "induced draught" plant has been erected, increasing the efficiency of the boilers and reducing the coal consumption to a minimum. The method of heating the large concrete and steel building is by a central steam coil, distributing warm air to every part of the structure. There is no doubt that the Brinton Mills at Peterboro are as up-to-date a plant as any on this continent.

A $100,000 fire occurred at New Glasgow, N.S., in which one of several stores destroyed was that of F. A. McCulloch & Company, dry goods.

Caverhill & Kissock, wholesale millinery, Montreal; dissolved. John B. Caverhill & Company, wholesale millinery, Montreal, J. B. Caverhill, registered.

WINDOW SHADE SUGGESTIONS

SUCCESS

has attended the efforts of the wide-awake and enterprising Dry Goods Merchants, who last year adopted our suggestions and are now selling their customers—

PEERLESS HAND-MADE OPAQUE CLOTHS,
RECAL CLOTH and SHADES—MACHINE-MADE OILS,
DOMINION SHADES—WATER COLORS

¶ There are many merchants who have not yet embraced their opportunity and are thus losing desirable trade which might be secured.

¶ Think it over, your profit is right—and, come to think of it, is there any good reason why you shouldn't sell Window Shades?

¶ We want you to investigate and if you say the word, will have a salesman call. Then look carefully at his samples and note the strong points of the line. In justice to yourself investigate this proposition.

Curtain Poles and Trimmings

Write us to-day for full information catalogs, prices and color books.

WISHING YOU A PROSPEROUS 1907

Laces and Fringes

DALY & MORIN

MONTREAL

Factory: LACHINE.

Agent for Ontario—F. G. SOPER, 29 MELINDA STREET, TORONTO

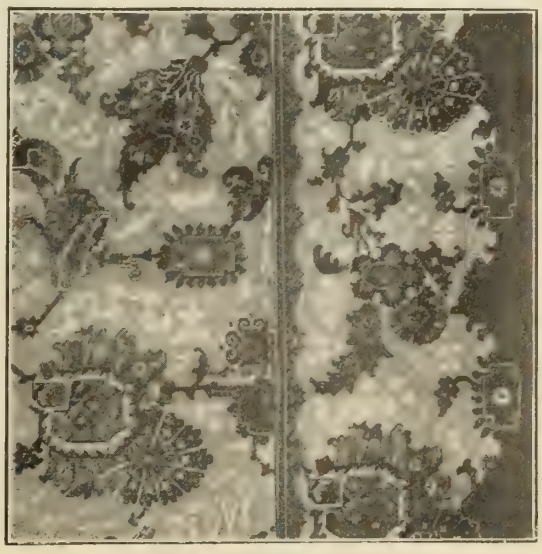
Housefurnishings and Decorations

Carpet Trade of 1906

Retrospect and Prospect—Growth of the Industry Within the Past Few Years.

With the beginning of 1907 carpet dealers are anticipating another successful year. With the benefit of past experience, better knowledge of the market and tastes of the people they are in a sound condition to hold the footing they have gained.

In the pioneer days of the carpet industry in Canada, when the old wooden looms were in use, it was with difficulty that the wares could gain recognition among the many importations, but still the manufacturers persisted, and each improvement introduced abroad they quickly acquired. With the small encouragement received in the early eighties of last century they made astonishing advances, and met with great success with their greatly improved product.



A little over a decade ago the manufacture of Brussels carpet was first attempted, and although the promoters might have experienced difficulties, which some did not survive, keen business men were quick to recognize the possibilities of the new industry and renewed the attempt, installing efficient machinery and securing the services of men who had experience in important centres. With the ten factories then in existence, those not adopting the newest methods could not exist, and, consequently, closed their doors. Half of that number survived as the fittest, and although the struggle to gain a firm footing against foreign competition was at first a seemingly futile one, they eventually won an assured place in the trade, and to-day they are in a flourishing and advancing condition. Canada, according to those well acquainted with the carpet trade, is the greatest carpet buying country in the world—per capita of course. Climatic conditions have much to do with this, as floor coverings are essential to a warm house. It is noticed that each year better lines are demanded, and with the expansion of the great West large orders are shipped out there. Home industry has within the past few years been growing steadily, and various plans are being perfected and new energy is being instilled into the business, with the satisfactory result that an exceedingly aggressive trade can now be carried on.

There are special efforts put forth in securing the best practical designs. Manufacturers are now in a position to give their customers exclusive patterns. The cost of production is being gradually lessened, the lines are steadily growing better, and there is a better margin of profit for all concerned.

That Canada is recognized as a good field for the sale of carpets, and a desirable place for manufacturing them, is evidenced by the fact that Coates of Scotland are establishing a plant here. There is no doubt that the Axminsters, Wiltons and Brussels manufactured in Canada are securing a place in the market that compensates for the long uphill struggle the industry had in earlier days.

The Increasing Demand.

In speaking of carpets one is inclined to couple the topic with that of the country's great growth, which has everything to do with the large sales. In large cities not only are dwellings being erected with wonderful rapidity for the housing of the growing population, but large hotels are being built throughout the country. New churches, halls and public buildings all require floor coverings. Increased traffic demands the building of new railroad passenger cars and new steamers, all of which require carpets and upholstery goods. The man who ten or fifteen years ago settled on the prairie, with an unkempt shack for his domicile, feels now the prosperity of the country and can well afford the luxury of carpets for the substantial home he is building on his rich domain. From coast to coast the same demand for home comforts, in keeping with more prosperous days, is heard and floor coverings are a first essential.

WINDSOR BRUSSELS, 5 FRAME.
Colors—Fawn Ground, Ecru Tracery, and Brown and Green Medallions.
Manufactured by The Moore Carpet Co., Sherbrooke, Que.

In line with these conditions the Canadian manufacturers are keenly alert and to meet that demand with goods of quality and with honest prices is the chief aim

Spring Carpet Business

It Promises to Beat All Records—The Popular Styles, and Price Indications.

Many features in the carpet situation during the past years should serve as a guidance for the future management of the carpet department. The year has been replete with these peculiar situations which demanded the shrewdest buying and the keenest foresight. At odd times the market was exceedingly slow, and when least expected there would be a brisk demand. The advancing of prices made many delay in placing orders, but if they expected a fall in prices they were quickly undeceived, for advance followed advance in quick succession. The mistake of the year, many found to their regret was that they did not cover themselves instead of fearing the high prices and anticipating a decline. When the demand for carpets came they had insufficient stock to meet it.

Throughout the year both jobbers and retailers found that so great was the demand for greens, that it was impossible to keep them in stock. This color is apparently in for a longer stay than was at first anticipated, and in many large centres it is considered a staple article. Benefitted by the experience of the past year the wise merchant will cover himself as soon as possible. He should regard the ruling prices as the lowest he will be able to obtain for some years to come. Carpet yarns increased 30 per cent in one week during the month of December. The scarcity of raw materials and the enormous consumption at present would warrant no decline in prices, but should rather prepare the wise for a further increase. Another reason why an increase of prices should be expected is the new duty on carpets, an increase from 23 1-3 to a flat rate of 25 per cent. having been made. The mills abroad are over-rushed at present, and there is but little chance of foreign orders being delivered on time; in fact, many jobbers are awaiting the arrival of orders which have been delayed for some months. Cable advices state that these delays are indefinite, and there seems to be no prospect of the situation clearing.

WINDSOR BRUSSELS, 5 FRAME.
Colors—Green Ground, Ecru Lace-Work, Fawn Flowers, and Dark Leaves.
Manufactured by The Moore Carpet Co., Sherbrooke, Que.

Spring Styles.

Despite the depleted stock of carpets in jobbing circles, large orders for spring delivery have been placed on the samples sent out. Repeats from jobbers have been much larger than usual. The demand has been on greens and light colors, fawns being a close second to the greens. The designs are singularly open this year, and the borders very elaborate. Axminsters and Brussels are holding the most advantageous position in point of novelty, as the tendency is at present towards the open patterns, and these two lines lend themselves to this style. The union carpets are having a great run in the West at present. This line, which is two-thirds cotton and one-third wool, is comparatively inexpensive and meets the monetary conditions of the smaller places where money comes in slowly. The better qualities of carpets are being demanded in the larger centres and it is noticed that the general tendency is towards a better quality than in the past and that carpets of durability are thoughfully considered in making purchases. The carpet salesman is called upon to demonstrate these qualities more than ever before. Viewing the present situation, everything points to a successful year, and if deliveries are improved as it advances, there is no doubt that the coming seasons will out-distance all predecessors.

Rugs

Some Reasons for Their Popularity—A Few Features of the Trade.

Rugs continue to hold the attention of the housekeeper, as it is more than ever realized that the rug meets the requirements of all those whose homes are only temporary. While this is largely responsible for the great demand, there are other points which have helped to promote their sales. Scarcity of the piece carpet stock, especially of greens, compelled the purchaser to turn to the rug so that the desired color could be secured. Then again, the small retailers who could not afford to carry a stock of piece carpets solved the difficulty by purchasing a reliable and sure stock of rugs. They hope to begin stocking with piece carpets so soon as they have established a little trade. The price of piece carpets cannot compete with the rug, but for the retailer there is not the same margin of profit in the rug—over a certain price—and when sales are being made the retailer endeavors to discourage the choosing of a rug. The consumer, of course, must pay for the waste ends in the making up of the carpet and this again encourages the sale of the rug.

Axminster rugs have been ordered largely for Spring. Great attention has been given to the designing of the borders, but the body is remarkably open in design. The Moravian rugs, which were so hard to place on the market, have at last secured a firm hold and large western shipments of this line are moving more frequently than ever before.

It is the plan of many large houses to carry a few very expensive rugs, some pure silk and of rich design. They are kept as a show for those fastidious customers who invariably ask if the store carries anything of the best. The show line is then introduced, the price usually dumbfounds the customer and something a little cheaper is immediately requested. This is a splendid way of introducing the most expensive lines, and often leads to a very good sale.

Representatives of the carpet industry saw the Minister of Finance and asked that the duty under the British preference be increased from twenty-five to thirty per cent.

GEO. H. HEES, SON & CO.

LIMITED

Toronto
52 Bay St.

Montreal
20 St. Helens St.

MANUFACTURERS OF

Window Shades
Curtain Poles
Lace Curtains
Bobbinet Curtains
Lace Door Panels
Furniture Coverings
Tapestry Curtains
Chenille Curtains
Table Covers
Draperies
Silks
Burlaps
Wall Coverings
Plushes
Velours
Upholstery Supplies
Upholstery Hardware

N.B.—We sell our goods at a price that affords the Retailer Large Profits.

GEO. H. HEES, SON & CO.

Linoleums

The Trade Expects to Hear Spring Orders Are Large—of Advances.

Jobbers at present are anticipating an advance on oil-cloths, and it would appear that manufacturers are watching one another to see who will make the first move in this direction. The exceedingly unsatisfactory condition of the raw material markets, including the great advances on burlap and linseed oil is the cause. As a matter of fact, there have been advances on nearly every line used in the manufacture of oil-cloths. The lines shown for Spring comprise many new and very attractive patterns, both printed and plain. The demand for cork carpets, granites and oak planks is growing in this country very rapidly, and the lines carried this year are meeting with the favor of consumers. The demand for good coverings during the past year has been satisfactory in every respect, and the orders for Spring received so far indicate a still greater consumption than in the past.

THE CANADIAN TRADE.

H. A. Moore, managing director of the Moore Carpet Company, Sherbrooke, Que., in speaking of the carpet trade to The Review, gave the following interesting facts: "Orders received for delivery in the Spring of 1907 have greatly increased over any season. The many duplicate orders show the general prosperous condition of trade throughout the Dominion. There is a growing demand for the better qualities of carpets. The demand for rugs has been heavy, but, contrary to the general expectation, piece goods have more than held their own.

Prices on all raw materials are still very high, jute and linen having advanced about 20 per cent., and deliveries are very slow. The scarcity of help of all kinds is still a serious drawback to the manufacturer.

Regarding the styles and colorings of the carpets sold for Spring, the largest demand has been on the shades of fawn and ecru grounds, and all patterns containing floral or scroll work brought out in these shades. Carpets were brought out for Spring comprising almost every conceivable shade of green, but the softer and subdued tones of green have taken best with the trade. This is especially so regarding Wiltons. The stiff, conventional designs, with their necessarily sharp contrast of color, have met with little sale this season. Some particularly handsome carpets have been shown the trade in the always popular wool shades, combinations of brown, greens and ecrus, and have taken well with the dealers. Some very good copies of the Oriental rugs were reproduced in Domestic goods, and met with success. Taken as a whole, the Spring trade has been very satisfactory and the prospects for a record season are of the best. The Canadian carpet dealers are supporting the Canadian carpet manufacturers better than ever before; the old prejudices that formerly existed against Canadian carpets has almost entirely disappeared. The home manufacturer is given credit for turning out as good Brussels and Wiltons as anything on the market.

BACK FROM ORIENT.

Geo. H. Hees and son, R. W., have returned from their trip to the Far East. They visited the Philippines, Japan, and China. They arrived in Hong Kong just after the typhoon in which so many thousand perished last September. Since the new treaty was arranged between Canada and Japan, the interest shown by Yokohama in this market has been greatly increased, and Mr. Hees considers the prospects for the development of a large trade between the two countries excellent. Even now shippers are begging for space on the Empresses.

PROFITS ON CARPETS AND RUGS.

A merchant who handles carpets, rugs and draperies exclusively discussed some topics of the trade with The Review a few days ago. He stated that when carpets go above one dollar a yard they are more profitable than rugs, but those under that price do not return quite so large a margin.

Window Shades

Some new designs are being prepared for Spring trade which will meet the demand, for better qualities, which has been constantly increasing year by year. Retailers have recently made a wise move in going more extensively into the piece goods lines, for which the various sizes of windows put in the modern buildings, the old styles of ready made supplies are inadequate. Some handsome lace borders, new ornaments and mountings have been added to the lines, and there is everything to meet the most fastidious tastes. With the price of cotton constantly advancing, as well as the cost of the metals and other materials used in manufacturing window shades, together with the scarcity of skilled labor, it would be advisable for merchants to cover themselves at the earliest possible moment, for with the enormous consumption and inevitable scarcity of raw materials, there is bound to be a shortage of supply. It is conceded by authorities that in view of the prevailing tone of the market, prices are very fair, and manufacturers are determined to wait until the latest possible moment before making further advances.

Points in Salesmanship

Many Clerks Are at Sea When it Comes to Description Of Goods.

"The men you see in charge of some housefurnishing departments seem to know mighty little about the fine points of their business," said an old salesman to The Review. "I watched one selling a carpet a short time ago. Naturally the first article he showed was one that he wanted to get rid of. It was a very nice carpet, but, from all appearances he didn't know nor care much about it. He was about the poorest sample of salesman that I have run across. He showed the article, stepped back, said, "Now, there's a nice thing," and waited till the customers asked to see something else. How in the name of conscience can anyone expect to make a sale that way? I felt like stepping in and explaining to the lady what sort of carpet it was, calling her attention to its rich colorings, etc., and it's an even chance that she would have purchased it.

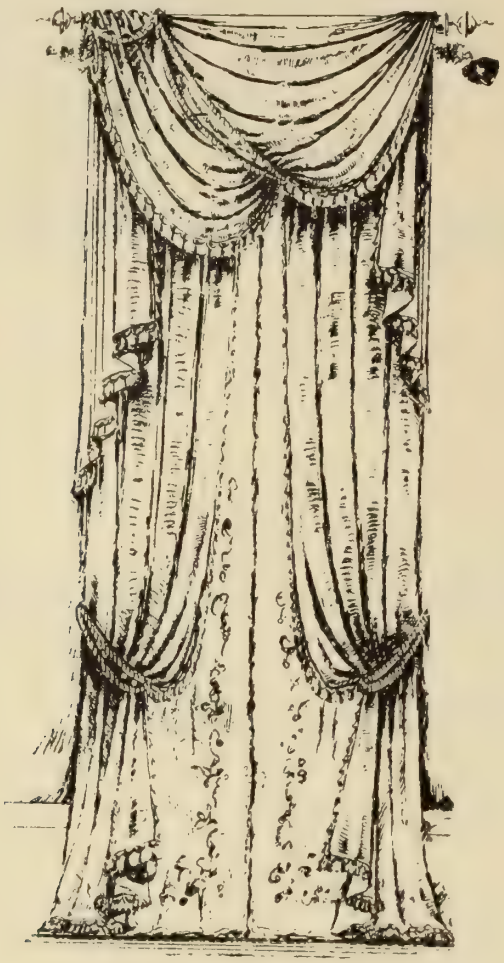
"I happened into a store another day when the head of the furnishings had a customer for curtains. He showed them, and then shut up. In the face of this some people fail to understand how it is that ads. of catalogue houses attract so readily. I believe the descriptions they give of goods have a lot to do with it. Go to the curtain department in one of these big stores and listen to the salesman. He first tries to discover in what direction, if any, the customer's preference leans, then he

What about your

Carpets and House Furnishings?

When sorting up remember we carry these goods

Something for the Children.



We've opened a Children's Ready-to-wear Department. Do likewise for There's money in it.

The W. R. Brock Company, (Limited)

MONTREAL

goes right ahead. To the point as quickly as possible is his motto. He very probably does not have to show more than four or five pairs of curtains. He singles out one that the customer seems to like and he endeavors to get her attention entirely away from the others. He tells her what kind of curtain it is, how it is made, etcf It doesn't take a great deal of time for him to make a sale, whereas I have known some of other kind of salesman to spend an hour and a-half with one customer, and then fall down."

A Neat Drapery.

The Wall Paper Industry

Its Growth in Face of Hard Competition and Present Standing of Canadian Product.

From little beginnings this industry has made rapid strides in Canada, and to-day its four factories fear little the competition of outside countries. It is within the memory of many when the first Canadian wall paper was produced in Toronto. It is told of the first manufacturer that in the infant days of the industry he was known to carry his samples around in his tall hat. He was manager, superintendent, cashier, salesman and all round handy man, but incessant work and pocketed pride at last established a factory, that to-day has at least 20 travelers on the road selling from coast to coast, besides having agents in foreign parts. The factory has a running capacity of many thousands of rolls of paper daily.

In the old days the printing was done by hand, and flat blocks were used, each color being separately printed, and the daily output was infinitesimal compared with that of the present day. In the old days the patterns were crude, miserable excuses of art. The designs, few in number, would to-day be considered trash; the art of effective coloring, blending of backgrounds for borders, was unthought of. To-day these accomplishments are the subject of great admiration by all thinking people.

All this has been brought about by hard toil and perseverence during the dubious days, when foreign competition threatened to nip the infant industry in the bud It had hardy, unswerving men at its head, who have since passed to their reward. The firms to-day—although the personnel is entirely changed—retain the names of their founders.

Little do people think of the great amount of labor involved in the production of a roll of paper that they purchase, say for five cents. Before a sample of paper can be shown to a customer it might have cost the manufacturer from $500 to $1,000 to produce it. Then at its little value is there not reason for wonderment?

A buyer may order from a sample and six months afterwards receive the goods, but does not stop to consider the amount of labor and exactitude required in mixing colors to the precise shades, blending and tone of those shown in the original sample, nor does he waste a thought on the accuracy of the "fit" and perfect symmetry of the figures shown. Yet a true artist and colorist and many painstaking mechanics are required to do it.

From humble productions to the present day's rich designs is, in brief, the history of the industry. It has come through the various vicissitudes and triumphs until Canadian wall paper has earned an enviable place.

No. 2,793, a New Nine Inch Scenic Border, Shown in Nineteen Different Color Treatments.—Manufactured by Stauntons Limited, Toronto.

Indications for Spring.

During the lull previous to the rush for the wind-up of the season, manufacturers are busily occupied with the choosing of their designs for next Spring. From the most important centres where designs are originated they have gathered in a very creditable collection, which, with their thorough methods of production will put on the market a line which will be most difficult for outside countries to compete against. The wall paper season, although not really ending until after January, may now safely be estimated as one of the most successful on record.

At a general meeting of the Western Ontario Commercial Traveller's Association, nearly the entire staff of officers was re-elected. The list is: President, C. W. Nicholls, London; Vice-President, J. T. Green, London; R. E. Davis, John Lennox, Hamilton; Treasurer, W. L. Underwood.

There is an active demand for silk effects at present, and some elaborate designs in landscape effects are promised next season, which will surpass those shown last Spring, but as this line has not been very successful during the past few years, there is some little doubt entertained as to the success of it now.

Perhaps the most pleasing results of the past year were obtained from the high class floral designs. Again the tastes of the different provinces was evidenced. For instance, Quebec again showed her distinct taste for red tints and full designs, while the western provinces showed a decided preference for the soft shades and small, neat floral designs. The average weight of paper consumed was above that of last year.

The Touch of Spring

in all its fresh beauty and attractiveness appears pre-eminently reflected in "Staunton's" 1907 Wall Papers. When the Spring Season comes, as it will with a rush, you want to be

READY WITH QUICK SELLERS

You cannot afford to be stocked with Wall Papers that you have to sell by force. You should have that almost sell themselves.

Wall Papers

Staunton's New Patterns are Distinctly That Kind.

They are made to attract. They are made to sell rapidly.

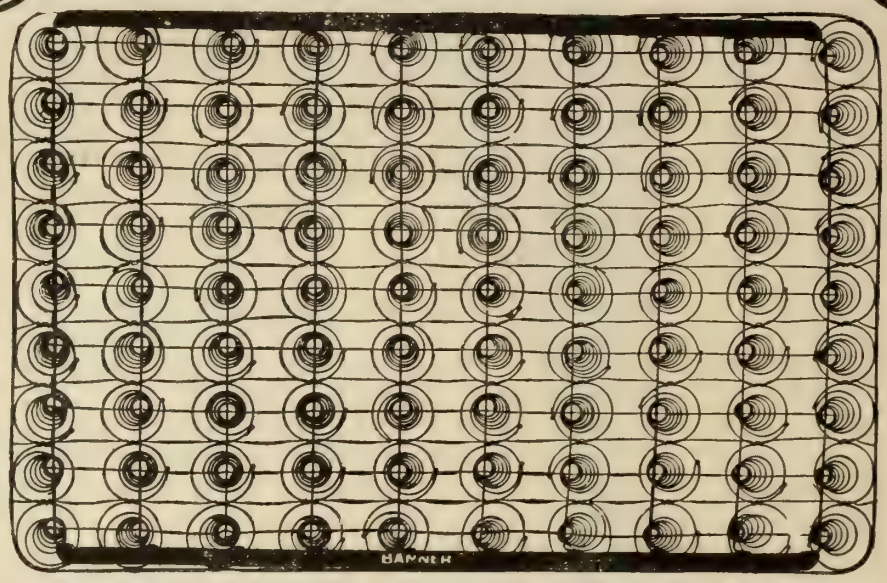
THEY BRING YOU GOOD PROFITS

Our travellers are on their last round-up. Would you like a call, or, perhaps our sample books to stock from? Send a postal. (Flat Prices on Borders)

STAUNTONS, Limited
Wall Paper Manufacturers
TORONTO

VAN ALLEN SHIRT BUSINESS SOLD.

The Crescent Manufacturing Co. Limited, Montreal, have bought a controlling interest in E. Van Allen & Co., Hamilton, Ont., and the firm has been reorganized under the style of The Van Allen Co., Limited. The Hamilton business will be conducted upon the same basis as formerly, and Mr. Van Allen remains in charge. The Crescent Manufacturing business will be conducted as of old and further expansion is expected. The buying of the interest of the Hamilton business by the Crescent people is doubtless the outcome of the shirt merger rumors of the past year.



DOWN COMFORTERS
COTTON COMFORTERS
BED PILLOWS
WHITE CUSHIONS
COSIES, MUFF BEDS, etc.

PRICE LIST ON APPLICATION

FEATHERS BOUGHT

The Toronto Feather & Down Company, Limited
74 King Street West, - - - TORONTO

GUARANTEED ALASKA BEDDING

THE "BANNER" SPIRAL SPRING BED

is constructed on unique lines. Each coil spring acts independently, compressing sufficiently to conform to every curve of the body. Springs bearing no weight remain in shape, thus preventing the "hammock effect," so objectionable in other beds. Busy men, who must crowd a whole night's rest into a few hours, waste no time "thrashing" on this "easiest spring bed."

THE ALASKA FEATHER & DOWN CO. LIMITED
MONTREAL AND WINNIPEG

GUARANTEED ALASKA BEDDING

TAPESTRY AND VELVET SQUARES

The Holiday Season brings an increased demand among the trade for all classes of Carpet Squares. We have prepared for this by having our stock complete in all sizes of the following Popular Grades:

"Empress," one seam, Tapestry
Sizes—3x3, 3x3½, 3x4, 3½x4, 3½x4½, 4x4, 4x4½ yards.

"Britannia," one seam, Tapestry
3x3, 3x3½, 3x4, 3½x4, 3½x4½, 4x4, 4x4½ yds.

"Countess," one seam, Velvet 3x3, 3x3½, 3x4, 3½x4.

"Imperial," seamless, Velvet
2¼x3, 3x3, 3x3½, 3x4.

Seamless "Mesched" and "Afghan" Axminster Squares
Sizes—4.5x6.6, 6.6x9.8, 7.6x10.3, 8.3x11.6, 9.10x13.1. In ORIENTAL and SELF-TONED EFFECTS.

THE IMPERIAL CARPET CO., LIMITED, 60 Front St. West, Toronto

KING'S
Established 1775

SCOTCH
Every piece perfect.

Scotch Hollands, for nearly a century and a quarter, have been recognised by the Trade of the world as the most reliable and salable shading made.

Hollands, of John King, & Son are handled by all the leading houses. Made in all colorings and widths.

FAMOUS
Sold by leading jobbers.

HOLLANDS

for its non-shrinking qualities, durability, coloring, and steadfast dyes. King's name on every piece.

They are popular because they are the most effective shading for the money in the market, and dealers can turn them over more quickly than any other.

JOHN KING & SON,
GLASGOW, SCOTLAND.

Sole Selling Agent:
SYDNEY MASS,
Nordheimer Bldgs., 8 Colborne St.,
TORONTO

Spring Lines Now Ready

We desire to call the attention of the trade to our New Spring collection of all lines—the best we have yet shown. It includes the latest colorings and combinations.

Qualities and prices are right

LINOLEUM

Made in five grades—A, B, C, D, E
In widths of 2 and 4 yards—30 yards long

Our Linoleum has established a reputation for itself as being second to none as regards

DURABILITY—ARTISTIC DESIGNS—VALUE

FLOOR OIL CLOTH

Made in three qualities—Nos. 1, 2 and 3
In standard widths, from 1 to 2½ yards

Known from ocean to ocean for their sterling worth

TABLE OIL CLOTH

In widths of 1¼ and 1½ yards

The increased demand for our Tables is the best evidence that they are productive of satisfied customers

We solicit an inspection of our range.
Handled by all the Wholesale Dry Goods Trade

The Dominion Oil Cloth Co. Limited

MONTREAL

THE MOORE CARPET COMPANY

LIMITED

SHERBROOKE, QUE.

MANUFACTURERS OF HIGH-GRADE

Wilton and Brussels Carpet and Rugs

"TOGO"

WASHABLE BATH RUGS
A SPECIALTY

A few reasons why our Carpets and Rugs give such good satisfaction to the dealer:

Made of best materials
Original designs and colorings
Over 300 patterns for selection
Repeat orders delivered quickly
Every pattern private to customer

Colors guaranteed dyed fast
Attention given special orders
Rich, heavy pile on Wiltons
Patterns always match perfectly
Estimates cheerfully furnished on contracts
Togo Rugs—best bath rug made

Customers always satisfied
Our prices lowest, quality considered

Full lines of samples on show at the Mills, Sherbrooke, Que.

WINNIPEG OFFICE - - 23 Hammond Block
TORONTO OFFICE - - - - 43 Scott Street
ST. JOHN, N.B., OFFICE - 53½ Dock Street

Mainly About Ourselves

We trust that the New Year will be a very happy and prosperous one for every dry goods man in Canada.

* * *

"We appreciate the improvements in The Dry Goods Review, and must say that you deserve credit for the accuracy of your information."

* * *

We have on file quite a number of communications from which extracts of this order might be made. They furnish tangible evidence that, during the past year, something has been accomplished, and encourage greater efforts in 1907. We wish to thank our readers who have been kind enough to state their appreciation of our progress.

* * *

During the New Year we hope to become more useful than ever to our readers, and we will be glad at any time to collect information for them on any topic relating to the dry goods business.

* * *

One of our advertisers, R. H. Cosbie, received a nice order, through the medium of The Review, from a firm in Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, the other day. In our columns advertisers may address themselves to the trade even in Canada's more remote sections.

* * *

On December 3, during a fire in the wholesale district the Montreal office of The Review was damaged by smoke and water. Many friends offered office space until repairs could be made. The damage was slight, but during the temporary disorder and inconvenience members of the staff were the recipients of many kindnesses for which they return thanks.

C.T.A. OF CANADA OFFICERS.

The Commercial Travelers' Association of Canada, at the annual meeting in Toronto on Dec. 27, elected the following officers:—Toronto board—President, Lewis A. Howard; First Vice-President, George West; Second Vice-President, Robert Gemmell; Treasurer, E. Fielding; Directors, J. P. Balfour, James G. Cane, Colin A. Cockburn, W. J. Micks, Donald Morrison, A. C. Rogers, S. M. Sterling, C. J. Tuthill and J. H. Wildfong. Hamilton board—First Vice-President, John H. Herring; Second Vice-President, Robert M. Stuart; Directors, W. H. Dean, Arthur F. Hatch, George M. McGregor, P. A. Somerville, John Stoneman and E. O. Zimmerman. Montreal board Vice-President, S. O. Shorley; Directors, O. Adair and William Creighton. Guelph board—Alexander Hill and Adam Taylor. Berlin board—Fred Doering and W. J. Moody.

NEW TRAVELERS' MONTHLY.

"On the Road," the new commercial man's monthly, made its debut in December. Typographically it is an excellent piece of work, and the reading matter is of a kind calculated to interest all knights of the grip and sample case.

Do Not Throw Money Away

The man who erects an awning in Canada which we do not supply is doing that. Big talk—but we can make good. Our awnings look well, work easy and stay fixed. A child can operate the biggest of them. That awning in the cut is three years old, 50 feet long. It has brought us lots of business. It will bring us lots more. Messrs. Ryrie Bros., the biggest jewelry house in the Dominion, have discovered that our steel roller awnings are the only perfect awnings manufactured in Canada—and use them. You want to know more about them. The right sort of awning does save money. Let's send you full particulars.

William Bartlett & Son

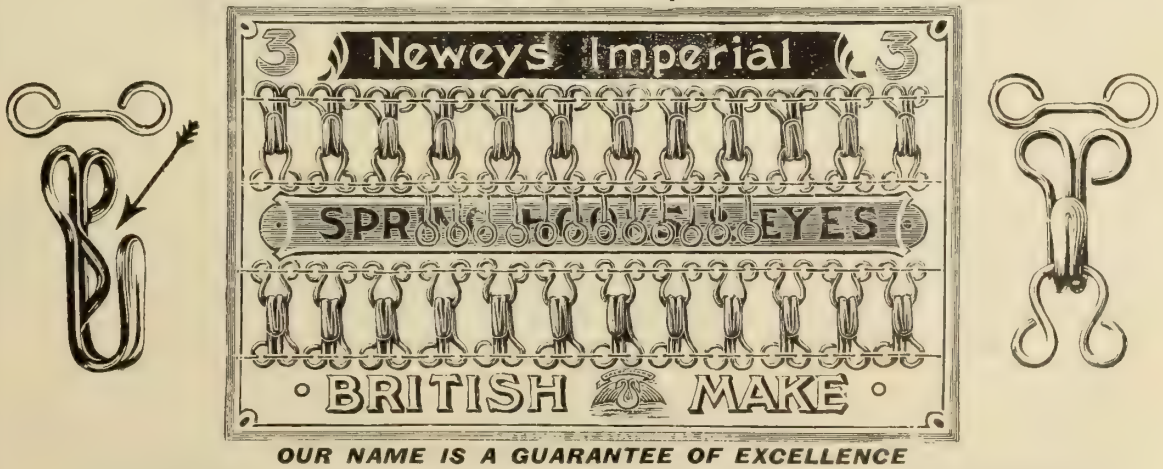
Manufacturers of and Dealers in Tents, Awnings, Window Shades, Flags, etc.

20 Adelaide Street West,



TORONTO, ONT.

NEWEY'S SPRING HOOKS & EYES.

IMPERIAL QUALITY

Made in 5 Sizes, Black and White. A Centre Spring Hook with a Swan Bill, made from hard drawn Brass Wire, Beautifully finished and machine carded.

Each Card has One Dozen Extra Loops. Retails at Five Cents

OUR NAME IS A GUARANTEE OF EXCELLENCE

Sole Agents for Canada, Dieckerhoff, Raffloer & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg

Buyers when in England, cordially invited to call and see these and our other productions.

NEWEY BROS LTD BREARLEY ST. BIRMINGHAM.

A Brief Review of the Offerings of E Department

Spring, 1907 Spring, 1907

This Department offers the trade an excellent assortment in the following lines:

Gloves

A large range of Fabric Gloves. We are booking large orders for Long Gloves and have secured some very special makes in Silk Suede and Lisle Millanese. We would advise all our friends to place their orders as there will be no repeats this year when once our purchase is sold up. We expect a shortage both in Long and Short Gloves as the season advances.

Laces in favor

Undoubtedly this will be a big Lace season. Vals. will score a larger success than in any previous season. French and English markets are away behind on their orders, but our goods are coming forward promptly. We show a larger range of staple Vals. and novelties than ever before, and our stocks will be useful throughout the season. Plauen Laces will be excellent property. Net Top Laces in great profusion. A large variety of fine Guipures and some new and profitable ideas in Lace Collars.

Spring Hosiery

Foreign and domestic markets are well supplied with orders, and deliveries will be slow. However, our early and favorable contracts enable us to offer you exceptionally strong stocks. All the staples and novelties are here.

A Great Ribbon Year

Staple weaves and the best of all that's new, briefly describes our stock. Prices are tending higher and goods are scarce Early orders are requested. Send us your sorting needs. Our buyer has been successful in placing advantageous contracts.

Splendid range of Taffetas (Chiffon finished).
Exceptional variety of fancy ribbons of all descriptions.
Some exclusive designs. These will be strong sellers.

Big Handkerchief Range

Our stock is complete in all staples of ladies' and men's Handkerchiefs. We have in stock a full range of all staple lines of these goods in both plain and hemstitched Linen for ladies and gentlemen. Also in Lawns and Mercerized Handkerchiefs.

Men's Linen Hemstitched Handkerchiefs, special value.
Ladies' " " "
Men's Lawn " " "
Ladies' " " "

Also plain hemstitched in above, special value; Turkey red Handkerchiefs, special value; Indigo printed border Handkerchiefs, special value.

The balance of our Embroidery and Lace Edge Handkerchiefs we are clearing out at special prices.

Exceldas were never more popular. Our range is easily the largest in the trade.
New ideas in borders.

Embroideries

Embroideries certainly promise to be very fashionable. Already prices have advanced fully 15 per cent., and repeats will be higher. The best selling lines are:—Corset Cover Embroidery, All-over Embroidery, Wide Insertions. We expect one of the best seasons for Embroideries that we have had for many years, both in Muslin and Cambric grounds, in all widths.

Bibs

Bibs we make a specialty of. We would ask you to be sure and see our Special No. 26. This and other leading numbers will assure you of the value we are giving.

Ladies' Underwear

Misses' and Ladies' in Balbriggan, Lisle Thread and Cotton, with full sleeves, half sleeves and without sleeves. Several lines in O.S. and extra O.S. sizes which we have entire control of, and will be found very desirable.

Neckwear

Ladies' Fancy Neckwear in great variety. Ladies' Embroidery Collars Ladies' Lace Collars. A full range of Windsor Ties always in stock.

Ladies' Sunshades or Umbrellas

Always a large stock at popular prices, including some very special lines at prices to sell at 75c., $1.00, $1.25.

Chiffons

Brilliant finish, 17½ cents up, 39/42 inch. Also narrow Chiffons for pleatings and frillings, ½ in., ¾ in., 1 in., 4 in., 6 in.

Veilings and Nets

A full range of the latest novelties in Veilings, Chiffon, Crepe de Chene Veiling. Novelties in Nets and Gauze with Chenille spots. Also a full range of French Mourning Veilings always in stock. Brussels Nets, Bretonne Nets, Malines, Mechlines and Mosquito Nets; also Point d'Esprit and Black Dress Nets.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

PLAIN TRUTHS FROM PARIS

An anonymous letter MAY be worth heeding but anonymous merchandise is rarely worth buying——or selling ¶ Mere business common sense suggests to the retailer the vast advantage goods that are trade-marked have over goods that are not trade-marked or trade-marked in an anonymous way. When goods are both trade-marked and advertised, and especially when the advertising is done so the retailer gets the benefit of it the shrewd dealer will push those goods for no better reason than his own sure and growing profit.

Any traveller for a first-class house carries samples trade marked thus. To look them over will cost you but a little time, profitably spent. Not to look them over may cost you much in profit and more in lost trade.

Pen-Angle Unshrinkable Underwear

has been trade-marked from the start. It is largely advertised. The public knows its value—pays the price asked for it—and come back to the same store. Do you really believe you, personally, can afford the effort that must be put forth to sell underwear of which all this is not true? And there is no under wear but Pen-Angle of which all this is true.

The Penman Manufacturing Co., Limited of Paris, Canada : : : : : : : : : : :

Men's Furnisher and Clothier

HATS AND THEIR TEMPERATURE

"Why wear hats?" During last Summer this question became quite a burning one. The matter, as it ere, came to a head. People wrote to the newspapers extolling the advantages of abandoning headgear and leaving the hatters to their fate.

Dangers which never before seemed to strike anybody very forcibly were declared to lurk in the use of the ubiquitous "bowler," (derby), the resplendent "topper," and even the airy if eccentric Panama. Baldness, blindness, and insanity were some of the evils for which the pernicious system of covering the head was said to be responsible in a more or less alarming degree. The public was earnestly requested to study the case of the rude and uncivilized races of mankind, among whom the impertinent question of "Who's your hatter?" is never heard.

A Toggery Window.

"Who ever saw a bald Bingo?" was triumphantly asked. And there was silence. And again: "Find us a Papuan in pince-nez," was the next poser. Nobody found him. Then, "What about a lunatic asylum in Ashanti?" proved a regular floorer. There was nothing about it. Presumably there isn't one.

All this sort of thing suggested that in countries where the hat is scarcely regarded as a sine qua non, baldness, blindness, and brain-softening are extremely rare. In England, on the contrary, where hatters flourish, almost every other man one meets is bald—or getting on that way—and wears glasses; whilst the official returns prove how rapidly lunacy is increasing in our midst.

Thus the No Hat movement was given a fresh and vigorous start. Many recruits were attracted, and seemed to catch on to the bareheaded idea of the thing. Piccadilly became as hatless as Capel Court, where a covering for the head is always scorned by the sturdy stock-jobber. "Hats off!" at Henley and Hurlingham; "boaters" barred at Brighton and Bognor! Cyclists and motorists caught the craze—and bad colds; hatters glared gloomily out of their shop-windows upon bare heads of brown and ginger and auburn and jet, close-cut or curly, until visions of lost trade and early bankruptcy troubled them.

It may be that the No Hat enthusiasm of the Summer of 1904, chilled by the rigors of an English Winter and early Spring, will droop and die and be heard of no more in the land, being relegated to the limbo of forgotten fads. Again, it may happen that the movement will go on and prosper, and solve the mystery of disappearing hair and other troubles.

Without expressing any opinion as to the wisdom or otherwise of going about hatless at all times, the writer will proceed to show the result of certain experiments carried out to ascertain how the temperature of a man's head is affected by the various coverings which calling, custom, or choice decides. A philosopher has before now impressed us as to the advisability of keeping "our feet warm and our heads cool, if we our span should live the full." And we certainly all know how unpleasant it is for us when these conditions are reversed and our heads are hot while our feet are cold!

Small Window Space Doubled.

Some No Hat enthusiasts declare that it is good for man—at least, for his hair—to remain bareheaded under a broiling sun for any number of hours. Perhaps so. Yet a rational head-covering under such conditions would appear preferable to the mind of the average person. For instance, in the course of the experiments with which this

The Brand that Stands for Quality

WHEN buying Gloves and Mitts it is well to confine yourself to one reliable, well-known brand—a brand that has built up a reputation for quality from one end of the country to the other. "J. A. P." Gloves and Mitts have earned an enviable reputation for superiority in construction, quality and wearing properties. Dealers who have once stocked "J. A. P." Gloves and Mitts continue to order in ever-increasing quantities from year to year. It doesn't matter what particular style or weight you require, we have it in the "J. A. P." brand, from the lightest and dressiest of ladies' and gentlemen's Kid and Mocha Gloves to the strongest and heaviest of workingmen's Mitts. Every detail in the construction of "J. A. P." Gloves and Mitts is faithfully watched by experts who know Gloves from A to Z. From the dressing and tanning to the cutting and finishing of "J. A P." Gloves and Mitts every pair is subjected to the most searching test; and that's the secret of the universal satisfaction the "J. A. P." Gloves and Mitts bring to every dealer who stocks this line.

Our travellers will soon be on the road with a full line. If you are not now on our visiting list drop us a line and you'll be on immediately. Prompt attention to all orders is a special feature with us.

J. ARTHUR PAQUET, QUEBEC

Branches at Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and St. John, N.B.

article deals, it was found that with the thermometer registering 92 degrees in the sun, a small instrument placed inside a Panama hat worn by a man of average size and weight, who sat in the open for a quarter of an hour, marked the temperature at 78 degrees Fahr. only !

The same man, of course, was the subject upon which all the succeeding experiments were carried out. In each case he sat for a quarter of an hour in the sun while wearing the different forms of headgear, inside of which a sensitive thermometer was fixed within an inch of the crown of the head. Each test was made on the same day, whilst the heat of the sun remained practically unchanged.

It may be stated at the outset that as an effective light protection from the heat of the sun on a warm Summer day, nothing is better than a genuine Panama hat. The tests proved this conclusively. Its lightness and power of throwing off the rays of the run are apparently unequalled by any other form of headgear.

Next in order of merit comes the fine white straw Homburg (fedora) under which the thermometer, in exactly similar conditions as in the Panama test, registered the temperature of the air inside it at 80 degrees. It will thus be seen that a good straw Homburg hat runs the more expensive Panama very closely as a means of keeping the head cool in the warmest weather. A great deal, of course, depends on the weight of a hat whether it proves a good or bad article for its purpose, and on this point the Homburg scored.

The difference in temperature between the popular "boater" (sailor) straw and its more aristocratic relation the Homburg proved to be exactly the number of degrees between the latter and the Panama. The boater, of course, owing to its greater need of strength, is built on less fine lines than either of its straw superiors. Consequently it is warmer in the wearing and heavier as well. It is the least desirable of the "straw" tribe so far as immunity from heat-conducting is concerned. Its registered 82 degrees Fahr. are somewhat surprising considering that it is produced only for Summer wear.

Having accounted for the straw contributions to the great hat family, the next head-wear to be dealt with is the "white" felt Homburg. Now, although the specimen tested was particularly light in weight and as pale in color as the lightest tone of grey permissible to be known as "a white hat," it proved to be much warmer in wearing than even the boating straw. Its appearance, no doubt, and stylish shape are responsible for its great popularity with many people who could easily afford the more expensive and cooler Panama, than which it is actually 8 degrees warmer, for the thermometer fixed inside the felt Homburg during the space it was worn for testing purposes registered 86 degrees.

The tests provided a surprise in the shape of recording the fact that a tall silk hat is by no means the sweltering form of headgear it is popularly supposed to be. For years it has been denounced as the most uncomfortable type of hat manufactured for the use of civilians ; it has brought upon itself the abuse of half a century from those who wear it and keep on wearing it. And to think that this so-called monstrosity of civilized wearing apparel is by no means the horrible thing of torture we are told it is, after all ! As a matter of fact, it comes out very well in comparison with some styles of headgear. It is—comparatively—airy and cool ! The particular sample tested, at any rate, was only responsible for an inside temperature, whilst worn, of 89 degrees, which is not so bad for a "topper."

Why are "mortar-boards" worn by men who are supposed to study hard ? One would think a cool head to be absolutely a necessity with college folk. Yet they wear this strange-looking article ! Close-fitting, and often heavy and made of warmth-inducing material, it may be good to wear during the colder months, but not in the heat of Summer. It produced, under the usual test, a change in the register up to 92 degrees.

It is interesting to note that the common "bowler" registered an exactly similar figure, although much heavier. The greater air space of the "bowler," no doubt, made up for the disadvantage of its weight compared with the more picturesque college cap.

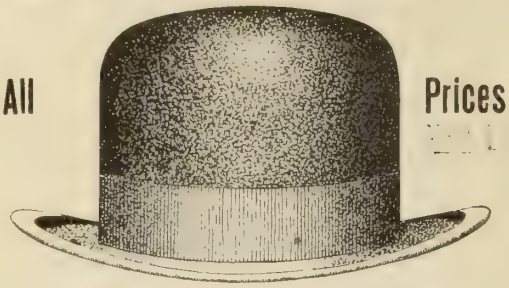
The Scotch tweed cap, as worn for cycling, golf, etc., showed just 2 degrees above the "bowler" and "mortar-board."

On the authority of Mr. W. S. Gilbert, we know that a policeman's life is not a happy one. Perhaps one of the reasons is that he is bound to wear his heavy helmet during the hottest day of Summer. Although it is really lighter than it looks, it is still, with its metal ornaments, ribs, and chain, quite as much as the average officer likes to carry along with him on his noonday beat, especially when the Summer sun loves to kiss the metal ornaments and linger on their lips, whilst the color and the material the body is made of would seem to have been specially designed to retain as much heat as possible. Under the test, the thermometer stood at 97 degrees — and quite high enough, too !

There is apparently only one form of headgear warmer than the policeman's—that is the yachting or motoring cap. Each is built on very similar lines to the other. When worn for its especial purpose, the yachting cap or motoring cap may be all right ; but when placed upon the head of an ordinary citizen and worn under a hot sun for even a short space, it is distinctly a roaster, and registers a temperature of 98 degrees.

It ought to be mentioned that the various tests were carried out indiscriminately, and are only now placed in order from the lowest to the highest temperature for the sake of easy comparison. — H. J. Holmes, in Windsor Magazine.

Clerks Should Use Cards



They Will Find it of Great Advantage to Themselves and Their Employers.

Every clerk should recognize the advantage of using suitable business cards. He is a merchant in as true a sense as the employer, and needs some form of advertising to promote business. The employer uses advertising, and finds that it assists him in the selling of goods. The clerk's best plan is to use business cards. Cards to be most effective should bear his name, that of his department, and the name and address of the shop in which he is employed. Hand a card, Mr. Clerk, to a friend on every suitable occasion, and acquire as many friends of the right sort as you can attract to you. It pays if Mr. Rich should pause at your counter some fine morning, make a somewhat heavy purchase, be impressed by your courteous manner and efficient method of showing goods, you could make a permanent and profitable customer of him by means of a card. When you hand him the change, an excellent opportunity is afforded you to say, "Here is my card." That card serves as a constant reminder.

Shadow effects in hose are expected to be strong. Greys and blues should also be very active.

The athletic style underwear is sure to be in considerable demand next summer. It was introduced last season and became quite popular.

Our Own Manufacture

All  Prices

A Spring Leader

Samples Upon Request

Cap Samples for Fall and Winter, 1907, now ready

Panamas Blocked to Order
Felt Hats Renovated

THE SPECIALTY HAT HOUSE

A. E. CLEMENT

8 Lemoine Street, - MONTREAL

CONCERNING SUSPENDERS

A PROVEN STATEMENT

Globe Suspenders are a silent salesmen for your store, attracting new and desirable accounts and KEEPING them.

The "Wizard" Suspender eases the shoulder pull, equalizes the strain. It retails at 50 cents with a generous profit.

The "Prince" Suspender is a 25 cent retail leader.

Complete lines of Suspenders, Armlets and Rubber Collars.

Samples upon request

Thanking our customers for a liberal 1906 trade, which is an assurance of even better efforts and wishing you A Happy New Year.

THE GLOBE SUSPENDER CO.

ROCK ISLAND, QUE.

WREYFORD & CO. Romaine Building, TORONTO

Wholesale Men's Furnishers

Latest Novelties for High-Class Trade

Agents for Following Manufacturers:

Young & Rochester, London

Complete ranges for Spring 1907.

Fancy Vests, Flannel and Tropical Tweed Suits, New Shirts and Shirtings

Tress & Co., London

Spring Styles in Felt and Silk Hats. Straws, English shapes are now correct, English values always are. Tress Caps are best sent into Canada.

Cellular "Aertex" Underwear

"Aertex" has only to be worn to be appreciated, it is daily growing in favor, it gives good wear to customer and good profits to retailer.

Cooper, Corah & Sons,

St. Margaret's Works, LEICESTER

Cashmere and Worsted Hoisery, "Nelson" Unshrinkable Knitted Underwear, Athletic Shirts, Sweaters, and Bathing Suits

We can ship you at once—Dress Shirts at $9.00 and $12.00, Dress Vests at $13.50 and $15.00 doz., Knitted Vests, Smoking Jackets and Dressing Gowns.

THE

Glove House of Canada

PERRIN, FRERES & CIE.

302 LAGAUCHETERIE, CORNER BEAVER HALL

MONTREAL

¶ To all our customers and the trade, we present our best wishes for a prosperous New Year.

¶ Our travellers will leave shortly with a complete range of samples of Lined and Woolen Gloves for Fall 1907, including the very best values, to meet all the popular retail prices.

AERTEX

THE ORIGINAL

CELLULAR

THE HEALTHIEST

Shirts and Underwear

Illustrated Price List, of full range of Aertex Cellular Goods for Men Women and Children, sent Post Free on application.

Agents for Canada :

WREYFORD & CO.

Romain Buildings, King St. West, TORONTO

THE CELLULAR CLOTHING Co. LTD. AERTEX LONDON

Overall Prosperity

For better profits and more all round Overall satisfaction investigate the merits of "Railroad Brand" Overalls

"Engineer Brand" Overalls

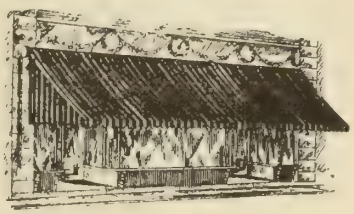
Roomy garments.

Workmanship guaranteed. Many special lines. Prices, from $4.50 upwards, meet every possible want.

"Victoria" brand working shirts will please your particular customers.

Up-to-date lines of Men's Working Pants.

And you will not neglect the opportunity to ask us for particulars.



Rock Island Overall Co.

ROCK ISLAND, P.Q.

SEND FOR CATALOGUE

Awnings!

ASSORTMENT :
Largest in Canada

QUALITY :
Unexcelled

STYLE, FIT AND FINISH :

PRICES : - -

They're ALL Right To Suit YOU

The TOBIN Tent & Awning Co.

OTTAWA - ONTARIO

Long Distance Phone 432

Head Office and Showrooms, 201 Sparks St. Works, 3rd Ave., Ottawa

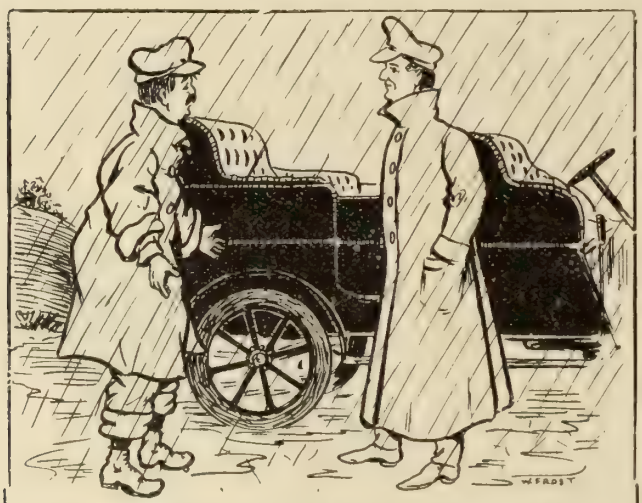
Special Announcement

We are now located in our new home

381-383 St. Paul Street, Montreal

¶ We thank the trade for their consideration during 1906, and advise our friends that our enlarged facilities and increased floor space enable us to look after your wants still better.

¶ "Growth" is the order of the day with us, as it is with every other aggressive firm in prosperous Canada.



¶ We invite the trade to call and inspect our new quarters. Here we are showing—

A Complete Stock of Woollens and Tailors' Trimmings

Silks and Satins a Specialty

The British American Import Co.

381-383 St. Paul St., Montreal

Motorist (wet through) Just look how my coat is shrinking!
2nd Motorist My dear fellow, why don't you wear GARBIRNETT?
Specially constructed weatherproof cloth.
The very thing fo automobiling, riding, driving, etc.
All goods bear this stamp.

"GARBIRNETT"
"JENNWEL"
WATERPROOF
REGISTERED

Sole Makers, JOSHUA F. GARNETT & SON, Castle Mills, Idle, Bradford
Canadian Representatives: GEO. S. PLOW & CO., 232 McGill St., Montreal.
A. ALEXANDER & CO., 77 York St. Toronto.
MAKERS TO THE WHOLESALE TRADE ONLY.

IMPERIAL

Our complete line of samples of "IMPERIAL BRAND" KNITTED WEAR for 1907 will be in the hands of our travellers early in JANUARY, who will cover the RETAIL trade thoroughly from Ocean to Ocean, with a range of STYLES, EFFECTS and COLORINGS that will surpass by far any previous season's showing of

LADIES' GOLFERS and JACKETS
MEN'S and BOYS' SWEATERS
LUMBERMEN'S SOX, TOQUES and SASHES
MEN'S HALF HOSE, Etc.

and a range of NOVELTIES that we have not previously shown the trade.

THE IMPERIAL MILLS COMPANY

DUNVILLE, ONT.

Sales-rooms: 60 Front St. West, Toronto

Shirts and Collars

More Attached Collars Than Last Year for Outing Wear —Other Points.

There will be a great many more shirts with attached collars worn next Summer than last, and they have been ordered freely. The negligee will again be the leader, although retailers have accorded the large pleated bosom quite a good deal of favor. We have already gone pretty freely into the matter of patterns and qualities.

The sale of coat shirts is improving right along, and every merchant should have a limited number of them.

In the face of advanced prices merchants generally are showing good judgment by maintaining quality. They recognize that this is the only way in which they can hope to promote the purchase by their customers of the better class goods.

* * *

The soft fold collar, held erect by the use of a safety pin across the front, has been shown for Spring, but without a great deal of enthusiasm. To one of his best customers a traveler said merely: "There they are. I'm selling quite a lot of them, and you ought to have a few."

The medium height fold with the very narrow opening will be a good seller, and the low fold with V-shaped opening is to be strong again for Summer.

CUFFS AND HANDS.

In a discussion of the probability of French cuffs (narrow round cuffs), coming into fashion, an English writer states that the wide cuff will survive because it appeals to the minor vanities of man. "If a man has good hands, there is no reason why he should not wear French cuffs. If you ask what a man's hands have to do with his cuffs, I say everything. Not so many years ago men discovered that large cuffs make the hands appear a little smaller than they really are, and nowadays every man has cuffs size 10 1-2 inches or 11 inches, and has the suffs ironed out flat. Substitute narrow round cuffs for the ordinary cuffs of commerce, and if you have not nice hands you will feel sorry you made the change."

Spring Neckwear

Some Indications That Are Apparent at The Present Time.

Whether or not the two and two and a half inch will supplant the three inch four-in-hand within the next season provides food for speculation in the trade just now, We believe the spring will find a tendency toward the smaller widths to wear with the straight old collar of medium height, but that the larger widths will still be decidedly in the lead. The generous knot tied with a three inch four-in-hand has an attractiveness that assures it of substantial favor for some considerable time yet. On a wing collar, which is to enjoy continued vogue, the smaller widths would make poor substitutes.

With narrower neckwear brighter shades in wide range will be encouraged. These are bound to be well represented in the spring lines, although the principal demand will centre on the quieter tones of the kind worn this winter.

We have recently seen some extremely "hot" colors in three inch satins. While they are in limited demand just now they serve as a forecast of what is to come by next fall.

For spring the leading color, in our opinion, will be red. Indications point to a big demand all through the range of plains and self-patterns. Grey should be an active line also. It will wear well with either blue or grey suitings. There is some slight feeling also that navies, with coin dot, should be strong.

For summer wash neckwear will be again to the front, and manufacturers expect to produce some exceedingly nice goods. One pattern that appeals to us as having fine possibilities is a cream or white with coin dot.

Of the bows we would be inclined to favor the square end, tying in compact, yet loose-looking knot, the same width right across.

It is too early to venture a guess as to whether or not the club tie is likely to put in an appearance.

LITTLE NEW IN HAT TRADE.

New features in the hat trade are scarce. Just now manufacturers in all quarters seem inclined to leave novelties alone, and stick to styles upon which trade is certain.

So great has been the demand for black stiff felt hats, jobbers declare that there will be difficulty in getting a sufficient supply for Spring delivery.

The telescope shape is the only soft felt hat upon which orders have been liberally placed. The brim will curve up more at the front than on last year's styles.

Suitings for Spring

Fancy Blues the Novelty, But Greys Still Continue Strong.

Fancy blues are doing well for Spring, but it is doubtful if they can in one season supplant the greys, which are reported to be selling almost as well as last year. The remarkable vogue of grey leads many to believe that the public is tiring of it. However, it has another quality besides appearance to recommend it, that of not showing the dust. On this account alone it is bound to receive a wide favor. Then, the fact that overchecks have largely taken the place of plains will relieve the monotony to a certain degree, and help the situation materially. There will assuredly not be so large a demand as last year, for there is something in the claim that the color has become monotonous to numbers of people, who, while still retaining it in purely business suits, will be glad of the variety which fancy blues afford. The latter are in wide range. Sales so far would seem to indicate that those peculiar shades with a purple tinge are catching the eye of tailors catering to fashionable trade.

Light shades of flannel, with stripe or plaid effects in grey and cream promise to be the favorite waistcoatings for Spring. The three button garment, with long narrow opening, and with lapels narrow at the top and broader at the bottom, will likely be most favored.

A DIARY OF THE WEATHER.

A firm of clothiers and men's furnishers operating several stores, have a system by which the cost of doing business is figured out exactly. It is possible to tell every day just about how sales and stocks stand. A memo is made in regard to the weather that prevails each day, and this assists in accounting for slow or unusually active periods.

COLOSSUS
SHIRTS
AND OVERALLS.
The Year 1906
will live as a memorable one in the history of Colossus Goods.
Not only has the sales of Colossus Working Shirts grown extensively, but the kind reception given to the new branches which were added to Colossus brand within the year, points more convincingly than ever to the fact that Size, Fit and Finish of Shirts and Overalls are features that it pays to specialize.
In the year 1907
COLOSSUS WILL COVER A LARGER LINE THAN BEFORE OF FINE NEGLIGEES
WORKING SHIRTS
OVERALLS and SMOCKS
and we are quite willing to rely on the merits of the Goods themselves for results.

A Question of Delivery

For the past few months the demand for SUCCESS Collars has been so great that our stock has become somewhat demoralized, causing at times a delay in delivery. To our friends we feel that we owe an explanation, and at the same time we wish to announce that we are making additions to our plant, which will tend toward a greatly increased out-put of this popular brand of Collars in the future. This will, we believe, put us in a position to solve the delivery problem satisfactorily.

The Manufacturers

A New Knitting Factory in Nova Scotia

Hewson

AMHERST

A BRAND new factory equipped with modern high-class machinery is now in operation making Underwear for Ladies and Gentlemen, also Sweaters, Golf Jackets and Knitted Specialties.

The Far-Famed Nova Scotia Wool will be largely used, also fine Worsted, Australians and New Zealands, imported from noted English Spinners.

Following is a partial list of the gentlemen who will carry Hewson Knit Goods to the trade direct—for Fall 1907 :

ALF. HAYWOOD, A. FINLAYSON } Ont. and Quebec
JOHN REDMOND, G. A. WHELPLEY } Maritimes
ALEX. BARNWELL and Assistants } Northwest and Coast

The merchant is wise who takes up the goods from the knit goods division of the famous Hewson Mills. His profits are sure.

Hewson Woolen Mills, Limited, - Amherst, N.S.

EAGLE  BRAND

SHIRTS

See our line of fancy Negligee Shirts before placing your order.

PATTERNS ARE

New, Neat and Nobby

WORKMANSHIP IS

THE BEST

Up-to-date in every way and prices are right.

MONARCH SHIRT CO.

ROCK ISLAND - QUE.

The Day of Buying Imported Cloth is Passing. One Reason Why:

OXFORD TWEEDS AND HOMESPUNS

have steadily increased in value as stylish materials. It is notorious that they are absolutely Pure Wool goods, but when the Newest Patterns and Smartest Colorings are added they certainly win their way on very merit. For men, women and children.

OXFORD MANUFACTURING CO.

OXFORD, NOVA SCOTIA LIMITED

MILLS ESTABLISHED 1867.

Davidson & Gatehouse

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

Jutes, Hessians and Cotton Piece Goods.

Open to accept agencies for first-class Canadian and Foreign Manufacturers.

Correspondence invited.

30 ST. JOHN STREET, MONTREAL

COMMENT FROM NEW YORK.

Following is some comment on the New York mode: There is a growing spirit of discontent in connection with men's dress, more manifest to-day than for a decade past. Of course, time never was' probably, since bodily coverings and adornments became subjects of study and concern, when men viewed themselves and their habilments with complete satisfaction. The youth who hankers to kick over the traces we have always with us. The frisky old popinjay with nary a grey hair in his head askew, the color scheme of his dress a reproduction of rainbow radiance, is omnipresent. The chap who affects clothes different from the mass of men merely to render himself conspicuous still flaunts his pitiable pride in public places. And this trio will ever keep things stirring. But when men of good taste and sound sartorial judgment voice their desire to break away from present conventional standards, time-honored though they be, the rustling in the trees must be taken as an augury of an impending storm of some sort. I reach this conclusion, along with others because of numerous recent developments. The spirit of individuality is abroad in the land and out of its many manifestations may come a new trend which in due course will produce a markedly different scheme of dress for men. That the changes will be gradual is a foregone conclusion. Gradual, but more frequent and more noteworthy, is the verdict of several men whose opinions in matters of dress are not to be depreciated. And why, pray, should there be any abject slavery to age-old forms? Assuredly the tailors and haberdashers of to-day are quite as competent to originate worthy variations in cut and design as their predecessors of former periods. Indeed, I incline strongly to the belief that as a class they would exercise a restraining influence over the element which worships the extreme, rather than leading into a maze of bizarre, ungraceful effects. At least, it's worth trying.

MARK TWAIN AS DRESS REFORMER.

Mark Twain turned up at the House of Representatives, Washington, one day this winter, clad entirely in white. Asked why he wore a white flannel suit in shivering weather, Mark said he had on plenty of undercloth-ing, and preferred brilliant, striking colors to the dark, sombre clothes that men usually wear, which have a melancholy depressing effect upon him. He added: "When a man gets to be 71 years old, as I am, he can wear the clothes he likes best without suffering the criticism which may come to him in his youth. The best clothes I ever saw anywhere were down in the Sandwich Islands, where when they were dressed up for a state occasion, nobody wore anything more than a pair of spectacles. Next to that, I think I prefer the clothes of the Middle Ages, which were resplendent with colors, plumes and trappings of brilliant hue. Whenever I go to a theatre I see a lot of men rigged out in that abomination of all clothing, the dress suit. They remind me of a flock of crows. I like the 'peekaboo' waist, short sleeves, and bright colors, which relieve the eye. There is no reason why men should not wear brighter colored clothing, especially these dark winter months."

A POINT FOR SOME CLERKS.

A man in very common dress asked to be shown clothing. The clerk pulled out an eight-dollar suit. The man asked for something better and continued to do so, as the clerk pulled out ten, twelve, fourteen dollar clothes and finally found one at eighteen that suited the man. The clerk plainly showed his surprise. The man asked why he was not shown better goods to begin with, and the clerk replied, "I didn't think you wanted them. I didn't think you wanted them. I would have shown them if you had asked for them." The blundering ass was so astonished he could tell nothing but his first impression. It is best to be honest, but you don't have to blurt out everything you are thinking.

Work your brains a little and have the courtesy to ask your customers what they would like to look at before you begin to slap stuff down before them. You can sell more of the better grades of goods if you will try. It may be natural to trot out a low-priced article under the impression that there are so many people after bargains everybody must want something cheap. It is not well to impress the customer with an idea of your store being high-priced because you fetch out the good things first, neither is it good business to fail to fetch them out for fear you may miss a sale. The goods are there to be displayed, and so surely as you attempt to cut off the display or attempt to go by short cuts to the sale you will find yourself in a very bad reputation by the customer.

Ready-to-Wear Clothing

Business Has Been Good—A Sample of Educative Advertising.

Business in this department has been excellent, and a strongly optimistic feeling pervades the entire trade. Ready-to-wear clothing has a great field before it in Canada, and manufacturers are striving constantly to produce garments that, while selling for less money, will compare favorably with the custom tailored article. They are getting splendid results, and their operations may be steadily enlarged if they continue to improve the quality of their product. Merchants who formerly would not handle the department have put in stocks of real good stuff, and are making money out of it. It is possible now to attract a class of trade, which, a few years ago wouldn't think to wear anything but a custom suit or overcoat.

Of course, in some places it is rather hard to break down the prejudice that existed for so long against ready-made clothes, and it is necessary for merchants to design their advertising with the object of making it educative. The following is an extract from that done by one Ontario merchant when he first started clothing:

Important News for Every Good Dresser.

"In no other branch of commerce has such remarkable advance and improvement been made as in the making of men's garments by wholesale tailors. It is now some years since the wholesale boot and shoemakers captured their fields to hold them for all time. The custom shoemaker and the custom shirt maker are now few and far between. It was thought, however, that there were conditions and requirements in the trade in men's outer garments that would save the field for the custom tailor, or at least a large share of it. We frankly admit that we ourselves, who have been identified with the custom tailoring business for 30 years, were of this opinion, not that we failed to recognize the tremendous strides that the wholesale tailors are making. We realized that they were improving their product every year, and that their standard was growing nearer and nearer to that of the high-class custom tailor. We felt, however, that the custom tailor would meet the competition for further improving his product and by better business methods. But the wholesale tailors were more aggressive and more enterprising, and there is no use of denying the fact that they are taking possession of the trade in men's clothing, just as the wholesale shoemakers took possession of the shoe trade, and the wholesale shirt makers captured the shirt trade.

"Having watched the trend very carefully, and having satisfied ourselves that we could get the exclusive right to furnish customers with clothing that was thoroughly well tailored, made from as good cloths as can be obtained in the world, well trimmed, well lined, good fitting, and, what is very important, absolutely correct in style, we decided to go into the business on a big scale We fitted up our store with the latest and most improved wardrobe system and other up-to-date fittings, and we have one of the most complete and most modern clothing stores in Ontario."

SARTORIAL WAGS.

A Manchester firm of tailors are now announcing their goods in the following facetious manner:—

Trouser Legs, 3s. 3d. each.
Seats Free.
No charge for admission.

—Manchester Guardian.

LINES OFTEN NEGLECTED.

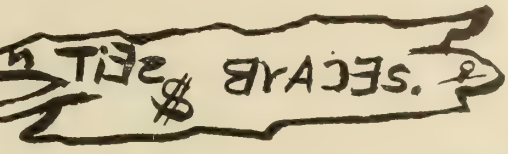
We have noticed very few nice displays of dressing gowns, smoking jackets, pajamas and bath robes in men's furnishing stores, even at Christmas time. It strikes us that, given some prominence, these lines should do a great deal better Some nice advertising would help also.

FOR THE SAKE OF SAFETY.

Mr. Smith had looked in at the new ledger clerk's house an evening or two after he had engaged him at his office.

"Let me see, Mr. Tomlin," he said pleasantly, "you like fishing, don't you?"

"Yes, very much," said Mr. Tomlin, wishing he was at that moment.



"Had you much sport when you went to North Devon last year?"

"I fear I was one of the unfortunate ones," declared Tomlin ruefully, "for I only caught one little trout."

"Ha, ha!" laughed old Mr. Smith. "That's just what I expected. Not much good my going there. Good night!"

"John, how could you tell such wicked stories in that way?" said the bookkeeper's wife, after the visitor had gone. "You know you caught over twenty fish weighing over five pounds each, and one weighed nearly eleven pounds."

"My good woman," said John, "you don't think I would have my employer think I was a liar first go off, do you."

YOU SHOULD LOOK

carefully through our productions for 1907 if you desire to be progressive, increase and build up your business by giving your customers excellent goods at the lowest possible cost.

NECKWEAR

You may depend upon us to lead in the manufacture of this line. Sometimes a bit too advanced.

SUSPENDERS

of the highest quality, best style and workmanship, well advertised, and every pair guaranteed. We cannot do better.

DOMINION SUSPENDER CO.
NIAGARA NECKWEAR CO., Limited
NIAGARA FALLS

OFFICES:

MONTREAL TORONTO WINNIPEG VANCOUVER

ITEMS FROM ALL CANADA.

ONTARIO.

James Watson, of Sarnia, died after an extended illness.

A Merchant's Association has been organized at Blenheim.

James Clark, a director of the Goderich Knitting Company, is dead.

Glencoe Knitting Factory has commenced operations with 25 hands.

Fire in North Bay destroyed the dry goods store of Chamandy Bros.

R. Lloyd Robertson, Toronto, was married to Miss Jean Hilliard at Ottawa.

S. L. Hahn, dry goods merchant, Hespeler, was married to Miss Clara A. Knechtel.

The stock of J. R. Grant, general merchant, Listowel, was almost totally destroyed by fire.

The title of Caverhill & Kissock, Toronto, has been changed to John B. Caverhill & Company.

H. P. Blackey, eastern representative of the Lowndes Company, Toronto, is on a trip to London and the continent.

Smallman & Ingram, London, will build a five-storey L-shaped block of stores, facing Dundas and Richmond Streets.

Messrs. A. Laidlaw and J. E. Oles, has purchased the men's furnishing business of Wm. Darnley & Company, Peterboro.

Mr. Baldwin, of the firm of Baldwin & Carrothers, Tillsonburg, has recovered from a recent illness, and is back to business.

Grafton & Company, London, have bought from the Beattie estate the Dundas Street premises, occupied by Oak Hall, for $28,000.

J. R. Craig, Havelock, has disposed of his business to Greenshields, and will go on the road for Nickleson & Dickenson, a London milling firm.

There are about twenty thousand commercial travellers in Canada. About ten thousand of them are doing business in Ontario, of whom, perhaps, four thousand reside in Toronto.

The stock of Watson & Wilkinson, clothiers, Sarnia, has been purchased by Harvey J. and William A. Watson, sons of the late James Watson, and the business will, in future, be conducted as The Watson Clothing Company.

Thomas Ogilvie & Sons, of Aberdeen, Scotland, will erect a five-storey warehouse in Toronto, at the corner of Bay and Wellington Streets. It will be 118 feet deep, and have a frontage of 60 feet, and the cost is estimated at $100,000.

QUEBEC.

J. H. Palmer, with Debenhams (Canada) Limited, is at present in Engand on a purchasing trip for his firm.

H. Symington, with Greenshields Limited, Montreal, is at present in England purchasing for his department.

B. Simpson, with Greenshields, Limited, Montreal, has left for market centres to book orders for the woolens department.

Louis Lazarovich has opened a store at Richmond, and will carry general dry goods, furs, and men's and boys' clothing.

G. L. LaFoley, with Mark Fisher & Sons, Montreal, has sailed for England, where he will purchase a large new stock for his firm.

E. H. Walsh of Toronto, visited his Montreal office last month, and with his manager, Mr. Hall, called on many of his customers.

G. S. Cleghorn, with the W. R. Brock Company, Limited, Montreal, who was operated on for appendicitis last month, is now convalescent.

W. H. Morgan, foreign buyer for McIntyre & Sons, Limited, Montreal, is at present in European centres making extensive purchases for his firm.

Louis Vineberg, representating the National Rubber Company, Montreal, is again in the city after an extended western trip, from Port Arthur to the coast.

Fred Groff, of the North-Western Button Company, Winnipeg, was in Montreal last month on business. He is the Western representative of I. Mishkin & Company.

L. Stuffman, of Konig & Stuffman, Montreal, has returned from an extended tour of the lace centres of Europe. He has some interesting accounts of European conditions.

R. G. Orme, of the Monarch Knitting Company, Dunville, Ont., has been in Montreal looking after the interests of his company in conjunction with their Montreal agent, A. L. Gilpin.

Mr. Pretorius, representing Theo. Thorer, of Leipzig, Germany, which firm controls the Persian lamb skin market at present, was in Montreal lately booking orders for early deliveries of furs.

Fred Beaugrand has joined the travelling staff of the Leak Fur Manufacturing Company, Montreal, and will cover Quebec. He was formerly with the Waldron, Drouin Company, and Swift, Copland & Company.

P. Glickman, of the National Rubber Company, Montreal, has returned from his annual European trip, and speaks enthusiastically of the prosperous conditions on the other side. He is pleased with the bright prospects for Spring trade.

Joseph E. Mahy, glove manufacturer, Paul Hebert, accountant, and Jos. A. Cloutier, trader, of Quebec, will carry on business as manufacturers and dealers in gloves, under the firm name of "Mahy & Hebert," proprietors of the St. Lawrence Glove Works.

On November 24, the stock of the North-Western Fur Manufacturing Company, 393 St. Paul Street, Montreal, was damaged by fire. With commendable enterprise the firm secured temporary quarters at 509 St. Paul Street, and within ten days were back at their old premises.

Emil J. Reich, who was employed with the China & Japan Silk Company, Montreal, died on December 26, at the age of 36, in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal. His death caused much sorrow among his friends in the trade, and to his employers, who held him in high esteem.

John Johnston died at Montreal on December 19, in his sixty-eighth year. For many years he had carried on the business of a commission agent, with an office in the Board of Trade Building. At one time he was a member of the firm of M. P. Johnston & Company, and was well known in the dry goods trade in Montreal.

Gilbert Falmon, one of the oldest and best known commercial travellers in Eastern Canada, for the past thirty-two years connected with some of the largest wholesale clothing houses, died at Cartierville. He was 72 years of age, and retired from the road only three months previous to his death.

W. B. Sellar, of Montreal, died in London, England. He was born in 1849, at Keith, Banffshire, Scotland. He came to Canada twenty years ago, representing Messrs. Heyman & Alexander, of Nottingham, and made his home in Montreal ever since. He was taken ill while on his customary trip to the Old Country.

LeFevre Brownhill, who has had wide experience in some of the largest retail houses in England, has been engaged by the John Murphy Company, Limited, Montreal, and has been placed in charge of the whitewear and underwear department. The firm brought Mr. Brownhill out from England as a competant manager, and he is making a success of his work.

On December 3, there passed away in Montreal one of Canada's oldest dry goods merchants, Donald Fraser, who was born in Fodarty, Rosshire, Scotland, in the year 1832. At an early age he came to Canada and entered the dry goods business, first in Picton, Ont. Then in Montreal, with his brother, in the year 1871, he entered the manufacturers' agency business, in which he was engaged until the time of his death. Mr. Fraser was a highly respected merchant, and his death is a distinct loss to Montreal business circles. The sympathy of his friends in the trade is extended to his family in their bereavement.

MARITIME PROVINCES.

Vinicombe & Murphy, men's furnishers, have opened a store at St. John.

A general store at Sydney, C.B., has been opened by Messrs. Gillis and Burchell.

The Glace Bay Knitting Company, Glace Bay, has opened a manufactory with a staff of 15 hands.

The Dunlap, Cook Company, furs, will move their Halifax business into new quarters, the marble front block on Bavington Street.

Miss Drewry, formerly milliner with Moore & McLeod, Charlottetown, has opened an establishment at Amherst, in partnership with Miss Lord.

Timothy Daly, dry goods merchant, St. John, died after an illness extending over some months. He conducted a store in St. John for twenty years.

The Amherst Suspender Company has been incorporated under the name of the Amherst Suspender Manufacturing Company, Limited, with a capital of $20,000, in shares of $50.

At a special meeting of the Geo. W. Gibson Company, Woodstock, N.B., Wallace Gibson and Loggie Ross were elected Directors. W. Gibson was chosen as Secretary-Treasurer, and Mr. Ross as Assistant Manager.

J. B. Douglas, the new president of the Maritime Commercial Travellers' Association, was formerly a representative of Smith Bros., of Halifax. He is now head of the firm of Fordham & Company, and a member of Halifax City Council.

Robert T. Holman, proprietor of the department store of R. T. Holman & Company, Summerside, P.E.I., died last month after several weeks' illness. He was born at St. John in 1833, where he began in the dry goods business. He was at one time a partner in the firm of John Andrew & Company. In 1857 he dissolved partnerships and began business on his own account. He steadily prospered, his success culminating in the erection of a handsome stone building in 1894. His business is being conducted by his two sons, Harry T. and J. Leroy.

WEST.

The Yukon Block, Brandon, in which W. H. Harvey, clothier, was a tenant, was destroyed by fire.

The T. Eaton Company will build an addition to their Winnipeg store, with a frontage of 110 feet and six storeys high.

In a fire at Macleod, which destroyed over ten stores, Baker & Company, dry goods merchants, were among the heaviest losers.

Calgary is becoming a wholesale centre of some importance. It is now the headquarters for one hundred and fifty commercial travellers.

Geo. McLean, dry goods merchant, Winnipeg, died at the age of 55 years. He was formerly engaged in the dry goods business at St. Thomas.

Plans are complete for a new dry goods store to be erected by A. Binning, Medicine Hat. The ground floor will be 40 x 65 feet, and the windows 6 feet deep, topped by prisms.

W. H. MacBeth, Saskatoon, did his Christmas business in a fine new store, 50 x 65 feet, two storeys in height. It is thoroughly up-to-date, and the methods employed by Mr. MacBeth and his department heads are progressive.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

John Walker, Vancouver, has sold his clothing business to J. W. Foster & Company, Limited.

BUSINESS NOTES

ONTARIO.

Henry Rotz, general store, Highgate, deceased.

Charles Steer, general store, Mount Brydges, sold out.

J. A. McGuigan, general store, Cowal, sold to Thos. Griffin.

A. Ewing, general store, Laurel, sold to John A. Hughes.

James Dobson, general store, Bronte, sold to J. J. Johnston.

Jas. F. Gahan, general store, Dutton, sold to W. R. McDonald.

Frank E. Welker, general store, Wallace, sold to Jacob Detwiler.

Richard Hall & Son, Limited, dry goods, Peterboro, obtained charter.

E. Van Allen & Company, Limited, shirt manufacturers, Hamilton, business sold new company being formed under style, The Van Allen Company, Limited.

Shera & Company, dry goods and furs, Port Arthur; C. H. Shera, deceased.

McKenzie & Duffin, general store, London Junction, sold to E. D. McRoberts.

J. R. Grant & Company, general store, Listowel, burnt out, partially insured.

Little & Long, general store, Orono, sold grocery department to Chas. Awde.

The Ronald Macdonald Company, dry goods, Toronto, sold to Alex. P. Manson.

R. C. Davies & Company, general store, Ethel, sold to R. A. Thompson & Company.

A. E. Adams & Company, merchant tailors, Aylmer; dissolved, A. S. Savage, continuing.

O. E. Moe & Son, general store, Rainy River, sold to B. W. Kert, possession January 15.

Thompson, Fowler & Robinson, wholesale milliners, Toronto, assigned, liabilities about $4,000.

W. H. Ecklin, Limited, general store, Keewatin, sold grocery business to H. J. Cummer & Company.

QUEBEC.

A. Blondeau, general store, Black Lake, deceased.

John Johnston, com. dry goods, Montreal; deecased

L. Weiser & Company, dry goods, Leeds, D. Weiser; registered.

McKibbon & Heney, general store, Eardley; burnt out, insured.

D. Aumond, general store, Montcerf; succeeded by A. Lafrance.

The Metropolitan Store, clothing, Montreal; burnt out, insured.

Donald Fraser & Son, dry goods, Montreal; Donald Fraser, deceased.

Parker & Knight, general store, Hatley; succeeded by I. S. Melloon.

J. Schechter & Company, dry goods, Lachine; Mrs. J. Schechter, registered.

A. Carrier & Fils, general merchants, Levis; Antoine Carrier, deceased.

The Montreal Custom Tailoring Co., Montreal; Alexandre Langlois registered.

Hoddad & Sawaya, dry goods, Montreal; A. Hoddad and N. Sawaya registered.

Gittleson & Lewis, manufacturers of waterproof cloth, Montreal, dissolved.

Joseph Fontaine, Fils & Cie., general store, Weedon, Marie Fontaine, registered.

L. Levesque & Company, general store, Lake Megantic. Aurora Lajoie registered.

Oriental Magasin, dry goods, Quebec; dissolved, new firm registered, style unchanged.

Le Federation des Ouvriers, Textiles du Canada, Montreal; Victor Desparois, registered.

J. F. Lemercier & Company, dry goods, Montreal; Hon. F. Lemercier and Marie Guilmette, registered.

The dry goods store of Charles Demay, Notre Dame Street, Montreal, (Maisonneuve), was damaged by fire to the extent of $5,000.

Gilbert Salman, 72 years of age, for many years a traveller with the wholesale clothing house of the late James O'Brien, is dead.

WEST.

Knight Bros., general store, Coalbanks, dissolved.

Moore & Milne, general store, Lakeview; dissolved.

Hall & McDiarmid, general store, Fillmore, sold out.

McDougall & Secord, general store, Edmonton, sold out.

A. Wilson, general store, Carroll, removed to Hatfield.

Barker & Co., general store, Macleod; burnt out, insured.

Davidson Trading Co., general store, Davidson; incorporated

J. Bloomfield, general store, Winnipeg; sold to W. Davis & Sons.

Munro & Company, general store, Heward; succeeded by Munro Bros.

Touchette Le France Company, general store, St. Pierre, dissolved.

Jos. Howard, general store, Cochrane; succeeded by White & Bayne.

Marcel Agarand, general store, Forget; succeeded by Anaise Agarand.

J. W. Jones & Company, general store, Grenfell, sold to Claxton & Son.

Hall & McDiarmid, general store, Fillmore, succeeded by D. M. McBeth.

Croosley Bros., general store, Newdall, succeeded by Leggett & Murphy.

Calvert & Wilson, general store, Treherne; succeeded by Samuel Calvert.

R. R. Gunn, general store, Stony Mountain, succeeded by Andrew Lindsay.

Wrighton & Flook, general store, Esterhazy; succeeded by Flook & Rowell.

D. E. Finch, dry goods, Winnipeg; succeeded by Finch Co., Limited, Jan. 1.

Probert & Wood, general store, Taber; Wm. Probert sold interest to Byard Smith.

Docker & Fraser, general store, Heward, dissolved, George B. Docker, continuing.

Colin McArthur, general store, Sunny Slope; sold to Thos. Roden and Stewart Macklin.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

G. H. Heward, general store, Whitewater; burned out, no insurance.

The W. C. Hamilton Company, men's furnishings, Fernie, moved to Edmonton.

MARITIME PROVINCES.

John A. Humphreys, general store, Sussex, sold to Culbert & Scott.

A. F. McCulloch & Company, dry goods, New Glasgow, N.S., burnt out.

R. T. Holman, Limited, general store, Summerside, P.E.I.; R. Holman, deceased.

Preventing Frost on Show Windows

A Subject That is of Live Interest to Every Merchant — How Windows Should be Constructed.

During the course of the cold season shopkeepers are confronted with the great inconvenience arising from mist and frost in show windows, whereby the goods on show are rendered practically invisible, and consequently cease to attract customers. In nearly every instance a careful examination of the window will show that the construction of the wood work casing, the position of the window panes or the lack of adequate ventilation is to blame. For the purpose of studying the question show windows may be divided into two classes, viz., those inclosed at the back and such as are open toward the store. The former is the one more afflicted with mist and frost, and this class alone will now be dealt with.

In putting in the window panes, whether the framing be of wood or iron, a row of ventilating holes should be provided below, extending all across the window front. These holes should be broad and set low down, but not covered with protecting covers on the outside, since these covers only catch dust and help to stop the draft. The idea is to cause a wide current of air to enter the window so that the same may spread over the whole front of the window; and this is more easily realized with wide holes than by round ones or vertical slits. To prevent an inrush of dust raised by the street traffic or blown about in the Summer time, a sliding damper may be arranged inside the window so that the holes may be closed when required.

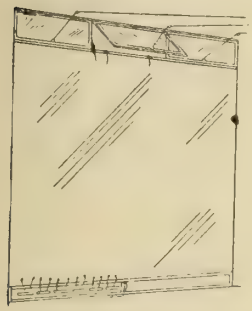

Fig. 1—Correct Method.

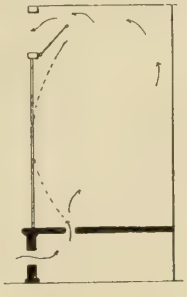

Fig. 2—Incorrect Method.

Above the level of the window panes window, should be provided hinged ventilators (Fig. 1), to allow the heated air in the window to escape out into the street. For this purpose a row of holes similar to those underneath the window would be insufficient, owing to the increased volume occupied by the heated air, and on this account the upper opening must be of larger area in order that the circulation of air inside the window may be intensified. This hinged ventilator must be mounted right at the top of the shop front, and open inwards and upwards, since otherwise it would oppose an undesirable resistance to the outflow of air or divert it, and thus lead to a deposit of mist on the upper part of the window. Furthermore, the inlet holes must not be surmounted by a ledge or beading that can deflect the flow of air and allow ice to form; and it is an equally erroneous practice to adopt the plan illustrated in Fig. 2, and extend the flooring of the show casing right up to the window, and bore a number of inlet holes through the flooring. In order to keep the glass free from frost the inflowing cold air must ascend close to the window panes and escape at the top without hindrance (Fig. 3). When this is possible the window will never be dimmed with either mist or frost, since the moisture that would be deposited on the glass is carried away by the ascending current of air the instant the particles of water are formed.

In some cases it happens that although the ventilation is believed to be satisfactory, the glass gets dimmed; but this is due to defective construction of the window frames or of the casing. For instance, if the door leading into the show window from the store does not shut quite tight, or there are any cracks or holes in the wood work, the warm, moisture laden air from the store flows into the cooler window, and a fine dew is deposited on the panes and mirrors. Hence the doors should never be of the sliding type, these admitting air and dust, but should open and shut, and be beaded and fitted into a rabbeted frame to make them air tight.

The window lights should be inclosed in glass cases, to isolate them from the actual show space, because in the case of gas the lights would heat the air more rapidly than the ventilator could carry it away, the results being a deposit of moisture on the relatively cold window pane. To prevent this the light should be isolated by a glass partition (Fig. 3), the compartment thus formed communicating with the store by means of a hinged ventilator or else left quite open at the back. Electric lamps do not give out so much heat as gas and may be installed within the show window when proper ventilaton is provided for the latter. A row of small gas jets extending right across the bottom of the window is of no use. On the one hand, it heats the air to such an extent that the glass will be covered with mist immedately the gas is turned off, and, on the other, likely to crack the glass by unequal contraction.

Mist and frost in badly arranged windows are particularly noticeable early in the morning as soon as the store is opened, the outside of the window having been cooled down by the night air. In such cases the mist or ice takes such a long while to thaw off that the best time for business has passed. Here, however, a remedy can be provided in the shape of a small electric fan mounted at the back of the window, with its vanes parallel to the front glass. Such a fan running at high speed will set up a powerful circulation of air in the window, and the direct current from the fan, impinging on the mist or ice, will soon cause them to disappear, leaving the glass clear and dry, whereupon the fan may be stopped. Of course there must be no obtsacle interposed in the path of the air current between the fan and the store window.

The principles underlying the suitable construction of show windows may be summarized as follows: The window must be thoroughly ventilated, so as to induce a good ciculation of air and bring the temperature of the air inside the window to as near as possible that of the atmosphere of the street. Doors and other openings communicating with the interior of the store should be made air tight. If these requirements are properly fulfilled, all cause of complaint of frost in windows will be obliterated.

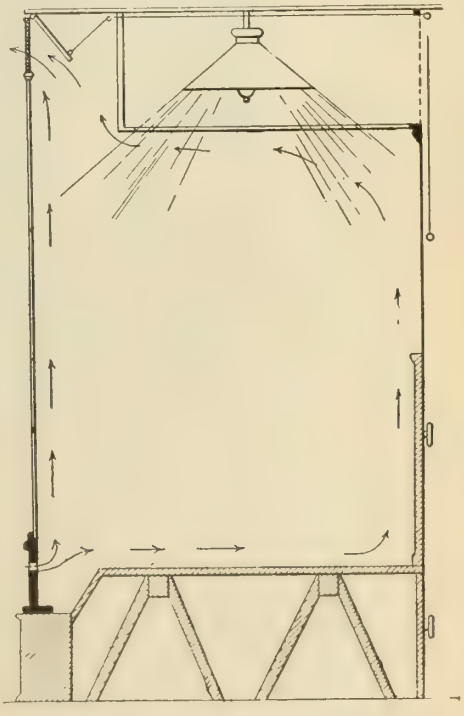

Fig. 3—Shielding Window Space from Heat of Lamp

We may supplement the above by stating that, as is generally well known, the physical conditions which create frost on window panes are exactly the same as those which create moisture on cold water pipes in summer time: warm air carrying its extreme complement of moisture comes in contact with a cold body and is reduced in temperature, rendering it incapable of carrying the same percentage of moisture, and what is more natural than that the excess of the latter should be deposited where the chilling process takes place, in this case, on the window pane. We anticipate that some difficulty will be experienced in making a window pane sufficiently tight from the inner store to render impossible the circulation of warm air from the latter. In this connection we would emphasize that, if absolutely still air can be obtained between the inner and outer glass, very little difficulty will be experienced from frost, even on the coldest days, and it has been found that double glass set in the same sash, leaving a space of, say, 1½ or 2 inches between the panes, and having the joints all around the four sides made as tight as possible, has given very good satisfaction. Apart from this construction we are not by any means sure that good results can be obtained under other circumstances.

We do not know of any solution or wash for putting on window panes to prevent a formation of frost.

N. W. Hutchings, of Montreal, has been appointed agent for Quebec for the Laurentian Whitewear Co., of Levis, Que. Mr. Hutchings has had a wide experience in the dry goods trade. He was for many years with Thos. May & Co., and later with A. Gilpin, manufacturers agent, Montreal.

W. R. SMALLPEICE
Director, W. R. Brock Co., Ltd.

* * *

Arthur C. Lederer, of the Lederer Machine Co., Aldersgate Street, London, England, is in Canada arranging for the introduction of his patent machine for the manufacture of wire millinery shapes. This machine does away entirely with the old block system of shape making and opens up great possibilities in the creation of new and individual patterns. Mr. Lederer expects to be at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, about January 15-20.

* * *

J. L. Gittleson will cover Western Ontario for the Sam. Wener Co., Montreal. Sam. Lagowitz will represent them in the Lower Provinces.

* * *

Countryman (to furniture dealer): "I want to git a bed an' a mattress."

Dealer: "Yes, sir; spring bed and spring mattress, sir?"

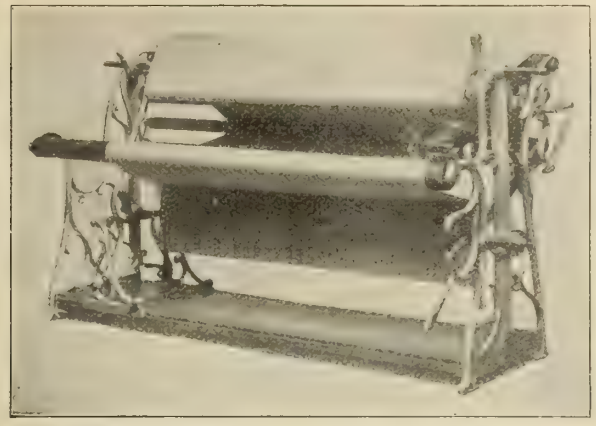
Countryman: "No; I want the kind that kin be used all the year round."

Dominion Hammock Manufacturing Co.

There's something about our Hammocks which hold the reputation for Quality their excellence gained as soon as marketed.

You'll have the Hammock the people insist on having---if you place our name on your order list NOW.

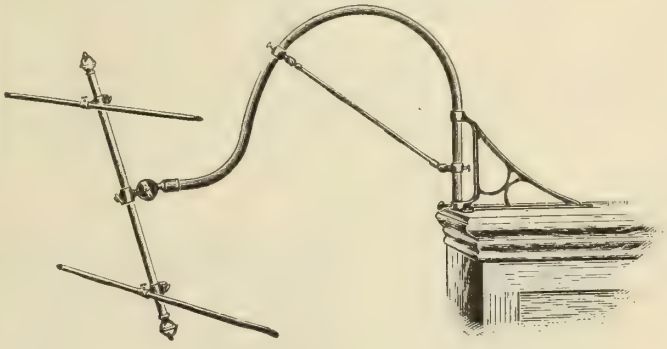
WRITE FOR OUR CATALOGUE



Feature Tapestry Curtains

if you want more business.

Ignore your curtain department and you woo commercial disaster.



We don't pretend to manufacture all good curtains---but we do manufacture the best. Write NOW.

Dominion Hammock Manufacturing Company :: :: Dunnville, Ont.

ECLIPSE STOCK-TAKING MACHINES

are in great demand just now. Stock-taking is a tedious labor without a set of our machines. With our machines it is easily, quickly and accurately done. Write at once for prices. Can fill orders on sight.

OVERHEAD FIXTURE

ECLIPSE STOCK-TAKING MACHINES

We carry everything in display fixture line, or can make special designs to order. Our facilities for turning out first-class work at moderate prices are unequalled by any other house in the business. New designs added constantly. Our business has been increasing by leaps and bounds for which we thank our numerous customers. For the year upon which we have just entered we shall be in a better position than ever before to take care of all business entrusted to us.

SILENT SALESMEN, WALL CASES AND SHOW CASES A SPECIALTY

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

CLATWORTHY & SON

38-40 ADELAIDE WEST, TORONTO, ONT.

Fashion Cuts

TO OUR READERS

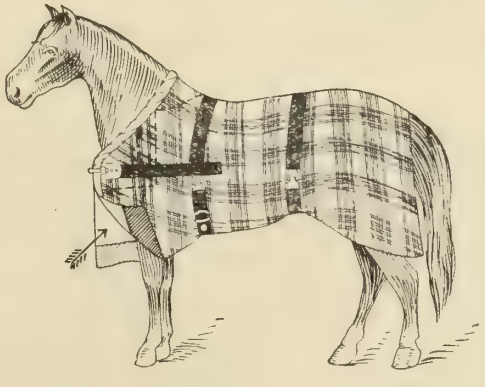
The Review uses monthly in its reading columns late fashion cuts which we secure from the old and new worlds.

These are only used once by us, and we offer these cuts to our supporters for their advertising work at the following low rates :

15 cents per square inch for half-tones
7 " " " " " zinc etchings

Only the originals will be sold.

When ordering please mention page and month of the Review in which the cut appeared.



Address :

MONTREAL
232 McGill Street

TORONTO
10 Front St. East

New Patent Woollen Mills

BOLTON, ONT., CANADA

BUY OUR

"WOOL-TEX" BRAND

HORSE COVERS AND LAP ROBES SOMETHING DISTINCTLY NEW

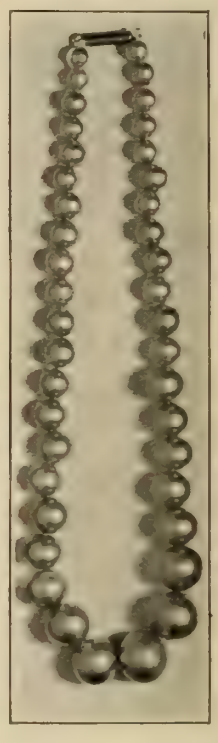
J. WALSHAW & SON, Props.

PHILLIPS & WRINCH

LIMITED

ESTABLISHED 1894

SMALLWARES AND NOTIONS



Our line of Smallwares, Hair Ornaments and Novelties for Spring, 1907, will be, as usual, right up to the minute, and contain exclusive lines not procurable elsewhere. We have goods that will bring trade to your notion counter—profitable goods for you. Our eight travellers are now out and will call on you in due course.

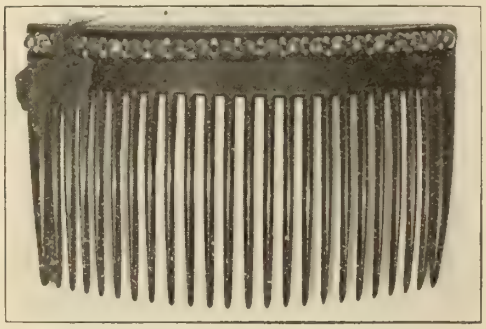
ELASTIC BELTING—Steel-Studded.

We have a good range of Cut Steel-Studded Belts and Belting to retail up to $6.00.

NECKLACE

Assorted Pastel Shades

Retails for 35c.



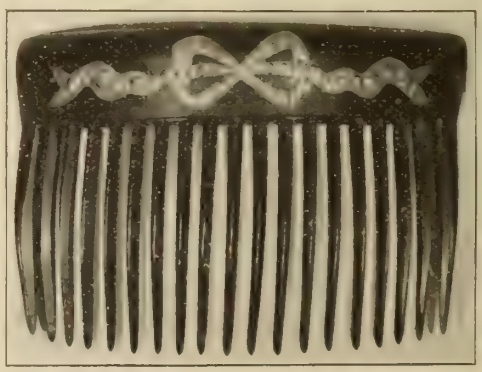
We have other lines in black and all the popular shades, to sell from 10c. to $7.00 each, including an extra large range of fine filled pearl.

We carry in stock Necklace Clasps.

BEAUTY PINS

No. 101 S. Gold-Plated Beauty Pin set with a nice Brilliant imitation stone. These can be retailed for 5c.

We have a full range of exclusive patterns to sell at all prices.



No. 6596. Fine, Genuine Steel Mounted Back Comb. Retails for $3.00 each.

We believe our range of

Hair Ornaments

is the Largest and Best Assorted in Canada.

We have Side and Back Combs and Ornaments to retail from 10c. to $10.00.

No. 6746. Hand-Finished Back Comb. Inlaid with Silver and extra fine quality Brilliants. Retails $4.00 each.

We are sole agents for the "CAPSHEAF" Coilless Safety Pin, positively the only safety pin that will not catch in the fabric.

Send to-day for an approbation parcel of quick sellers. You can return anything you do not wish to keep, at our expense.

PHILLIPS & WRINCH, Limited - 76 Bay Street, Toronto

Woodfield's Meteor Sharps are the BEST Needles. We are sole selling agents.

John B. Caverhill & Co.

Late CAVERHILL & KISSOCK

Millinery and Fancy Dry Goods

19 Elgin St. OTTAWA

91 St. Peter St. MONTREAL

72 St. Joseph St. QUEBEC

SILKS SILK HANDKERCHIEFS DRAPES CHINAWARE

LACQUERED WARE FANCY BASKETS

ANTIMONY SOUVENIR GOODS TOYS

The New Year is Full of Promise

In keeping with the country's growth, the past year has been the most successful in our history. This is a guarantee of even greater efforts during 1907.

We need a larger warehouse in Montreal and at an early date will take possession of more commodious premises. Full particulars later.

We think we have helped many of our customers to do a more profitable business in our lines. Anyway, we have done our best.

Our salesmen are now showing a good range of samples, with many lines of Easter goods.

A postal card to us will insure a call.

The China and Japan Silk Company LIMITED

MONTREAL

JAPAN
Yokohama
Kobe

CANADA
Montreal
Toronto

CHINA
Shanghai
Hong Kong

RUGS MATTINGS SCREENS BRONZES

Spring Dress Goods

This department of our business was never in better shape to supply your needs than it is this season. Anticipating a big demand, we bought largely in an early market and thus were enabled to secure the pick of the best foreign and domestic manufacturers at prices which cannot be equalled.

In Shape to Make Prompt Deliveries

Assortment now complete

STRONG SELLERS

Black and White Checks
Taffeta Checks
Taffeta Vigoreux—Plains, Checks and Stripes
Cream Suitings
Shepherd Checks
Wool Checks

POPULAR LINES

Henriettas
Albatross Cloth
Crepe de Chene
Box Cloths
Homespuns, Plain and Checks
Venetians
Nun's Veiling
Wool Batiste
San Toys
Covert Suitings, etc.

Leading Colors in Light Cloths

Black, Navy, Grey, Brown and Fawn. Black and White Effects, Gun Metal Checks, all good property.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg, Man.

Greenshields & Co. Limited
Vancouver, B.C.

Priestleys' Dress Goods

1907

LATEST SPRING FABRICS

GOODS NOW IN STOCK

COLORS—WOOL HUGENOT CLOTHS

Silk Warp Estrella
" Elanne
" Starita
Wool Galotte
" Corella
Satins
Amerlins
Marattas
Wool Maravo
" Panamas
" Averilla
" Taffetas
" Sylva
" Chiffon Worsteds
" Chiffon Twills
Chiffon Venetians

BLACKS

Blk. Sateens
" Estrellas
" Elannes
" Venetians
" Broadcloths
Silk Warp Eudoras
Rosettas
Wool Chiffon Tricot
Taffeta
Savoy Cloth
Ombra
Blk. Mohairs
Silk Warp Mohairs
Empress Cloths
Silk Warp Repps
Cerulian Cloth
Panamas

FULL RANGE OF CRAVENETTES

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED, Winnipeg, Man.
GREENSHIELDS & CO. LIMITED, Vancouver, B.C.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

CARPET AND HOUSEFURNISHING DEPARTMENT

Oil Cloths and Linoleums (all widths)	Tapestry Carpets
Hemp Carpets	Brussels Carpets
Prettiest Designs in Cretonnes	Wilton and Axminster Carpets
Nottingham and Swiss Curtains	Squares in all qualities
Large Assortment of Mats	China and Japanese Matting
Tapestry Curtains	Curtain Nets
Chenille Curtains and Covers	Extensive Range of Art Muslins
Furniture Coverings and Art Draperies	Silkolines

Examine our extensive ranges of the above lines and compare our prices before buying

Greenshields Limited, Montreal

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

HINTS TO BUYERS

From information supplied by Sellers, but for which the Editors of THE REVIEW do not necessarily hold themselves responsible.

W. R. Brock Co., Toronto.

The dress department is now very busy receiving spring goods, and expects to be able to complete all placing orders by the 15th of the month. Judging from the splendid orders received so far, prospects for the spring season were never brighter and this firm is showing a tremendous range of suitable materials. An especially extensive line is of worsted suitings in light and dark grey, in white and blacks, and in cream and white grounds, with a black over-check or stripe and also in grey or cream grounds with colored silk stripes. A special novelty is a line of fancy cheviots in cream grounds, with pin stripes and over-checks in pastel colors. This is just the right effect and fabric for the coming season.

Plain chiffon box-cloths and venetians are still in the run, the leading colors being golden browns and tans, and the lines shown are specially good value to retail at $1.25 and $1.50.

Another popular material is Rippline in plain weave. This fabric is made from the finest botany yarn and is a similar fabric to the Rekartah, which was such a success last season. It is shown in a good range of colors, and can be retailed at 75c.

Colored voiles are selling, the wanted colors being cream, tan, brown, navy and black, and this firm is showing two special lines to retail at 50 cents and 75c., that are specially good property for every merchant.

In plain lustres the wanted colors are cream, brown, navy, and black. This cloth is a necessity now for the spring business.

Two of Brock's special values are a 42-inch Panama to retail at 50c., and a 54-inch shepherds check to retail at 75c. Merchants should not forget to ask to see these lines when travellers call.

For immediate delivery this firm has just received a shipment of clan tartans.

Some of Brock's Specials in Hosiery :—Kantuch, Hermsdorf, black cotton hose, to retail at 25c.; H.H. 6 stainless black cotton hose, to retail at 12½ to 15c.; Invader, stainless black cotton hose, to retail at 10c. Cashmere Hose—Their well known III, Brockbest, New Cairo and Fern, all of which can still be retailed at 25c., in women's sizes, and 98 black ribbed double knee and with the word "Llama" embroidered on every pair can still be retailed at 50c. Stock of cashmere hose will be extremely large and attractive this season.

Umbrellas :—Brock's selection of handles and cloths, both for ladies and gents, has been most carefully made and good value can be had to retail at 50c., 75c., $1.00, up to $6.00 and $7.00 each. In men's "Shoofly" to retail at $1.00, Skidoo at $1.25 and Gohome at $1.50, and Ladies called "Shoot" to retail at $1.00, are values that cannot be surpassed by any.

Special purchases to interest keen buyers :—100 gross book pins, each containing 200 pins, that can be retailed at 3c. per book. The Enterprise pin, cheapest pin on the market ; latest New York novelties in back and side combs.

For January Whitewear Sale :—Their stock of plain and fancy muslins is complete, large shipments arriving daily. Keen buyers will inspect the following specials :—India Lawns—62 to retail at 10c.; 63 to retail at 15c.; 65 to retail at 25c.; Persian Lawns, right finish and weight, nice and sheer—G 20 to retail at 15c.; G 11 to retail at 25c. Victoria Lawn—L 34 to retail at 10c.; L 36 to retail at 12½ to 15c. Swiss spot muslins, tucked lawns, lace stripes, figures, etc.

A large range of embroideries is being shown, which, if bought to-day, would cost 25 per cent. more. Edging and insertions, matched sets, all-overs, etc., in cambric, nainsook, Swiss muslin and silk.

See Brock's Nuhilda kid glove to retail at $1.00.

Brock's lace department is full of the latest novelties and creations in vals, oriental, Chantilly, torchons, etc., together with black, white, cream, Paris all-overs, veilings, etc., in immense variety. See their carton lots of embroideries in the hands of their travellers—A.B., B.B., C.B., D.B., E.B., G.B., that can be retailed from 5 to 15c. per yard.

Brock's underwear department is well stocked in all lines of ladies' and children's that could not be repeated except by an advance from 10 to 15 per cent. Buyers will be looking after their own interests by placing orders early. Here are a few specials at popular prices to retail at 10c.:—41, half sleeves, 440, no sleeves, to retail at 15c.; 61 and 392, half sleeves, 340 and 460, no sleeves, to retail at 20c.; 441 and 111, half sleeves, 410 and 550, no sleeves, to retail at 25c.; 141 and 481, half sleeves, 570 and 590, no sleeves, to retail at 50c.

In spite of the famine in the glove market Brock's Toronto stock is large and attractive, and, in addition, good value. Some of their leaders that might interest you are :—B122, 2 dome lisle in black, white and colors, to retail at 25c.; B125, 2 dome lisle, black, white and colors, to retail at 50c.; B13, 2 dome taffeta in black, white and colors, to retail at 25c.; B9, 2 dome pure silk, in black, white and colors, to retail at 50c.; B135, 19in. lace jersey, to retail at 25c.; B105, 18in. lisle jersey, to retail at 25c.; B128, 20in. pure silk jersey, to retail at $1.00. These last four numbers can be had in black and white.

For stock-taking the perfection cloth measure, for sale by the W. R. Brock Co. (Toronto) is the invention of the age and time and money can be saved by any merchant procuring one of these from Brock's (Toronto) The price is $2.00. One of Brock's customers in the West writes that this measure has been found a great labor-saver. He sent in a second order.

Long kid gloves can be had at Brock's in black, white, greys and pastel shades. Nazareth waists can be had at Brock's (Toronto) in all the leading styles and prices. Brock's inform us that they have received notification of a 20 per cent. advance in ribbons. Quotations on tapes, webbings, etc., have been withdrawn.

The W. R. Brock Co.'s men's furnishing department is calling special attention to their line of Grizzly brand negligee shirts for spring, which is the largest and best they have ever shown. These are now being passed into stock, and a large number of orders already have been booked. Many of the lines shown are of exceptional value and could not now be repeated except at a considerable advance. They are also showing two lines of English natural wool underwear to retail at 75c. and $1.00 which are much below present market prices. French and satin balbriggan underwear are the best lines in the market to retail at 50c. Two specials in their men's glove department are "Bemson," an unlined kid glove to retail at $1.00 and "Royal" a silk-lined kid glove to retail at $1.25. Brocknit black cashmere half hose, all sizes, are now in stock again. "Success" linen collars, the best value to retail at 2 for 25c., all sizes and styles, are in stock.

Deliveries will be the big item in this season's trade in whitewear, cotton waists, wrappers, etc. The firm with the goods will be the one which will get the business. Laces, embroideries, etc., are already away behind and it looks as if it will get worse as the season advances. The W. R. Brock Co. anticipated this early last year and placed their orders accordingly. They expect to make deliveries of early goods in good time and will be in an excellent position to look after the sorting trade later on, but merchants should anticipate their wants and get their orders in at once, as the supply will not equal the demand. When May and June arrive the usual scarcity will develop, only to a greater extent than ever before. Brock's lines of white waists are better and fuller in range than ever, the numbers from $9.00 to $36.00 are the lines on which they pride themselves. These, taken in conjunction with the free illustrated circulars, are snaps which simply sell themselves. See the cuts in this number, all popular priced goods. The W. R. Brock Co. are showing three special lines in silk skirts, black, accordeon plaited flounce, dust ruffle, $3.75 each ; shot silk, all colors, $3.50 ; Colored (plain colors) $3.75 each. These are all specials from job silks.

The Claman Waterproof Co.

"The house that merit built" is the timely catch phrase adapted by this raincoat house, who have won an established place in the trade owing to the excellence of their goods and right treatment of customers. They have progressed steadily and turn out a full line of raincoats and tweed garments for ladies and children, to which every attention is given. Even those small parts in the make-up of a garment which are considered by many as unimportant, are given most diligent attention. Style and the highest possible standard in point of finish and material used are the lines upon which the Claman garments are made, and which enables the company to present them to the trade as the best that ability can produce. It is the years of experience that has brought about the excellence which characterizes all that the firm turns out. To have every thread genuine, every part of the work durable so that each seam will stand the closest scrutiny is their aim.

In an up-to-date catalogue the firm supplies all information regarding their products. There are cuts of the leading garments made by the firm, the variety of styles is large, showing the loose fitting coats, semi-fitting coats and the fitted coat. Children's coats are shown in a pleasing variety. Garments both of tweeds and in rainproof goods for ladies, children and men in all styles are shown. Not only is the outside shown, but at the back of the book there is a cut showing the firm's method of half-lining their rainproof coats for ladies and gentlemen. The last page of the catalogue gives full information as to measurements and general information as to sizes. The firm will be pleased to forward to any address one of their valuable catalogues upon receipt of application. It is one way of seeing a stock that cannot fail to please the most fastidious.

New Jacket Form.

The accompanying illustration shows a new jacket form manufactured by Delfosse & Co., Montreal. It can be adjusted to any height or angle.

Robes—Semi-Ready.

There is a big demand for semi-ready robes, both for present selling, and for the Spring and Summer trade. The Canadian agent for Wm. Liddell & Co. has just received a special set of samples of the latest effects in embroidered linen robes. The skirts are amply wide, and are cut with seven gores, and are handsomely embroidered in heavy padded and eyelet Irish peasant embroidery. These robes are not only high style, but are of specially attractive value, as they can be retailed at from $10 up to $25.

The same agent has also on view a line of late novelties in lace robes. These come in specially handsome patterns and combinations in spray effects in Honiton, and Honiton and Cluny, and they are just the right thing for handsome evening and reception gowns, and also for wear at the many fashion events, such as the Horse Shows, race meetings, etc., in the early Spring.

Hewson Woollen Mills.

The new knitting division of the Hewson Woolen Mills, Amherst, N. S., is now in operation and samples are on the road for the Fall of 1907. A particularly strong selling organization has been secured, among whom are Messrs. Haywood, Finlayson and Redmond, who have for years represented Campbells, of Glasgow. W. A. Ingalls, of New York, has taken a financial interest in the Hewson concern, and as he is an expert, and inventor along the knit goods line, the knitting mill under his superintendency should prove to be as great a success as has the cloth section of this thriving Amherst industry.

Another interesting New Year announcement is the fact that the well-known woolen manufacturer, T. Costello, of Lanark, Ont., has intimately associated himself with the Hewsons. Mr. Costello's wide acquaintance with the trade of the entire Dominion, as well as his practical knowledge of woolen manufacturing, will add much to the already strong forces in control of the Hewson Mills. Increased facilities are being added for a larger output of pure wool tweeds and ladies' costume cloths, as well as of the new line of fine worsted suitings recently placed on the market.

I. Mishkin & Co.

This progressive firm has felt the necessity of adding to their already large premises, and are adding, at the present time, another floor to their factory. The steady growth of their trade and the growing favor for their celebrated "Reliable" brand of waists has encouraged the firm to carry their trade into every part of the Dominion. The "Reliable" waists have won for themselves a leading place in the esteem of the trade, they stand for all that makes for the best in quality and value in waists. They are specializing for the spring a large range of lingerie waists of sheer whites, linens, lawns and Jap silk of the very latest styles. Their shirt waist suits of chiffon and taffetas are superior garments in point of finish and durability.

There are many unique points in the "Reliable" brand of waists which distinguish them from all other makes. They rank in a class by themselves which, when seen, are at once pronounced the best the market affords. The name stands for the best, based on merited success. The popular jumper waist has been made attractive to buyers this year, having points about them which place them in a high position, they immediately appeal to those with an eye to all that is good and reliable. Sales are facilitated when this brand is carried. Salesmen are now on the road and will thoroughly cover the ground. Mr. Mishkin, the head of the firm, will also go on the road, covering the principal places of Ontario. A postal card sent to the office will bring a representative to all those interested.

London Travelers' Club

The officers of the Travelers' Club, London, for 1907, are as follows: Honorary President, Hon. C. S. Hyman; Hon. Vice-Presidents, H. E. Buttrey and Donald Ferguson; President, C. W. McGuire; Vice-President, J. S. Townsend; Second Vice-President, Geo. H. Detlor; Hon. Sec., J. J. Dyer; Hon. Counsel, E. W. M. Flock; Auditors, J. K. Spry and J. T, Green; Executive, A. H. Brener, Fred S. Fisher, H. W. Luid, J. J. Harkness, T. W. Edwards, L. iC. Johnston, J. M. Ferguson and A. H. Moran.

Store Awnings.

Wm. Bartlett & Son make a specialty of awnings, and they point with justifiable pride to samples of their work at "The Savoy" and Ryrie's new store, Toronto. The former is fifty feet in length and the latter seventy. The firm claims special merit on lines from fifty to seventy-five feet, and also on any size for a prism glass front. The sprocket and chain attachment make it possible to raise or lower a very heavy awning by using a small amount of power. The firm's headquarters are on Adelaide St. West, Toronto. They cater only to a good class of trade.

The W. R. Brock Co., Limited, Montreal.

Indications are that there will be a good sale for ladies' embroidered hose this season, and the Brock Company have prepared for it by purchasing some very nice lines.

In plain black cashmere, the range shown is very interesting to the close buyer, very good values to retail at 25, 35, 40, 50, 60 and 75 cents being offered. Chief among these are the "Canadian Boy" to retail at 25 cents in sizes 6 to 10, and "Buster Brown" to retail at 25 cents also. "Llama" to retail at 50 cents is still going very well.

In balbriggan underwear the stock is practically complete, lines to retail at 25 to 75 cents being shown. The 50 cent line is particularly worthy of mention.

Then there are eighteen different lines of negligee shirts, prominent among them being S83 to retail at 40 cents and S85 to retail at 50 cents—both crackerjacks. Price is not the only thing that has been considered in making these shirts—there's no skimping of material.

In umbrellas, the self-opener to retail at 75 cents should go well with the retailer. The manager of this department states that the line offered to the merchant at this figure is something extra special and ought to make a hit this season. There is also a large range of the better class of goods, too, an umbrella to retail as high as $5.00 being shown.

Broadcloths and Venetians are selling very freely, TB1 still being a favorite in Venetians. Cream lustres are also in demand for the Spring season and intending purchasers had better get their orders in now as wholesalers' stocks are selling out very rapidly, and it takes some time to get repeats from the manufacturers.

Black and white check goods are greatly in demand and can be had from the Brock Co., to retail at from 15c. to $1.50, while the white and black overcheck material can be had to retail at from 35 to 75 cents.

The range of whitewear this year, to quote one of the customers, "is the best in the trade." The department was put under new management some time ago and things have been humming ever since, old goods being jobbed out and new, up-to-date material brought in. Orders taken so far for whitewear very largely exceed last year's business and things look very bright indeed. One of the innovations is the opening of a children's whitewear section, everything in the way of whitewear for children from birth to the age of 7. Special mention might be made of an infant's dress to retail at 75 cents. A visit to this department is well worth any merchant's time.

Greenshields, Limited.

Active ordering is the prevailing feature of the wash dress goods department. Good lines of prints, muslins, linens and shirtings are daily arriving from the mills. There are many novelties to choose from which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction to all the requirements of the day. Waistings are a specialty with this firm. In anticipation of an enormous season they have banked heavily on certain lines. The sheer white waistings are quick sellers, and orders should be placed early, as it is quite certain that owing to the mills being overbooked with orders there is bound to be a shortage. Swiss, Persian, India and Victoria lawns can be had at all prices. Jap stripes are being carried in a large assortment and are sure sellers.

Their lines of ginghams, flannelettes and shirtings are now complete for spring. Some bargain lines can be had which are of genuine value. The stock of staples is now complete and the company is prepared to quote prices on many lots which will please the closest buyer. Their line of overalls this year is an extensive one, and with it a big bid for the trade will be made. In this department many excellent bargains are to be had, and there is the best of stock to choose from. In the dress goods department a large stock is being carried, and it is being added to every day. The leader is the taffeta vigoreaux, in plains, checks and stripes. Greys, which are a strong feature of the market for the coming spring, are being carried in a choice variety. The gunmetal checks in black and white, are very strong, and this firm booked heavily in them, and the growing demand proves that no mistake has been made. Black and colored taffetas continue to be leaders and in these Greenshields can supply the best that these lines can afford. Tweeds and homespuns in light shades, greys and black and white for suitings are strong for spring. Plaids, clan tartans and Panamas are exceptionally good, and the stock in hand of these lines is calculated to meet the demand of the trade in general. A full range of the best furs ever carried, will be in the hands of the travellers this month, which should be seen by all intending purchasers. The Shield Brand of ladies' waists in a large range is being shown by the travellers. Lawns and Jap silk waists are winners. They embrace every quality which makes for the best in waists, and are of the latest styles. A large stock of ladies' wrappers in all sizes and of all prices to suit the trade.

The hosiery department has some special values to offer from a very large stock of domestic and imported cotton, lisle, plain, fancy, wool and cashmere hose. Their No. 8 at $2.25 and No. 14 at $4.50 are two of their special lines which are a genuine bargain. Among their lace ankle cashmeres is the Duchess at $6.25 and the Victoria embroidered special at the same price. The Princess Ena embroidered ankle at $4.25 is a line of merit, and the price very little for the class of goods. A full range of all colors is kept in stock to choose from. This firm has bought their large stock of gloves at a time which enables them to sell at a low figure, they are now in a position to supply all lines of gloves. The range of lisles is large and a big season is expected in the line. All staple lines of handkerchiefs they are enabled to sell at prices which prevailed in the early spring of 1906, having bought a full line at prices which prevailed previous to the increase of the market prices. The white linen handkerchiefs with four to six cords on the border are bound to be fashionable here soon as they are now held in great favor in the States. This firm has a complete range of them in prices from 60c. to $1.00, the 85c. line being the most popular. In view of a great season for laces the firm placed orders prior to the increase of prices and before the scarcity was felt in lace markets of Europe, this enables them to dispose of the well assorted stock at prices which would be difficult to beat. Vals. and net tops are in big demand. Guipure lace collars have again taken a hold of the fashion centres, and in these this firm can supply the demand to the satisfaction of the most fastidious.

In the silk department the bookings for stripes and fancy tartan checks are very big. The price of all silks are rising fast and it is advisable in the face of this to order as soon as possible, for those not covering themselves immediately will have a scarcity and higher prices to contend with. Plain and fancy poplins are kept in large stock and they are in a position to fill all orders at an early date. Grey silks are also good sellers and in this line the firm are prepared to meet a greater demand than ever before.

Thomas May & Co., Limited.

Notwithstanding the disastrous fire of the 9th of December their business has been very little interfered with, as they fortunately had not yet received their Spring importations.

They have moved into temporary premises, No. 16 Lemoine St., Montreal, and are glad to notify the trade that they have a complete stock of ribbons on hand, and are able to fill any order at once.

They have added to their range of plain ribbons a large assortment of fancy ribbons for this Spring, which are going to be a very great fashion, and should recommend themselves especially to the millinery trade.

They cordially invite all their customers to give them a call.

Standard Umbrella Co., Montreal.

It is important that the public should understand that in the past few years there have been rapid strides made in Canadian manufacturing of umbrellas. It is no longer a necessity to go to foreign countries to buy umbrellas; there is as good manufactured at home. The Standard Umbrella Company has been keeping up with the rapidly growing demand for goods of a better quality, and they have improved their wares to such an extent that they invite comparison with the best made. Their representatives are showing a better range of samples than ever before. The workmanship shows a most careful finish, and every attention is given to detail that makes for durability and beauty. A large line of fancy handles both in congos, boxwood, in pearls and metals, is being carried and the firm is sustaining its reputation as a concern which treats all orders to the best of their attention and ability. Owing to the scarcity of materials used in the making of umbrellas, there should be no delay in placing orders for Spring.

Samuel Wener & Co.

A raincoat house, new in name only, is that of Samuel Wener & Co. S. Wener, who for many years has had charge of the factory and purchasing department of the Montreal Waterproof Clothing Co., will look after the factory end. Mr. J. L. Gittleson, so long and favorably known as a raincoat traveler, has charge of the selling organization. The combination has all the appearances of success, as both principals will bring to bear upon their work a ripe experience. The firm is also supplied with ample capital. They have fitted up a model factory and are now in a position to fill orders satisfactorily. Mr. Wener has lately returned from an extensive European trip, and many of his ideas secured there will be found in the new line. They show an especially strong range of men's raincoats and assured sellers in ladies' styles.

John Macdonald & Co.

John Macdonald & Co., Limited, state that every department is busy receiving new Spring goods.

In their staple department Crums prints are coming forward very well. Linens are also a very important section of this department, and their showings of these goods surpass any former season.

In their woolen department are many of the newest textures and patterns in trouserings and suitings. Belwarps goods are still leading with the best of the tailoring business and John Macdonald & Co., Limited, are selling agents.

In their silk, dress goods, muslins, hosiery and glove departments, big shipments are arriving daily. Their dress goods sales for Spring have increased greatly over former years, and now that the goods can be seen in the piece are still more popular. In muslins their values are better than ever, and the same can be said of their silks, hosiery and gloves.

As usual their men's furnishings and haberdashery departments are very attractive and new goods are arriving daily for Spring season. Their carpet department is receiving large shipments and they hope in a short time to have their stock complete in every department.

In their letter order department they are leaving no stone unturned to make this department efficient in every particular.

A strong Combination.

J. L. Woods, manufacturers agent, Coristine Building, Montreal, has taken into partnership, Chas. E. Howard, formerly with Gault Bros., Ltd., Montreal. Mr. Woods has been in this country for about four years, and has succeeded in building up a good trade among the leading houses. He has had wide experience in England and spent some years with the well known London house, Hine, Parker & Co. He has, through his good connection secured the Canadian agencies for several leading English houses and has been very successful with them.

Mr. Howard was for twenty-seven years with Gault Bros., Ltd., and during that period was in all departments. For the past eight years he has been buyer and manager for the men's furnisher department, a position which necessitated his crossing the Atlantic twice every year. Mr. Howard is well known and bears an enviable reputation among a valuable clientele. With the joining of such worthy forces the firm of Woods & Howard should prove to be a strong

Condensed Advertisements

AGENTS WANTED.

WANTED:—An agent to represent firm of manufacturers of Nottingham lace curtains; apply, John Aird & Co., Darvel, Ayrshire, Scotland.

GOOD Agent Wanted by St. Gall manufacturer of embroidery, edgings and insertions, allovers and flouncings, blouses and robes. Please address offers to O. F. 2316 Orell Fussili, Annoncen, Zurich, Switzerland. [12]

AGENCIES WANTED

WANTED, a firm of good standing to sell on commission or otherwise our varied production of ladies' and children s costumes, jackets, paletots, etc. Apply Ellis, Hallen & Ellis, Sun Court, Golden Lane, London, England. [12]

FACTORY FOR SALE.

IN Rock Island, the manufacturing centre of the Eastern Townships, three storey wooden factory, 80 x 30, with annex 20 x 20 (two storey)-Good water power, ideal for light manufacturing purposes. Address inquiries to A. E. Cooper, Rock Island, Que.

WANTED

AN agent to represent firm of manufacturers of Nottingham lace curtains. Apply John Aird & Co., Darvel, Ayrshire, Scotland.

BUYER of Montreal dry goods store, residing in Paris, speaking French, English, German and Spanish, is open to represent a good Canadian firm. Apply Box P, DRY GOODS REVIEW, Montreal.

BUSINESS FOR SALE.

MILLINERY and Fancy Dry Goods Business for sale; cause of sale, owner retiring from business; full particulars on application to Walker & Co., New Glasgow, Nova Scotia.

WHOLESALE HOUSES

BROCK & PATERSON ST. JOHN, N.B. LIMITED.

The Wholesale Millinery and Fancy Dry Goods House of the Maritime Provinces.

MAIL ORDERS OUR ESPECIAL HOBBY.

GILMOUR, NEPHEW & CO.

Wholesale Dry Goods and Smallwares.

Are clearing
TABLE COVERS, CHENILLE and TAPESTRY CURTAINS
and all winter goods at bargain prices.

366 St. Paul St., MONTREAL.

TELEPHONE MAIN 2202.

CANADA HAIR CLOTH CO.
MANUFACTURERS OF HAIR CLOTHS.
St. Catharines, Ont.

COLLECTIONS, ETC.

THE MERCHANTS MERCANTILE CO.

260 St. James St., Montreal

MERCANTILE REPORTS AND COLLECTIONS

Our method of furnishing commercial reports to our subscribers gives prompt and reliable information to date. Every modern facility for the collection of claims. Tel. Main 1985.

HOTEL DIRECTORY

WINDSOR HOTEL
HAMILTON, BERMUDA

This house is pleasantly and conveniently located on the East side of Queen Street. The rooms are bright and cheerful. Every attention paid to guests. Billiards and Pool. Hot and cold water baths. A. McNICOL, Prop.

TOWER HOTEL GEORGETOWN DEMERARA
BRITISH GUIANA.

This first-class hotel is most conveniently situated in the coolest and healthiest part of the city. Five minutes from railway station and steamer stal lings, and near to all principal public buildings Cool and lofty bedrooms. Spacious Dining and Ladies' Rooms. Billiard Room. Electric light throughout.

WOODSIDE BOARDING HOUSE
Corner of Main and Lamaha Streets
GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA.

Cool and airy Bedrooms, Excellent Cuisine Attendance qualified. Terms moderate. Electric Car Loop at gate of premises. Patronage Solicited. Manageress, E. COTTAM.

VICTORIA LODGE
HAMILTON, BERMUDA

Mrs. J. F. SMITH Proprietress.

Opposite Victoria Park and Cedar Ave.
Private Board $12 to $14 per week.
Open Nov. 1 Closes in May.

WINTER RESORT
QUEEN'S PARK HOTEL
PORT OF SPAIN, TRINIDAD, B.W.I.

JOHN McEWEN, Manager. For Rates, etc apply Trinidad Shipping and Trading Co., 23 Broadway, New York.

THE GRAND UNION

The most popular hotel in

OTTAWA, Ont. JAMES K. PAISLEY, Prop.

DOMINION HOUSE
W. H. DURHAM. Proprietor

RENFREW, - - ONTARIO

The most popular Hotel in the Ottawa Valley.

HALIFAX HOTEL
HALIFAX, N.S.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS

JENKINS & HARDY
Assignees, Chartered Accountants, Estate an Fire Insurance Agents, 15½ Toronto St., Toronto. 465 Temple Building, Montreal.

PERCY P. DAVENPORT,
Chartered Accountant and Assignee,
622 McIntyre Block - WINNIPEG, MAN.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS.

The ANDREW H. McDOWELL CO.
(Incorporated)
Dry Goods Commission Merchants, Mill Agents,
Woolens, Cott ns, Dress Goods, Shoulder Pads, etc
Head Office: 329 St James St., Montreal, Que.
Branch Office: 1 Wellington St. E., Toronto.
Manufacturers accounts SOLICITED on favora' le terms

R. FLAWS & SON
Manchester Bldg., Melinda St., Toronto
Dry Goods Commission Agents.
Representing—S. & L. Ash Brothers, Leeds, Cloths, in great variety. Cartwright & Warners, Limited, Loughborough, Eng., Hosiery and Underwear. Bentley & Tempest, Leeds, Eng., Casket Cloth, Vicunas, Serges, Cap Cloths. Hood, Morton & Co., Newmilns, Scotland, Lace Curtains.

ALFERD WEYERSTALL
Head Office, 77 York St.
TORONTO

IMPORTER of all kinds of Buttons, Laces, Neckwear, Belts, Dress Trimmings, etc. Complete stock of Buttons and Tailors' Trimmings always on hand.

MOULTON & CO.

Proprietors of the old and reliable
MONTREAL FRINGE AND TASSEL WORKS
165 Nazareth Street, - Montreal
Manufacturers of
Braids, Cords, Barrel Buttons, Chenille, Dress and Furriers' Trimmings, Girdles, etc.

BROWN & ASHCROFT
595 St. Paul Street, Montreal.
Manufacturers of th
"B. & A." BRAND SHIRTS
Special values in Flannelette Night Shirts
Guaranteed full size Write for sample lot.

J. SPROUL SMITH
Empire Building - - - TORONTO

Representing: Cornwall & York Cotton Mills Co., Ltd., Cotton Goods, St. John, N.B.; Paris, Wincey Mills Co., Flannels, etc., Paris, Ont.; John Bright & Bros., Carpets, Rochdale, Eng.; Wm Ewart & Son, Linen Goods, Belfast, Ireland; H. Longbottom & Co., Cravenettes, Linings, etc. Bradford, Eng.

W. E. WALSH
207 St. James Street, - Montreal

SPECIAL LINES IN
Fancy Leather Goods, Bags, Purses, etc. Toilet Sets, Fans, Back and Side Combs, Brushes, Postcard Albums, Papeteries, etc., etc.

LEGAL CARDS

ATWATER, DUCLOS & CHAUVIN
Advocates, Montreal
Albert W. Atwater, K.C., Consulting Counsel for City of Montreal. Chas. A. Duclos. Henry N. Chauvin.

WM A. McLEAN.
Barrister, Solicitor, Etc.
Head Office Guelph, McLean's Block.
Branch Office, Acton, Town Hall.
Corporation, Solicitor, Etc.

ROBINSON & GREEN
Barristers, Solicitors, Etc.
John A. Robinson, John R. Green, Solicitors for the Imperial Bank of Canada, the Southern Loan & Savings Co., St Thomas, Ont.

combination in the business circles of Montreal.

Among the many lines they will handle are the following: Mercerized cotton and silk threads; cashmere, lisle, cotton and silk hose, including a line of hose with Viyella feet; fancy cardigan and knitted vests; silk ties, mufflers and handkerchiefs; serges, vicunas and covert coatings; natural wool underwear of all descriptions; yarns for manufacturing purposes; children's hats and hoods; boys' and men's jerseys and franklins; American fleece lined goods and worsted hosiery of all descriptions.

Greenshields Western, Limited, Winnipeg.

In the hosiery department, with the large assortment to choose from and the impossibility of getting repeats in time, we would urge merchants to place their season's orders early, so as to insure quick delivery. This also applies to ribbons, prices of which are steadily advancing. This firm placed large orders last Summer, before advances, and are selling goods absolutely at old prices. They also have a very complete range in ladies' and children's vests and drawers for Summer, comprising all prices required by western merchants as well as all lines of lawn, linen, silk, red and indigo blue handkerchiefs, best values to be obtained in the market.

This enterprising firm also has a very complete stock of smallwares and notions, including the latest designs and styles in ladies' belts, in silk, elastic, silver, leather and velvet, at popular prices.

They have as a leader a line of tapestry cushion tops which they sell at $2.00 per dozen, in all the latest pictures. Their range of Swiss embroideries is splendid and prices are right. They inform us that they have a larger and more stylish range of laces, in all makes, than they have ever had, and that orders are coming in fast from all their travelers for these lines. They have in stock, all colors in the celebrated "Orkney" Shetland floss, which they are still selling at old prices, notwithstanding advance in price of wool, as they had a large contract placed before recent heavy advances. They feel that prospects are exceedingly bright for a brisk Spring trade.

Progress in Overalls.

In the overall business no firm can show a more marked and steady progress than that of the Rock Island Overall Co., of Rock Island, Que., the hustling manufacturing centre of the Eastern Townships. The proprietor, S. F. Fregeau, established the firm some seventeen years ago, and from a very small beginning to a modern factory of three flats, with their own electric plant is in brief the history of the firm. Their overalls, working shirts and men's pants have an all-Canadian reputation for quality in its broadest sense. They emphasize the fact that all overalls are cut very full. Nothing is skimped in the cut or the veriest details of manufacture. Consumers are assured of roomy garments with big seats and wide legs. A size 36 is as large as a 38 of other manufacturers. All goods are double stitched, avoiding all raw edges. Goods are cut as carefully as men's high grade pants. The line embraces everything in overalls and smocks, one special line of overalls, the railroad brand, has seven pockets, a watch pocket, a pencil, a rule, two front and two back pockets. Another line has double front, double seat and double knee. The engineer brand is another of their specials. Extra attention is paid to fasteners, snap fasteners are usually applied. Prices range from $4.50 upwards.

Special lines of grocers' coats are made. They make a full line of special working shirts under the Victoria brand, using the best materials and they emphasize the fact that all their goods are roomy. Prices range from $5.50 to $9.00 per dozen. Men's pants are up-to-date in every respect, and range from $12 to $24 per dozen.

CONTENTS

A

After the Shutters are up 50
A Nice Interior 58
Art of Display 85

B

Bank of Montreal Report 70
Business Management 66
Business Notes 215

C

Cash Basis of Doing Business 52
Carpets 187
Clerks Who Have Ideas 178
Clive Works, Redditch 96
Competition of Catalogue Houses 60
Cost of a Modern Store Front 51
Cost of Doing Business 62

D

Dress Goods 167
Dress Accessories 133
Duty on Packing Cases 157

E

Editorial 162

F

Fancy Goods and Notions 157
Footwear in Dry Goods Store 79
Furs 119

G

General Merchant to Railway Magnate 158
Good Advertising 16

H

Hints to Buyers 225
Housefurnishings 187

I

Items From all Canada 211

K

Knitted Goods 109

M

Mainly About Ourselves 196
Manitoba Dry Goods Trade 130
Men's Furnisher 201
Millinery 173
Men and Methods 41
Montreal D. G. Ass'n. 175
Most Successful Ideas 57

N

New Cotton Mills 128
New York Modes 176

O

One of the Best Stores 61

P

Paris Fashions 180
Practical Salesmanship 78
Price Conditions in 1906 73
Preventing Frost on Windows 217
Proposed Postal Express 184

R

Ready-to-Wear Garments 115

S

Show Card Writing 81
Staples 127
Systems of Handling Parcels 56
Successful Millinery Depts. 65

T

Timely Topics 80
Trade Inquiries 95
Two Montreal Fires 116

V

Value of Interior Decoration 88

W

Wall Paper 192
Why Retailers Organize 68
Window Shades 190

CLASSIFIED LIST OF ADVERTISEMENTS.

Accountants, Auditors.
Davenport, P. P., Winnipeg.
Jenkins & Hardy, Toronto.

Awnings, Tents, Etc
Bartlett, Wm., & Son, Toronto.
Tobin Tent & Awning Co., Ottawa.

Blankets, Quilts, Traveling Rugs, etc.
Alaska Feather & Down Co., Montreal and Winnipeg.
Dr. Jaeger's Sanitary Woollen System Co., Limited, Montreal.
Toronto Feather & Down Co., Toronto.

Boots and Shoes.
Campbell, The, Shoe Co., Quebec, P.Q.

Button Machines and Buttons.
Defiance Button Machine Co., New York.
Imperial Button Works, Montreal.
Merchants Button Co., Waterloo.
Shantz, I. Y., & Son Co., Berlin, Ont.

Carpets, Curtains, Rugs, Window Shades, etc.
Brock, W. R. Co., Toronto and Montreal.
Daly & Morin, Montreal.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Garneau, P., Fils & Cie, Quebec
Hees, Geo. H., Son & Co., Montreal and Toronto.
Imperial Carpet Co., Toronto.
Ishikawa, K., & Co., Toronto.
Knox, John & Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Macdonald, John, & Co., Toronto.
McRae & Walker, Winnipeg.
McDowell, A. H., & Co., Montreal.
Moore Carpet Co , Sherbrooke, Que.

Cloaks, Costumes, Skirts, Shirt Waists, Raincoats, etc.
American Silk Waist Co., Montreal.
Belmont Mfg. Co., Limited, Montreal.
Brock, W. R., Co., Toronto and Montreal.
Canada Cloak Co., Toronto.
China & Japan Silk Co., Montreal.
Empire Mfg. Co , Montreal
Fairbairn, Rhys. D., Toronto.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Hart Mfg. Co., Montreal.
Knox, John, Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Mishkin, I., & Co., Montreal.
Rylands & Sons, Manchester, Eng.

Corsets.
E. T. Mfg. Co., Montreal.
Konig & Stuffman, Montreal.
Parisian Corset Mfg. Co., Quebec.

Cottons, Prints, Muslins, Shirtings, etc.
Dominion Textile Co., Montreal.
Garneau, P. Fils & Cie, Quebec, P.Q.
Horrockses, Crewdson & Co., Manchester and London, Eng.
"Kingcot" Cottons.
Knox, John, & Co., Hamilton.
Montreal Cotton Co., Montreal.
Rylands & Sons, Manchester, Eng.
Victor Mfg. Co., Quebec.

Cotton Batting.
Dominion Wadding Co., Montreal.

Dress Goods, Silks, etc.
Bradford Dyers Association, Bradford, Eng.
Brock, W. R., Co., Toronto and Montreal.
Brophy-Cains, Limited, Montreal.
China & Japan Silk Co., Ltd., Montreal.
Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Montreal and Toronto.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Garneau, P., Fils & Cie., Quebec.
Gilmour, Nephew & Co., Montreal.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Harris & Co., Rockwood, Ont.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal.
Ishikawa, K., & Co., Toronto.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Macdonald, John, & Co., Toronto.
McDowell, A. H., & Co., Montreal.
Montreal Cotton Co., Montreal.
Priestleys'—Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Priestlys'—Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Rylands & Sons, Manchester, Eng.

Dress Shields, etc.
Kleinert, I. B., Rubber Co., Toronto.

Dryers, Cleaners, etc.
Bradford Dyers Ass'n., London, Eng.
British American Dyeing Co., Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and Quebec.
Hermsdorf, Louis, New York.
Parker, R., & Co., Toronto.

Leather Fancy Goods.
Walsh, W. E., Montreal.

Flannels, Flannelettes, etc.
Brock, W. R., Co., Toronto.
Brophy-Cains, Limited, Montreal.
Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Toronto.
Dominion Textile Co., Montreal.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Horrockses, Crewdson & Co., Manchester and London, Eng.
Knox, John, & Co., Hamilton.

Frillings.
Fairbairn, Rhys D., Toronto.
Plantagenet Frillings (C. H. Hill & Co.), Nottingham, Eng.

Furs.
Alexandor, A. J., Montreal.
Edgar, John, & Co., Montreal.
Greenleese, S. T., & Sons, Montreal.
Hart Mfg. Co., Montreal.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal
Livingstone Mfg. Co., Montreal.
McComber & Cummings, Montreal.
North Western Fur Mfg. Co., Montreal.
Orr, Wm. E., & Co., Toronto.
Paquet, J. Arthur, Quebec.
Schwersenski, A., & Co., Montreal.
Silver, M., & Co., Montreal.

General Dry Goods.
Brock, W. R., Co., Montreal and Toronto.
Brophy-Cains, Limited, Montreal.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Gilmour, Nephew & Co., Montreal.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal.
Knox, John, Co., Hamilton.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Macdonald, John, & Co., Toronto.
Revillon Bros., Montreal.
Rylands & Sons, Manchester, Eng.

Gloves, Mittens, etc.
Fownes Bros. & Co., Montreal.
Galibert, Fred Montreal.
Paquet, J. Arthur, Quebec.
Perrin-Freres & Cie, Montreal.
Pewny's Kid Gloves—Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Storey, W. H. & Sons, Acton.
Wreyford & Co., Toronto.

Hats, Caps, Etc.
Clement, A. E., Montreal.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Paquet, J. Arthur, Quebec.
Wreyford & Co., Toronto.
Vyse, Sons & Co., Ltd., London, Eng.

Horse Blankets.
Walshaw, J., & Son., Bolton, Ont.

Hose Supporters.
Eisman Novelty Mfg. Co., Toronto.
Kleinert, I. B., Rubber Co., Toronto.

Knit Underwaists.
Nazareth Waist Co., New York.

Laces and Veils.
Brophy-Cains Limited, Montreal.
Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Toronto.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Knox, John, & Co., Hamilton.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
May, Thomas, & Co., Ltd., Montreal.
Sandersons, Limited, Toronto.

Ladies' Neckwear.
Fairbairn, Rhys D. Toronto.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal.
Knox, John, & Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Ladies' Wear, Ltd., Toronto.
Sandersons, Limited, Toronto.

Mending Wools, Silk, Cotton and Linen Thread, etc.
Baldwin & Partners, J. & J., Leicester, Eng.
De Gruchy, Philip, Montreal.
Frank & Bryce, Montreal.
Ross, G. D., & Co., Montreal.

Men's and Boys' Ready-Made Clothing (Overalls, Leather and Rain-coats, Sweaters, etc.).
Belmont Mfg. Co., Montreal.
Brock, W. R., Co., Toronto and Montreal.
Garland, John M., Son, & Co., Ottawa.
Garnett, J. F., & Son, Idle, Bradford.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal.
Imperial Mills Co., Dunnville, Ont.
Knox, John, & Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Mishkin, I & Co., Montreal.
National Rubber Co., Montreal.
Rylands & Son, Manchester, Eng.
Rock Island Overall Co., Rock Island.
Southgate, W. E., & Co., Berlin, Ont.
Wilkins, Robert C., Montreal.

Millinery, Ribbons, etc.
Barry, W. H., & Co., Montreal.
Brophy-Cains Limited, Montreal.
Caverhill, John B., & Co., Montreal.
Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Montreal. and Toronto.
Francois & Co., London, Eng.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal.
Hitchcock, Williams & Co., London, Eng.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
May, Thomas. & Co , Ltd., Montreal.
Vyse, Sons & Co., Ltd., London, Eng.

Neckwear.
Niagara Neckwear Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.

Needles and Pins.
Morrall, Abel, Redditch, Eng.
Nicklin, J., & Co., Birmingham, Eng.

Novelties and Notions.
Ladies' Wear, Ltd., Toronto.
Nicklin, J., & Co., Birmingham, Eng.
Sandersons Limited, Toronto.
Weyerstall, Alfred, Toronto.
Wrinch, McLaren & Co., Toronto.

Office Supplies.
Business Systems Ltd., Toronto.
Copeland-Chatterson Co., Toronto.
Dancyger Safety Pin Ticket Co., Dayton, Ohio
Universal Systems Ltd., Toronto.

Oil Cloths, Linoleums and Mattings.
China & Japan Silk Co., Montreal.
Dominion Oilcloth Co., Montreal.
Imperial Carpet Co., Toronto.

Papier Mache Forms, Wax Figures, etc.
Palmenberg's, J. R., Sons, New York.

Picture Post Cards and Albums.
Walsh, W. E., Montreal.

Raw Materials.
Sloan, N. P., & Co., Montreal.
Davidson & Gatehouse, Montreal.

Shipping, Railway Insurance and Commission Agents.
Whittingham, W. M., & Co., Liverpool, Eng.

Shirts, Collars, Ties, etc.
Brock, W. R., Toronto.
Brown & Aschroft, Montreal.
Cellular Clothing Co., London, Eng.
Colossus Brand Shirts.
Empire Mfg. Co., Montreal.
E. T. Mfg. Co., Montreal.
Forsyth, John, & Co., Berlin.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Ishikawa, K., & Co., Toronto.
Knox, John & Co., Hamilton.
Niagara Neckwear Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.
"Success" Brand Collars and Cuffs, Montreal.
Wilkins, Robert C , Montreal.
Wreyford & Co., Toronto.

Silks and Satins.
British American, The, Import Co., Montreal

Smallwares.
Brock, W. R., Co., Montreal.
Evans, Geo. H., Montreal.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Gilmour, Nephew & Co., Montreal.
Knox, John & Co., Hamilton.
Morrall, Abel, Redditch, Eng.
Newey Bros., Ltd., Birmingham, Eng.
Nicklin, J., & Co., Birmingham, Eng.
Wrinch, McLaren & Co., Toronto.

Staples and Linens.
Brock, W. R., Co., Toronto and Montreal.
Brophy-Cains, Limited, Montreal.
Dominion Linen Mills, Bracebridge, Ont.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Garneau, P. Fils & Cie, Quebec.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Liddell, Wm., & Co., Belfast, Ireland.
McDowell, A. H., & Co., Montreal.
Rylands & Sons, Manchester, Eng.
Wallace, Blake & Shouldice, Toronto.

Store Fixtures and Show Cards.
Clatworthy & Son, Toronto.
Delfosse & Co. Montreal.
Martel-Stewart Co., Montreal.
Richardson, A. S., Toronto.

Russell, A. N., & Son Co,, Ilion, N.Y.
Thayer and Chandler Co., Chicago.
Toronto Brass Mfg. Co., Toronto.

Store Lighting.
Lamson Consolidated Store Service Co., Toronto.
Luxfer Prism Co., Montreal and Toronto.

Suspenders.
Brock, W. R., Co., Montreal.
Globe Suspender Co., Rock Island.
Dominion Suspender Co.,Niagara Falls, Ont.

Towellings, etc.
Brock, W. R. Co. Toronto.
Brophy-Cains, Limited, Montreal.
Cosbie, R. H., Toronto.
Garland, J. M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal.

Umbrellas, Parasols, etc.
Irving Umbrella Co., Toronto.
Standard Umbrella Co., Montreal.

Underwear, Hosiery and Knitted Goods.
Anderson, Son & Co., Leicester, Eng.
Burritt, A., & Co., Mitchell, Ont.
Cartwright & Warners, Loughborough, Eng.
"Ceetee" brand—Turnbull, C., Co., Galt.
Cellular Clothing Co., London, Eng.
Chipman-Holton Knitting Co., Hamilton.
Clinton Knitting Co., Clinton, Ont.
"Crescent" brand—Lennard, S., & Sons, Dundas.
Eagle Knitting Co., Hamilton.
Ellis Mfg. Co., Hamilton.
Galt Knitting Co., Galt, Ont.
Garland, John M., Son, & Co., Ottawa.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Henderson, A., & Co., Montreal.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal.
Imperial Mills Co., Dunnville, Ont.
Jaeger, Dr., Co., Montreal.
Knox, John & Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Lennard, S , & Sons, Dundas, Ont.
Macdonald, John, & Co., Toronto.
McDowell, A. H., & Co., Montreal.
Peerless Underwear Co., Hamilton.
Penman Co., Paris, Ont.
Raven, W., & Co., Ltd., Leicester, Eng.
Simpson, J., Sons, Toronto
Stanfields Limited, Truro, N S.
Watson, Mfg., Co., Paris.
Williams, Walter, & Co., Montreal.
Wreyford & Co., Toronto.

Upholsterers' Supplies
Hees, Geo. H., Son & Co., Toronto.

Wall Paper.
Menzie Wall Paper Co., Toronto.
Stauntons Limited, Toronto.
Watson-Foster Co., Montreal.

Wardrobes
Weir Wardrobe Co , Winnipeg, Man.

Waterproof and Rubber Goods.
Belmont Mfg. Co., Montreal.
Brock, W. R. Co., Montreal.
Claman M., Waterproof Garment Co. Montreal.
Cravenette Co., Bradford, Eng.
McRae & Walker, Winnipeg.
Montreal Waterproof Clothing Co., Montreal
National Rubber Co., Montreal.
Rosenthal, E. L., Montreal.
Wener, Samuel, & Co., Montreal.

Whitewear.
Laurentian Whitewear Co., Levis, Que.
Victor Mfg. Co., Quebec.

Window Shades, Curtain Poles, etc.
Daly & Morin, Montreal
Hees, Geo. H., Son & Co., Montreal and Toronto.

Woolens and Tailors' Trimmings.
British American, The, Import Co.,Montreal
Claman, C., Waterproof Garment Co. Montreal.
Garneau, P., Fils & Cie, Quebec.
Harris & Co., Rockwood, Ont.
Hewson Woolen Mills, Amherst, N.S.

INDEX TO ADVERTISERS.

A

	PAGE
Accountants' Directory	229
Alaska Feather and Down Co	194
Alexandor, A. J.	118, 155
American Silk Waist Co	143
Anderson, Son & Co	34
Australasian Draper	22

B

Bank of Montreal	70, 71, 72
Barry, W. H., & Co	139
Bartlett, Wm., & Son	197
Bell Telephone Co	22
Belmont Mfg. Co	143
Bradford Dyers' Ass'n	25
British-America Assurance Co	22
British American Dyeing Co	94
British American Import Co	206
Brock, W. R., Co	37, 38, 39, 40, 103, 125, 137, 191
Brock & Paterson	229
Brophy-Cains, Limited	67
Brown & Ashcroft	229
Burritt, A., & Co	221
Business Systems Ltd.	84
Busy Man's Magazine	22

C

Campbell Shoe Co	140
Canada Cloak Co	141, 142
Canada Haircloth Co	229
Canada Paper Co	23
Cartwright & Warners	107
Caverhill, John B	221
Cellular Clothing Co	205
China & Japan Silk Co	221
Chipman Holton Knitting Co	107
Claman, M., Waterproof Garment Co.	144
Clatworthy & Son	219
Clement, A. E	204
Confederation Life Association	23
Copeland-Chatterson Co	96
Cosbie, R. H	156

D

Daly & Morin	186
Davidson & Gatehouse	211
Debenhams (Canada) Limited	21, 132
Defiance Button Machine Co	23
DeGruchy, Philip	107
Delfosse & Co	95
Dencyger Safety Pin Ticket Co	33
Dominion Linen Mills	13
Dominion Oilcloth Co	195
Dominion Suspender Co	213
Dominion Textile Co	123, 124
Dominion Wadding Co	19

E

Eagle Knitting Co	105, 106
Edgar, John, & Co	121
Eisman Novelty Co.	36
Ellis Mfg. Co	113
Empire Mfg. Co.	144
E. T. Mfg. Co.	150
Evans, Geo. H.	156

F

Fairbairn, Rhys D	131
Flaws, R., & Son	229
Forsyth, John, & Co	inside front cover
Fownes Bros. & Co.	24
Francois & Co	175
Frank & Bryce	19

G

	PAGE
Galibert, Fred	11
Galt Knitting Co	104
Garland, John M., Son & Co.	35
Garnett, Joshua F., & Son	206
Gilmour, Nephew & Co	229
Globe Suspender Co	204
Greenleese, S. T., & Sons	121
Greenshields Western Ltd	26, 27, 28, 29
Greenshields	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 193, 199, 222, 223, 224, outside back cover

H

Harris & Co	171
Hart Mfg. Co	inside back cover
Hees, Geo. H., Son & Co	189
Henderson, R., & Co.	104
Hermsdorf, Louis	167
Hewson Woolen Mills	210
Hirshson, L., & Co.	140
Hitchcock, Williams & Co.	14
Horrockses, Crewsdon & Co	12
Hotel Directory	229

I

Imperial Button Works	131
Imperial Carpet Co	194
Imperial Mills Co	206
Irving Umbrella Co	inside front cover
Ishikawa, K., & Co	11

J

Jaeger, Dr., Co	113
Jay Finish Underwear	117

K

King, John, & Son	194
Kingcot	126
Kleinert, I. B., Rubber Co	21
Knox, John, Co	69
Konig & Stuffman	30, 31
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co.	15, 16, 17, 18

L

Laces & Braids Ltd	171
Lamson Consolidated Store Service Co	94
Ladies' Wear Ltd	151
Laurentian Whitewear Co.	143
Law Russell & Co.	166
Legal Directory	229
Lennard, S., & Sons.	117
Liddell, William, & Co.	156
Luxfer Prism Co.	92

M

Macdonald, John & Co	32
Martel-Stewart Co	94
May, Thomas, & Co	172
McComber & Cummings	122
McDowell, A. H., & Co.	229
McRae & Walker	34
Merchants Button Co	11
Merchants Mercantile Co	229
Metropolitan Bank	22
Mishkin, I., & Co	150
Monarch Shirt Co	211
Montreal Waterproof Clothing Co	153
Montreal Cotton Co.	9
Moore Carpet Co	196
Morrall, Abel	97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102
Moulton & Co	229
Munderloh & Co	34

N

National Rubber Co	154
Nazareth Waist Co	149
Newey Bros. Ltd	197
Niagara Neckwear Co	213
Nicklin, J., & Co	23
Nisbet & Auld	159, 160
North Western Fur Co.	122

O

Orr, W. E., & Co.,	122
Oxford Mfg. Co	211

P

Palmenberg's Sons, J. R	84
Paquet, J. Arthur	202
Parisian Corset Co	139
Parker, R., & Co	34
Paton, John, Son & Co	107
Peerless Underwear Co	114
Penman Mfg. Co	200
Perrin, Freres & Cie	204
Pewny's Kid Gloves	5
Plantagenet Frillings	10

R

Raven, W., & Co., Ltd.	104
Richardson, A. S	84
Ross, G. D., & Co	131, 156
Rosenthal, E. H	155
Rock Island Overall Co	205
Russell, A. N., & Son Co	91
Rylands & Sons	20

S

Sanderson's Limited	132
Schwersenski, A., & Co	118
Shantz, Jacob Y., & Son Co	34
Silver, M , & Co	122
Simpson, J., Sons	115
Smith, J. Sproule	229
Standard Shirt Co	208, 209
Standard Umbrella Co	140
Stanfields Limited	104
Stauntons Limited	193
Storey, W. H., & Son	139

T

Thayer & Chandler Co	91
Tobin Tent & Awning Co	203
Toronto Brass Mfg. Co.	93
Toronto Feather & Down Co	193
Turnbull, C., Co., of Galt	112

U

Universal Systems, Limited	91

V

Victor Mfg. Co.	154
Vyse Sons & Co., Ltd.	172

W

Wallace Blake & Shouldice	13
Walsh, E. H	107
Walsh, W. E.	229
Walshaw, J., & Son	219
Watson Mfg. Co.	108
Weir Wardrobe Co	92
Wener, Samuel, & Co	152
Western Assurance Co	22
Weyerstall, Alfred	229
Whittingham, W. M., & Co.	23
Wilkins, Robert C	inside front cover
Williams, Walter, & Co	117
Wreyford & Co	204
Wrinch, McLaren & Co	23

SPRING GARMENTS

A very Extensive and Varied range of MILADI Coats, Suits and Skirts is now ready for your inspection.

The Hart Manufacturing Co.

13 Notre Dame St. East, :: :: MONTREAL

PRIESTLEYS' HUGUENOT CLOTH

THEIR LATEST CREATION

PRIESTLEYS' ALL WOOL

"HUGUENOT" CLOTH is a combination of beauty, suppleness, and durability, which will add to the reputation of these celebrated makers.

"HUGUENOT" CLOTH

PRIESTLEYS' unrivalled, dyeing and finishing has produced a cloth sure of immediate appeal to present day demands. "HUGUENOT" cloth possesses all the durability and close texture of the old time serge, with the soft rich draping qualities of a French Cashmere.

FASHIONS' FAVORITE

Colours include the latest shades in various profusion, rich tints of red, green, blue and brown and new evening shades. Rich dye and permanent finish characterize every yard.

FOR HARD AND DRESSY WEAR

It will be the Spring leader and liven up the interest in your Dress Goods Department.

You need it—Your customers want it

SAMPLES AND PARTICULARS UPON REQUEST

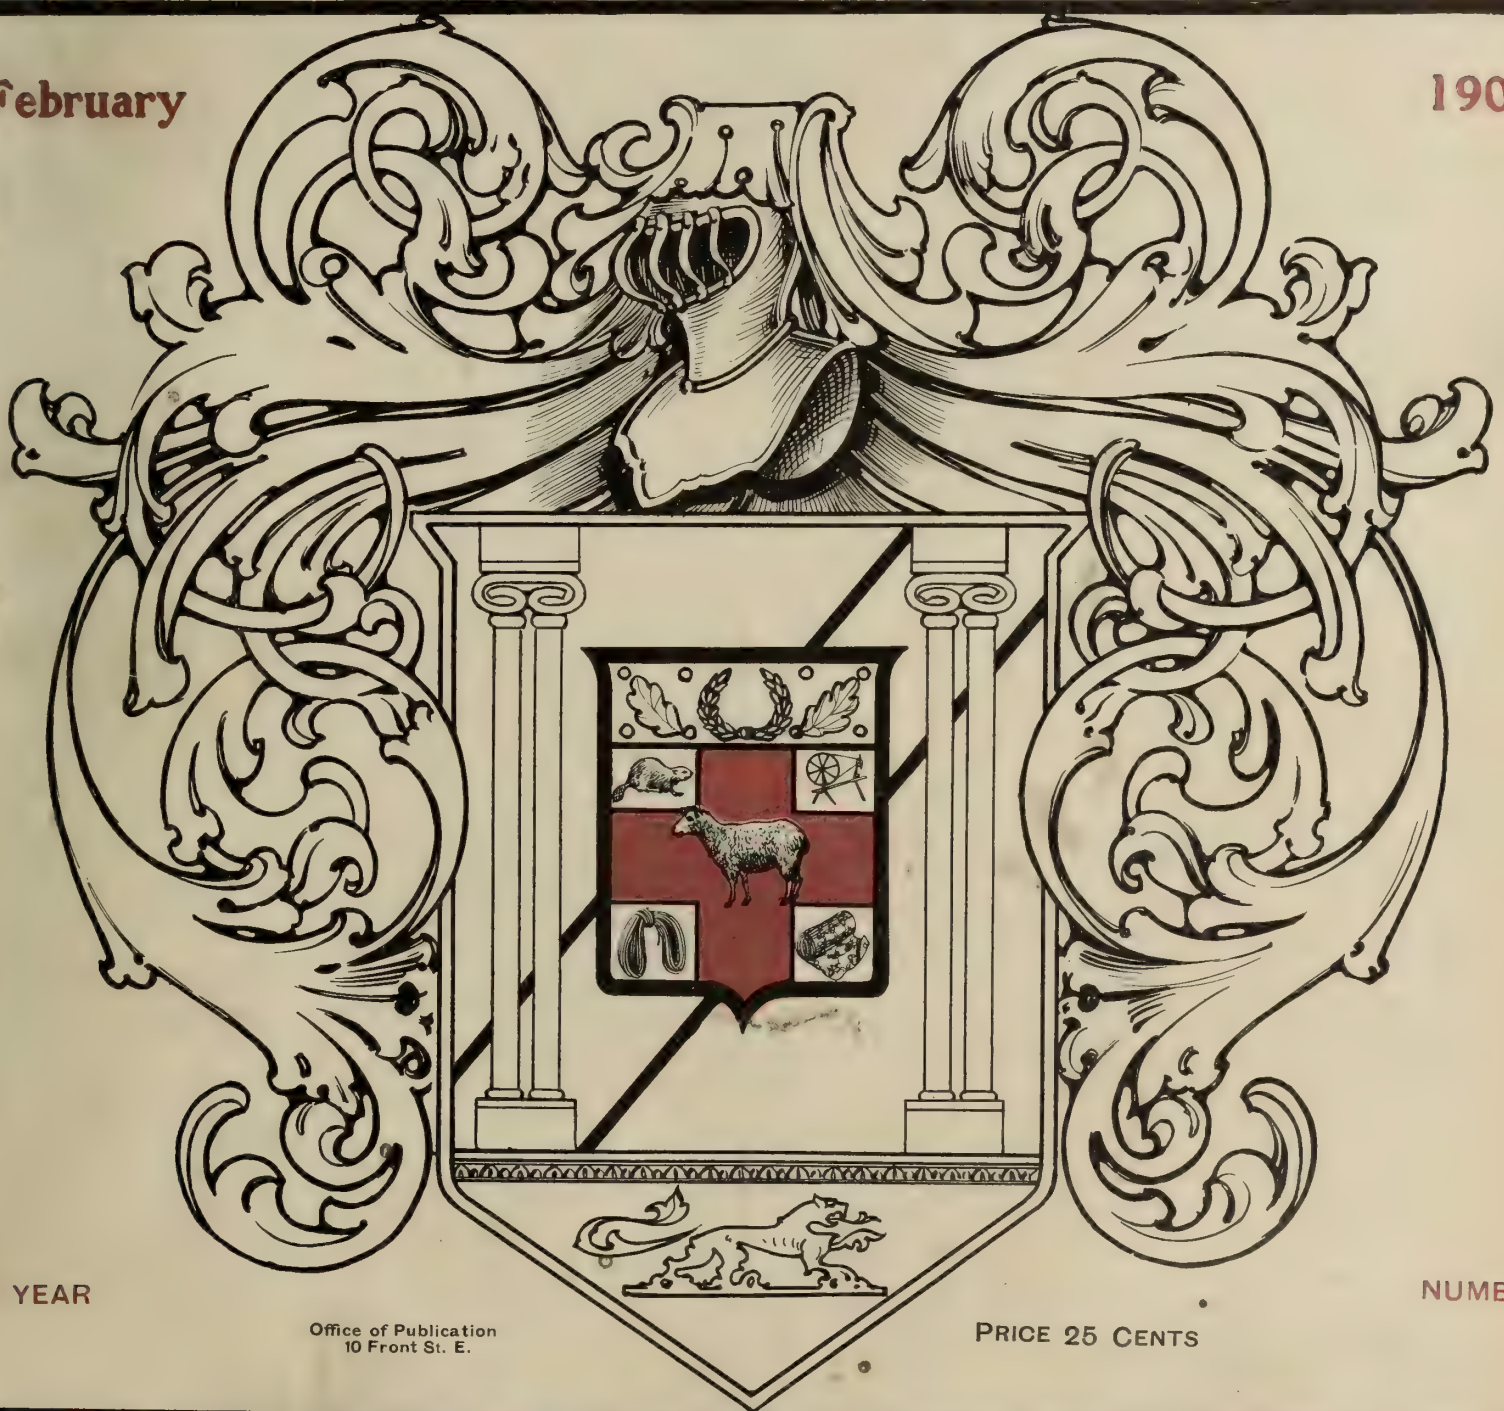
SOLE AGENTS FOR CANADA

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited,
Winnipeg, Man.

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver, B.C.



SPECIAL FEATURES

Millinery and Knitted Goods.

THE DRY GOODS REVIEW AND MEN'S FURNISHER

February

1907

TH YEAR

NUMBER 2

Office of Publication
10 Front St. E.

PRICE 25 CENTS

THE MACLEAN PUBLISHING CO. LIMITED

MONTREAL, TORONTO, WINNIPEG.

Over 30 Years Established.

Largest Equipment in Canada.

Dyers for the Trade

Leading Merchants all over Canada our customers.

Transform dead stock into new. Banish losses.

R. Parker & Co.

Dyers and Finishers. TORONTO, CAN.

FANCY PARASOLS

We look for a large increase in the sale of Fancy Parasols and have anticipated your requirements with the most complete line we have yet shown.

We solicit your orders—

Samples now in the hands of our travellers.

The

Irving Umbrella Company

LIMITED

MANUFACTURERS

79-83 Wellington St. W., Toronto

"ROOSTER BRAND"

I CROW OVER ALL
OVERALL IS THE BEST OVERALL
OVER ALL CANADA

ROBT. C. WILKINS

Manufacturer, . MONTREAL.

Greenshields Western Ltd., Winnipeg, Wholesale Dry Goods.

See our ads. on pages 6, 7, 8 and inside back cover

Sorting Orders

We can supply your immediate requirements promptly and satisfactorily.

THE opening of the month of February finds us exceptionally well prepared to attend to all your orders, whether they are given to our travellers or sent to us direct by mail.

Not only can we fill all sorting orders for immediate requirements, but we can give you attractive values in all lines of Spring Goods and we can ship without delay.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED
WINNIPEG

GREENSHIELDS & CO. LIMITED
VANCOUVER

PRIESTLEYS' HUGUENOT CLOTH

THEIR LATEST CREATION

PRIESTLEYS' ALL WOOL

"HUGUENOT" CLOTH is a combination of beauty, suppleness, and durability, which will add to the reputation of these celebrated makers.

"HUGUENOT" CLOTH

PRIESTLEYS' unrivalled dyeing and finishing has produced a cloth sure of immediate appeal to present day demands. "HUGUENOT" cloth possesses all the durability and close texture of the old time serge, with the soft, rich draping qualities of a French Cashmere.

FASHION'S FAVORITE

Colours include the latest shades in various profusion, rich tints of red, green, blue and brown, and new evening shades. Rich dye and permanent finish characterize every yard.

FOR HARD AND DRESSY WEAR

It will be the Spring leader and liven up the interest in your Dress Goods Department.
You need it—Your customers want it.

SAMPLES AND PARTICULARS UPON REQUEST

SOLE AGENTS FOR CANADA

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited,
Winnipeg, Man.

Greenshields & Co., Limited,
Vancouver, B.C.

February Clean-Up

This month will bring out all the broken lines throughout the House; each department will quote special clearing prices for all odd lines.

Fancy Wash Muslins

This season's offerings in English and American printed muslins are particularly good, distinctive patterns on good medium cloths that can be retailed at 10c., 12½c. 15c. and 20c.

Special Attention is Directed to our very attractive range of Ready-to-Wear Blouses. Notwithstanding the season's crop of prophets to kill the old stand-by, they are still with us and each garment represents its usefulness in style, fit and finish. Prices to retail, 75c., $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50.

Mail Order Department

We wish to impress on each one of our patrons the many advantages of our Mail Order Service, the time and loss of sales that occur throughout the year when a postal card will do the work, satisfy your customers, and hold them as well. As for samples, we shall endeavor to submit you the most liberal cuts possible and give all the information regarding them we possibly can.

John M. Garland, Son & Co.

Wholesale Dry Goods. OTTAWA, CANADA

ESTABLISHED 1791.

Horrockses'

Longcloths, Nainsooks,

Cambrics,

India Longcloths,

Sheetings,

Ready-made Sheets,

(plain and hemstitched).
HORROCKSES' name on each sheet.

Flannelettes of the highest quality.

N.B.—SEE "HORROCKSES" ON SELVEDGE.

Horrockses, Crewdson & Co., Limited

Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers.

PRESTON, MANCHESTER, LONDON, ENGLAND.

As Ye Sow

Ye Reap

JUDGMENT

Months ago we sowed the seed of preparation for the season's rush. Now you can reap the benefit of our preparedness.

Even with the exceptional amount of business booked, our facilities are so extensive we are able, in nearly all lines, to take care of all buyers.

We are completing Spring orders as fast as possible.

When visiting the Millinery Openings inspect our stock for all lines of Millinery Requisites.

KYLE, CHEESBROUGH & CO.

93 ST. PETER ST., MONTREAL

BATTING

Guaranteed free from threads and other weak and lifeless stock.

NORTH STAR, CRESCENT and PEARL

COTTON BATTING

Quality for this season still better than ever. The best at the price. Made of good pure cotton—not shoddy.

Ask for

North Star, Crescent and Pearl Batting.

THREE SELLING QUALITIE IN

Pewny's Kid Gloves

GOOD FIT. GOOD STYLE. GOOD WEAR.

Besides every pair is guaranteed.

ALL THE LATEST SHADES AND STYLES IN SPRING 1907 ASSORTMENT.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

Greenshields Western

Wholesale
General Dry Goods

Limited

It is not yet too late to place your order with us for

Crums Prints

Our range is still complete although many of the patterns are now nearly sold up.
Buying early insures good delivery

54, 56, 58, 60 ARTHUR STREET

Winnipeg
Entrance on Both Streets

53, 55, 57, 59 KING STREET

Greenshields Western

Wholesale Limited
General Dry Goods

Very Special Offer

1,000 Pieces Wrapperettes that will retail as special at 8c. We want to make room for new goods, and offer these goods at a very low price for quick sale. We consider this a splendid bargain.

Cotton

is in greater demand than ever. Delivery from the mills has been very bad, and for the coming season prospects are poorer than ever before. We have on hand a large stock of Grey and White Cottons, Sheetings and Denims for present delivery.

Overall Special

Our special heavy stripe card pattern drill Overall with bib, to retail at 85c., is a dandy.

The Shield Brand Union Made

54, 56, 58, 60 ARTHUR STREET | Winnipeg | 53, 55, 57, 59 KING STREET

Greenshields Western

Wholesale Limited
General Dry Goods

CARPET DEPARTMENT

Spring lines are now complete, and we are ready for your rush orders, both in Piece Goods and in Art Squares, in all sizes. An unequalled range of Art Squares in Tapestry, Brussels, Wilton, Velvet and Ingrain.

Our range of Linoleums is the largest we have ever carried, and we are prepared to suit all tastes at right prices.

LACE CURTAINS

are also complete. We have a splendid showing of Nottingham Curtains at all prices.

Frilled Curtains and Frilled Curtain Nets, Lace Door Panels, Lace Bed Spreads, etc., in a large variety.

We carry everything in stock necessary for Hotel Furnishings, and make a specialty of these orders.

54, 56, 58, 60 ARTHUR STREET | Winnipeg | 53, 55, 57, 59 KING STREET

RYLANDS & SONS LIMITED

MANCHESTER, ENG.

Cotton Spinners

Merchants

Manufacturers

Bleachers

Dyers

Finishers

Makers of the Celebrated Dacca Calicoes and Sheetings

WORKS:

Heapey,

Longford Works,

Gorton.

WORKS:

Swinton,

Wigan,

Chorley.

Capital, $14,500,000; Employees, 12,000

Mr. Busy Man

You may not have much time for reading but it is essential that you read

The BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE

It will acquaint you with what the successful business men have accomplished. It will keep you in touch with existing conditions in other countries as well as your own. Every article will suggest ideas, which, combined with your own, cannot fail to bring you success.

This many-in-one magazine will interest you deeply, as it embodies the best features of the world's publications. The cream of hundreds. Have your subscription commence with our March issue.

THE BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE

Toronto, Canada

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE COMP'Y

FIRE AND MARINE.

Incorporated 1833

CASH CAPITAL, $850,000.00.

TOTAL ASSETS, $2,119,347.89.

LOSSES PAID SINCE ORGANIZATION, $27,383,068.64.

HEAD OFFICE, - BRITISH AMERICA BUILDING, Cor. Front and Scott Sts., Toronto.

HON. GEO. A. COX, President. J. J KENNY, Vice-President and Managing Director
P. H. SIMS, Secretary.

THE METROPOLITAN BANK

Capital Paid Up, - - $1,000,000
Reserve Fund, - - - $1,000,000
Undivided Profits, - - $ 133,133

We Solicit Your Account

GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS

Dratts bought and sold.
Letters of credit issued.
Collections promptly attended to.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

open at all branches.
Interest allowed on all deposit of one dollar and upwards.

Australian Trade

is worth looking after. The following figures are extracted from the official statistics of imports into Australia:

	1903	1904
Socks and Stockings	£1,162,449	£1,236,743
Towels and Handkerchiefs	281,194	390,821
Cosies, Cushions, etc,	117,125	159,856
Curtains	74,050	92,446
Frillings	13,019	18,836
Piece Goods (various)	4,826,523	6,134,389
Sewing Silks, Twists, Threads and Cottons	261,160	275,085
Umbrellas, etc	42,842	54,536
Boots and Shoes, etc'	702,543	767,581
Carpets and Rugs	329,610	489,454
Hats and Caps	372,133	427,876
Yarns	74,442	106,585
Feathers	21,546	34,825
Trimmings	215,984	247,279

The Draper of Australasia is the organ of the drapery and kindred trades of the Antipodes, and is subscribed for by all the leading firms in Australia and New Zealand.

You may obtain advertising rates and secure space by communicating with the American representative, J. C. Halsby, No. 1, Broadway, New York City, who will also supply specimen copies on application.

Publishing Offices

Melbourne, Fink's Buildings
Sydney, Post Office Chambers
London, 112 Wood St.
New York, 1 Broadway

THE TELEPHONE

Is a companion, friend and servant combined.
Invaluable for convenience in the household.

LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE SERVICE

Has no equal for the facility it affords in business life. Full particulars as to rates and service at the nearest office of

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

WESTERN ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Incorporated 1851

FIRE AND MARINE

Head Office	Capital -	$ 1,500,000.00
Toronto,	Assets, over - -	3,460,000.00
Ont.	Income for 1905, over	3,680,000.00

HON. GEO. A. COX, President.

J. J. KENNY, Vice-President and Man. Director.

C. C. FOSTER, Secretary.

Money

CAN BE SAVED BY MEANS OF AN ENDOWMENT POLICY.

YOU CAN ONLY SECURE SUCH A POLICY WHILE YOU ARE IN GOOD HEALTH.

Pamphlets and Full Particulars regarding the New Accumulation Endowment Policy sent on application.

Confederation Life ASSOCIATION

W. H. BEATTY, President.

W. C. MACDONALD, ACTUARY. J. K. MACDONALD, MANAGING DIRECTOR.

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO, CANADA.

W. M. Whittingham & Co.

GENERAL

Shipping, Forwarding, Railway, Insurance, and Commission Agents and Warehousemen.

ESTABLISHED 1890

Head Office: Liverpool, 20 Chapel St.

and at

London, Manchester, Birmingham, Hanley, Swansea, Cardiff, Newport, and Hamburg

AGENTS IN CANADA:

H. V. COWIE, 476 Temple Bldg., Montreal

W. R. BECC, 88 Bay Street, Toronto

A CHILD CAN OPERATE IT

Make Your Own Buttons

WITH THE

NEW DEFIANCE BUTTON MACHINE.

Make all kinds of covered buttons, rim, half-ball or flat, complete to make three sizes of button.

$7.50

Call or send for samples of our work.

Defiance Button Machine Co.,
266 Greene St., Cor. 8th St.,
NEW YORK, U. S. A.

Wrinch, McLaren & Co. SMALLWARES

52 Bay St., TORONTO

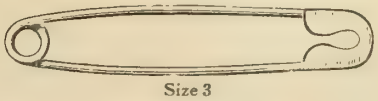
TRADE MARK

This design a guarantee of quality

Do You Publish a Catalogue?

If you do you should use "Canadian-Made" Paper

YOUR PRINTER CAN SUPPLY IT.



All grades, from the highest "Glossy Finish" to the rough "Antique" and bulky "Featherweight."

CANADA PAPER CO.

TORONTO LIMITED MONTREAL

This is an illustration of another

ENGLISH MADE REGISTERED SAJONIC TRADE MARK SAFETY PIN

Size 3

NICKELED STEEL DUPLEX IN 7 SIZES.

Carded or Boxed in Dozens.

J. NICKLIN & CO., - Birmingham, Eng.

Because "The Twentieth Century belongs to Canada" the birth of

...THE...

Financial Post

Was as inevitable as it was necessary

FIRST ISSUE
25,000 COPIES

Saturday, JAN. 12th, 1907

This Weekly will contain all the financial news available on investments. Accuracy is aimed at, but technicality is avoided.

The Post will print reliable news in a readable manner. Finance has its romances as well as its dry bones.

Every Investor, large or small, can find something that will interest him. Canadian securities will be fully and completely dealt with each week.

A page will be devoted to banks and banking interests. There will be special articles for depositors.

Every Young Man determined to make a success of life will be interested in the self-help articles.

SPECIAL FEATURES OF THE FIRST ISSUE

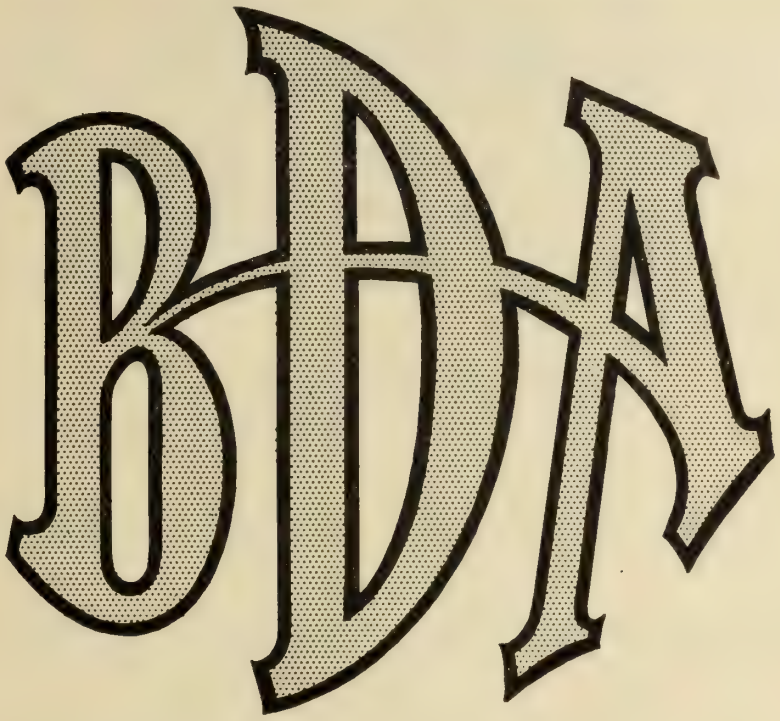
THEN AND NOW—An entertaining and instructive story in parallel columns, showing what a well-known London paper thought of C.P.R. in 1881, and what it thinks 25 years later.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC—AN INVESTOR'S ANALYSIS—THE QUESTION OF FIXED CHARGES—A COMPLETE MAP OF THE SYSTEM.

THE HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY—The graphic story of the market advances of our oldest joint stock company.

Other special articles by expert writers on Municipal Bonds, the Grain Situation in the West, Branch Banks in the North-West, Cobalt Considerations, the Saving Habit.

THE FINANCIAL POST OF CANADA is a twentieth century newspaper which no investor in Canada—especially at this time—can afford to be without.



Mailed to any address in the Dominion, United States, Great Britain, and Europe for $3.00 annually.

PUBLISHED BY

The MacLean Publishing Company, Limited

Address all communications to our nearest office

TORONTO	MONTREAL	WINNIPEG	LONDON, ENG.
10 Front St. E.	232 McGill St.	511 Union Bank Bldg.	88 Fleet St.

¶ Quick Selling qualities stand right out in the new Spring Mohairs. The patterns and colors say "Buy Me" too plainly to be overlooked.

¶ The Bradford Dyers' Association have touched perfection in their Spring colors. Every desirable shade, and every effective and fashionable combination are ready for you. The soft, silky finish and the everlasting wear of B.D.A. MOHAIRS are well known.

¶ Order now, and be sure of the goods for your earliest Spring shopper.

Bradford Dyers' Association

Bradford, England

THE BEST WARRANTED KLEINERT TRADE MARK

KLEINERT'S STANDARD

THE BEST WARRANTED KLEINERT TRADE MARK

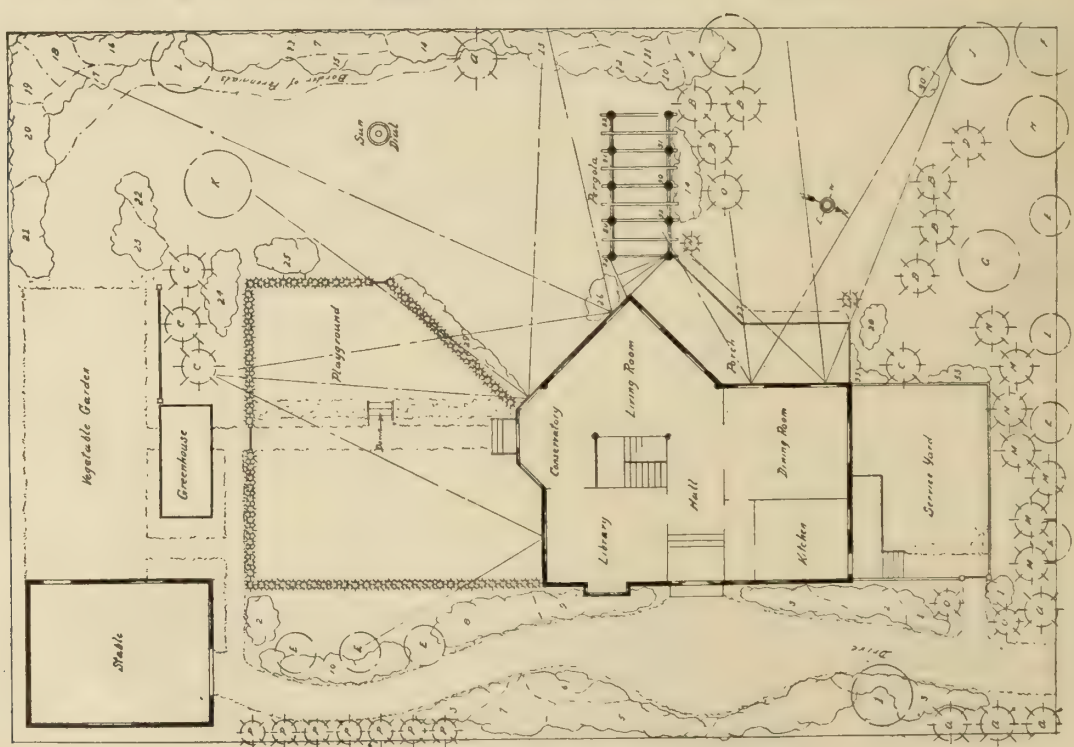
LINES OF

DRESS SHIELDS

SUCH AS

FEATHER WEIGHT AND ONANDOFF

ARE SOLD BY ALL



JOBBING HOUSES FROM THE ATLANTIC TO THE PACIFIC

I. B. KLEINERT RUBBER CO.

TORONTO, CANADA

Landscape Engineers

We are the Largest Canadian Nursery Company in this line of work.
We supply working drawings and also supervise plantings.

SET YOUR HOME IN A FRAME OF FOLIAGE

Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, Roses and Vines.

write for Terms and Prices.

BROWN BROTHERS CO., Limited, Nurserymen

BROWN'S NURSERIES P. O., ONT.

ABEL MORRALL LTD

REDDITCH

England

Our Needles are all selected and guaranteed, every needle as perfect as human hands can make them. Take our advice, don't buy cheap Needles, the best will pay you
in the end.

Stocked by all Canadian Wholesale Houses

Our "MULBERRY" and "BERRY" Toilet Pins are as good as our Needles.

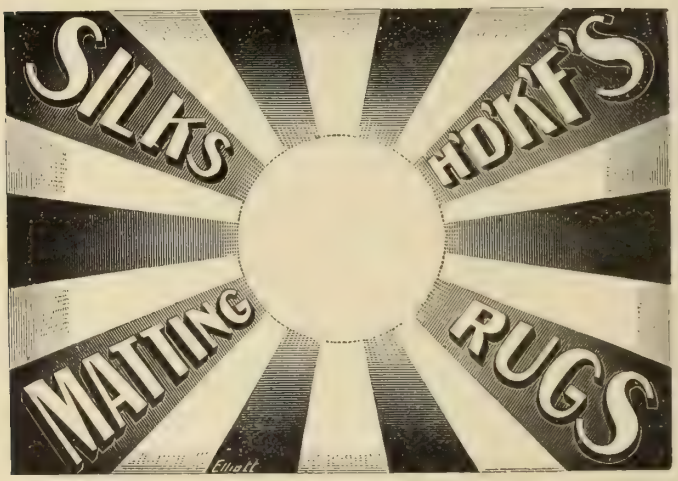
The Dominion Linen Mfg. Co., Limited

BRACEBRIDGE, ONTARIO

MANUFACTURERS

Cream and Bleached Damask Tablings.
Bleached Damask Cloths.
Napkins, Towels and Towellings.
Dress Linens, Dowlas, Tea Cloths.

The best value in the trade. Write us for samples.



COMPLETE STOCK CARRIED IN TORONTO

Sole Selling Agents for the Dominion

WALLACE, BLAKE & SHOULDICE

Successors to E. B. WALLACE & CO.

79 Wellington Street W., - TORONTO, ONT.

K. Ishikawa & Co.

Manufacturers and Importers

24 Wellington Street West,

TORONTO

Dominion Hammock Manufacturing Co.

There's something about our Hammocks which hold the reputation for Quality their excellence gained as soon as marketed.

You'll have the Hammock the people insist on having---if you place our name on your order list NOW.

WRITE FOR OUR CATALOGUE

Feature Tapestry Curtains
if you want more business.

Ignore your curtain department and you woo commercial disaster.

We don't pretend to manufacture all good curtains---but we do manufacture the best. Write NOW.

Dominion Hammock Manufacturing Company :: :: Dunnville, Ont.

"Debenhams for Novelties"

Millinery and Laces

Spring Opening 1907

March 4th

and Following Days

In addition to our stock of Silks, Ribbons, Velvets, Dress Goods, etc.

we shall carry a choice selection of

Novelties in Laces

Also during Millinery Opening we shall show an exclusive range of Millinery Novelties

to include a choice collection of

Pattern Hats

direct from the leading Paris Salons.

Debenhams (Canada) Limited

Debenham & Co.
London

Bay and Wellington
Toronto

"Spero"

Made from highest grade cotton.

"SPERO" Bleached Calicoes

unrivalled in wear.

Practically fireproof

"SPERO" Flannelette

very durable and of unrivalled make.

"SPERO" MAKE

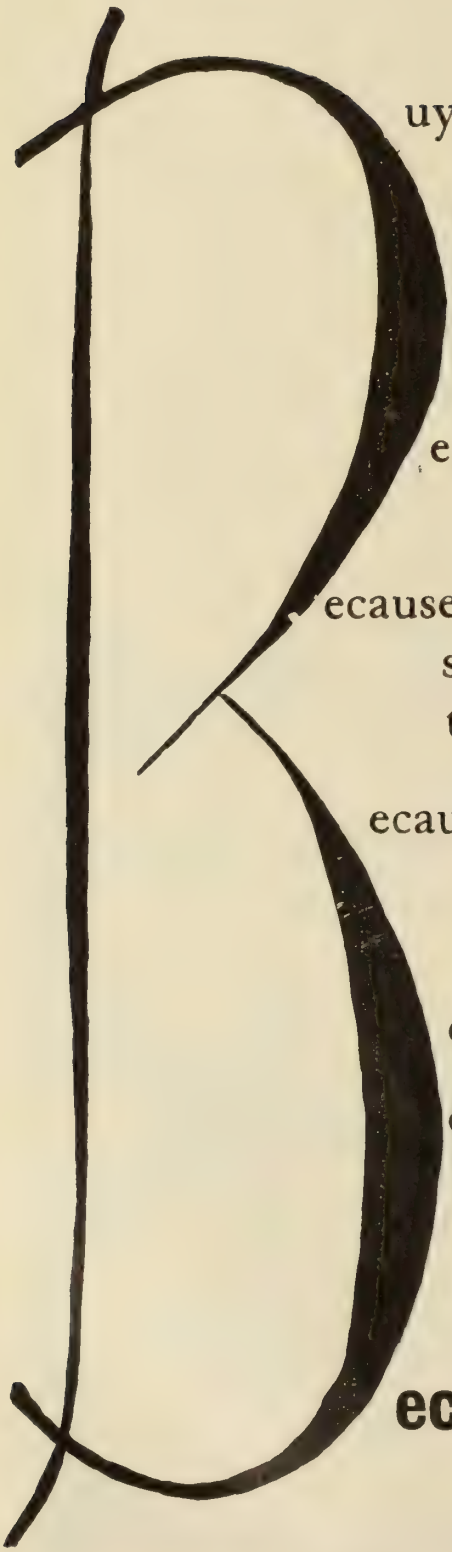
Reg.d

Printed in new designs, real indigo

"SPERO" Apron Cloths

Suitable for ladies' overalls, children's dresses, &c.

Wash White



"SPERO" Unbleached Calicoes

and sew easily.

Manchester

The W. R. Brock Co. (Limited)

TORONTO

uy Linens now.

uy Linens from us.

uy Linens sufficient to meet your requirements.

ecause prices have advanced enormously and continue to do so.

ecause our buyers are not confined to any source of supply, but are free to search the markets.

ecause having our three houses to cater for we have placed very large contracts.

ecause we pay cash for our goods.

ecause we show the most complete assortment in the country.

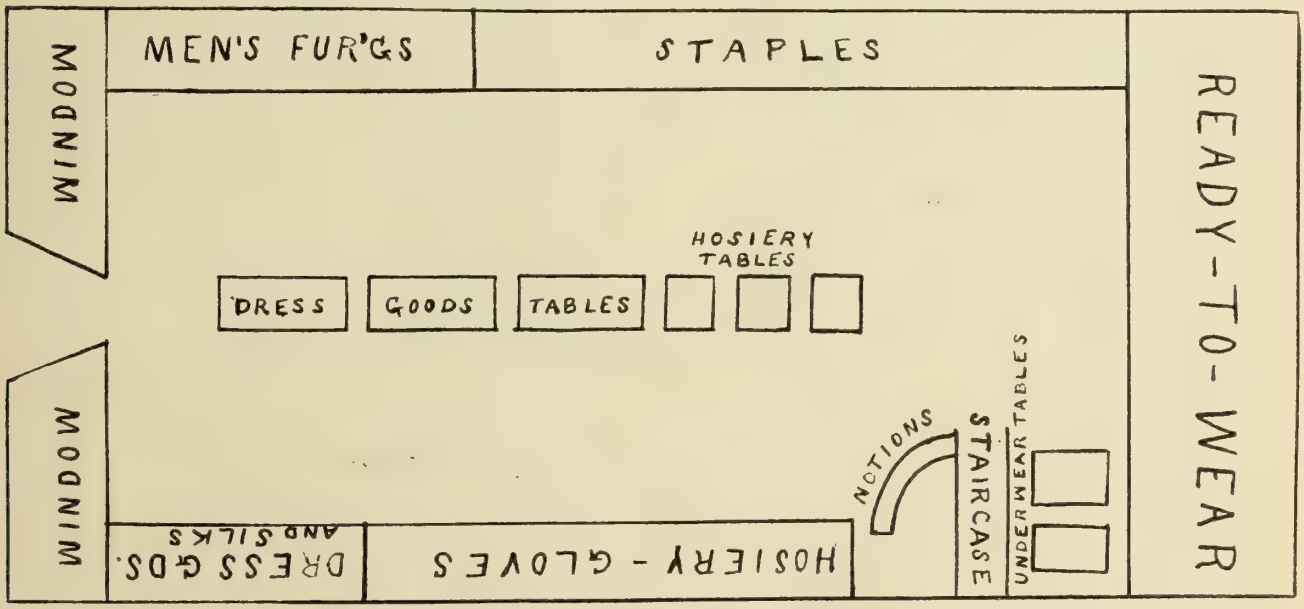
And finally ecause we can offer every line at old prices

MEN AND METHODS

A Town Store that is right up to the Minute — Why One Merchant is Dropping the Formal Millinery Opening — Dry Goods Store Carrying Boots and Shoes — Keeping Frost Off Show Windows.

SOME WANT TO GROW TOO QUICKLY.

Fulford Bros., of Port Hope, conduct a strictly cash store, and have done so since they started in business. "When we came here," said one member of the firm, "it was predicted that we would not last long. I believe what a former employer of mine said, that it is possible to do a cash business almost anywhere. If a merchant changes from cash and credit to cash entirely he may lose trade the first year, but he must stick by the principle that he has laid down. I'll tell you it hurts to see some people, who have been among your best customers in the past, withdraw and go over to the other fellow. However, it's better to let them go than to make any exception in their case.



"Many men try to do too large a business," said Mr. Fulford, further. "They are not content to grow naturally."

The considerable number of wealthy Summer residents helps business in Cobourg to a very appreciable extent. After the American civil war it was pointed out by some Southerners that they and others, who had been in the habit of spending their Summers in Maine, would prefer going to Cobourg. Several business men of the town took up the suggestion, built a fine hotel and turned it over to a syndicate. The first season the Southerners who introduced the matter filled the hotel with their friends, and after that it was clear sailing.

"It was the best investment we ever made," said Mr. Hewson to The Review. "In many respects the Summer colony is better for us than a few industries would be."

DRY GOODS STORE CARRYING FOOTWEAR.

Wickett & Son, Port Hope, carry men's furnishings and boots and shoes in an exclusive store, and the large Rough Diagram Showing Department Arrangement—Baldwin & Carrothers, Tillsonburg.

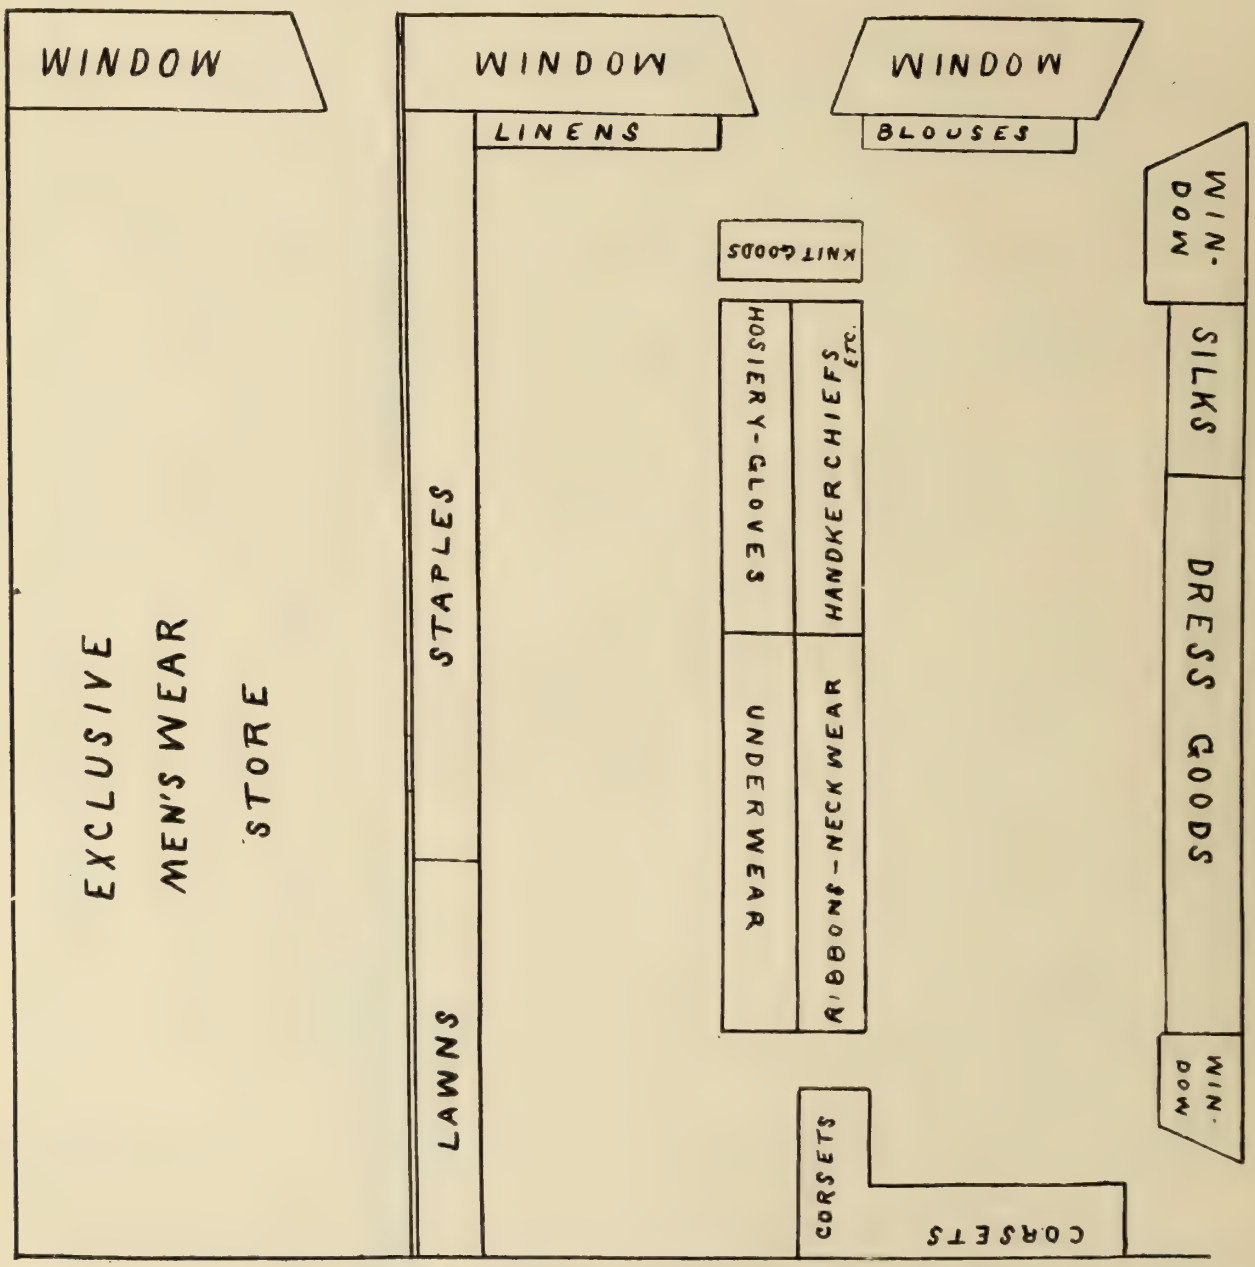
This firm carry millinery, and the department always pays its way.

A BIG MILLINERY BUSINESS.

Millinery is one of the very best lines with Hewson & Co., Cobourg; in fact, it was the foundation of their business. Some idea of the excellence of this department may be gained from the fact that hats are sent to Boston, Toronto, Montreal, and the west. A formal opening is held each season. The milliner in charge has been with the firm for some time, and has met with marked success.

The monthly account system is in use. An attempt was made to sell for cash only, but it was considered advisable to revert to the old policy of extending short credit to reliable people.

dry goods section is devoted entirely to ladies' wear. The mantle and carpet departments are located on the second floor. Millinery has never been handled.



Port Hope, though its population is only 5,000, has a daily paper. This helps the merchants materially. Wickett & Son change their ad. three or four times a week. This store loses very little trade through outside competition. What does go to Toronto is confined to such articles as gowns at $50 or $60.

Special sales are never attempted when there is any chance of them interfering with regular business. In a place of Port Hope's size it is felt that bargains, except at clearing-out seasons, load up customers with goods for which full rates might just as well be secured.

All dress goods bear the name of material, cost mark and selling price on a strip of card attached to the end of the board in each bolt. The paper in which some of the goods are wrapped is marked to correspond, so that after serving a customer the salesman has no trouble in quickly picking out the right wrappers and returning the bolts to their places on the shelves.

Boots and shoes, both for ladies and men. are carried in the men's wear store. A good volume of business is done, but we believe it could be materially increased if the ladies' section were conducted by itself somewhere in the dry goods store. A great many ladies might reasonably be expected to object to going into the men's department to purchase footwear. As a matter of fact they do, and the firm is obliged to send a good deal out on approval.

Rough Diagram Showing Department Arrangement—Bigelow Bros., Trenton.

WILL DROP FORMAL OPENING.

Barry & Co., Trenton, have a strong millinery department, which they expect to strengthen the coming season, by getting away from the practice of holding formal openings. "Our milliners," said Mr. Barry, "will go to Toronto early and return about two weeks before the wholesale openings. They will get to work at once and trim up fifteen to twenty-five hats in the leading styles. With as many more ready-to-wears we will be in shape for business. This plan will enable us to reduce accumulation of supplies, and also sell dress goods earlier."

This firm has a dressmaking department. It hardly pays its way, but is considered worth maintaining on account of the assistance which it gives the dress goods and trimmings department.

CASH STORE AT OSHAWA.

Sutcliffe Bros., Oshawa, sell only for cash, and they find little difficulty in operating upon this basis. They carry all kinds of general dry goods, but no millinery, except some ready-to-wear lines. For Christmas trade quite a large stock of toys is put in. Splendid show-cases are used for the display of fancy goods. The store windows are large and considerable attention is given to the trimming of them.

MODEL OF NEATNESS AND CONVENIENCE.

In many respects the store of Bigelow Bros., Trenton, is a model of neatness and convenience. Its proprietors have every reason to feel proud of it. In comparison with other dry goods establishments in towns of 4,500 population, it stands high above the average. Splendidly located on one of the main corners, it has five show windows and four entrances. The frontage is seventy feet.

Men's wear is confined to an exclusive store; which is well equipped and made as attractive as possible. A section of the shelving on each side is lined throughout with zinc, and subdivided into bins by partitions of this same material. In these shirts, underwear, socks and gloves are kept, instead of in manufacturers' boxes. Sliding glass doors complete the fittings. So many bins are set aside for each size in the various articles, and whatever is wanted may be picked out very quickly. Ladies' underwear is kept in the same way.

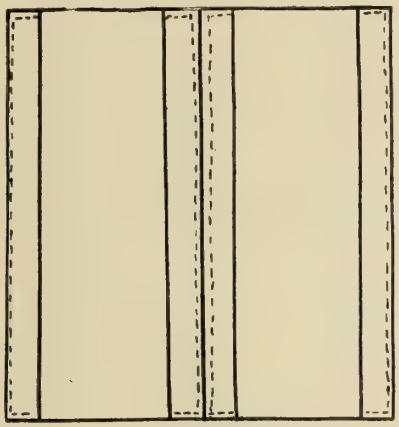

FIG. 1.

Wardrobes, tables and shelves are used for the display of clothing. All fixtures are of birch with mahogany stain. Two large show cases for furnishings will shortly be installed. A cash register is used in this section.

Plate glass from a broken window was sent to Toronto and mirrored at a cost of twenty cents per square foot. It was made into panes for the rear of the men's wear window.

The fixtures in the dry goods section are of modern design, and the shelves show every evidence of careful stock-keeping. The accompanying diagram gives a good idea as to the way in which the departments are arranged. There is, of course, an entrance from the dry goods to the men's wear section.

Notions are distributed pretty well around the store. We would strongly advise that they be collected in one department and kept to the front. Ribbons and neckwear might be brought up where the knit goods are now located. The twelve-foot show cases, in which the neckwear is displayed, would appear to great advantage across the front. Notions, in counter bins, should have the position now occupied by handkerchiefs. There might still be plenty of space along this side to accommodate handkerchiefs and knit goods.

A strip of card on the board in each bolt of dress goods gives the name of material, cost and selling price.

Bigelow Bros. have a very good system in connection with dress trimmings and laces. These are all sold from sample, which prevents damage to stock through handling. Most of the samples are shown in books, one of which is roughly illustrated herewith, (Fig. 1). The books are secured, in the first place, from houses where the firm buys its trimmings. The latter make it up themselves. Linen strips, forming shallow pockets, run down each side of every page. Into these are slipped cardboard strips, on which the samples are pasted. Boxes are also used for the same purpose. As each box of trimmings is placed in stock it is numbered. The corresponding numbers appear beside the samples, so that any class of material picked out by a customer may be located in a moment. The stock includes 1,100 patterns of lace.

Ladies' hosiery is kept in stock boxes, into the front of which cards are inserted, showing colors and textures, sizes and prices.

The carpet, curtain, fur and ready-to-wear departments are located on the second floor.

Everything in this store is priced in plain figures.

"We try to stick as close to cash business as possible," said T. D. Bigelow to The Review. "We carry a great deal less on our books now than we ever did before."

The firm advertise in papers at Trenton, Brighton and Colborne.

KEEPING FROST OFF WINDOWS.

In the Men's Wear section of Bigelow Bros.' store, Trenton, the window used to frost over regularly. This was overcome in a very simple way. A hole about a foot square was cut, through a pillar, at the upper left-hand corner, and a grate, such as used in a hot air register, placed on the outside (Fig. 2). The back of the window was made as near air-tight as possible, so as to keep out the warm air. So long as the temperature inside a window is the same as that of the outside air there is no chance of it frosting over.

In other windows this firm tried boring holes around the sash, but could not get sufficient ventilation. It happened that these windows had transom bars about eighteen inches from the top. The glass above them was put in frames and made to open up. In this way a great amount of cold air can be admitted in a few moments. Of course it is necessary in this case also to have the back of the window air-tight or almost so.

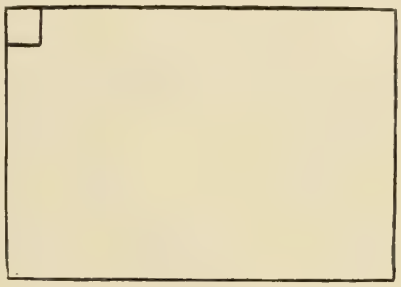

FIG. 2.

ALWAYS READY TO SEND FOR GOODS.

Field & Son, Cobourg, do not think it would be possible for them to do business on a cash basis. Credits are watched very closely, and nearly all accounts are rendered once a month.

Quite a number of wealthy people from the Southern States have Summer homes at Cobourg. It is impressed upon them, as well as the townspeople, that goods not carried in stock will cheerfully and promptly be sent for.

CAN'T GET DRESSMAKER.

About two-thirds of the business transacted by J. F. Clark, of Port Hope, is on a cash basis. He finds credits are becoming better right along. Mr. Clark has, like many other merchants, been forced to drop his dressmaking department through inability to secure a good dressmaker.

Brief Talks on Effective Advertising

To Manufacturers and Wholesalers

Given Occasionally by T. Johnson Stewart

THE MACLEAN PUBLISHING CO.

THEME: Beware of The Brotherhood.

There has been more unadulterated nonsense written about "Advertising" during the last decade than on any other subject of interest to mankind— always excepting, of course, "Race Suicide" and "The Annexation of Canada by the United States."

Mr. Business Man! When the representative of any agency on earth talks mysteriously to you about "Advertising" take out a cigar, smoke and enjoy it and let the circus proceed by all means—if you have time. Because you've met a fellow with wheels in his head. Had they been whizzing the other way he would have coyly requested a few thousand dollars for the purpose of patenting his perpetual motion concern and incidentally assuring himself the possession of meal tickets for the ensuing twelve months.

There's a prosperous brotherhood of just such altruistic gentlemen doing business in this Canada of ours to-day.

All agencies are not dyed-in-the-wool enough to be admitted into the inner circle of the Hot Air Trust. There are a few good, square, level-headed men conducting legitimate advertising agencies—clear-seeing fellows with consciences in good working order. These men despise the Easy-Money Hunters and Dollar-Snatchers just as much as we do.

Beware of the Brotherhood! When a member of that mysterious gang betrays anxiety over the way You spend Your money put a forty-horse power padlock on the cash drawer and keep it there while His Excellency hangs around your town. Because it is just about as clear as spring water that some of the gentry are nervy enough to steal the wheels of a trolley car.

This "Advertising Campaign" they've mapped out for you is the result of serious consideration—very serious. And it certainly does look strong and beautiful. But—the needs of your business have positively nothing to do with the matter That good-looking campaign—strong and dandy enough to pull the stars out of the milky way, you think—is built upon the strength of your bank account. Just as soon as The Brotherhood discovered that you had a surplus at the bank they started to figure out how much of that surplus belonged to them. And they decided that 95 per cent. of it was not your money at all.

These campaigns sometimes have their origin in your borrowing capacity or the generosity of your mother--in--law. The needs of your business constitute a side issue. They are only considered inasmuch as they strengthen the absurd claims of the Sons or Rest.

Mr. Business Man! Ignore The Brotherhood entirely. That's the first step towards effective advertising. If you are an ordinarily successful man you know the needs of your business better than any other man on earth. There are times when the advice of a specialist is essential. When such a time arrives we'll be glad to give you all the information at our disposal.

N.B. Our next talk will be An Eye-Opener

? ?

The price question and the question of deliveries are critical and disturbing factors in the business situation at present, that must be reckoned with by all merchants who desire to take the utmost advantage of the prosperous times ahead of us. Keen competition makes this imperative.

We have strenuously endeavored to solve both the problems referred o in the right way, and respectfully solicit inspection of our samples in evidence of the extent and success of our efforts.

Underwear, Hosiery and Gloves play an important part in creating store-success, and the lines we are now showing will be found hall-marked by all the qualities that tend to build up trade, and insure profit.

In Knit Goods

we would direct special attention to our extensive and attractive range of Shawls, Fascinators, Tams, Toques and Infants' Requisites.

Laces, Embroideries, Handkerchiefs, Ribbons

All foreign advices speak positively of decided advances, and continued scarcity of desirable lines in the above goods.

Our buyer was fortunate enough to make purchases in a low market, with the result that to day we offer complete lines at old prices. Goods are in stock, ready to ship, so that sorting orders can be delivered immediately.

Smallwares and Notions

By reason of specialization, this department is growing by leaps and bounds, and is stocked for the season with innumerable lines that will vitalize business.

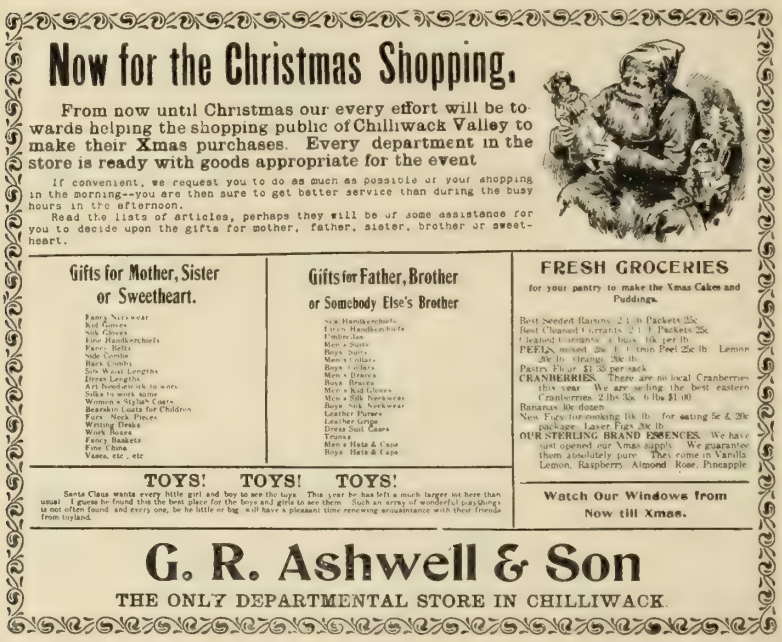
☞VISIT OUR WAREHOUSE WHEN IN TOWN FOR THE MILLINERY OPENINGS.

BROPHY-CAINS, LIMITED

MONTREAL

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS. QUICK SHIPPERS

Good Advertising: How to Produce It



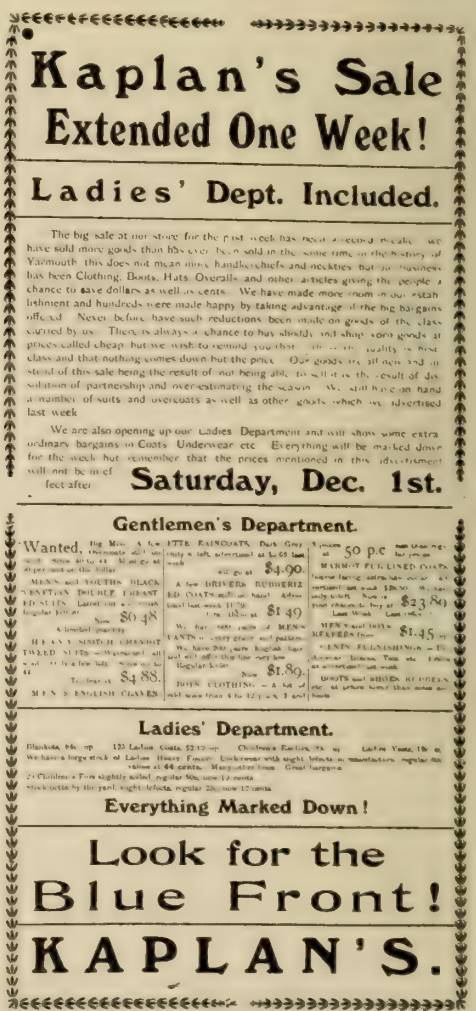
Brief Talks Given Monthly by T. Johnson Stewart,
The MacLean Publishing Co.

Since all advertising is good—more or less—talks under this head may seem superfluous. Therefore it is necessary to clarify the atmosphere by a few general remarks regarding advertising from the retailer's standpoint.

The retailer who is a good judge of human nature is a good ad-writer. He can produce pretty strong copy—and copy is the essential thing about an ad. But—the retailer, who is a good judge of women—the man who considers it worth his while to study the wants of women, can produce far stronger and better copy. Had Solomon lived in our day he would have had us all sitting away back in the rear of the hall. John Wanamaker would have been paying him $100,000 a year and perquisites. Solomon certainly could have handed out a line of talk to the ladies which would have made any bargain-counter rush you ever read about look like a prayer meeting of Quakeresses.

The dry goods merchant who desires to produce effective advertising must possess a knowledge of womankind and a sympathetic knowledge at that.

N.B.—This knowledge can be gained without emulating Solomon in every particular.



We reproduce two ads this month which most retailers can study a few moments with profit.

G. R. Ashwell & Son's ad is just about as pretty and eye-catching as any we've seen lately. The arrangement is pleasing and, although the copy is not very convincing, yet we would not be surprised to know that "the only departmental store in Chilliwack" did a rushing Christmas trade—largely because of its "onlyness." When I buy presents for "mother, sister or sweetheart" I buy at the store which states the prices. Money talks and talks strong and convincingly in an ad. You catch on, Mr. Ashwell! Buyers want to know the price—especially when they go after gifts. Apart from this I rather like your ad. Put more ginger into your copy, state prices and you're safe to hold your own against any departmental store which makes its appearance in your section.

* * *

We have reproduced the second ad, not to praise it, but to point out its defects. Mr. Kaplan starts out with a lengthy editorial on the big things he accomplished the previous week. All that is just so much space wasted. People do not want to know what you accomplished last week or last year. But they do want to know what you can do for them now. The public is sublimely callous to any reason you may have for holding a sale. That's not the public's business. The next ad you write cut the introduction short and sail right into the facts. That "Gentlemen's Department" is good strong stuff and you might have spread it profitably. Man is a curious animal when he contemplates buying an overcoat. And you must admit, Mr. Kaplan, that it isn't very illuminating to inform probable buyers that you "hold overcoats

JOHN KNOX COMPANY, LIMITED

The Knowing Ones Say "This Will Be a White Goods Season"

They must have taken their cue from our buyers, who anticipated this fact. We have an immense range of

Dotted Muslins
Persian Lawns
India Linens and Nainsooks
Victoria Lawns
Mercerized Brocades, etc.
Swiss Book Muslins

Our prices are right. Buy now. You can do better now than when the "scarce goods" ad. comes out.

Your request for samples or sample pieces will be appreciated which must go at fifty cents on the dollar." You may have cleared out all the overcoats you refer to in that particular item, but there's nothing about it which would make a man hustle around to your store.

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS - - HAMILTON, ONTARIO

* * *

Bastedo & Co., of Milton, have sent in a pretty good folder. The folder contains some terse, clear-cut copy, and we would not be surprised to know that it landed Milton's paying trade right in their store. But—if there is a reliable newspaper published in Milton, I believe firmly that it would have paid them better to publish that strong copy in that newspaper. Folders are seldom read unless they are of striking appearance.

* * *

The editor of this journal has been insistent on one point: "Descriptive Advertising." The lack of just such matter in country and small city store advertising at once constitutes your weakness and the surprising strength of the big mail order houses. This subject is momentous enough to call for special consideration, and in our next issue I will endeavor to point out the trade-pulling attributes of "Descriptive Advertising."

The Criticism of Ads.

The Advice of Our Expert is at the Disposal of Review Readers at Any Time.

The Review is going to make the "Good Advertising" department one of substantial value to the retailer. Each month we will take up some aspect of the subject and endeavor to give instruction that will be immediately useful. Criticism of ads. sent in to us will form an important, regular feature, and will be accompanied by illustrations. In this connection we trust that no offence will be taken where defects—faulty apportionment of space, verbosity of introductory paragraphs, lack of descriptive matter and prices, etc.—are strongly commented on. We believe it is with the object of receiving real help that merchants send us samples of their advertising for review. Very often ads. which they consider worthy of praise may come in for criticism, but in all caes we will endeavor to state exactly where the fault lies and how it may be remedied. Our advertising expert is competent to give advice on all matters coming under this heading, and we hope our readers will not be slow to take advantage of his assistance.

NOTES.

Samuel Torrens, Oshawa, has both dry goods and groceries, the former being, of course, much the more prominent stock. His store is neat and bright.

F. E. Ellis & Co. are the only dry goods firm in Oshawa maintaining a millinery trimming department. They have as competitors two exclusive stores.

Sam Clarke's "Busy Stores," Cobourg, have a good appearance and do an active business. Tailoring is conducted in a separate store. Boots and shoes are a good department.

"The Arcade," Oshawa, is conducted by T. Miller & Sons, and is an excellent store throughout. No millinery is carried. Ready-to-wear is a very good department. The art, notion and fancy goods departments are prominent and bring splendid returns.

"Craftana"

THE HALL-MARK OF Registered No. 262,500

Maximum Comfort and Durabilty at Minimum Cost.

FIRST in the Field and STILL LEADING.

Made on the GRADUATED PRINCIPLE, and starting with TWO THREADS in the TOP, it increases in WEAR-RESISTING PROPERTIES as it descends. Thus THE LEG HAS THREE THREADS, THE INSTEP AND FOOT FOUR, and the HEEL and TOE FIVE. By this process the WEIGHT and STRENGTH of the Sock are where they are most needed IN THE FEET, making it essentially

A HALF HOSE FOR HARD WEAR

Absolutely Seamless.
Perfect in Fit.
Guaranteed Unshrinkable

THE ACME OF PERFECTION IN FOOTWEAR

SOLE AGENTS FOR CANADA: R. HENDERSON & CO. MONTREAL and TORONTO

Manufactured by W. RAVEN & CO., Ltd. Leicester, Eng.

Stanfield's Unshrinkable and "Truro Knit" Underwear

are lines merchants can depend on for quick sales and steady profit.

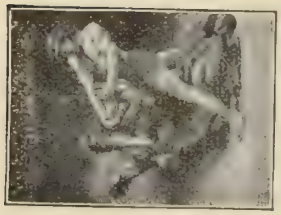
The fine, all-wool quality—the healthy warmth—the secret process of shrinking which adds, if anything, to the soft durability—are some of the reasons why Stanfield's is preferred to other makes.

Keep an eye on your stock—don't let Stanfield's run low—for business' sake.

Samples of new goods now ready. Write.

Stansfield's, Limited
Truro, N.S.

125a



PRINCESS RIB

The genteel stocking for Boys and Girls. Made of fine double Egyptian Lisle Yarn.

ROCK RIB
Strong as Gibraltar

The Stockings made especially for Boys' and Girls' hard wear.

HERCULES RIB
The Limit of Strength

Made of Three-ply Specially Strong Yarn.

MANUFACTURED FOR THE WHOLESALE TRADE BY CHIPMAN-HOLTON KNITTING CO.
E. H. WALSH & CO., Sole Selling Agents, TORONTO and MONTREAL

PREMIER FINISH
TRADE MARK
NON-SHRINKABLE

SQUIRREL BRAND UNDERWEAR

PURE WOOL

Cartwright & Warners

LIMITED.

Loughborough, England.

WOOL IS A NON-CONDUCTOR, keeping the heat in and the cold out; it is the most porous of all materials, permitting free circulation of air next the body. Made for Men's, Women's and Children's Wear.

Guaranteed Absolutely Unshrinkable.

CARTWRIGHT & WARNER'S name on a garment carries with it the value of a hundred years' successful experience in the manufacture of the best knit Underwear in the world, and stamps it with a character of superiority that places it above and beyond all others in a class by itself.

R. FLAWS & SON, Agents, Manchester Bldg., Toronto.

There is
A Reason For Our Success

And It Is This :—

For forty years we have been making honest-value, popular-price Underwear.

You have sold this Underwear, perhaps not knowing who made it, but certainly knowing it was good Underwear.

We have enlarged premises, modern facilities, ample capital, experienced staff.

Continue to sell our Underwear aud safeguard your profits.

JOSEPH SIMPSON SONS

Corner Berkeley and Esplanade

TORONTO

Baldwin's Beehive Fingering

The ORIGINAL Fingering

GREAT BRITAIN'S BEST

Cannot be surpassed for Warmth, Comfort and Durability

LATEST SPECIALTIES:

BEEHIVE DOUBLE KNITTING WOOL

A grand yarn for warm garments, such as Socks, Stockings, Golf Hose, Gloves, Comforters and Combinations. It is the same length and thickness as the best 3-ply Wheeling yarn, but is much stronger and more durable in wear.

BEEHIVE RUG WOOL

A novelty for making Rugs and Mats at home. Cable twisted, lustrous finish. Supplied in 3 dozen art shades.

BEEHIVE EIDER WOOL

A really choice article for making dainty Shawls and Wraps. It washes beautifully and is particularly suitable for Undervests.

BEEHIVE FEATHER WOOL

A novel looped thread for Knitting or Crochet. Reproduces the wavy appearance of an Ostrich Feather or of Astrachan.

WHITE HEATHER

"Baldwin's 2nd Quality," supplied in Scotch Fingering, 2, 3, 4 and 5-ply; 3-ply Wheeling; Vest Wool, and Petticoat Fingering, 4-ply. Good, reliable, high-class Wools at a popular level of price.

J. & J. BALDWIN & PARTNERS, Ltd.

Halifax, England

Established 1785 Wholesale only

AGENT:

DUNCAN BELL, Montreal and Toronto

PLEASE SEND FOR SAMPLES

Knitted Goods

Hosiery
Underwear
Golfers

Hosiery

The Demand is Improving—Foreign Sources Uncertain.

Within the next few weeks there will undoubtedly be a great improvement in the demand for Fall lines of hosiery. Many buyers have already placed their Fall orders, and others have deferred the task until stock-taking is completed. To these dilatory firms the significance of the prophetic adage, "Delays are dangerous," should be heeded, for on every hand is heard the discomforting forecast of inevitable shortage and higher prices. The constant warning from the manufacturers to the jobber to cover their requirements as speedily as possible is the best that can be given, and should be accepted as the most advantageous guidance.

It would be well to bear in mind the shortage of all yarns existing at present, and also the abnormal demand which is taxing the sources of supply even beyond their capacity. The market has been so very active that even for Spring deliveries are bound to be late, especially from foreign sources. Spring delivery orders have been so heavy that the mills have been obliged to run well into the season when their attention should be turned to the production of Fall lines.

Shortage in Retail Circles.

It is noticeable that during the January sales there was little to offer in the knitted goods department at the usual discounts. The wave of prosperity throughout the country has been evidenced in the hosiery department; stocks have shown a constant improvement until they have reached a higher standard than was ever before attained. With the demand for better goods it was only right to discourage the sale of the cheaper lines which were comparatively unprofitable. While many lines were quickly disposed of, repeats were impossible to obtain and many sales were lost. This state of affairs often led to searches in jobbers' stocks, but from that source came the story of shortage and advanced prices which had been too often disregarded by the disappointed retailers. A similar state of affairs is bound to occur this year. It is to be hoped that retailers have benefitted by their experience of last year, and that when the cry of shortage is sounded in time it will not be considered an alarmist's trick to curry an order speedily. Both jobbers and manufacturers are desirous of serving the interests of the retail trade, and when they advise prompt ordering it is done with the hope of helping the jobber in a very material way. They work to hold a customer just in the same way that the retailer does, and to do this they must give him the goods to satisfy. While they can give they want to supply. There is no coercion in the jobber's methods, but his persuasion is sincere and founded upon a thorough knowledge of the conditions governing the market. The advice should be heeded as coming from a source that is shrewdly in touch with the vital question of supply. Throughout the year the advice to order early has been given, and subsequent developments have repeatedly proven that this stand has been correct. After keen questioning and observations in the best informed circles it must be again taken.

Features of Ordering.

Without a single exception jobbers have ordered more heavily than last year. Many have given greater attention to the selection of stock, while others, who procrastinated, have caught up lines in the hope of getting deliveries more promptly than on the lines on which there were too many orders ahead to assure attention. It is felt that the continued brisk demand for hosiery throughout the country must inevitably disappoint some sources, and it is realized in many centres that it is a clear case of the early bird catching the worm. A few fortunate merchants, endowed with a goodly share of foresight, realized the situation and ordered for Fall much earlier than usual. The consequence is that they have escaped the advances, and are thus enabled to give better prices and values to the retailers.

It is freely admitted that values will not be so good this year as last. The marvel of it is that the advanced quotations are so small when the price of yarn is so greatly advanced. The wool and worsted lines, which have been bought in great quantities, show a steady upward tendency and there is no decline anticipated. The decreased demand for the very heavy lines last year is again noticed this year. Medium and light-weight, plain ribs, with double knees, heels and toes, are among the most active sellers. Heavy colored hosiery, used for over-stockings by children and ladies, are moving satisfactorily. This means the sale of their accessories, such as toques, mitts and sashes. There was a tendency on the part of many ladies who wore white furs this Winter, to match them with white over-stockings, and it is quite likely that this pretty style will be much in evidence next Winter.

Sources of Supply Busy.

Worsted and fine yarns show an advance of about 5 per cent. during recent months, and with the constant growing demand there will very likely be further advances made. Mills are constantly clamoring for more than their usual share of yarns, in order that they may accept as many orders as their supply of yarns will allow. This strengthens the demand for yarns, and tends to increase the prices which are strictly governed by the demand and at this time there is a shortage.

From Chemnitz there comes not the most pleasing news. Foreign markets have suffered because of home consumption demanding more than its ordinary share of hosiery. The Canadian discriminative duty has had the effect of Canadian orders being pigeon-holed to some extent. The Germans claim that their transportation facilities are at present inadequate, but they also admit—which is of far greater significance—that they are not anxious to accept foreign orders under the strained conditions of the market. Canadian orders for German cotton hosiery are very large, and what with strikes, insufficient capacity to fill all orders, and poor shipping facilities, there are bound to be many disappointments.

English sources of supply are being taxed heavily at present. It is admitted by other countries that England holds the advantage of having secured a better share of yarns and raw materials that other countries. While she is leading in the sales of heavy woolen hosiety, and maintaining a very healthy standard, the fancy lines have not been so successful for export orders.

Domestic Lines Improved.

Canadian manufacturers have no fears as to the eventual outcome of the business for the Fall of 1907. Already orders are pouring in so rapidly that they are looking to their supply of yarns and are actively securing as big a supply as possible. There is not the slightest doubt that the mills will be taxed to their utmost. Not only do top-notch prices stimulate their efforts, but the features of foreign markets make their possibilities greater, and they are ready to establish a higher standard. There have been many additions made to plants during the past few years, and those that have been extended show marked improvement in output. Those manufacturers who have been slow to realize their opportinities are making arrangements to extend.

The trade and consumers are well pleased with the lines produced, though the advance in yarns since the last quoting of Fall prices, will have the effect of diminishing their profits considerably. They realize that they must maintain their standard of quality despite the circumstances. The mills refraining from too much "doctoring" will benefit by a good reputation in the end. The prejudice against Canadian products is gradually melting away before the constantly improving lines, and during the coming Fall season the heavy cashmeres, heavy gauged lines and heavy wool and worsted lines will be found equal to the best on the market.

Hosiery Fashions

Embroidered Hose the Feature—Shaded Two-Tone and Subdued Plaid Lines the Novelties.

In addition to the trouble of getting goods, matching colors promises to be an extra worry that the hosiery buyer in the exclusive stores will be called upon to face, for the fashion of wearing colored lines, that came into prominence last Summer, is decidedly on the increase.

The style idea is that hose, shoes, gloves and other accessories shall match the gown, or where the gown worn is white, all the accessories shall match in color, pink and blue being first in favar.

This will mean that the high-class store will have to carry a big line of colored hosiery, and that pink and blue will have to be added to the popular range in most stores. White will be a good seller, but its vogue will suffer from the popularity of colors. There will also be some demand for tan and grey. Black, of course, is always called for and has its staple place in the trade.

Embroidery is now the favorite embellishment of high-grade hosiery. Sheer gauze hosiery, either of silk or lisle, is embroidered in colors, and colors in self or contrast, and not only silk, but ribbon embroidery is used.

The latest smart thing in hosiery is the two-toned and the shaded stockings—the two-toned showing only the one color until stretched, when both colors show. Plaid ribbons for hat trimmings, plaid belts, etc., are to be worn with Summer gowns, and hose in subdued plaids are promised, to match. This is one of the very latest of Dame Fashion's freaks, and is being taken up by many of the visitors at Palm Beach and other Atlantic resorts.

Sheerness is still high style, and the fashion of wearing light-weight, and gauze hosiery, shows no sign of any diminishment.

Underwear

The Outlook in This Branch is Good—Some Lines Are Disappointing.

Again the soft, wool lines, of elasticity, are being ordered for Fall delivery. The present Winter, so far, has been most propitious for the sale of garments of warmth. The indications are that there will be a continuance of the demand for lightweights, in preference to the heavy wool garments. In order that these should have the quality of warmth, they must be of close texture, and of what ladies call clinging elasticity. This means better quality, and it would be well for retailers to base their buying for Fall upon this principle of preference. Buyers are showing a tendency to bank heavily on the well tried staple lines. Wool and merino lines are advancing in price and it is expected that they will advance still further, before the season for the disposing of stock rightly begins. Jobbers have not, as expected, ordered heavily on the fleece-lined goods, but it is confidently expected that before the season is far advanced big orders will be placed. While the nap of the fleece-lined goods was greatly improved last year, there was not a great demand for them. These goods are really much improved and are good value as the market prices stand to-day.

Already complaints are heard of slow delivery on Spring lines, but it is, perhaps, early to take this as a serious indication of there being any material shortage. This complaint regards foreign deliveries only. Spring underwear business is not considered of great importance, and as there is more profit in the heavy lines it is only fair to believe that manufacturers will turn their attention to these at the earliest possible date. To pursue this policy would mean that repeats on Spring underwear would be hard to obtain.

Manufacturers have discarded cheap lines of knitted underwear because the prevailing high prices of raw materials, yarns, mill supplies and labor warrants the production of lines on which there is a good margin of profit.

Better Lines Improved and Low Grades Unchanged.

It is admitted that during the past few years cheap lines have been "doctored" to such an extent that it can be carried on no further. The limit has been reached. Especially is this true of balbriggan lines. The Egyptian yarns which are used in the manufacturing of these goods have advanced to such a prohibitive extent that the manufacturing of them cannot be carried on with a satisfactory profit. There is bound to be an improved demand for balbriggans during the next few weeks, but it is well understood that since prices have not materially advanced the lines will not be of such good value as last year.

Of the ribbed waist-fitting vests, which have gained in popularity during the past few seasons, ordering thus far has been free. Last year there was a tendency on the part of retailers to order in a hand-to-mouth fashion, owing, undoubtedly, to the uncertainty of the season, but as stocks are well cleaned out there should be no diffidence in stocking well, for the demand is better understood. Retailers have no chances to take this year. There is bound to be early active ordering, and as the supply cannot possibly keep up with the demand arising from this rapidly growing country, there will be, in all likelihood, a recurrence of last year's shortage. High grades of knitted underwear have been much improved during the past two years; the demand for the best has been steady and will continue to be so. The high standard is well maintained this season, and is giving every satisfaction.

Canadian Mills Busy.

Canadian mills are busy at present finishing up their Spring business, and must soon begin to make their Fall lines. Fewer cancellations are expected than during previous years, and it is expected that repeats for late delivery will be frequent. This cannot be carried on too long, for in some cases mills are booked to their full capacity already, while others are fast completing orders. With a shortage of skilled labor it will be nip and tuck to finish out the season in time. The mills which have sold their Fall goods at figures based on prices of yarns existing at present are not at all likely to gain by the move as the tendency of the yarn market at present is steadily upwards.

Mills having a capacity for about 25,000 dozen garments have fully booked their orders, and it means running night and day if orders are to be shipped in time. There is every reason to think that those jobbers who have shown a stubborn dislike for Canadian manufactured goods are now willing to place bigger orders with Canadian mills. There is, perhaps, a two-fold reason: foreign goods are hard to obtain, and, better still, they have discovered that Canadian goods are improved and are not doctored to the same extent as many imported lines. The mills are scrupulously clean and every attention is given to the various departments. The prejudice is unjustifiable. Canadians make their goods on the same principle as other countries; yarns are derived from the same sources; the machinery is the same: no one can dispute the ability of Canadian mechanics and the business methods of the mills are admired by all. The extension and expansion of late years has been the outcome of faithful endeavors. It is contemplated by more than one mill to instal their own spinning plants. Surely such enterprising progress is a guarantee of the best efforts, and should appeal to the trade.

Golfers and Sweaters

Manufacturers' Lines Well Received—Some Doubt as to Their Final Sales in Retail Circles.

Although jobbers have purchased large stocks of the new style Eton jackets, there is some uncertainty expressed as to the final disposal of them. There is a feeling that if the lines were not copied into cheaper and trashy lines all would go well. Ladies will, undoubtedly, take kindly to the best lines of the natty Eton jackets, but when these begin to be imitated in cheaper lines they at once regard them with great disfavor. More complain that cheap German lines of golfers and sweaters are a drug on

(Continued on Page 52.)

THE LEADING
English Underwear
JAY
Unshrinkable Woollen
UNDERWEAR

SPECIALITIES:—

LADIES' COMBINATIONS fitted with the Patent "S" WRAP, which affords complete protection where this is most necessary. No button is needed, and the garment does not drag when wearer is sitting.

Any Garment shrunk in Washing will be replaced.

Gentlemen's "STAR" Seated Pants & Drawers.

NO SEAMS at fork, up back, and down inside of leg to chafe, or give way.

EXTRA SPLICED with great freedom of movement.

These Specialities can also be obtained in Merino, and Silk and Merino.

SEE THIS MARK

ON EVERY GARMENT

Wholesale only:—
Messrs. I. & R. Morley and Geo. Brettle & Co.
LONDON, ENGLAND.

FALL SEASON, 1907

Watson's Ribbed Knit Underwear (will not shrink).

As our representatives are now showing a full assortment of Fall Underwear for Ladies, Men and Children, we wish to call your attention to a few of our specialties.

The "Allen Nursing Vest" still retains its popularity, and we are the sole makers of same in Canada.

Something new in bifurcated garments is the patent Isabelle Drawer Skirt. The only skirt for winter wear.

Overwhelming testimony as to the excellence of our men's and boys' goods comes entirely unsolicited. See our Ribbed Knit Plush Lines.

Nothing so conducive to the comfort and well-being of infants as our "RUBENS" and other vests and bands specially designed for youngsters.

Stimulate your trade by carrying underwear that will wear.

AGENTS:

McCLUNG & BURNS, 117 Wellington St. West, TORONTO

J. A. MURRAY, SUSSEX, N.B.

A. L. GILPIN, 232 McGill St., MONTREAL

BRYCE & CO., Box 238, WINNIPEG

Watson Manufacturing Co., Limited, Paris, Ont.

RESOLVED—MR. DEALER THAT

"Hygeian" REGISTERED UNDERWEAR

will bring the good substantial trade to your Underwear Department—the ladies who appreciate good underwear and back their opinions with purchases.

If you have not seen the Hygeian Range for Spring 1907, ask your jobber for samples at once. The leading styles will be found amongst them.

MANUFACTURED BY

EAGLE KNITTING CO. Ltd., HAMILTON, CAN.

Sales Increasing on "Hygeian Waists"

JAEGER

Pure Wool

Knitted Goods

WE are now showing new samples in Men's Fancy Waistcoats, Cardigans, Golf Coats, Hunting Coats, Sweaters, Spencers, Golf Hose, Fancy Half Hose, etc.

Ladies' Knitted Golfers, Golf Coats, Norfolks, Spencers, Shawls, etc., in a great variety of styles.

Our new Catalogue for 1907 will interest you

DR. JAEGER'S SANITARY WOOLLEN SYSTEM COMPANY LIMITED

Wholesale Warehouse : 301 ST. JAMES ST., MONTREAL

Crescent Brand

Hosiery and Underwear

S. Lennard & Sons

DUNDAS, ONT.

Manufacturers of all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's

RIBBED UNDERWEAR

in Cotton, Wool, Worsted, Merino, and Silk, and "Bolton's" process for Unshrinkable Underwear.

GUARANTEED UNSHRINKABLE AND NON-FELTING.

SOLE SELLING AGENTS

The Richard L. Baker Co.

Empire Bldg., Wellington St. W. TORONTO, ONT.

HOSIERY BUYERS ATTENTION!

¶When you buy Black Stockings be sure they are HERMSDORF-DYED

¶A Black Stocking that doesn't bear my signature trade-mark on the toe is not HERMSDORF-DYED.

¶If a pleased customer is the best ad. your store can have—a dissatisfied one is, in inverse ratio, the worst ad.

¶HERMSDORF-DYED stockings make every customer advertise your store in the best possible way.

¶A handsomely printed 48-page booklet will be sent free to all who request it on their business stationery. The title is "The Story of a Successful Hosiery Week," and it embraces window trimming, ad. writing, sale ideas, etc. Write now.

Louis Hermsdorf
Dyer

Works: Chemnitz, Saxony

American Bureau, 200 Greene St., N.Y.

(N.B.—Newspaper cuts sent free for the asking)

The Ellis Spring Needle Ribbed Underwear

is knit on SPRING NEEDLE RIBBED MACHINES, of which we are SOLE USERS in CANADA. These machines will knit ONLY THE FINEST YARN and produce a finished fabric of the most REMARKABLE ELASTICITY. Garments of this fabric fit EASILY and NATURALLY. They yield readily with every movement of the body, yet ALWAYS retain their original ELASTICITY. Our travellers are now out with Fall samples. Wait for them.

SOLE MAKERS IN CANADA

The Ellis Manufacturing Co., Limited, Hamilton, Ont.

Selling Agents—Monypenny Bros. & Co., Toronto and Montreal

ADAMS LOCKSTITCH HOSE

Wins Lasting Customers Wherever Shown.

Its Special Features:

10 FOLD KNEES
6 FOLD ANKLES

give it a wearing quality equalled by no other hosiery on the market.

A. E. ADAMS & CO.
LEICESTER, ENG.
Manufacturers

WALTER WILLIAMS & CO.
301 ST. JAMES STREET
MONTREAL
33 MELINDA STREET
TORONTO

WHOLESALE ONLY

We have been appointed sole agents for
JOHN GUNNING & SON, Limited, - BELFAST, Ire.
LINEN MANUFACTURERS

The Underwear

you ought to sell is The Underwear that gives most comfort and satisfaction to the wearer. Because it pays best to do so.

"CEETEE" is that sort. It fits right, is velvety and comfortable and cannot shrink.

Perfect Fitting Elastic-Ribbed Underwear

is a particular favorite with women and children. Mothers insist on it for their babes. They call it:

"The Underwear That Gives Joy"

The Quality is unsurpassed. The price is always right.

THE C. TURNBULL CO.
OF GALT, LIMITED
GALT, CANADA

We Beg to Announce that our representatives are now showing our range for Fall 1907.

We can show you the greatest value in your leading lines of Ladies' Vests and Drawers that sell for 25c., 50c., 75c., $1.00.

We only ask that our samples be given due consideration.

REPRESENTATIVES

ONTARIO—Peerless Underwear Co.
Myles Building, Hamilton

QUEBEC—L. A. Prevost
232 McGill St., Montreal

MANITOBA—A. J. Snell
Box 705, Winnipeg, Man.

BRITISH COLUMBIA—Geo. A. Campbell
P. O. Box 1026, Vancouver, B.C.

MARITIME PROVINCES—G. A. Woodill
20 Granville St., Halifax, N.S.

The Peerless REGISTERED
UNDERWEAR CO.
Hamilton, Canada

Nazareth Waist

KNITTED---not woven

Allowing freedom in every part of it that healthy boys or girls could wish for.

But its elasticity never borders on the shapeless.

TAPED

Right—from the shoulders and to stand all the strain they'll get.

BUTTONS

Sewed on to stay.

It wears well—washes well.

THESE

CANADIAN WHOLESALE HOUSES

Carry complete lines of the Nazareth Waist

ST. JOHN, N.B.
The Vassie Co., (Ltd.)
The London House Wholesale
Manchester, Robertson & Allison
Scovil Bros., (Ltd.)

WINNIPEG, MAN.
R. J. Whitla & Co., (Ltd.)
Greenshields Western, (Ltd.

VANCOUVER, B.C.
The Gault Bros. Co.

CALGARY, ALTA.
W. R. Brock Co., (Ltd.)

TORONTO
John Macdonald & Co.
Gordon, Mackay & Co
W. R Brock Co (Ltd)
Burton, Spence & Co., (Ltd.)
Beatty, Kerr & Verner
Denton, Mitchell & Duncan.

HAMILTON, ONT.
John Knox Company, (Ltd.)

HALIFAX, N.S.
W. & C. Silver
Smith Brothers

KINGSTON, ONT.
Macnee & Minnes

LONDON, ONT.
R. C. Struthers & Co.
Robinson, Little & Co.

MONTREAL
W. R. Brock Co. (Ltd.)
Greenshields Limited
Hodgson, Sumner & Co. (Ltd.)
A. Racine & Co.
Brophy-Cains, (Ltd.)

This mark woven in Red is on every genuine Nazareth Waist, and it means something.

E. H. WALSH & CO.

TORONTO AND MONTREAL.

CANADIAN REPRESENTATIVES.

ADDRESS, ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

Nazareth Waist Co.

350 BROADWAY

NEW YORK

THE

IMPERIAL MILLS COMPANY

OF DUNNVILLE, ONT.

Manufacturers of—

Lumbermen's Socks
Club Sweaters
Cardigan Jackets
Ladies' Golf Capes
Knit-to-Fit Jackets
Blouses, etc., etc.

Our goods bear the guarantee of responsible makers.

The Yarns and other Materials are specially selected by experts. The goods are all fashioned to fit by hand—Every garment goes under the hands of four Expert Examiners before being sent out.

We take back any goods which are not as ordered, By these means we have succeeded in placing our Knitted Fabrics in the same category as Tailor-Made Goods.

Our travelers are now on the road with our new and complete line for 1907, which we feel confident surpasses, by far, any former season.

SALESROOMS

60 Front Street West, - TORONTO

No Merchant Can Stop

It is no use commencing to build a house unless you continue until finished, and much of the same sort of reasoning applies to Paton's Alloa Scotch Knitting Yarns, as when a merchant has once commenced selling these yarns his customers will not allow him to stop buying them, because their superiority over others leads the people who knit to at once see there are yarns and yarns, but none like Paton's Alloa Yarns

so that if you really do not intend to continue keeping our yarns in your stock, it's best not to commence buying them, as if you once allow your customers to knit Paton's Alloa Yarns you will not be able to stop buying them unless you are very different to all our customers, whose interest forces them to keep on.

John Paton, Son & Co.,
Alloa, Scotland

Sole Agent for Canada
PHILIP DE GRUCHY, 207 St. James Street, MONTREAL

A Boy's Bank Account

Any boy—in his spare time after school and on Saturdays—can earn in a few weeks enough money to start

A Bank Account

Write us and we will tell you how we will start you in business by providing you with capital.

Then you will make a good profit on every sale thereafter.

IN ADDITION

we will give you a watch for good work.

Write at once.

The MacLean Publishing Company,

10 Front Street East, Toronto

Our travellers are out with samples of worsted, cashmere and special lines of cotton hosiery.

The Best in Canada.

THE WEARWELL BRAND

MANUFACTURED BY

THE

CLINTON KNITTING CO.,
CLINTON, ONT. LIMITED

DON'T FORGET THE NEW HEWSON KNIT GOODS

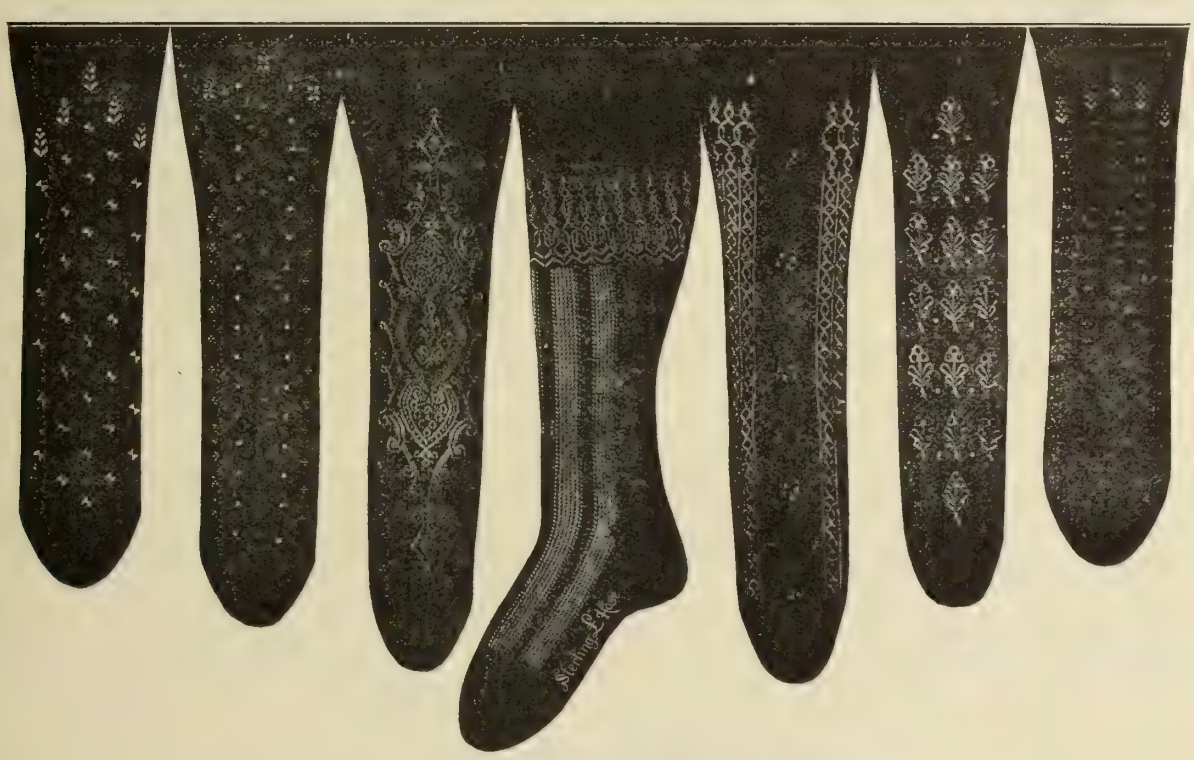
The new styles in Hewson Knitted Garments are now being shown, and the "knowing ones" are delighted. Something out of the ordinary this time.

Hewson Unshrinkable Underwear, made of Nova Scotia wool, is one of the newest lines on the market and pronounced one of the best. See that you have it at the start.

Ladies' Underwear also—the best of materials—right in fit and finish.

Golf Jackets, Cardigans, Sweaters, for Ladies, Men and Boys. Things you have not seen before. New styles that will sell easily and make you good money.

Hewson Tweeds and Costume Cloths are more in demand than ever.



DON'T FORGET THE NEW HEWSON KNIT GOODS

Sterling £ Hosiery

SPRING 1907

The brand of character, merit and reputation. No hosiery stock is complete without it. We've hustled for months; now all is ready to fill orders on the minute.

A GROUP OF ATTRACTIVE STYLES

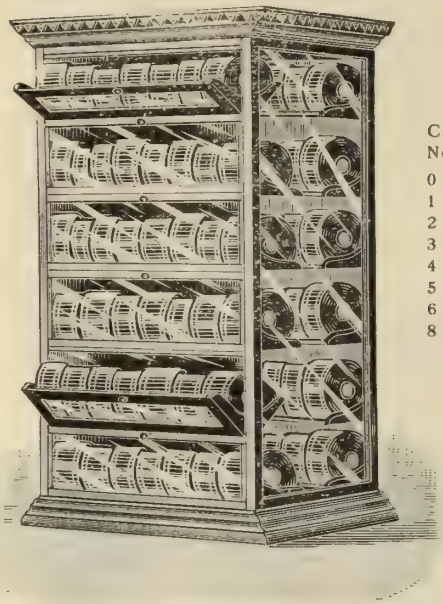
¶ Advices from leading foreign hosiery markets clearly indicate late deliveries, scarcity of desirable lines and higher prices.

¶ We are showing a full assortment of Ladies' Lisle and Silk Hosiery in Plain, Embroidered and Gauze. All prices from $2.25 to $42.00 per dozen.

BEAUTIFUL EXCLUSIVE DESIGNS

Full range of white and colored lines

¶ Our Men's Hosiery department is complete with every new idea. An exceptionally strong line to retail at 25c. and 50c.



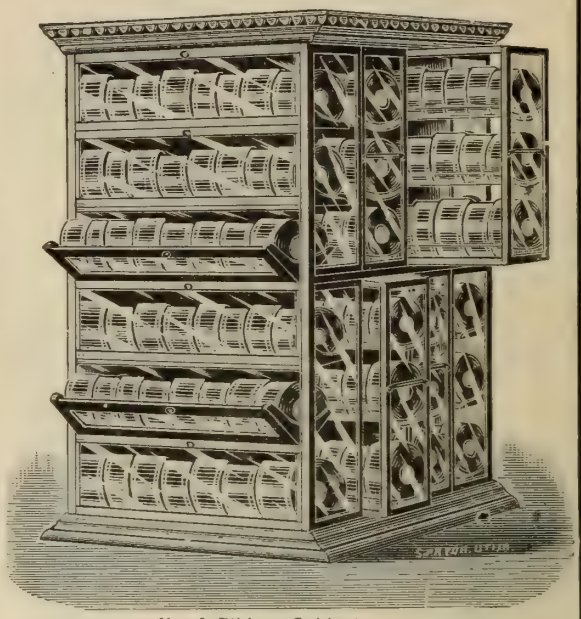
Write for samples, or our travellers will call.

KONIG & STUFFMAN

Victoria Square, MONTREAL

Ribbons - Ribbons - Ribbons.

Display them Properly by Using a Practical Ribbon Cabinet.



No. 2 Ribbon Cabinet

PRICE LIST

Cabinet No.		Capacity Bolts
0	27⅛x6½ x26½	50	$ 6 00
1	28¼x14 x26	100	10 00
2	28¾x14 x38	150	13 50
3	28¾x18¼x38	250	18 50
4	28¾x23¼x38	325	23 00
5	28½x27¾x38	400	26 00
6	28¾x32½x38	475	30 00
8	28¾x43¼x43½	700	42 00

Capacity based on No. 7 Ribbon.

MADE OF OAK
ANTIQUE FINISH

No. 4 Ribbon Cabinet

No. 0 Ribbon Cabinet opens from one side. Nos. 1 and 2 open from two sides. Nos. 3 to 8 open from four sides.

Sold by the Leading Jobbers of Dry Goods and Notions. Send to the manufacturers for Catalogue, which describes not only the Ribbon Cases, but various other Fixtures for the Dry Goods Trade, and the list of jobbers through whom the fixtures may be ordered.

A. N. RUSSELL & SONS CO., Ilion, N.Y., MANUFACTURERS OF DRY GOODS STORE FIXTURES

Shipping Department System

is as necessary as system in any other department. Our Spring Clip Binder does the trick at a reasonable figure. Write to-day for information.

UNIVERSAL SYSTEMS

LIMITED

8-10 Adelaide St. West, Toronto

14 Bank of Ottawa Bldg., Montreal, Que.

WINDOW DRESSING

THE ART OF DISPLAY

INTERIOR DECORATION

Views of a Trimmer

By H. C. MACDONALD, Peterborough.

It is difficult to give any very definite advice in regard to display work. Every window trimmer must be governed by the conditions which he faces ; there is no recognized standard, and never can be. So much depends on the class of trade which a store caters to, its location and the size and shape of the windows, as well as other considerations, too numerous to mention, but which will readily suggest themselves to any practical trimmer.

What would be excellent for one line of trade would be totally unsuited to another. For fine trade I would suggest as one of the fundamental rules that few goods be displayed, with absolutely no price tickets, or signs of any sort for that matter.

Mechanical displays and sensationalism of any sort is absolutely tabooed ; in fact, as a matter of principle, I am opposed to such methods, although I can easily conceive of cases in which such displays might be used to advantage. But even when employed, the artist must never forget the main issue : that the prime object of the window display is to sell goods. Often and often have I seen windows in which the "man behind the gun" seemed to have lost sight of this fact in his over-anxiety to produce some astonishing effect.

A window that simply excites the passing attention, without inciting people to buy, simply tends to cheapen a store in the estimation of the public.

The successful window trimmer is the one who displays his goods naturally—that is, if showing dress goods or other wearing apparel, he will arrange them so as to show how they will appear when being worn. The effect of lights must be considered in order to get effective backgrounds.

Avoid the use of many colors at a time. One is generally enough, and two are plenty, as a rule, at the most.

Again, the artist must remember to have timely goods in his window.

In a short time we will be in the rush showing new Spring and Easter goods, where all articles of all descriptions are in order, as well as every variety of wedding gifts.

The careful window dresser, who works for the full interest of his employers, will see to it, too, that he so displays the goods that they shall be subjected to the least possible injury. Don't use two pins where you can use one.

When displaying such things as fine silks, worth several dollars a yard, be careful to have all pins stuck in the selvedge, where they do no harm.

Be original if you can. For my own part, I am constantly working on new schemes, whereby to display our wares to better advantage.

(Editor's note.—H. C. MacDonald, writer of the above interesting article, is with Richard Hall & Son, Limited, Peterboro. He has had some experience both in New York and Chicago, where he studied the work and methods of the foremost artists in the window-trimming business. He has splendid scope for effective display in Hall's forty-seven-and-a-half-foot window. We reproduce in this issue a February trim executed by Mr. MacDonald. Readers of The Review may look forward to seeing more of his work in future issues.)

A Spring Garment Window—Dressed by H. C. MacDonald for Richard Hall & Son, Peterborough.

A Millinery Window—Dressed by H. Robinson for R. McKay & Co., Hamilton.

The material is draped over a short brass rod with brass ends—a curtain would do about as well. This is supported upon upright stands, the brass ends making an effective contrast with the dull, soft shades so much the vogue now. The arrangement of the ribbon explains itself, and by way of a further finish a handsome hat may be included in the group.

A Drape Suggestion.

Suggestions for Spring

For the benefit of our readers who have their thoughts turned Springward, The Review is giving a few background suggestions, which will not be just suitable for Spring millinery alone, but can also be made do duty for various other displays, thus not only reducing expense, but saving time—not just the time of the display

Section of an Exclusive Garment Store.

A DRAPE SUGGESTION.

This is a simply arranged drape (see illustration) that can be used for showing almost any kind of material. It is best adapted, however, to plain cloths with a bright surface, for, falling in many graceful folds, all the beauties of surface and color are emphasized.

artist, which is certainly valuable, but what is even more important, it will reduce materially the time that the window is rendered unproductive during the changing of displays.

The millinery season promises to show a preponderence of soft, clear, light shades, that will need a somewhat stronger-colored background than usual, to show them out to advantage, and to give the proper contrast. The white and green or white and mauve, so much seen these last few years, will hardly be suitable. The combination of the first two, which forms, perhaps, the best that can possibly be used for a millinery window, will have its usual order reversed this year : green will predominate, with white as the trimming color. If for some reason it is necessary to construct the background mainly of a light color, let it be ivory, biscuit, or even very light tan, in preference to the pure white, as these deeper, richer shades will serve to throw up more effectively the light tints of the Spring hats.

Many of the best window dressers used these stronger colors last Spring, and descriptions and diagrams of some of their windows should be interesting.

Marshall Field's decorator, A. V. Fraser, used a deep green for the background of his opening windows, with a most original treatment of apple blossoms as a relief. Though there was a continuity of idea in all his windows, considerable variety appeared in the manner of carrying it out. The background in some was of shirred green gauze, very full, with a deep beading on the draping that left a full ruche at the top. The apple blossoms were arranged on straight wires, some of which were fastened to the background, and some suspended in front of it, in vertical lines, while at frequent intervals were placed large clusters of the blossoms. Other windows had a mirror background, with the frames shrouded in the pleated gauze, and a delicate scroll of the same shade of green painted on the mirror. The same arrangement of blossoms was also made use of. It was in this latter that the artist hand of the decorator was most evident, for the blossoms were beautifully grouped, and no two were exactly the same.

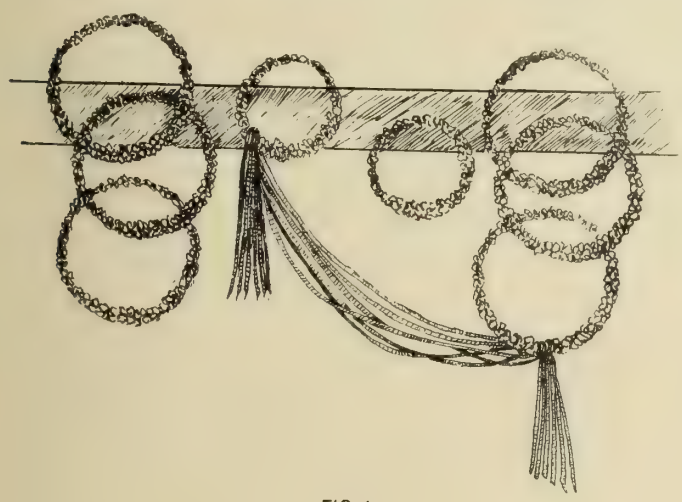

FIG. 1.

Carson, Pirie & Scott's (Chicago) Spring opening windows presented many good ideas easily worked out. From day to day details were varied considerably though the main features of the original displays were retained. Mirrors were used as the basic background, their frames hidden under a covering of rich, dark green leaves. Some of the windows, at one time, had hoops or circles of wild roses, without foliage, in rather a deep pink. These hoops were not placed perpendicularly, but were tilted outward. The diagram (Fig. 1) shows just how the hoops, rainbow bows and streamers of ribbon were arranged. Another variation of the trim had a dome or pagoda affair built in one corner of the window. The roof and its supports were covered solidly with roses, in different shades, and there were drapings of white chiffon and yellow silk cords. Under the dome was a fancy gilded table, supporting a mirror, and from the structure right across the back of the window, ran a fence, with the top and bottom rail of roses, and a lacing between of the yellow cord. In the opposite corner was a large gilded basket, the handle tied with yellow ribbons, and overflowing with Spring flowers.

FIG. 2.

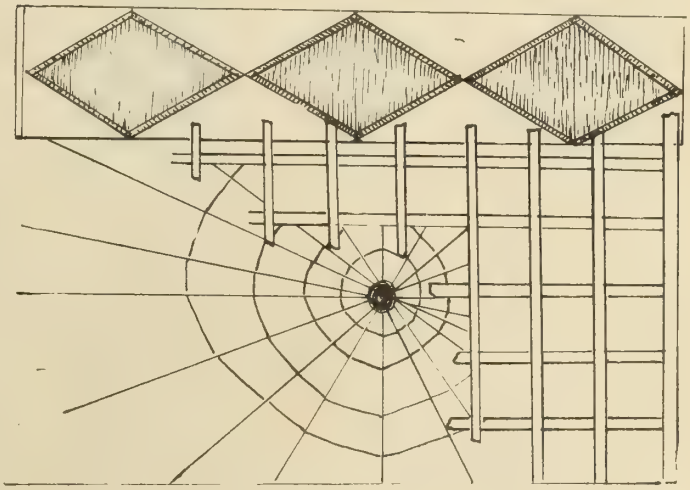
Another window that came to our notice had a striking and unusual background that was highly suitable for showing millinery, and could also be used for other opening trims. It was a panelled arrangement in light and dark green—something quite out of the general order. The light green could be of fine quality wall paper, and the darker panels of plush, canton flannel, etc. On each of the panels was placed a bracket, draped with some soft white material. These brackets were piled with millinery, flowers, etc, backed by white ferns and leaves, and the same white ferns, etc, were used to emphasize the long dark green panel at the top. The mouldings, show cards and other accessories were also white. (Fig. 2).

Another window was decorated in green, white and gold. Over the mirror that backed the window was placed a light framework, covered with cotton, and painted white. This left diamond-shaped openings that were filled in with pleatings of soft green silk. About a foot in front of the mirror was an irregular trellis, built of light poles, painted white, and twined with garlands of roses and foliage. This trellis (Fig. 3) occupied a little more



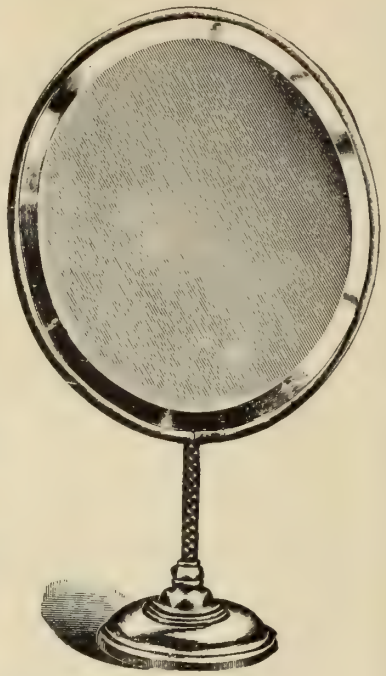


FIG. 3.

Make Your Store Attractive

No. 265 Counter Mirror

One-half in. beveled French Plate Mirror 12 x 14 inches, felt covered bottom on base. Mirror can be tilted at any angle or swung round without moving base.

PRICES AND CATALOGUE FURNISHED ON APPLICATION

Toronto Brass Mfg. Co.

17-21 Temperance St., Toronto

The most attractive Show Cards

ARE MADE WITH THE

FOUNTAIN AIR BRUSH

WRITE FOR CATALOG.

THAYER & CHANDLER, 160-164 W. Jackson Boulevard :: :: CHICAGO

ELECTRIC SIGNS

advertise you night and day. Without question the cheapest and most effective method of advertising to-day

We have an excellent proposition to make in most Canadian cities for merchants to use electric signs.

Let us hear from you, and we will send you circulars.

The Martel-Stewart Co., Limited
Montreal, Canada

than half of the background, the rest being taken up by a large spider-web of gold cord. Ornamental fences were extended diagonally from each corner. They were made from light wood, painted white, with lattice-work of green ribbon. The corner posts were white, with gold caps and bases, and each carried a basket of flowers.

In making a display, particularly of handsome pattern hats, above all things do not crowd them. Give each model ample space, so that it will stand out boldly from the background, and enable the eye to take in all its details. Use as many flowers as possible, and in a window of any size a central figure of wax can be generally used to advantage.

THE CHRISTMAS WINDOW COMPETITION.

The Review's Christmas window display competition closed on February 1, and the prize-winners will be announced in the March number. Some splendid specimens of the window-trimmer's art have been submitted to the judges. They do credit to the display men themselves and also to the stores employing them.

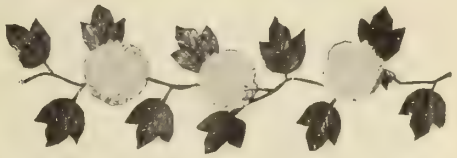
TRAVELERS' DUTIES IN NEW ZEALAND.

J. S. Larke, Canada's commercial agent in Australia writes: "In New Zealand the tax of fifty pounds levied a few years ago was changed to an income tax on the goods sold. It was considered that a profit of five per cent. had been made on all sales, and the Government levied a tax of two and a half per cent. upon this profit. This amounted to one-eighth of one per cent., or twelve and a half cents on the hundred dollars of orders taken. It is impossible for the majority of travelers to know how much their sales have been, as the larger firms commonly send in their orders through their London or New York agents, and this furnished a means of evading the act and of often escaping it. The Government now requires every traveler to make a deposit of five pounds on entering the colony and pay duty on his samples also. On leaving it he is required to make a declaration of his sales, when, if the deposit exceeds the tax due, the excess is refunded to him, with the duty on the samples he may take away with him. He may enter at any port or take his departure from any port of the colony, a certificate of the deposit and duty paid being given him at the port of entry, which is honored at the port of departure."

MENS' WEAR LIMITED.

An Ontario charter has been granted Menswear, Limited, Toronto, with a capital of $40,000, divided into $50 shares. The incorporators were Samuel Collett and Richard E. Bonsall, commercial travelers; James E. Dundas and J. A. C. Mollet, esquires; and Norman Sommerville, barrister-at-law, all of Toronto. The object of the company is "to carry on the business of a manufacturer of and dealer in neckwear, furnishings, smallwares, clothing, and wearing material."

HAMILTON & LEWITT KNITTING CO.



An Ontario charter has been granted the Hamilton & Lewitt Knitting Company, Limited, with a capital of $40,000, divided into $100 shares, and with headquarters at Arnprior. The incorporators were Hiram J. B. Hamilton, Montreal, commission merchant; Thomas Hamilton, gentleman, and Mary Jane Hamilton, married woman, of Saginaw, Mich.; James E. Lewitt, manufacturer, and Charles E. Lewitt, accountant, of Goderich. The object of the company is "to manufacture plain and ribbed woolen and worsted hosiery, and to carry on a general knitting business, including the manufacture of underwear, mitts, sweaters and other knitted goods."

Art Flowers for Store and Window Decorations

No. 71052. Rose Vine 6 roses in white, pink or red color, and 12 leaves to yard. Per dozen yards, $3.60; per gross yards, $36.00.
No. 71055. Rose Vine. 3 roses and 9 leaves to yard. Per dozen yards, $2.40; per gross yards, $24.00

No. 71043. Snowball Vine. 4 Fine large paper snowballs, and 12 leaves to yard. Per dozen yards, $2.40; per gross yards, $24.00.

No. 71024. Ivy Vine. 18 leaves to yard Per doz. yards, 75c; per gross yards, $7.50
No. 71022. Ivy Vine. 12 leaves to yard. Per doz. yards, 50c; per gross yards, $5.00

No. 71834. PALM TREE (Potted)

No.	Ft. high	Lvs.	Each	Pair
71830	7	12	$3.00	$5.50
71832	9	18	4.00	7.00
71834	12	24	5.00	9.50

PALM PLANTS (Unpotted)

No.	In. high	Lvs.	Each	Doz.
71800	24	3	$ .18	$1.75
71805	36	4	.25	2.50
71809	36	5	.40	4.00
71814	42	6	.50	5.00
71818	42	7	.65	6.50
71822	48	10	1.00	10.00
71827	60	12	1.50	15.00

No. 71101. Apple Blossom Spray, 25 in. long, ea. 30c., doz. $3.00.
No. 71100. Apple Blossom Spray, 12 in. long, doz. 60c., gross $6.00.
Loose Apple Blossoms, per gross 75c.
Apple Leaves, gross 35c.

No. 71618. Lily Plant.
No. 71615. 18 in. high, 1 lily and 1 bud to plant, ea. 25c., per doz $2.50.
No. 71616. 24 in. high, 3 lilies 3 buds to plant, ea. 45c., per doz $4.50.
No. 71617. 36 in. high, 4 lilies 4 buds to plant, ea. 75c., per doz. $7.50.
No. 71618. 42 in. high, 5 lilies 5 buds to plant, ea. $1.00, per doz. $10.00.

No, 71863. SAGO TREE (Potted)

No.	Ft. high	Lvs.	Each	Pair
71861	5	15	$3.00	$5.50
71864	8	18	4.00	7.00
71863	12	24	6.00	11.00

SAGO PLANTS (Unpotted)

No.	In. high	Lvs.	Each	Doz.
71851	24	4	$ .40	$4.00
71855	36	5	.70	7.00
71857	36	6	1.00	10.00
71860	42	12	2.00	20.00

No. 71060. Apple Blossom Vine. 12 flowers and 12 leaves to yard. Per dozen yards, $1.50; per gross yards, $15.00.

My immense assortment of Flowers, Vines, Plants and Trees suitable for any and all occasions, illustrated and listed in my main catalogue No. 37, is at your disposal.
My new Spring Circular No. 76 is also from the press. The season's latest novelties are quoted thereon. Kindly write for it.

CARL NETSCHERT, 140 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Delfosse: Canada's Greatest Fixture House

If you have not received Supplement A, to our Catalogue, please advise us, so that we may add your name to our mailing list.

Delfosse & Co. manufacture Metal Fixtures, Wax Figures, Bust Forms that are designed by experts, made by experts and are intended for experts who appreciate the effects gained by perfect harmony of style and finish and are seeking it at the lowest price obtainable.

Collar Stand, telescoping or plain

DELFOSSE & CO.

5 Hermine St., Near Craig St., MONTREAL

CONDENSED ADS.

AT A COST OF

2 CENTS PER WORD

All clerks requiring positions will do well to invest a few cents in the Dry Goods Review and state their requirements.

Those merchants who wish to dispose of their business can in ert their ad. under a box number and we will forward any replies. This ensures secrecy to those that desire it.

The Review is read by 90 per cent of the entire trade. This ensures your wants being read by the merchants throughout the Dominion of Canada.

ADDRESS ALL CORRESPONDENCE TO

THE DRY GOODS REVIEW

10 Front St. East, TORONTO — 232 McGill St. MONTREAL

WE ORIGINATE,

Suit Form No. 60 P.

manufacture and promptly supply everything we advertise.

As the oldest, largest and only complete house in the display form and fixture line, we are in a position to do this. Our Cuts are made from Our Goods. Originality is a rare quality and in this respect we are unique.

Write for particulars of our new form models for 1907

Catalogue Mailed upon Application.

J. R. Palmenberg's Sons

FACTORY 9-97 W. Third St. — 710 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, U.S.A. (ESTABLISHED OVER 50 YEARS)

Section of Modern Store Equipped with our System

Weir Wardrobe System

PATENTED

For the Economic and Scientific Handling of Men's and Women's Ready-to-wear Garments.

Sectional Wardrobes—each complete in itself

Fitting Rooms, Stairways or Dummy Fronts, all of uniform style, size and height.

Capacity: High Boys—in 30 in. frontage—50 Suits
Low Boys —25 Suits and 25 pairs odd Trousers.

Hardwood or Metal Roller Bearing Slides. Price list and catalogue on application. Estimates furnished.

Intending purchasers are specially requested to see our Trouser Slide and Suit Counters—the only thing of the kind in existence.

Weir Wardrobe Co. of Canada, Limited

Head Office and Factory: Mount Forest, Ont.
U. S. Factory: Mason City, Iowa

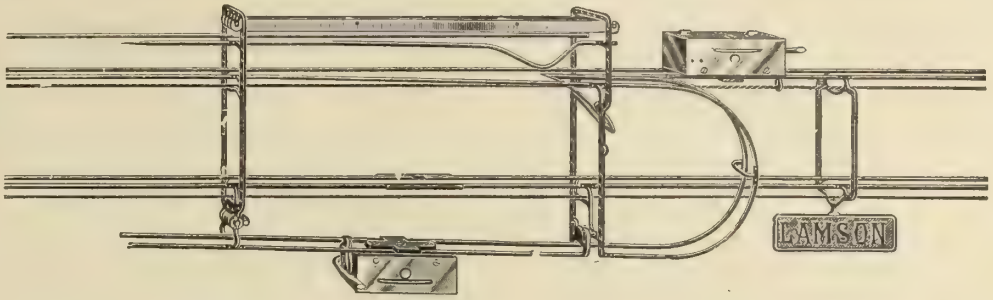
ONE OF OUR NEW

STORE FRONTS WITH LUXFER PRISM TRANSOMS

and

PATENT TRANSPARENT PLATE GLASS CORNERS

Front of Wholesale Drug House, Montreal



WRITE OR SEE US FOR FULL INFORMATION

LUXFER PRISM CO., Limited - TORONTO

Lamson Perfection Cable Cash Carrier

Serves any number of floors from one cash desk.

Hundreds of users testify to its excellence.

Write for particulars . . .

Lamson Consolidated Store Service Co., 126 Wellington Street West, Toronto, Ont.

BRITISH AMERICAN DYEING CO.

The Largest and Best Equipped

DYE WORKS

In the Dominion

SEND FOR PRICE LIST

GOLD MEDALLIST DYERS

JOSEPH ALLEN, Manager

Dress Goods, Cloths, Tweeds, Drills, Ducks, Cottons and Velveteens, Hosiery Yarns, Gloves, Braids, Etc.

DYED, FINISHED AND PUT UP

ALSO

Feathers, Silks, Velvets, Ribbons, Lace, Etc.

All Work Guaranteed Unequaled

MONTREAL, TORONTO, OTTAWA, QUEBEC

Time Saved is All Profit.

BUSINESS SYSTEMS LIMITED — SYSTEM THE SECRET OF SUCCESS — TORONTO

Business Systems will cut the book-keeping of any business in half.

Business Systems are proportionately as economical for a corner store as for the largest wholesale house.

. . . . . .

Our Monthly Account System posts your books and makes out your customer's accounts with one and the same movement of your pen.

Our Monthly Account System leaves nothing to change or recopy and prevents the possibility of anything being forgotten.

. . . . . .

Will you let us tell you more about this in detail?

Write us for full particulars.

It does not obligate you to buy.

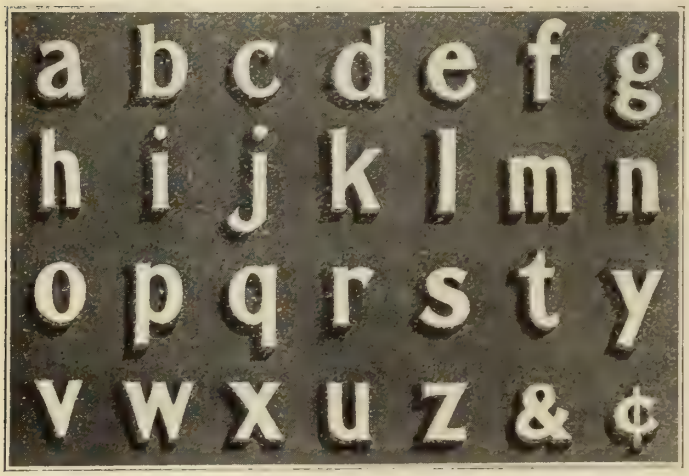
BUSINESS SYSTEMS LIMITED

83 SPADINA AVE.

TORONTO, CANADA

SHOW CARD WRITING

BY CRAFTSMAN.



(Continued from January Number.)

Brush Script Capitals.

(See January Number for Illustrations.)

Letter A—1, from A down and around to B. Now stroke 2 to shade stroke 1. Stroke 3 (not numbered) from A to C. Stroke 4 down and around to D. Stroke 5, to complete the letter, should be made in one stroke, with pressure on the brush at the thick part. This stroke should be practiced separately. It resembles the first stroke on letter X.

Letter B—Begin at A. Stroke 1 down and around to B. Stroke 2 from A to C. Stroke 3, beginning at D, with slightly intensified pressure at the start, then lightly down and around to the top, making your loop, swinging down and around. Strokes 4 and 5, to shade the two loops, and stroke 6, from A to the right, and then the inner lower loop (not marked on copy) of stroke 1.

Shaded Block Letters.

Letter C—From A down and around to B. Stroke 2 from A to the right to C. Stroke 3 to finish off stroke 2. Stroke 4 from E down. Stroke 5, A to D.

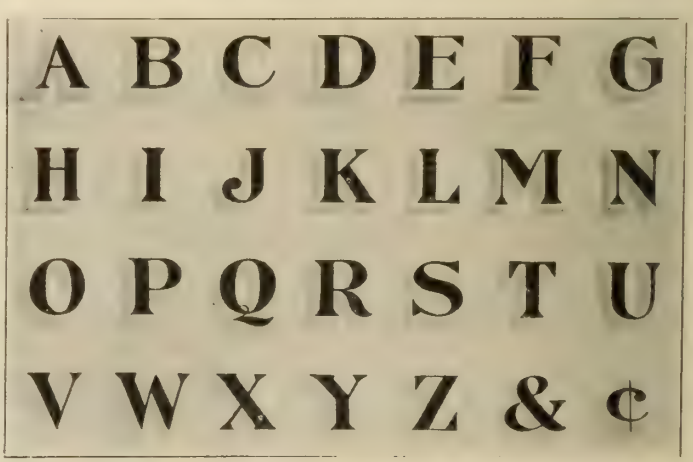
Letter D—Stroke 1, from A down to the right, forming the loop to the left, around to the right upward, then forming the curve to the top left to B. Stroke 2 from A to C. Stroke 3 from A to the right. Stroke 4 (not noted) to fill the right hand curve from A down. The central heavy strokes showing in the letters B and D were left as the artist made them, but they were made in error, making the central stroke too thin at first.

Letter E—Begin at A, follow the outside stroke 1 to B, stroke 2, from B to the inner loop, then strokes 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 where indicated. The upper E loop requires much practice. The small ring loop on the top of the letter G can then be more readily learned.

The first stroke of letters H, I, J, K, V, and W, is practically the same. The loop on the letter K begins at E. Stroke 5 down and around the loop, down again and around to F. Letter P begins at A. Stroke 1 down and around, making the loop to B. Stroke 2 from C down, around, passing A to D. Letter Q begins at A to the left and down around to E.

Letter S—Stroke 1 from A to B in its centre. Stroke 2 (not noted), complete the centre dot by a down stroke.

Letter T begins at A, continuing to the curve to the right, then down and up to B. Stroke 2 shades the curve. Stroke 3, from B to the left in one quick sweep, then curve to C. Stroke 4 from B down to D.



Letter Z—Stroke 1, from A to B. Stroke 2, from B down and forming the little loop at the left, then down and around with a snappy, quick curve to C. The sign & is begun at A. Stroke 1, up, passing C and down to B. Stroke 2, C to D, then shade upper loop, stroke 3. Stroke 4, from E down and up to F. Practice thoroughly.

Shading.

Excellent examples of shaded letters are beautifully illustrated in the cut marked "Shaded Script," in January number, coupled with the two cuts of shaded block and shaded Roman herewith given. This work is all done with flat brush strokes. It should be accomplished quickly. The various letters offer excellent examples for practice, and the student is requested to study them all carefully. When you shade letters have your paint easy-flowing. If you use white paint do not feel uneasy because it looks faint when you shade at first, because it will dry out much whiter and should be used very thin on tinted cards. If you shade in gold be careful to constantly mix it and do not apply too think with your brush. Shading in two colors is sometimes desirable, but the use of several colors is only in practice among those whose taste is sometimes lacking and we would not like to sanction it. Very narrow letters, if shaded with a half-inch brush, often present a highly attractive appearance.

Slant letters can be shaded to good advantage. Letters that are crooked or poorly written do not show their imperfections if the imperfect lines are not shaded exactly parallel.

The shading may appear on the right and upper ends

Shaded Roman.

if desired. Other methods, seldom used, make letters appear as though falling forward or backward.

Lettering Mirrors With Soap.

Cut a strip of fresh, common, brown soap about 2½ inches by 1 inch. Cut it from two opposite sides into a wedged-shaped point, leaving the edge one-eighth inch thick. Your mirror should be perfectly clean. You can use the soap exactly as you would a flat brush, but of course must use more pressure.

Edge Lines on Tickets.

If you wish to place edge lines one-sixteenth to one-quarter inch thick, on small price tickets, running them to the extreme edge, proceed as follows: Hold your card in the left hand, placing its edge flat on a piece of smooth card, or better still, a piece of glass; put a liberal quantity of color or bronze on your brush. Now glide your brush quickly along the glass, resting it also against the surface of the card. Your lines will be smooth and of uniform width with a little practice.

Our next article will deal with price tickets, show cards, and show card talk, with handsome illustrations.

AFTER THE SHUTTERS ARE UP

The well-dressed stranger stepped into the chemist's shop, and, passing by the boy who usually attended to casual customers, approached the proprietor, who was arranging some goods on a show case.

"Mr. S., I presume," he remarked pleasantly, and the chemist turned and bowed gravely.

"I have heard my friend, Mr. Quorn, speak of you often," said the brisk man. "He told me if ever I needed anything in this line to come to you. He spoke of you as a man on whom one could rely with perfect confidence, who had only the best of everything, and with whom it was always a pleasure to deal."

"Mr. Quorn is very kind," answered the other, beaming with gratification. "He is one of my best customers. What can I do for you this morning?"

"Well—er—this morning, as it happens," said the stranger, with just a little less briskness, "this morning I should like, if you will allow me, to consult your directory."

"Certainly," was the calm reply. "We also have a good selection of penny and halfpenny stamps as well as railway time-tables, if you need anything of that kind."

* * *

A man walked into a grocer's shop and handed to the assistant a paper containing some white powder.

"I say," he asked, "what do you think that is? Just taste it, and tell me your opinion."

The grocer smelled it, then touched it with his tongue.

"Well, I should say that was soda."

"That's just what I say," was the triumphant reply. "But my wife said it was rat poison. You might try it again to make sure."

* * *

A citizen of a flourishing Western American town was boasting of the enterprise and rapid growth of the place to a group of strangers in the smoking compartment of a western express train.

"Only eight years old, and one of the finest towns in the west."

"I don't think much of it," said one of the smokers.

"You don't?" cried the man from the town in question aggressively. "When were you there?"

"Used to live there."

"When did you move away?"

"Three weeks ago."

"Oh! well, you ought to see the place now."

* * *

Little Tommy (at grocer's counter reading from paper): "Five pounds of tea at two-and-six."

Grocer (writing it down beamingly): "All right, my little man. Anything else?"

Tommy: "Eight pounds of sugar at two-pence-ha'-penny."

"Right, anything else?"

"Two pounds of butter at one-and-six."

"Anything more to-day?"

"Two dozen and a half of eggs at one-and-two a dozen, and that's all. How much, please?"

The grocer mentioned the amount, and said: "I'll send them along to your mother to-night."

"Oh! no," replied Tommy; "that's just my home sums for to-morrow, and I wanted to know how much it came to."

* * *

Jinks: "Johnson wants to borrow ten pounds from me. Do you think he is good for that amount?"

Binks: "Yes, with proper securities."

"What securities would you suggest?"

"A chain and padlock, a pair of handcuffs, and a dog. That would be enough to hold him."

* * *

A medical herbalist opened a shop in a very busy thoroughfare, and had filled the window with the usual roots, barks, leaves, etc., while in the centre, very conspicuous, was a large card with the announcement: "Herb Bier Sold Here." Noticing the mistake in the spelling, a man went in, called for a glass of beer, and, after taking a sip, remarked:

"By the way, sir, there's a mistake on that card in your window. Beer is spelt wrong; it should be B E E R beer; not B I E R."

"Yes," he replied. "I know. I had it that way on purpose, and it's all right, believe me. You may hardly credit it, but every few minutes some josher comes in and gets a glass of beer or something in order to tell me about it."

The visitor emptied his glass without further remark, and the herbalist chuckled again.

* * *

"Please sir," piped the tiny customer, whose head scarcely reached the counter, "father wants some oak varnish."

"How much does your father want, my little man?" asked the shopman.

"Father says, will you fill this?" said the little fellow, handing him over a half-gallon can.

It was duly filled and handed over.

"Father will pay you on Saturday," said the recipient casually. And then the face of the shopman grew dark.

"We don't give credit here," he said. "Gimme back the can."

Meekly the little lad handed back the can, which was emptied, and handed back to him with a scowl.

"Thank you sir," he said. "Father said you'd be sure to leave enough in the can, round the sides, for him to finish the job he wants to do, and I think you 'ave, sir."

KNITTED GOODS—Golfs and Sweaters.

(Continued from Page 31.)

the Canadian market. While they have bought confidently of the better grades of these goods they realize that cheap goods will ruin the market. In the past this has been the great undoing of the business in golfers, and should cheap imitations be forced they will have the effect of ousting the better grades. It is in the interest of the retailer that the advice is given to discourage the introduction of cheap lines which undermine the chances of the better lines. Initial orders up to date have been slightly better than those obtained last year. The Eton jackets have been accepted by the trade in general as the decided novelty for next Fall. It means that the retail trade is ready to handle the lines while there is room for the better goods. They realize that there is nothing to be gained by introducing poor stock which is derogatory to the finer lines. The future of the golfer and ladies' sweater depends upon the maintenance of the high standard, which it is a pleasure to sell to the better class of customers.

The Eton jackets for the Fall of 1907 have already been referred to in these columns, and, as already stated, the Norfolk jackets show but little change. The leg of mutton sleeves will again be in vogue, and the trimmings and borders will be along the same lines as last year. Covered buttons to match the trimmings are seen on many of the high-priced golfers, and girdles of wool are spoken of as a favorite idea. The Eton jackets on account of their being made much smaller and of lighter material, will not be expensive. This should be an encouragement to shut out the cheap imitations.

Altogether it is thought that a good season is ahead. London and other fashion centres have set a good pace, English factories being filled with orders.

JAEGER CATALOGUE.

The third Canadian edition of Dr. Jaeger's catalogue and price list is now ready for circulation. As a catalogue setting forth the value of pure wool wear, and illustrating and describing the numerous articles manufactured by the firm, it is well arranged and compiled in a neat, concise and forcible manner. While concise, its aim to accurately set forth the salient features of the catalogued articles and to give a detailed list of sizes and prices, is in no way neglected or meagrely touched.

The combined covers of the book portray a typical pastoral scene. In a verdant valley is an ideal pasture. A flock of sheep, watched over by a shepherd with his dog, forms a pretty picture. With the name "Jaeger Pure Wool" at the foot, it aptly prepares the mind for the perusal of the reading matter within. On the inside front cover are alphabetically indexed 108 articles contained in the 37 pages which follow. Details and prices are given; sizes, styles and color shades, so that a choice is quickly made by the reader. It is noticed that the hosiery and underwear prices which heretofore were quoted at rates according to size are now given at a flat rate regardless of sizes. The firm will be pleased to mail one of their catalogues to any address upon receipt of post card. The range shown and described in the book is a very large one and covers every article made from pure wool.

AN ERROR CORRECTED.

"Mill Damaged by Flood.—During the recent flood at Truro, N.S., the woolen mills of Stanfields, Limited, were damaged by water and ice. The new factories were at one time surrounded by floating ice, and when the flood was at its highest point, the water was fifteen inches high in the boiler room. The extent of the damage has not yet been made known, but it is thought that within a short time the machinery will be running again."—January Dry Goods Review.

Stanfields, Limited, have written as follows in regard to the above item:—

"On looking over your valued paper, we notice that you mention that our mills have been damaged by the flood which occurred here some time ago, and we ask you to kindly contradict this in the next issue of your paper. The flood was greatly exaggerated by the newspapers, and the fact is that not a dollar's worth of damage was done anywhere throughout the town. So far as our mills were concerned, our machinery was not standing for one minute. One of our boiler rooms had a few inches of water, and that was all, and we cannot understand how such a report was ever sent out from here.

"One thing certain, your paper must have quite a circulation, as customers from all over Canada have written us expressing regrets that our plant was damaged, and some even offered to help us with the selling of damaged goods. You can readily understand that these reports have done us harm."

[The Review was, with many other papers, the victim of the reports sent out from Truro, verification of which was not possible before going to press. We regret exceedingly that their publication should have done any harm.]

THE MORTON, BROWNE CO.

An Ontario charter has been granted the Morton, Browne Company, Limited, Toronto, with a capital of $40,000, divided into shares of $5 each. The incorporators were William M. Walcott, manufacturer; Sarah A. M. Nelson, bookkeeper; Margaret Burt, stenographer; Druscilla E. Crow, saleswoman, and Emily Little, designer, all of Toronto. The object of the company is "to manufacture and sell all kinds of wearing apparel, ornaments and personal adornments; to manufacture all kinds of clothes and other fabrics and articles used in the making of garments, wearing apparel, ornaments and personal adornments."

THE McRAE MANUFACTURING CO.

An Ontario charter has been granted the McRae Manufacturing Company, Limited, Toronto, with a capital of $40,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were William H. Steele and Albert H. Bevis, merchants; John A. McRae, manufacturer; Charles R. Robinson, bookkeeper; and Elizabeth C. Steele, married woman, all of Toronto. The object of the company is "to buy, sell and manufacture ladies' belts, ties, scarfs, blouses, whitewear, waists, skirts and other garments for ladies, and men's caps, neckwear, shirts and other like garments, and to act as manufacturers' agents and jobbers."

BROCK'S CALGARY WAREHOUSE.

The W. R. Brock Co., Toronto, will not occupy their Calgary warehouse till March 1, but temporary quarters have been obtained and the following departmental men have gone west: W. H. Birkinshaw, warehouse manager; F. B. Archer, office manager; C. M. Baker, W. A. Hibbert, A. Littledales, W. R. Malcolm, G. N. Davidson, Arthur Ledger, G. H. Harte, A. K. Nichell, L. S. Murdock and Frank McAuley. Before leaving Toronto each man received a leather valise from the firm and a friendship token from his department.

P.M.G. Would Withdraw C.O.D. Clause

He Can Make Change Without Consulting Parliament—Proposal not Popular in the House — Views of Merchants Thoroughout Canada.

Dr. T. Simpson Sproule inquired if the Govcrnment intended introducing a bill this session fcr carrying post parcels c.o.d.

"No legislation is necessary," was the Hon. Mr. Lemieux's answer. "It is a matter for departmental regulation and is now under consideration."

This is an extract from the report of the House of Commons proceedings on January 31.

In response to the card which The Review sent to every dry goods man in Canada a Hamilton retailer wrote: "On taking the matter up with our local M.P. he advised us that it is not likely a bill will be introduced into Parliament regarding the matter, as the Postmaster General has the power to adopt the new parcel post system without introducing a bill into the House. In view of this we would suggest that some other means be adopted of reaching the Postmaster General, with a view to preventing a change in the present system. We shall be pleased to hear what further action is considered necessary."

* * *

We answered that we did not believe the Postmaster General, even if he had the power, would venture to make such a radical change without first consulting Parliament. A move of that kind would be disastrous to the Govern. ment.

* * *

At the same time we wrote Hon. Mr. Lemieux direct as follows: "We have been informed that you have the power to adopt the new parcel post system, which you referred to in the House a short time ago, without introducing a bill. Will you please inform us if this is so." He has not as yet favored us with a reply, although our communication was dated January 17. An acknowledgement of its receipt, by himself or his department, would have been the merest courtesy. He could not, however, evade the enquiry of Dr. Sproule, on the floor of the House.

* * *

The delegation of such authority to any one man or department, without requiring that the people's representatives be consulted, seems to us to conflict with the first principles of constitutional government.

* * *

We forwarded the Postmaster General a copy of the January number, and received his acknowledgment. He will also be sent a copy of the February number, so that there is no danger of his being unacquainted with the views of the trade.

* * *

We have learned, through members of Parliament that the proposal is not at all popular in the House, and also that the Postmaster General is now willing to drop the c.o.d. clause. Further than this — which is most important, though unofficial—no more information than we have already communicated to our readers has been given out at Ottawa. No other reference has been made in the House, and the daily papers, even those of the highest standing, have made no attempt to inform the public as to what the effect of the proposed legislation would be. Their silence on a question of such national importance is significant, and is to be condemned with all possible severity. Throughout the country we find their attitude interpreted by retail merchants as good evidence that they are under the thumb of the department store interests. What other reason can they advance to explain their inaction? Some might defend themselves by saying that the proposal is still in very indefinite form, and that it would be unwise to turn public opinion one way or the other until an idea can be given of just what it will embrace. That would be a poor excuse. They know the intention is that the post office shall carry much larger parcels than at present, at a cheaper rate than the express companies now give—virtually the establishment of a postal express service; that provision shall be made for the sending of parcels from any point to any other point c.o.d., collection to be made by the postmaster at destination; that with this system in operation the Government would, as a matter of course, absorb the express companies; that the post office would be expected to carry parcels, etc., at just about cost; that the big retail catalogue houses would be enabled to enter more directly into competition with every local merchant in Canada, with the natural result that great numbers of the latter would be forced into liquidation or a position of insignificance, as mere vendors of staples and notions; that the wholesale trade would suffer in accordance with the effect upon retailers; and that, viewed from every standpoint—if they take the trouble to examine the situation—the enactment of such legislation would be one of the very worst things that could happen to the mercantile life of Canada at the present time.

* * *

The adoption of the proposed change in the postal system would mean the concentration of the great volume of trade in the large cities, to the impoverishment of the smaller cities, towns and villages. It would act as a powerful deterrent to the general progress of the country, for in the building up of a nation the small merchant plays an important part. He has constituted one of the most potent factors in the development of great areas in the west, through the extension of long credit to settlers, thereby permitting them to devote their cash capital to the improvement of their farms. He sometimes got his money after the first crop; he sometimes had to wait until the second. In this way he tided thousands of families over the crucial period of their pioneer experience. The catalogue houses cared nothing about this trade, for the reason that payments were not spot cash. The local merchant catered to it without opposition from outside, and now that circumstances for the settler have improved, and he has more money at his disposal, the big city stores value his business. With the assistance of parcel post and special express rates they are able to get a good deal of it at the present time. Now it is proposed to equip them with advantages that would mean the attraction to their hands of all, or nearly all, the cash trade, while the local merchant would be left to take care of the credit business and shoulder bad debts besides. This would preclude the possibility of the latter being able to buy his goods for cash and sell as cheaply as he otherwise would. In calculating his percentage of profits he would be obliged to make provision for terms exacted by manufacturers and wholesalers on long dating, and also for bad debts. As the country became more prosperous and people were able to buy more and more for cash, and recognized the advantage of so doing—the tendency in this direction is becoming stronger every day—his trade would gradually be depleted and that of the catalogue houses strengthened.

* * *

Throughout the older-settled portions of the Dominion it would be difficult to find a community from which mail orders are not sent. Often it is found in small towns, villages or cross-road settlements, where a good proportion of the buying public is composed of farmers. that many people send all their ready cash to the catalogue houses and look to the local merchants to extend them good long credit at any time, and go even farther at seasons when crops are backward. Then, in the general stores, farmers find a market for their produce, with keen competition to assure them of good prices. Kill off the general stores and you kill off this market, as well as deprive the farmer of the credit accommodation that he often finds necessary.

* * *

It does not require any extraordinary perception to see what effect the decrease of activity in local markets would have on the towns, villages and surrounding communities with respect to real estate values, etc. The effect would extend from one end of Canada to the other.

* * *

Referring to the point which we raised in the first paragraph, we see no reason for the silence of the metropolitan press other than that it is influenced by the advertising patronage of the catalogue houses. The conclusion that this is so is forced upon us, though we would like to believe differently. Not one of them gave any prominence to the matter in its news columns, and only one that we have seen took it up editorially, then making no mention whatever of the injury that would be done to local retail merchants if such a change were adopted. Another, in an obscure paragraph of seven or eight lines, did go so far as to say that great benefit would accrue to mail order houses. Even the question of Dr. Sproule and the answer of the Postmaster General, quoted in the opening paragraphs of this article, were ignored by all Toronto papers but one in their parliamentary reports. Their representatives in the press gallery must have been acting under instructions or else a strict censorship in this regard is exercised over their copy at the offices of publication.

* * *

On most questions of half the importance of this one the big papers would lose no time in gathering full information, and setting out to arouse public opinion to such a pitch that the Government would either find its hands strengthened by the people at large, or would have impressed upon it the advisability of dropping what it proposed. In this case there is no opinion except what has been stirred up by The Dry Goods Review and other trade papers. We venture to say that the general public has entirely forgotten the fact that there was a brief reference in the daily press to the Postmaster General's announcement. As we pointed out before, very few merchants saw it at all, for the reason that it was made when the Christmas rush was opening up. The first intimation that they had was The Review's post card, which we find has been doing its work splendidly. The views of the trade have been, and are being, made known in such a way that they must have a strong effect. If the daily papers had been true to the principles, which, on accasion, they loudly claim to hold above everything else, we would also have public opinion pointing out clearly that the people are unalterably opposed to any measure which will impede the general progress and prosperity of this Canada of ours, appropriately called "the young giant among nations."

THE TRADE AROUSED.

As stated before, The Review informed every dry goods man in Canada of the proposal as soon as it was announced, with the result that the trade, from Halifax to Vancouver, has been stirred up, and members of Parliament in nearly every constituency have had impressed upon them what the general good of the country demands that the interests of the local merchant be protected. We were at first under the impression that a bill would have to be introduced, and that the defeat of the proposal would rest with the Commons.

P.M.-G .WOULD DROP C.O.D. CLAUSE.

John Pratt & Son, of Belwood, Ont., write: "We sent your copy of the communication forwarded to our local member. A letter arrived from him to-day in which he says that he is not in favor of anything that is going to give city department stores an advantage over town and village stores and adds that he thinks the Postmaster General is willing to drop the c.o.d. clause from the proposal, and that this ought to meet the wishes of the country storekeeper. He thinks that a cheap parcel express will be a good thing all round, and asks us to acquaint him with our views."

* * *

We communicated with this firm advising them to stand firmly opposed to any extension of the parcel post system at the present time, and we so advise every merchant. Any change along the lines proposed would give the catalogue houses an advantage that they should not have. These establishments are anxious that the express business should pass entirely under Government control, which would mean that rates would be reduced to the minimum. Merchants are satisfied that the present express companies should remain in business, and if there is any complaint as to rates it may be settled by appeal to the Railway Commission.

THE INDIFFERENT MERCHANT.

The great majority of retailers needed only our post card to set them working, but there are a few who have not yet wakened up to the necessity of doing anything more than folding their hands and trusting the situation to Providence, forgetting, perhaps, that Providence most readily helps those who help themselves. As one man remarked in a letter regarding the proposed legislation, "So many are always indifferent, even in such matters as this, but when too late they are the loudest howlers."

* * *

The editor of The Review was in a small town a short time ago, and found that a great deal of the trade went to Toronto. Perhaps no place in Canada of equal size feels competition from catalogue houses more. "If it were not for them this would be a fine business town," one of the merchants informed us. We were nearly floored when he said, in answer to a question as to whether or not he had written his local member of Parliament: "What's the use; they'll get the bill through at any rate." When he caught his breath the editor answered him that if every merchant took an equally hopeful view of the situation no doubt remained as to the outcome. Now this man knew perfectly well what the effect of extending the parcel post system would be, and that his own business would suffer greatly, yet he dozed away in the consciousness that lots of other fellows would raise a noise, and was content, for his own part, to hope that nothing serious would happen.

* * *

There were others in this same town who had been too busy watching the nickels come over the counter to spend ten minutes writing a communication to help protect themselves against the loss of thousands of dollars, and, perhaps, in some cases, the destruction of their businesses.

* * *

Each one of these merchants agreed that they should do something and promised to try and have all the business men of the town unite in a communication to the local M.P. and a petition to the Postmaster General.

CONCERTED ACTION IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The Victoria, B.C., Colonist gives prominence to a copy of the post card sent by The Review to all dry goods merchants relative to the proposed legislation, and adds: "Local merchants who have been interviewed on the matter express the opinion that the bill mentioned threatens to very materially injure the trade in British Columbia, as the measure practically means that merchants of the large centres in Eastern Canada will be able to do a retail trade in the west, without any of the disabilities which attach to maintaining establishments in this province in the way of high freight rates, high wages to employes, trade licenses, etc. It is not improbable that concerted action will be taken by the merchants of British Columbia to lodge a protest at Ottawa against the passage of the proposed measure."

A BOARD OF TRADE UNDECIDED.

We have received the following communication from the Board of Trade of Sackville, N.B.: "Your post card headed 'Proposed Legislation will Injure You' has been considered by our council of board and we would live more information on the subject. We do not care to interfere with the idea of better and cheaper transportation in any form, yet we see how this measure would work injury to the business men of this and other localities. Please give us information as to the origin of the proposals, and the support which it is receiving in various quarters. Our council, which has considered the matter, favors a strong measure of taxation of some form that would reach departmental houses as, in some cases, the best method of placing them on the same footing with others." We forwarded proofs of articles appearing in the January Dry Goods Review, and expect that this body will be readily convinced of the thorough injustice of the proposed legislation.

PROPOSAL NOT POPULAR IN HOUSE.

George McKenzie & Co., Campbellton, N.B., are in receipt of the following from the local M.P.: "Yours to hand in reference to cheap parcel system. I shall certainly oppose it, and as far as I can learn it is not popular in the House."

M.P.'S APPRECIATE SITUATION.

One merchant has received this reply—characteristic of all the others we have seen — from his M.P.: "I will give this matter my most careful consideration. I may say that I have already had the matter brought before me by several other mercantile houses, and quite appreciate the reasonableness of their views."—Saskatchewan.

WHOLESALERS ACTIVE IN OPPOSITION.

Following are some communications from wholesalers with the letters which they sent to members of Parliament:

"Your card to hand in reference to proposed change in postal laws, and we are writing our representatives. We trust that the bill in question will be stopped, and thank you for writing us." Following is an extract from the communication sent member of Parliament: "This bill if passed will enable mail order houses of Toronto and Montreal to compete with local retailers to a much greater extent that they are now doing, though, as a matter of fact, this compettition is the most severe that the retailers of the Maritime Provinces have to contend with. The injustice of this proposal will, we feel assured, be made clear to you should you investigate conditions as they are at present, especially in the country districts, where mail orders in many cases take the entire ready cash of the consumer, leaving the credit business to the local storekeeper. In this manner the most profitable business is lost to the wholesaler here, and while the Maritime Province merchants have been putting up, in many cases, a good fight through advertising, catalogues, special sales, special buying days, etc., the mail order houses, working under the advantages of larger capital, larger purchasing ability, and last but not least, the fascination the ordinary person feels in buying goods in a large centre and away from home, are not losing ground. Under these conditions you can readily see to whose advantage the passing of this bill would be. We are so impressed with the necessity of working against a measure of this kind that we have instructed our traveling salesmen to interest every retailer they call on and—if he has not already done so—urge him to take the matter up with his representative."

* * *

"We are under the impression that the large mail order houses are behind this movement, and we consider it would be a gross injustice to small retailers in towns and villages, and more especially in country places. Road crossing country stores would simply be put right out of business, and their property ruined. We trust The Review will do everything in its power in the interests of the retailers."

* * *

"We wish to express our appreciation of your prompt action in this matter. We enclose copy of letter which we have, at your suggestion, written to our member to-day. We are also instructing our travelers to call attention to editorial matter in The Review, and have their customers stir up all possible opposition to this measure." Letter to member: "It is with sincere regret and apprehension that we have learned of a bill to be introduced into Parliament at the present session to establish a cheap parcel post system in Canada, whereby the postoffice shall collect on parcels both the value and postage. This will enable mail order houses to send goods c.o.d. to any part of the country in competition with local retailers. This measure will also place it in the power of large departmental stores, with organized letter order departments, to compete with the smaller dealers in more remote places for their local trade. It will also have the effect of further concentrating the business of the cities and towns into fewer hands. In Toronto the retail trade has, largely, been absorbed by two departmental stores, and these are now reaching out through their catalogue and letter order departments, for business in the rural districts. The proposed legislation would place in their hands a powerful means of acquiring trade now distributed among the small local merchants, and thereby destroy legitimate competition."

* * *

"We have adopted your suggestion. We would certainly be sorry to see such a measure carried."—Vancouver. Letter to member: "We are informed that a bill will be introduced into Parliament at the present session to establish a cheap parcel post system, including a c.o.d. services. This would enable large mail order houses to send their goods c.o.d. to any part of the country in competition with our small merchants. We feel it would be a great injustice to them, and would reflect heavily upon the shipping trade of our coast cities. We ask you to do all in your power to prevent its going through."

* * *

Letter to member, Jan. 2: "The writer having been ill has only now learned that a bill will likely be introduced into Parliament at the present session to establish a cheap parcel post system, whereby the postoffice shall collect on parcels. This, we feel would be a tremendous advantage to the large departmental stores, which do a mail order business. These stores are injuring, to a great extent, the local merchants, and any change in the post office system which would aid them would be a great mistake. They are a very small minority when compared with the merchants all over Canada. If you think this over we feel sure you will see the fairness of our argument, and will oppose the bill as strenuously as possible."

HOW THE NEWS WAS RECEIVED.

We here give some extracts from a few of the letters which we have received from retailers :—

"In response to your card of Dec. 17, we enclose copy of a letter sent by the business men of our town to our local member. With it we have sent a personal letter emphasizing this matter a little more strongly than in the joint communication. Personally, we are in favor of every measure that will be of benefit to the country, and, no doubt, this measure would be a great convenience to many. We are satisfied that the c.o.d. service would have the same effect here that it had in Great Britain. While the great majority of our merchants in country towns can compete with any departmental store in values given, yet we recognize we are seriously handicapped in advertising this fact to the public. If we could reach our customers every day in the week the same as the city merchants, we would fear nothing in the way of competition. The advertising problem is the one that the retail merchant has got to solve in Canada if he is to keep pace with the department stores."—Ontario.

* * *

"Upon receipt of your card we called a meeting of the local Retail Merchants' Association and sent a petition to the M.P. for this constituency."—Ontario.

"We are exceedingly thankful to The Review for the reminder."—British Columbia.

* * *

"I have received your card and will have a meeting of the local merchants called to take action as advised."—Ontario.

* * *

"It seems hardly possible that the House will give ear to such a proposal. Should it put in an appearance the hottest kind of opposition will be given it. The influence which your journal exerts will go far towards defeating it."—Quebec.

* * *

"I have personally interviewed our local M.P., and have received his promise to oppose the bill to extend the parcel post system and establish a c.o.d. service. I thank The Dry Goods Review for its vigilance in the interest of the trade."—Ontario.

* * *

"Enclosed please find copy of letter sent us to the local member of the Dominion House. The Board of Trade and Retail Merchants' Association are calling meetings to draft resolutions and forward them to Ottawa. We wish The Dry Goods Review every success in dealing with this question."—Ontario.

* * *

"I thank you for the interest you have taken in the matter. I always appreciate the suggestions of trade papers."—Prince Edward Island.

* * *

"We wish to thank you for advising us re the proposed parcel scheme. We have acted on your advice, and, as well, have drawn up a petition and secured the signature of every business man in town."—Alberta.

* * *

"We are sending a copy, with full list of signatures, of the petition we have forwarded to our local M.P. He promises to oppose the measure strenuously." The petition was signed by sixty-seven merchants and business men of the town.—Ontario.

* * *

"I have called on all the other merchants and they all agreed to take the action you advised. We hope that you will so arouse all business men that their power will be felt at the seat of government. So many are always indifferent, even in such matters as this, but when too late they are the loudest howlers."—Alberta.

* * *

"We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of your card relative to a bill to extend the parcel post system. We are greatly indebted to you for the prompt steps you have taken in opposing the proposal, and we heartily wish you every success."—Saskatchewan.

* * *

"We received your card, and in reply would say that we have had a petition circulated in this town, and have forwarded same to our member at Ottawa. We believe that several other towns near here are doing the same."—Nova Scotia.

* * *

"We certainly appreciate your interest in this matter, as we are confident the entire trade throughout Canada does."—Manitoba.

* * *

"We thank you very much for post card notifying us of proposed parcel post legislation. We have written today to different and most important retail merchants of our county, and at the same time to our local member of the Dominion House."—Quebec.

"We are enclosing copy of letter sent to our representative at Ottawa. This is simply a preliminary letter to find out just where he stands. If he needs support in the matter we will have a protest sent in from all classes of merchants in order to strengthen his hands."—Ontario.

* * *

"In consequence of receiving your card we have sent a petition to our M.P., signed by every merchant in the town."—Prince Edward Island.

* * *

"Thanks for your card of December 17th. We have circulated a petition, which has been numerously signed by our merchants and forwarded to our representative. We have also had our local papers take up the matter, and instructed each to forward a copy to you."—Ontario.

* * *

"In addition to sending a petition to the Postmaster-General direct the merchants of this town have written the local M.P."—New Brunswick.

* * *

"Enclosed herewith find copy of letter, signed by every merchant in town, which was sent to local M.P. We trust that the bill, if introduced, will be overwhelmingly defeated. We thank you for calling our attention to the matter, and for the active interest you take in the welfare of the retailer."—Nova Scotia.

VIEWS OF RETAILERS THEMSELVES.

A large number of merchants have sent us copies of the communications written to their local member of Parliament. Extracts from a few of these, which follow, should be read with keen attention by everyone interested on the question at issue, for they reflect the opinion of the trade, from the Atlantic to the Pacific :—

* * *

"Now I am decidedly opposed to any such legislation. We have express companies who forward parcels with promptitude and at reasonable rates. Such a bill would build up catalogue houses and tear away many local businesses. If this Dominion is to prosper it must be by making trade conditions of such a nature as to give the greatest good to the greatest number. This bill would handicap such conditions."—Ontario.

* * *

"We believe such legislation would tend to favor a few monopolists, to the injury of a multitude of local merchants, who, as a rule, rank amongst our best citizens and pay heavy taxes for the benefit of the localities in which they do business. Competition is sufficiently keen among local merchants to protect the consumer from over-charge. The parties soliciting this legislation aim at securing a good portion of the mercantile business in sections of the country where they pay no taxes."—Ontario. This was signed by a number of merchants and a gentleman signing himself an ex-M.P.

* * *

"We learn that a bill will be introduced into Parliament at the present session to establish a cheap parcel post system in Canada, and whereby the postoffice will collect on all parcels, that is, provide a c.o.d. service. This means the introduction of the British parcel post system, a system that has ruined the business of the local dealer outside of the large centres in that country. The merchants of Canada will oppose this measure in the most emphatic manner, and we ask you to use your influence to have this bill defeated, as it will seriously injure, if not destroy, in many places, the enterprises that do most towards promoting a vigorous and prosperous growth in local towns and villages."—Ontario. This communication was signed by all the leading merchants of the town.

* * *

"The passage of such a bill would put a great many local retailers out of business, and put a large amount of extra work and expense on the postmasters. I hope you will oppose the measure."—Ontario. This merchant is also a postmaster.

* * *

"I would ask you to earnestly oppose this measure, as, in my opinion, it would be a great detriment to at least three-fourths of the people engaged in mercantile business. As it tends towards the centralization of trade in one or two cities, it would injuriously affect hundreds of other cities, towns and villages. It would also tend to the further burdening of the mails, on account of which the public is already suffering. I cannot see that there would be any general benefit resulting from such a measure, and in the interests of a large proportion of the people of Canada, and especially of this city and district, I would again ask you to oppose it."—Ontario.

* * *

"The growth and prosperity of this Western Canada surely depends upon the energy, prosperity and success of her local citizens."—Manitoba.

* * *

"If this becomes law it will greatly facilitate the progress of Toronto and Montreal catalogue houses, which have already become a menace to the prosperity of our town and county. A consideration of this growing evil shows that it is unfair to local merchants, and in the end will be disastrous to those who encourage it. Local support is necessary to ensure good, healthy business, and progressive merchants are necessary to the growth and success of their towns. Without them there is no market, the largest taxpayers disappear, there is little or no demand for labor, and as a direct result, farmers' lands decrease in value, as an active market is necessary for the profitable sale of their produce. Merchants in small towns, particularly in a farming community, are obliged to give their customers long credits, often tide them over a period of misfortune, and handle at a loss much inferior produce, consequently they are placed at a disadvantage when brought into competition with catalogue concerns, whose business is conducted on a strictly pay-in-advance basis, and who are not called upon to pay anything locally."—Nova Scotia.

* * *

"You are, of course, aware of the immense amount of money sent out of the small towns every day to the catalogue houses for goods that command a good profit, leaving the local dealer to supply the staples at a very small profit, and pay the taxes."—Quebec.

* * *

"We do not fear any competitor if he is placed on an equal footing with ourselves, but it is so manifestly unfair that we should have to pay a business tax, support our schools and our churches and be expected to respond to every local demand, and the catalogue houses come in without paying any of these things, that we shall expect you to oppose the measure when it comes up."—Ontario.

* * *

"By passing such a bill the Government would certainly, whether consciously or not, be playing into the hands of the catalague houses."—Quebec.

* * *

"I feel that we already have enough competition from this class of traders, who pay nothing in the way of local taxation, and I feel that the general public would not benefit by the proposed change. People can buy as cheaply at home as from the catalogue houses, but they are influenced by the advertising features of the latter." —Quebec.

* * *

"In 99 cases out of 100 the consumer can purchase just as cheaply at home as from the department stores, if he takes into consideration the postage or express. I trust you will do all you can to oppose this measure. If put through its effects would be far reaching and exceedingly injurious."—Ontario.

* * *

"If passed, this bill would place a great many local merchants in such a position that the mail order houses would practically ruin their businesses."—Nova Scotia.

* * *

"This bill has, no doubt, been initiated by the retail catalogue houses. If passed they would inundate the towns and villages of Canada with parcels, to the injury of local merchants, who pay the local taxes and keep the wheels of commerce moving."—Nova Scotia.

* * *

"For some years past the mail order houses have been industriously circulating their catalogues throughout the Island, and thousands of dollars have been sent to them each year for merchandise that might have been purchased just as cheaply at home. This is a serious loss to the merchants, and the province generally, and if the proposed bill is allowed to pass, mail order business will be greatly increased."—Prince Edward Island.

* * *

"Such a bill, should it become law, would be a menace to our interests in proportion as it would benefit a class of merchants who reap where they do not sow, and who do business in communities to whose progress they do not contribute by their presence, their energy or their taxes. We would be sorry to oppose a measure that would contribute to the comforts and conveniences of the people as a whole, but in opposing the measure in question—which we will do most determinedly, and which we ask you to do as representing us—we would point out that a policy which tends to the centralization of business, and the nurture of large concerns, cannot but be detrimental to that progress in country communities which we must all desire to see."—Alberta.

* * *

"It would be a great injustice to the many local merchants doing business to-day and paying business taxes to allow the mail order houses to step in and get the cream of country trade through the medium of this c.o.d. privilege. . . . I think mail order houses should be taxed on the amount of business they get in the country."—Ontario.

* * *

"This legislation would be in the interests of the few. It would be unjust to the local retailer, who would, in effect, have the Government in league against him. It would be another step toward centralization, and another favor given to large corporations. It is of great importance to the farmers that large and up-to-date stores be found at their very doors. The legislation referred to would not help this, but operate against it."—Ontario.

* * *

"I respectfully call your attention to the stand which I take in the matter of the bill about to be introduced re extension of the parcel post system. I believe this is merely a scheme of the departmental stores. If adopted it would be a source of injury to every rising town in the west. Our country needs population, not monopoly—legislation that will fill the west with business centres instead of crushing out the small dealer."—Alberta.

* * *

"Progressive commjnities the country over are almost exclusively those who have the spirit of, and practice, home protection. Progressive towns always increase the land value of the adjacent territory. The large retail catalogue houses, by absorbing the trade of the smaller towns and villages, act as a detriment to their welfare, and also that of the country adjacent."—Saskatchewan.

* * *

"For the Government to step in and assist mail order houses to distribute their goods, at a nominal charge, would be most unfair. . . . We pay taxes to keep up our roads, streets, bridges, etc., but if the mail order houses, without assisting us in our municipal expenditures, are to be enabled to take our business away—the means provided by the Government—what benefit do we get from these taxes ?"—Ontario.

* * *

"Quite a number of our people are thoughtlessly sending a great deal of their money to the city stores, thereby cutting their own throats, ruining their home town, decreasing value of property, etc. They are building up Toronto and other cities at the expense, and to the stagnation, of their own community. If people would spend their money at home it would come back to them in a better town, better schools, better churches, better stores, better social advantages, and increased value of property. The city stores, on an average, don't sell any cheaper than we do. They don't help to pay taxes, etc. They are great and clever advertisers, and, you know, fields are green far away. Mail order competition is harmful enough in the smaller towns without giving them extra legislation."—Ontario.

* * *

"Mail order houses do great injury to our town and country stores, and are no benefit to those who purchase goods from them. I have compared the goods with what we sell, and see no difference."—Nova Scotia.

* * *

"We could fill pages giving our individual reasons for asking you to oppse such a bill, but have confidence in your ability to grasp the full effect that it would have without our groing further into the matter."—Saskatchewan. This was signed by every business man in the town.

* * *

"Not only would such legislation be unfair to the merchants, but every business would be adversely affected. The tendency would be to kill local trade, lessen local competition and enterprise, and depreciate real estate values. In order to make our ideas as plain as possible we will view as an illustration this village, with a population of about 800, six general, five grocery and two hardware stores, two harness shops, three merchant tailors, and a number of smaller businesses besides. Undoubtedly it may be admitted that competition is keen enough here. We conduct one of the general stores, carry a stock of from $12,000 to $15,000, employ ten hands the year round, pay rent, taxes and insurance. We take an interest in the progress of the village and foster the growth of our market. The result is good prices and accommodation for the farmers from the surrounding country. They cannot do without the local market and stores ; it is impossible for them to drive to Toronto with their butter, eggs, fowl, etc. It is clear that prosperous towns and villages tend to create prosperous farmers. One cannot well do without the other and this condition is a natural one that exists all over Canada. We purchase the product of the farm for which we pay prices established by local competition. During the past few weeks we paid out for fowl alone over $5,000. By the combination of retailing goods and handling farm produce we are able to conduct and sustain a fairly profitable business, and at least four other stores here are conducted on similar lines. We have nothing to fear from fair competition, but should be protected from legislation giving the mammoth mail order houses any unfair advantages."—Ontario.

* * *

"Being a merchant yourself you will understand the matter fully. There is no doubt that the large mail order houses are at the bottom of the proposal."—Prince Edward Island.

* * *

"I would ask you to oppose this bill and try to secure the co-operation of other members as well."—New Brunswick.

* * *

"We are advised by The Dry Goods Review, a very influential journal, that a bill will be introduced into Parliament at the present session to establish a cheap parcel post system in Canada, whereby the post office shall collect on parcels. A moment's reflection will, we think, show you the injustice of the proposal. It would mean placing at the disposal of the few mail order houses a great public utility, to the support of which these concerns cannot contribute a dollar in comparison to the hundreds of dollars contributed by those whom such a move would injure. No doubt this ridiculously unjust and unbusinesslike proposal is instigated by the mail order houses. They are not satisfied that the postal service carries their trainloads of catalogues into every corner of the Dominion, thus placing them in a position to unfairly compete with the local merchant, who has to bear his share of local expenses, while the catalogue house goes free; they now want the post office to carry their wares cheaper, and do their collecting to boot—in short, to transact business for them at the expense of the country. We are confident that, should this bill appear, you will lend a hand in passing it to the place where it belongs—the waste basket."—Quebec.

* * *

"We understand, through The Dry Goods Review, that a bill will likely be introduced into Parliament at the present session to establish a cheap parcel post system, including a c.o.d. provision. This bill appears to be framed for the profit and convenience of a few large mail order houses, and should such a measure be passed, it would, we believe, prove disastrous to many a local retail merchant."—Saskatchewan.

* * *

"Our attention has been drawn by The Dry Goods Review, a journal of the widest circulation in Canada, to a bill which will likely be introduced at the present session of Parliament to extend the present parcel post system and establish a c.o.d. service. We would ask you to oppose the measure, in the interests of ourselves and the town."—Ontario.

* * *

"If this bill passed it would be impossible to conduct a really good store in the smaller towns. The turnover would not be sufficient to allow the keeping of a good assortment of the goods in style each season. I trust you will vote against the measure if it comes up, and use your influence besides."—Ontario.

"I hope that you will oppose the measure, as it will mean that the mail order houses will be able to make use of our local post office and postmaster to compete against us. Many of our townspeople whose names appear on our books are sending their cash trade to the big city stores."—Ontario.

* * *

"We might offer many reasons why this bill, if presented, should not be allowed to become law, but, believing you to be thoroughly informed regarding the existing situation, we desire only to call your attention to the principal reasons why in our opinion the proposal should be defeated :—

1. "The existing legislation allows the big departmental stores to enter sharply into competition with local dealers, through the express companies, and the result of such competition has proved disastrous to trade in many localities.

2. "Should a postal express service be established the Government would be acting as collectors for the department stores, and encouraging these establishments to kill off trade throughout the towns and villages, thereby retarding the progress and development of the country.

3. "There is no demand on the part of the public for the change, and it would be class legislation in which the department stores would be the only beneficiaries.

4. "Departmental stores are sellers only. Country produce, such as wheat, corn, oats, beans, butter, eggs, also cattle, sheep, hogs, etc., would still have to be handled by local dealers, and prices for these products would be lower if a fair exchange of commodities were prohibited, by department stores securinging a larger portion of the trade they they now control, compelling local merchants to carry fewer lines and smaller stocks.

5. "The department store contributes nothing to the taxation of the communities where they are seeking to secure an ever stronger foothold than they already have, the local dealer being compelled to contribute, in the shape of taxes, to schools, making and repairing of roads, support of poor and insane, ordinary expenses of the municipality, and, besides, subscribes liberally to church funds.

6. "Department stores sell only for cash, while the local merchant, on account of short crops, etc., is frequently obliged to give extended credit.

"We might go on indefinitely giving reasons why the passage of such a bill would be disastrous to the country generally, but we are assured that you will grasp all the points at once, and we earnestly request that you do your utmost to defeat it should it be introduced into Parliament."—Nova Scotia.

* * *

"The small dealers in the country places have enough to contend with already without adding further to their disadvantages. The great majority are merely making a living. What would the towns and villages be without their local merchants, who, we think, next to the farmers, are more the backbone of the country than the large city stores, who have no interest in the rural districts other than to get all the money they can with no return in taxation or anything else."—Ontario.

* * *

If for any reason the Postmaster-General should desire to read over the originals from which these extracts were made, The Review will be glad to forward them to him, along with a large number of others, containing about the same line of argument.

Established 1832

Cable Address:
"LAW," Bradford

SPRING 1907

"Lawrus" Fabrics.

(Registered)

MOHAIRS

Unique Specialite
Mohair De Soie

Of Wonderful Texture and Exceptional Brilliancy

Rainproof Goods
Latest Productions
Brilliantine Suitings
At Popular Prices

Law, Russell & Co.

LIMITED

Converters of Bradford Goods

BRADFORD AND LONDON

The New Spring Gown.

A Wider Choice Not Only in the Material But in the Making.

Not only is there a wider choice than usual of materials for this Spring gown and suit, but the same latitude is also a feature of the making up department. Tailored suits in some shape or another will always have a strong standing in this hemisphere. They are the first to be purchased for early Spring wear. The new materials for tailored suits are beginning to be shown in the retail stores now and are chiefly of fancy tweeds, worsted mixtures and also of fancy woolens, generally in some plaid design. Stripes are again beginning to be talked of in the better trade, and in some materials will have a certain sale. There is considerably more trimming seen on the new suits, chiefly on the coat. Coats almost invariably show a fancy vest, generally of some harmonious shade in pastel broadcloth, trimmed with banding, fancy trimmings or braid. Though pleated skirts will be used exclusively for the ready-made suit, there will be more variety in custom-made suits and the gored circular cut will be often adopted.

The new wool voiles will be greatly used for the making of costumes and the more elaborate gowns. These are in plain cloths, and in checks and stripes, and the checked and striped goods certainly are in the highest style, though in Canada it would seem as though the plain voiles have had the greatest sale. Fashionable women are giving a fancy effect to a plain voile gown by having it mounted over striped silk. Satin is also beginning to be used as a lining, and when properly combined is most effective. Thus grey satin was used in a Paris model under a gown of narrow black and white striped silk voile, the grey showing through and softening the strong contrast between the black and white in a most effective manner.

Suits and costumes show a big use of silk for trimming, wide bias bands and milliners' folds being very much used both upon skirts and bodices.

For all but the most severe of tailored suits Paris says trained skirts, but this is a decree that the Canadian woman is sure to dispute and the big majority of both Spring and Summer gowns will be made in walking lengths. Paris models show also the high waist line, particularly at the back, and this is also a detail that will be subjected to general modification.

There is a freer use of silk, and one of the latest expressions of this fashion is the use of satin duchesse for coats. Satin duchesse is also used for handsome tailored suits. Taffeta chiffon is well to the fore for this purpose. The coats are semi-fitting and in hip length, though those reaching to the knee are also seen. Some are also of the box order. The trimmings used on these silk suits are quite elaborate, and are of fine lace, embroideries, etc., and the whole style and effect of these suits depends upon the arrangement and colors of the trimmings.

Guimpe and bretelle effects are increasing in favor, both for the costume and the separate waist, and as the season advances will be brought out both in silk and voile models. These will be made up in both one and two-piece suits, the princesse mode being the most effective, but the two-piece suit is the easiest to manage.

The broadening of the shoulder is very perceptible and cap arrangements are used to give this effect at the top of the sleeve. There is an evident attempt to revive the drooping shoulder, and many French models have the shoulder and sleeve cut in one.

The Princesse-Empire, that is, a gown with the waist and skirt joined and with the waist line high in the back, is a leading feature in costumes. This style predominates in the lingerie, lace and net gowns. These gowns all button at the back, and though new in shape, present little novelty in the manner of trimming.

It is quite evident that light, dull colors will predominate the situation for dressy occasions, and that fashion is favoring mainly, novel shades. Twine and ecru shades, chartreuse, yellow, raspberry, Danish blue, deep sulphur and tan shades are the colors of the moment in Paris. These, while beautiful, are by no means universally becoming, but the fact that the waist is cut down and filled in with either lace or embroidery will go far towards making them a success, by removing them from close contact with the face.

There are two things that are going to be distinctly in evidence this summer in the making up of the fluffier gowns. The one is the posing of one thin material over another, and the other is the using of color with white and ivory. Plain colored organdie of one color will be laid over organdie of another color. Mauve will be much used for this lining, and will be seen under such colors as pale blue, green or pink. A pink-over-mauve gown was trimmed with ivory lace, edged with black valenciennes. This mounting of one color over another is seen at its best in black and white, and black organdie made with tucks and ruffles and trimmed with fine black lace will be worn over white organdie or some pale shade of color.

The real washing frocks show a return to the plain lawns, muslins, dimities and also ginghams. Patterns are small and simple, and prices are not prohibitive. The expense, however, lies in the making, as they are freely tucked and inserted. The union of waist and skirt into a princesse gown is a feature.

The jumper or cut-out frock made in all varieties of wash materials, particularly in linens, plaid ginghams, etc., and all dresses, whether simple or elaborate, will be cut down at the neck and a guimpe of lace or embroidery set in. Pique will be used to some extent, and a suit with a tailored skirt and box-pleated blouse, cut low and without sleeves, to show the guimpe, and sleeves of opernwork embroidery worn under it. Hot weather frocks will be made with the low Dutch neck, and this applies even to those made in the simplest tailored styles, but the guimpe and high collar eventually will be the style we shall settle down to. The cross-over blouse is another style that can be reckoned as sure.

Simple bands of insertion or lace will be the most employed trimming.

There has been a still greater improvement during the past month for check and homespun effects for spring suitings. Ladies' tailors have booked largely in these lines and the season as it advances promises to be strong in checks. Stripes, which have been inactive for some time, have taken a sudden and somewhat unexpected prominence. Stripes never have any great run, and in spite of the fact that Paris is taking them up strongly they are not expected to amount to anything on the market. It is thought that the remarkable strength of the checks has somewhat diminished the available stocks, and that those who have been left with a shortage have turned their attention to stripes with the hope of having them take the place of checks and plaid effects. The shortage of plaids which was so evident last Fall, has induced merchants to place heavy orders for the coming season. Panamas still hold their position as leaders for the Spring trade. It is noticed from the orders already booked that the shepherd checks have steadily improved in demand. Broadcloths seem to have reached their limit now, as there are but few orders placed except for staple blacks and navies. The gunmetal checks in black and white are strong features in the present buying for Spring. Black and cream voiles are still continuing in the front of the list for Spring trade. Of these lines, buyers in Europe at present, in writing to their firms, declare that it is with the utmost difficulty that orders even for a very late date of delivery are accepted. There has been a slightly better demand for fancy voiles during the past month, but in no manner have they detracted from the fixed popularity of the plain colors. Manufacturers abroad are reported to be making extensive preparations to bring out a greater variety of checks and plaids than ever before for the Fall season, and from present indications it would look as though the fashion for checks was to continue for at least one more season, although in fashion centres plain and fancy stripes are spoken of as favorable lines for next Fall.

Silks

The raw silk situation has not improved during the last month, and the conditions ruling the raw material are naturally reflected to a more or less degree in the fabric end of the trade. There is an unusually favorable feeling towards silk fabrics, and should this feeling materialize, further advances are certain.

Fancies rather than plain goods are those most considered; and plaids, though they have had a long run, are still the leading style idea, and have been well taken by the waist manufacturers for the early trade. For the counter demand checks come first, in block and pinhead checks. Blue and white and black and white sell freely in these effects. Soft weaves are still favored, and satin surfaces are decidedly in the lead.

Japanese silks are advancing materially, the advance being as high as 25 per cent. on some lines.

Wash Goods

There was much dissatisfaction expressed over the delay of January shipments. The mills were slower in making deliveries than had been anticipated, and jobbers were compelled to delay much of their shipping until the present month. The retail trade is receiving goods satisfactorily, but the waist manufacturers are in a strange plight. They cannot get sufficient white waistings to keep up with orders. One manufacturer recently placed an order for several thousand yards of white linen waisting. In reply to a cabled order he was informed that the goods could not be delivered until May. This was no use, and so the order was cancelled. There are many such cases at present, and there can be no relief so long as the present demand continues. The wash goods market at present would warrant the immediate covering of all requirements while there is still a chance to get orders from jobbing sources. The lower grades of white lines are being eagerly snatched up as substitutes for the better lines, which at this early date are exhausted.

As the season advances manufacturers are turning their attention to the procuring of larger stocks of mercerized fabrics, as the advance orders for waists of this material have exceeded all expectations. This would indicate that the demand for popular priced waists will be enormous during the coming Spring. Everything in white and in spots is being ordered actively, and orders already booked show greater sales than even those of last year, which were considered a record.

There is every indication of a greater season than ever in muslins. While white shows the most active demand, a glance through the whole range reveals the fact that every line with a white ground is showing big orders. White grounds with light blue spots are undoubtedly the most sought for lines, next to the pure white Swiss. Spots and stripes come next in order and those with a very light check rank next. The values are considered very good this year and the heaviest demand is particularly on the high priced spotted goods. The fancy colored organdie muslins are better than ever, and the cheaper lines show a marked improvement over former years. The designs and colorings are particularly pleasing to the trade this year, and orders placed so far prove that the attention given to the lines by the manufacturers have brought satisfactory results. The patterns have been given more attention than usual, and the wisdom of producing neat floral effects has been manifested in the approval they have been accorded by the trade in general. Of the conditions of the market it can only be said that the most popular lines have been greatly reduced, and the slower lines are made active by a shortage of the better lines. Shortage is reported in many places, and when it comes to repeating orders there will be the old cry of taking what is left. The colored muslins are only moderately active, and are moving in order named: Light blue, mauve, reds, greens, black and light grounds with black effects.

1907 A White Season

¶ Every well-informed buyer is aware that White Goods will score a remarkable success during the coming Summer.

¶ We predict that the following brands will aid considerably in the vogue of White Goods.

MUNSTER 28 and 32 in.
(Linen Finish)

ULSTER 28 and 32 in.
Slightly heavier plain cloth. (Linen Finish.)

LIMERICK 28 and 32 in.
(Soft Finish)

BELFAST
Slightly heavier. (Soft Finish)

ALSO COMPLETE LINES—

Victoria Lawns
Nainsooks
Lisle Muslins
Duck Costumes

¶ We recommend a careful immediate inspection.

Any good jobber will show you the goods.

THE
Montreal Cotton Co.

Works at— VALLEYFIELD, Que.
Main Sales Office— MONTREAL

Harris Homespuns

HARRIS & COMPANY LIMITED
ROCKWOOD, ONT.

Cable Address, "MACKER," Winnipeg. Office, 511 Ashdown Block

McRAE & WALKER
Manufacturers' Agents and Wholesale Jobbers
WINNIPEG

Correspondence solicited from manufacturers desiring live, up-to-date representation in the West.

MENTION
DRY GOODS REVIEW
IN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS

DRY GOODS REVIEW

AND MEN'S FURNISHER

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE:

Canada, Great Britain, United States, Australia, South Africa and the West Indies - - $2 a year.
Other Countries, - - - - - - - - - $3 a year.
Single Copies, - - - - - - - - - - 20 cents.
Invariably in advance.

DIRECTORS:

J. B. MACLEAN, Montreal, - - - - - - PRESIDENT
W. L. EDMONDS, Toronto, - - - - - - VICE-PRESIDENT
A. B. CASWELL, Montreal, - - - MANAGING DIRECTOR.

CHIEF OFFICES:

CANADA—

MONTREAL, 232 McGill Street. Tel. Main 1255.
TORONTO, 10 Front Street East. Tel. Main 2701.
WINNIPEG, F. R. Munro - - 511 Union Bank Building Telephone 3726
VANCOUVER, - - - - - - - - - Geo. S. B. Perry
ST. JOHN, N.B., J. Hunter White - No. 3 Market Wharf

GREAT BRITAIN—

LONDON, ENG., J. M. McKim, European Manager, 88 Fleet St., E.C. Telephone, Central 12960.
MANCHESTER, H. S. Ashburner, - - - 92 Market Street

UNITED STATES—

CHICAGO, J. Roland Kay, - - - 1001 Teutonic Bldg.

FRANCE—

Paris - - - - - Agence Havas, 8 Place de la Bourse

SWITZERLAND—

ZURICH - - - - Lomis Wolf, Orell Fussli & Co.

EUROPEAN STAFF CORRESPONDENT:
MR. A. E. DACAM, Paris.

ADVERTISING RATES

Are based on $35 a page and will be furnished on application to Mr. A. B. Caswell or to the manager of the nearest office. The value of THE DRY GOODS REVIEW as an advertising medium is unquestioned. The character of the advertisements now in its columns, and the number of them, tell the whole story. Circulation considered, it is the cheapest trade newspaper to advertise in. Advertisements, to insure insertion in the issue of any month, should reach this office not later than the eighteenth of the month preceding.

Office of Publication, 10 Front Street East, Toronto

MONTREAL AND TORONTO, FEBRUARY, 1907.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Boas-Felson Co., Montreal.
Brown Bros. Co., Ltd., Brown's Nurseries P.O., Ont.
Canadian Underwear Co., Montreal.
Financial Post, Toronto.
Richard Haworth & Sons, Manchester, Eng.
Jobin, E., & Co., Montreal.
Netschert, Carl, Chicago, Ill.
New York Silk Waist Mfg. Co., Ltd., Montreal.
Tuck Raphael, & Sons Co., Ltd., Montreal.
Vineberg, Albert, Fur Co., Montreal.
Wilson, H. W., & Co., London, W. Eng.

THE PARCEL POST SITUATION.

The promptitude with which the great majority of merchants—wholesalers and retailers, big and small—have co-operated with The Review in opposition to the proposed extension of the parcel post system has had a splendid effect. Through one member of parliament we learn that the proposal is not at all popular in the House, and through another that the Postmaster-General is willing to withdraw the most objectionable features the c.o.d. clause. That being so, the main point has been won, but there are others to be considered.

We have taken good care that Hon. Mr. Lemieux should know the attitude of the trade regarding this matter, and after being convinced that retailers, from one end of the country to the other, are up in arms, he, doubtless, considers it advisable to attempt a compromise. He evidently thinks that with the c.o.d. provision crossed out the terms of his proposal would be acceptable. They would not, however. Local merchants strongly desire that the parcel post system should remain as it is, the reason for which we will explain further on.

In response to a question by Dr. Sproule on the floor of the House, January 31, the Postmaster-General stated that the changes contemplated in the postal system were not subject to legislation; that the department could make them without reference to Parliament. The Review tried to get this information from Hon. Mr. Lemieux, but he has, apparently, ignored our communication. While we do not anticipate for a moment that he would attempt a step of such great importance without the approval of the Commons, we submit that he should not have the power to do so. The vesting in one man or one department of the right to arbitrate where the interests of the great proportion of the people is concerned is surely a violation of the fundamental principles of constitutional government.

Through the subservience of the metropolitan press to the catalogue houses, the public has been deprived of all information bearing on the matter. After giving the mere announcement that the Postmaster-General had in mind some changes, the big dailies shut up tight, and by deliberate evasion of the question have ranged themselves against the retailers. The latter are now bitterly cognizant of the fact that the policy of these institutions, vaunted protectors of the public interests, can be influenced by their advertising patronage. They are in no mood to accept any excuses; in fact they do not believe that a reasonable excuse is possible. The papers could not fail to realize the far-reaching effect that such legislation would have, and that the matter was one of national importance. In view of this, we fail to see how they can justify their inaction. Fortunately the merchants have been able to get along without their assistance.

The Postmaster-General is willing to drop the c.o.d. clause, but we urge the trade to stand firmly opposed to any change whatever. None can be made along the lines proposed without strengthening the position of the catalogue houses and doing a grevious injury to the general mercantile interests of all Canada. The competition of such establishments as Eaton's and Simpson's constitutes a problem to the solution of which retailers are devoting themselves energetically, assisted by the counsel of trade papers, wholesalers and numbers of manufacturers. Even the more backward ones are waking up to the fact that a progressive policy must be pursued if trade is to be kept at home. They sell, in nearly all cases, just as cheaply as the catalogue houses, and often considerably cheaper, illustrations of which fact we have given from time to time. Yet people send away for large quantities of goods, of no better quality than could be purchased at the local stores. What is the reason? This merchants are rapidly finding out, and are applying the proper remedies. One of their weakest points is the strongest that the catalogue houses have—advertising. The Review, among other papers, is starting a course of instructions that will be valuable to every retailer in securing effective publicity for his goods. He has strong competition from the catalogue houses now, but is striving to meet it by perfecting his business methods, brightening up his store, etc., and will not grumble so long as no unfair advantage is enrolled against him, He claims that any extension of the parcel post system, as proposed, would be thoroughly unfair.

We believe that when the Post Office Department goes into the question deeply and realizes the capacity for harm that lies within the proposal there will be no anxiety to make any changes. Why should there be any changes? The people are not asking for them; it has been shown conclusively that if made they would do great damage to the mercantile interests all through the country ,by sending large numbers of local retailers into liquidation; local retailers are giving their customers good service and selling at fair prices; if the Government considers that the competition of catalogue houses is a good thing for the general public, there is abundant evidence that it is already as strong as anyone could desire; the chief benefit would accrue to the few big city stores—surely they do not pretend to need assistance—at the expense of the many small merchants. From every standpoint it must appear to fair-minded people that the proposal should go into the legislative waste basket.

"It would give us cheaper express rates," said one merchant by way of argument. No doubt, but if this merchant and any others have complaint to make regarding the rates now charged they have the right of appeal to the Railway Commission. A number have told us that they would be satisfied if the rates were uniform; they objected to discrimination in favor of catalogue houses and others. The service is satisfactory, and they realize that cheaper rates would add to the strength of the catalogue houses, while they themselves would get little advantage.

We are glad to see that the great majority of merchants were quick to take up the matter in accordance with our advice. Some, however, were not. They realized that they would be among the sufferers if the proposal went through, but laid The Review's card away and forgot all about it. One of their number to whom we spoke later said he didn't think there was any use putting up a fight; the catalogue housese would get what they wanted at any rate. That's a type of man who always strikes us as being lamentably short on good, red, vitality-giving blood, and it is exceedingly aggravating to listen to his lanquid, unenthusiastic way of discussing even a topic in which he should take the liveliest interest. In this case he has done nothing to help defeat the proposal—he depends on others to do that—and if it were adopted he would be among the loudest howlers. Thank goodness there are very few of his stamp in the trade.

In answer to the question, "What is the matter with North America?" an eminent American jurist recently said in part: "Wealth is attracted from its countless sources into reservoirs in a few centres and used for the advantage of a small percentage of the population." The extension of the parcel post system would work toward the centralization of trade—the building up of a few large establishments at the expense of a great many small ones.

In the news section of this issue will be found several pages of very interesting matter relative to this question.

REGULATION OF EXPRESS RATES.

Complaints are often heard that express rates are excessive, and also that they lack uniformity. This applies to freight rates as well, but it is in the former that we are particularly interested at the present moment, in view of the proposed extension of the parcel post system, a move which would eventually bring about the absorption of the express companies by the Government. The chief argument advanced in favor of this is, of course, that charges would be reduced and made uniform. We have taken up elsewhere the question of whether or not it would be advisable in the interest of trade as a whole, to make such reduction as would, no doubt, be demanded by certain powerful interests, under Government ownership. We find that the merits of the proposal are insignificant when placed beside its demerits. Our contention is that the franchises of the express companies should not be disturbed, but that the revision of rates on a reasonable and uniform basis should be enforced by the Government, through the Railway Commission.

That there is a lack of uniformity in express rates is directly proven by the following extract from a communication to The Review from a general merchant at Fergus, Ont.: "There is another matter which needs investigating, and that is the excessive rates charged on express parcels. For instance, on December 13th last we paid $1.90 express on three boxes, weighing sixty pounds, from Mulgrove, N.S. Four days later we received three more boxes, of the same nature and weight, and the charges were only $1.12. We may say this is not an isolated case." There was either an overcharge of seventy-eight cents in the first case or an undercharge of the same amount in the second. It is very likely that at $1.12 the express company received a liberal rate.

Another communication which we have received reads, in part: "Both express companies here take all the parcels I can give them at the same rate as the post office, and I am under the impression that they make even more favorable rates to the department store people in the cities."

In its single editorial reference to the Postmaster-General's postal express scheme, the Toronto Globe make these remarks: "The large advance in express rates in Canada during the past few years has led to much serious questioning regarding the wisdom of leaving the business practically free from official regulation or control. The ordinary freight business on the railways has been subjected to the authority of the Railway Commission, and while results are not as satisfactory as many confidently expected, there are means at hand to prevent the development of serious abuses. In the express business there are no powerful interests likely to make a strong appeal for Governmental supervision and for the regulation of rates, and it may be well that this service gradually pass under public control through the extension of postal authority."

Parliament has granted the Railway Commission the right to regulate express rates. No doubt it would take action if proof were laid before it that the rates are far from being uniform. According to the Globe "no powerful interests are likely to make a strong appeal." Would an appeal from smaller interests, backed by lots of good evidence, be disregarded? We think not.

The original of the communication from which we quote above is on file in The Review office. We would like to have with it the experiences and views of as many merchants as possible in regard to express rates.

MERCHANTS DO NOT STAND TOGETHER.

We have in mind just now a town of good size where the business of local retailers has suffered exceedingly through the competition of catalogue houses and city stores in general. Several of the drygoodsmen with whom we discussed the situation agreed that they would do a great deal better business if Toronto were not so convenient. One of them said he had given up all forms of printed advertising for the reason that he had been reduced to carrying only the cheaper class of goods. This does not, however, apply to the other stores. They by no means acknowledge defeat, and make a bid for local patronage on high class as well as cheap goods. In an endeavor to give them a definite starting point for a fresh effort to keep more trade at home we asked this question: "Is it not a fact that the families of some of your merchants send to the catalogue houses for lots of things?" The answer was in the affirmative. A good instance of how the existing state of affairs works out was given, in which it was shown that even merchants themselves were guilty of encouraging outside competition. The leading confectioner furnished a house, from cellar to garret, with goods brought from Toronto, and, apparently, thought nothing of it. Soon after the daughter of a local manufacturer was married and a caterer was brought from Toronto. The confectioner, who is also a caterer, felt very much abused because he was passed by. When he told his troubles to one of the drygoodsmen the latter reminded him of the house-furnishing episode, and at the same time did not hesitate to say that what had happened served him right. The wife of a hardware merchant will go to the city for her gowns, and the drygoodsman grumbles. Then the drygoodsman or his wife may send away for some real fine cutlery, or other articles of hardware, and the hardwareman grumbles. Inquire as to the reason why trade in both these cases was sent out of town and you will receive the answer: The home stores couldn't possibly have anything quite so nice as could be bought in Toronto. No doubt a visit to the home stores had not been made at all. Thus the hardwareman and his family go on hardening the lot of the drygoodsman, and vice versa.

We pointed out to the merchants of this town that their first step should be the formation of a merchants' association, and that the fight against mail order competition must begin right in their own ranks. A good deal can be accomplished in this way that would help materially in further strengthening the home market.

ALL TRANSIENTS SHOULD BE LICENSED.

The Ontario Legislature passed an act giving municipalities thoroughout the province the right to regulate the operations of transient traders and pedlars. Quite a number now have by-laws of about the same form, the chief provisions of which we have outlined in our news columns. Their enforcement has been attended by excellent results. We know of many other places where no attempt has been made to secure municipal legislation along this line, although the merchants complain that transients do them a lot of harm. We can't sympathize with them a bit for the remedy is within easy reach and they can blame only themselves if they don't take advantage of it.

Merchants in other provinces need by-laws of this sort and should have them. Representations made to their local legislatures would undoubtedly have the desired effect.

The imposing of good, stiff licenses on transients is in no sense a restriction of trade, but rather the protection of legitimate traders. Heavy taxes or rent enter into a merchant's cost of doing business, and must be covered by the profit which he makes on his goods. Transients, in the majority of cases, have no expense of this kind to reckon with, and can afford to undersell the resident merchant. They take many thousands of dollars annually from the customers of retail stores. A fee which places them on equal footing with the latter is prohibitive to most of them, as it should be. No one will murmur against the competition of those who can pay a

EATON ADS. IN LOCAL PAPERS.

Some time ago an attempt was made by The T. Eaton Co., through an advertising agency, to contract for space in local papers throughout the west, but it was entirely unsuccessful. Recently the same agency was commissioned to approach the Ontario publishers, and did succeed in placing Eaton ads. in several papers, although in nearly every case the proposition was turned down flat. The attitude of the publishers is not likely to change, for they realize that their best interests lie in protecting the local markets.

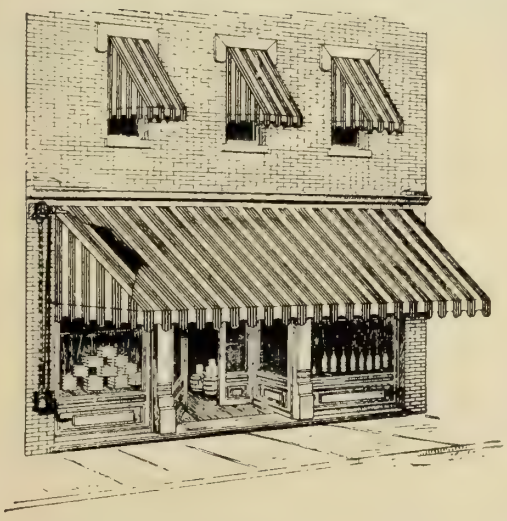
Where there is any liklihood of a paper accepting advertising from the mail order houses we would advise local merchants to interview the publisher and state their views regarding the matter. He would not, we believe, be slow to appreciate the reasonableness of their stand. In this connection we would urge retailers to give liberal patronage to the advertising columns of their home papers. If the proper sort of matter is used the money thus expended will always bring good results.

NEWEY'S SPRING HOOKS & EYES. IMPERIAL QUALITY

Made in 5 Sizes, Black and White. A Centre Spring Hook with a Swan Bill, made from hard drawn Brass Wire, Beautifully finished and machine carded.

Each Card has One Dozen Extra Loops. Retails at Five Cents

OUR NAME IS A GUARANTEE OF EXCELLENCE



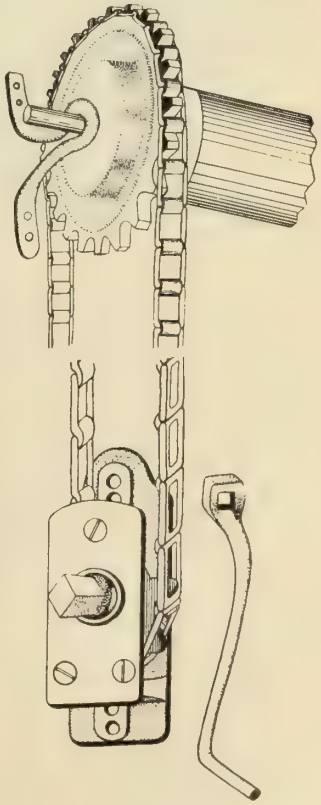
Sole Agents for Canada, Dieckerhoff, Raffloer & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg

Buyers when in England, cordially invited to call and see these and our other productions.

NEWEY BROS LTD BREARLEY ST BIRMINGHAM.

SCRIVEN

Are You Looking for a Perfect Awning?



One that is easy to operate—safe—sightly—durable — practical? Would you buy such an awning—if the price were right?

Let us tell you all about our

STEEL ROLLER AWNING

We make it for high or low fronts—measuring up to 25 feet. No central support required. It cannot warp. Let us prove to your satisfaction that we make

THE PERFECT STEEL ROLLER AWNING

WRITE FOR ESTIMATE, GIVING DIMENSIONS

Wm. Bartlett & Son, 20 Adelaide St. W., TORONTO

Rhys D. Fairbairn (Limited)

MANUFACTURERS

LADIES' NECKWEAR, BELTS, FRILLINGS, SKIRTS AND WAISTS.

We are now in our new factory

ALLEN BUILDING

COR. SIMCOE AND PEARL STREETS, - - TORONTO

RIBBONS

While we acknowledge no superior in any department of our business, still, could our efforts as a whole be expressed by our leadership in any one particular section, we think we would pin our faith to the Ribbon Department. Carrying the largest stock in the trade, with the volume obtained from the sales of sixteen travellers and four warehouses, we are justified in placing advance orders direct from the looms, that could not be attempted by the ordinary jobbing house.

Stock up with our Staple and regular lines. With full range—all the time—we can sort you up—during the season—and avoid the miscellaneous collection of odd makes and widths so often met with in good stores.

SPECIALISTS IN RIBBONS

THE D. McCALL CO. LIMITED

DRESS ACCESSORIES

Neckwear

Extra Busy January—Spring Season Opening Up in Splendid Shape.

January has been an extra busy month with the makers of ladies' neckwear. Because of the fact that the holiday occurred in the middle of the week travelers did not get out on the road quite so early as last year, but when they did get there was something doing and orders began to arrive freely.

The buying public, notwithstanding the heavy holiday sales, is evincing a deep interest in ladies' neckwear. The counters in the big stores are lined all day with customers and the merest whisper of a bargain is quite enough to draw a crowd.

Every indication points to a good Spring season, and all doubts as to the future of ladies' neckwear are quickly passing. The pointed stock is the big seller as yet in fancy neckwear, for which business is by no means over. Tailored neckwear, much on the same lines as was worn a few seasons ago, is coming into prominence. These effects are either tabless or in a style that shows very small tabs, often crossing each other in front.

In wash lines the long front pieces are again favored. These are very fanciful and are constructed in such a manner as to present a high degree of novelty, rufflings, lace, embroidery, lawn, etc., being used as well as chiffon and maline.

Another promising line is the Windsor, which will be worn with fancy embroidered collars and embroidered Peter Pans, etc. The latest is of lawn in narrow widths and embroidered. A novelty Windsor that promises well is a long tie of printed crepe de chene. This is tucked to fit the neck, in the centre, leaving the ends to be brought round to the front and either knotted or bowed. An embroidered turn-over in a matching color on a white ground finishes the neck.

fashion seems persistently set in their favor. White, cream, and ivory lead from a fashion standpoint. Black is well taken, and the pastel shades promise considerable prominence. Just a hint of gold is introduced into some lines, and the pretty Dresden effects are new. Fashion is favoring medium widths in frilling, and the latest novelties lean to soft fluffy effects made of soft finished chiffon.

Embroided Lawn Windsor to Wear with Peter Pans.

Embroidered Turnover with Fillet Introduction.—Shown by "Ladies' Wear."

Embroidered Turnover with Net Introduction—Shown by "Ladies' Wear."

A particularly big business is being done in turnovers and tabs, and any novelty in this line is eagerly taken up. The illustrations give two of the latest ideas put on the market, the one showing an introduction of filet and the other of net. The net illustrates the popular key pattern which is a feature this year. Swiss embroidered stocks are also numbered among the sellers.

If possible frillings are more used than ever, as

THE KID GLOVE INDUSTRY.

From Grenoble comes an interesting report regarding the kid glove industry. The chief article of Grenoble's exports is, it says, now having its innings, for by fashion's decree kid gloves are more than ever sought for. They are displacing, in a measure, the thread and fabric gloves, especially those of the longer lengths. From all quarters comes the call for long gloves, black and white, with black predominating.

In consequence of this there has been almost a panic price in the kid and lambskin markets. Prices have been advanced fifty per cent. and higher, and are not likely to come down for some time. The manufacturer has felt the rise most disadvantageously, having to meet contracts made before the rise. The continued demand is tightening the situation, and it is probable that prices will tend upwards rather than downwards. The scarcity of leather in the world's markets, which has augmented the price of all leather, has increased the uses to which kid and lambskin can be put and the fashion for wearing long gloves means that it takes twice the number of skins that are needed for ordinary gloves.

Laces

The Year Opening Up in Splendid Shape—Valenciennes, and Light Torchons and Clunys the Big Sellers.

January selling has opened the year in splendid shape in the lace department. Lace is in big demand, and the season's record promises to surpass that of 1906, which so far holds the record. The prospects for the season are splendid, all the more so because the demand is not confined to any one make. Valenciennes, however, promises to be the largest seller, but even here variety rules, for all makes of valenciennes are good sellers, not only Calais, but also the heavier round mesh German vals. and Nottingham laces also. The only trouble is to get deliveries. Makers of these laces are so full of orders that deliveries are away behind. This applies particularly to the makers of Calais laces.

Cotton Torchons and Clunys, particularly the latter, in fine makes, are coming strongly to the front and promise to share the field with vals. in the coming Summer. Not only are Cluny edgings and insertions selling, but motifs and separable medallions promise to be good.

Fillet All-Over—Shown by Alfred Weyerstall.

In Plauen goods the variety is great, and not only venise, guipure and Irish are big sellers, but net effects ar also strong as well. Combinations are popular and medallions, bands, edges and all-overs show an agreeable intermingling of heavy and net laces. Fillet laces and fillet introductions are the new idea in Plauen goods. Motifs, separable medallions, and festoon effects are all in high favor and there is a decided demand for circles, diamonds and squares, particularly in Irish and French crochet effects—which are so near the real article as to be very deceptive. Narrow galoons and bandings for edging purposes promise to command a great sale.

Fillet and Irish Banding Set Into Net.—Shown by Alfred Weyerstall.

Parasols

Outlook Bright—The Biggest Season Yet is Expected —Old Stock Cleared Out.

The outlook is exceedingly bright, and a splendid season is anticipated. Last year's stock was well and profitably cleared up, in fact the demand towards the end of the season could not be met owing to the inability to obtain materials. Many orders had to be turned down in consequence, so that the trade was in the position of wanting goods at the end of the season. This being so, the manufacturing houses have extended their sample lines, and have made preparations on a big scale for the coming Summer.

The line for 1907 presents marked features, one of which is the absence of frills. Checks, also, in spite of the preference manifested for them in other lines, are absent from parasoldom. To make up for this stripes are much in evidence, and some of the smartest and best effects shown are striped. This is particularly noticeable in the staple black and navys, for which the only relief is the fancy stripes of white. White and black effects—grounds of white, linen shades, pale blue, pink, etc., with white and black stripes are in evidence.

Perhaps the most taking line of all comprises the dainty floral effects. These have a printed shadowy pattern on the silk in soft pastel shades, and the coloring and combinations are most pleasing and artistic. The edge color is a pastel shade, such as green, pink, blue, etc., which gradually loses itself in the white ground.

The parasol of white linen, which became so popular late last season, the orders for which could not be filled at the time, promises to be the big seller this year. Handsome hand-embroidered covers are used for the more expensive parasols, and for the medium priced lines the covers are made of linen and embroidery insertions.

Mercerized and silk and linen materials in linen shades also promise well, and it is anticipated will come next to white in the season's selling.

Another feature is the scalloped, button-holed edge. This is used as the finish to all the hand-embroidered linens and also on some of the silks—white silk with a black edge being particularly smart. A good effect is gained in black by cutting the edge of the silk cover in pattern and appliqueing on to a hem of mousseline-de-soie.

The fashionable handle this year is the one of natural wood, generally with the crook as a finish, though some are straight and finished with a gold mount, and the style idea is the extra long stick. Frames are gold and silver finished, and the twelve ribbed Japanese frame is also a feature.

Some high-priced parasols have an embroidered chiffon cover over the one of silk, and are further decorated with side pleatings of chiffon.

Ribbons

Prices Still Advancing—Good Season Being Rounded Off.

Preparatory to the millinery openings there has been, during the month, active ordering of ribbons. Orders have been unusually large and an enormous season is assured. Manufacturers have discontinued the making of cheap lines as prices of raw silk have increased to such an extent that there is no longer any profit in producing them. The season's requirements call for the best ribbons, and this justifies the making of only those lines on which there is sure sale at a good profit. As predicted in these columns in the issue of November, bayaderes are a favorite for Spring. This line is used largely for belts and hat bands in European fashion centres, and will figure largely in millinery during the coming Spring.

Canadian buyers at present in Europe report to their houses that the market is more strained than ever, prices are still climbing to unprecedented marks and orders are most difficult to place. At this late season it is difficult to obtain a good collection, as the best has been bespoken. It will be remembered that The Review stated some time ago that in view of an enormous season in ribbons the buyers of large houses were instructed to buy as much as possible. These buyers are now confronted with a great difficulty in getting any kind of a stock. Repeats are almost out of the question. In London there is little or no choice and Paris and Berlin have no inducements to hold out for the buyers. Collections so far are considered larger than they have been for years, but as it is expected that they will be cleaned out rapidly, they are not thought to be adequate to the demand that is yet to come.

During the month of January, retailers had much ribbon to offer at a bargain, but it was noticed that the new and sure styles for Spring were not marked down at all. It would be folly, considering the value of ribbons at present, to sacrifice them at a discount.

All staple lines are moving at a lively rate at present. Ribbons of five inches wide are considered good stock for Spring. Tans are among the leading lines, but with everything moving at such an extraordinary rate there is, apparently, no color or design that is considered poor. Tartans still hold a good place and fancy floral warp-finish lines are sought by the millinery trade to a great extent. Black satin, failles, silk taffetas and velvet ribbons are in active demand for trimmings, to go with the sheer white Summer dress goods. Colored velvets have lately been added to the list of novelties in demand. Stripe and plaid combinations, stripe plaids with over-checks and vice versa are holding a secure place in the market. Dresdens with subdued over-checks and stripes are still to the fore and are maintaining the position they gained at an earlier date. White grounds are being used largely for warp-printed patterns. These show a narrow border of either a plain stripe, in color to match the pattern, or in a soft shepherd tartan effect. Champagnes and old blues are again showing an improved demand, and it is felt that during the coming millinery season these colors will be largely in fashion. Velvet ribbons in colors are spoken of as a likely accessory to the leghorn styles which are, apparently, going to be strong for Spring.

Gloves

Shortage of Some Lines Keenly Felt—Prices for Fall Not Yet Decided.

The improvement in the demand for grey suedes and glaces during the month has not been any greater than was expected. There is a great shortage of these lines and it is impossible to get late deliveries. This color seems to be the favorite for Spring and Easter trade. Men's short grey gloves have been the most active moving stock throughout the month. The stocks in wholesale centres are depleted and many of them cannot fill orders received last September. There has been but little sale of ladies' kid gloves.

When retailers ordered their last fall stock they purchased sufficient to last them until after Easter, but sales throughout the Winter were far beyond their expectations, and, consequently, their stock has been greatly reduced. On the other hand, jobbers are anticipating a very small assorting season for Easter trade, as there is not much stock in hand to dispose of, excepting some whites, which are not in demand.

Nothing has been definitely decided as to prices for next Fall. It is, however, understood that prices will be very high. Late reports from France state that the raw skin market is more strained than ever before, and manufacturers are not in a position to name prices. Not only have kid skins advanced, but lamb skins are quoted at figures showing an increase of 40 per cent. over last year. The large manufacturers have cornered the supply of skins and are crowding the smaller manufacturers out. It is felt that under these conditions the short gloves which have usually sold at $9 per dozen, to retail at $1 per pair, will be most difficult to secure at the same figure; in fact, manufacturers admit that the advances will be so marked that no line will be produced at that figure. It is thought that the opening of the Fall season will show a marked demand for English tans and 8-button lengths in blacks. Champagne, blues and greens are spoken of as probable leaders, but until prices are first decided upon nothing definite will be known about the manufacturers' plans for the Fall season. The little assorting done thus far for the Easter season shows the demand to be principally on tans and blacks, both of glace and suedes of 12-button length. Black lisles of 12-button length have also been well ordered for late Spring delivery.

It is thought in many circles that since white gloves have had a long rest they may be possible leaders for Fall, but up to date there has been no indication of this materializing, except the wish on the part of the manufacturers. They have quite a stock of this color and are naturally anxious to be rid of it. Summing the matter up it seems that whites have had a long enough rest to make them popular if introduced on the market again.

The only certainty regarding the Fall business is that prices will be very high and stiff. It is felt that the kid lines have about reached their limit in price and cannot consistently be further advanced, especially in Canada. There is no apparent loop-hole in the strained situation, and there is no prospect of a decline in prices for at least two years.

Trimmings

Prospects Bright for Fall—Some Novelties Indicated—Big Demand for Braid and Band Effects.

There is a steadily developing strength in the trimming situation and the big demand for braids and band effects is now expanding into a general call for dress trimmings. There has been quite a nice trade done for the opening season and the prospects are bright for an excellent Fall. Not only are braids promised both in mohair and fiber, but there is a big variety of other lines. Drop ornaments, and drop and ball fringe effects, are talked of as leading novelties, and so are embroidered chiffon effects in many patterns and combinations. These are all trimming effects that Paris and New York are featuring now, and as is well known in the trade, end of the season developments are looked to as indicating the popular novelties for the next season.

Actresses' gowns are always looked upon as heralding advance fashions, particularly those worn by actresses upon the Parisian stage. Many of them are now wearing gowns sewn with spangles, or heavily embroidered with gold or silver, the spangles being tinted the same color as the material of the gown. Spangles have also been immensely popular on ball and dinner gowns of net and lace. The spangles used are very small but very brilliant, and are used band-wise on the edges of the skirt or in large ormentations and motifs.

Now that trimmings are coming into vogue a word about the desirability of having them bought with reference to the dress goods stock may not be out of place. The trimmings you stock are intended as a garniture to the gowns you sell in your dress department, and this point should not be lost sight of. When buying trimmings the head of the dress goods and the silk department should be called into consultation and their advice as to colors, tc., should be taken. Mind, we do not say that they should determine patterns and effects, but that they should advise as to the colors to stock and as to general suitability with reference to their own stocks. This question of matching, not just in the matter of trimmings alone, is a big one and one that has too little attention given it. If trimmings are bought as advised there will be fewer pieces of dress goods left over in the department, simply because there is no trimming in the stock to go with it, and the trimming stock will be cleaner when the end of the season arrives.

Linens

Shortage of Yarns Causes Further Advances—Price Lists Withdrawn and Revised.

The spinners hold the key to the situation in the linen market, and because of the scarcity of yarns and consequent high prices, some manufacturers' price lists have, within the last few days, been withdrawn altogether, and they will issue a revised one shortly. Other firms have advanced prices for the balance of the Spring business, and notify importers that a stiff advance must be expected when booking for the Fall trade takes place.

Retailers may draw their own inference from these facts, but certainly the man who places orders now, and in liberal quantities, is going to be in the best position. It is not the price of the raw material that is the determining factor in linen prices but the fact that the spinner cannot produce sufficient yarn to satisfy the manufacturer's needs.

CALAIS LACE PROFITS.

U. S. Consul J. B. Milner, writes that the machine-made lace industry in Calais, which has been for more than three-quarters of a century a most prosperous French industry, in 1906 broke the record of all previous years.

"Up to December 10 the export of this lace for 1906 from Calais to the United States amounted to $8,300,000, and the completed year showed a total of between $9.000,-000 and $10,000,000. The Calais product consists principally of Chantilly and Valenciennes laces. The importance of the industry is greatly increased, and during 1906 not less than 100 new factories were put into operation, while old makers increased the capacity of their plants.

"This industry offrs such an opportunity for arriving at fortune quickly that it monopolizes everything in the city, to such an extent that Calais as a mercantile centre hardly supplies its citizens with the necessities of life, many citizens purchasing what they need in Paris or London. Young men who entered this industry five years ago have already gained their fortunes. The lace workmen themselves earn from $20 to $40 a week, so that it can be truly said that few communities are more prosperous than this.

"The population of this city is rapidly increasing, and new buildings are everywhere to be seen. Calais laces in some form or other are to be seen on nearly every woman in Europe as well as in the United States. Single invoices have been declared at this consulate for export to America amounting to ofttimes $40,000 and some to nearly $60,000."

LACE CONDITIONS IN PLAUEN AND BRUSSELS.

A report from Plauen states that the cotton lace and embroidery industry has not been quite so prosperous, as the demand for the tulle varieties has diminished considerably. Net and tulle laces were made in all kinds, from the cheap tambour and oriental to the finest Alencon and Brussels. The United States was a small purchaser, but France and Great Britain bought largely of Alencons, which were produced partly on hand machines. Net laces in Brussels and in point effect were sought after, as well as fantasy laces in net, some with heavy flat-stitch effects and others with free lying leaf and flower effects.

During the second half of the year, Irish lace was brought out in considerable quantities, and for a time exceeded the output of the net laces. After net and guipure came muslin and batiste laces, which sold well These, which constitute the boundary between embroidery and lace, were combined later with Irish and valenciennes. Collars in Empire style disappeared, giving place to smaller effects made up of the popular laces.

Embroidered veils were quickly taken up, the demand being strong enough to induce several firms to make them a specialty, and they were made up to 2 yards and 25 inches long.

On Sept. 15th, the union machine owners agreed to maintain a higher stitch-rate scale, and the rate which had been as low as 6 cents per 1,000 stitches rose to 8 1-2 for the same class and much higher for the finer grades.

The manufacturers and machine owners' unions organized a movement for the suppression of incorrect stitch counting, and there is now an office where lace may be taken, the stitches counted and any discrepancy pointed out.

Silk laces have been in strong demand, both in black and white, black being the favorite. Artificial silk was also freely used. It is estimated that there are 3,000 hand machines, 7000 shuttles and 150 automatic machines in operation in the Plauen district and th annual production of machine-made lace is approximately placed at $18,000,000.

It is reported that the slight depression that prevailed during 1904 in the Belgian lace trade partly disappared in 1905. Fashion has been more partial to the lace of other countries, but Belgian makers cannot complain, for the great rush for laces in 1902, which brought back many former lace workers, still continues. Fashion seems to be more constant to laces, and the tendency to develop and protect woman's work promises to become stronger in the future.

Point Gaze has been so much in demand that wages have been increased, and there has been a brisk demand for princesse lace, which still continues.

The sudden demand for Venetian lace and Irish crochet. which were brought into fashion by one of the leading Paris dressmakers, has kept manufacturers fairly busy. Duchesse lace, enriched by point lace flowers and medallions, is always in favor, and will not go out so long as it is carefully produced. The lighter laces, such as applique and lierre embroidered net laces were manufactured in large quantities. Mittens, veils, scarfs and dresses had a fair demand and embroidered veils sold in enormous quantities. Numerous and very important orders were placed by the United States but the trade with England has greatly declined.

IT IS A

FOWNES

That is all you require to know about a glove.

FALL SAMPLES BEING SHOWN COMPLETE.

FOWNES BROS. & CO.

Rooms 1 to 4 Coristine Building

MONTREAL

H. W. WILSON & CO.

4 Kingly St., London, W., England

REGENT STREET

FURS, TRIMMINGS, BUTTONS, SILKS, Etc.

Novelty House exclusively for Ladies' Tailors and Department Stores

Novelties in 40in. Twill Victoria Lining

A combination of Silk and Cotton

For Coats, Costumes, etc.

Plain, Shot, Stripe and Floral Design

Patterns on application.

THE NEW

SUEDE SKINS

For Trimming Collars, etc.

24 Shades. Shade Card on application

Open Indents in Novelties carefully executed.

Sir! If you weren't in the Dry Goods Business whose Gloves would you buy for yourself?

STOREY'S—Because quality is stamped all over them.

STOREY'S—Because they are proofs of refinement and good taste.

STOREY'S—Because they are the perfect gloves and the price is always right.

YOU KNOW ANOTHER REASON

W. H. STOREY & SON, Limited

ACTON, ONT.

Established 1868. The Glovers of Canada

A Brief Review of the Offerings of E Department

Spring, 1907 Spring, 1907

This Department offers the trade an excellent assortment in the following lines:

Laces in favor

Undoubtedly this will be a big Lace season. Vals. will score a larger success than in any previous season. French and English markets are away behind on their orders, but our goods are coming forward promptly. We show a larger range of staple Vals. and novelties than ever before, and our stocks will be useful throughout the season. Plauen Laces will be excellent property. Net Top Laces in great profusion. A large variety of fine Guipures and some new and profitable ideas in Lace Collars.

Spring Hosiery

Foreign and domestic markets are well supplied with orders, and deliveries will be slow. However, our early and favorable contracts enable us to offer you exceptionally strong stocks. All the staples and novelties are here.

A Great Ribbon Year

Staple weaves and the best of all that's new, briefly describes our stock. Prices are tending higher and goods are scarce. Early orders are requested. Send us your sorting needs. Our buyer has been successful in placing advantageous contracts.

Splendid range of Taffetas (Chiffon finished).
Exceptional variety of fancy ribbons of all descriptions.
Some exclusive designs. These will be strong sellers.

Ladies' Underwear

Misses' and Ladies' in Balbriggan, Lisle Thread and Cotton, with full sleeves, half sleeves and without sleeves. Several lines in O.S. and extra O.S. sizes which we have entire control of, and will be found very desirable.

Embroideries

Embroideries certainly promise to be very fashionable. Already prices have advanced fully 15 per cent., and repeats will be higher. The best selling lines are:—Corset Cover Embroidery, All-over Embroidery, Wide Insertions. We expect one of the best seasons for Embroideries that we have had for many years, both in Muslin and Cambric grounds, in all widths.

Chiffons

Brilliant finish, 17½ cents up, 39/42 inch. Also narrow Chiffons for pleatings and frillings, ½ in., ¾ in., 1 in., 4 in., 6 in.

Veilings and Nets

A full range of the latest novelties in Veilings, Chiffon, Crepe de Chene Veiling. Novelties in Nets and Gauze with Chenille spots. Also a full range of French Mourning Veilings always in stock. Brussels Nets, Bretonne Nets, Malines, Mechlines and Mosquito Nets; also Point d'Esprit and Black Dress Nets.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

LACES Valenciennes, French, Nottingham and German, in immense range of effective patterns.

ALLOVERS Orientals, Guipures, Valenciennes, Black, Light Butter, Paris, White.

EMBROIDERY STRAPPINGS

Muslin, Nainsook, Cambric. Complete range.

DRESS TRIMMINGS

Appliques, Pull Braids. All colors.

STRIPPED BELTINGS

Travellers now showing our Spring range of Ladies' Neckwear and Belts

SANDERSONS, LIMITED

172 Front St. West, TORONTO

STUDY THE WANTS OF WOMEN

The Dry Goods Merchant who fails to do so is wooing commercial disaster.

Women are particular buyers when it comes to

Braids, Trimmings and Laces

Suit her ladyship's taste in Braids and Trimmings and you have cornered her trade for just as long as you wish to hold it.

Success in your line means that you ought to entrust your orders with a Braids and Trimming specialty house.

We have some interesting particulars which we would like to mail you.

THE LACES & BRAIDS MFG. COMPANY

TORONTO JUNCTION, ONT.

Above everything else Easter is a season of newness and novelty, with no room for anything in any sense commonplace. We claim pre-eminence when it comes to new styles and attractive novelties in

Lace and Embroidery Stocks
Lace Plastrons
Lace Turnovers
Collar and Cuff Sets

which promise to be among the big sellers for Spring. New York advices are strong in their favor, and we are fortunate in having a considerable quantity on hand for immediate shipment.

If is safe to send us "open orders." We know almost in advance what your particular trade is apt to require.

Ladies' Wear, Limited

Empire Building, - - 58 to 64 Wellington St. W.

Toronto

It's to Your Advantage
TO BUY VICTOR GARMENTS

TRADE Victor MARK.

TRADE Victor MARK.

TRADE Victor MARK.

TRADE Victor MARK.

BECAUSE—

Victor Garments are produced in cleanly, healthful surroundings.

Expenses in Quebec city are lighter in every way--you get the saving in better values—

Victor's facilities also offer you stylish merchandise—

READY TO SERVE YOU—

Spring Coats--

New and Distinctive Styles—

Lingerie Waists—

The Victor Mfg. Co., Quebec

BUY WHITEWEAR BY THIS BRAND

No other brand of Whitewear has ever, in the brief period in which it has been on the market, entered so many representative Canadian stores as popular, profitable "Laurentian."

WHY IS THIS?

TRADE Laurentian MARK

- ¶ Honest workmanship and rigid inspection.
- ¶ Close and careful attention to details.
- ¶ The trade has appreciated Laurentian goods as honest, neat, dainty and durable.

COMPARE THE GOODS AND YOU WILL PROVE THEY ARE WITHOUT EQUAL IN THE MARKET

One of our Specialties is HEMMED SHEETS and SLIPS

Can you afford to be without them? Samples and prices sent upon request

THE LAURENTIAN WHITEWEAR CO., LEVIS, QUE.

COATS

A strong line of popular priced Coats in all the new Spring Fabrics.

SUITS

A strong line of popular priced Suits, in Voiles, Panamas, Checks, Serges and Silks, in both Foreign and Domestic Fabrics.

Separate Skirts

VOILE SKIRTS

and in addition

Chiffon, Panamas, Fancies, Silks and Novelty Materials, in a very large range, in box pleats and side pleats. Popular prices and high-class goods.

Our Spring line will be shown at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, during the Millinery Openings.

Cloaks, Suits, Skirts

Renown Brand

"The Line that builds successful Cloak Departments"

Makers :

J. H. WALDMAN & CO.

511, 513, 515 St. Paul Street, - - Montreal, Canada

Fall Cloths

Plain Cloths, Face Cloths, Beavers, etc., in Black and Colors for the Fall Coat.

According to present indications, grey mixtures, plaids, etc., and possibly tweeds, have had their day, and the end of the tourist season will about see the last of them, that is, unless tweeds, in some new form, are retained, for the making of the cheaper lines of Fall coats.

In the fashionable trade, it looks as if the change were a complete one, and from the lightest colored and loudest of checks, etc., there is to be a return to plain cloths in the Fall. Not only are the cloths to be plain, but decidedly dark shades are favored. Black will lead, but there are strong indications of a feeling for colors also. Possibly there may be a few fairly vivid reds worn, but the deeper shades, the rubies and garnets, will be best style, and these, along with rich browns, deep greens, and some shades of navy, are expected to be the leading colors. Beavers, face cloths, and other plain cloths are those indicated. The fact that the finish is so good now and that spotting is almost a thing of the past, will be a big factor in favor of the brighter surface cloths.

The form in which the garment will be made up is in a still more nebulous state, but as "long and loose" is still the strong tendency in Paris for the wrap coat, it is altogether likely that some form of "long and loose" coat will lead in the coming Fall. This is good news for the manufacturer, and for the retail trade, as this coat is easier to make, and entails less work upon the alteration department, and, therefore, is more profitably handled.

Not so satisfactory, perhaps, is the news that the trimmings promise to be a feature, braids on the cheaper coats, and braids and elaborate braid ornaments and passementeries on the more expensive ones. There is some tendency towards the high waisted Empire and directoire types and modifications of these styles are pretty sure to make their appearance.

Cape effects, possibly, may be used to some extent to diversify the line, but are hardly suitable for Canada, as they do not give the warmth of the coat, but, for a time at least, most women may be content to sacrifice comfort to fashion.

This return to plain cloths promises to bring linings again into use, and satins and damasses are likely to be stocked for this purpose. Fur linings also promise to come into prominence, and should the Winter be normal, fur-lined coats are booked, it is said, for the vogue they missed a couple of Winters ago.

From what is said above, the retailer will see that the new Fall coat cannot be a cheap one, as cloths are high-grade and expensive, and there are linings and trimmings to be added as well.

Spring Styles

Usual Ante-Opening Uncertainty as to Leading Styles—The Separate Coat.

In spite of the usual caution in ascribing at this date a leading place to any one style, the tendencies are fairly developed. Because of the early opening of the Spring trade, suits are expected to be of extra importance. Though, of course, there are considerable variations and modifications, the almost-fitting hip length coats, and the familiar Etons seem to be the most popular coats for tailored suits. The pony coat is again shown, but, as last season, promises to achieve no marked seccess. A feature of the new Etons is the tuck across the shoulder to give the broad-shouldered effect. As a further development of this idea some few of the imported suits show the sleeve cut in one with the body of the coat. Various other devices are used to give the broad-shouldered effect. Some Etons also show postilions at the back. There is a gradual merging of Etons into blouse effects, and coats that are belted in at the front and sides have the Eton fit in the front.

Separate coats are showing in big variety. Loose, utility coats are developed in fancies and in light-weight black cloths. Short, tailored jackets and boxcoats, in coverts and fancies, appeal to the medium-priced trade. The Prince Chap has made its appearance not only as a separate coat, but also in suit lines, and with every appearance of a fair measure of success, as this style of coat is most becoming to some figures.

There is expected to be a marked increase in the business done on silk coats this Spring, and all styles and lengths are shown. The novelty in silk Etons is what is termed a cape Eton, which is an elaborate lace-trimmed affair. Long, loose coats of silk are also in high favor, particularly those of satin-trimmed silk.

Pleated skirts are universal in suit lines and are all of the useful instep length.

A big season is expected for separate skirts, which follow in cut much the same lines as suit skirts. Black and white checks and grey and white checks, both in blocks and in fancy checks, are selling well. Just a few stripes are seen, but stripes do not promise well in this market at present.

The Spring Season

A Big Stride in Importance Sure to be Made—Keep Your Department Up to Date.

As the country develops the Spring season grows of larger importance, not only because the trade is expanding, but because of the larger variety of lines demanded, and the consequent possibilities presented for further development. This Spring ought to see a big stride made, a stride that should place the Spring season on a firmer basis than ever. Judging from the size of orders already placed, retailers are confident that there will be a big advance in the volume of business done. The retail trade, too, is in better shape than ever. The big majority of merchants have made good use of the past few prosperous years in improving their stores and store fittings. It is a far cry now from the day when a few tables and racks were all the fixtures carried, and the majority of the stores in even the smaller towns have really handsome departments. True, there are some that have yet to fall into line, but they are doing it, and each season sees progress made in this direction.

So essential to the success of the department is it that the garments you sell shall have good surroundings, we would suggest that you take a look round your department even at this eleventh hour, and see if you can make any little change that will serve to brighten up its appearance, before the new goods are shown. A new carpet, or a rug, a comfortable settee or divan, a few chairs, a mirror or so, or even the addition of a few palms or ferns in pots. These may be relatively small matters, but they will make your department more attractive and create an impression favorable to your goods in the minds of prospective customers—in short, they will make it easier for your salespeople to sell goods. To make your patrons comfortable may be a very modern idea in dry goods retailing, but it is a very good one.

Owing to the state of the market there never was a season when retailers found it more to their benefit to place orders at the earliest possible moment. Just as soon as you are fairly sure of what to buy, send your order off. "Do it now" is a good motto at any time, but doubly so this Spring.

The manufacturer is facing the delivery problem, and as the season developes there is sure to be a shortage of desirable goods, so if you would keep your assortments whole, you will have to place your orders well ahead.

A Fine Corset Department

Methods Followed by a Barrie Merchant Which Have Been Very Successful.

George Vickers, of Barrie, has built up for his corset department something more than a local reputation. Several merchants in eastern Ontario spoke of him to The Review in this connection a short time ago, and wished to know what his methods were. Mr. Vickers was in to see us recently and we had a chance to discuss the matter with him. "In the first place," said he, "we make quality the main selling point, and push the high grade goods incessantly. Very often, in some stores, you will find salespeople who bring out a fifty-cent line at the start off; my girls would probably show one at $2. They are impressed with the fact that one sale at $2 or $2.50 is worth four or five at fifty cents, and that only on good goods are the profits satisfactory. We have the cheap lines in stock, but never talk about them, advertise them or show them unless there is no chance of a better article being accepted.

"The corset and hosiery departments have been my particular hobby. I never get into conversation with a customer over the counter without introducing some line of good corsets. This can be done in a nice way that is effective.

"I have the controlling interest in a store in Orillia, and have been trying to raise the standard of the corset department there. I started a selling contest among the girls, which is working very well. If the business in Barrie, for a certain length of time, does not exceed the Orillia business by a certain amount, I present each of the girls in the Orillia department with a pair of the best quality from the Barrie store, and vice versa.

"I stand for quality in every department—quality, combined with assortments, is sufficient to bring the best class of trade. Of course, prices have to be right, but I do not harp upon this point in advertising high grade goods, and I keep away from the cry of cheapness as much as possible.

"To return to the point where we started, I may say that my corset department is certainly successful. Many people visiting in Barrie, whose homes are in larger places, patronize it."

Mr. Vickers pays a good deal of attention to the matter of advertising. We expect to have some samples of his work submitted to us before long, for criticism by our expert. He recently secured from the makers cuts of almost every line of corsets that he carries.

Waists

Lingeries the Leaders—Difficulties in Getting Materials—Embroideries Hard to Obtain.

As The Review predicted, the January sales saw the first of the season's showing in lingerie waists, and there is ample evidence that this kind of waist can still more than hold its own. Waists, with the exception of very cheap lines, have been big sellers. Owing to the unprecedented demand, quite a number of new firms have started manufacturing. Their experience, however, has been that while there was no difficulty in getting orders, it was quite otherwise when materials had to be obtained. Deliveries of lawns and other fine white fabrics are away behind, and the same applies to valenciennes laces, particularly Calais vals. Embroideries of the proper kinds are also hard to obtain, and in the meantime there is a bigger call for lingeries waists than ever.

There is a noticeable change in the style of embroideries, and in the manner in which trimmings are applied. Embroideries, on all but the cheaper lines, are worked directly into the lawn or linen, closely imitating hand work.

Laces are used in combination, and Irish and Venise laces and the new fine Clunys are freely used. Waists and jumpers made from all-over embroidery will be included in the late Summer novelties, and yoke effects made with introductions of fillet are promised later.

All-over blouses will be seen later, not only of all-over embroidery but of lace. Fillet all-over, with Venise figures, is another new effect that will be used later for waists.

The big majority of waists, in fact all but the cheaper lines, button down the back, though the tailored and tucked models, of course, close in front. Sleeves are still ¾ length and fitted to the arm at the bottom by a much trimmed and broad cuff effect. Jumper, pinafore and guimpe styles all promise to continue popular in the coming season.

Crepe de chine waists, and waists of chiffon over fancy linings, are shown for the Easter trade. Plain chiffon taffeta in soft finish, in both black and colors, is selling. The sleeves in these silk waists are full and drooping and finished at the elbow with frills and gathers. Plaid silks are again showing for the early trade.

Whitewear

Deliveries Made in Sections—Sales Successful Where Held.

Whitewear deliveries on the whole can hardly be termed satisfactory, in fact the complaint is that goods in many cases are coming to hand very slowly and in sections. The manufacturer in his turn is hampered by the slow delivery of both materials and trimmings. There is something like a famine in some kinds of laces. This latter feature is not, however, without a compensating effect, as it has turned the attention of designers to the using of other laces, and the result has been in the highest degree satisfactory, as it has given a measure of novelty to the whitewear shown at the January sales that has seldom appeared before. Irish, fine Cluny, and torchon are the laces most used.

Hitherto imported lingerie has been hand embroidered, but as an instance of how the demand for better goods is growing may be cited the display made by the Toronto firms of a line of whitewear trimmed with Brussels lace. This was in sets and in single garments and was lavishly trimmed with the costly fabric.

Corsets

Fashion Still Says the High Bust—Supporters and the Cheap Lines.

Advance orders are so big in corset lines that it will be all the manufacturers can do to take care of deliveries. Not only are the new models selling, but there is a good call for many of the best of the older lines. There is still some little hesitation over the high bust models, but as fashion is pushing them strongly they are bound to come into general use, and slowly but surely the trade is taking to them. The latest development in imported lines is the corset with the brassiere attached, and brassieres are becoming a regular line amongst corset accessories.

Another development due to the increased vogue of the Empire-Princesse effects is the decided call for corsets that show the long hip and back.

The ideal corset of the moment must give a firm line from throat to waist and must present a smooth surface below the waist, with the hips held well back to make the figure appear more slender.

There has been quite a little controversy of late as to the advisability of placing corset supporters upon the cheaper lines. As every intelligent buyer knows, this can only be done by cheapening the corset itself in some fashion when it is made to sell at a fixed popular price, and the point of the argument is: is it wise to so weaken the wearing powers of the corset for the sake of having supporters attached? The supporters themselves cannot of necessity be of the best materials, and the big sale of separate supporters shows that their life is not a long one. The sensible view seems to be that a better corset without the supporters would be a more saleable proposition than an inferior corset with poor supporters added.

The Value of Good Style

How to Keep Posted—Style and Quality Must Go Hand in Hand.

The value of style in this department cannot be overemphasized, for you positively cannot afford to have garments on show that are not up-to-date. Style and value must go hand in hand, in a successful department, and the man who can give the best of both is going to do the trade in his community. To do this requires not only careful buying but much study. Fashion news must be carefully noted, and every possible avenue by which news of this description can come should be made use of. The traveling representatives of the manufacturers can always give you valuable information along these lines. They know which styles are taking with the trade and which are not—for though we follow in Canada the broad trend of fashion in the States, it often happens that there are perceptible differences noticeable on this side of the line, and much information can be gained by hearing the views and ideas of the travelers of different houses. No buyer who is wise ever—if possible to do otherwise—turns a traveler away without examining his line of goods. The buyer may have his favorite houses, which, he knows by long experience, make the garments that please his customers, but particularly in a season like the present when styles are so varied, and when a freer exercise of individual taste is the rule, to keep properly posted he must see as many lines as possible. This is a course that will pay in more ways than one. In the first place it will give the buyer a wide knowledge of what is on the market, and help him to judge more accurately of the trend of fashion, and, moreover, he is safe to come across lines of garments that are just what he wants to inject the necessary "go" into his department, for he may be sure that no one firm, however well equipped, ever made all the good things of the season.

Style then is the first point a judicious buyer looks to. Style certainly comes first, but there must also be a fair amount of quality attached. A good cloth that is out of date, and made up in an out-of-date style will never sell, a poor material smartly and stylishly made has a better chance, but will do your department little good, and perhaps, positive harm if he does sell. A garment that shows both style gnd quality will not only be a quick seller but a reputation builder, not only for the department but for the whole store.

Spring Underskirt Novelties

Plaid and Stripe Pipings for Trimmings—Plaid Gingham Petticoats.

Though the lingerie petticoat is in such big demand, the taffeta petticoat is a big seller. Silk underskirts are much more generally worn than a few years ago, and every store of any pretensions carries a stock of them. Though the popular-priced lines are more prominently featured there is an increasing trade done in the higher priced, but more reliable goods.

The novelty this season is the use of fancy plaids and stripes as trimmings in the form of pipings and narrow

Through the FIRE

Prompt and careful service is yours on call.

which completely destroyed our old factory, we have emerged triumphant over all delays and difficulties, and with increased factory facilities are in a position to deliver all orders promptly.

EVERYTHING IS NEW

New factory, new machinery, new goods, new styles. We are in a better position than ever to fill your waist needs.

For pointers on Spring Waists arrange to see our samples.

The New York Silk Waist Mfg. Co., Limited

AT OUR NEW AND ENLARGED LOCATION

178 Montcalm Street, Cor. St. Catherine Street, MONTREAL

Inside Corset Facts

¶ Now, here is a very simple proposition.

¶ P. C. Corsets have been proved better value in a variety of ways than a buyer can find elsewhere.

¶ If you know this by experience, well and good.

¶ If you don't know it, write us for the proof—so simple, so clear, and so conclusive, you will be readily convinced.

¶ We know that to be satisfied is dangerous; and we've grown. When you're successful is the time to shove for more success—give better service—and we're shoving.

There's a plenteous style assortment in P. C. Corsets, and every shape is guaranteed good value.

It will pay you to sell P. C. Corsets.

The Parisian Corset Mfg. Co., Limited, Quebec

For the convenience of Western Ontario merchants, a full stock is carried at Brampton, Ontario, F. W. GILLIES, Manager bands, and even in some cases in narrow pleatings. This is a decidedly novel treatment, and one that is both effective and attractive.

In cotton lines, besides the usual popular priced lines, petticoats of checked ginghams are a leading novelty. Stripes are also shown and petticoats in plain blue, pink and grey gingham. These have the added merit of washing and laundering well.

PRESIDENT NAZARETH WAIST CO. DEAD.

Max William Schneebeli, president of the Nazareth Waist Co., Nazareth, Pa., died in the General Memorial Hospital, New York, of cancer. Up to the time of his being attacked by the malignant disease, Mr. Schneebeli had enjoyed splendid health and had had no premonition of ill until the cancer developed during last summer. He went to the hospital for treatment on August 31st, and remained there until his death.

That Mr. Schneebeli was a remarkable man is proved by the early age at which he had won substantial success, and the untimeliness of his taking off is one among a number of features that add to the sorrow occasioned by his demise. Had he lived until next May Mr. Schneebeli would have been forty-two years of age.

MAX WILLIAM SCHNEEBELI,
President Nazareth Waist Company.

He was born at Nazareth, Pa., and at the age thirteen went to work as a clerk in a general store in that city. From there he went to Gnadenhutten, O., and from there to Akron, O., continuing in the retail business. When seventeen years of age he went on the road for Louis Kraemer & Co., manufacturers of cassimeres, Reading, Pa. Five years afterward, what is now the Nazareth Waist Co. was formed to manufacture hosiery, and Mr. Schneebeli sold its products on the road as a side line. Shortly afterwards the manufacture of waists was taken up, Mr. Schneebeli being appointed general sales agent and advertising manager. To his energy and intelligence is attributable in very large degree the growth of the company's business, which within twenty years has attained striking proportions. He not only directed its selling policy and its extensive advertising

SPRING 1907

THE AMERICAN SILK WAIST TRADE MARK MONTREAL

WAISTS SUITS

Late styles from the most authoritative European and American sources will be shown by our travellers shortly. It will be to our mutual interest for you to look at our lines.

THE AMERICAN SILK WAIST CO.
30 ST. GEORGE STREET, MONTREAL

LOOKING FORWARD

Now let us help you to make your

Spring Raincoat Trade
A SUCCESS.

Our equipment and organization are practically perfect, making our line superior.

Materials comprise strong range of

Scotch Effects in Green and Brown Mixtures

Largest collection of cloths in the trade.

Our salesmen are now showing the largest and finest line, we think, in the market.

National Rubber Co., Montreal
Canada's Largest Exclusive Raincoat House.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

We exceedingly regret that owing to the complete destruction of our premises by fire, it was an absolute impossibility for us to either deliver the Spring orders we had already booked, or to accept further orders for such delivery.

We take this opportunity of advising our friends that we have secured new premises in the Shorey Building, and as soon as we can get matters into satisfactory shape, we will commence the making of our Fall Styles, which are designed exclusively by our Mr. Felsen.

We confidently expect to place the collection of samples before you in ample time, and trust that the mutual pleasant relationship heretofore existing will continue in the future.

THE BOAS-FELSEN CO.,

Manufacturers of Ladies' Cloaks, Suits and Skirts,
Shorey Building, 314 Notre Dame Street, West, Montreal

Don't Waste Time

when you can get waists that are good in every respect. Our styles are this season better than ever, fit and finish in comparison.

Just see our Shirt Waist Suits and Lingerie Waists. They are very pleasing at sight. If they please you, so they will your customers.

Don't fail to look them through when our salesman calls on you, or call to see us when in town.

The Reliable Waist
None Better Made

We have the goods you are looking for, for next season.

Since the fire in our premises we are equipped and running in full swing, with more space and new machinery. Can give good delivery.

We want your business and will endeavor to give you satisfaction.

We give prompt attention to mail orders.

I. MISHKIN & CO., MONTREAL
Same Address: 423 St. James Street.

campaign, but originated several improvements in the waist itself. Mr. Schneebeli was elected president of the Nazareth Waist Co. on August 11, 1904, so that when only forty years of age he was at the head of this large and successful concern.

Mr. Schneebeli not only possessed unusual business abilities, but his personality was such as to quickly commend him to all with whom he came in contact. Warm hearted, cheerful, generous and sincere, he made a host of friends, both in his business and his social life. In addition to his widow and one son, he leaves three brothers, one of whom, G. A. Schneebeli, is treasurer of the Nazareth Waist Co.

S. T. GREENLEESE & SONS.

A Dominion charter has been granted "S. T. Greenleese & Sons, Limited," Montreal, with a capital stock of $50,000, divided into hundred dollar shares. The incorporators were: S. T. Greenleese, merchant; W. E. Greenleese, merchant; H. S. Greenleese, merchant; E. S. C. Desbarats, advertising agent; Hercule Lapointe, accountant, and Thomas M. Tansey, advocate, all of Montreal. The object of the company is "to carry on generally the business of manufacturing, importing, buying, selling, exchanging and repairing all descriptions of furs, hats, caps, clothing, and garments and goods of like character, and to manufacture and deal in everything connected with the business of a like character or which may conveniently be carried on in connection with such business; to purchase, take over and carry on as a going concern the business now carried on at Montreal by S. T. Greenleese, W. E. Greenleese, and H. T. Greenleese, under the name of S. T Greenleese & Sons.

MONTREAL WATERPROOF CLOTHING CO., LTD.

A Dominion charter has been granted The Montreal Waterproof Clothing Co., Limited, with a capital of $400,000, divided into $100 shares, and with headquarters at Montreal. The incorporators are: William J. Henderson, accountant; Alex. C. Calder, bookkeeper; Joseph Jenkins, student; Edward F. Casey, bookkeeper, and Isidore Greenberg, clerk, all of Montreal. The object of the company is "to manufacture and sell all kinds of waterproof and rainproof garments; to manufacture and sell all kinds of clothing, and generally to act as manufacturers and general merchants in all kinds of waterproof and rainproof garments and clothing generally; to acquire and take over as a going concern the business of The Montreal Waterproof Clothing Company.

THE VAN ALLEN COMPANY.

A Dominion charter has been granted the Van Allen Company, Limited, Hamilton, with a capital of $500,000, divided in $100 shares. The incorporators were George Kerr, barrister; Joseph Montgomery, barrister; James G. Strong, accountant; George F. Thompson, collector; and William R. Williams, all of Toronto. The object of the company is "to carry on the business of manufacturers of and dealers in all kinds of knitted goods, shirts, collars, cuffs, blouses, waists, clothing, neckwear, underwear, and all other articles of wearing apparel and other linen, silk, cotton and woolen goods and fabrics of all kinds; to acquire, and take over as a going concern, the undertaking and all the assets and liabilities of E. Van Allen & Co., Limited."

GRIFFIN BRAND

Coats,
Costumes
and Skirts

Have a striking individuality about them that catches the eye and makes the looker a buyer.

We're showing a number of spring leaders at popular prices—made right, priced right.

Let's hear from you—you'll get the goods when wanted.

THE EMPIRE MFG. CO.

646 Craig St. West,
MONTREAL

OUR LONDON LETTER

Marking of Piece Goods — Prevention of Corruption Act — Reports from Bradford and the Other Markets.

The retail trade, led by the Drapers' Chamber, have been for some time agitating for the adoption, by manufacturers and wholesale, of some system of blocking and marking piece goods. Many suggestions have been made, but so far as can be seen, they are yet a long way from the object of their desire. The demand for the innovation is growing daily, as it would be an immense convenience to the retail trade. As yet, not much impression has been made upon the wholesale section. The most feasible suggestion is that small gummed tickets be placed every five yards, and be marked 5, 10, 15, and so on.

BRADFORD.

Although there had been some very sharp advances, in both cross-bred, and merino wools, previous to the November series of sales, Bradford prices for yarns and combed wools, were away below values set at the London sales. There are no signs, however, of any weakening of the staple; indeed there is every reason to expect that values will go still higher, as there can be no doubt that in late years the demand for woollen textiles has completely outstripped the production of wool. In consequence, the probabilities are that a new basis of prices will have to be adopted, as there is no prospect of any material reduction taking place for years to come.

There is considerable activity in mohair, and in some cases advanced prices have to be paid. Russia is again buying mohair yarns for making goods of the astrachan class, and there are more orders for weft yarns for dress goods and cloakings for the Continent. There is a good demand for high-class mohair fabrics for the home trade and for South Africa, Australia, some of the colonies, and the United States.

The autumn dress goods trade is about over, and there is every reason to believe that the turnover is quite up to the average. Tweeds, etc., and the new makes of Bradford amazons, are selling well for spring and makers of mohair fabrics are well employed.

The news that the dispute between the Bradford Dyers Association and its operatives has been amicably settled is received with great satisfaction here, a satisfaction that I am sure my Canadian reaaders will share. The arrangement is interesting, and marks an epoch in the settlement of disputes between capital and labor. Every operative dyer gets a wage advance of 10 per cent., and improvements are to be made in dye-house conditions. Most comment is caused by the clause, binding the company to compensate any man displaced from any cause, and to pay him an amount equal to, and in addition to, what his "out-of-work benefit society" will allow. It is also conceded, that the men remaining have a right to increased wages, when contributing to an increased output, or where subjected to a greater physical strain. Well may one of our leading papers, when commenting upon this agreement, say, that it marks an era in the settlement of trade disputes.

MANCHESTER.

Though the home trade has not quite come up to expectations it has been exceedingly good, and orders for the Spring are coming in much more freely than last year. Buying for export is healthy, though in some markets the high prices tend to restrict demand. The colonial market is active, Canada being a specially big buyer, as the railway extensions in the west have afforded a wider field, and the movements of Montreal and Toronto houses in this quarter are being carefully watched by British shippers.

Spinners may be said to be losing ground, as their margin of profit is scarcely so large as it was a month ago. They have plenty of work for the present, but there is an absence of new orders that is bound to tell. Egyptian yarns are in great demand, and the spinners of these yarns are in a strong position. The calico printers report a prosperous year, as business, particularly in the closing months, has been almost more than they could handle.

The latest official cotton crop estimate for 1906 is 12,546,000 bales, but as this is always placed too low, a goodly addition may be made to it, so that it would seem that plenty of the raw material is assured for the coming season. Complaints, however, are made as to its quality.

BELFAST AND NORTH OF IRELAND.

The linen market continues to show increasing strength and there is a steady upward tendency all round. Flax is selling freely, and values are firm, with some grades a little higher. Spinners are over-sold, and as manufacturers are receiving substantial orders, they are rapidly becoming in the same condition.

Foreign spinners are fully engaged for their own trade, and as no relief can come from them, it is quite possible that before long want of yarn may be responsible for some stoppages.

The export trade is extremely good, and some markets, notably the United States, are pressing for deliveries. A fair business is being done with South America, Canada and Australia are large buyers, and continental business is active.

NOTTINGHAM.

The Nottingham lace trade may be said to be on the crest of the wave now, as all factories that are equipped for making the class of laces fashion is demanding are crowded with orders. Valenciennes, Torchons, Maltese, and Clunys are the laces asked for, and large orders are arriving for the American market; indeed the trouble with shippers is not to get orders but to fill them.

The manufacturers themselves are also up against the same trouble, as in many cases they have to wait for yarns, and machines are often idle from this cause, the truth being that many lace makers were unprepared for the present cotton yarn conditions, and neglected to place orders of any size when prices were low and deliveries could be arranged. Consequently they are caught now that yarns cannot be had for immediate delivery.

From advices received here, lace makers in Calais and Caudery are booked full, the firms making Calais goods being particularly busy. Prices are firm and advances are talked of.

Though times are hardly so good with the hosiery trade as with the lace makers, a good business is being done. Woollen and cashmere goods are having a good sale, but cotton goods are suffering from keen competition and yarn delivery troubles.

The Canadian Millinery Review

MILLINERY OPENING

MONDAY, March 4, and following days

The Spring Season's Pattern Hats from Paris, London, and New York

All the latest Millinery Novelties

Our preparations have been made on a larger scale than ever before.

INSPECTION IS INVITED

GEO. D. HARPER & CO. 227 Notre Dame Street West, Montreal

Millinery Prospects for Spring

Very Big Season Ahead—Only Trouble Scarcity of Goods in Desirable Lines.

The really splendid Fall that the trade experienced has filled buyers with enthusiasm over the prospects for the coming Spring season. This fact, coupled with the desire to be on the safe side of the market, and to have the wanted goods in stock when called for, has resulted in a big advance trade, but big as it has been there are many novelty lines which, as soon as the season opens up, milliners will wish that they had placed larger orders for.

Ciel Olive Milan Straw Sailor, Blue Wing, Etc. Mixed Flowers as Under-Brim Trimming.

In nearly every line of material that a milliner uses the situation is the same and it is not just the fact that the supply is scarce that is making trouble, but also the rapid advance of prices. In many lines the situation is such that if an importing house wishes to repeat an order, even at the interval of a day or so, it is found that prices have in that short period of time gone materially against the buyer. This is a serious situation, as it means that many lines are held, or will soon be held, at prices that will be prohibitive to the Canadian trade. To protect his trade the retail buyer must be prepared to anticipate, and to anticipate liberally. He runs no risk by so doing, as the buying public are in a better position than ever to relieve him of his stock. Indeed it is the large early buyer who is going to be in the happy position of not only having the goods, but of having them at the right price this year.

This advice applies to many lines of straws, particularly to chips and Milans, to velvets and to velvet ribbons, to ribbons and malines, to many silk fabrics, and also especially to coque plumes, wings and quills

The Newest Things for Spring

The Latest Ideas in Shapes, Materials and Trimmings.

The business that has been done up to date, though large, has all been in what are termed staple lines, that is, the shapes sold are known to be right because they have been successful in the later part of the Winter. The novelties are now beginning to come forward, and it is now possible to gain some ideas as to how the season will go, as these are the models that shadow forth the trend of the mode. For the early trade at least moderate sized shapes are leading, and not only are they moderate in size, but there is a marked absence of that eccentricity of outline that has marked the few past seasons. The pressed or block hat is the leader, and at least 75 per cent. of the season's trade promises to be done on it if—and this is an important "if"—the supply holds out. The braids selling are light weight peroxaline and hair braids, etc.

Mushroom Shape in Burnt Straw. Trimmed Golden Brown Satin Ribbon, Jack Roses, and White and Yellow Daisies.

Chip, perhaps because it dyes so beautifully, is the best selling of all straws, but the way in which it is selling is putting the price up, and chips promise to be dear. Milans are extremely good and so are crins, Panama

"The House Famed for Millinery"

1907	Display Day, Toronto :: :: March 4 Stock Complete :: :: February 15

The

D. McCall Company

Limited

Head Office :

Toronto, = Can.

Winnipeg Quebec Ottawa

"Debenhams for Novelties"

Opening of the Spring Millinery Season

Opening

Monday, March 4

and following days.

We shall show an exclusive and varied assortment of Original Pattern Hats

(STRICTLY IMPORTED)

also

Latest Novelties in Millinery Trimmings from Paris, London and New York.

DEBENHAMS (CANADA) Limited

18 St. Helen Street, MONTREAL

DEBENHAM & CO. London (West) London (City) Paris, Brussels, New York, Boston, Melbourne, Sydney, Cape Town. Johannesburg.

mas and Javas, etc. There are, however, hints that fancy straws will make their appearance later. Hoods and plateaux are much in evidence and promise to repeat their former favor, as they are essentially milliner's hats, and she can get exclusive results from them that are difficult to duplicate.

Novelty Shape in Rose Chip. Trimmed Golden Brown Velvet Ribbon and Shaded Rose and Brown Quills.

The early season promises to be a great color season, but there is really no predominating shade. The burnt shades, running from champagne or twine, or cordon as the latter is sometimes called, right into golden brown, are in high favor. Nor is this to be wondered at, as it combines so well with almost any color. Yellow has been a leading color in Paris for more than a year, and has been much favored in New York this Winter. This means that to some extent it will be taken up by the trade, but just how the popular trade will take to yellow is at present uncertain. Tuscan, however, will be good, particularly later in the season.

The jack shades, from the palest pink up to the darkest shade, are strong favorites and another shade much favored is the new delft blue. Ciel will be much in evidence and there is a soft yellow-olive or moss green that is much seen. Amethyst is the shade of violet that promises best, but the pinkish mauves will again be seen.

Little is said about black at present, but as far as may be gathered the black hat may form a feature of the better trade. White hats are decidedly good now, and will assuredly have a big vogue when Summer selling begins. Tuscan is also to be a strong color.

SHAPES.

Though Empire and Directoire types prevail, there will be a much greater variety in shapes than is usually seen. Drooping brims are in high favor, and flops in chip, Milan, crin, Leghorn, Javas, etc., will be much used. There is a tendency towards employing the unfinished straw. The mushroom hat, that appeared to be so extreme last season, has gradually worked its way into a foremost position, and now appears to be one of the leading shapes, if it is not really the leader. There is an attempt to give vogue to blue poke effects, and another shape that promises well is the airship or Santos Dumont, made from a cleverly manipulated hood.

The rose is queen of the season, and it may be laid down almost as a rule that where any flowers at all are used roses appear. It is going to be a big, big flower season—the hats are banked with them. Jack roses are in immense favor, and the importing houses have bought them in very large quantities. Large as is the provision made, the prediction goes forth that there is not enough to last out, and that when the season gets well under way Jack roses will be just as scarce as they have been this year. Lilacs in all shades, but particularly in natural colorings, white and purple, promise to be a big feature and all flowers of the mauve or amethyst order are to be freely used. It is not meant that a hat will be wholly mauve, but that these flowers will be used for mixing in with other colors. A Paris hat shown to The Review was of the new blue, and around the crown was a heavy wreath of tiny pink roses, small pansies, forget-me-nots, clover and green grasses. This

BEATRICE—French Crown, Very Fine Milan Sailor. Velvet Band Studded with Gold Buttons. Large Quill and Bow. White only.
Shown by The D. McCall Company.

No. 2487—Raised Black Sailor. Made of Straw Braid and Maline Net in Combination. Trimmed with folds of Maline, Forming Large Rossette at Side, in Centre of which rests Bunch of Small Roses.
Shown by The D. McCall Company.

gives a good idea of the manner in which flowers will be used. All kinds of grasses are used, and also small rose foliage. Though there are large flower effects seen, there seems to be a leaning towards the medium and small. There will be a deal of combining, not only of many shades, but of different flowers.

FEATHERS AND WINGS.

For the better trade ostrich will be decidedly in demand. The colors seen this season are such as show up the beauty of a feather to splendid advantage, serving to make them fashionable, the shaded effects being particularly beautiful.

Plume effects, with coque in particular, are decidedly good. Whole hats will be made of coque feathers, but prices are soaring and promise before long to be prohibitive. There will be a very big sale for wings, and quills and feathers will be used in combination with flowers upon dress hats.

MALINES AND RIBBONS.

It is only the severely tailored street hats that are without a softening touch of maline, and almost all under-brim trimmings are of this airy material. Later on crown and brim effects, and even whole hats, will be formed of maline, and there is a large meshed silk net that will also be used for this purpose. Chenille spotted gauzes, chiffons, nets, etc., are used for mob crowns, over silk, and also for long scarfs for draping around some of the shapes of the sailor order.

There is an immense array of good things in ribbons, the very extensiveness of the range suggesting their importance this season. For the early Spring millinery plaids—all the clan plaids and fancies in strong, rich colorings—will be used. These will have as a rival the striped effects, the Roman stripes and bayaderes, in groups of handsome colorings. These will be freely used with wings and quills upon fetching little hats for the Easter trade. Beautiful Dresdens in all the new colorings, and also in black and white, are among the high novelties. Another novelty is the quadrille, or cross-barred effect having a barred stripe of satin on a taffeta

No. 25.—Broad Brim Sailor, Hand-made. Dip at Side of Front. Tam Crown of Fancy Braid, Trimmed with Band of Ribbon and Bow. Bandeau Arranged with Fancy Rosette of Straw and Ribbon.
Shown by The D. McCall Company.

ground. A new ribbon that milliners are taking into favor is a kind of heavy gauze with a brilliant finish. Plain ribbons are used in shaded effects, that is, the trimming will be formed of three or more shades of the one color.

Ribbon velvets promise to be more widely used than for many years past, and the lighter and more airy the taken to secure a person's patronage should be to sell him a good article at a fair price.

The First Step

Here are some good lines at fair prices. They ought to help you in your "Millinery Opening."

Messaline Silks - -	retail at	75c. and $1.00
Chiffon Taffetas - -	" "	$1.00
Chiffons - - - - - -	" "	25 to 75 cents
Louisine Silks - -	" "	75c. and $1.00
Colored Satins - -	" "	50c. and 75c.
Silk Velvets - - -	" "	75c. and $1.00

The Largest stock of Ribbons in the trade.

If our Traveller doesn't call, write a letter describing what you are in need of and we'll attend to it by return.

The W. R. Brock Company (Limited)

Montreal, Que.

rest of the trimmings are the more favored is the balancing trimming of velvet ribbon. Milliners should be early in the field to secure a good assortment of colors and widths, for velvet ribbons can be placed among the decidedly scarce goods this season.

ORNAMENTS.

Though a few large buckles will be used, pins will form the chief feature of this department. Ball effects will have the call, and come in big variety. Handsome designs are shown in porcelain, amber, pearl, shell and in shaded and corded metal effects.

GEORGINA—New Telescope Crown Sailor. Neatly Trimmed with Folds of Chiffon and Large Quill at Side. Colors—Black, White, Navy, Pearl.
Shown by The D. McCall Company.

Careful Stock-keeping Pays

Keep Untrimmed Shapes and Trimmings in a Separate Department.

Millinery trimmings are perishable goods, particularly plumes, flowers, feathers, ornaments, etc., and soon lose their freshness and saleability if exposed to dust and frequent handling. The loss from this cause must, in some stores, be very considerable. It forms a leak that must influence profits at the end of the season. Though some of this loss may be set down to careless stock-keeping, you, Mr. Merchant, cannot blame your help if you neglect to provide them with the necessary fixtures. Some merchants are inclined to look upon fixtures as so much expense, and give little thought to the other side of the matter. These goods must be on view, and if for lack of cases they have to be shown in boxes on counter or table you may be certain that a percentage of profit will have to be sacrificed each season for the marking down of soiled goods.

The best and most attractive means that you can take to show your stock is to use glass cases, and the best arrangement is as a counter or circle, according to the size of your showroom. Shown in this manner your goods are always in full view, and as arrangement is possible they appear at their best. Customers can see them, but cannot touch, and dust is excluded also. With a few fancy baskets filled with the flowers you can make the department extra attractive.

There is a growing tendency to separate the trimmings and untrimmed hats, from the trimmed goods, some stores going so far as to carry them in a separate department. This, we believe, is a feature that will grow and should be encouraged. Many milliners tacitly, if not actively, discourage the sale of trimmings that are not to go upon hats that are trimmed in their own workroom. This, in view of the importance of clean stocks at the end of the season, is hardly good policy. Sell as many trimmings as you can, seems to be the better way.

The Lingerie Hat

This Hat is to be a Big Feature of the Summer Trade—Quills and Wings Will Still Rule.

That the lingerie hat will be a great success, and that it will be shown in a wide range for the Summer trade is certain. These hats are usually of some embroidered fabric, often in the better grades of specially embroidered linen, of handsome flouncing embroidery, etc. This year the line promises to take in many lace hats, notably those of Irish crochet, princess and Bruges lace.

The trimmings will depend largely upon the nature of the hat, and, broadly speaking, feathers will be more popular than flowers. Quills and wings will, with ribbon, trim the more severe types, while ostrich and plumes will be used on the more dressy hats, both of embroidery and lace. Roses will be the chief flower, but daisies and field flowers will also be freely used.

Latest Note from Paris

The Hat Posed at a New Angle—The Dragging Effect—A Few Parisian Examples.

Just what significance may be attached to the latest millinery freak in Paris the future alone can tell, but a few of the fashion leaders have appeared there in hats that are at total variance with the present millinery vogue. We have only just got over the fashion of tilting the hat down over the face and raising it high at the back, and are getting used to the presence of a more moderate tilt either to the side or front, when now, the news comes that these leaders of fashion are wearing their hats in a totally different way. The hats themselves are a form of long, narrow turban, and are tilted at an extreme angle at the back of the head, and have all the appearance of falling off backward. One hat seen was of dark grey velvet, and stretching far out at the back was a bunch of grey ostrich feathers. The hat was set in the midst of the fluffed-out front hair, and brought the silhouette of the face out into great prominence.

What the bearing of this radical departure is to be—whether it is just a freak or an indication as to the direction of coming changes—only the future can tell ; but the fact that hats so noticeable and so radically different from the accepted vogue are worn is certainly worth notice. Even the bell-shaped hats so much worn, have the trimmings massed at the back, giving this dragging effect.

Five Paris Models

A Short Description of Five Paris Hats Which Will Interest Readers.

In the imported Paris models there are many large hats shown of a decidedly picturesque outline, and that droop becomingly and shade the face. Some extremely attractive models, a description of which will, we are sure, be of interest to our readers, were within the past week shown to The Review.

A Marie Crozet model was of natural leghorn, A long, fluffy plume in white extended around the crown and swept over the brim at the back. Delicate, pale, yellow roses and buds, studded with jewels and gold thread, which glisten and gleam with every movement, trim the crown on the right side, and extending across the top of the crown, intermingle with the plumes.

A dainty Georgette model was of white Irish crochet, wide of brim and low of crown. White tulle and a handsome green and golden bird of paradise formed the trimming, the bandeaux being draped with full tulle rosettes.

A very smart hat, a Suzanne Talbot model, was of Copenhagen blue and lynx brown. The wide'brimmed, low, round-crowned hat was of a fine flax weave in dark lynx brown. Short, wide ostrich plumes in two tones of the blue started from the velvet draping that encircled the crown and curled over the brim at the back of the hat. The soft folds of brown velvet that draped the crown were drawn through a big bronze buckle in front.

Another of the models, also of brown, was of fine Milan straw, and though the brim was wide and drooping, the crown was decidedly high. It was draped with folds of soft satin a little darker than the straw, drawn and held by a bronze buckle in front, and there were two dark plumes posed on the right side.

A Virot model was a large mushroom shape also of Irish crochet lace. The trimming was an immense white ostrich plume, the flue of which covered both brim and crown, and in front was posed a large green bird. The under-brim was faced with olive-green velvet, and maline of the same shade draped the bandeaux.

Among the Millinery Houses

The D. McCall Company have furnished us with the subjoined paragraphs regarding styles, etc., for the Spring and Summer season, 1907.

MILLINERY INFORMATION.

Shaped hats and flops in chip, Milan and crinolines, also in Javas and Leghorns, will, without doubt, be the big feature of the season, replacing almost entirely the heavy makes in straws as formerly used. There will be a much greater variety in styles than for some seasons. In Paris salons you will see every known shape from the almost-flat mushroom, laden with flowers, to the high square crown called "Revolution," a dashing picture hat trimmed with chene ribbon, large square steel buckle in front, and two handsome plumes. Every hat will have its due portion of tulle ; many will be made and trimmed with tulle, flowers and ribbons. Hat trimmings for the coming season may be summed up as follows : Tulles, flowers, ribbons, chiffons, with buckles and large ball pins. In the latter many handsome designs are shown in porcelain, tortoise shell, amber and pearl, and there is little doubt that these ball pins will have an immense sale.

Flops of all makes, particularly in chip and crinoline, should have a large sale, as they lend themselves best of all to the making up of the many unnameable shapes that are shown.

The season will undoubtedly be one of lightness, everything of a heavy nature being barred, with perhaps the exception of velvet ribbons, which have been introduced with good effect by many leading Parisian modistes, and for which big sale is predicted.

Roses, from the small banksia to the large American beauty rose, are leaders, whole branches of the latter being used, making a very striking and effective trimming. Lilacs and hyacinths promise unusually good sale.

The later novelties in grasses and field flowers are well thought of, and will doubtless command a good share of attention.

Ostrich plumes, in white, colors and black, coque plumes, paradise and wings will be used largely.

Ribbons, plain and shot, in failletine, satin liberty, taffetas and fancies and chenes, Roman stripes and plaids are the best property. Velvet and satin in black and colors are good.

Tule, the big thing of the season, already has had enormous sale.

The tendency is for light pastel effects and these are largely covered in the white shot effects already mentioned. Plain colors are cream, champagne, ciel, V. rose, pearl, reseda, navy, tabac. New tones are houblon (a pale yellow green) and miel (old gold tones) are also in good demand.

Pyroxalines for making up purposes will be largely used.

In information given The Review some three or four months ago we predicted a great demand in all lines, and consequent scarcity and advance in price. With regard to this, we wish to say, and with emphasis on every word, that the merchant or milliner who placed early and ample orders this season is to be congratulated, for never before has there been known such steady advances in every class of goods. Prices have advanced 20 per cent. to 30 per cent. during the past three months.

The D. McCall Company further add that they have made unusually good provision in all lines for the coming season.

GEO. D. HARPER & CO.

The indications are that hats will be large to medium and mostly of a soft, pliant nature. The flop, mushroom and hood shapes will be exceedingly atrong and the firm is prepared to meet a big demand for them. While no leader can yet be said to have been chosen, it is thought that chip, Milan and Leghorn effects, with braid, will, in all probability, be the most popular lines during the Spring season. The soft nature of the hats allows all possible scope for shaping them into almost any conceivable fashion, and this would indicate a greater variety than ever before.

The trimmings this year are plain, but effective. Roses of all descriptions will occupy a prominent position as one of the features of the season. Lilacs and mignonette, with a certain amount of fruit, such as grapes and cherries, will be used extensively. There is a decided feeling for tulle for the early Spring trade, but for the later trade the old-time chiffon will be strong. The season will be what milliners call a "plain" one. Ornaments will figure but little in the make-up of the hats. The shapes last year turned upward; this year they turn down. This gives sufficient novelty to make trade brisk. Ribbons will be extra strong, and the firm have covered themselves with a good stock and are prepared to meet the season's demand, which, it is predicted, will be unusually heavy.

MESSRS. VYSE, SONS & CO., LONDON.

A visit to the warehouse of Messrs. Vyse, Sons & Co., Wood St., London. England. is interesting at any time, but more especially so when the various departments have their wealth of Spring attractions so lavishly displayed as at present.

On entering the warehouse, one first passes through the flower department, the aisles of which at present are banked with roses. both large and small, in all the new fancy shades. The manager of this department has stocked well with grasses intermixed with wild flowers. which are being used largely for Spring and will undoubtedly be a good line throughout the Summer. In this department one notices the large-headed hat pins, the demand for which is almost a "rage" at present. In the feather department, one sees an entirely new departure. namely, large Cassowary plumes. These flaunting elegancies are very softly finished and run through many shades. These plumes are to be found in the millinery room used with very "distingue" effect. The shapes this season continue for the most part of medium size. and shot straws and ribbons are much used. Wings and flowers appear to vie with one another for the supreme position, the special favorites amongst the latter being roses in both natural and fancy shades. As for feathers Cassowary quills and ospreys are very right, and amongst the newest colors are shot blue and green in light shades v. rose and tabac.

The straw department is always bristling with novelties, daily supplies being received from Messrs. Vyse's Paris house. 160 Rue Montmartre. Here fine chips, bright silk, bright rough straws and fine pedals are showing in hats, while there is evident preparation being made for the reappearance of leghorn and colored leghorn and lace hats at a very early date. It is said these will certainly be in strong demand later on. Smart jaunty sailors are much in evidence, variations of the mushroom shape, the Sans Souci (another edition of the Gamin shape) and hats with Dolly Varden front trimmed are types much shown. Owing to the retirement of the bandeau, there is less tilt than last season. One sees at a glance that it is going to be a splendid season for colors, black hats being not wanted.

The ribbon department seems very proud of itself, the displays being mostly of plain taffetas, mousseline and failletine, also shot effects in the same makes, which are being used very largely on the millinery models. Chine ribbons are good stock and new styles in stripes are also good for the ready-to-wear hats. Printed twill scarves are used very effectively for this class of millinery. the demand for which is undobutedly growing. Tulles, chiffons and dotted muslins are still in line. the former especially so.

Infants' and children's millinery is shown in enormous variety by Messrs. Vyse, Sons & Co

DEBENHAMS READY FOR OPENING.

The latest novelties fresh from the fashionable centres of Europe will characterize the opening of Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Montreal. Buyers have been scouring the markets for some time past and have succeeded in securing a complete stock of very attractive millinery, which will sell in the Canadian market on account of it being the careful result of close study of the millinery requirements. No saleable article has been left unpurchased by the firm, and in point of many novelties and being replete with the best the market affords, it has every attraction to offer the trade. Among the latest Parisian creations shown this year are the mushroom variety which have the drooping brim of 4 or 5 inches. short fronts and long backs. The real novelty at present in Paris is the Santos Dumont shape. made of soft crinoline, and can be worked into pretty shapes. The firm has selected a stock which will make a great bid for the high class trade. Another line which is exceedingly attractive for the coming season is the Plateau. A large number of flops, with the balloon tops, chipped plateaux, leghorn plateaux, and crinoline plateaux are being carried in a wide variety with some novel effects in the trimmings, to which these shapes lend themselves auspiciously. The block hat, which will be a forcible factor in the season's lines, will be carried in large varieties both in the chip and leghorn styles.

With so extensive a line of hats, with which in anticipation of a very heavy season the firm has equipped itself and has left no market unexploited, it realizes that without substantial trimmings to be put into these hats they will possess no selling qualities. They have secured the best that money could buy. Small flowers, which will figure strongly as one of the favorite trimming accessories of the season, have been bought in a pleasing selection. Roses, and the small flowers, such as lilies of the valley and lilacs, will be shown in a very wide range. Fancy ribbons will be strong as trimmings this year, and to meet the demand both for quantity and variety, the firm has been successful in obtaining a collection which cannot fail to meet the approval of the trade. The Shantung and shot glaces, which will be used in trimming the Minish styles, are particularly pleasing and have the richness necessary to the well trimmed hat. Shaded ostrich feathers are carried in the leading shades of the year. A large number of coque feathers have been ordered from the best sources and the firm is in a particularly good position to supply these articles to the trade. Foundations have occupied the attention of the firm for some time past and their energies in securing pleasing goods have been successful. Bright Japanese braids, of the narrow sort with the shot effects carried out, will be one of the firm's leading specialties.

Of the colorings which will lead in the fashions of the season the firm has prepared a splendid assortment to show its customers. Vieux rose, vieux blue and vieux vert will be strong this season and will be shown in full lines. Champagne or Tuscan, browns and empire greens running through the pattern trimmings will have a heavy demand, and to meet this the firm has prepared. Grasses and small leaf foliage will also figure strongly.

Buyers of Millinery Goods

WE ARE
SOLE MANUFACTURERS OF THE "ORB"
BRAND
HATS

The "ORB" straw factory at Luton is
The Largest in the World

In Staple and Fancy Lines we show the best of everything at prices that are sure to interest Canadian buyers.

SAMPLES SHIPPED to the retail trade on supplying usual trade references, description and quality of goods open for.

Will find it to their advantage to make our acquaintance and see what we are offering in

Millinery, Flowers, Feathers
Ribbons, Velvets, Ornaments

We specialize in

MEN'S and BOYS' STRAW HATS
BOYS' JACK TARS
and LADIES' PARIS FASHIONS
in Straws, etc.

VYSE, SONS & CO.
LIMITED

76 Wood St., LONDON, ENG.
LUTON, PARIS AND BRUSSELS

MILLINERY OPENING
Spring, 1907

On MONDAY, 4th MARCH

AND FOLLOWING DAYS

Montreal and Winnipeg Openings on same dates

Inspection by the Trade cordially Invited

G. GOULDING & SONS

Montreal: 230 McGill St.
Toronto
Winnipeg: 69 Albert St.

NEW YORK FASHION FACTS

First Glimpses of Spring as Seen by New Yorkers.

The shop windows are the first heralds of Spring. With the streets white with snow, the first of the season by the by, the windows appear doubly attractive with their diaphanous Summer stuffs and hats gay with bloom. The occasion for all this is not so much a desire to rush the seasons, but a necessary display since southern emigration has become au fait for humans as well as the birds of the air and the fish of the sea. This year the exodus was even earlier, why no one knows, for certainly the weather drove no one hence. Consequently it is possible to speak with authority as to what will be the correct thing for Spring, since Spring togs have had to be made ready for the southern tourists, who are now wearing them at Palm Beach, St. Augustine, Ormond and other Winter resorts.

As the tailored suit is always the most important item in the wardrobe of the American woman, it seems natural that a word of what is newest along this line should precede all else. First there is a decided effort noticeable to keep the skirts off the ground, in fact many of the smartest walking suits are instep length. The majority of the skirts are circular, and some are pleated, the styles not being radically different from those which have gone before. It will be a decided relief to most women to know that the comfort of a short skirt is not to be denied us by the stern mandates of fashion. If anything, street suits are shorter in the skirt than previously. The trend is toward the short jacket, also—that is, the jacket from 21 to 23 inches in length, as well as the Etons, which, like the poor, are with us always.

Early Season Braid Hat in Jack Shades.

Mushroom Sailor in Twine Shade. Wreath of Field Daisies. Broad Delft Blue Satin Ribbon Over Crown and Brim of Hat.

The war between the short and long sleeve for supremacy seems to be as yet undecided and as a compromise we have the three-quarter sleeve, which is most unbecoming to the arm, and which does not do away with the necessity of elbow length gloves. Shirtwaists, excepting those of the severe tailored variety, which, by the way, are not shirtwaists but "shirts," will continue to be short-sleeved, the sleeve in all cases finishing below the elbow.

There is a decided tendency toward introducing pastel tints in the newest blouses, many exquisite lingerie waists being made from material in which there is a stripe or check of faintest flowers or a figured design. Notwithstanding these efforts the white waist will undoubtedly more than hold its own.

In dress goods of both wool and cotton, stripes dominate all other patterns, although there are many checks and broken plaids. In cotton and silk mixtures, as well as those of wool and silk, pastel stripes are extremely effective. Pale green, heliotrope and the new Copenhagen blue are among the favorites. Mention has already been made of the striped chiffon waists which are really charming for wear with a smart tailored suit of plain material, for, of course, when the suit itself is striped, it is in much better taste to wear a waist of plain material. The wash fabrics, such as linens, lawns, dimities, organdies and cotton voiles are lovely in wide stripes, which may or may not have an all-over floral design. A softening effect for a black and white striped transparent material is obtained by using a soft grey lining. Nondescript shades of grey and fawn seem to be the favorites in cloths. There are no pronounced colors since hair lines of many colors run through and across most materials, forming checks, plaids and stripes of more or less prominence. Such materials demand for trimming either a plain silk or braid of darker tone to get a desirable note of contrast. Braids are more fashionable than they have been for some time. As may be expected at this season, the lighter braids are more in evidence, but these are characterized by the harmony of their coloring. Among the darker braids such combinations as wine-red, golden-brown, China blue with white, and artistically blended greens, are the favorites. Rather old-fashioned looking are many of these braids, or, perhaps, this comes from the way they are applied.

Rose-Pink Novelty Straw. Shaded Pink and Cream Roses. Black Quills and Band of Black Velvet.

The influence of the Empire period, if responsible for no great changes in gowns, is certainly responsible for many of the salient points in the Spring millinery. First, and perhaps most important, is the revival of the poke bonnet, a condition of affairs which has been more or less desired for several seasons. Now the poke, modified to be sure, but still characterized by its scooping lines, is one of the most desirable shapes of the coming season. One excellent example is illustrated. It is fashioned of apricot pyroxaline braid and trimmed at either side of the front by bouquets of dandelions, a flower used with excellent effect individually and in combinations. The new poke, or Empire shape, is not large, and probably this fact will ensure its favor, since large size bonnets are too theatrical in effect to really gain much favor. It is far too early yet to state positively which will be most in favor, the large or the small hat. Doubtless, both will continue, although for early wear medium and small size shapes seem to be most liked.

One of the oddities of the year is the airship hat, a shape which originated in Paris and which has been imported in large quantities. The airship hat varies, but one feature is maintained in all, and that is its width, which is greater than the depth. The sides are rounded, some hats being made of two cones or hoods telescoped to carry out the quaint lines of the airship shape. Another hat, small and high, is known as the balloon shape. It has a brim scarcely more than one inch deep, and perfectly flat. The crown, which really bears more resemblance to a coronet than a balloon, is fully five inches high and is rounded out to a greater circumference at the top than at its base. Of course this shape is one of the extremes, but it is, nevertheless, capable of being Americanized sufficiently for our needs. Mushrooms seem to have taken a new lease of life; in fact, brims which are not perfectly straight invariably droop downward, for the days of the twisted and bent-up brim seem to be past. Present indications also point toward the block shapes, although as hats of this character are always more or less difficult to obtain in sufficient quantities to supply the demand, frame manufacturers need not lose heart, for the milliner-made hat cannot be dispensed with. Then, too, of a surety, there will be the dainty lingerie models, for many hats of embroidery and lace are being worn now under the sunny skies of Florida, where the greater number of New York's smart set are disporting themselves. From the trousseaux made up for these favored ones many of the salient features of the season's styles can be recorded with authority. For instance, in spite of all talk for and against, many of the handsomest gowns are Empire, a style which is at its best in the lovely diaphanous fabrics of which Summer gowns are fashioned. To be sure the majority are long waisted in the front, but short backs are decidedly the order of the day for gowns which are at all pretentious in character. Such gowns, even while falling away from the figure, far from conceal it, and for this reason the average dressmaker does not hail the Empire with enthusiasm, since it is, if possible, even more difficult to fit than the Princess, which, by the way, has not entirely gone out of favor.

And what of the colors of the season? They are legion. In Paris everything is assuming a golden brown cast, while on this side of the water we have steel grey to reckon with. Twine color, putty and all shades more or less neutral are favored. Olive green has taken the place of the more brilliant Empire green, and the sulphur and lime shades, which were so trying, have been toned down to form effective backgrounds for Parma violets, a flower reinstated beyond a shadow of a doubt. Since fancy suit materials are the rage, and rain and tourist coats are made from the loudest of stripes and plaids, it is, perhaps, only natural that plain weaves of straw are most in evidence. Milans have the lead for utility hats. Panamas will be very smart, and for those who find them prohibitive there are some really excellent imitations—Leghorns, of course—and an earlier entrance than usual is predicted. Except for a few decidedly ultra importants there are really no radical changes in millinery. The hats photographed demonstrate that brims are simpler.

First there is a grey chip sailor, the brim being lifted on one side by a high bandeau banked with maline. A collar, higher on the right than left side, is made of fancy braid in a darker grey. A steel buckle and grey wings are used.

Another sailor is of ciel blue chip simply trimmed, with quills thrust through a circlet of daisies. The bandeau has loops of black velvet ribbon.

Another hat trimmed simply with quills is of Panama in its natural shade. Tortoise headed pins are thrust through the crown and brown ribbon is used, which brings me around again to the subject of browns, which are popular, especially in the golden casts. One of the smartest shades coming in this category is called vieux apricot. It is very effective when used on natural colored straws.

NELLIE GUNN McCLELLAND.

Paris Fashions

By A. E. DACAM, for "Dry Goods Review."

Newest Developments in Paris Millinery — Striking Evening Gowns Illustrated — Vivid-Colored Costumes Mostly Sold to Foreigners.

At the recent automobile exposition in the Grand Palais, sporting costumes, more particularly those appertaining to motoring, played their part. The "peau-de-bique," which can never be manipulated into smartness, is left to the chauffeur, and the most becoming

No. 1—Tulle Grec; changing pink and gold; pale pink plisse satin biais in the skirt; Irish lace blouse and wide bands embroidered in silks and sequins.

models are now made in some heavy material of a homespun, tartan or even serge nature, and lined with a soft fur such as petit gris, chevrette or caracul, which, when well cut, does not make the garment appear bulky and yet is equally as warm as its ugly predecessor. This vetement is cut quite loose, but with the folds falling correctly it does not destroy the silhouette of the figure. A large shawl collar in a different fur, with stole or muff to match, add to the comfort, as the collar is made so that it can be turned up well over the ears and fastened by means of pattes in front. A muff is sometimes made in the actual decoration of the coat, the ends of the collar will be continued to the waist and turned up, or a loop in the stole would answer the same purpose. Such furs as fox, oppossum, or what is newer, civette, are used for trimming. Poulain is being much employed for coats, and with a certain amount of success, the skin being very easily worked and resists both cold and bad weather. The lining should of course be warm, such as a flannel or tartan. Very smart indeed, although perhaps not quite so practical, are the long cloaks of grey astrachan, with round toque to match, or the paletot of white chevrette, with collar, cuffs and muff of marmotte,

No. 2—Almond Green Crepe-de-Chene; Corn Embroidery in Green and Gold.

toque of chevrette with marmotte brim,—these latter, although quite suitable for motoring in town, are not serviceable enough for touring purposes. A detail with regard to the fur-lined garments is that the material is by a special process made waterproof.

FRANCOIS & CO.

Also at:
Paris
Lyons
New York

92 Wood Street,
London, E.C.

High-Class
French and English
Millinery

Novelties
in Flowers and Feathers
Straw Shapes
Materials, Etc.

WHB WHB
Walter H. Barry & Co.
THE RIBBON HOUSE OF CANADA
Ribbons
We make a specialty of Millinery Ribbons
but not at millinery prices.
When at the openings, we invite inspection.
234 McGILL ST. — MONTREAL

OSTRICH FEATHERS
One of our specialties.
WHEN AT THE OPENINGS CALL AND SEE US.
THE SPECIALTY MILLINERY HOUSE
E. JOBIN & CO.,
152 Notre Dame St. West, - - MONTREAL

Head dressing has always played an historically important part and at the present time coiffures are again decidedly voluminous, attributable, in a large degree, to the endless talk of theatre hats, but nothing yet so exaggerated as the famous miniature ships and windmills are being worn, but little curls placed on each side of the chignon form, with puffed out bandeaux, a Louis XVI. chignon, a coiffure very nearly as large as those worn in the days of Marie Antionette, and they are generally thought more becoming than a plainer form of dressing the hair. For the coiffure itself every style is adopted from the Renaissance to the Restoration. A Henri III. is composed of three silver dragon flies placed in the form of a fan in the centre of the forehead. A black velvet cap, Charles IX. style, is simply ornamented with a bunch of marabouts. One sees many specimens of the Restoration coiffure, such as a long shaded bird, almost encircling the hair and finishing at the back with a bird of paradise, or again the bird is arranged with the head in front and the wings stretched out, and tail falling behind. Others are formed with the head of the bird only, and enormous paradise feathers curling from it, as is represented in Sketch 1. A very large head-dress is a panache of the black uncurled feathers, powdered with diamond dust, fastened with a small gold bow set in white tulle. Sketch 2 shows a coiffure made of two large black wings mounted as for hat trimmings and two aigrettes covered with diamond frost. Some head-dresses inspired by the middle ages are very chic and dressy. One model is composed of a pearl and diamond net, bordered with tiny pink roses and placed flat on the head. No. 3 consists of three Grecian bands of cut steel, a conventional pink rose in front with a very long black ostrich feather curling onto the neck. No. 4, a panache of black feathers fastened under a rose and its leaves. No. 5 is black velvet and holly, the leaves being covered with diamond dust. No. 6 is a wreath of chrysanthemums and leaves.

The styles in hats have not modified their size or bizarre forms ; on the contrary, some new models are more quaint than ever. Certain forms, with a very narrow brim in front and heavy trimming (often feathers "en panache") are worn quite at the back of the head with the hair brushed back from the forehead. Velvets and silks are still arranged as crowns, with brown tulle cachepeign at the back and the "fantaisie" birds are created with so much taste and rare feathers that the prices of the best are becoming as fantastic as the article, and therefore much sought after by the "elegantes." The height to hats is invariably given by means of some sort of plumes, in the event of trimming being composed of ribbon ; when of flowers, a wreath effect is more likely to be employed.

For evening gowns "Pailletage" is very much a la mode. A black net gown glittering with tiny black sequins, with a wide border of the same ornaments, so closely sewn together that it looks like a jet band, is very effective. The decollette and small sleeves will be slightly draped. Sometimes the black jet will be used with steel points and colored beads are all much worn, particularly gold and silver, nacre and green. It appears that in such a gown as the one just mentioned there will be about 10,000 beads all sewn on by hand, and in the more expensive goods each one is sewn separately, so that in the event of one being lost the others do not unthread.

These sequins in all colors are also having a large sale in the "maisons de nouveaute," made up with silk, lace, mousseline and tulle as collars and fancy neckwear. These are not more expensive than other goods, and are most effective.

A rather original note is given to many costumes by means of a Zouave bolero, which falls over the shoulder and forms the upper part of the sleeve. This is sometimes in two bands, in which case the sleeves have a bell effect, or again, these wide bands (generally formed of "encrustations," or heavy embroidery, are used horizontally, bordering the short, wide bolero and forming an encolure round the neck. The first sketch of an evening gown shows this style with very good effect. The gown is made of white tulle over a shot pink and gold foundation. The bands ornamenting the full skirt are formed of narrow satin tucks arranged to form a V. in the centre. The lace bodice is bloused and cut with a square decoltee—the yoke square being of a finer lace—and half-length bell sleeves. The bands are heavily embroidered with a conventional design of rings and crescents in satin and silks, with colored sequins liberally introduced, recalling the pink and gold of the foundation. A sash of soft pink satin drapes the waist. No. 2 design is another original evening gown of bolero form in almond green crepe-de-chene, embroidery, representing sheafs of corn in green, and gold ribbons and silks. The sleeves and decoltee are of tulle, partly embroidered with gold, the "tout ensemble" with bird and aigrette recalling the same colors, in the hair was very chic and effective.

* * *

Another charming evening gown is carried out in blue faience crepe-de-chene, with full trailing skirt and blouse of Irish lace, embroidered in blue and silver. Over this blouse is another of pale blue satin, a lighter shade than the skirt, but so cut away that only shoulder straps and a bloused effect above the waist, three inches deep, remain. This is fastened with a pale blue lacing front and back and again half way up the shoulder straps. From the waist and reaching the hem of the skirt are four biais of the satin, ending under a large choux of the same material. The decoltee lace blouse has a beading of graduated sayin choux, and the yoke is filled in with white tulle, embroidered with silver spots. For street wear, a bright red and cerese colors are being employed, toned with black galon and tresse or brown fur, but these vivid-colored costumes are mostly sold for abroad or to foreigners, the real Parisienne remaining faithful to the duller shades.

A. E. DACAM.

Toronto Wholesalers

Officers of the Dry Goods Section of Board of Trade For 1907.

At the annual meeting of the Wholesale Dry Goods section of the Toronto Board of Trade the following officers were elected for 1907 :

Chairman—John D. Ivey.

Vice-Chairman—W. R. Smallpiece.

Secretary-Treasurer—F. G. Morley.

Executive Committee—J. W. Woods, Chas. Reid, John Muldrew, A. T. Reid, John Macdonald, A. W. Allen, C. S. Meek, J. P. Watson, R. W. Spence, J. D. Allen, C. B. Lowndes, John Northway, G. Frank Beer, A. M. Ivey, R. A. Nisbet, A. F. Rodger, and John Knox.

FANCY CHINA AT CHRISTMAS.

H. A. Porter & Co., Oshawa, handle a good deal of fancy china at Christmas time and it pays them well. Handkerchiefs, hosiery and notions are displayed in counter bins in the most prominent position in the store. Mr. Porter informed The Review that he had dropped all forms of printed advertising, not because he doubts the value of advertising, but because of peculiar circumstances under which he is working. A knowledge of these circumstances fails to convince us that the step is wisely taken. We believe that no drygoodsman carrying general lines can, if he has competition worth speaking of, afford to discontinue the use of space in the local papers, providing they have sufficient circulation to assure him of good service.

Oshawa is only about thirty-five miles from Toronto, and cheap railway and boat fares, at certain seasons, attract numbers of people to the city stores. Of course, the local stores which buy right can sell most articles as cheaply as Eaton's or Simpson's. When Mr. Porter has city bargain prices quoted to him, he simply says : "I am sorry, but I cannot meet those prices." He has come to the conclusion that it is better not to mention the departmental stores at all, for every reference to them constitutes an ad.

Business Management

By HOWARD R. WELLINGTON.

The Office End of a Retail Store.

In introducing a subject of this nature, it might be said that the average merchant is usually too busy with the buying and selling end of his business to devote a great deal of time to the office end. A simple yet effective record should be kept of every transaction and accounts kept which will show at the end of a given period the exact standing of the merchant. Too many are satisfied in these busy days to allow the bookkeeping end of the business to drift, and sales are made frequently at an actual loss through the lack of practical points obtainable from even a simple set of books. Merchants will continue in business year after year, finding difficulty at periods to finance their respective businesses, possibly unconsciously going backwards gradually, until one day two or three large accounts must be paid at about the same time, the merchant is forced to assign, and, upon investigation, it is found that the liabilities are about four times the assets ; a payment of 20 cents on the dollar is made ; the merchant is surprised at the condition of affairs simply because be has not studied the condition of his business and endeavored to remedy the fault before it became too late.

It must be remembered that the merchant, and his business, are separate and distinct, that is to say, whatever a merchant invests in his business is chargeable to the business, under such accounts as cash, accounts receivable, bills receivable, real estate, equipment, etc., capital account being credited with the total investment.

As the net profits are ascertained from year to year, the respective amounts are transferred from profit and loss account to the credit of capital account, thus showing the value of the business at any time. It is customary to keep a personal account with the owner of the business, against which are charged all withdrawals, and at the end of the period, the total is transferred to the debit of the capital account.

In a recent investigation it was found that the accounts of the merchant were kept exceptionally well. Merchandise account showed the purchases and sales less returns ; bills payable and bills receivable accounts showed the outstanding bills payable and receivable ; the customers' and creditors' accounts were accurately kept ; an elaborate division of expenses was kept, such as postage, stationery, collection, interest, general expense, etc., but, unfortunately, one link was missing, viz., the capital account. It was impossible to ascertain what had been invested in the business at the commencement or what had been drawn from the business during the period.

In case a merchant should desire to make a change in the method of his bookkeeping, in order that his position may be accurately known at any time, the following suggestions may be found helpful :

First—Ascertain the value of the merchandise on hand. By "merchandise" is meant all goods which are being offered for sale, not including fixtures or equipment of any kind. This should be valued at the cost price to the merchant, i.e., invoice price, to which is added freight, cartage, duty, etc.

Second—Value the fixtures and equipment of the business, such as furniture, wagons, tools, lighting fixtures, etc.

Third—Ascertain the value of the bills receivable from the bill book and the accounts receivable from the customers' accounts in the ledger.

Fourth—Ascertain the value of the bills payable from the bill book and the accounts payable from the creditors' accounts in the ledger.

Fifth—Ascertain the amount of cash on hand and in the bank.

Sixth—Value the property and buildings.

Seventh—Ascertain if there are any amounts for insurance, light, taxes, etc., either prepaid or due.

With these particulars it is quite a simple matter to adjust the entries so as to commence business, or rather to continue business, with the entries recorded in a manner which will enable the dealer to know exactly where he stands at any time.

The entry will be as follows :

1—Merchandise Dr. (as per list of goods).

2—Fixtures and Equipment Dr. (as per list).

3—Accounts Receivable Dr. (as per ledger).

4—Bills Receivable Dr. (as per ledger).

5—Cash on Hand and in Bank Dr. (as per cash books).

6—Real Estate and Buildings Dr. (valuation).

7—Expense Account Dr. (prepaid items).

Credit Entries :

4—Bills Payable Cr. (as per ledger).

4—Accounts Payable Cr. (as per ledgtr).

7—Expense account Cr. (items due unpaid).

Capital Account (difference between total debit and total credit).

Capital account difference between total debit and total credit).

The books are now in balance. As goods are bought charge or debit merchandise account. When sold, credit merchandise account. Add to the debit side, or purchase side, the goods on hand at the start, and to the credit side the goods on hand at the finish ; the difference shows the gross gain. Against this gross gain charge all expenses, and the balance then shows net gain, which is transferred each year, as explained above, to the credit of capital account.

"Trotter seems to be a very happy man. He never has any bills to pay."

"How's that ?"

"No one will ever trust him."

* * *

Customer : "Yes, I like this suit. I suppose you will make any alterations I may require free."

Tailor : "O, yes, sir, certainly."

"Very well, then, just alter the price from $20 to $10 and I'll take it with me."

Kingcot — Better Cottons

BUYERS for the big department stores of Canada usually make it a practice to see the KINGCOT lines before they stock cottons at all. It saves them time —and trouble—and risk, because after their choice is made from KINGCOT samples, they have few gaps left to fill from other makes — even of imported cottons.

That Hints at KINGCOT Completeness

THE range of weaves, of patterns, of qualities in KINGCOT cottons is apt to surprise people who think Canada's weaving industry is immature.

KINGCOT

EVERY new thing is in the KINGCOT samples so early that live merchants can keep it in front of competition in point of timeliness. Every staple thing is always in KINGCOT lines.

FROM the start, the Kingcot policy has been to meet the highest standard any store's trade sets. The Kingcot prices are as low as they ought to be.

And KINGCOT QUALITY Has Never Varied.

KINGCOT COTTONS

ASK any traveller for a first-rate house to show you these :

Ginghams	Shirtings
Dress Goods	Oxfords
Apron Ginghams	Denims
Saxonys	Galateas
Flannelettes	Tickings
Domets, Awnings,	Cottonades

Better Cottons — Kingcot

STAPLES AND RAW MATERIALS

Deliveries are Improving—Demand Continues Strong — Print Cloths Well Sold Ahead—Shirtings, Blankets and Yarns Advanced.

Canadian mills have been true to their promise to improve deliveries as the Spring approached. It is safe to assert that in another month, if the present progress is continued, they will give every satisfaction to the trade in general. Not only have they given better satisfaction to jobbers than was anticipated, but the cutting-up trade has every reason to be grateful for the manner in which their immediate wants have been attended to. Orders were never so large as they are at present, and owing to the scarcity and slow deliveries of greys and yarns it is remarkable that the mills are able to give the deliveries they do. It is thought by many that the Canadian mills are taking undue advantage of the foreign sources of supply being unable to accept orders. This is fallacious. It might just as well be argued that the mills are taking advantage of the tariff and the high prices of raw materials to keep up and excuse the present prices. With only a few exceptions prices have been kept down despite the adverse tendencies of the raw material markets. Foreign markets have led all the advances and Canadian manufacturers were compelled to protect themselves. That there should be dissatisfaction it is difficult to understand. Prices remain almost unchanged, yet two years ago when prices of yarns were quoted at 22½c. per lb. there was but little dispute about the listed prices which are almost the same to-day, yet Canadian manufacturers have paid as high as 33c. per lb. for yarns during the present Winter. In consideration of this it is obvious that the manufacturers have been selling at a distinct loss by adhering to fixed prices. They have refrained from changing prices in the middle of the season, and have sold their goods on their merits with the result that a reputation for qualities and values has been gained.

SOME MERITORIOUS LINES.

If eastern jobbers and retailers think their lot is a hard one regarding the question of delivery, they should turn their attention to the west and especially British Columbia to note how they fare out there in the matter. Very large orders have come from the west this year, particularly for denims and saxonies. For overalling purposes there has been so great a demand for these lines that it is with the utmost difficulty that Canadian mills can keep the cutting-up trade in practical supply. New accounts have been refused in order that the trade depending upon deliveries to cover their requirements might be supplied. Full shipments have not been general, but practical supplies have been given so that none might be left unsupplied. The lines have given entire satisfaction to the trade and Canadian goods hold a safe place.

A line which is of exceptional value this season is the "Rockfast Drill" shirtings. Buyers enthusiastically delight in handling this line which gives entire satisfaction to all concerned. Overall manufacturers have specialized this line this year and are finding it most successful as a leader. The Canadian "Rockfast Drills" are of superior finish and have the material in them to make the best of overalls and smocks. They are put up very neatly and are easily handled, and are at once attractive and possess the wearing qualities. This line has several advantages over the American products; side by side and quality against quality against quality, the Canadian cloth is preferred by the most representative buyers. Its price compares favorably and it is selling in greater quantities than ever, despite competition.

WHITE AND PRINT CLOTHS STILL ACTIVE.

During last month there was a decided shortage of bleached goods, which is only accounted for by the unprecedented demand of the cutting-up trade. That trade is at present in the throes of a white season which bids fair to be enormous. Their orders for waists, suitings and ladies' underwear are piling up at a great rate and there is some uneasiness as to future deliveries. Canadian mills are turning out more than ever they did before, but cannot keep up with the demand which has, apparently, more than doubled. Hoping to find a loophole in the situation, some manufacturers cabled orders to England, but the reply was that deliveries could not be given before the end of May. Sheetings are also in great demand, and, as promised, there are slightly better deliveries and they are improving daily.

Print cloths are moving rapidly at present. Jobbers have a good stock in hand and are beginning to make larger shipments to retailers than was expected. The cheap lines have been well delivered, and the higher priced lines are now being given full attention by the manufacturers. The cloths are giving better satisfaction than was expected, and the retail trade is ordering heavily. Deliveries on this cloth are bound to improve as the season advances. Many of the lines are being lauded by the retailers as being of exceptionally good value. Grey prints and navies have been well sold ahead, and even at this early date there are repeats requested from the jobbers. This so far has been the largest year yet for prints, and if the complete demand is not met, it is not because mills are not turning out all they can, but because the demand exceeds this capacity. The new mills to be erected at Shawinigan Falls, it is understood, will go largely in for printing and when this is done it will facilitate the handling of orders. There is no apparent limit to the demand, and manufacturers are determined to meet it as far as possible.

SHIRTINGS AGAIN ADVANCED.

During the month of December there was a slight advance made in the prices of shirtings of the 36-inch width variety, which are used by the manufacturers of shirts. Recent developments in this line show that such a course was inevitable. On January 4th a still further advance of about a quarter of a cent was put into force. The present trend of the demand and stiff prices of the yarns, which for this purpose are of the better grades, was immediately responsible for the increase in prices being made. American manufacturers have made several large increases in shirtings of late and in all probability they will be advanced still further under the present conditions ruling the market. It will be contended that this was not absolutely justifiable when it is known that cotton has dropped several points lately, but it should be borne in mind that such slight declines cannot affect the market when yarns are abnormally high. It does not follow that because yarns are selling at a very few points lower than a month ago that they are being procured by all mills; there is a decided shortage and all cannot be supplied.

FLANNELETTES SHOW INCREASED ACTIVITY.

With the winding up of the Spring orders, flannelettes are showing an increased demand. The tweed effects in grey and whites which have had phenomenal success, are well sold ahead and have done better than was expected. The cutting-up trade is kept in supply, but full deliveries are out of the question at present. With the first rush well over there should be improved deliveries before the end of the present month.

Blankets, which have been selling more freely than ever, were advanced one cent per yard, and yarns were increased one cent per pound at the close of last year A glance at the cotton yarn markets will convince buyers that this was no more than could be expected.

Flannelettes are not the only textiles which are being ordered beyond the capacity of the mills. Ginghams and saxonies are booked for a long time ahead. The British Columbia trade is nothing short of wonderful in denims and galateas. That province simply cannot get sufficient goods, and the shortage of freight cars at present adds to the stress of the situation. In no line of textiles is there a danger of overstocking at present, as deliveries are slow and stock is in too active a demand to remain idle very long.

ADDITIONAL MACHINERY FOR ST. CROIX MILLS.

The Canadian Colored Cotton Co. Ltd., are to make great improvements and extensions in their St. Croix mills at Milltown, N.B., in the near future. It is expected that at least $40,000 worth of machinery will be installed, and it is hoped that with this increased capacity the handling of orders will be facilitated. There has been much difficulty experienced of late in securing machinery for cotton mills. Even the American mills have not been supplied sufficiently, and it is a matter of gratification to this company that their determination to increase their output to meet all demands, and give better deliveries, has overcome this obstacle.

Linens

Recent Advices From Ireland Show Marked Increased Prices—Linen Yarns Highest in 40 Years.

Among the late correspondence received from Ireland, the manufacturers of linen state that never since the American war have prices been so high. The situation is apparently in the hands of the spinners, who are unable to meet the demand. The following is an excerpt from a letter received by a Montreal merchant from a leading Irish house: "We herewith send you new price list in duplicate. In linen yarns the prices are higher than they have been for about forty years. The prices at which we offer now, we could not accept orders on for delivery later than three or four months, as present costs are much higher than the costs on which we based the enclosed lists. We do not know where advances are to end, as spinners are so far oversold that they can secure any price to keep manufacturers going. That is the way of things at present—much the same as it is in grey cottons or grey yarns in Lancashire."

MORE ABOUT LINEN PRICES.

In this age of "advance in prices" there is no article in the dry goods business that has been more affected than linens. This applies to all classes of goods made of flax, but is much more acute in the finer grades of yarns, such as are used in manufacturing lawns, frontings, damasks, etc. These yarns it is almost impossible to obtain delivery of, even at the advance quoted, as most spinners are entirely sold up till 1908.

In heavier goods, however, such as crash, dowlas, canvas, duck, etc., while the yarns are not so much affected as the finer numbers, still the difference in the manufactured article is even more noticeable. For instance, the sale of a towelling which has to be offered at 8½ cents instead of 7½ is more retarded than that of a fine damask that has gone from 75 cents to $1, though the advance in the latter is nearly 25 per cent. and in the former is under 15 per cent.

JAPANESE RAW SILK.

The direct export trade of raw silk, the most important export commodity of Japan, is both rapidly increasing and changing from foreign firms in that country to Japanese firms.

The total export of silk for the ten months—January to October, 1906—amounted to 138,619½ bales, the proportion of the shipments made by foreign firms to those made by Japanese being 58.5 to 41.5.

Regarding the quantity dealt in by foreign and Japanese firms this order has now been reversed. Until a few years ago out of 25 foreign firms dealing in silk, a Swiss firm occupied first rank on the list of shipments. Now, however, a Japanese firm occupies first rank, and another Japanese firm the second rank, the Swiss firm falling to third position. The Japanese raw silk exporting firms are only four in number, and yet the shipments made by these four firms are only a little less than those made by 25 foreign firms. Only five years ago the Japanese shipped 26,861½ bales against 89,141 by foreign firms, the proportion being 23.2 to 76.8. From this it may be seen that the shipments by foreigners fell off by 8,110½ bales in five years, while those of the Japanese increased by 30,727½ bales. The proportion of the shipments by Japanese thus rose from 23.2 to 41.5, while the figures for foreign firms fell from 76.8 to 58.5. Since 1902 no distinction has been made in the statistics of the finance department between the amount of trade done by Japanese and foreigners, and consequently the latest comparative statistics available are those for 1902. The total value of exports in the ten years to 1902, rose from $15,976,108, to $48,062,637, and the value of direct exports through the hands of Japanese firms rose from $1,272,267 to $11,136,108, a phenomenal increase.

BELFAST LINEN INDUSTRY.

The official returns issued recently show that during 1906 the linen industry in Belfast established a record, the total of the export trade amounting to almost £700,000 over 1905, and £1,250,000 over 1904.

TEXTILE
DOMINION
CO·LTD

When you come to give your Spring Print Repeats, it will pay you to ask your Jobber for the range of

No. 2 Cloth
No. 10 Cloth
No. 20 Cloth

For all round satisfaction make sure of getting Canadian

ROCK FAST DRILL

Your Jobber has or can get the genuine

PRINT WORKS
COLONIAL
TRADE MARK

PRINT WORKS
MAGOG
TRADE MARK

Spring Window Shade Business

CURTAIN POLES AND TRIMMINGS

SOON YOU SHOULD BE DOING A RATTLING SHADE BUSINESS.

YOU WILL DO THE BUSINESS AND MAKE FRIENDS TOO, IF YOU STOCK

Regal Shades Machine-Made Oils

Dominion Shades Water Colors

Peerless Hand-Made Cloth

LACES AND FRINGES

WHY NOT DO THE SHADE BUSINESS?

YOU MAY IF YOU WRITE TO-DAY.

ASK FOR CATALOGS, PRICES AND COLOR BOOKS.

DALY & MORIN - - MONTREAL

F. G. SOPER, 29 Melinda Street, TORONTO

AGENT FOR ONTARIO

KING'S
Established 1775

FAMOUS
Sold by leading jobbers.

SCOTCH
Every piece perfect.

HOLLANDS

Scotch Hollands, for nearly a century and a quarter, have been recognised by the Trade of the world as the most reliable and salable shading made.

for its non-shrinking qualities, durability, coloring, and steadfast dyes. King's name on every piece.

Hollands, of John King & Son, are handled by all the leading houses. Made in all colorings and widths.

They are popular because they are the most effective shading for the money in the market, and dealers can turn them over more quickly than any other.

JOHN KING & SON,
GLASGOW, SCOTLAND.

Sole Selling Agent:
SYDNEY MOSS,
Nordheimer Bldgs., 8 Colborne St., TORONTO

BRUSSELS CARPETS

As this class of CARPETING has again come to the fore as the most popular and durable of all makes for general use in the home or elsewhere, we have made a special effort to have our stock on this fabric for Spring trade very select in both designs and colorings in our three qualities of "RIDLEY," "VAUXALL" and "KENDAL," with 5/8 Borders and 3/4 Stairs to match.

The fact of our having given this Department of our business such careful attention is going to be a great boon to Merchants who handle our range of Patterns and qualities from our thereby having a selection second to none in the Dominion, without having capital tied up in an expensive stock, and the loss from short ends eating up the bulk of the profit.

"CUT ORDER DEPARTMENT"

Write for Samples and Prices

THE IMPERIAL CARPET CO. LIMITED
60 Front Street West
TORONTO

Housefurnishings and Decorations

Carpets

Shipments in January Largest Ever Made—Prices Will Remain Firm.

During the month of January very large shipments were made for Spring trade. At the present rate of delivering goods from jobbing centres it is quite likely that within a short time there will be the old story of last year's difficulty in securing repeats on many of the lines. A very satisfactory season is being rounded off. Greens lead so far, but the fawn colors, which we predicted would be good property for Spring, have improved and are now in active demand. The retailers who were slow in placing their orders, on account of the advanced prices, have now still higher prices to contend with and very uncertain dates of delivery.

Jobbers have but little hope of obtaining repeats from foreign sources of supply, for factories are much overworked with orders, and will have some difficulty in filling present orders in time even for later dates than was expected at the placing of orders. The Canadian market is unusually active at present, and in many of the fast growing centres there is so little stock to choose from that customers are often compelled to select a rug instead of the piece goods. Jobbers in some cases have found the demand for rugs so brisk that they have been specializing them.

Open patterns, with more elaborate bordering are apparently to be the favorite sellers for Spring. Large retailers have ordered freely of these styles, and the demand from consumers so far has proven that they have not been misled in their selection of the better class of goods. Axminsters and Brussels are distinguished this year for their designs in the floral patterns, which are of a very high quality and rich finish.

Prices of carpet yarns still show steady increases, and there is some anxiety felt among manufacturers over the strained condition of the market. The demand will undoubtedly be well sustained, and with the best of prospects ahead it would mean much loss of business if a shortage of raw materials were to ensue at this crucial time.

Rugs

In some of the larger cities of Canada many auction sales of eastern rugs have been held during the past few months. This has not interfered with the retailer's business throughout the country, and stocks are active. The class of rugs purchased at present is of a very high standard. Cheap rugs are not the most popular lines, and it is found that stock is active when a good line is carried.

Wilton rugs have had an improved demand of late, but the Axminsters hold the first place, some of the new designs in four and five colors being exceedingly popular with the trade. There is not the least trouble experienced by either jobbers or retailers in disposing of rugs, and repeats are very frequent. In the Province of Quebec the best season for carpet and rug selling is during the months of May and June. During May there is a great deal of removing done and consequently the retailers there are prepared for a big business, as many new buildings will be occupied during the coming Spring by new tenants. From the west repeats are expected to be more frequent than usual, especially for the Moravian rug, which has been meeting with great success in that part of the country. Tapestry and velvets are also enjoying a profitable popularity and retailers have stocked heavily on these lines.

Linoleums

Orders for Spring delivery are being rounded up at present, and early shipments are being received by retailers. Altogether the amount of business done has been highly satisfactory to all. It is quite likely that from this date on domestic goods will be given the preference over imported goods, as prices in other countries have been considerably increased of late. American goods were advanced one cent per yard on January 1st, and further advances are expected, as canvas, burlap and oils are steadily advancing in price. In England the price of printed linoleums has been advanced two cents per yard, and it is expected that this will be followed by advances on inlaid linoleums, as it is only natural to expect manufacturers to cover themselves under the somewhat prohibitive conditions.

Domestic lines have been well received by the trade, especially the block designs. For stair covering the narrow width floral designs have shown a marked improvement lately, and are selling in great quantities. It has been hard, up-hill work to get a better market for the more pretentious styles, but it is safe to predict a better future for domestic lines as they are gardually proving their worth. The time is propitious to make a sweeping bid for a better class of trade. The best lines are in active demand, and as values are understood to be very poor in the cheap lines, there is a distinct tendency to buy reliable lines.

The Birmingham Daily Post anticipates that more Kidderminster carpet firms will migrate to Canada.

Wall Paper

Before the end of the month is reached manufacturers expect to be in the midst of their sampling season. While plans are being completed for the Spring lines it is not the policy of the manufacturers to give out in detail any news regarding their designs. They guard jealously their collections and the rivalry is keen in selecting exclusive designs. In the way of novelties for the Spring there are many new features to be introduced. With the duties not too protective Canadian manufacturers have realized that if they are to survive at all it must be on the merits of their products. The great expansion of the country and its growing wealth justifies more pretentious endeavors than before. While the principal up-keep of the industry is largely dependent upon what they class as the "bread and butter" patterns, they, at the same time, cannot neglect the more expensive styles for the very reason that these sell the cheaper lines to a great extent. At the round-up of the season it is noticed that the class of goods being shipped is of a better quality than that sold last year. The average weight of paper sold has been heavier than that sold in previous years, and while there has been a great quantity of the cheap lines sold, there has also been more of the better grades.

ANTICIPATE

THE MOST ACTIVE AND PROFITABLE

Spring Season

IN

WALL PAPER

AND BE FULLY PREPARED FOR IT.

What! Not yet placed your stock order? Well, delay no longer. We have our best-selling styles in all grades for season of 1907 in stock. We know them to be reliable—attractive—decorative, and the BEST VALUE IN THE MARKET;

Grasp This Fact Good and Hard.

A post-card application will bring you our EXPRESS SAMPLE BOOKS, charges prepaid, to enable you to make selections for stock.

Borders at Flat Prices.

WRITE TO-DAY. DON'T WAIT.

STAUNTONS LIMITED

Manufacturers of Superior Wall Papers

TORONTO

DOWN COMFORTERS
COTTON COMFORTERS
BED PILLOWS
WHITE CUSHIONS
COSIES, MUFF BEDS, etc.

PRICE LIST ON APPLICATION

FEATHERS BOUGHT

The Toronto Feather & Down Company, Limited

74 King Street West, - - - TORONTO

LINOLEUM

PRINTED — In 2 and 4 yards wide — PLAIN

—5 Grades—

This season's collection of patterns in this line is the finest yet shown, including, as it does, all the latest in colorings and striking combinations, and we guarantee our Linoleum to be the equal of any as regards

Quality, Design, Finish and Price

FLOOR OIL CLOTH

Made in qualities 1—2—3

In widths of 4/4, 5/4, 6/4, 8/4 and 10/4

This line is so long and favorably known to the trade for its sterling worth, that little need be said regarding it, other than that, as usual, a very fine and extensive range is again being shown, and for a medium-priced Oil Cloth THEY ARE UNBEATABLE

TABLE OIL CLOTH

Made in widths of 5/4 and 6/4

The increased demand for our Table Oil Cloths is the best demonstration of their value

HANDLED BY ALL THE WHOLESALE DRY GOODS TRADE

DECORATIVE BURLAPS

There is a great demand everywhere for a Wall Covering that is economical, sanitary, washable and artistic. This want is best satisfied by using our oil-coated Burlap, which has all these qualifications and is made in all widths in standard colors. Keeps out draughts, dust and cold. Used extensively in Dwelling Houses, Hotels, Halls, Churches and Public Buildings

Write for sample book and prices of this line

The Dominion Oil Cloth Co., Ltd., Montreal

Great efforts are to be made to produce colorings that have never before been equalled. Prices will remain about the same. The flat price will be maintained during the coming season.

CAPITAL INCREASED.

Supplementary letters patent have been issued, confirming a by-law of the Toronto Carpet Manufacturing

A Graceful Floral, Lily and Foliage, in an Example of German Art Design. Manufactured by Stauntons Limited.

Co., providing for the increase of capital stock from $300,000 to $500,000, by the issue of $100 shares.

BEAD AND BAMBOO PORTIERES.

With the growing popularity of Oriental decorations there is an improved demand for bead and bamboo portieres. These are made in various designs and in all sizes, and lend themselves to effective display in a store.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

The new buildings of the Brinton Carpet Co., at Peterborough, Ont., are of concrete construction. Twenty-five looms have been installed for the manufacturing of Brussels and Wilton carpets. It is expected that eight additional looms will soon be installed, and that one department will weave Axminsters.

A rumor is current that Messrs. Crossley, of Halifax, and Humphrey, of Kidderminster, will locate in Hamilton.

During the first eight months of 1906 Canada imported over four thousand more yards of carpet than the previous year. No wonder British manufacturers are anxious to locate here. They are building in Peterborough to such an extent that before long they will be nicknaming it the Kidderminster of Canada.

Weiler Bros., of Victoria, B.C., who do one of the biggest businesses in the West in housefurnishings, have recently occupied their new five-storey building on Government street.

The Guelph Carpet Mills Co., of Guelph, Ont., are adding a new wing to their present factory. The new extension will be of one storey, 120 by 160 feet.

TRADE INQUIRIES.

Since the publication of the last report there have been received the following inquiries relating to the Canadian dry goods trade. The names of the firms making these inquiries, with their addresses, can be obtained upon application to "Superintendent of Commerce, Ottawa." Please quote the reference number when requesting addresses.

1563. Special cutting machine.—Yorkshire firm desires to get in touch with Canadian manufacturers for the sale of a special machine for cutting cotton, cords, fustians, velvets and similar fabrics and invites correspondence.

1564. Dry goods.—Yorkshire firm desires to get into touch with Canadian buyers of serges, twills, vicunas, fancy suitings, trouserings and vestings, and all worsted and woolen goods.

1565. Machinery.—Yorkshire engineering firm makes inquiry for Canadian buyers of all kinds of woolen and worsted machinery.

1566. Warping mills, machines, etc.—A Huddersfield firm invites inquiries from Canadian manufacturers for their improved warping mills for woolens and worsteds; and also for their automatic wool, worsted, and flax feeding machines, also scribbling and carding machines.

1571. Hose, tam o'shanters.—A firm of hosiery manufacturers at Leicester wishes to open accounts with Canadian warehousemen importing such goods as they can supply, viz., men's hose, half hose, and ladies' tam o'shanters.

1603. Agents.—A Scotch company manufacturing all classes of burlaps and canvas, who are also shippers of herring nets, oiled jackets, trousers, etc., seek suitable agents in the Maritime Provinces. The same firm is open to appoint resident agents in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg for the sale of horse sheetings, paddings for wholesale clothiers, cloths for carriage builders and similar lines.

4. Children's clothing and millinery.—A firm manufacturing embroidery, etc., is seeking to extend its business with Canadian makers of children's clothing and millinery.

GEO. H. HEES, SON & CO.

LIMITED

Toronto
52 Bay St.

Montreal
20 St. Helen St.

MANUFACTURERS OF

Window Shades
Curtain Poles
Lace Curtains
Bobbinet Curtains
Lace Door Panels
Furniture Coverings
Tapestry Curtains
Chenille Curtains
Table Covers
Draperies
Silks
Burlaps
Wall Coverings
Plushes
Velours
Upholstery Supplies
Upholstery Hardware

N.B.—We sell our goods at a price that affords the Retailer Large Profits.

GEO. H. HEES, SON & CO.

Japanese Silks to Talk About

A strong collection of Natural, Colored and Fancy Japanese Silks, 20, 27, 36-inch widths, at attractive prices.

SILK HANDKERCHIEFS—PIANO DRAPES

Large stocks on hand mean prompt delivery

LINEN BUYERS FAVOR OUR LINES

Table Covers, Doyleys, Bureau Scarfs and everything Oriental worth having

ORDERS RECEIVE PROMPT AND ACCURATE ATTENTION

The China and Japan Silk Co.

MONTREAL LIMITED

Japan—
Yokohama
Kobe

Canada—
Montreal
Toronto

China—
Shanghai
Hong Kong

ANTIMONY WARE BAMBOO " BASKET " CHINA " MATTINGS

BRONZES
BRUSHES
IVORIES SCREENS

BEADED PORTIERES
LAQUER GOODS
HANDKERCHIEFS
SILK GOODS
CLOISONNE

EASTER 1907

RAPHAEL TUCK & SONS CO., LIMITED

Fine Art and Book Publishers

9-17 St. Antoine Street, MONTREAL

To the Trade:

The encouragement given us last year in so significant a form, and the ever increasing popularity of our publications, have warranted us in trebling our efforts in the preparation of our Easter Collection for 1907.

Absolute Novelty, Rare Beauty, Exquisite Finish, Immense Variety, Wide Range and Wonderful Value have never been better exemplified than in these dainty productions.

Easter Cards, Panels, Leaflets and Gem Portfolios, together with an infinite assortment of Artistic Post Cards—all especially designed for this festive season—bear eloquent testimony to the high standard of refined and artistic excellence concentrated in these publications.

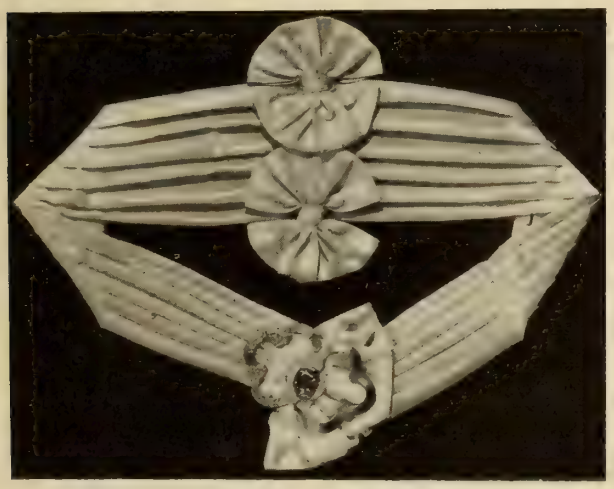
It is one of the cardinal principles in our Art Creed never to rest satisfied with what we have accomplished in the past, but to aim higher each season; and so we have forged far ahead of anything we have ever attempted heretofore and are quite content to let our present collection speak for itself.

Our representatives will exhibit samples shortly and we bespeak for them your usual kind consideration.

Faithfully yours,

RAPHAEL TUCK & SONS' COMPANY, LIMITED

NEW YORK, LONDON, PARIS, BERLIN



FANCY GOODS AND NOTIONS

A good fancy goods department is one of the most profitable, and also one of the best drawing cards, that a store can have. It induces many people to go in search of something novel, and where is the merchant who does not admit that to get prospective buyers into his store is what he most desires. Once in they will look around to see what inducements the various departments offer. As large as was the business done in this line last year, the opportunities are greater this year, and results promise to be more than commensurate. It is a paramount necessity that the department be kept right up-to-date—new features should be added persistently, and no article should escape effective display.

Belts

Varied Belt Lines for Spring—Big Embroidered Wash Belt Season Expected.

The same variety which has marked the season that is closing is a feature also in Spring lines and buyers have every chance to make the belt department a highly attractive one. The manufacturers are doing their part, and already there is an extensive line of novelties shown for the early Spring and the Easter trade—a line that is constantly receiving the addition of new models.

Novelty Silk Belt—Shown by Rhys D. Fairbairn.

Silk belts will be good, particularly for Easter selling, and besides the staple blacks and whites, pink, and blue promise to be good sellers. The models are decidedly dainty, and also slightly fanciful. Spangles and beads are much employed. Floral bows (see illustration) as a back finish is a new and pretty idea, and the buckles are exceptionally handsome, being of art designs and set with colored stones.

The embroidered wash belt of last Summer, though, of course, in new form, is expected not only to duplicate but to go beyond last season's success. One new feature is the introduction of a material that, while having the firmness and body of duck, approaches much more nearly in texture and finish the laces, baptistes and fine linens now so extensively used for dresses and waists. Another good feature of this material is the way the embroidery stands out from the fabric. Great things are expected of this fabric, and as it can be worked up into a popular priced belt, its success would seem to be assured.

BAGS, NECKLETS, COMBS, ETC.

There has been very little let-up in the fancy goods trade. Lines in the retail stores were well depleted by the heavy holiday trade, and desirable goods are in none too large supply. Easter coming early brought orders in at an early date. New goods and new samples are also arriving, and from the way business is opening up in this department, a big Spring season is before the trade.

Beaded bags have by no means had their full run, and will come to the fore for Easter selling. Besides the popular white and gold, the latter is mingled with other colors with good effect. Steel beads are also showing again and a revival in their favor is considered possible. Beaded purses, in much the same designs as beaded bags, are also being brought out. Taking it all through bead lines are in big demand.

The jewelry end of the line should not be neglected, for some sort of a necklet is generally worn and will be more wanted than ever as a neck finish when the season opens up, because of the universal wearing of either no collar or one of transparent material.

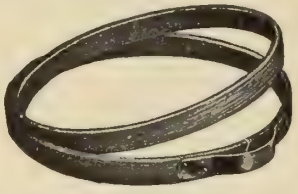
Pearl effects lead, but coral, amethyst, etc., are also favored. The novelty, however, is the garnet—garnet beads, and pins, etc., set with garnets. Jet also is going to play a considerable part, and beads, pins, etc., promise to be very considerable sellers.

Combs of some kind or other continue to be indispensible, and few feminine heads lack this form of adornment. Though highly adorned combs are in great favor, there is said to be a reaction coming in favor of the comb ornamental only with carving, etc. Jet combs are decidedly good sellers.

Easter comes early this year, and it is full time now to be looking after Easter novelties. None have been more popular in late years than the natural stuffed and mounted baby ducks and chickens. These are raised in thousands in Japan for this purpose and are sure to prove a fetching Easter novelty.

PICTURE POST CARDS.

Novelty postal cards are sure to draw attention. The collecting of cards is no longer considered a temporary fad, but has become a permanent feature in correspondence, and affords a great deal of amusement and instruction. The art of producing them has been carried into a wide field, and few subjects have been untouched. A series of cards on one subject, effectively displayed on rack or stand, is certain to draw a great deal of attention, and lead to sales.

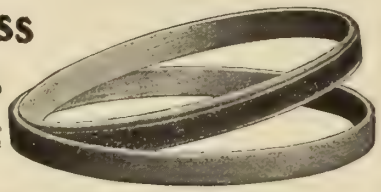


Samples of cards, in loose leaf albums lying on the counter, are attractive. Among the latest productions

Embroidery Hoops

Made from selected light-colored hardwood, finished perfectly smooth and true in shape.

Sold in over 18,000 stores throughout the United States and Canada.



Princess Hoops

Made in sizes 4 5, 6, 7, 8, 10 and 12 inch diameter.

The "Princess" requires no winding to make the hoops fit tightly, as the nickel-plated bow-spring adjusts itself to a thick or thin fabric, holding the material firmly and without injury.

Duchess Hoops

Sizes 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10 and 12 inch diameter.

It's the felt cushion around the inner hoop of the "Duchess" which holds light or heavy fabrics tightly stretched. The most popular Hoops on the market.

Royal-Oval Hoops

Made in two sizes.

6 by 12 inches for drawn-work and large embroidering having every advantage of a large 12 inch round hoop, with the convenience in handling of a small size.

3 by 6 inches for small embroidering, especially desirable for working designs on stockings.

Special-Select Hoops

Sizes 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10 and 12 inch.

A low-priced plain wooden Hoop, lathe-turned, very smooth and carefully fitted.

The different style Hoops are put up separately; ½-dozen solid pairs of a size in a covered package.

Order from your Wholesaler.

The Gibbs Mfg. Co., CANTON, OHIO, U. S. A.

Also makers of The "Never Stop" Humming Top and other Toys. Big Sellers. Send for Catalogue.

LIDDELL'S LINENS

The "Gold Medal" brand is known to every housekeeper whose trade is worth having. It means

ARTISTIC PATTERNS
AND SERVICEABLE QUALITY TO HER.

It means SURE SALES and HANDSOME PROFITS to you

SEE SAMPLES NOW ON THE ROAD
WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED PRICE LIST

R. H. COSBIE
30 W. Wellington St. - TORONTO
IRISH LINEN AGENCY

that should be added to stock are the fire-light effects, showing persons sitting or standing before open fireplaces. Then there are the typical scenes in the glow of the street lights. The farm scenes in photo chrome are having a splendid run at present. Indian heads are in very good demand. The wrestling series is one that should be popular with the sporty element. The world-wide series provides scenes from many climes, the polar regions to darkest Africa. That entitled "Our Prehistoric Ancestors" is very amusing. "Facial Expressions" will please the student of human nature. Hand-colored floral cards should also be well received.

At this time of the year a good line of Easter cards should not be neglected. Manufacturers have turned out a very pretty range that should appeal to a high class of trade. Floral cards, particularly those showing Easter lilies, are most attractive this year. Then there is the folding card containing appropriate Easter greeting printed on parchment effects

FANCY BOXES FOR MANY PURPOSES.

Among the novelties in the season's offerings are the antimony metal goods. This combination metal lends itself particularly well to the casting of difficult designs, which are very effective. Some very handsome trays are made, but it is in boxes, covered inkstands and napkin rings that it is used most largely. Figures and ornamental designs are brought out distinctly in the moulding of this metal and the various tints in the finish go far towards making articles which should prove exceptionally good as souvenirs. Lacquered ware is another line which is very popular for boxes suitable for holding

(Continued on page 140.)

THE CANADIAN FUR TRADE

Season has been Prosperous—Indications Point Toward Bigger Business.

THE CANADIAN FUR TRADE.

January belongs to the retail furriers. During that month they depend upon their reduction sales to clear their stock as much as possible. The manufacturer and wholesaler look on with great interest, for upon the retailer's reduction of stock depends his early orders for the coming fur season. From both standpoints trade has been highly satisfactory; there was not a great of stock to mark down to sacrificial prices, and the public were in a position to buy. Many had deferred the buying of furs, partly because of the open weather, and partly because the anticipation of better bargains in January made them hold their cash until the more advantageous season. While bargains were to be had, the fact that the best had long since been sold never seemed to occur to the minds of the purchasers. It is admitted that goods left until the close of the season are not of such good values as the goods bought earlier. During the past month wholesalers have been very quiet in their selling, but they have been remarkably active during that time with their plans for the coming season. Many of them have visited the various sources of supply during the month to get some information regarding their standing as to prices during the coming season. Collections are not considered very large when it is thought that the coming season will be one of the biggest, if not the biggest on record. There is every indication of this, and judging from the elaborate plans of the manufacturers, in preparing their samples, the market will be active in the lines which have established a reputation which no novelty can consistently displace.

There is an optimistic feeling in fur centres which is based largely upon the remarkable demand for fashionable furs, and the prosperous condition of the country. One merchant, endowed with a touch of philosophy, pointed out that furs were bought now-a-days not so much because furs were fashionable but because it was a pride belonging to the twentieth century to exhibit personal prosperity by wearing expensive garments This, no doubt, pleases the merchant, and there is but little thought given to the cause of the great sales of fur garments so long as it continues. Undoubtedly the rigors of the Canadian climate justify the wearing of furs. The growth and expansion of the West, where the climate is more severe, is largely accountable for the great volume of business done in the heavier fur garments.

Small Furs Profitable.

The fashion for small fur neckwear has been well sustained throughout the season, and bids fair to be continued during the coming season. The trimmings of tails, claws and heads will continue to be used largely, as there has been nothing advanced so far that could profitably and acceptably take their place.

Retail trade depends largely upon favorable weather conditions, especially for the sale of heavy furs. It has been noticed that large retailers advertised more extensively, and especially during slow months, with the hope of stimulating trade. There was no need of pushing the small mink neckwear, as the supply of these was inadequate to the demand. The old-time Winter weather during the past month stimulated trade to a great extent, and manufacturers who had banked heavily on coon coats and fur-lined coats were happy in view of the heavy demand for these garments during the cold weather. From the Western Provinces repeats of late date were very frequent for heavy articles.

Prices Will Remain High.

The prices of furs have been higher this year than ever before, and it is a matter of conjecture just where the present trend of the raw fur market will end. There is no relief yet in sight, and not until the January sales in London are recorded will jobbers know exactly how prices will stand for the latter part of the coming season. It is known that a shortage of coon, Persian lamb, mink, and the better grades of seal renders the prices of garments made of these furs very uncertain at present, and there will be but little advantage in open cutting of prices among jobbers. It is realized that if prices still continue to climb many of the lines will be almost prohibitive. First-class houses have their reputaiton to sustain, and if any grevious attempts are made

W. C. WILLIS,
Representing The Albert Vineberg Fur Co. in Northern Ontario.

at imitating the better lines they will carry on an aggressive campaign against the sales of these goods by pushing the genuine lines. To do this the question of price must play an active and telling part in the sales. Manufacturers realize that they must cover themselves with a good margin of profit in the face of existing high prices. They have bought when skins were high, and it would be disastrous if they failed to sell before a decline occurred.

Big Season for Linings Expected.

While jobbers have not yet completed their plans, samples and new styles for the coming season, they are unanimous in the belief that, owing to the high prices of many of the furs, and in anticipation of a hard Winter being the lot of Canadians next year, they are of the belief that the consumers will take a refuge in buying fur-lined garments. There is a growing demand for these garments and the climatic conditions here are favorable to their wear. Buyers who have recently visited the markets of the United States are of the opinion that they have done well in choosing linings for the coming season. One furrier said that merchants of that country are banking heavily on linings of rat. He had

Learn to Look to Me

You're beginning to think of new resolutions for your 1907-1908 Fur buying—perhaps put in a larger department, go after the trade better.

I will soon be ready with a line on a much larger scale than ever before. No hit-or-miss styles, but dependable sellers in reliable Furs.

My operators are skilful and experienced in their particular departments, ensuring proper fit and workmanship.

My salesmen will leave next month with the line. Get in touch with me. For a better and larger Fur Trade, look to me.

A. J. ALEXANDOR

504-506 St. Paul Street - - - - Montreal

bought a very large assortment of muskrat skins, and in New York could have turned them over at a bigger profit than by making them up in Montreal for the trade. The prices will remain firm, but should the demand be as great as expected, then the price would inevitably be increased.

Conditions in Raw Material Markets.

In speaking with The Review, J. A. Sage, buyer for Waldron, Drouin Co., Montreal, who has recently returned from a trip to St. Louis and other fur centres of the United States, said in part: "Conditions of the raw fur markets are, at present, suffering from shortage and excessive demand. Coon skins, in particular, started out with great activity and everything tends towards a greater year than we have had for a long time. Muskrat, mink and coon skins are in the greatest demand, and Canadian buyers have every reason to feel satisfied with the collections obtained.

"A visitor to the United States is struck with the glowing advertisements of departmental store furriers; they advertise their goods as being the Acme of Perfection, and especially do thy wax enthusiastic over their various Eastern and other mink articles. A visitor to the stores, however, reveals the fact that these extravagantly advertised furs are nothing but cheap goods of very inferior quality. They could never stand the light of day in Canada. After all is told, if values are required, Canada cannot be excelled as a buying place for good furs. The prices of raw furs are slightly higher than last year, and, consequently, the prices of fur garments will remain firm. Altogether the market is exceedingly active and augers well for a successful season."

FURS PLENTIFUL IN NORTHERN CANADA.

All the furs that are coming in at the present time, states a despatch from Fort Saskatchewan, are those gathered by the farmers and small trappers within a ten-mile radius of the city. This local supply is now very good, and a considerable number of excellent furs are being brought in.

About the middle or latter part of January the trappers and hunters from Lesser Slave lake and Lac Du Biche will arrive in the city, with fur packs. They usually start for Edmonton immediately after Christmas and come again after the season is over.

The trappers from the north, however, do not leave as long as there are any fur-bearing animals to be killed in season. After the Winter is over they begin to come down, and reach the city about the middle of August or the first of September. They bring such furs as lynx, beaver, otter, marten, timber wolf, beaver, fox, etc.

Experienced fur dealers expect to get a large consignment of fur from the far north next Summer, as the Winter, so far, has been good for the traffic. According to the signs timber wolves are plentiful in the Peace River district, for when the wolves are vry numerous in the north, the moose travel south, and old-timers say they never remember the moose to have been so plentiful nteh the city as this season. Marten and lynx also reported to be very plentiful. They live on rabbits, and this year the rabbit supply is abundant.

The scarcity of muskrats is due, it is said, to the deep snow. They live in burrows, and when the snow is very deep it covers up their homes. The trappers set their traps on top of the muskrat holes and when the snow is very deep they do not know where to find them.

The coyotes are very plentiful this Winter, and on account of the snow being so deep they find it hard to get footing. Farmers in the surrounding district report that the coyotes come close up to their dwellings in search of food.

Altogether the dealers are expecting a prosperous season for the fur trappers in the north, and next Summer they expect the number and size of the packs of fur to be larger and better than ever. The cold Winter will make a thick growth of fur on the animals, so that the pelts should be of the very best quality. As Edmonton is practically the last town to the north on the railway, and is a well known traders' post, this fur industry is of considerable importance to it, about a million dollars' worth of furs passing through each year.

A NEW FUR HOUSE.

The Albert Vineberg Fur Company, 626 St. Paul St., Montreal, is a new fur firm, with Albert Vineberg as proprietor. Mr. Vineberg has a good connection in the trade, and obtained his early experience with M. Vineberg & Co.

Mr. Vineberg has surrounded himself with capable men and has excellent factory facilities. The head designer, Mr. Barthos, was formerly with Revillion Freres, Paris, and he is in full charge of the factory. The firm will make a specialty of astrachan jackets and fur-lined garments and will work up such furs as Russian sables and extra fine mink skins. W. C. Willis will represent the firm in Northern Ontario. Mr. Vineberg himself will call on the trade in Western Ontario.

FUR FIRM EXPANDS.

McComber & Cummings, 516 St. Paul St., Montreal, are making extensive plans for the opening of the new season, and will soon move to much larger quarters at the corner of St. Sulplice and St. Paul Sts. As a result of their increased business the firm has now associated with them, J. Hand, formerly head foreman and designer for L. Gnaedinger Sons & Co. Mr. Hand will have full charge of the workroom.

DECLINE IN SEAL-SKIN OFFERINGS.

The mild rainy autumn in Europe which has been unfavorable to the fur trade, is held to account for the lower prices received at the salted fur seal sales. The offering was 14,778 Alaska skins, against 22,409 last year,; 15,368 Northwest Coast against 19,443 last year; 7,405 Lobos against 2,026 last year. The attendance of buyers was good and the sale was a brisk one. Alaska skins declined 7 per cent., Northwest, 12 per cent and Lobos, 10 per cent.

PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION BILL.

The passing of the Prevention of Corruption Bill just in the face of the holiday season, has brought it into extra prominence, for, undoubtedly, every buyer who receives a Christmas present from any of the firms he does business with, comes under its provisions. Though this phase of the Act is likely to remain a dead letter, it will, as a whole, affect every buyer and seller in a large way of business. Under the new Act, not only the receiver, but the giver, of a present or bribe, or of a secret commision, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and is liable to fines varying from £50 to £500, and from four months to two years' imprisonment. Some firms have sent out circulars requesting that no presents be sent to their buyers, while others make the request that the presents be addressed to the firm, who will make the distribution.

TOO LATE!

Not by a Big, Profitable Margin

There'll be More Furs Sold during the Next Month than most Reckon on

We Can Help You

Send us your orders—if you're crushed for time, or if you have closed your work room for the time being — and we'll do the best we know how for you. Our facilities are unmatched — our experience and reputation known and proved genuine.

WE HAVE A CATALOGUE THAT INTERESTS MOST. A POST CARD BRINGS IT, AND YOU OUGHT TO HAVE IT.

WM. E. ORR & CO.

MANUFACTURING FURRIERS

The House of Reliability, Excellence and Style

93 YONGE ST., TORONTO

A NEW FUR HOUSE

(New in name only)

Mr. Albert Vineberg, the head of our firm, has had a wide experience in the Fur trade, which ensures right goods and right treatment.

Our head designer, Mr. B. Barthos (late with Revillon Freres, Paris) is in full charge of the factory.

Exceptional factory facilities and expert work people mean good workmanship and prompt attention.

We will show a strong range of Astrachan Jackets and Fur-lined Garments, with exceptional novelties in Small Furs.

THE

ALBERT VINEBERG FUR CO.

622 St. Paul Street, MONTREAL

All our garments bear a guarantee label

Our Mr. Willis will cover Northern Ontario

PLAIN TRUTHS FROM PARIS

EVEN our advertising can do no more for you than introduce new customers to your store. Through you, they find out the real value of the best underwear we know how to make. After that it depends on the underwear whether they buy it again ; and it depends on you whether they come back to your store. You can count on us to send the people to you. Our ample outlays for publicity do that for merchants all over Canada. And you can count on the sales-making power of

Pen-Angle
Unshrinkable Underwear

Nothing is skimped or spared in the making of Pen-Angle goods. That is made plain by the guarantee we give you, and which you can pass on to the buyers we send you. It is worth your while to stock a line which is sold for you, guaranteed to you, and made so well that it adds to your reputation. Any traveller for a good house will show you the kind of underwear you can really afford to sell.

The Penman Manufacturing Co., Limited of Paris, Canada : : : : : : : : :

Men's Furnisher and Clothier

Ready-to-Wear Clothing

Merchants Who Stock Best Goods Procurable Will Make Money.

The ready-to-wear clothing business has, generally speaking, been exceptionally good this Winter, and Spring trade promises to reach the same standard. During the past year a considerable improvement has been made in the quality of the goods turned out, and the results have been splendid. There must still be a big improvement before the wearing of ready-made garments becomes as general in Canada as on the other side of the line. This condition is on the way and we get nearer to it with every step forward that the manufacturers make. The retailer who sticks to the ready-to-wear department and sells only the best goods procurable is bound to make money and build up a fine trade. Men now look the garments over and compare prices and qualities, who, not long ago, wouldn't think of purchasing a ready-made suit or overcoat.

PANAMA HAT INDUSTRY.

One of the important industries of the Republic of Colombia is that of making palm hats, known as Panama hats, of which nearly $400,000 in value are exported annually. There are no regular factories, but the hats are hand-made by thousands of peasant women in almost as many households and sold or traded in the local stores in exchange for provisions or articles of clothing, the hat being in these regions a convenient medium of exchange ; the housewife exchanging the product of her labor for so many pounds of flour, sugar, etc.

How Panama Hats Are Made.

Panama hats are made with the veins or fibers of a palm leaf, the tissues of which are scraped off or combed in much the same way as hemp. The palm (Carludovica palmata), called locally "jipijapa," is very small in appearance and grows in great quantities on the low and swampy lands of the upper Magdalena. It grows wild, but is also cultivated, although to a limited extent, in the largest hat districts, the palm producing in a little over a year. The preparation of the fiber after the tissues have been combed off, consists of boiling same in water containing salt and lemon juice for the effect of whitening and rounding its surface ; this operation takes a few hours. The straw is then exposed to night air for three consecutive nights, after which it is ready for use. The material employed in the making of a hat is marketed at from 15 to 40 cents (equivalent thereof) per hat, according to the fineness and whiteness of the straw, the youngest leaves generally giving the best quali,y. It takes a woman four days to make an ordinary hat, eight days for a good one, and as much as fifteen days for the finest hat made in Colombia. The salary of the peasant woman employed in the making of a "jipijapa" hat is reckoned at 10 cents a day, including her food, which can be calculated at 10 cents additional.

The best hats exported from this country are those called "Suaza," made in the city of that name in the department of Cundimarca. The next in order are the Antioquenos, made in the department of Antioquia. Then follow the ones made in the department of Santander, called, respectively, Zapatoca, Barichara, Bucaramanga, and Giron, from the various cities where made, and varying in quality and price in the order named. But the Zapatoca, although the most expensive from Santander, are supposed to be of less duration.

Method of Shipping.

The best Suaza hat exported costs on the premises $5 and the cheapest from that place $1, the Antioquenos one degree cheaper, the cheapest of all being those from the department of Santander, which range from 50 cents to $2, according to the quality. Indeed, some Panama hats, made at the rate of one a day, sell for less than 50 cents, but these are made exclusively for home consumption and in no way exported.

Hats are generally exported by the local merchants, mostly through the agency of a commission house at the port of shipment. In some cases foreign houses buy direct, whereas a few individuals take their own merchandise to the foreign country where it is marketed by them personally.

HATS FOR SPRING AND SUMMER.

For Spring there will be a good call for the shape with brim straighter than usual. The crowns are pretty high along with it.

* * *

The telescope soft felt hat will have a big sale again. The popular shape will have the brim pulled well down in the front.

* * *

We know of a good firm which stocked heavily on brown stiff hats for Fall, and have been unable to get rid of them. The buyer told us that he looked to the vogue of grey suitings to help him, as brown goes well with grey, but he has been sorely disappointed. The demand has centred almost entirely on black, and will con-

(5) GOOD REASONS

why you should sell our productions.

SUSPENDERS

(5)
Trade D. Mark
President
Cyclo
Butterfly
Bull Terrier

(5)
Reliability
Durability
Popularity
Simplicity
Desirability

NECKWEAR

(5)
Shadow Bar Plaids
Poplin Jacks
Mader Foulards
Italian Baratheas
Rayed Greys

(5)
Style
Workmanship
Quality
Shapes
Packing

DOMINION SUSPENDER CO.
NIAGARA NECKWEAR CO., Limited

Niagara Falls.

MONTREAL TORONTO WINNIPEG VANCOUVER

New Designs
Selected Skins

WISELY BOUGHT IS HALF SOLD !

Perfect Equipment
Skilled Artisans

YOUR Glove Stock is wisely bought if you have stocked the famous "J. A. P." Gloves and Mitts. Of course, if you bought last year you already know this. It's for the benefit of those who haven't yet found it out that this fact is mentioned. If you have never stocked "J. A. P." Gloves and Mitts you would be wise to see one of our 18 travellers before buying. The "J.A.P." Gloves and Mitts are made in over two thousand different styles—from the finest of ladies' gloves to the strongest and heaviest of workingmen's mitts. Every style represents the maximum of value--every seam is bound to stay sewn. The reputation of the "J A.P." brand must be maintained at any cost. Every improvement known to glove-making is embodied in the "J.A P." line.

J. A. P. Gloves and Mitts

Fine Finish
Perfect Fit

If you are not now on our visiting list, drop us a card and you'll be on immediately.

High Quality
Low Price

J. ARTHUR PAQUET, Quebec

Branches at WINNIPEG, TORONTO, MONTREAL, OTTAWA and ST. JOHN, N.B.

tinue to do so. In view of the advanced prices of raw materials manufacturers find it good policy to be more than ordinarily conservative.

* * *

The sailor straw will again be the thing, but the flexible brim straw, without binding, will be worn extensively. We don't believe much in the prophecy that Panamas are coming back stronger than ever.

Wash Neckwear

Will Again be the Thing—Narrower Widths Allow of Better Values.

The coming Summer will be another big season for wash neckwear, bigger, perhaps, than last Summer, which is saying a great deal. The manufacturers have just about decided on their lines and will be busy turning them out very shortly.

* * *

White will be an important feature, of course, but, as we predicted last month, white and cream with coin dots and polka dots will be strong, A great deal of confidence is expressed in these, and we feel that it will be borne out.

* * *

The three-inch four-in-hand is still the popular tie, but we are told that it will give place to the two and a-quarter and two and a-half inch widths. One reason is that a Summer tie three inches wide would be so heavy as to destroy the appearance of coolness so much desired. Then the smaller widths will remain later than the Summer, because such a course would accord with the conditions of the raw material market. In three-inch ties, particularly baratheas, values have dropped considerably. In the smaller widths the manufacturers are better able to make the goods look up well, and retailers and consumers are better satisfied.

* * *

For Spring the color features are red, green and grey in pretty shades, none of them loud. A big variety of other colors are selling well also.

* * *

In bows the one tying in a loose-looking, compact knot, the same width across, will command most favor in the best class of trade. A few Ascots are selling for Spring, but puffs are not thought of.

* * *

Several manufacturers are pushing plaids, but, so far, we cannot see that they are going to have any kind of a run. A few of them, as novelties, are all right.

WAISTCOATS.

Wash waistcoats are being ordered liberally, and a good many flannels have been taken also. The former are mainly in pure white or small neat figures. The best style has a long opening at the top, while the bottom dips sharply and the ends are cut off to form a deep inverted V.

Cluett Peabody & Co., New York, will establish a branch factory at Hamilton.

Shirts and Collars

A Tendency to Go Back to the Stiff Bosom Shirt in Season.

There is a growing tendency on the part of the public to get away from the soft front shirt, and, for reasons that we have frequently pointed out in these columns, the trade will be well satisfied when this style of garment again attains the position which rightly belongs to it. Just now there is quite a good demand for stiff bosoms—at least the sales are much larger than they have been in a long while. This gives strength to our prediction that by next Fall the stiff front will once more be generally recognized as the correct shirt for Fall and Winter, just as the negligee is logically the hot-weather garment. The sale of the latter at all seasons of the year naturally means that fewer shirts are bought than would otherwise be the case. Perhaps it is just as well that this has been so lately, for the factories have found great difficulty in coping with the demand.

A new stiff front that we saw the other day had a plain grey body, with bosom and cuffs in self check, the former long and narrow. The shirt was of the coat style, with cuffs attached. This looked to us like a garment that would take the public fancy.

In the Spring the most worn color will likely be plain blue. Plain colors are still decidedly the favorites.

* * *

A great objection to the attached cuff for business wear was that it got down around the hand in writing and soiled easily. This has been overcome by starching the sleeves for three or four inches up. When the starched part is folded within the cuff, and the latter fastened, the cuff is well away from the hand and cannot slip down.

* * *

In the coming Summer we believe there will be an unusually large demand for white negligee shirts. The attached collar for outing wear will be popular. White silk shirts promise to have a good call.

* * *

Values this season are away behind those of last for legitimate reasons that are well known. The retailer should encourage the purchase of the better lines in which qualities are more likely to be satisfactory to his customers.

* * *

The wing collar still leads easily in the public estimation, and will do so through the Spring. A good many folds are being worn, and we believe that they will become more popular with the advent of smaller widths in neckwear. A medium height fold with four-in-hand tie nicely trimmed has a very dressy appearance.

The collar for Summer will be the fold with V-shaped opening. Straight folds will likely be worn more than last season.

FEATURE YOUR JEWELRY.

Too many haberdashers minimize or entirely ignore the profit-producing possibilities in a generous stock of jewelry for men. Perhaps the trade has overlooked this remunerative department to some extent through lack of knowledge of the live facts. Whatever be the cause, there are scores of merchants who are permitting business to slip through their hands by their failure to feature, in some distinctive way, the little ornaments which men of taste so generally affect.

This is particularly true of haberdashers in the smaller towns. They—or many of them—have proceeded on the theory that the local jeweler has everything his own way; that as his competitor it would be futile to attempt to make a special jewelry department pay. In this assumption there is a deal of false reasoning. Men visit haberdashery shops much more frequently than any other class. They make friends of retailers and clerks. They are not strongly endowed with the shopping instinct and a large proportion of them have a horror of the departmental store crush of feminine bargain-seekers.

It must be granted that once you have a man in your shop half the battle is won. He is disposed to look about ,and if he notices something pleasing to his fancy or something he has intended to purchase, he would much prefer to complete the transaction on the spot than to start on an expedition among jewelry shops, which too frequently pay but scant attention to cravat pins, cuff buttons, fobs and kindred articles.

In connection with the returns from the jewelry department, it is no stretching of the truth to assert that from 50 to 100 per cent. profit may be obtained on a large portion of the jewelry stock. Some retailers there are who secure three and four times the original cost. It is well to adhere to reasonable prices, yet there is no reason why the jewelry department cannot be made equally as lucrative, if not more so, as any line of haberdashery. It only requires an occasional reminder to the public by any one of the means of advertising.

A matter to be borne in mind is the small space the merchant is called upon to devote to this department by comparison with others. Then, too, he will find that jewelry in boxes or in conjunction with shirts and cravats imparts a bit of life and finesse to his window trims. In a day when so many young men possess a variety of pins, links and studs, it is only keeping abreast of the time to introduce them in displays where the observant eye would expect to find them.

SUITINGS AND STYLES.

The blue and grey suitings that have been bought for Spring are very pretty. Fancies are the strong lines in both colors.

One of the popular styles for Spring will be a fairly long coat, slightly form-fitting, with pressed seams but no vent. Another coat will have pleats instead of pressed seams. Trousers will still be pegtop and semi-peg-top.

UNDERWEAR FOR SUMMER.

The underwear with knee-length drawers and shirt with low neck and no sleeves will have a much bigger sale this season than last. It has been tried by many people and found very comfortable. Mesh goods will be popular in this and other styles for hot weather wear.

There is a decided tendency toward the wearing of lighter weights in underwear during the Winter.

DOMINION TRAVELERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association was organized in 1875 with a membership of 200, and there are now 5,684 names on the roll, with a reserve fund of $283,500. 1906 was the most prosperous year of all, as the surplus carried to the reserve was $28,750.

The membership of all the commercial travelers' associations of the Dominion now amounts to at least 18,000.

COLOSSUS
SHIRTS & OVERALLS
READ THIS
THE COLOSSUS IDEA
It is simply this: The size and fit of a COLOSSUS Shirt or Overall are made equally important as the materials and workmanship. The aim is to produce garments large and comfortable as well as strong and durable.
Now, an experienced Shirt Man will perhaps grasp the value of our idea more readily than the ordinary purchaser, but what we claim for COLOSSUS garments is that, when once worn, they will satisfy to such an extent that your customer will re-order them again and again.
If you are not already handling COLOSSUS Shirts and Overalls it is a certainty you should be. They're comfortable, wearable and saleable, and any Wholesaler in the Dominion can recommend them.

"J" Brand Collars, Cuffs and Shirts

Wear Like Leather

THE AUSTRIAN GOODS OF PROVEN MERIT

Astoria, 2, 2¼, 2½

NEW AND

COMPLETE STOCK

READY

PROMPT DELIVERIES

Windsor, 1¾, 2, 2¼, 2½, 2¾

"J" BRAND COLLARS: } Derby Quality—$1.00 per dozen. Indestructible Quality—$1.50 per dozen.

Quality—Proven Unapproachable.

Accurate Fit—Superior Finish.

Newest styles for the coming season.

Ask your customers to note how many more trips to the laundry "J" Brand collars will make than any other collar.

The right sort of advertising is making these collars even better known to your customers.

ARE YOU IN LINE? ELECTROS UPON REQUEST.

A Specialty is made of

EVENING DRESS SHIRTS

Beauty

Sole agents for the celebrated

Empire Linen Mesh Underwear

We will shortly be in a position to fill all orders same day as received.

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

THE CANADIAN UNDERWEAR CO.

IN OUR NEW AND SPACIOUS HOME

505 St. Paul St., = = = = MONTREAL

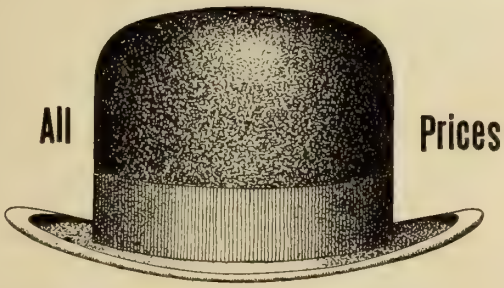
AERTEX

THE ORIGINAL

CELLULAR

THE HEALTHIEST

Shirts and Uuderwear



Illustrated Price List, of full range of Aertex Cellular Goods for Men Women and Children, sent Post Free on application.

Agents for Canada :

WREYFORD & CO.

Romain Buildings King St. West, TORONTO

Our Own Manufacture

All Prices

A Spring Leader

Samples Upon Request

Fur and Cap Samples for Fall and Winter 1907, now ready

Panamas Blocked To Order

Felt Hats Renovated

Travellers are now covering Ontario and Quebec. Suppose you write to-day to make sure our man will call.

THE SPECIALTY HAT HOUSE

A. E. CLEMENT

8 Lemoine Street, - MONTREAL

OVERALL PERFECTION

Roomy, well-made, right-priced garments.

Send for the proof by asking for samples.

THE ROCK ISLAND OVERALL CO.

ROCK ISLAND, QUE.

Globe Suspenders

OUR LEADERS

"WIZARD" to retail 50c.

and "PRINCE" to retail 25c.

"Always something new in the line." Samples for the asking.

The Globe Suspender Co., Rock Island, Que.

Persons addressing advertisers kindly mention this paper.

"CAMPBELL CLAD" COMPANY

Limited

Our Samples for "Special Orders" are now ready for Spring.

This department is doubling up on account of the satisfaction we give. Write to us for samples and measuring forms. You will receive them next day

"Campbell Clad" Company, Limited

MONCTON, N.B.

A. S. CAMPBELL, Manager

Motorist (wet through)—Just look how my coat is shrinking !
2nd Motorist—My dear fellow, why don't you wear GARBIRNETT ?
Specially constructed weatherproof cloth.
The very thing for automobiling, riding, driving, etc.
Al goods bear this stamp.

"GARBIRNETT"
"JENNWEL"
WATERPROOF
REGISTERED

Sole Makers, JOSHUA F. GARNETT & SON, Castle Mills, Idle, Bradford
Canadian Representatives : GEO. S. PLOW & CO., 232 McGill St., Montreal.
A. ALEXANDER & CO., 77 York St. Toronto.
MAKERS TO THE WHOLESALE TRADE ONLY.

The Day of Buying Imported Cloth is Passing. One Reason Why:

OXFORD TWEEDS AND HOMESPUNS

have steadily increased in value as stylish materials. It is notorious that they are absolutely Pure Wool goods, but when the Newest Patterns and Smartest Colorings are added they certainly win their way on very merit. For men, women and children.

OXFORD MANUFACTURING CO.
OXFORD, NOVA SCOTIA Limited

MILLS ESTABLISHED 1867.

Fashion Cuts

TO OUR READERS

The Review uses monthly in its reading columns late fashion cuts which we secure from the old and new worlds.

These are only used once by us, and we offer these cuts to our supporters for their advertising work at the following low rates :

15 cents per square inch for half-tones
7 " " " " " zinc etchings

Only the originals will be sold.

When ordering please mention page and month of the Review in which the cut appeared.

d d ress :

MONTREAL
232 McGill Street

TORONTO
10 Front St. East

WREYFORD & CO. Romaine Building, TORONTO

Wholesale Men's Furnishers

Latest Novelties for High-Class Trade

Agents for Following Manufacturers :

Young & Rochester, London
Complete ranges for Spring 1907.
Fancy Vests, Flannel and Tropical Tweed Suits, New Shirts and Shirtings

Tress & Co., London
Spring Styles in Felt and Silk Hats. Straws, English shapes are now correct; English values always are. Tress Caps are best sent into Canada.

Cellular "Aertex" Underwear
"Aertex" has only to be worn to be appreciated; it is daily growing in favor; it gives good wear to customer and good profits to retailer.

Cooper, Corah & Sons,
St. Margaret's Works, LEICESTER
Cashmere and Worsted Hosiery, "Nelson" Unshrinkable Knitted Underwear, Athletic Shirts, Sweaters, and Bathing Suits

We can ship you at once—Dress Shirts at $9.00 and $12.00, Dress Vests at $13.50 and $15.00 doz.

MADE IN CANADA

THE STRACHAN $3.00 HAT

FOR MEN

EVERY HAT GUARANTEED

The variety of correct styles in which Strachan Hats are made affords a wide range for the choice of shapes which will appeal to men who realize that a hat is proper only when it is becoming.

We are now appointing agents in every town. Write for the agency.

STRACHAN BROS.

FACTORY AND OFFICE

130 WELLINGTON ST. WEST, - - TORONTO

BUSINESS NOTES

ONTARIO.

Lynn Bros., general store, Warsaw ; sold out.

Ernest Pritchard, general store, Newbridge ; sold to R. Bowes.

James S. Kelly, general store, Markdale ; sold to Jones & Dundas.

Ritchie & Gibson, general store, Inveray ; succeeded by J. H. Morris.

C. Draimin & Co., furs, Toronto ; style changed to Brodey, Draimin & Co.

Fraser Little, dry goods, boots and shoes, Orono ; is moving to Sintaluta, Sask.

Tallon & Co., dry goods, Cornwall, stock damaged by fire and water, insured.

Paisley & Guthrie, general store, Cedar Springs ; dissolved, Paisley continuing.

The J. F. Brownscombe Co., general store, Uxbridge; selling out, removing to New Liskeard.

Drake, Hambly & Co., W. F. dry goods, Toronto; dissolved, succeeded by Hambly, Oakley & Wilson.

John S. Harker, dry goods and men's furnishings, Hamilton ; admitted W. H. Webber, style, Harker & Webber.

QUEBEC.

Fortin & Belanger, dry goods, Quebec ; dissolved.

Gilbert Stalker, general store, Flodden ; burnt out.

The Gardiner Clothing Mfg. Co., Quebec ; registered.

Upton Brunelle, general store, St. Simon ; deceased.

Lafrance & Lefebvre, dry goods, Montreal ; dissolved.

R. S. Marshall, general store, Leeds Village ; sold out.

Jos. Saad, dry goods, Montreal ; sold to Maher Bros.

Goldwater & Goldstein, dry goods, Montreal ; dissolved.

Louis Morneau, general store, St. Jean De Vaudreuil; deceased.

Bessette & Vineberg, manufacturing furriers, Montreal ; dissolved.

Berger & Co., ladies' garments, Montreal ; Mrs. L. Berger registered.

Roodin & Slieps, clothing, Montreal ; M. Roodin and B. Slieps registered.

C. G. Tremblay, general store, Magog ; Annie M. Tremblay registered.

The Berlin Mantle and Skirt Mfg. Co., Quebec ; J. Brousseau, registered.

McNaughton Bros., general store, Huntington ; Alex. McNaughton, deceased.

Rosenthal & Pelton, manufacturers waterproof clothing, Montreal ; dissolved.

Sorel Mfg. Co., ladies' garments, Sorel ; premises damaged by fire, insurance.

A. Meloche & Co., general store, St. Genevieve ; Mrs. Adelard Meloche registered.

The People's Cash Store Co., general store, Lorette ; R. A. Richardson registered.

S. Freedman & Co., manufacturers cloth, Montreal ; Mr. S. Freedman registered.

Cyrille Bisson, general store, St. Vincent De Paul ; burnt out, partially insured.

The New York Suspender and Pants Co., Montreal ; Jacob Blumenthal registered.

Lajoie, Frere & Co., dry goods, Three Rivers ; dissolved, Real Lajoie continues.

N. & M. Waker, dry goods, Montreal ; Nicholas Waker and Michael Waker registered.

Poirier & Martel, dry goods, Montreal ; Rosario Poirier and E. Martel registered.

J. F. Lemercier & Co., dry goods, Montreal ; dissolved, Mary Guillemette registered.

Newbold Bros., R. Newbold, knitted hosiery, Montreal ; dissolved, Wm. Turner registered.

J. L. Goodhue & Co., belt manufacturers, Danville ; Geo. F. Cleveland and Mrs. F. Cleveland registered.

W. J. Bell & Co., general store, Cowansville ; dissolved. Bell & Kerr; W. J. Bell and Isaac H. Kerr.

Gingras & Dussault, clothing manufacturers, Montreal ; Telesphore Gingras and Alderic Dussault registered.

Chaleyer & Orkin, millinery, Montreal ; dissolved, F. Chaleyer retired. Business continued under style J. M. Orkin & Co.

WEST.

W. H. Howey & Co., clothing, Brandon ; loss by fire.

A. Laut, general store, Sheho ; retired from business.

A. T. Charlton, general store, Port Hanley ; deceased.

Docker & Fraser, general store, Heward ; dissolved.

D. G. Campbell & Co., general store, Alix; burnt out.

M. Krushen, general store, Yorkton ; sold o A. Laut.

M. Krolik, general store, Grayson ; sold to H. Smith.

S. L. Smith, general store, Bardal ; sold to John A. Smith.

Lerner Bros., general store, Brandon ; sold Oakburn branch.

D. A. Finlay, general store, Sheho ; retired from business.

Bellhouse & Craik, general store, Tees ; succeeded by Craik Bros.

P. J. Guilmette, general store, Howell ; succeeded by J. Longere.

R. W. Faulks, general store, Evarts ; succeeded by Smith Bros.

A. E. Rowse, general store, Humboldt ; succeeded by Rowse Bros.

Grand View Mercantile Co., general store, Grand View ; dissolved.

Paterson & Son, general store, Okotoks ; succeeded by Paterson Bros.

Williams & Bannister, men's furnishings, Carberry ; sold to A. E. Webb.

W. L. Hodnett, general store, Arrow River ; sold to J. F. Tennant & Co.

F. X. Duchesneau, general store, Hitchcock ; succeeded by J. Duchesneau.

Owen & Tanner, general store, Raymond ; succeeded by Owen & Simmons.

H. Girtel, general store, Gruber ; succeeded by Silberjahn & Rabinowitz.

Bowden Mercantile Co., general store ; succeeded by Humphry & Lancaster.

Glover & Farr, general store, Airdrie ; succeeded by Glover & MacCormack.

S. J. Staples, general store, Carman ; succeeded by Staples & Abercrombie.

H. W. Wilson, general store, Sedley ; sold to J. O. Scott, possession Feb. 1.

Revillon Bros., Ltd., general store, Edmonton ; succeeded by Acme Co., Ltd.

Horton & Cook, general store, Pincher Creek ; succeeded by J. A. A. Alexander.

Goldstein & Millman, general store, Canora ; dissolved ; L. Goldstein continues.

Johnson & Jonasson, general store, Sleipner ; succeeded by Johnson & Sigfusson.

Miller & Hamer, general store, Minga ; burnt out.

N. J. Ryan, general store, Ninga ; burnt out.

MARITIME PROVINCES.

W. C. Currie, general store, Elmsdale, P.E.I.; burned out.

Hugh Hay & Son, dry goods, Woodstock; Hugh Hay retires.

Culbert & Scott, general store, Sussex, N.B.; dissolved partnership.

John S. Ferguson & Sons, Ltd., general store, Newcastle ; incorporated.

Empire Cloak Mfg. Co., St. John ; amalgamated with T. Hoffman & Co.

Cummings & Rennie and Wm. Cummings & Sons, retail and wholesale dry goods, respectively, Truro, N.S.; Wm. Cummings, deceased.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

C. J. Moore & Co., general store, Cumberland ; succeeded by Jos. McPhee & Sons.

MONTREAL BOARD OF TRADE OFFICERS.

George Caverhill, of Caverhill & Learmont, was elected president of the Montreal Board of Trade at the annual meeting held January 29. Among the drygoodsmen elected to office were Geo. L. Cains, of Greenshields, Ltd., to the council, and E. B. Greenshields, to the board of arbitration. Other officers are : First vice-president, Thomas J. Drummond ; 2nd vice-president, Farquhar Robertson ; treasurer, C. B. Esdaile. Members of council : A. A. Ayer, J. R. Binning, W. W. Craig, J. S. N. Dougall, Geo. A. Kohl, J. P. Mullarkey, J. L. McCulloch, Edgar McDougall, Alex. McLaurin, Alex. Orsali, and J. A. Richardson. Members of board of arbitration : Jas. Carruthers, Sir George Drummond, Geo. E. Drummond, W. I. Gear, A. J. Hodgson, F. H. Mathewson, R. W. MacDougall, Alex. McFee, John McKergow, Alex. Ramsay and Jas. Thom.

MALE ATTIRE, LIMITED.

A Dominion charter has been granted Male Attire, Limited, Montreal, with a capital of $200,000, divided in $100 shares. The incoporators were F. C. Shorey, manufacturer, Montreal ; Charles A. Duclos, K.C., Westmount ; J. E. Coulin, advocate ; Patrick Kieran, designer ; and Robert Farrell, clerk, of Montreal. The object of the company is "to carry on business as wholesale and retail clothiers, and as wholesale and retail dry goods merchants, manufacturers, manufacturers' agents and commission merchants ; to manufacture, buy, sell and otherwise deal in and trade in all articles of men's wear, and without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the same shall be deemed to include men's clothing, hats, caps, furs, boots, shoes, shirts, collars, cuffs, ties and gentlemen's furnishings generally."

J. W. Woods was elected treasurer, by acclamation, of the Toronto Board of Trade.

ITEMS FROM ALL CANADA.

QUEBEC.

B. B. Cronyn, vice-president of the W. R. Brock C., Limited, was in Montreal recently.

Mr. Albright, Brock's dress goods buyer, left for England on January 23rd on a buying trip.

W. R. Brock, president of the W. R. Brock Co., Limited, spent several days in Montreal recently.

Jas. A. Catto, secretary of the W. R. Brock Co., Limited, spent January 29th and 30th in Montreal.

R. L. Taylor, representing Claman Waterproof Garment Co., is now covering the far western ground.

Jas. A. Sage, with Waldron, Drouin Co., Ltd., Montreal, has returned from a buying trip through the American markets.

H. M. Belcher, managing director of Gault Bros., Montreal, entertained the heads of departments and travelers at dinner.

The National Rubber Co., Montreal, held the first annual ball given to their employes on January 13, and it was most successful.

J. H. Palmer, with Debenham's (Canada), Ltd., Montreal, who has spent some weeks in European fashion centres, has returned.

W. A. Williams, with Gault Bros., Ltd., Montreal, is at present in Europe buying for the housefurnishings department of that firm.

The North Western Fur Mfg. Co., 393 St. Paul St., Montreal, are elaborating their premises in preparation for the opening of the season.

G. L. LaFoley, with Mark Fisher, Sons & Co., Montreal, has returned from an extensive trip through the woolen markets of Great Britain.

H. P. Sterne, of the Leak Fur Mnfg. Co., Montreal, spent some time last month in New York and other centres in the interests of the firm.

Geo. Kent, T. B. Williams, and W. B. Matthews, with Greenshields, Ltd., Montreal, have left for European centres to buy for their various departments.

James Ramsey, assistant manager of Perrin Freres, Montreal, has been transfered to the New York office of the firm and will occupy a similar position there.

G. S. Cleghorn, with the W. R. Brock Co., Ltd., Montreal, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, is now convalescent and has returned to his position.

H. W. Austin, with Perrin Freres, Toronto, has been appointed foreign buyer for the firm. He will make Montreal his headquarters and will buy gloves and hosiery for the firm.

C. Ernest Gault is in the field as the Conservative candidate for the Quebec Legislative Assembly for St. Antoine division, the seat becoming vacant through the death of Alderman Carter of Montreal.

The S. Carsley Co., Montreal, has purchased a large piece of property on University street, almost the entire block up to Burnside Place. A considerable part of the property is under lease and will not be available for some time.

W. J. Graham, superintendent, and A. Mungall, head dyer, of the St. Croix Mills, Milltown, N.B., have returned from an extended trip to Europe and spent a few days in Montreal at the offices of the Canadian Colored Cotton Co., Ltd.

A. B. Mole, manager of the Dominion Textile Co., Ltd., Montreal, has been appointed to the executive committee of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association. This association will hold an exhibition in Philadelphia during the week of May the 15th.

A. G. Biett is now in Western Ontario as representative for W. H. Barry, 234 McGill St., Montreal. Mr. Biett has had a varied experience in the ribbon trade and has a splendid connection, having beeen formerly connected with Belding, Paul & Co., Ltd., Montreal.

W. T. Whitehead at the beginning of the year resigned from the position of assistant general manager of the Dominion Textile Co., Ltd., Montreal. Incidental to this his name has been mentioned in connection with the persistent rumors regarding another large cotton company being formed.

Charles E. Howard, who for 25 years was connected with Gault Bros., Montreal, latterly as manager of the men's furnishing department, has become a partner in a firm of manufacturers' agents to be known as Woods & Howard. Gault Bros. and employes presented him with a gold watch upon his departure.

ONTARIO.

Fire in the hat and fur store of T. Nolan, Ottawa, did $10,000 damage.

Hodgens Bros., of Goderich and Clinton, are now occupying their new store at the former place.

Walter McLennan, formerly with R. Fair & Co., Peterborough, is now on the road for Ladies Wear, Limited.

The death occurred at Victoria Hospital, Hamilton, of A. T. Collyer, manager of the Empire Straw Hat Works.

F. E. Dynes, European buyer for the C. Ross Co., Ottawa, accompanied by Mrs. Dynes, is on a trip to Europe.

The Patinson Woolen Mills, at Preston, were shut down for a few days on account of a flood damaging the raceway.

The business of Inksater Bros., St. Catharines, is being wound up, owing to the death of one of the brothers.

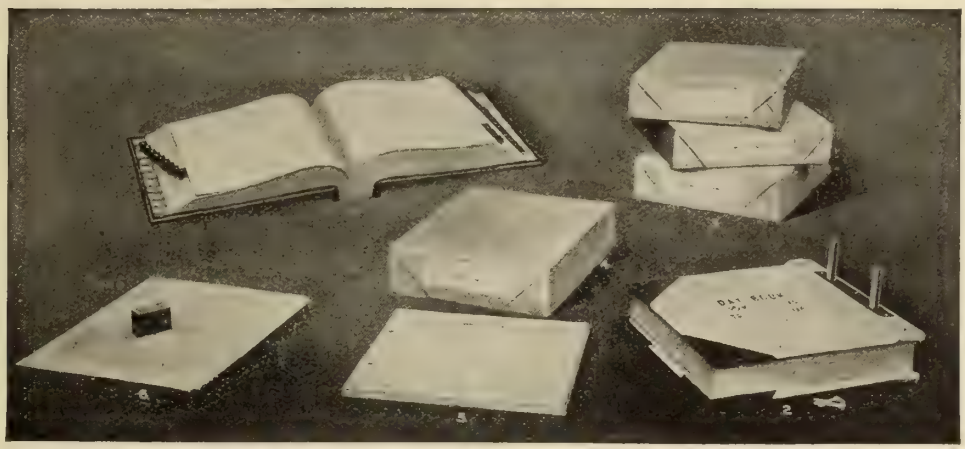
Norman Gowdy, formerly with Eckenswiller & Co., Clifford, has taken a position in the warehouse of Gordon, Mackay & Co.

M. Taylor, who was in Peterboro, is now engaged in the clothing and furnishing department of Crawford & McCullough, Brampton.

Williams, Greene & Rome, Berlin, have opened savings bank accounts for each of their 430 employes. It means an outlay of $1,835.

The Davies Manufacturing Tailoring Company, of Stratford, is removing to Toronto because of the scarcity of hands in the smaller centre.

Jas. H. Wylie, for some years the leading merchant of Almonte, died recently. He was interested in Jas. H Wylie, Limited, and several other industries.



Chas. W. Grogan, formerly of Brampton, has gone to Berlin to take an interest in the clothing manufacturing business of W. E. Southgate & Co., Limited.

Hodgens Bros., of Goderich and Clinton, have sold their clothing business at the latter place to A. J. Morrish and John Crooks, the transfer to take effect on February 16.

Employes of the M. Langmuir Manufacturing Company, Toronto, presented Mr. Langmuir with a silver tea set and address, marking half a century's work by him for the firm.

An action brought by H. Vano, Hamilton, against the Canada Colored Cotton Co., to recover $10,000 for the loss of his hand, has been settled out of court, the plaintiff receiving $800 and life employment at $8 per week.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

You've probably paid for the goods you have sold to your customers — you received a statement for them promptly, and kept your credit good by making a prompt payment. ¶ Do your customers get their statements the first of every month? Are you able to get them out without extra effort? Do you know right now just what is outstanding on your books? ¶ Our system for Retail Stores arranges all this. It is absolutely the best labor-saving and time-saving proposition on the market—you assist in making out the monthly statement and charge up the goods with one writing—posting to the ledger leaf, which is opposite this statement in the Perpetual Book, with one debit entry the month. The ledger entry is explained by the itemized, detailed statement, a duplicate of which is in the Transfer Binder. The original statement, which is made directly from the Counter Book from day to day, is totalled and detached at the perforated line and mailed to the customer on the last day of each month. ¶ We have these retail systems in several different styles of binding, starting at fifteen dollars and fifty cents ($15.50). ¶ The outfit shown above is our $15.50 system. It is just as complete as the more expensive outfits, the binding and higher quality of paper making the difference in price. ¶ Write for particulars and catalogues.

COPELAND-CHATTERSON

WORKS: BRAMPTON Branches everywhere GENERAL OFFICES: TORONTO

L. N. E. Lafontaine, who has for some years conducted a retail fur establishment in Guelph, proposes to manufacture fur garments and mantles. He has purchased a factory site.

A Retail Merchants' Association was organized recently at Blenheim. Among other things, it was decided to protest to the Postmaster General against the proposed parcel post system.

A clerk in the store of J. E. Tallons, Cornwall. dropped a match while lighting the gas. A fire resulted which caused $800 damage to the building and $1,000 to $1,500 damage to stock, both covered by insurance.

Two men went into Acres' hat and fur store, Hamilton, and while Mr. Acres was showing goods to one the other slipped a fur stole under his coat. He was detected by the proprietor, who grabbed the stole. The thief struck him and ran out of the store. He was captured a short time later.

The Slingsby Manufacturing Company of Brantford gave a very pleasant banquet to their employes and friends. The tables were set in the spinning room of the main building. Among the numbers on the program was a mock trial. Handsome smoking sets were presented to General Manager Varey and Superintendent Knoefli. The evening's enjoyment closed with a dance.

Fire broke out in the factory of Rhys D. Fairbairn, Limited, Toronto, about one o'clock on the afternoon of January 19, and damage to the extent of $2,000—not $10,000, as stated by the daily papers—was done. The plant was running again at full strength on Monday morning, so that no delay was occasioned by the blaze. This firm has since moved from Wellington East to Simcoe Street, in the Allan Building, where they have splendid premises.

MARITIME PROVINCES.

James Reynolds, for many years a prominent merchant tailor of St. John, N.B., died recently in his 87th year.

Brock & Paterson, of St. John, who last year opened a branch warehouse at Halifax, have secured much larger quarters there.

Jas. Ried, representative of the Corticelli Silk Co. in the maritime provinces, was in St. John recently on his semi-annual trip.

Henry Mamey, who conducted a dry goods business in Bridgetown, N.S., for a number of years, has removed to New Glasgow.

Angus Davidson, representing the Irving Umbrella Co., Toronto, with headquarters at Halifax, visited his mother in Toronto recently.

The retail dry goods and men's furnishing business of W. L. Kane & Co., Halifax, has been sold to an incorporated company, W. L. Kane & Co., Ltd.

Moses C. Barbour, aged 80 years, died at St. John. He was formerly in the wholesale dry goods business with T. R. Jones & Co., and then with W. C. Pitfield & Co., and was finally agent for several western firms.

Andrew B. Boak, senior member of the wholesale dry goods firm of A. B. Boak & Co., Halifax, is dead. Mr. Boak was one of the best known dry goods men in Nova Scotia and all his life devoted his attention to that business.

The York and Cornwall Cotton Mill directors (St. John) have declared a dividend of 3 per cent. on the capital stock of $500,000. This is the first dividend. An addition to the mill is being erected, and 100 looms will be installed.

"Made in Canada"

WE MANUFACTURE

Canvas Gloves and Padded Mitts

Carpenters' Aprons

Overalls and Jumpers

at prices to suit the trade.

Letter orders filled promptly.

The Canadian Glove & Mitten Co. Limited

Ingersoll, Ont.

Spring is almost come and you will need new Mantle Racks and other Fixtures to display your new stock. We can supply your needs for anything in this line. Our Wax Figures are most artistic, and FORMS OF LATEST SHAPES

BRITISH PLATE MIRRORS

We are experts in the manufacture of METAL FIXTURES

Beautiful Metal Mantle Racks, four styles, at $9.00, $10.00, $11.00 and $12.00. $1.00 extra for card holders

Write for Catalogue

CLATWORTHY & SON

38-40 West Adelaide

TORONTO - ONTARIO

Transient Traders and Pedlars

They do a Good Deal of Harm to Legitimate Merchants—A By-law Which is Used in Ontario.

In a great many communities the merchants are troubled more or less by transient traders and pedlars operating without licenses, in some cases carrying away thousands of dollars in a year, without expending a cent by way of fee to the municipalities where they get the business. They enter directly into competition with local retailers, who are obliged to pay heavy taxes for the privilege of selling goods to the public. Where such conditions exist in Ontario the fault lies with the merchants themselves, for an Act passed at the last session of the Provincial Legislature provides a means whereby they can have transients put on such footing that their competition need not be feared. All municipalities are empowered to pass by-laws imposing fee up to a certain substantial amount. Other provinces may secure legislation of like nature if the merchants present the matter to their local House.

* * *

Numbers of Ontario municipalities have by-laws and see that they are enforced, with results that are satisfying to the merchants. Others have passed by-laws, but they exist in name only. In one town that The Review visited recently we were told that transient traders and pedlars were much more injurious to local trade interests than the catalogue houses. "We have a by-law," said one of the leading drygoodsmen, "but the authorities pay no attention to it. As a matter of fact, one of the members of our council rents premises to a good many transients who come in with stocks. A fellow went through this district some time ago selling furs, and claiming that as he represented a wholesaler he could quote very cheap prices. Lots of people took the bait. We have had men in here taking orders for shirts and they did good business. One of the hardest knocks, however, that we ever got was the sale of suit lengths by two Englishmen. They had a good line of talk and the people in this vicinity snapped up the goods in a way that made our tailoring department look sick for a season. Now we would have been very glad to supply the same goods at prices just as low. Of course we have the usual number of rug and other pedlars."

If this merchant and the others in his town get together and go after the municipal council they can secure the enforcement of the by-law. An eye should constantly be kept on the constable to see that he is on the alert for transients.

* * *

Following are some extracts from the by-law which has been passed by a number of Ontario municipalities:

1. No person shall carry on the business mentioned in the next succeeding section of this by-law unless and until he shall procure a license so to do, and every person so licensed shall be subject to the provisions of this by-law.

2. There shall be taken out by:

(a) All hawkers, pedlars, petty chapmen or other persons carrying on petty trades or who go from place to place or to other men's houses on foot or with any animal bearing or drawing any goods, wares or merchandise, for sale or in or with any boat, vessel or other craft, otherwise carry goods, wares or merchandise for sale (except that no such license shall be required for hawking, peddling or selling from any vehicle or other conveyance goods, wares or merchandise to any retail dealer or for hawking or peddling goods, wares, or merchandise, the growth, produce or manufacture of this Province, not being liquors within the meaning of the law relating to taverns or tavern licenses, if the same are being hawked or peddled by the manufacturer or producer of such goods, wares or merchandise, or by his bona fide servants or employes having written authority in that behalf and such servant or employe shall produce and exhibit his written authority when required so to do by any municipal or peace officer, and provided that in any prosecution for a violation of any such by-law against any hawker, pedlar or petty chapman or other person mentioned in this sub-section on the ground that any such person has not obtained a license in pursuance of any by-law passed thereunder and the defence is set up that such person does not require any such license by reason of the fact that he is peddling goods, wares or other merchandise to a retail dealer, or is hawking or peddling goods, wares or merchandise the growth, produce of manufacture of this Province, not being liquors within the meaning of the law relating to taverns or tavern licenses, and is the manufacturer or producer thereof or the bona fide servant or employe of such manufacturer or producer thereof having written authority in that behalf, then and in such case it shall not be necessary for the complainant to show affirmatively that the person so prosecuted does not come with the defence so set up, but the onus of proving that he does come within such defence shall rest upon the person so prosecuted and in the event of his failing to establish at his trial that he does so come within such defence he may be convicted of a violation of this sub-section; but no such license shall be required from any tinker, cooper, glazier, harness-mender or any person usually trading or mending kettles, tubs, household goods or umbrellas, or going about carrying with him proper materials for such mending.

(b) The word "Hawkers" in this clause shall include all persons who, being agents for persons not resident within the County, sell or offer for sale tea, dry goods, watches, plated war, silverware, furniture, carpets, upholstery, millinery or jewellery, or carry and expose samples or patterns of any such goods to be afterwards deliverd within the county to any person not being a wholsale or retail dealer in such goods, wares or merchandise.

(c) Every Transient Trader or other person whose name has not been duly entered on the assessment roll in respect of income or business assessment for the then current year, and who may offer goods or merchandise of any description for sale by auction or in any other manner, conducted by himself or by a licensed auctioneer, or by his agent or otherwise; but no license to any Transient Trader shall affect, apply to or restrict the sale of the stock of an insolvent estate which is being sold or disposed of within the City or Town in which the insolvent carried on business therewith at the time of the issue of a writ of attachment or of the execution of an assignment.

(d) The words "Transient Trader" wherever they occur shall extend to and include any person commencing in the municipality the business in the said clauses mentioned who has not resided continuously in such municipality for a period of at least three months next preceding the time of the commencement by him of such business therein.

8. DISPLAYING BADGES—Every Hawker, Pedlar, Transient Trader or other person licensed under this by-law who carries on his business or calling with any wagon, cart or other vehicle, shall, at the time of the issue of his license, receive from the Chief Constable two plates bearing a number, which shall be affixed on a prominent place on the right and left hand side of the outside of such wagon, cart or other vehicle, and shall remain thereon during the period for which the license is granted; and no other device displaying a number shall be exhibited upon the outside of such wagon, cart or other vehicle, and such plates shall be returned to the Chief Constable at the expiration of the term of the license; and every such licensed person shall have his name and address legibly painted on each side of his vehicle in letters at least three inches long.

11. FEES—There shall be levied and collected from the applicant for every license granted for the business or object are specified in this by-law, a license fee as follows:

(1) For a license for a Hawker, Pedlar or Petty Chapman selling on foot, any fee you deem advisable.

(2) For a license for a Hawker, Pedlar or Petty Chapman selling with a vehicle or with a horse or horses or other animal with a vehicle, any fee you deem advisable.

(3) For a license to carry on the business of a Transient Trader selling from stationery premises or on foot or with a vehicle or with a horse or horses or other animal with a vehicle, not to exceed in Cities and Towns $250, and in other Municipalities $100.

Providing that the sum so paid for a license shall be credited to the Transient Trader paying the same upon and on account of taxes for the unexpired portion of the then current year, as well as any subsequent taxes, should such Trader remain in the Municipality a sufficient time for taxes to become due and payable by him and in any other event to be taken and used by the Municipality as a portion of the license fund of such Municipality.

Provided, nevertheless, that the license fee imposed by any by-law of any village, situated within any territorial district may be a sum not exceeding $200.

12. PENALTY—Except as hereinafter provided, any person convicted of a breach of any of the provisions of this by-law shall forfeit and pay, at the discretion of the convicting Magistrate, a penalty not exceeding the sum of Fifty Dollars for each offense exclusive of costs; and in default of payment of the said penalty and costs forthwith, the said penalty and costs, or costs only, may be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the offender; and case of there being no distress found out of which such penalty can be levied, the convicting Magistrate may commit the offender to the common gaol of the City or Town of..... ..... with or without hard labor, for any period not exceeding six calendar months, unless the said penalty and costs be sooner paid.

* * *

The by-law as it stands can be enforced against a merchant going into a place and purchasing a business. He may be regarded as a transient until he has resided there three months. His license fee, in case he remains, will apply on taxes. This clause will be amended at the present session of the Ontario Legislature so that legitimate retailers cannot be subjected to such annoyance.

ALLEGES THREATS AND INTIMIDATION.

The case of Montgomery Ward & Company, Chicago, v. The South Dakota Retail Merchants' Association and Hardware Dealers' Association is the first of its kind ever instituted by a retail catalogue house in the United States. The suit was instituted by Montgomery Ward & Company for the purpose of attempting to secure an injunction from the federal court restraining the defendants from continuing their warfare against mail-order houses in general and Montgomery Ward & Company in particular, and from maintaining what is alleged to be a boycott from the Chicago concern.

The plaintiff company alleges that by threats and intimidation the officers of the South Dakota Merchants' Association have coerced wholesalers and jobbers not to sell goods to the plaintiff company, and that by reason of this action the plaintiff company is unable to purchase goods which it requires to fill the orders of its customers.

Climax of Long Fight.

While the fight against mail-order houses in general has been in progress in South Dakota for eight or nine years, it was not until the annual convention of the South Dakota Retail Merchants' and Hardware Dealers' Association, held at Mitchell, in January, 1906, that the strong sentiment of the business interests of the state against the retail mail order concerns found expression.

Even then matters did not reach a climax until February and March of last year, when L. S. Tyler, of Chicago, secretary of the association, prepared and sent to a total of two hundred and eighty-three manufacturers, jobbers and wholesale copies of a letter, which read as follows:

"The South Dakota retail merchants, in convention assembled, at Mitchell, South Dakota, January 23, 24, 25, 1906, expressed strong sentiments and were unanimous on the subject of the selling of merchandise by the jobber and manufacturer to the catalogue or mail order houses; that it was unfair treatment on the part of the wholesaler towards the retailer. The retail merchant of South Dakota feels that the cause of the catalogue house has been advanced by the wholesaler, inasmuch as the stock of the mail order house is carried by the wholesaler. The retail merchants have suffered in consequence of this arrangement.

"Will you not act with the retail merchants? Do you at the present time encourage and help the catalogue house business? Will you not refuse to sell to the mail order house, and will you confine your trade to the legitimate retail dealer?

"Any suggestions for co-operation for our mutual interests of both the wholesaler and retailer we would as a body of merchants be glad to receive and consider.

"This letter is endorsed by the board of directors as above named and sent out under their instructions."

These letters were sent out on the official stationary of the association and were signed by L. S. Tyler as secretary.

Some of the firms to which the letters were sent made prompt replies, while others delayed in answering them. After waiting a reasonable time, Secretary Tyler, wishing to make a report to the members of the association, prepared a list giving the names of the firms which, through neglect or otherwise, had failed to reply to the letters.

These letters, containing the list, which in the complaint of Montgomery Ward and Company, is alleged to be a blacklist, were sent to between 1,400 and 1,500 of the retail merchants of South Dakota.

The Winnipeg Fur Co., Winnipeg, presented each of its employes with a souvenir gold ring.

Another Fire in Montreal

Damage Done to the Extent of $400,000—Several Dry Goods Firms Were Wiped Out.

It has become proverbial in Montreal that ere the new year is very old a disastrous fire visits the city. This year the fiend played havoc around the district that had newly been completed, and on which several large buildings had been erected. On January 3 the new Stephens Building, which was built on St. Antoine St., one of the promising districts of Montreal, was wiped out. The flames spread to St. James St. and worked havoc among several large firms. Apart from the financial loss, the firms involved have had great difficulty in finding offices and factory space, of which at present there is a dearth in Montreal.

The Montreal Cotton Company's offices were completely destroyed and they are now located in the Imperial Bank Building, St. James St.

The Boas, Felsen Co., manufacturers of ladies' garments, had their stock and samples entirely destroyed and were compelled to cancel all orders for spring. The firm secured temporary offices in the Temple Building, and factory space in the Shorey Building, Notre Dame St., and are now busily preparing samples for fall trade.

I. Mishkin & Co., manufacturers of ladies' waists, suffered from smoke and water. Fortunately their samples were undamaged, and within a few days they were in running order. Although they are hampered they will be able to fill orders in due time. This firm had been making extensive alterations in their plant, and with added facilities they will be able to make greater speed in filling orders.

The New York Silk Waist Mfg. Co., Limited, had their plant completely gutted and their stock was entirely lost. Very soon they established a temporary office on Notre Dame St. and secured a better factory at the corner of Montcalm and St. Catherine Sts. The firm has installed new machinery, with which they hope to catch up with their orders. New and better samples have been made, and they are now in a position to handle orders with even greater facility than ever before. Their new quarters are more spacious than the old ones, and with everything up-to-date they purpose turning out their stock in such a manner as to give satisfaction to all customers.

Allan S. Bain, wholesale dry goods, had his entire stock destroyed. New quarters have been secured at 8 St. Peter St., and new stock is arriving daily.

Standard Clothing Co. suffered severe loss, and have secured temporary quarters in the Shorey Building, Notre Dame St.

A branch factory of the Hudson Bay Knitting Co. was damaged to a considerable extent, but in no way has business been interfered with.

The Bargain Clothing Co. stock was damaged by smoke and water, but they were enabled to resume operations after a few days delay.

The Beaver Rubber Clothing Co. suffered some inconvenience through smoke and water, but continued business in the old premises after a slight delay.

DEBENHAM'S (CANADA), LTD., EXTENDING PREMISES.

Debenham's (Canada) Ltd., Montreal, quarters have been undergoing many changes recently. Besides the occupation of four flats at No. 18 St. Helen St., the firm has secured three flats of No. 20 on the same street. With the new floor space the firm have many advantages in building up a good house trade, which is one of its chief aims. Display of goods, it is realized, is essential to successful house selling and every department has been given attention. There is nothing cramped; sufficient space in the aisles has been given so that a number of people can be shown around with comfort. Not only does the additional room afford this, but it will facilitate the handling of customers' shipments.

The ground floor is given over to the ribbons, silks, dress goods and infants' wear. The private offices are situated on this floor. Immediately at the entrance are display cases in which are shown the novelties in ribbons, and on each side are tables and shelves containing the stock. In the rear are the silk and infants' wear departments. The firm has access to the best ribbon and silk markets of the world, through its connection with the London house of Debenham's, and consequently is enabled to secure the best for its customers.

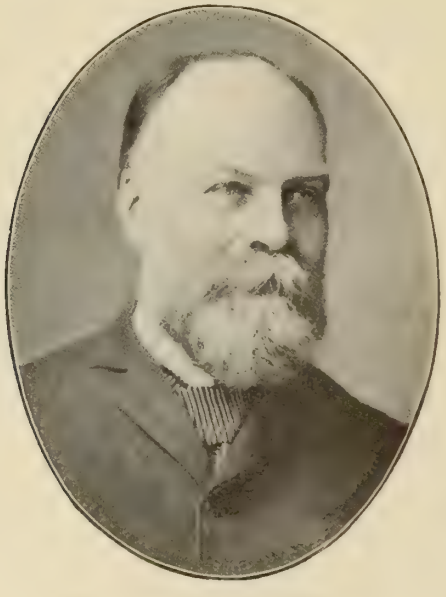
On the second floor is the ladies' ready-to-wear department. The firm is specializing this department and has banked heavily on a rich line of blouses. Skirts are also one of its specialties. The range of waists is so large that to display them properly handsome fixtures will be installed and forms will be used to a great extent. The silk and lawn waists are made specially for this house by its own staff on its own models, and nothing is being left undone to make this department successful. Children's ready-to-wear, overalls, cashmere and serge coats are carried in a large variety. Fancy dress trimmings, laces, veilings, chiffons and fancy dress goods, in which the firm is building up an extensive business, are given splendid display on this floor. A full line of ladies' small furs is also carried.

The third floor is devoted to millinery. Long tables are used for the display of flowers, feathers, trimmings and ornaments. On racks, on the top of these tables, are open boxes containing the goods, placed in a sloping position so that they can easily be seen. There is plenty of space on this floor to accommodate a large number at an opening and the arrangement of the goods facilitates the showing of them.

The top floor is occupied by the general offices, country order department, marking- off room and millinery workrooms. The value of space in the warerooms is one of the firm's beliefs, and the offices were not thought an attraction on any of the display floors. For the convenience of customers a new elevator is being installed, and in no way will the offices on the top floor be found inconvenient.

EMPLOYES RECOGNIZED.

Swift, Copeland & Co., Montreal, has been changed into a limited company and it is now styled Swift, Copeland Co., Ltd. The members of the firm are W. A. M. Swift, J. P. Copeland, John J. Louson, A. T. Mathews and C. H. Ross. The three first-named were previously in the firm, while Mr. Mathews and Mr. Ross, travelers for the firm, have been given an interest as a reward for their good service. This move on the part of the original members of the firm is in keeping with modern progressive methods. As a limited firm they have made extensive preparations for 1907.



Geo. B. Fraser, of Greenshields, Ltd., Montreal, spent some time last month at the western branch of the firm at Winnipeg attending the annual meeting of the directors of that branch.

The Late Timothy Eaton

Timothy Eaton, founder of the T. Eaton Co., died at his home in Toronto on Thursday, January 31, in his 71st year. He contracted a cold about two weeks previous and pneumonia quickly developed, with fatal results. The obsequies took place on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock.

* * *

Mr. Eaton was of Scotch-Irish extraction. Two centuries ago his ancestors moved from Scotland to Ireland, and at Clogher, thirthy miles from Belfast, he was born, the youngest of nine. His father died shortly before his birth, and his mother faced the world with nine children. Like most of the families around them, the Eatons were making a scanty living on the land, and when calamity, in the form of a crop failure, overtook them, they were in the direst need. The worst of such calamities for many years was the famine of 1846, when the potato crop was ruined by rot. The famine caused a great emigration, and among those who eventually left Ireland was the elder brother of the Eaton family. At this time or a little earlier, Timothy was getting his earliest experience in the business world as an apprentice to a draper at Portglenone, a small merket town on the banks of the River Bann. When his apprenticeship of five years was over, he received his wages in a lump sum, amounting to about £100, and came to Canada. This was fifty years ago. He arrived here in 1857 and opened a store at Kirkton, Perth county, moving in a short time to St. Marys. In those days in Ontario there was little money in circulation. Produce was traded for goods and goods were in turn bought for produce. Railways did not exist and the merchant had to do his own freighting. With wagon and oxen he hauled his produce to the nearest port, and returned laden with merchandise, which was again exchanged for produce.

THE LATE TIMOTHY EATON.

* * *

Mr. Eaton started business in Toronto in 1869, on an unpretentious scale, but on a cash basis, both as to buying and selling. The manner in which, with the development of the department store idea, the business has expanded, is generally well known.

The late Mr. Eaton was in many respects a remarkable man. His outstanding business quality was, perhaps, a genius for organization, and the wonderful system that exists in the company's stores is an eloquent tribute to his abilities. His death removes one of the foremost figures in Canadian mercantile life.

* * *

J. C. Eaton, vice-president of the T. Eaton Company, will succeed his father. He is in his thirty-second year.

News from St. John.

With the beginning of the year a tone of confidence is generally noticeable among the local drygoodsmen. A review of the year 1906 affords some justification for this confidence, for that period was one of an eminently satisfactory character. The conditions prevailing at the close of the year were such as might be taken to warrant an optimistic feeling for 1907. And the year has begun well. Naturally the present season is not the busiest of the year, for the dry goods merchant, but the business now being done, here and elsewhere throughout the province, is, on the whole, excellent. Collections throughout the year just closed were generally satisfactory. The outlook at the time of writing is splendid, and, to judge from collections, conditions will continue good.

The travelers now on the road are reported to be booking good sized orders. These include not only orders for the Spring trade, but also some for the early Fall business. The millinery travelers are finding that the predictions re the increasing favor in which ribbons and flowers are to be held this year have been predictions evidently well founded. The most striking feature in this regard is the demand that seems certain to be for flowers. It is clear that flowers are to come back into favor for millinery uses. In St. John the millinery openings will probably take place at the outset of March. This will be a trifle earlier than in other years. For this fact the earliness of Easter may be said to be accountable. The likelihood is, moreover, that the openings will this year be more pretentious than formerly. This is but to be expected, for these openings have steadily grown in importance in St. John of late years.

New Brunswick merchants, in common with those elsewhere, don't look with any favor on the proposed change in the postal system, under which the scope of the parcels post system would be enlarged. The local men are actively opposing the proposed lew necessary to the change. Under the innovation, it is claimed, postmasters would be practically the agents of large departmental houses. The effect of this upon the business of the other merchants can readily be seen and its importance appreciated by the dealers in New Brunswick as in other parts of the Dominion.

The indications are that the firmness in price that has been noticeable for some time past is to continue here. Indeed it is probable that advanced quotations will be the order. But the question of price does not cause the dealer the same thought now that the other question—Can my orders be filled in a reasonable time?—is causing. Busy days are apparently still ahead of the manufacturers.

Brock and Paterson have been compelled to seek larger quarters for their Halifax branch.

Walter H. Golding, who has for several years been advertising manager for Manchester, Robertson, Allison, has given up his position with the firm. He is now ad. manager for the Sun Publishing Company, though he still handles the M., R., A. advertising.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

J. H. Palmer, with Debenham's (Canada) Ltd., who has recently returned from a buying trip to European centres, in speaking of the general conditions, said :— "Buyers going to Europe at present with big orders in their pockets, which they expect will be easily accepted, are greatly mistaken. A few years ago a man with a good order would be received with open arms, but now it is with the utmost difficulty that one can secure a hearing. Prices are very steep and buyers often hesitate to place an order when informed that there has been an advance of say 7½ per cent., but on going to the same house the next day with the hope of getting better prices, he is informed that there has been another advance of 5 per cent. This is not an exaggeration of the conditions in all parts of Europe. A glance at the invoices will prove that prices at present are higher than they have ever been. The demand is simply astounding. The orders going to Canada and Australia and the repeat orders arriving by every mail cannot be filled with the same ease as a few years ago. Mills and factories throughout the United Kingdom are kept running night and day, and prosperity is reflected everywhere."

A PIONEER OF D. G. TRADE.

Captain McMaster, for Some Time Engaged in Wholesale Business at Toronto, is Dead.

Captain William Fenton McMaster, secretary of the Bureau of Industries in the Ontario Agricultural Department, died at Toronto on January 7. He was born in Omagh, Tyrone, Ireland, in 1822, his father, who was a brother of the late Senator William McMaster, being a merchant there. The latter, who was the founder of McMaster University, came to Canada and started a dry goods business in Toronto. Deceased later was with his father in the general store business at Beamsville, and at his father's death spent some time in the dry goods business at both Niagara Falls and Buffalo. Afterwards he had a store of his own at Grimsby, and then at Keene, east of Peterborough. Going back to Toronto he went into the wholesale business with his uncle, as did also his brothers, Arthur (since dead) and James Short McMaster, now treasurer of McMaster University. The firm was later known as McMaster, Darling & Co. The latter became the Old Country agent, and Captain McMaster managed it in this country. His business career ended about twenty-five years ago. In April, 1886, he was appointed to the position in the provincial service.

Organized Naval Brigade.

Captain McMaster, though he never forgot the land of his birth, was in all things a true Canadian. During his residence at Grimsby he was a member of Conklin's troop of the Grimsby and Clinton Cavalry. At the time of the Trent affair, in 1861, he organized and equipped, largely at his own expense the Toronto Naval Brigade, and was made captain of that body. It was a fine corps, composed chiefly of well-known young men, very much in earnest. They were excellently drilled. In 1866, during the Fenian troubles, he fitted up an old twin-screw tugboat, the Rescue, as a gunboat, at his own expense, equipped it for service, placed his naval company on board, and was despatched by the General in command of the British forces to patrol Lake Erie, whereon, it was feared, Fenian vessels might appear, until his gunboat was relieved by several regular vessels of war. For this service, though he several times appealed to the then Government, he was never recompensed. He was given the rank of Major, a title which he never used, preferring always to call himself Captain. He was elected an honorary officer of the Queen's Own Rifles shortly after the Fenian raid.

Active Director of Exhibition.

Captain McMaster was one of the pioneers of the Toronto Industrial Exhibition Association, a charter member, was once its president, afterwards the first vice-president, and for many years a most active director of that body. He retired a few years ago, and had since been an honorary director. In many other organizations and associations of a financial, business and social nature he was very prominent before entering upon his duties in the employ of the Government.

SWIFT, COPLAND & CO.

A Dominion charter has been granted Swift, Copland & Co., Limited, Montreal, with a capital of $200,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were W. A. M. Swift, merchant, of Westmount ; John P. Copland, merchant, of Montreal ; John J. Louson, merchant, of Westmount ; Arthur T. Mathews, salesman, of Montreal ; and C. H. Ross, salesman, of Westmount. The object of the company is "to carry on the business of importers, exporters, manufacturers' agents and dealers in furs, skins, hats, caps and all kinds of garments and wearing apparel, and as general furriers, clothiers, and outfitters, and as dressers and dyers of furs."

WHERE TRAVELERS ARE TAXED.

The London, England, Board of Trade has issued a very useful bluebook, which tells the British commercial traveler what fate is in store for him when he goes into British possessions abroad, or into foreign countries in search of orders.

The following is a list of British colonies where there are regulations or taxes upon travelers, with the annual amount payable :

New Zealand (£5); Cape Colony (£25); Natal (£10); Transvaal (£10); Orangia (£20); Pr. Ed. Island ($20) ; Quebec ($50 and upwards); Br. Columbia ($1.00); Br. Honduras ($10); Bechuanaland (£10).

In New Zealand the fee is held as a guarantee that the income tax due on the business done in the colony will be repaid. In Prince Edward Island and British Columbia the licenses are much higher for travelers selling intoxicating liquors or cigars.

In all other parts of the British Empire commercial travelers can carry on their work without let or hindrance.

Appended is a list of foreign countries which impose taxes on travelers, together with the annual amount charged :

Argentine Republic (varies in different provinces) ; Bolivia ($300); Rrazil (varies according to province); Bulgaria (£6); Congo Free State (£6); Denmark (£9); Germany (1s); Mexico (varies according to province; Norway (£5 11s. per month) ; Paraguay (£10 to £15) ; Russia (£26 7s. 6d.) ; Sweden (£5 11s. per month) ; Uruguay (£21).

The commercial traveler in Russia has no fewer than four separate payments to make every year.

Mr. Gibson, of Foy & Gibson, dry goods merchants, Melbourne, Australia, called on many of his business friends in Montreal on his return trip from England.

Fancy Goods and Notions

(Continued from page 116.)

gloves, handkerchiefs, fancy work, and also is being largely used for the high-class confectionery trade. These boxes are made in a large variety of shapes, designs and sizes, and are proving an active line. Baskets made in straw and bamboo are also having a great sale at present, and the business in them is bound to increase as their many excellent qualities become better known. In the fine straw goods there is also made the suit cases and baskets which took so well with the tourists last year. These goods have the strength of the leather goods and still are much lighter. Large orders have been placed for Spring in these lines and a good season is ahead.

HOUSEHOLD DECORATIONS.

Silk drapes for piano or mantle are again coming into favor, and should prove a good line at this time. There is a great variety of these in plain and fancy silks. Some have very effective tinsel decorations, figure and floral designs, handsomely embroidered borders and rich fringes. Fancy screens made of cotton, paper or silk, in a great number of sizes, from the little fire screen to the high boudoir screen are evidently in for a long stay. These lines are selling well in the larger centres, and the smaller centres are being attracted by their merits as a household decorative and useful article.

With the growing fashion of holding five o'clock teas there is much which can be added to the department to attract the better class of customers. Hand-carved tables made of Japanese wood are considered good property for this purpose. These are made in many shapes and sizes and are quick sellers in large centres. Wooden trays to match the tables are also selling well, and these combination pieces are still considered as the coming thing for these afternoon functions.

In chinaware there have been many new and novel effects introduced in the five o'clock tea sets. Japanese figures are used largely, and many effective combinations of figures and floral designs are being shown in the novelties of the year. Many new designs in jardinieres, vases, pots and pedestals should be good lines for the department, as they are more than ever recognized as desirable ornaments in homes. Jap figures and floral decorations are used largely in these articles. The colorings are above the average, and the handles are in the form of dragons.

Veiling Prospects for Spring

Excellent Business Developing—A Good Outlook for the Spring Season.

Though there are few real novelties showing, the Spring outlook for veilings is excellent. The general run will be on Tuxedo and hair-line mesh goods with small figures. Chenille dotted goods will be sellers, though velvet dots and rings, either in combination with chenille or alone, will also be a feature. Black is to be the best seller, but brown, grey, garnet and green are also leading colors for the early trade.

Though they have had a good run in Paris and New York, lace veils are a novelty on this market. They come in both medium and in high priced goods, and if the store's trade warrants it both should be shown at the Spring openings.

Chantilly is the leading lace for veils, but many other handsome effects are featured. As in other veils, the colors for the early trade are black, brown, grey, garnet, green and navy, with champagne or twine color and pale blue for later in the season.

Though the chiffon veil will not be used for general wear, as was the case a few seasons ago, it will be a big seller for automobiling and outing wear. For this purpose the lighter shades promise to be strongest, and light blue, champagne and grey are to be the big sellers. As for the dark shades, they will follow the general veiling demand.

It is claimed that this department is, in the main, rather slow in pushing novelties, particularly when they run rather higher than the usual popular prices. In the present state of trade it is to the interest of the department to push these goods, as not only are better profits made upon them, but it keeps trade at home. The veiling stock, it should be borne in mind, is a luxury in dress which appeals almost exclusively to the well dressed woman—the woman with money to spend—and as this class of customer is not only increasing the amount of her purchases, but she is also buying higher priced goods, if your department is to keep her trade you will have to stock goods now that you could not with safety touch a few years ago.

Mainly About Ourselves

"We have subscribed to pretty nearly everything in the line of trade papers dealing with the dry goods business and we get more real solid information out of The Dry Goods Review than any of the others."—Bigelow Bros., Trenton.

* * *

"We now take occasion to congratulate you on the January number of The Dry Goods Review. It is the best compiled that has ever been issued by you."—R. Flaws & Son, Toronto.

* * *

"Enclosed find $2, subscription to The Review. While all numbers are good, I think the last one was particularly so. I am pleased to see the stand you are taking on the proposed parcel post legislation."—J. L. Peters, Digby, N.S.

* * *

In asking The Review to correct a report that their mills had been damaged by a flood, Stanfield's, Limited, Truro, N.S., say: "One thing certain, your paper must have quite a circulation, as customers from all over Canada have written us, expressing regrets that our plant was damaged, and some even offered to help us by selling the damaged goods."

TRAVELERS' BENEFIT SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Commercial Travelers' Mutual Benefit Society was held in Toronto on January 28. It was reported that during the society's 26 years' existence there had been paid in beneficiaries no less than $440,000. The election of officers for 1907 resulted as follows; President, S. R. Wickett; vice-president, Joseph Oliver; treasurer, H. Goodman; secretary, E. M. Rowley; superintendent of agencies, Richard Ivens; trustees, John Gibson, Charles Parsons, R. G. Hector, S. M. Sterling, A. J. Tipping, Robert Maxwell, C. E. Kyle, R. Forbes and John A. Ross; auditors, C. N. Sutherland and F. W. Thompson.

WESTERN NOTES.

Archibald Wright, of Winnipeg, is in Europe.

The city tavelers of Winnipeg held their fourth annual ball on Jan. 29.

The Mackenzie Millinery Co., of Regina, have sold their business to two Toronto ladies.

During the year ended December 10, 1906, there were 232,250 pounds of wool shipped from Medicine Hat district alone.

A. Gagnon, of the dry goods department of Gariepy & Lessard, Edmonton, was run down by a team of horses and somewhat severely injured.

The warerooms of the Copeland, Chatterson Company at Winnipeg were damaged by fire on January 28, and the firm's loss is estimated at $2,000.

D. G. McKay and Robt. G. McEwen, buyers for Greenshields Western, Winnipeg, are visiting English and other European markets in the interests of their firm.

The dry goods, grocery and boot and shoe sections of the W. B. Marshall Company's store, Medicine Hat, have been purchased by W. C. Harris, formerly proprietor of the Medicine Hat Times, and Joseph Leonard, who was manager of these departments. Extensive alterations will be made in the store. The style of the new firm will be Leonard & Harris.

HINTS TO BUYERS

From information supplied by Sellers, but for which the Editors of THE REVIEW do not necessarily hold themselves responsible.

The W. R. Brock Co., Toronto.

The W, R. Brock Co. are again to the fore in the raincoat section, with their special lines, two each in ladies' and gent's, to retail at $5.50 or $6, easily the best to be had at the price. They also have a full stock of other lines.

See their lines in ladies' and children's underwear, They carry the most complete range in styles and qualities to be had. Prices are popular ones.

As usual, they are right up to the mark in the hosiery section, and are prepared to handle an exceptional Spring trade. "Kantuch," a plain black cotton hose to retail at 25c., is, as the name implies, unapproachable for value, as is also "Cache," plain black cotton, with natural wool foot, to retail at 25 cents. See these two lines. 446, to retail at 15 cents, all sizes, is also a leader, in plain black cotton.

The smallware stock, containing as it does all kinds of supplies required by dry goods merchants and dressmakers, was never more complete than it is to-day : Some special lines of pearl buttons, done up in cabinet form, assorted sizes and popular prices, are receiving the attention of keen buyers, and their sale is very active. "Austria," a two-hole button, 100 dozen in cabinet, can be retailed at 3c. per dozen ; "Berlin," a four-hole, can be retailed at 5c. per dozen ; "Murray," a four-hole, can be retailed at 7c. per dozen; "White," a four-hole, can be retailed at 10c. per dozen ; also Japanese ball pearls in self shank, and two-hole, put up in cabinet form, All handsome counter cabinets, extra weight and finish. Send for sample cabinet.

New York novelties in celluloid and horn hair pins, side and back combs are being continually received per express, which keeps this stock up to the minute. New collars and belts from New York, the latest creations, can be retailed at popular prices, 25c., 50c., and 75c. Ladies' leather belts and boys' Buster Brown belts to retail at 25c. to 75c., in every color demanded. See No. 200 ladies' belt, in black or grey, with steel studding, to retail at 50c.

Small cartons of valenciennes and torchon, in assorted widths, patterns and insertions, to retail at from 5c. to 8c. yard. All these laces and embroideries are at old prices. The latter could not be repeated except at advances of 10 to 25 per cent. All are new stock and most attractive, all kinds and all prices.

The umbrella buyer excelled himself this Spring, both in value and durability of cloth, and also in the handle styles. See Brock's self-openers. "Shoofly" retails at $1, "Skiddoo" at $1,25, "Gohome" at $1.50 in men's. "Shoot," to retail at $1 in ladies'. S83 ladies' and S115 in men's, to retail at $1, are dandies in the regular bulb openers.

When in Manchester their expert secured 700 pieces of white muslins at a price, and their customers are, in consequence, getting the benefit of 20 per cent. to 25 per cent. in many lines. They are selling fast. Send for samples. Thirty-two inch pongenette in white, sky, rose and black is one of the new creations in sheer muslins, to retail at 25c. Mercerized mattings and vestings are also shown in a large variety. Swiss spot muslins are scarce. Brock's have a large stock to retail at 15, 20, 25 and up to 75 cents per yard. Indian linens—see X62, to retail ar 10 cents, X63 at 15 cents, and X65 at 25 cents. Brock's have lines up to 50 cents. In Persian lawns there is a large stock. See G20, to retail at 15 cents, G11, to retail at 25 cents, and G13, to retail at 50 cents. Blacks also in India linens and Persian lawns.

They have long kid gloves in stock; suede, in black, white and grey ; glace, in white, (black glaces to arrive in about a month).

Full stock of Buster Brown, hercules and rock-rib cotton hose, together with their well-known Invader, seamless and stainless black, that can be retailed from 10 to 12½ cents.

John Macdonald & Co.

John Macdonald & Co., Limited, state that "Andora" is the name of a fully guaranteed kid glove they are showing to retail at $1, in black, tan and white. Since their last purchase this line has so far advanced in price that if the same margin of profit is to be secured, it would have to be retailed at $1.25. Their dress goods department is now well stocked with the latest and most stylish cloths for Spring season business, including toiles, taffetas, Panamas and a splendid range of both imported and domestic tweed effects. For the Easter trade they are showing a beautiful assortment of ribbons and veilings. Their stock of lingerie is complete with A1 value in corset covers, drawers, gowns and underskirts. They are showing a fine dimity dressing sacque, nicely trimmed with mercerized stitching, rich flowers or light ground, neat patterns on light ground, $7.50 per dozen.

John Macdonald & Co., Limited, have been most successful in securing some of the very latest novelties in haberdashery and men's furnishings, such as : Ladies' fancy hat pins, a beautiful range to select from, all the newest designs and colorings, can be retailed at from 5 cents to 50 cents each ; three specials in ladies' embroidered belts (washable), retails at 15c., 25c. and 35c. each ; a grand display of ladies' fancy combs, all the newest shapes, some nicely set with brilliants, others with metal trimmings, from 80c. to $4.50 per dozen ; a nice assortment of ladies' beauty pins, done up in cabinets, one dozen pins on a card, assorted colors, retails at 5c. a card ; special line of men's imported natural wool underwear, Spring weight, guaranteed unshrinkable, sizes 34 to 46, retails at 75c. a garment ; a complete range of men's fancy cotton and cashmere half-hose in spots, stripes and checks, all new patterns, $2.25, $3, $3.25, $3.75, $4.50 per dozen ; special line of men's unlined kid gloves, imported, sizes 7½ to 10, to retail at $1 per pair.

John Macdonald & Co., Limited, are showing a beautiful range of dress muslins in spots, stripes and figures on light, medium and dark grounds, to retail at 7c., 8c., 10c. and 12½c., and several lines of colored, figured dotted Swiss muslins to retail at 12½c., 15c. and 20c. per yard. They are showing a plain colored dimity in all the wanted shades, including black and white, and also a figured dimity, both of which can be retailed at 12½c. to 15c. per yard. Their stock of Scotch zephyrs is now complete in stripes, checks and fancy tartan patterns, to be retailed at 12½c., 15c., 20c. and 25c. per yard. There still seems to be a great demand for the cotton delaines, of which they are showing a large range on cream, black and navy ground, in various size spots and patterns, which can be retailed at 8c., 10c., 12½c. and 15c. per yard. Their stock of white cottons is now complete including their "Globe cotton." They have a line of extra heavy wrapperette in all colors, with beautiful designs, which is being jobbed at a price to retail at 12½c. per yard.

This is the season for the carpet and house furnishing department. They are showing a larger range of goods than ever before in carpets, linoleums and squares, new designs and colorings. In the square trade they have stocked almost all sizes in jute tapestry, Brussels, velvet and Axminster. The famous Crossley velvet squares, which are noted for their brilliancy and good wearing qualities, the department has made the leader for the Spring season and is stocking a magnificent range. This line has proven a very ready seller and the new designs are richer than ever. In lace curtains, bed spreads and tapestry curtains a complete new range is now in stock. The quilt values are the best in the trade. Linoleums and oil-cloths. all widths, endless variety of patterns, in fancy and wood designs, are shown. Wood stripes are the newest goods for surrounds of rugs. They carry these patterns from cheapest oil-cloth to inlaid quality linoleum. Write for samples. Goods always in stock.

Alfred Weyerstall.

Alfred Weyerstall, with head office 77 York street, Toronto, has just received his new import samples of dress, neckwear, and fur trimmings, among which are the latest fashions brought out especially for the American market. He also shows a splendid range of laces, dress goods, linings, and taffetas ; his metal, crochet, velvet, and fancy buttons are particularly good. Mr. Weyerstall carries on an up-to-date manufacturers' and importing business, representing some of the best European, American, as well as domestic houses. His large stock and variety of tailoring and trimming buttons (made in Canada) is at all times complete, and he often has some of the best job lots in different lines available.

A Clever Novelty in Coat Linings.

Now that the lined coat promises to be a big factor in the Fall of 1907, the subject of suitable linings is one that will have to be carefully gone into. A clever novelty that has been brought under the notice of The Review is a twill damas lining put upon the market by a London firm, H. W. Wilson & Co., of Kingly and Regent Sts. This handsome lining is a combination of cotton and silk, the silk being thrown upon the surface and completely covering the cotton backing, that gives the necessary weight and body to the fabric. This lining is brought out in a big variety of handsome damas patterns, an effect, by the way, that has never before been obtainable in this class of lining, as it has hitherto been impossible to form a pattern with a twill ground. This is a lining that should be seen by all cloak manufacturers and furriers, as it is well calculated to take the place of the more expensive brocades. A white twill ground with a narrow black stripe has been a great seller with this firm, which is also showing a range of 25 colors in prepared suedes for trimming purposes.

E. Jobin & Co.

"A specialty millinery firm" well describes E. Jobin & Co., 152 Notre Dame street west, Montreal. As a result of years of earnest work and specialization, they have an enviable reputation for many lines of millinery trimmings. Ostrich feathers in particular is a line that makes this firm known to Quebec trade. The house has no traveling representatives. Merchants visiting the city and desirous of buying these lines right should make a point of calling at the above address.

Form For Draping—Manufactured by Delfosse & Co.

Paton's Alloa Yarns.

With the present upward tendency of the yarn market there is much "doctoring" of yarns done in order to keep down the price as much as possible. There is one line of yarns which still holds to its purity, and that is Paton's Alloa yarns. They are the best of Scotch yarns and stand the test of durability and purity and add much value to the goods made from them. Their quality is being sustained, even in this time of cheapening of all lines of wool. The spinning mills of the firm manufacturing these yarns are always filled up with orders, but as they have recently extended their plant, and are yet adding to it, they are in a position to meet the demand for Alloa yarns. Philip DeGruchy, Montreal, is the Canadian representative for Paton's Alloa yarns.

The Canadian Underwear Co.

This firm under new management is now located at 505 St. Paul street, Montreal, where they removed after the disastrous St. Helen street fire, which destroyed almost their entire stock. The firm has enlarged quarters, and an entire new stock of "J" brand collars, cuffs and shirts has already arrived. They will maintain the agency for the Empire linen-mesh underwear.

S. A. Jacobs, thoroughly known in Canadian trade circles, and who some two years ago was proprietor of the New York Silk Waist Company, selling out the plant in order to go south for his health, is the new manager of the Canadian Underwear Co. Mr. Jacobs brings to bear upon his new work renewed health, a splendid connection and business ability of a high order.

In speaking with The Review he states that the settlement of the Austrian labor troubles means they will have no further difficulty in regard to deliveries of "J" brand goods. The firm will shortly commence an energetic and forcible advertising campaign designed to make the "J" brand goods even better known to consumers. Their idea is to co-operate with retail merchants.

Greenshields, Ltd., Montreal.

In the wash dress goods department of this house shipments are being received daily, and from now on there will be improved deliveries from the mills. Customers' orders will be given every attention, and the firm is doing its utmost to meet the demand for early Spring delivery. An exclusive range of organdie muslins in all the salable lines and colorings is of special interest to the retailer. Samples are now in the hands of the travelers and are well worth careful inspection. Qualities are better than in previous years and prices about the same. Sheer white waistings, Victoria and Persian lawns are selling at a great rate. Their qualities merit every success, and the select lines of waistings are shown in so wide a range that all requirements can be met.

"A" department has many pleasing lines to offer to the trade at this season of the year, and while there is a splendid chance to cover all requirements early ordering is advisable. A complete line of staple goods is now on hand, and some exceptionally good values are to be had in flannelettes and ginghams. Some job cases of printed goods are on hand to attract buyers. There has been a great scarcity of goods, but this firm has been singularly fortunate in having secured very good deliveries.

An extensive range of furs is now being shown by the travelers. The line embraces the latest designs in muffs, stoles and collars made of marmot, hare and other popular furs. The "Shield" brand waists in white lawn, in the latest styles, with various lengths of sleeves, and at all prices, will radily make selling easy for the retailer who handles them

Condensed Advertisements

AGENTS WANTED.

GOOD Agent Wanted by St. Gall manufacturer of embroidery, edgings and insertions, allovers and flouncings, blouses and robes. Please address offers to O. F. 2316 Orell Fussili, Annoncen, Zurich, Switzerland. [12]

A BARMEN (Germany) ribbon factory, special in linen, underwear, laces, embroidered and woven linen marks and shirt labels wants a live agent for Canada. He must visit linen underwear factories and the wholesale firms. Apply with offers to No. 5 Orell Fussli, Annoncen, Zurich, Switzerland.

AGENT WANTED by London, England, house, to sell novelties in trimmings and fancy linings. A first-class line for the Dress Department. Write Kingley, care of DRY GOODS REVIEW, 88 Fleet Street, London, England.

WANTED

BUYER of Montreal dry goods store, residing in Paris, speaking French, English, German and Spanish, is open to represent a good Canadian firm. Apply Box P, DRY GOODS REVIEW, Montreal.

WANTED—First-class traveller to represent us in Ontario; one having knowledge of clothing trade preferred. Commission and expenses. Address, Weir Wardrobe Co. of Canada, Limited Mount Forest, Ont.

BRIGHT intelligent boy wanted in every town and village in Canada, good pay besides the gift of a watch for good work. Apply The MacLean Pub. Co., 10 Front St. East, Toronto.

LADIES' GARMENTS.

MERCHANTS desiring to have surplus stock of materials made up into Ladies' elegantly tailored suits, Coats, Shirt Waists, Raincoats, etc. at very moderate prices, should write us for catalogue of designs and price list. Special order garments promptly attended to Self measuring charts on application. The Canadian Skirt Co., 27 Wyndham St. Guelph, Ont.

MENS' CLOTHING.

MERCHANTS everywhere should have our samples and catalogues for Men's special order high class tailored Clothing. Your own materials made if desired. Prices, etc., on application. Royal Tailoring, 25 Wyndham St. Guelph, Ont.

BUYERS of Montreal Dry Goods Store, residing in Paris, speaking French, English, German and Spanish, is open to represent a good Canadian Firm. Apply Box P. DRY GOODS REVIEW, Montreal.

DRESS Goods Salesman Wanted—Large Western Ontario Town. One able to dress windows preferred. Good position for right man. Applications confidential. Apply to Box A, care of DRY GOODS REVIEW, 10 Front St. E., Toronto.

WHOLESALE HOUSES

BROCK & PATERSON
ST. JOHN, N.B. HALIFAX, N.S.
LIMITED

The Wholesale Millinery and Fancy Dry Goods House of the Maritime Provinces.
MAIL ORDERS OUR ESPECIAL HOBBY.

GILMOUR, NEPHEW & CO.
Wholesale Dry Goods and Smallwares.
Are clearing
TABLE COVERS, CHENILLE and TAPESTRY CURTAINS
and all winter goods at bargain prices.
366 St. Paul St., MONTREAL.
TELEPHONE MAIN 2202.

CANADA HAIR CLOTH CO.
MANUFACTURERS OF HAIR CLOTHS.
St. Catharines, Ont.

HOTEL DIRECTORY

WINDSOR HOTEL
HAMILTON, BERMUDA
This house is pleasantly and conveniently located on the East side of Queen Street. The rooms are bright and cheerful. Every attention paid to guests. Billiards and Pool. Hot and cold water baths. A. McNICOL, Prop.

TOWER HOTEL GEORGETOWN DEMERARA
BRITISH GUIANA.
This first-class hotel is most conveniently situated in the coolest and healthiest part of the city. Five minutes from railway station and steamer stal lings, and near to all principal public buildings. Cool and lofty bedrooms. Spacious Dining and Ladies' Rooms. Billiard Room. Electric light throughout.

WOODSIDE BOARDING HOUSE
Corner of Main and Lamaha Streets
GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA.
Cool and airy Bedrooms, Excellent Cuisine Attendance qualified. Terms moderate. Electric Car Loop at gate of premises. Patronage Solicited. Manageress, E. COTTAM.

VICTORIA LODGE
HAMILTON, BERMUDA
Mrs. J. F. SMITH Proprietress.
Opposite Victoria Park and Cedar Ave.
Private Board $12 to $14 per week.
Open Nov. 1 Closes in May.

WINTER RESORT
QUEEN'S PARK HOTEL
PORT OF SPAIN, TRINIDAD, B.W.I.
JOHN McEWEN, Manager. For Rates, etc apply Trinidad Shipping and Trading Co., 29 Broadway, New York.

THE GRAND UNION
The most popular hotel in
OTTAWA, Ont. JAMES K. PAISLEY, Prop.

DOMINION HOUSE
W. H. DURHAM. Proprietor
RENFREW, - - ONTARIO
The most popular Hotel in the Ottawa Valley.

HALIFAX HOTEL
HALIFAX, N.S.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS

JENKINS & HARDY
Assignees, Chartered Accountants, Estate an Fire Insurance Agents, 15½ Toronto St., Toronto. 465 Temple Building, Montreal.

PERCY P. DAVENPORT,
Chartered Accountant and Assignee,
622 McIntyre Block - WINNIPEG, MAN.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS.

The ANDREW H. McDOWELL CO.
(Incorporated)
Dry Goods Commission Merchants, Mill Agents,
Woolens, Cottons, Dress Goods, Shoulder Pads, etc
Head Office: 329 St James St., Montreal, Que.
Branch Office: 1 Wellington St. E., Toronto.
Manufacturers accounts SOLICITED on favora' le terms

R. FLAWS & SON
Manchester Bldg., Melinda St., Toronto
Dry Goods Commission Agents.
Representing—S. & L. Ash Brothers, Leeds, Cloths, in great variety. Cartwright & Warners, Limited, Loughborough, Eng., Hosiery and Underwear. Bentley & Tempest, Leeds, Eng., Casket Cloth, Vicunas, Serges, Cap Cloths. Hood, Morton & Co., Newmilns, Scotland, Lace Curtains.

ALFRED WEYERSTALL
Head Office, 77 York St.
TORONTO
IMPORTER of all kinds of Buttons, Laces, Neckwear, Belts, Dress Trimmings, etc. Complete stock of Buttons and Tailors' Trimmings always on hand.

MOULTON & CO.
Proprietors of the old and reliable
MONTREAL FRINGE AND TASSEL WORKS
165 Nazareth Street, - Montreal
Manufacturers of
Braids, Cords, Barrel Buttons, Chenille, Dress and Furriers' Trimmings, Girdles, etc.

DAVIDSON & GATEHOUSE
COMMISSION MERCHANTS
Open to accept agencies for first-class Canadian and foreign manufacturers.
Correspondence invited
30 St. John St. - - - Montreal

J. SPROUL SMITH
Empire Building - - - TORONTO
Representing: Cornwall & York Cotton Mills Co., Ltd., Cotton Goods, St. John, N.B.; Paris, Wincey Mills Co., Flannels, etc., Paris, Ont.; John Bright & Bros., Carpets, Rochdale, Eng.; Wm. Ewart & Son, Linen Goods, Belfast, Ireland; H. Longbottom & Co., Cravenettes, Linings, etc. Bradford, Eng.

W. E. WALSH
207 St. James Street, - Montreal
SPECIAL LINES IN
Fancy Leather Goods, Bags, Purses, etc. Toilet Sets, Fans, Back and Side Combs, Brushes, Postcard Albums, Papeteries, etc., etc.

LEGAL CARDS

ATWATER, DUCLOS & CHAUVIN
Advocates, Montreal
Albert W. Atwater, K.C., Consulting Counsel for City of Montreal. Chas. A. Duclos. Henry N. Chauvin.

ROBINSON & GREEN
Barristers, Solicitors, Etc.
John A. Robinson, John R. Green, Solicitors for the Imperial Bank of Canada, the Southern Loan & Savings Co., St. Thomas, Ont.

COLLECTIONS, ETC.

THE MERCHANTS MERCANTILE CO.
260 St. James St., Montreal
MERCANTILE REPORTS AND COLLECTIONS
Our method of furnishing commercial reports to our subscribers gives prompt and reliable information to date. Every modern facility for the collection of claims. Tel. Main 1985.

A special line of Jap silk waists is of particularly good value, and should be inspected by those seeking good stock at reasonable prices. A full range of boys' Summer blouses at prices that cannot be beaten, and on which the firm has specialized this season, is a certain line for the progressive retailer. Boys' suits for Summer wear are carried in a pleasing variety of styles and patterns. A full line of ladies' mantles will soon be ready and these customers will find a most attractive line. The buyer of this department has selected from the best markets abroad a complete range of children's bearskin coats, which will be sold at attractive prices.

"E." department has some very good attractions to offer at this season of the year, and is in a position to give satisfactory deliveries on many of the lines which have been hard to secure during the past few months. It has in stock a big range of plain white and open-work hosiery to choose from at prices to suit all requirements. The Duchess lace ankle cashmere hosiery at $6.26 and the Victoria embroidered special at the same price are genuine bargains. Domestic and imported cotton, lisle, plain, fancy, wool and cashmere hose are carried in a large stock in all colors and prices to choose from. A big season for laces is ahead, and this firm is prepared to supply the demand at prices which are comparatively cheap, having bought their stock previous to the rise in the market prices. The popular Vals. are selling rapidly, and the department has some genuine bargains to offer in some box lots. Orientals in white and butter colors, and with all-overs to match, are being carried in a large selection. The demand at present is for the better qualities of laces, and the firm has banked heavily on white Vals., and there will be no difficulty in supplying the wants of customers. The guipure laces, which have again taken well with the trade, are also carried in most pleasing designs, which are ready sellers.

The carpet and house furnishings department has a better stock than ever before. It presents to the visitor a scene of activity, and the large Spring shipments give evidence of the satisfactory qualities of the goods offered. Merchants who have not yet placed their Spring orders would do well to do so at once, as further deliveries from the mills and factories are uncertain. The firm is in a position at present to deliver orders promptly and its stock is replete with the best that the market affords. Prices are right. Everything required in carpets, curtains, oil-cloths, linoleums, squares, mattings, mats, cretonnes and art muslins will be found in this department.

A Progressive Millinery Firm.

A comparatively new millinery firm is that of George D. Harper & Co., Montreal. Since its beginning, not much more than a year ago, it has made rapid strides which reflect great credit upon its progressive methods of business. The head of the firm, George D. Harper, has found his past experience as foreign buyer for a leading millinery house of great benefit to the firm during this year when goods were hard to secure, owing to the heavy demand and scarcity of millinery lines. Judicious buying has been the result of thorough training and the stock bought for the coming Spring has been carefully selected and is bound to meet with the approval of thr large following the firm has secured through progressive dealing.

R. C. Wilkins.

This progressive firm have had an exceptional volume of Spring orders. Already more than twice the orders over last year's figures have been booked. The full lines of Summer pants, for outing purposes, tweed pants, shirts and fancy vests are meeting with the approval of the trade. The lines are fully up to the high standard of the firm and are easy sellers for the retailer to handle.

The W. R. Brock Co., Ltd., Montreal.

Millinery season opens very shortly now and Brock's Montreal house is showing a very nice range of ribbons suitable for the purpose of hat trimmings, etc. With three large warehouses to supply, they are able to obtain concessions from manufacturers which enable them to defy competition and merchants dealing with them can be sure of getting good value. 300-60 taffeta ribbon, to retail at 25 cents, should make a hit with the millinery trade, as should also the "Wonder," to retail at 25 cents, and 871 to sell at 20 cents. A great many milliners buy their requisites from the retail merchants and store-keepers would do well to put in a stock of these goods. In children's headgear, they also have quite a range in the way of tams, and hoods in silk, lawn, muslin, etc., and as these goods always sell well they are quite a useful article of stock to the milliner.

In chiffons, too, the stock leaves nothing to be desired, lines to retail at 25, 35 and 50 cents being shown, while three lines of Japanese silks to retail at 25, 50 and 75 cents are features in the department. There are several lines of sarsenets retailing at 10, 18 and 35 cents, and also a line of China hat linings to retail at 8½ cents, very good value.

Plaid silks are still in high favor and Brock's are, as usual, to the front with a very complete range to retail at 50 cents. 42nd is still the favorite. A white and black overcheck line to sell at 50 cents is also finding a ready sale, while messalines to retail at 85 cents and $1.10 are going very well indeed for the Spring trade.

Some time ago the Brock Co. predicted stiff advances in staple cotton goods, and their prophecy, unfortunately, has come true. Cottons and linens have advanced very much during the past few months, linen yarns in particular having advanced over 100 per cent. For a few weeks yet the Brock Company will sell their stock at old prices, but their advice still is to place your orders now. Their range has not yet been broken and they have some pretty nice things in table linens, particularly in table cloth and napkin sets.

Messrs. Vyse, Sons & Co.

The demand for the smart blouse seems greater than ever. Messrs. Vyse, Sons & Co., Ltd., of Wood St., London, England, are showing an immense variety of these goods for the season. Especially attractive is the range of tailor-made blouses, which will be largely worn. Patterns and prices represent great variety.

Crepe de chines and Jap silks, in all shades, are very noticeable, and a novelty for the season is a fine quality alpaca blouse in all colors, with embroidered taffeta silk panel, which has a particularly smart effect.

In the corset department close by, we were shown many new shapes, some especially designed to give a long-waisted effect, cut rather low in the bust and with plenty of depth over the hips. The demand for shorter corsets is steadily maintained, in fact, seems to be increasing.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
A
After the Shutters are up
Art of Display	43
B
Business Management	103
Business Notes	130
Brief Talks on Advertising	22
D
Dress Goods	61
Dress Accessories	69
E
Editorial	64
F
Furs	117
Fancy Goods and Notions	115
G
Good Advertising	24
H
Housefurnishings	109
Hints to Buyers	141
I
Items from All Canada	132
K
Knitted Goods	29
L
Late Timothy Eaton
London Letter	86
M
Men and Methods	19
Millinery	87
Men's Furnisher	121
Mainly About Ourselves	140
N
New York Letter	98
P
Paris Fashions	100
Pedlars and Transcients	135
Parcel Post Situation	53
R
Ready-to-wear	79
S
Show Card Writing	50
Staples	105
T
Trade Inquiries	112
W
Wall Paper	110

CLASSIFIED LIST OF ADVERTISEMENTS.

Accountants, Auditors.
Davenport, P. P., Winnipeg.
Jenkins & Hardy, Toronto.

Artificial Flowers, Foliage, Etc.
Netschert, Carl, Chicago, Ill.

Awnings, Tents, Etc.
Bartlett, Wm., & Son, Toronto.

Blankets, Quilts, Traveling Rugs, etc.
Dr. Jaeger's Sanitary Woollen System Co., Limited, Montreal.
Toronto Feather & Down Co., Toronto.

Button Machines and Buttons.
Defiance Button Machine Co., New York.

Calendars—Cards.
Tuck, Raphael, & Sons Co., Montreal.

Carpets, Curtains, Rugs, Window Shades, etc.
Brock, W. R. Co., Toronto and Montreal.
Daly & Morin, Montreal.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Garneau, P., Fils & Cie, Quebec
Hees, Geo. H., Son & Co., Montreal and Toronto.
Imperial Carpet Co., Toronto.
Ishikawa, K., & Co., Toronto.
Knox, John & Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Macdonald, John, & Co., Toronto.
McRae & Walker, Winnipeg.
McDowell, A. H., & Co., Montreal.
Moore Carpet Co , Sherbrooke, Que.

Cloaks, Costumes, Skirts, Shirt Waists, Raincoats, etc
American Silk Waist Co., Montreal.
Boas-Felson Co., Montreal.
Brock, W. R., Co., Toronto and Montreal.
China & Japan Silk Co., Montreal.
Empire Mfg. Co , Montreal.
Fairbairn, Rhys. D., Toronto.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Knox, John, Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Mishkin, I., & Co., Montreal.
New York Silk Waist Mfg, Co., Montreal.
Rylands & Sons, Manchester, Eng.
Waldman, J. H., & Co., Montreal.

Corsets.
Konig & Stuffman, Montreal.
Parisian Corset Mfg. Co., Quebec.

Cottons, Prints, Muslins, Shirtings, etc.
Dominion Textile Co., Montreal.
Haworth, Richard, & Sons, "Spero," Manchester, Eng.
Horrockses, Crewdson & Co., Manchester and London, Eng.
"Kingcot" Cottons.
Knox, John, & Co., Hamilton.
Montreal Cotton Co., Montreal.
Rylands & Sons, Manchester, Eng.
Victor Mfg. Co., Quebec.

Cotton Batting.
Dominion Wadding Co., Montreal.

Dress Goods, Silks, etc.
Bradford Dyers Association, Bradford, Eng.
Brock, W. R., Co., Toronto and Montreal.
Brophy-Cains, Limited, Montreal.
China & Japan Silk Co., Ltd., Montreal.
Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Montreal and Toronto.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Gilmour, Nephew & Co., Montreal.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Harris & Co., Rockwood, Ont.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal.
Ishikawa, K., & Co., Toronto.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Macdonald, John, & Co., Toronto.
McDowell, A. H., & Co., Montreal.
Montreal Cotton Co., Montreal.
Priestleys'—Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Priestlys'—Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Rylands & Sons, Manchester, Eng.

Dress Shields, etc.
Kleinert, I. B., Rubber Co., Toronto.

Dryers, Cleaners, etc.
Bradford Dyers Ass'n., London, Eng.
British American Dyeing Co., Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and Quebec.
Hermsdorf, Louis, New York.
Parker, R., & Co., Toronto.

Embroidery Hoops.
Gibbs Mfg. Co., Canton, Ohio.

Fancy Leather Goods.
Walsh, W. E., Montreal.

Flannels, Flannelettes, etc.
Brock, W. R., Co., Toronto.
Brophy-Cains, Limited, Montreal.
Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Toronto.
Dominion Textile Co., Montreal.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Haworth, Richard, & Sons, "Spero," Manchester, Eng.
Horrockses, Crewdson & Co., Manchester and London, Eng.
Knox, John, & Co., Hamilton.
Vineberg, Albert, Fur Co., Montreal.

Frillings.
Fairbairn, Rhys D., Toronto.
Plantagenet Frillings (C. H. Hill & Co.), Nottingham, Eng.

Furs.
Alexandor, A. J., Montreal.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal
Orr, Wm. E., & Co., Toronto.
Paquet, J. Arthur, Quebec.
Vineberg Albert, Fur Co., Montreal.

General Dry Goods.
Brock, W. R., Co., Montreal and Toronto.
Brophy-Cains, Limited, Montreal.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Gilmour, Nephew & Co., Montreal.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Hirshson, L., & Co., Montreal.
Knox, John, Co., Hamilton.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Macdonald, John, & Co., Toronto.
Rylands & Sons, Manchester, Eng.

Gloves, Mittens, etc.
Fownes Bros. & Co., Montreal.
Paquet, J. Arthur, Quebec.
Pewny's Kid Gloves—Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Storey, W. H. & Sons, Acton.
Wreyford & Co., Toronto.

Hammocks.
Dominion Hammock Co., Dunnville.

Hats, Caps, Etc.
Clement, A E., Montreal.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Paquet, J. Arthur, Quebec.
Strachan Bros., Toronto.
Wreyford & Co., Toronto.
Vyse, Sons & Co., Ltd., London, Eng.

Hose Supporters.
Eisman Novelty Mfg. Co., Toronto.
Kleinert, I. B., Rubber Co., Toronto.

Knit Underwaists.
Nazareth Waist Co., New York.

Laces and Veils.
Brophy-Cains Limited, Montreal.
Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Toronto.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Knox, John, & Co., Hamilton.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Sandersons, Limited, Toronto.

Ladies' Neckwear.
Fairbairn, Rhys D. Toronto.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Knox, John, & Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Ladies' Wear, Ltd., Toronto.
Sandersons, Limited, Toronto.

Mending Wools, Silk, Cotton and Linen Thread, etc.
Baldwin & Partners, J. & J., Leicester, Eng.
De Gruchy, Philip, Montreal.
Frank & Bryce, Montreal.

Men's and Boys' Ready-Made Clothing (Overalls, Leather and Rain-coats, Sweaters, etc.).
Brock, W. R., Co., Toronto and Montreal.
Campbell Clad Co., Moncton, N.B.
Garland, John M., Son, & Co., Ottawa.
Garnett, J. F., & Son, Idle, Bradford.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Imperial Mills Co., Dunnville, Ont.
Knox, John, & Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Mishkin, I & Co., Montreal.
National Rubber Co., Montreal.
Rylands & Son, Manchester, Eng.
Rock Island Overall Co., Rock Island.
Wilkins, Robert C., Montreal.

Millinery, Ribbons, etc.
Barry, W. H., & Co., Montreal.
Brophy-Cains Limited, Montreal.
Caverhill, John B., & Co.. Montreal.
Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Montreal. and Toronto.
Francois & Co., London, Eng.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Goulding, G., & Sons, Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Harper, G., & Co., Montreal.
Jobin, E., & Co., Montreal.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
McCall, D., Toronto.
Vyse, Sons & Co., Ltd., London, Eng.

Neckwear.
Niagara Neckwear Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.

Needles and Pins.
Morrall, Abel, Redditch, Eng.
Nicklin, J., & Co., Birmingham, Eng.

Novelties and Notions.
Ladies' Wear, Ltd., Toronto.
Nicklin, J., & Co., Birmingham, Eng.
Sandersons Limited, Toronto.
Weyerstall, Alfred, Toronto.
Wrinch, McLaren & Co., Toronto.

Nurseryman.
Brown Bros. Co., Ltd., Brown's Nurseries, Ont.

Office Supplies.
Business Systems Ltd., Toronto.
Universal Systems Ltd., Toronto.

Oil Cloths, Linoleums and Mattings.
China & Japan Silk Co., Montreal.
Dominion Oilcloth Co., Montreal.
Imperial Carpet Co., Toronto.

Papier Mache Forms, Wax Figures, etc.
Palmenberg's, J. R., Sons, New York.

Picture Post Cards and Albums.
Walsh, W E., Montreal.

Raw Materials.
Sloan, N. P., & Co., Montreal.
Davidson & Gatehouse, Montreal.

Shipping, Railway Insurance and Commission Agents.
Whittingham, W. M., & Co., Liverpool, Eng.

Shirts, Collars, Ties, etc.
Brock, W. R., Toronto.
Brown & Aschroft, Montreal.
Canadian Underwear Co., Montreal.
Cellular Clothing Co., London, Eng.
Colossus Brand Shirts.
Empire Mfg. Co., Montreal.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Ishikawa, K., & Co., Toronto.
Knox, John & Co., Hamilton.
Niagara Neckwear Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.
"Success" Brand Collars and Cuffs, Montreal.
Wilkins, Robert C , Montreal.
Wreyford & Co., Toronto.

Silks and Satins.
British American, The, Import Co., Montreal

Smallwares.
Brock, W. R., Co., Montreal.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Gilmour, Nephew & Co,, Montreal.
Knox, John & Co., Hamilton.
Morrall, Abel, Redditch, Eng.
Newey Bros., Ltd., Birmingham, Eng.
Nicklin, J., & Co., Birmingham, Eng.
Wrinch, McLaren & Co., Toronto.

Staples and Linens.
Brock, W. R., Co., Toronto and Montreal.
Brophy-Cains, Limited, Montreal.
Dominion Linen Mills, Bracebridge, Ont.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Garneau, P. Fils & Cie, Quebec.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Liddell, Wm., & Co., Belfast, Ireland.
McDowell, A. H., & Co., Montreal.
Rylands & Sons, Manchester, Eng,
Wallace, Blake & Shouldice, Toronto.

Store Fixtures and Show Cards.
Clatworthy & Son, Toronto.
Delfosse & Co. Montreal.
Martel-Stewart Co., Montreal.
Richardson, A. S., Toronto.
Russell, A. N., & Son Co,, Ilion, N.Y.
Thayer and Chandler Co., Chicago.
Toronto Brass Mfg. Co., Toronto.

Store Lighting.
Lamson Consolidated Store Service Co., Toronto.
Luxfer Prism Co., Montreal and Toronto.

Suspenders.
Brock, W. R., Co., Montreal.
Globe Suspender Co., Rock Island.
Dominion Suspender Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.

Towellings, etc.
Brock, W. R. Co. Toronto.
Brophy-Cains, Limited, Montreal.
Cosbie, R. H., Toronto.
Garland, J. M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.

Umbrellas, Parasols, etc.
Irving Umbrella Co., Toronto.

Underwear, Hosiery and Knitted Goods.
Cartwright & Warners, Loughborough, Eng.
"Ceetee" brand—Turnbull, C., Co., Galt.
Cellular Clothing Co., London, Eng.
Chipman-Holton Knitting Co., Hamilton.
Clinton Knitting Co., Clinton, Ont.
"Crescent" brand—Lennard, S., & Sons, Dundas.
Eagle Knitting Co., Hamilton.
Ellis Mfg. Co., Hamilton.
Galt Knitting Co., Galt, Ont.
Garland, John M., Son & Co., Ottawa.
Greenshields Limited, Montreal.
Greenshields Western Limited, Winnipeg.
Henderson, A., & Co., Montreal.
Imperial Mills Co., Dunnville, Ont.
Jaeger, Dr., Co., Montreal.
Knox, John & Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal.
Lennard, S., & Sons, Dundas, Ont.
Macdonald, John, & Co., Toronto.
McDowell, A. H., & Co., Montreal.
Peerless Underwear Co., Hamilton.
Penman Co., Paris, Ont.
Raven, W., & Co., Ltd., Leicester, Eng.
Simpson, J., Sons, Toronto
Stanfields Limited, Truro, N S.
Watson, Mfg., Co., Paris.
Williams, Walter, & Co., Montreal.
Wreyford & Co., Toronto.

Upholsterers' Supplies
Hees, Geo. H., Son & Co., Toronto.

Wall Paper.
Menzie Wall Paper Co., Toronto.
Stauntons Limited, Toronto.
Watson-Foster Co., Montreal.

Wardrobes
Weir Wardrobe Co, Winnipeg, Man.

Waterproof and Rubber Goods.
Brock, W. R. Co., Montreal.
Cravenette Co., Bradford, Eng.
McRae & Walker, Winnipeg.
National Rubber Co., Montreal.

Whitewear.
Laurentian Whitewear Co., Levis, Que.
Victor Mfg. Co., Quebec.

Window Shades, Curtain Poles, etc.
Daly & Morin, Montreal
Hees, Geo. H., Son & Co., Montreal and Toronto.

Woolens and Tailors' Trimmings.
British American, The, Import Co., Montreal
Harris & Co., Rockwood, Ont.
Hewson Woolen Mills, Amherst, N.S.
Wilson, H. W., & Co., London, Eng.

INDEX TO ADVERTISERS.

A	PAGE
Accountants' Directory	143
Alexandor, A. J.	118
American Silk Waist Co.	83
Australasian Draper	10
B
Baldwin, J. & J., & Partners	28
Barry, W. H., & Co	101
Bartlett, Wm., & Son	97
Bell Telephone Co.	10
Boas-Felson Co.	84
Bradford Dyers' Ass'n.	11
British-America Assurance Co.	10
British American Dyeing Co.	49
Brock, W. R., Co.	18, 93
Brock & Paterson.	143
Brophy-Cains, Limited	23
Brown Bros. Co., Ltd.	14
Business Systems Ltd.	48
Busy Man's Magazine	10
C
Campbell Clad Co.	128
Canada Haircloth Co	143
Canada Paper Co.	11
Canadian Glove & Mitten Co	134
Canadian Underwear Co.	126
Cartwright & Warners	26
Cellular Clothing Co.	127
China & Japan Silk Co.	114
Chipman Holton Knitting Co	26
Clement, A. E.	127
Clatworthy & Son	134
Clinton Knitting Co.	39
Confederation Life Association	11
Copeland-Chatterson Co	133
Cosbie, R. H.	116
D
Daly & Morin	108
Davidson & Gatehouse	143
Debenhams (Canada) Limited	17, 90
Defiance Button Machine Co.	11
De Gruchy, Philip.	39
Delfosse & Co	47
Dominion Hammock Co.	16
Dominion Linen Mills	16
Dominion Oilcloth Co	111
Dominion Suspender Co.	122
Dominion Textile Co.	107
Dominion Wadding Co.	5
E
Eagle Knitting Co.	33, 34
Ellis Mfg. Co	36
Empire Mfg. Co.	85
F
Fairbairn, Rhys D.	68
Financial Post	12
Flaws, R., & Son.	143
Fownes Bros. & Co.	73
Francois & Co.	101

G	PAGE
Garland, John M., Son & Co.	3
Garnett, Joshua F., & Son	129
Gibbs Mfg. Co.	116
	PAGE
Gilmour, Nephew & Co	143
Globe Suspender Co	127
Goulding, G., & Sons	97
Greenshields Western Ltd.	6, 7, 8 and inside back cover
Greenshields.	1, 2, 74
H
Harper, G., & Co.	87
Harris & Co	63
Haworth, Richard, & Sons.	17
Hees, Geo. H., Son & Co.	113
Henderson, R., & Co.	26
Hermsdorf, Louis	35
Hewson Woolen Mills	40
Horrockses, Crewsdon & Co.	4
Hotel Directory	143
I
Imperial Carpet Co.	108
Imperial Mills Co.	39
Irving Umbrella Co.	inside front cover
Ishikawa, K., & Co.	16
J
Jaeger, Dr., Co.	35
Jay Finish Underwear	31
Jobin, C. & Co.	101
K
King, John, & Son	108
Kingcot	104
Kleinert, I. B., Rubber Co.	14
Knox, John, Co.	25
Konig & Stuffman	41
Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co.	5
L
Laces & Braids Ltd	75
Lamson Consolidated Store Service Co.	49
Ladies' Wear Ltd.	76
Laurentian Whitewear Co.	77
Law Russell & Co.	60
Legal Directory	143
Lennard, S., & Sons.	35
Liddell, William, & Co.	116
Luxfer Prism Co.	48
M
Macdonald, John & Co.	outside back cover
Martel-Stewart Co.	46
McCall, D., Co.	68, 89
McDowell, A. H., & Co.	229
McRae & Walker	63
Merchants Mercantile Co	143
Metropolitan Bank	10
Mishkin, I., & Co.	84
Montreal Cotton Co.	63
Morrall, Abel	15
Moulton & Co.	143

N	PAGE
National Rubber Co.	83
Nazareth Waist Co.	38
Netschert, Carl.	47
Newey Bros. Ltd.	67
New York Silk Waist Mfg. Co., Ltd.	82
Niagara Neckwear Co	122
Nicklin, J., & Co.	11
O
Orr, W. E., & Co.,	119
Oxford Mfg. Co	129
P
Palmenberg's Sons, J. R	47
Paquet, J. Arthur.	123
Parisian Corset Co.	82
Parker, R., & Co.	inside front cover
Paton, John, Son & Co.	39
Peerless Underwear Co	37
Penman Mfg. Co.	120
Pewny's Kid Gloves	5
R
Raven, W., & Co., Ltd.	26
Rock Island Overall Co.	127
Russell, A. N., & Son Co.	42
Rylands & Sons	9
S
Sanderson's Limited	75
Simpson, J., Sons	27
Smith, J. Sproule	143
Standard Shirt Co.	125
Stanfields Limited	26
Stauntons Limited.	110
Storey, W. H., & Son.	73
Strachan Bros.	130
T
Thayer & Chandler Co.	46
Toronto Brass Mfg. Co.	49
Toronto Feather & Down Co.	110
Tuck, Raphael, & Sons Co., Ltd.	114
Turnbull, C., Co., of Galt.	36
U
Universal Systems, Limited.	42
V
Victor Mfg. Co.	77
Vineberg, Albert, Fur Co.	119
Vyse Sons & Co., Ltd.	97
W
Waldman, J. H., & Co.	78
Wallace Blake & Shouldice	16
Walsh, E. H.	26
Walsh, W. E.	143
Watson Mfg. Co.	32
Weir Wardrobe Co.	48
Western Assurance Co.	10
Weyerstall, Alfred	143
Whittingham, W. M., & Co.	11
Wilkins, Robert C.	inside front cover
Williams, Walter, & Co.	36
Wilson, H. W., & Co.	73
Wreyford & Co.	129
Wrinch, McLaren & Co	11

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

Wholesale

General Dry Goods

Priestleys' Cravenette

Many poor cloths are stamped Cravenette. Cravenetting is a process that can be applied to either good cloth or inferior cloth. A cheap Cravenette is a bad investment, for the simple reason that the colors are not fast and it will only keep out the rain for a short time.

Should you want rainproof material that will give all round satisfaction, then buy Priestleys' Cravenettes. They are made from the best of wool and are guaranteed fast dye.

Our Mail Order Department is up-to-date

54, 56, 58, 60 Arthur Street | Winnipeg | 53, 55, 57, 59 King Street

February, 1907

TO THE TRADE:

The Great Assorting House of Canada

Language cannot express the advantages merchants have in placing their orders for General Dry Goods, Men's Furnishings, Haberdashery, Carpets, Housefurnishings and Ready-to-Wear Goods

With Us.

Filling Letter Orders a Specialty.

JOHN MACDONALD & CO., Limited

Wellington and Front Streets East,

TORONTO

SPECIAL FEATURE

FURS

THE DRY GOODS REVIEW AND MEN'S FURNISHER

March

1907

18TH YEAR

NUMBER 3

Office of Publication
10 Front St. E., Toronto

PRICE 25 CENTS

THE MACLEAN PUBLISHING CO. LIMITED
MONTREAL, TORONTO, WINNIPEG.

Keeping Clean Stocks Always

What more satisfactory to realize than that every piece of material on your shelves is saleable. If soiled or off color this is not the case. But there is no reason that these conditions should exist. We keep clean and fresh the stocks of hundreds of Dry Goods Merchants and Milliners all over the country because from time to time they gather up these off-lines, ship them to these works and have them returned to their shelves as good, saleable lines. Why not join the procession ?

R. PARKER & CO., DYERS and FINISHERS

TORONTO - - - CANADA

ESTABLISHED OVER 30 YEARS

FANCY PARASOLS

We look for a large increase in the sale of Fancy Parasols and have anticipated your requirements with the most complete line we have yet shown.

We solicit your orders—

Samples now in the hands of our travellers.

The Irving Umbrella Company LIMITED

MANUFACTURERS

79-83 Wellington St. W., Toronto

"ROOSTER BRAND"

Best

Made

Travellers now out for Fall.

Heavy Working Pants
Heavy Working Shirts
Heavy Winter Smox
Overalls and Jackets
White Coats and Sleeve Vests
Boys' Knickers

ROBT. C. WILKINS

MONTREAL.

N.B.—All lines of Summer goods for assorting.

Greenshields Western Ltd., Winnipeg, Wholesale Dry Goods.

See our ads. on pages 6, 7, 8 and inside back cover.

This is the time

Each Department a complete Specialty House in itself.

when retailers appreciate the advantages of our large stocks. Buyers of dry goods who are well posted in their business know that there exists at the present time a scarcity of desirable merchandise. The greatest trouble to-day is to get goods from either foreign or domestic markets.

The most comprehensive and best selected lines.

We have a large and complete assortment of Cottons, Ginghams, Prints and Wash Goods.

Large and attractive lines of Carpets and House-furnishings.

Men's Furnishings in endless variety.

When you want a thing and need it quick, order from us.

Special attention is directed to our thoroughly equipped Smallwares department.

Every department equipped to fill your wants. We shall be glad to have you look at our travellers' samples or send us a list of your wants.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED
MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg.

Greenshields & Co. Limited
Vancouver

PRIESTLEYS' HUGUENOT CLOTH

THEIR LATEST CREATION

PRIESTLEYS' ALL WOOL

"HUGUENOT" CLOTH is a combination of beauty, suppleness, and durability, which will add to the reputation of these celebrated makers.

"HUGUENOT" CLOTH

PRIESTLEYS' unrivalled dyeing and finishing has produced a cloth sure of immediate appeal to present day demands. " HUGUENOT" cloth possesses all the durability and close texture of the old time serge, with the soft, rich draping qualities of a Fench Cashmere.

FASHION'S FAVORITE

Colours include the latest shades in various profusion rich tints of red, green, blue and brown, and new evening shades, Rich dye and permanent finish characterize every yard.

FOR HARD AND DRESSY WEAR

It will be the Spring leader and liven up the interest in your Dress Goods Department.
You need it—Your customers want it.

SAMPLES AND PARTICULARS UPON REQUEST

SOLE AGENTS FOR CANADA

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited.
Winnipeg, Man.

Greenshields & Co., Limited,
Vancouver, B. C.

JOHN M. GARLAND, SON & CO.

Wholesale Dry Goods

146, 148, 150 and 152 Queen St.
45, 47, 49 and 51 O'Connor St.
OTTAWA, CAN.

We are Ready to Show You

FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT

The most comprehensive and well selected lines of Dress Goods, Wash Goods, Staple and Fancy Dress Linens, White Goods, Handkerchiefs, Laces, Embroideries, Insertions, Etc.

The latest productions from the best makers in Skirts, Rain Coats and Ready-to-wear Blouses.

This Will Be a Strictly White Season

ARE YOU PREPARED FOR IT?

In view of this we have made preparations for the same in due time, and will show an unusually large range of Special Finish Lawns, India Linons, Mulls, Nainsooks, Corded Lawns, Ulster and Munster Linens, Irish Costume Linens, Special Embroidery Linens for Blouse purposes.

The above lines come in reasonable lengths, and at prices which will enable you to retail them at a good profit.

Buyers visiting the markets in this city will be shown through the various departments with pleasure, as we are confident that we have lines that will interest the keenest buyer.

P.S.—Mail Orders will receive our most careful attention.

RYLANDS & SONS

LIMITED

MANCHESTER, ENG.

Cotton Spinners

Merchants

Manufacturers

Bleachers

Dyers

Finishers

Makers of the Celebrated Dacca Calicoes and Sheetings

WORKS:

Heapey,

Longford Works,

Gorton.

WORKS:

Swinton,

Wigan,

Chorley.

Capital, $14,500,000; Employees, 12,000

The Birley Patent Knock Down Box is the best CLOTHING BOX on the market

BECAUSE

It is the strongest Folding Box made;

It is very quickly set up;

It is the neatest Box on the market;

It is a standing advertisement wherever used;

It will carry by express without further wrapping;

The material and workmanship are of the very best.

It is ABSOLUTELY DUSTPROOF which very few are and consequently is the most desirable Box to use in the house;

When once set up it will always retain its shape;

Considering the quality of material and work it is the cheapest Box in the country;

Your customer will prefer it to any other Box, so it is the one you should buy.

IT IS USED BY ALL THE BEST HOUSES FROM THE ATLANTIC TO THE PACIFIC

DOMINION PAPER BOX CO., LIMITED

469 to 483 KING ST. WEST, TORONTO

BATTING

Guaranteed free from threads and other weak and lifeless stock.

NORTH STAR,
CRESCENT and PEARL

COTTON BATTING

Quality for this season still better than ever. The best at the price. Made of good pure cotton—not shoddy.

Ask for

North Star, Crescent and Pearl Batting.

THREE SELLING QUALITIES IN

Pewny's Kid Gloves

GOOD FIT. GOOD STYLE. GOOD WEAR.

Besides every pair is guaranteed.

Fall Samples Ready for Inspection

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

Wholesale

General Dry Goods

Have you seen

PRIESTLEY'S New Spring range of Dress Goods? If not it will repay you to do so and will be well worth your while.

The complete range is now in the hands of all our travellers and it is well worth an inspection.

54, 56, 58, 60 Arthur Street

Winnipeg

53, 55, 57, 59 King Street

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

Wholesale

General Dry Goods

DRESS GINGHAMS

AT A BARGAIN

500 pieces Dress Ginghams, good variety of colors and patterns. Regular 10 cent and 12 cent lines. To clear, 8 cents.

SCOTCH GINGHAMS

A shipment of 1,000 pieces has arrived from the Old Country and we are prepared to make immediate shipments. This line comprises all colors in PLAIN and CHECK CHAMBRAYS, CORDED STRIPES and CHECKS, REAL SCOTCH PLAIDS. Latest effects in checks.

The real Scotch Gingham is shown all over the world for its wearing and washing qualities.

COTTONS

SHEETINGS

PILLOW COTTONS

This is the time to plan your order for these lines. Since we have placed our order prices have advanced from 5 per cent. to 10 per cent. If you wish to buy at the old prices buy at once.

54, 56, 58, 60 Arthur Street	Winnipeg	53, 55, 57, 59 King Street

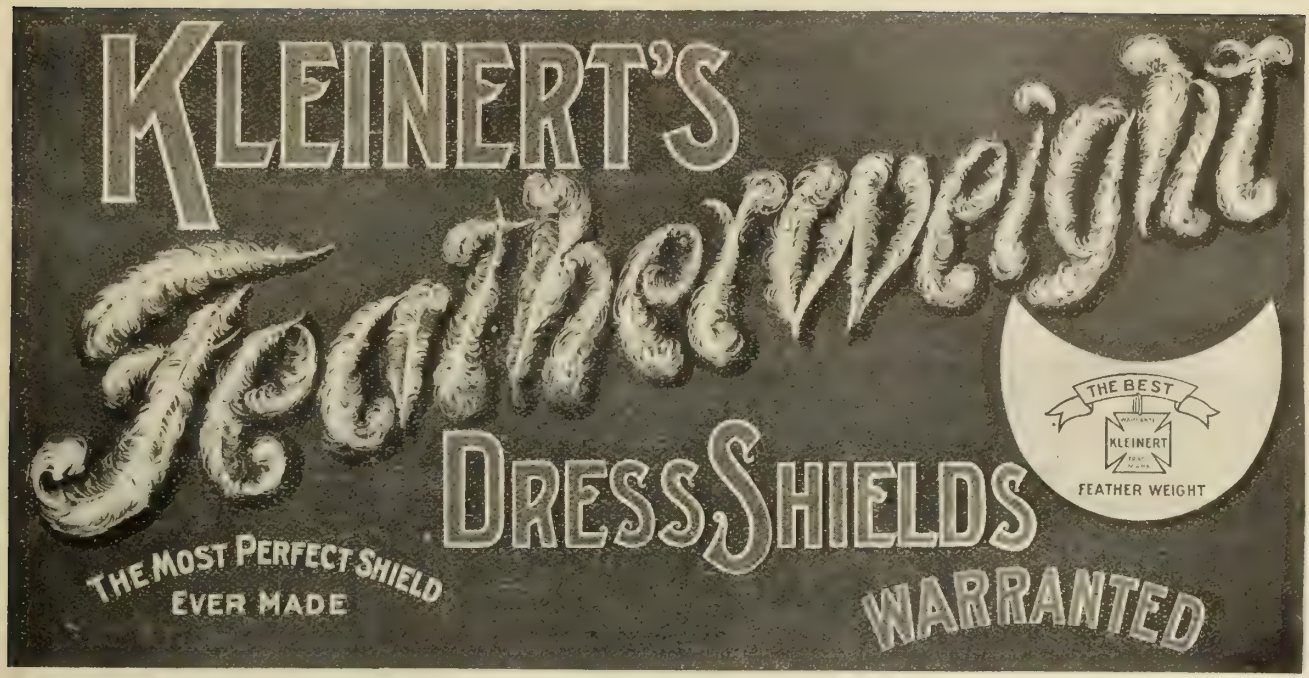
GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

Wholesale

General Dry Goods

Household Linen Department



We beg to inform the trade of a special purchase of DAMASK which we can offer at an exceptionally low price. Ask our travellers to show you No. L. 225.

We carry a full range of Fringed, Hemmed and Hemstitched Towels, Turkish Towels, Colored and Bleached Crash and Turkish Towelling, Hollands, Tablecloths and Napkins.

Also Embroidery Linens, Fronting Linens, Apron Dowlas, bleached and unbleached.

Let us have your linen order—we guarantee to give you satisfaction.

54, 56, 58, 60 Arthur Street | Winnipeg | 53, 55, 57, 59 King Street

If not obtainable from your jobber send direct to us for sample dozen.

I. B. KLEINERT RUBBER COMPANY

Toronto, - - Canada

SPRING '07

LACES,

We have just passed into stock a complete assortment of High Class Lace Novelties, Latest Designs.

Valenciennes Laces, Edgings,
Allovers, Embroideries,
Embroidered Vals, Cluny, etc.

"DEBENHAMS FOR NOVELTIES"

DEBENHAMS (CANADA) LIMITED

Bay and Wellington Streets,
TORONTO.

ESTABLISHED 1791.

Horrockses'

Longcloths, Nainsooks,

Cambrics,

India Longcloths,

Sheetings,

Ready-made Sheets,

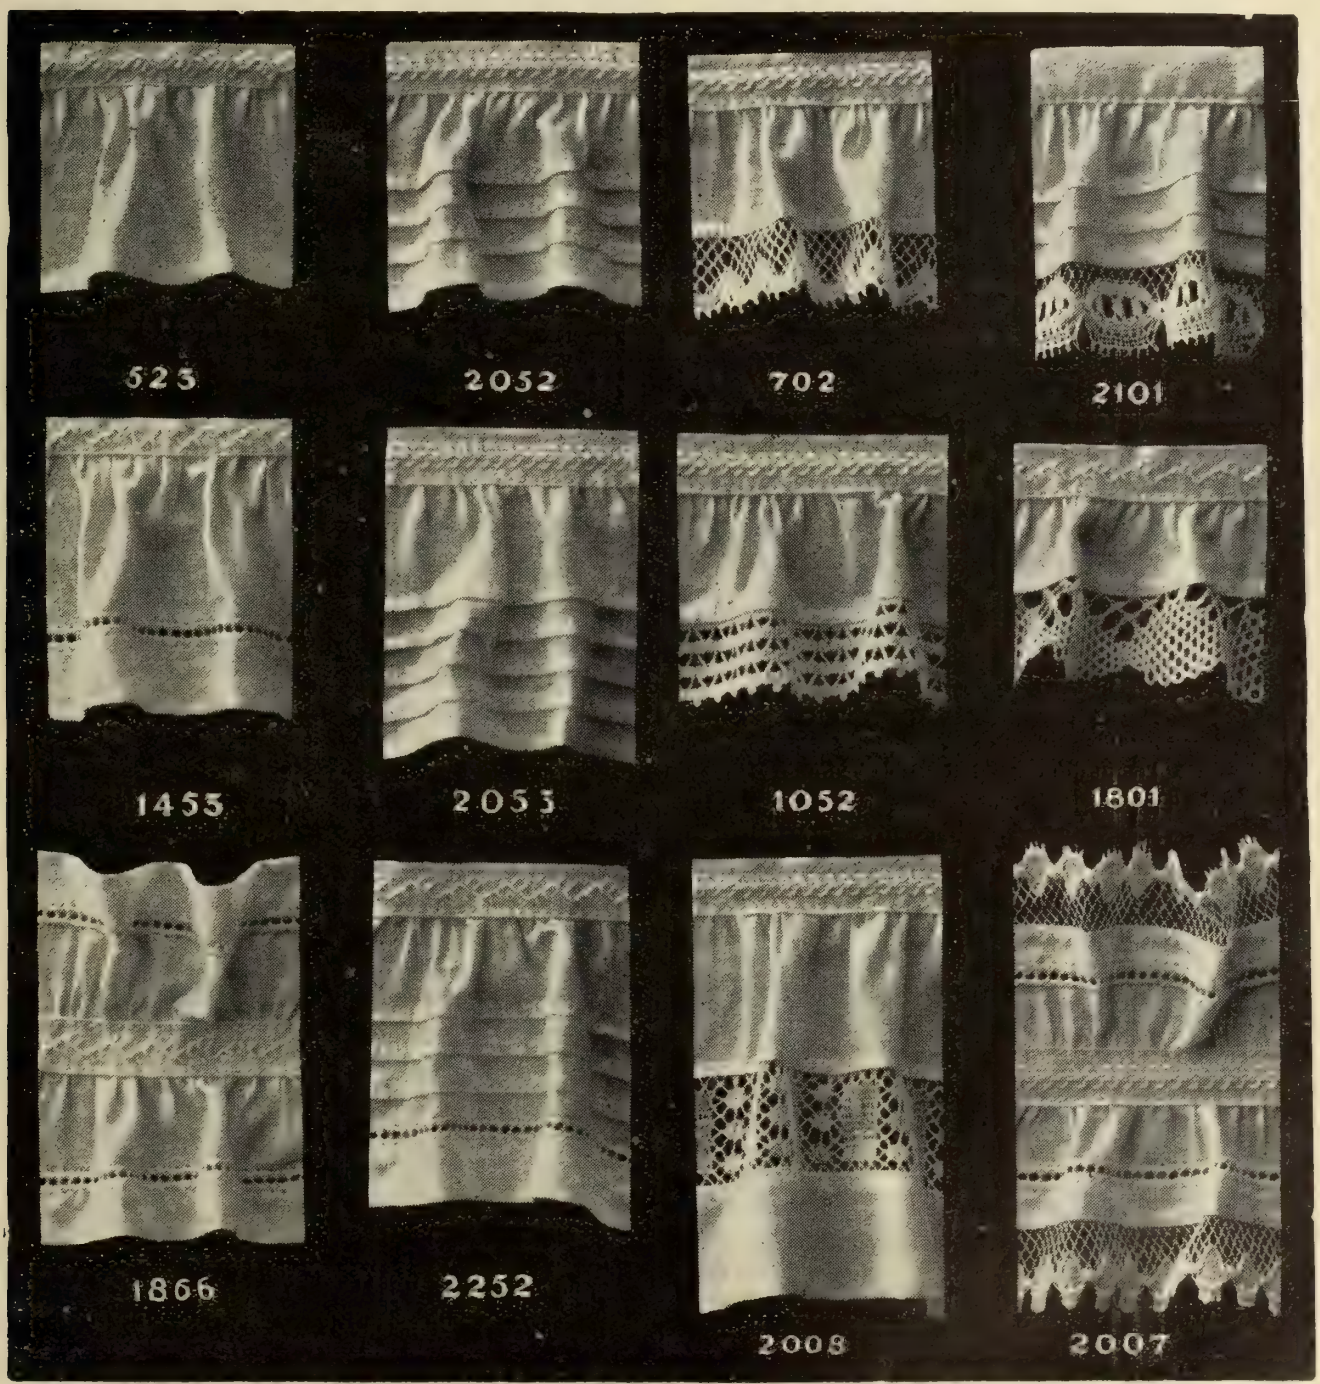
(plain and hemstitched).
HORROCKSES' name on each sheet.

Flannelettes of the highest quality.

N.B.—SEE "HORROCKSES" ON SELVEDGE.

Horrockses, Crewdson & Co., Limited

Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers.



PRESTON, MANCHESTER, LONDON, ENGLAND.

THE "PLANTAGENET FRILLINGS"

For Ladies' Underwear of all kinds, Pillow Slips and all Bed Appointments.

For Children's Hoods, Robes, Full Dress and Bassinette Trimmings.

SEE OUR LATEST PRODUCTION, "JAP SILK PLANTAGENET,"
THE SPECIAL PRODUCTION OF THE LARGEST FRILLING HOUSE IN THE WORLD.

THE ABOVE PATTERNS, AND MANY OTHERS, ARE MADE IN A VARIETY OF WIDTHS

EXPERT judges agree that "Plantagenet" Frillings exceed all other makes (for the above purposes) in beauty of design, quality of material, finish and cheapness. Drapers in England—almost to a man—stock "Plantagenet," and also some of the largest Canadian firms.

Mr. Busy Man

You may not have much time for reading but it is essential that you read

The BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE

It will acquaint you with what the successful business men have accomplished. It will keep you in touch with existing conditions in other countries as well as your own. Every article will suggest ideas, which, combined with your own, cannot fail to bring you success.

h is many-in-one magazine will interest you deeply, as it embodies the best features of the world's publications. The cream of hundreds. Have your subscription commence with our March issue.

THE BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE

Toronto, Canada

BRITISH AMERICA ASSURANCE COMP'Y

FIRE AND MARINE.

Incorporated 1833

CASH CAPITAL, $850,000.00.

TOTAL ASSETS, $2,119,347.89.

LOSSES PAID SINCE ORGANIZATION, $27,383,068.64.

HEAD OFFICE, - BRITISH AMERICA BUILDING,
Cor. Front and Scott Sts., Toronto.

HON. GEO. A. COX, President. J. J KENNY, Vice-President and Managing Director
P. H. SIMS, Secretary.

THE METROPOLITAN BANK

Capital Paid Up, - - $1,000,000
Reserve Fund, - - - $1,000,000
Undivided Profits, - - $ 133,133

We Solicit Your Account

GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS

Drafts bought and sold.
Letters of credit issued.
Collections promptly attended to.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

open at all branches.
Interest allowed on all deposit of one dollar and upwards.

Australian Trade

is worth looking after. The following figures are extracted from the official statistics of imports into Australia:

	1903	1904
Socks and Stockings	£1,162,449	£1,236,743
Towels and Handkerchiefs	281,194	390,821
Cosies, Cushions, etc.	117,125	159,856
Curtains	74,050	92,446
Frillings	13,019	18,836
Piece Goods (various)	4,826,523	6,134,389
Sewing Silks, Twists, Threads and Cottons	261,160	275,085
Umbrellas, etc	42,842	54,536
Boots and Shoes, etc	702,543	767,581
Carpets and Rugs	329,610	489,454
Hats and Caps	372,133	427,876
Yarns	74,442	106,585
Feathers	21,546	34,825
Trimmings	215,984	247,279

The Draper of Australasia is the organ of the drapery and kindred trades of the Antipodes, and is subscribed for by all the leading firms in Australia and New Zealand.

You may obtain advertising rates and secure space by communicating with the American representative, J. C. Halsby, No. 1, Broadway, New York City, who will also supply specimen copies on application.

Publishing Offices

Melbourne, Fink's Buildings
Sydney, Post Office Chambers
London, 112 Wood St.
New York, 1 Broadway

THE TELEPHONE

Is a companion, friend and servant combined.
Invaluable for convenience in the household.

LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE SERVICE

Has no equal for the facility it affords in business life.
Full particulars as to rates and service at the nearest office of

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

WESTERN ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Incorporated 1851

FIRE AND MARINE

Head Office Toronto, Ont.

Capital - $1,500,000.00
Assets, over - - 3,460,000.00
Income for 1905, over 3,680,000.00

HON. GEO. A. COX, President.

J. J. KENNY, Vice-President and Man. Director.

C. C. FOSTER, Secretary.

Money

CAN BE SAVED BY MEANS OF AN ENDOWMENT POLICY.

YOU CAN ONLY SECURE SUCH A POLICY WHILE YOU ARE IN GOOD HEALTH.

Pamphlets and Full Particulars regarding the New Accumulation Endowment Policy sent on application.

Confederation Life ASSOCIATION

W. H. BEATTY, President.

W. C. MACDONALD, ACTUARY. J. K. MACDONALD, MANAGING DIRECTOR.

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO, CANADA.

W. M. Whittingham & Co.

GENERAL

Shipping, Forwarding, Railway, Insurance, and Commission Agents and Warehousemen.

ESTABLISHED 1890

Head Office: Liverpool, 20 Chapel St.

and at

London, Manchester, Birmingham, Hanley, Swansea, Cardiff, Newport, and Hamburg

AGENTS IN CANADA:

H. V. COWIE, 476 Temple Bldg., Montreal

W. R. BEGG, 88 Bay Street, Toronto

A CHILD CAN OPERATE IT

Make Your Own Buttons

WITH THE

NEW DEFIANCE BUTTON MACHINE.

Make all kinds of covered buttons, rim, half-ball or flat, complete to make three sizes of button.

$7.50

Call or send for samples of our work.

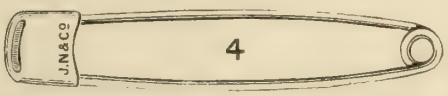
Defiance Button Machine Co.,
266 Greene St., Cor. 8th St.,
NEW YORK, U. S. A.

Wrinch, McLaren & Co.
SMALLWARES
52 Bay St., TORONTO

TRADE MARK

This design a guarantee of quality

WRAPPING PAPERS



SAMPLES AND PRICES FOR THE ASKING.

—ALL GRADES AND BEST OF EACH—
GREY, RED-BROWN, MANILLA, FIBRE, TEA, ETC.

CANADA PAPER CO.
TORONTO LIMITED MONTREAL

This is an illustration of another

ENGLISH MADE REGISTERED SAJONIC TRADE MARK SAFETY PIN

NICKELED STEEL in 5 sizes

Carded or Boxed in Dozens.

J. NICKLIN & CO., - Birmingham, Eng.

The Dominion Linen Mfg. Co., Limited

BRACEBRIDGE, ONTARIO

MANUFACTURERS

Cream and Bleached Damask Tablings.
Bleached Damask Cloths.
Napkins, Towels and Towellings.
Dress Linens, Dowlas, Tea Cloths.

The best value in the trade. Write us for samples.

COMPLETE STOCK CARRIED IN TORONTO

Sole Selling Agents for the Dominion

WALLACE, BLAKE & SHOULDICE

Successors to E. B. WALLACE & CO.

79 Wellington Street W., - TORONTO, ONT.

"Spero"

Accept no substitute for
"SPERO" Bleached Calicoes
Every yard made of highest grade cotton — every yard unrivalled in wear.

Be on the safe side!
"SPERO" Flannelette
is not only of excellent quality and durability, but almost fire-proof.

SPERO "MAKE" Regd

For Ladies' Overalls and Children's Dresses, get
"SPERO" Apron Cloths
Real Indigo dyed; printed in newest designs; the last word in utility.

For Skirt Linings, buy 44-inch
"SPERO" Cambric Linenette
Light in texture, Bright in finish, will not drag.

Manchester

"Old Bleach" Linens

ALL GRASS BLEACHED

"All in the Spring was the brown Flax Spun,
All in the Summer it bleached in the Sun."—Phœbe Cary.

TOWELS
HUCKABUCKS
DIAPERS
DRESS LINENS SHEETS
SHEETINGS
PILLOW LINENS
EMBROIDERY LINENS
H.S. SQUARES
H.S. RUNNERS
H.S. SHAMS

Bleach Green (100 acres), Randalstown.

NOTE—THE TRADE MARK

"OLD BLEACH"

IS STAMPED ON EVERY TOWEL and ON EVERY YARD OF LINEN, HUCK AND DIAPER

COMPARE THE BEAUTIFUL SILKY LUSTRE OF THESE GOODS WITH ANY OTHER MAKE

R. H. COSBIE, 30 West Wellington Street, TORONTO
IRISH LINEN AGENCY

Dominion Hammock Manufacturing Co.

There's something about our Hammocks which hold the reputation for Quality their excellence gained as soon as marketed.

You'll have the Hammock the people insist on having---if you place our name on your order list NOW.

WRITE FOR OUR CATALOGUE

Feature Tapestry Curtains
if you want more business.

Ignore your curtain department and you woo commercial disaster.

We don't pretend to manufacture all good curtains---but we do manufacture the best. Write NOW.

Dominion Hammock Manufacturing Company :: :: Dunnville, Ont.

Fashion Cuts

TO OUR READERS

The Review uses monthly in its reading columns late fashion cuts which we secure from the old and new worlds.

These are only used once by us, and we offer these cuts to our supporters for their advertising work at the following low rates :

15 cents per square inch for half-tones
7 " " " " " zinc etchings

Only the originals will be sold.

When ordering please mention page and month of the Review in which the cut appeared.

Address :

MONTREAL
232 McGill Street

TORONTO
10 Front St. East

The W. R. Brock Company (Limited) Toronto

are offering the following popular numbers of Dress fabrics at old prices as long as their present stock exists. They all bear the Victorian brand, which is a guarantee of reliable quality and dyes.

Z329.	Victorian Lustre, all shades, to retail for	$0 35
Z290.	Victorian Lustre, all shades, to retail for	50
JA118.	Victorian Satin Cloth, fine wool, to retail for	50
JA133.	Victorian Voile, fine even weave, to retail for	50
FE52.	Victorian Khantona, black and blue, to retail for	50
JA110.	Victorian Black and White Shepherd's Check, pure wool to retail for	50
JW86.	Victorian Black and White Shepherd's Check, pure wool, to retail for	75
DM3.	Victorian Venetian, full range of shades, to retail for	75
KG47-8-9.	Victorian Black Pauline Cloth, to retail for	75c., 85c., 1 00
LM33-34-35.	Victorian Black Voiles, chiffon finish, to retail for	75c., 85c., 1 00
V80.	Victorian Chiffon Broadcloth, all shades, to retail for	1 50
52-inch Worsted Suiting, new styles, all shades, to retail for		75c., $1.00, $1 25, 1 50
48 and 50-inch Cream Ground Suiting, assorted colored checks and stripes, to retail for		$1.00, $1.25, 1 50

Her Ladyship Garments

New ideas in Plaited Skirts, which are exclusive in style and make and must be seen to be appreciated, to retail from		$4.00 to $7 00
265.	Black Silk Underskirt, accordian plaited flounce, dust ruffle, to retail for	5 00
205.	Colored Silk Underskirt, accordian plaited flounce, all colors, to retail for	5 00
D215.	White Japanese Silk Waists, silk embroidered, to retail for	3 50
D237.	White Swiss Spot Muslin Waists, three-quarter sleeves, lace trimmed, to retail for	1 00

MEN AND METHODS

Splendid Store and System of the Playfair, Preston Co., Midland—Why Mail Orders fall off in One Town—Where Cash Business could not Succeed and Why—Other Items of Interest.

A MODERN STORE IN SMALL TOWN.

In the "Art of Display" section of this issue we reproduce a series of photos of Easter displays in the store of the Playfair, Preston Co., Midland. Considering the population of the town—3,500—this is one of the very best retail dry goods establishments that we have visited. Some idea of its size may be obtained from the accompanying cut. The dry goods section opens on the street to the right, while the entrances to the grocery, boot and shoe and men's wear stores are shown at the extreme left of the illustration. The store carries pretty nearly everything but hardware.

Business is done entirely on a cash basis, although the credit system was in operation up till nearly a year ago. Book debts were heavy, and a good many of them are still unpaid. The change made very little difference in the volume of business, even at first, and it is expected that the year will close with a good increase.

SHOWING STORE OF THE PLAYFAIR, PRESTON CO., MIDLAND

"It might be expected," said Mr. Preston to The Review, "that a family buying from you on credit would confine their whole trade to your store. My experience has taught me that people running accounts with us usually owed money at all the other dry goods stores in town. I resolved to take a chance on getting a fair share of the business on the cash basis. The results are very satisfactory."

Some time before the change was made a circular letter was sent to everyone who had ever received five cents worth of credit at the store, announcing the firm's intentions and enumerating the advantages which the cash plan would bring to both merchant and customer.

"We can make just as good profits now as we could under the credit system," and lose nothing through bad debts." He said further: "I believe there lies in the strictly cash business great capacity for good. There are thousands of men in Canada now of a rather shiftless character, who do not hesitate to quit work for a day or two now and again, knowing that their families can get credit and need not be hungry. He promises himself that he will make up for it later on. We'll suppose his wages to be $2 per day and his family's cost of living for a day $1. He really goes $3 behind, and the fact does not impress itself upon him because the groceries, etc., need not be paid for on the spot. His wife seldom buys anything for cash and she may not have a good idea for the value of money. Let him hand her $5 or $10, and tell her how long and hard he had to work to earn it, and then see the difference. He knows he must pay as he goes and will develop an industry that he never showed before, while his wife will see the purchasing power of a dollar in a new light and become a better and more economical buyer. The fact that they ask no credit will make them better father and mother, husband and wife, than they otherwise would be, and a good influence would be exerted on the lives of their children.

"Then the merchant who does a large credit business has to listen to the narration of family troubles as excuses for non-payment of accounts and it is not at all pleasant to say the least."

The store has a c.o.d. system, and four rigs deliver in the town and for three or four miles around.

Quite a trade is done with farmers, fishermen and Indians. In connection with this the firm have adopted a barter coin system. Metal discs are marked $1, 50c., 25c., 10c., and 5c. Produce is taken in and a due bill issued to the seller. At the office he may have part of it converted into actual cash, and receive barter coin for the remainder to such an amount as he desires to expend in the store. The use of this coin sustains the cash basis right through the transaction and saves book-keeping.

A formal opening is held in the millinery department. Mr. Preston was much impressed with a point in connection with A. Beattie & Co.'s millinery department at St. Marys; a guarantee that every hat sold will have some feature to distinguish it from every other one sent out.

Little trouble is experienced with windows freezing over. They are well ventilated and protected from the warm air.

Each department is conducted as a separate store, and the cost of doing business is figured out exactly. For a further reference to this matter we would refer our readers to the "Business Management" department.

GROCERIES HELP DRY GOODS.

Sargent & Smith, of Barrie, hold a formal opening each season in their millinery department. In advertising special sales they generally supplement their newspaper ads. by sending circulars or cards to a large list of customers. They have their own delivery wagon. A dressmaking department is maintained chiefly for the benefit it is to dress goods and trimmings. In estimating the cost of doing business, general expenses are not divided amongst the various departments, but are reckoned as a lump sum. The firm are anxious to adopt a system that will enable them to conduct each section as a separate store. One thing that bothers them is the valuation of floor space, taking location into consideration. We would refer them to "Business Management" in this issue, and matter that we shall run from time to time regarding systems used in similar stores. Goods bought, and the sales, are kept track of by departments and the information available through this plan is found exceedingly valuable.

The firm have a separate store for groceries. Farmers bring in produce and receive due bills, the greater part of which they usually spend in the dry goods section next door.

A NEW MIDLAND STORE.

Osborne & Ferrier, Midland, are erecting a new store building about which there are some interesting features. The dimensions are 55 x 113 feet, and the walls are of solid concrete, reinforced. Across the front are several arches, behind which the windows are set back six feet. This will obviate the necessity of using an awning. The windows are six feet deep and there are two entrances, the recess in each case being square.

General dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, etc., will occupy the main floor and housefurnishings a section of the basement. In the present store groceries are in the basement, which is reached by a broad staircase descending from within a few feet of the main entrance. The firm would like to continue this arrangement, but groceries are an important line with them and must be given more prominence. We pointed out what an advantage it would if this department could be located across the back, but this space has already been taken up with offices.

The fixtures now in use include a number of rather high counters, partitioned off to form bins for the display of underwear, socks, hosiery, gloves, notions, etc. In the new store these will be done away with, and in their place will be silent salesmen with glass running about a foot down the sides and ends, and a glass top. The bottom section can be used for drawers, lockers or shelves. There will be over 200 feet of silent salesmen altogether. "We like to show our goods," remarked Mr. Osborne.

The basement is well lighted, both from the sides and front. In the windows the flooring is cut away for about three feet, and prism glass in the bottom section of the window-front throws the light down.

This firm uses space in the local papers and circulars as well. The latter are put in envelopes and distributed as far as 18 miles away, by a man sent out with a horse and rig. This is considered much better than using the mail.

CATALOGUE BUSINESS DECREASING.

J. B. Horrell & Son, Midland, state that business done by catalogue houses in their territory is decreasing steadily. The reason given is that local stores have improved greatly in appearance and service, larger and better-assorted stocks are carried and business is getting down pretty much to a cash basis. Five years ago this firm had a stock worth $20,000, while now they carry one valued at $40,000 to $45,000. Such a change is bound to have a strong influence in the direction of keeping trade at home.

Groceries, glassware, boots and shoes and wall paper occupy one store. Other lines are general dry goods, men's wear, ready-to-wear garments and housefurnishings. Men's clothing is confined to a room in the rear of the dry goods section.

Circulars are used occasionally, to supplement news paper advertising on the occasion of special sales.

A NEAT BARRIE STORE.

Geo. Vickers, of Barrie, has a neat, well-kept store. The corset department is one of his best. In the February Review we described how the trade was built and how it is maintained. Men's wear is carried in an exclusive store. One thing we noticed particularly here was the prominence given jewelry. There is splendid profit on this class of goods and it pays to display them.

MORE SPACE FOR READY-TO-WEAR.

Perry & Alport of Orillia, do not find millinery a very profitable department in itself, but it is valuable because it attracts people to the store and holds trade together. Dressmaking is maintained because it helps the dress goods and trimmings department very materially.

This firm carry general dry goods, millinery, ready-to-wear garments, men's wear, boots and shoes and groceries. The three last-named departments are confined to an exclusive store.

It is found easy to curtail credits; in fact, there are not a great many people asking for credit. The monthly account system is used.

Ads. are run in all three of the local papers, and occasionally a circular is sent out.

The stores in Orillia close at 6 o'clock ordinarily and 9 o'clock Saturday evening.

The ready-to-wear business is growing rapidly and the firm are figuring on devoting a good deal more space to this department.

Price tickets and show cards are used quite profusely throughout the store.

CASH STORE IN ORILLIA.

The Northway Co.'s store in Orillia handles general dry goods, millinery, ready-to-wear, boots and shoes, groceries, etc.—about everything, except hardware, that is usually found in a general store. The building is 35 x 125 feet and three storeys in height. Ready-to-wear and millinery are located on the second floor and house-furnishings on the third.

The business is on an exclusively cash basis. This, of course, makes the lot of the manager very much easier than it would otherwise be.

Salespeople generally stay in their own departments, and parcels are all checked over and wrapped at a central desk. Customers wishing to leave parcels and call for them later on may have them checked. The company have their own rigs, and four deliveries are made every day.

A passenger elevator is found necessary in view of the three floors being utilized.

CORSET BUSINESS DOUBLED.

The Orillia store of Geo. Vickers, Barrie, has heretofore carried a general stock, but groceries are now being cleared out, and dry goods and men's wear only will be handled. It will be made as much a ladies' store as possible. Millinery will be added within the next year. Mr. Vickers bought this business last Fall and is conducting it along the same progressive lines that have brought him success in Barrie. Here also corsets form an important department, and the trade in this line has been at least doubled. In discussing the way in which this was accomplished, E. W. Cooley, the manager, said: "We have the goods and we advertise them thoroughly. To do a corset business you've got to keep a good stock. One thing that every merchant should remember is this: If a woman wants a certain size don't try to give the next one to it if the other is sold out."

CASH BUSINESS WOULDN'T GO.

D. A. Lahey, Penetanguishene, tried to conduct his business on the exclusively cash plan but was unsuccessful. After six months, during which no credit was granted, he found that trade had dropped off to a serious extent. "It is impossible," he told The Review, to sell here for cash only. The greater part of our population is composed of day laborers, and there are times when we must carry them. I believe very strongly in the contention that it is possible to sell for cash almost anywhere, and prosper. We had a branch store some time ago in a village of less than 400 population, and at the end of two years there was less than $50 on our books, although one year our turn-over amounted to $28,000. This village was in the centre of a splendid farming district and that accounted for the good showing. Under similar conditions a town of Penetang's population—3,500—would win out without any trouble."

NOT SO MANY MAIL ORDERS.

W. M. Thompson, Penetanguishene, has a nice roomy store, with an exclusive section for groceries and glassware. The monthly account system is in use. Mr. Thompson does not think that the catalogue houses do as much business in his field as they did some time ago.

NOTES.

Howell & Co., of Barrie, operate a monthly account system. They carry millinery, and of the other departments ready-to-wear is growing most rapidly.

W. A. Pae of Barrie, carries general dry goods, ready-to-wear garments and housefurnishings. This business is one of the oldest in the town, having been established fifty-five years ago.

Devlin & Murchison, of Barrie, carry staples principally. They also do a good business in men's clothing.

Wood's, Orillia, makes a specialty of fancy dry goods and art goods. Millinery and mantles are also good lines. Orillia attracts a large number of Summer visitors, and their souvenir goods are pushed strongly.

Charlebois, Penetanguishene, carries general dry goods, boots and shoes, groceries and clothing. In ladies' ready-to-wear skirts and waists only are handled.

A. H. Carter, Penetanguishene, who conducts his business under the name of the Toronto Jobbing House Co., will move across the street from his present premises.

MOUNT ROYAL SPINNING CO.

A Dominion charter has been granted the Mount Royal Spinning Company, Limited, Montreal, with a capital of $3,000,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were William C. McIntyre, merchant; Herbert M. Marler, notary public; Alphonse Racine, merchant; William T. Whitehead, gentleman, all of Montreal. The object of the company is "to carry on the business of manufacturers of and dealers in textile fabrics of all kinds, to deal in the raw materials thereof and in all manufactured products thereof, and to engage in any business incidental thereto."

It is expected that the mills will be completed within eighteen months and work will then be found for about 800 hands. The capacity will be upwards of 1,200 looms, with a bleaching and printing works in connection.

THE PACKAGE DUTY.

The Montreal Wholesale Dry Goods Association have protested to the Government against the imposition of the duty on packages in which goods are imported into Canada. On February 14 a deputation from the association held a lengthy conference at Ottawa with Hon. Wm. Paterson, Minister of Customs. The association, in their protest, pointed out the injustice of the Government placing a duty of fifteen and twenty per cent. on packages, the former figure under the preferential tariff, and the latter under the general tariff. The Canadian merchants have to pay to the exporter from twelve to twenty shillings on every package coming into the country, and there should be no further charge.

The grievance of the association was placed before the Minister by R. A. Brock, Geo. B. Fraser, Leslie Gault and Geo. Summers.

Hon. Mr. Paterson said that he appreciated the situation, and would bring the matter to the attention of the Government.

Good Advertising

How to Produce It

Brief Talks Given Monthly
By T. Johnson Stewart

"The man who expects to create and carry on a successful business in this world without advertising is just about innocent enough to expect good skating in the next."

It's a shame to throw the responsibility of that remark on the shoulders of another fellow; but Uncle Dudley, or Uncle Somebody made a statement tolerably like that in the dim and distant past and it has impressed itself on my memory because of its truthfulness, as well as because of the picturesque suggestion underlying the words. There may be good skating for a sparse number sometime, somewhere; but the majority of us know our catechism too well to expect such luxuries. And while there may be good business for the man who does not advertise here and now I would rather not argue the point with any relics of a past civilization. Because it's too much like hammering away on the slim chances an old maid has of landing an atom of the worst half of creation, when one's audience is largely composed of virgins on the last lap of life's race. I used to be a preacher and I know. The truth is "excruciatingly funny" sometimes.

* * *

If business is slow—you must advertise. If business is only fair—you must advertise. And if things are humming, the only way to keep them humming is—to advertise. Up till now we have discovered no other way. Every dollar you invest in advertising is a premium paid on the only known policy which assures success.

* * *

But the subject of this talk is "Descriptive Advertising," and in order to be consistent I must sail right into the facts concerning it. There isn't a single retailer doing business in Canada or the Empire who can afford to ignore this subject. Your very existence as retailers in the dry goods business depends largely—far more so than many seem to suppose—on your grasp of this phase of advertising. It is not enough that you carry just as good lines as the big mail order houses, you must be able to create the same interest in your goods as they do in theirs. The only books read by many women in your town are the Bible and the splendid catalogues produced by such concerns as the Eaton and Simpson Companies. Some retailers are foolish enough to rave, in none too choice language, whenever such houses are mentioned. Don't waste your energy in that fashion. You cannot all conduct concerns like the T. Eaton Company, but every level-headed retailer in the country must admire the genius which conceived and created the largest business of its kind in the Dominion. And yet when the story of that company is finally written and carefully analyzed—after according a good deal of its success to the marvellous organising ability of the late Mr. Eaton—all men of ordinary perception will attribute the major success of the business to advertising, and descriptive advertising at that. The Eaton men are capable of creating a desire for a certain, or any line of goods where no such desire ever existed. They actually sell goods with every drop of printer's ink they pay for. Rob that store of its advertising department and by some method keep it from employing advertising experts in the future, and you practically ruin it. And just as the commercial existence of the T. Eaton Company depends on advertising, so does your success as a retailer. You must advertise so as to create as strong a desire for your lines as the mail order house creates for its lines. Retailers in most towns can meet the prices of the catalogue houses in almost every case. Just remember, Mr. Retailer, when you write your next ad. that most of your customers are familiar with the inside of good catalogues produced by good houses. These houses are butting into a game you ought to play and win. If you can talk as convincingly of the merits of your wares and quote anything like the same price you're bound to win. A woman, living in Lacombe, Alta., for instance, will not buy a postal order and mail it to Eaton's in Winnipeg for a white blouse if the Bee Hive Supply Store in Lacombe prints a telling, sales-compelling description of a white blouse at or near the same price. No, sir, the average woman will go to the Bee Hive Store—pay her cash down and secure the blouse, while her interest in the article is warm enough to cause a raid on the treasury. Besides, it's far more satisfactory to do business with a man one can say nice things to, if the article is not as represented, and no woman on earth forgets that point for a single minute.

* * *

We reproduce Cressman's ad. for the purpose of illustrating and emphasizing this talk. From the motto—and incidentally that motto beats the motto of most bigger stores—to the signature there isn't a word wasted. The ad. might be changed around, other words and phrases probably would make it stronger in places; but as a whole, it is pretty effective advertising. Take that "Dainty Whitewear" item. The price stands out clearly and the few words of descriptive matter are bound to influence women greatly. There is just enough said. The art of that item lies in what has not been said. The women who did go to Cressman's saw "A perfect dream of loveliness" before they reached the store. Let's hope that Mr. Cressman made good. The influence of that ad. is far reaching—far more so than appears on the surface. There were women who could not attend Mr. Cressman's whitewear sale. But that vision of loveliness stayed

IT'S A POINTER

It's a pointer worth noting that repeat orders are coming in from all over the country for what are deemed desirable lines of goods, even although the original orders are practically unbroken. The significance of this fact is plain, and wise retailers will lay it to heart.

Our general stock is well prepared to meet the stress and strain which this condition indicates, and, in calling attention to the following lines, our customers are assured of our best possible service in the matter, both of prices and deliveries :

DRESS GOODS

Mohairs and Lustres, in plains and fancies. Full range of shades in Cashmeres, Satin Cloths, Nun's Veilings Serges, Silk Warps, in Crepolines, Voiles' Eoliennes, Henriettas, and Fine Poplins'.

Extensive assortment of Fancy Tweeds, Check and Striped effects, white and black Checks, black and white Checks, etc., in light weight materials.

WHITE GOODS

Excellent showing of Sheer Dress Muslins, White Dress Linens, Nainsooks, Mulls, India Linens, Victoria Lawns, Plain Organdies and Book Muslins. Complete range of Fancies in Wash Goods, and in Swiss Spot and Spring Muslins.

SILKS

Immense stock of all the leading weaves in plain and fancy.

Extra value in Blacks while present stock lasts.

RIBBONS and FANCY GOODS

Full stock Black and Colored Taffetas and Baby Ribbons, Frillings in black, white and colors.

Side and Back Combs, plain and trimmed.

Full line of Smallwares.

Large range of Handkerchiefs.

Special values in Linen Handkerchiefs, Silk and Muslin Blouses.

STAPLES

Grey and White Cottons, Sheetings, Pillow Cottons, Flannelettes, Shakers, Domets, Shirtings, Tickings, Cottonades, Flannelette Blankets, Overalls, Smocks.

LINENS

Crash and Huck Towellings, Glass Towellings, Striped and White Terry Towellings.

Full range Table Linens, bleached and unbleached.

Table Cloths and Napkins, plain and hemstitched.

Towels, plain, fringed and Turkish.

COTTONS

Full range Prints, Muslins, Wash Goods and Wrapperettes, Linings, Sateens, Art Muslins, Art Sateens, Cretonnes.

GLOVES, HOSIERY UNDERWEAR

Complete stock of Lisle, Taffeta and Silk Gloves in plains and fancies, with or without dome.

Full range of Evening Gloves (all gloves in ½ doz. boxes, solid sizes.)

All leading lines of Spring Hosiery in plain Cottons, Lisle Threads, Open Work, Silks, Embroideries, and Mercerized.

Novelties in fancy dots, stripes and checks, all colors, popular-priced lines in white.

Unrivalled range of Ladies' Vests in Cottons, Mercerized Cottons, Silks and Wools.

Write for Samples. Letters orders receive special and prompt attention.

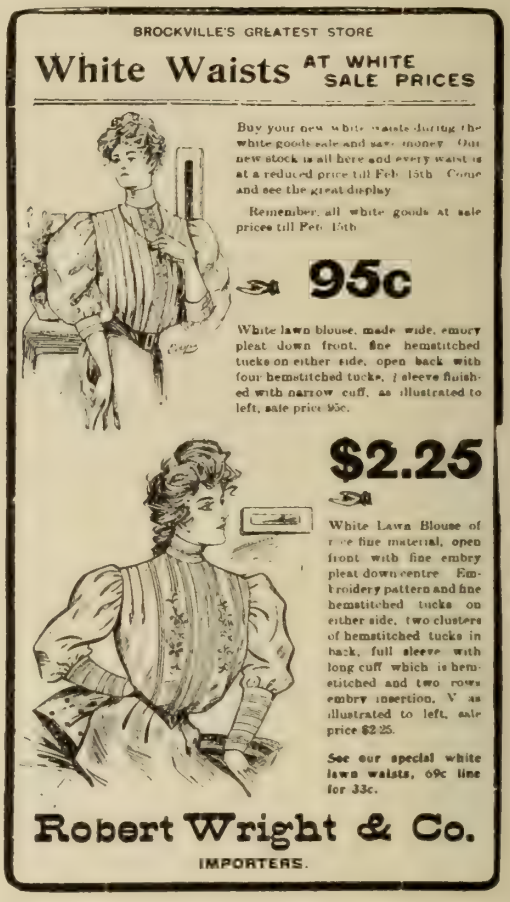
BROPHY-CAINS, LIMITED

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS. MONTREAL.



QUICK SHIPPERS

with them and will stay untill Cressman has a similar sale. The effect of a pleasing thought is sometimes just as powerful as the most matter-of-fact logic. Fancy always joins hands with logic in advertising of a high order.

* * *

The Robert Wright & Co. ad. lends strength to our argument that descriptive advertising is the most potent factor in the commercial world to-day. There is nothing strong or extraordinary about this ad., not one phrase which the ordinary retailer could not produce. And that's just why we have reproduced it. The strength of this ad. lies in its simplicity and straightforwardness. Just as soon as a woman sees a white lawn blouse advertised at 95c. she wants to know something about it. And the Wright Co., realizing this, sailed right into an interesting description, from the buyer's point of view, about that blouse. That's the whole story. Retailers all over their values. You want to arouse an intelligent, reasoning curiosity—a curiosity which can only be satisfied in your store. Don't over-do descriptive advertising. It is quite possible to do so. The best manned advertising agency in Canada reached the limit in descriptive advertising some time ago. The agency undertook to boost the sale of a piano—a worthy instrument*at that. Everything about that piano, down to the piston rod and safety valves, was described and described minutely. A few skilled engineers read the ads. and declared that the defects of the piano were as lucidly described as the good points of Mark Twain's Holy Land horse, surnamed Jericho. The few engineers who read the ads. did not want that piano. The many people, who wanted pianos, could not understand the ads.—even if they did read them. The name of the firm saved that descriptive advertising campaign from absolute and dismal failure. The house sold its pianos in spite of the advertising. Of the country must study the buying public. Pretty ads. are not essential to business success. Flowery language can be only handled safely by a master. The people who want to buy—the people who are influenced by pointed salesmanship like a straightforward story. If you won't tell it your competitor will. The ads. we have reproduced are not reproduced because of their originality or brilliancy. They are reproduced because we know that they have actually sold goods. Such ads. can be produced by the average retailer—as long as he makes good—that kind of advertising will be effective.

* * *

Just a few words about the dangers of descriptive advertising—dangers which the catalogue houses rarely, but sometimes, overlook. What's the object of your advertising? You want to call attention to your goods—course the piano ad-writer hasn't arrived. No word-wizard has appeared in the advertising arena as yet. When he arrives we'll read piano advertising just as varied and as soul-stirring as the melodies of the masters. However, the point is this: If trained specialists can over-do descriptive advertising you can depend upon it that it will be practically easy for you to do so.

* * *

There are quite a number of ads. lying on my desk, which have been forwarded for criticism. We have only the time and space to mention a few. All have points of strength which might be commented on very favorably. Most are weak in places as if the men who wrote the ads. were not very sure about the quality of their goods. You're not giving yourselves a square deal when you write hesitatingly about your values. There isn't a man of you who would dare to talk in that unconvincing style to a single customer. Your ad. is nothing more or nothing less than a talk to your customers—not one of them but all of them, probably customers included. Get enthusiastic. Enthusiasm convinces where logic fails. I tell you that if you believe with your whole heart and soul that you have splendid values behind your counters for all the people in your community, you can produce good strong copy, copy that will fill your store with eager buyers any day in the week. There's no doubt about it. There can be no doubt about such a statement. Enthusiasm, not cold, dry facts, has ruled the world. Enthusiasm has created immense businesses, built empires, and swayed entire races to the will of one man. And, if I may be permitted to use an American verb, enthusiastic advertising is making this old world hump as she never humped before. Brother ! it is up to you to do some of that advertising. Once you get to the point where you believe and believe intensely that the people of your community can find best values in your store—your advertising will be flat and stale no more.

* * *

We received your newspaper ad. and circular, Mr. Hoffman ! The former is good enough to make us believe that you can do much better. The introduction is too wordy and, in our opinion, too loud. Had I been a resident of your town I'm afraid that I wouldn't have read more than two sentences of that introduction. Had I managed down to the sentence, "We have cut and cut and slashed," I would have felt mean and sneaking to have taken advantage of such pulverised prices. I would have said : "No, I can't buy at that store. I can't understand that method of doing business. Jones does not 'cut and cut and slash' prices ; but his goods are A.1. in quality and easy priced. Guess I'll try Jones."

Mr. Hoffman you would be surprised at the number of people who figure things out that way. The central part of your newspaper ad. probably did the trick. The arrangement is not so good as it might be and the name of each article as well as the price should be displayed in an ad. like that. The circular is very badly arranged. Get after the printer. He'll help you with the arrangement rather than lose the work.

The Bee Hive Store of Lacombe, Alta., has hit on a fairly good plan of supplementing their newspaper advertising. This store sends out a mimeograph letter once a month and a small, neatly printed circular drawing attention to and emphasizing their newspaper ads. Of course "the results have been very satisfactory" because both circular and letter are neat and attractive. Besides, the people of your community take kindly to such courteous attention. You certainly have the right idea. It would pay most retailers to get up a mailing list and do the same. Keep that up and you're bound to win.

* * *

The Editor of The Review has kindly granted us, I write advisedly, a little more space and we simply have to make this the most interesting advertising department, from the retailers' view-point, published anywhere on this continent, and we're going to do it. If you have an idea that we can make this department more interesting, we want to know about it. Suggestions thankfully received and acknowledged. There must be at least one hundred pretty able ad-men among the retailers of the dry goods business. You may be one of the best. Would you mind telling us your advertising experience, how you build your ads.; in fact, anything that you think it would be advantageous for a retail dry goods merchant to know. Confine your story to anything under 300 words and you can rest assured that it will be appreciated by every reader of Good Advertising.

Let's hear from you.

Useful Phrases and Ideas

E. B. Crompton & Co., Brantford, held a "Big Parcel Week." These words formed the main headline of their ads. Below they remarked : "Yes, indeed ; you'll get a bigger and better parcel at the Crompton store next week for a given sum than you have ever before had."

"Tuesday will be the silk day here."—Young's, Brantford.

"A little shopping flurry after the holiday—something to help you carry out your economy resolutions. It's another one of our sample sales. You know how fruitful they always are in genuine bargains."—Manchester, Robertson, Allison, Limited, St. John, N.B.

"Every garment in this stock is fresh and new."—Campbell's Clothing, Montreal.

"Dressing jackets. Prices begin as low as $6.50, and rise in easy stages to $25. You never saw better values."—E. Chapman, Vancouver.

"Want a storm coat ? Here it is ; tough or fine, or both—warm anyway. The toughest is frieze, comfortable as can be, and handsome—made with large storm collar that keeps the cold from biting your ears, and it reaches away down to your shoe-tops and protects your shins."—Greater Oak Hall, Scovil Bros., St. John, N.B.

"Watch for the red sale tickets ; they mean big savings for you."—G. E. Fraser Sons, Picton.

"The big sale opened up with a rush, which shows the result of having a reputation for truthful advertising. Everybody knows that our reductions are genuine reductions."—Thornton & Douglas, Stratford.

"There is nothing as comfortable for girls going to school as a knitted blouse."

"We sell everything that men and boys wear."—F. C. McDiarmid, Carleton Place.

"This list is eloquent of economy—and goods to suit all persons are included."—John White Co., Limited, Woodstock.

"Everything as advertised or yours for nothing."—G. B. Ryan & Co., Guelph. This store's motto is : "We do what we say."

"A lonely sale Saturday. All the lonelys in ladies' separate skirts, that is the odd sizes in every line of skirts, etc."—Ingraham's, Sydney, C.B.

"Mail orders given prompt attention."—Lewis & Patterson, Brockville.

"Come to the sale that draws the crowds."—Wheadon, Germann & Co., Guelph.

" 'The Little Giant,' Galt's cheapest store, R. A. Briscoe: 'Bargain King.' "

"For cash only. No goods on approbation."—Glanville's, Calgary.

"Scroggie's aftermath sale. Watch for the green ticket."—Scroggie's, Montreal.

"No sale goods charged. No sale goods on approval. These prices mean cash."—R. H. Williams & Sons, Ltd., Regina.

"A mild weather sale of cold weather goods starts here Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. Store closed at 1 o'clock in order to mark down goods that will go on sale ar 7 o'clock. Burley's orchestra will furnish music for the evening."—Newcombe's, Niagara Falls.

"A phenomenal January thaw—in prices."—Budge's, Port Hope.

"What we advertise, we do."—Rutledge & Jackson, Fort William.

"Understand, please, just what we offer you. Every item we quote is from our own carefully bought stocks. Every reduction is for the purpose of clearing broken lots. There is a saving to you, and we gain the room we need."—Campbell Bros., Woodstock.

"January at Crompton's is the family supply month —a time when housewives make by spending. It would oay you to borrow from the bank to invest here in household and personal equipment."—E. B. Crompton & Co., Brantford.

"The economy 'red tag' sale."—P. McSweeney Co., Ltd., Moncton, N.B.

"All goods at sale prices are for cash. Goods charged will be at regular prices."—Robt. Wright & Co., Brockville.

"Watch this space every day ; the goods you want will only be advertised once."—D. E. Macdonald & Bros., "The Lion," Guelph.

"The talk of the town is not who will be chairman of No. 1 committee, but the new range of Swiss embroideries at the Big Cash Store. We would like every woman who admires nice embroideries to see this collection. We believe it is the finest range ever shown in this city."—The Anderson Co., Limited, St. Thomas.

"Everything now in the fur department must find its way out of our front door. Notwithstanding the fact that we have yet two and a half months of cold weather before us, we have decided to let everything in this department go, as we have already advices of many cases of new Spring goods coming to hand, and in a short time will want the space now occupied by the furs. When you look over our reductions, please do not think that the difference between the former and the reduced prices represents the profit we had on each article, for such is not the case. We tell you plainly that in many instances the reduced price is less than the goods cost us, and we would ask you to please bear in mind that we handle only first-clasc goods, and as well, if you can find an instance where the reductions are not exactly as represented by us, you may take the article that you may be looking at for nothing."—G. B. Ryan & Co., Guelph.

"Do we believe in advertising ? Indeed we do, but it is far more important to believe in the goods advertised. We believe in the goods we advertise."—Caudwell & Peckett, Brantford.

"Special cut prices on all dressmaking during this sale."—J. M. Young & Co., Brantford.

"The lowness of the prices cannot but make thoughtful people marvel."—The Robert Simpson Co., Toronto.

"All alterations charged for."—The John Murphy Co., Montreal.

"Extra 10 per cent. discount for cash."—Jas. A. Ogilvy & Sons, Montreal.

"Extreme high quality and good taste are evident in every garment. Nothing is skimpy or indifferently made. Every garment is fresh and new, full and generously proportioned, and every stitch is true, every button firm."—G. D. McKay & Co., Winnipeg.

"Even if not prepared to buy, come and see the very latest styles."—John Laidlaw & Son.

"What we do, we do it well."—Michaud & Levesques, Sturgeon Falls.

"Goods right or money back. Cash and one price. Freight paid on orders over $10."—The Binkley Co., New Liskeard.

"After supper sale."—John Laidlaw & Son., Kingston.

"Taking the cover off and having a look at every piece of merchandise in this store, trying to get a good square look at our financial position. We like to know exactly where we're at. Lots of waifs, strays, left-overs, odd lines and oddments receive double-quick marching orders. Drop around and pick up some bargains."—The Anderson Co., St. Thomas.

"Only the most beautiful grades of the new, dainty and stylish lingerie, of the very highest class, have been included in our immense purchases for our special whitewear exhibits. A new department of whitewear only, and no manufacturers' samples or 'seconds' on any part of our showing. Only the best regular lines the manufacturers are capable of making are permitted to enter our store. Let our exhibit tell its own true story to you."—Hudson's Bay Company, Winnipeg.

ADVISE EARLY BUYING.

In the course of an interesting interview with The Dry Goods Review, a director of Greenshields Western Winnipeg, emphasized the importance to the retail trade of early buying of all staple lines, particularly cottons.

"The new fall price lists which will be out very soon," said he, "will show a sharp advance in nearly all staple lines. All through the season the demand for cottons has been enormous, and even in the assorting season it has not fallen off to any appreciable extent. Other staple lines, such as Saxony flannelettes, apron ginghams and shirtings and fine dress ginghams have never before been in such strong demand, and the assorting trade now going on surpases all previous records.

"Manufacturers of cotton goods claim that they have orders ahead for more than six months, and it is evident that they cannot begin to meet the present demands. Under these circumstances even a decline in raw cotton would not materially affect prices, for when the manufacturers have more orders on hand than they can fill in several months prices are sure to be high. A decline in raw cotton wouldn't help very much.

These conditions do not obtain in Canada alone; it is the same in the United States and Great Britain. In those countries it is next to impossible at present to buy any manufactured cotton goods for delivery in less than six to nine months.

"In fact," he concluded, "the retailer who can place his order early for fall and also keep his present stock well assorted in cottons will be ahead of the game for the coming season both as regards prices and as regards delivery and under present conditions delivery is as important as price. No doubt the average retailer is inclined to be timid of such stories of expected advances and delayed delivery of goods, but I insist that this is no cry of 'wolf.' The trade are up against it this year as they never have been before. My advice to the retail trade is to buy early for fall."

CASH OR CREDIT.

Women should not get credit. Neither should men. Cash is the cure. Tradesmen, maybe, would have a bad time for six or twelve months, and many a lady would have to "lie low," but in the end we would get both our trade and our money, and she would get her dress, and at far less cost.—Godfrey Jackson, secretary, Redfern, Limited, in London Opinion.

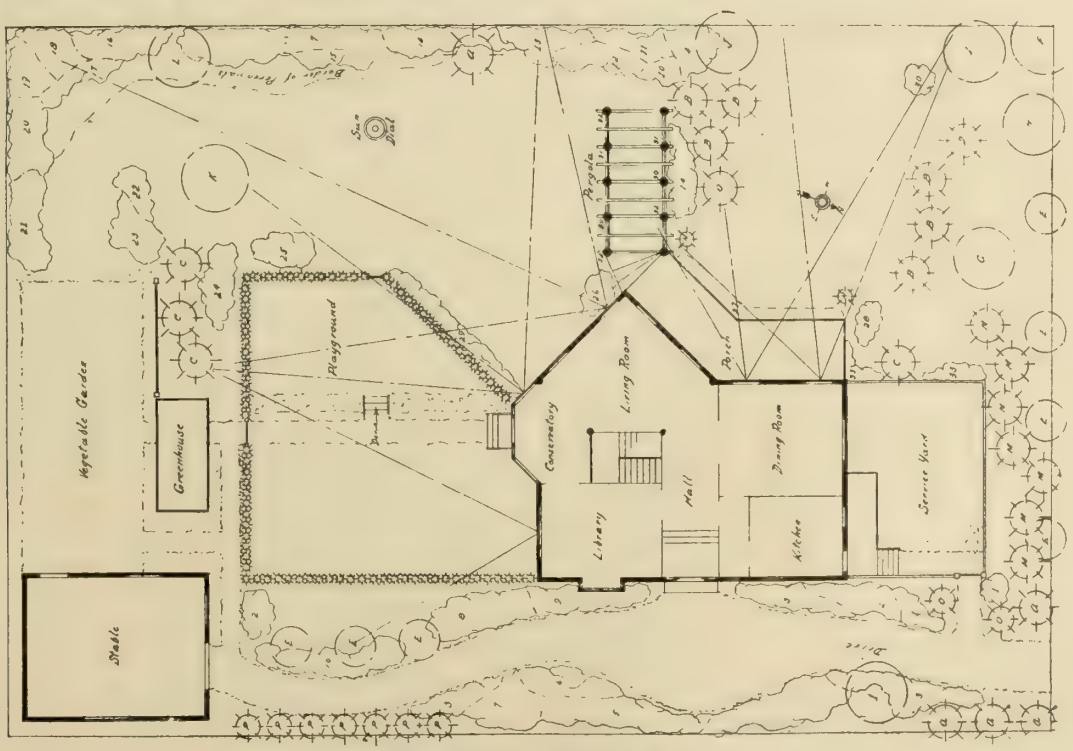
"American Boy"

This is the name of the best value in Boys' Rib Cotton Hose to sell at 25 cents. Sizes 6 to 10. A profit earning line combined with highest quality and finish. Every pair guaranteed. Try a sample range, (9 dozen).

"Silkolines"

A beautiful range of 40-inch goods in about 30 designs and colorings. Retail at 20 cents.

"Cathedral Madras"



A large selection of these drapings in newest styles to retail from 25 cents up.

John Knox Company, Limited

Wholesale Dry Goods, - - Hamilton, Ontario

Landscape Engineers

We are the Largest Canadian Nursery Company in this line of work.
We supply working drawings and also supervise plantings.

SET YOUR HOME IN A FRAME OF FOLIAGE

Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, Roses and Vines.

write for Terms and Prices.

BROWN BROTHERS CO., Limited, Nurserymen
BROWN'S NURSERIES P. O., ONT.

Business Management

By HOWARD R. WELLINGTON.

The Cost of Doing Business

In the special Spring number of The Review—which, by the way, is filled with interesting reading—an article appeared under the head of "The Cost of Doing Business," which should prove of inestimable value to the merchant who has not already installed some system enabling him to arrive at what his goods cost him "net," what his total sales are "net," and what each indivdual expense amounts to in each department of his business.

There seems to be some difference of opinion as to whether the proprietor's remuneration should be a fixed charge against the profits, the advance on cost including this charge, as well as all other charges, to arrive at the selling value of goods. It would be only fair to the business to charge in with the other salaries a certain fixed amount for the proprietor, just the same as it would be necessary to charge salary for a manager if one were employed. The gross profits, then, less the "overhead" expenses, the selling expense, salaries, etc., would show the net profit which the merchant earns.

The percentage to advance on cost depends largely on the cost of doing business and the amount of business done. When a business is thoroughly organized, and a system installed which will obviate all unnecessary detail work, a turn-over of $50,000 may be made almost as readily as $25,000, with but very little extra expense, thus increasing the net profit by a very substantial amount, as the "overhead" expenses, such as rent, taxes, manager's salary, etc., remain practically the same under both conditions.

A merchant must learn from an expeerience of two or three years, or perhaps more, what percentage must be added to cost to net a fair margin of profit. Few retail businesses, in those days of increased cost of doing business, can be managed successfully on a less margin than 33 1-3 per cent.

In a business which could be departmentized we would suggest a purchase journal, in which all purchase invoices should be entered monthly, the totals only being posted at the end of each month. A columnar book may be procured at a nominal cost, and the various columns used as found necessary, as follows:

Dept. A.

Jan. 1, 1906—Stock on hand		$2,500
	Purchases	6,000
	Sales		$8,500
	Rent or taxes	225
	Salaries	950
	Insurance	65
	Light and heat	55
	Advertising	65
	Fright and packing	200
	Office expense	275
	Interest	155
	Depreciation	75
Jan. 1, 1907—Stock on hand			2,600
	Net profit in department	535
		$11,100	$11,100

It will be noticed that such items as rent and taxes, insurance, office expenses, interest, depreciation, heat and light, etc., all appear as a charge against the department. There are various methods of arriving at the proportion chargeable to each: first, by the amount of the sales; second, by the situation of the department in the store; and third, by the ratio of expense in maintaining the department. It is hardly fair to base the proportion on the total sales, as the department having the largest sales might be working on the closest margin of profit, and, again, it might cost a great deal more for office expense or light and heat in one department than in another.

The only practical method is to collect these general expense items, take each individually and apportion what may seem a fair amount over each department.

Of course some expenses, such as insurance and sundry items of expense for the department may be charged direct, and the remarks above only refer to general charges.

In the illustration above, the goods cost $2,500 plus $6,000, or $8,500, less stock on hand, $2,600 or a net cost of goods sold of $5,900, an advance of 44 per cent. on cost, and yet the merchant only makes a net percentage

Purchase Jour nal—Jan. 31, 1907.

How settled	Terms	Seller	Amount	Dept. A	Dept. B	Dept. C	Dept. D	Dept. E.
Dft. 15, 1, 07	5, 30	J. Brown	$550 50		$550.50
Ch. 15, 2, 07	2½, 30	J. Smith	420 25			$420.25
Note 15, 3, 07	3, 30	J. Jones	375 20	$375.20
Dft. 20, 1, 07	5, 30	J. Thomas	150 40				$150.40
Dft. 1, 6, 07	3, 30	J. Ames	260 50					$260.50

Each department column may be further subdivided to provide for expenses, such as stationery, insurance, light and heat. This same idea may be carried out in the cash book, sales record and journal.

At the end of the period, then, we have a set of accounts for each department collected as follows:

of 9 per cent. Evidently expense accounts require careful inspection.

Valuation of Floor Space.

The Playfair, Preston Co., Midland, whose splendid store is illustrated in another section of this issue, have an up-to-date system of estimating what it costs them to do business. Each department of the several distinct sections—dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, etc.—is conducted as a separate store. Insurance is charged according to the value of the stock, and general expenses on the basis of location and the amount of floor space occupied. Salespeople seldom go out of their own departments. When it is found necessary to transfer a clerk from one department to another temporarily his salary account is not transferred unless the change lasts for a week or more.

Several merchants have told The Review recently that they would like to know just exactly what is is costing them to do business in each of their departments. The point at which they all stick is the method of valuing floor space.

The Playfair, Preston Co. own their store premises, but, as interest on their investment and to cover taxes, insurance, repairs, etc., the business is charged with an amount equal to the rent which they figure they would have to pay as tenants. The amount is $3,000. Before this system was adopted a plan of the whole store was made, showing exactly how much space each department occupied. The value of this space was figured out at $1 per square foot. Then location was considered. Here, perhaps, it would be hard to make the same rule apply to any two stores. Each merchant must work this out for himself. Among other things local conditions will enter into the calculation. Let us say that a general valuation of $1 per square foot has been arrived at. Perhaps it is decided that space on the second floor is only worth half as much as that on the first; the second floor will have to be valued accordingly. Next, the main floor departments must be graded, for the one nearest the entrance has a better location than any of the others, has a chance to attract more business and, consequently, it share of general expenses should be larger.

This valuation of space is not nearly so difficult as it appears on the surface. A merchant has only to feel that he is treating each department fairly and then go ahead with the operation of the system. Minor details may require adjustment later.

We state above that local conditions must be considered. Take, for instance, the Playfair, Preston Co.'s boot and shoe department. It has opposition from a specialty store, and the space which it occupies is valued at the same amount as it is figured the other merchant pays in rent.

Mr. Preston, manager of this company, has a book with a page set aside for each department. Looking back to 1906 we find value of, say, dress goods and trimmings on hand at the beginning of the year, amount purchased during the year, amount of sales, salaries of salespeople, insurance, share of rent, etc. All information can be seen at a glance, including the actual profit which the department paid. Of course records are kept from day to day and once a month the firm know just how each department stands.

This information is a substantial aid to merchants in buying goods.

ONE WAY TO KEEP GLASS CLEAR.

The haberdasher sighed, for his window, full of lovely holiday neckties, was quite opaque with frost.

"I'd give a lot," he said, "for some method to keep my windows from frosting over in cold weather."

"I'll let you have the method you want for nothing," said the patron. "Coat the inside of your window with glycerine, and it will keep as clear in Winter as in Summer. I'm a surveyor, and in my trade we always use glycerine on our glass instruments when it's cold."

TRAVELERS' VOTES.

E. Fielding and L. Howard, representing the Toronto branch of the Commercial Travelers' Association of Canada, asked, through Hon. Mr. Hanna, that the Ontario Government support a measure amending the election act by giving commercial travelers, who happened to be away from their homes on business when elections are in progress, the right to send in their votes by mail. Mr. Hanna suggested that the association appoint a committee to confer with the Government on the matter, and this will be done.

Quebec Store Improved

The Modern Establishment of Faguy, Lepinay & Frere —A Small Beginning a Few Years Ago.

It is hardly fourteen years ago since Faguy, Lepinay & Frere launched out in old Quebec City in a very modest store, but if the beginning was small, the members of the firm were endowed with plenty of energy and progressive business spirit which were soon recognized as the essential qualities in building up a large business. Their customers' confidence was their chief objective asset and once that was gained and held, the way to expansion was assurred and taken advantage of in due time.

The new store as it stands to-day on St. John St. in upper town of Quebec City, is a model one in every sense of the word, lacking nothing which makes for attractiveness, and equipped with the most modern features of the thoroughly up-to-date dry goods store. It has three floors 87x65 feet, and there are no partitions or obstructions to mar the view of the selling and display spaces. The numerous show cases lend to the uniform arrangement in the lay-out of the various departments. The high ceilings and splendid lighting systems give a bright appearance to the three floors. Dark corners and shadows are absent in the store and there is no need of customers requesting to be shown goods in a brighter light, because every inch of selling and display space is evenly lighted. The ground floor has a welcome atmosphere about it, which at once creates a desire on the part of the customer to visit the other departments. Here the lady patrons find a stock of ribbons, dress goods and fancy dry goods, which, in their well arranged sections and show cases, look fresh and clean.

The first floor shows the firm's new departure, which is of especial interest to gentlemen, the clothing department. The stock carried is extensive and varied, containing the best lines produced by the leading clothing manufacturers in the country. The arrangement of display and placing of stock is thoroughly modern. On the same floor are the millinery and ladies' mantle departments. The display here is highly attractive and facilitates the showing of the large and high class lines carried. The main offices are on this floor also. While they are convenient to customers, in no way do they obtrude upon the selling space of the floor.

All the lines which make up the complete housefurnishing department occupy the second floor. Carpets, linoleums, other lines of furnishings and home decorations are carried in a choice and select stock. The latest methods are used in showing these lines and the whole floor is devoted to them.

It was during last summer that the alterations were completed. A visit to the store shows that high ideals have been aimed at. The windows are designed on excellent lines and permit of splendid display.

The members of the firm are, Cyrille Faguy, Elzear Lepinay and F. Lepinay.

Your Book-Keeper Can Do Twice As Much.

BUSINESS SYSTEMS LIMITED
SYSTEM THE SECRET OF SUCCESS
TORONTO.

The end of every month with its accumulation of bills to be sent out, throws your book-keeper behind.

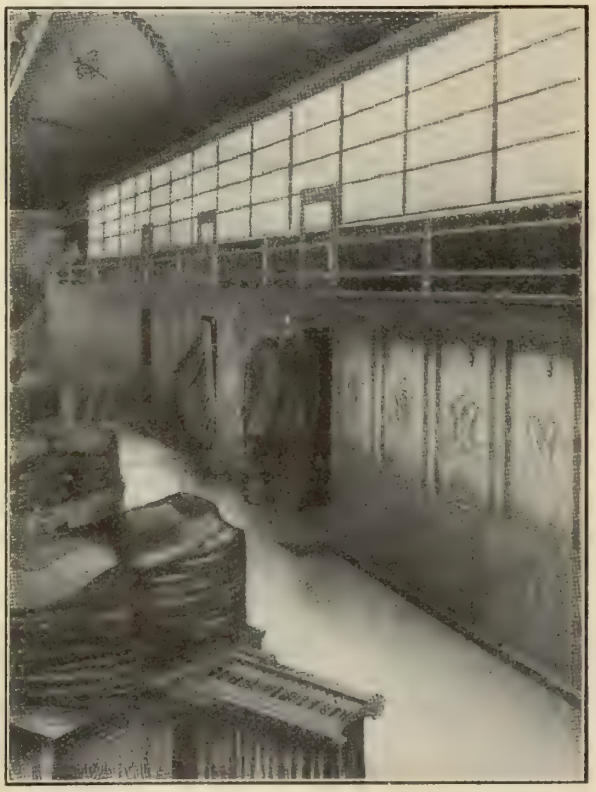
Then he's a week or ten days again catching up.

And in the rush, there's always a chance of making mistakes.

. . . . . .

Our Monthly Account System, especially adapted to retailers, will stop this.

Our Monthly Account System makes out your bills during the month at the same time that the entries are made in your books.



. . . . . .

A request for information about how this is done, will not obligate you to buy.

Write us about it.

To-day.

BUSINESS SYSTEMS
LIMITED
83 SPADINA AVE.
TORONTO, CANADA

Section of Modern Store Equipped with our System

Weir Wardrobe System

PATENTED

For the Economic and Scientific Handling of Men's and Women's Ready-to-wear Garments.

Sectional Wardrobes—each complete in itself

Fitting Rooms, Stairways or Dummy Fronts, all of uniform style, size and height.

Capacity: High Boys—in 30 in. frontage—50 Suits
Low Boys—25 Suits and 25 pairs odd Trousers.

Hardwood or Metal Roller Bearing Slides. Price list and catalogue on application. Estimates furnished.

Intending purchasers are specially requested to see our Trouser Slide and Suit Counters—the only thing of the kind in existence.

Weir Wardrobe Co. of Canada, Limited

Head Office and Factory: Mount Forest, Ont.
U. S. Factory: Mason City, Iowa

WINDOW DRESSING

THE ART OF DISPLAY

INTERIOR DECORATION

Winners of Competition

A. A. Garon, H. C. MacDonald, and H. Robinson, Had Best Windows—Judged Chiefly on Selling Merits.

The Review's Christmas competition brought out some splendid examples of the window trimmer's art, and was, on the whole, such a fine success that we are encouraged to hold further contests. Our desire is to stimulate the efforts of trimmers throughout Canada, with the result that their work will reach a higher standard of excellence, their employers will recognize more than ever before the business-drawing possibilities of window display, and The Review will become a more valuable medium for the interchange of ideas. Then we hope to organize a Canadian window trimmers' association, and in this we have been assured of the support of the leading Toronto display artists. We will discuss this matter further next month, and in the meantime we would be glad to receive some expression of opinion from others.

The judges chosen to act in conjunction with the editor of The Review in deciding the winners of the competition were, H. Hollingsworth, the Robert Simpson Co., and A. E. Apted, the T. Eaton Co., Toronto. The decisions were unanimously as follows:

1.—A. A. Garon, with Z. Paquet, Quebec. Prize, $15.

AN EASTER DRESS GOODS TRIM—THE PLAYFAIR, PRESTON CO., MIDLAND

2.—H. C. MacDonald, with Richard Hall & Son, Peterboro. Prize, $12.

3.—H. Robinson, with R. McKay & Co., Hamilton. Prize, $8.

No doubt a number of competitors will be very keenly disappointed, but that is inevitable in every competition. To some the fact that the "selling qualities" of a window were given precedence over its mere attractiveness will convey a clear idea of why they were not among the leaders. A window, it must be remembered, may be exceedingly pretty and still not sell goods. "Selling windows" are what the present-day merchant wants. Of course, at Christmas more embellishment is permissable than ordinarily, but even then the sale of goods must be foremost in the trimmer's mind. This point will be made the subject of a special article in an early issue.

Floral Effects for Easter.

To plan ahead is the only safe course for both window and store decorations, as it is important that the putting up of interior decorations cause as little confusion during business hours as possible. Indeed the best and easiest plan is to put them in place when the store is closed to the buying public. All the time that the window is dark is a distinct loss to the store and for that reason alone as little time as possible should be used in arranging your display. To accomplish this careful study is necessary, and a sketch or plan should be made marking just where each portion of the display is to be placed. Close attention to these details will produce satisfactory results, and will enable the work to be done easily and with despatch.

Easter is, from a decorator's point of view, the most important event of the year, for even Christmas, though a great buying festival, does not make so great a demand upon his talents. For one thing, the Christmas crowd is not so critical and it is not chosing for personal wear. At Easter people are buying for a new season, and are buying garments, fabrics, etc., that are to be worn for the greater part of the year. Therefore it is imperative that fabrics shall be so draped as to show their beauties, and that backgrounds chosen shall, while drawing general attention, not over-shadow in interest the goods on display.

No decorator, however true his eye is for color, can afford to give the grouping and harmonizing of his colors anything but the most careful and absorbing attention. Just what colors are to go together should be chosen before the background is finally decided upon, and the materials should be seen in the department, and their draping qualities carefully noted. The decorator has not much trouble here with the materials in vogue now, as they are of such a nature that they naturally fall into soft and graceful folds.

MILLINERY DEPARTMENT AT EASTER—THE PLAYFAIR, PRESTON CO., MIDLAND

City decorators are making very free use of monotone schemes, but it is not every decorator in the small centres who can assemble the materials for a window of this description. He can, however, use the combination idea, and show the different accessories that go with a gown Windows of this class are most interesting, and are big helps in selling the goods.

Not only must the windows of the store receive the greatest of attention, but the whole store must be in gala dress. Fixture trims must be elaborated, and not only the new goods shown, but they may be intermingled with floral and other decorations. Doves and rabbits of plaster or paper-mache are much used for this purpose as Eastertide. If there is a light wall, the sides are generally handsomely decorated not only with ferns and palms, but also with natural and artificial flowers as well, Easter lilies, of course, predominating.

Flowers naturally come first in the making of the Easter display—they are symbolical of Spring, of the waking of the earth from her long Winter's sleep.

Though many natural flowers are still used they are not used so lavishly as they were a few years ago. The artificial flowers, specially made for the purpose, are taking their place. The natural flowers, though they satisfy at first both the senses of sight and smell, soon fade and lose their freshness, and though a few are still used to mix in, the artificial ones are so satisfactory and so cheap that they are utilized more each year. Each season sees new effects and combinations, and they are more tractable and lend themselves better to display purposes.

Trails and sprays of all the Spring blooms of roses, lilies, smilax and asparagus fern, etc., branches of cherry blossom, apple blossom, large single roses, snowballs, etc., can be had and all at reasonable rates.

To illustrate, one of the largest of the Toronto stores

A MILLINERY WINDOW

RIBBONS, NECKWEAR, ETC., AT EASTER—THE PLAYFAIR, PRESTON CO., MIDLAND

is to use sprays of geranium leaves of white edged with purple for their Easter windows. These are to be posed upon a background of soft silken fabric in Empire green.

The price ticket is of little importance at this season, but even now cannot be totally ignored. Those used should be small, neat and inconspicuous. Show cards are much in evidence and should be ornate. A good idea used by The T. Eaton Co. was to have all the cards in a series of opening windows in ornate gilt frames. The ground of the cards was the same as the colors of the fabrics shown—that is a brown card with brown fabrics; a green card with green, etc. The lettering was of white, with relieving touches of gold. Another pretty idea for an opening show card that came under the notice of The Review had a spray of artificial flowers tied, with a ribbon, onto a card. In those seen the card was of sage green, with tiny roses and buds tied with a pale blue ribbon, but for Easter windows a white card with violet, green and gold lettering, and green ribbon would be highly appropriate. Holes are punched through the card and the ribbon passes through them making all secure.

MEN'S WEAR DEPARTMENT—THE PLAYFAIR, PRESTON CO., MIDLAND

PROFITS OF SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO.

During 1906 the big mail order house of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, showed a big increase in gross earnings, but it was discovered that increases in expenses caused a falling off in net profits.

Excellent gains in gross profits were shown yesterday by Sears, Roebuck & Co. in the report for the last six months of 1906. With the statement of the company's business during the first half of last year, it was possible to secure a full statement for the entire fiscal year ended Dec. 31, which was shown to be equally satisfactory in displaying big increases in gross earnings. In this yearly statement, however, it was discovered that increases in expenses caused a falling off in net profits.

The report on the six months ended Dec. 31 showed gross profits of $6,196,711, and net profits of $1,837,237, compared with $855,711 for the six months ended June 30, 1906. The disbursements on the preferred stock amounted to $349,982, and the surplus involved $1,487,255, equivalent to 4.95 per cent. earned on the common stock.

The statement on the last fiscal year shows gross profits of $12,068,496, an increase of $2,932,726 over those of the previous year. Expenses involved $9,375,548, an increase of $3,107,839 over those of 1905, and net profits aggregated $2,692,948, a decrease of $175,113, when compared with those for the previous year.

The details of the 1906 statement, compared with those for 1905 and 1904, follow: 1904—Gross profits, $6,928,900; expenses, $4,652,028; net profits, $2,276,872. 1905—Gross profits, $9,135,770; expenses, $6,267,709; net profits, $2,868,061. 1906—Gross profits, $12,068,496; expenses, $9,375,548 (including $50,050 "other income"); net profits, $2,692,948.

The sales for January, 1907, aggregated $3,278,435, compared with $2,742,236 during the corresponding month in 1906.

Manitoba Dry Goods Trade

Business Seriously Handicapped This Winter by Severe Weather, But Prospects Are Bright.

Like all other lines of business, the dry goods trade has been seriously handicapped this Winter by the severity of the weather and the consequent tie-up of the railways. Travelers have been stalled in small towns for days unable to get a train out, the delivery of goods has been seriously delayed, and retail trade itself has suffered very materially. Early in the month the weather moderated and the railway branch lines were opened again, and none too soon, for a serious condition of affairs was developing. While the senational reports telegraphed East and South by correspondents anxious to grind out marketable "copy" conveyed a wrong impression of conditions here, it would be idle to deny that a serious state of affairs existed and that business suffered in consequence.

* * *

The main source of trouble was the break-down of the western railways. Even under the most favorable climatic conditions there would have been unsatisfactory transportation service this year. In the Fall when every car and every engine was required to handle the wheat crop there came a sudden and unexpected demand from the ranchers in Alberta for a great number of cars to carry their cattle east. High prices for cattle caused heavy selling in the Fall and the railways were swamped with business. As a result the close of navigation found the big grain elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur practically empty and the number of cars of wheat shipped 2,443 less than at the same date the previous year. Then followed the most severe Winter in 20 years and the railways had not sufficient engines and snow-plows to keep the lines open. Under these conditions it is not strange that business suffered.

* * *

Nevertheless, although there have been losses, the condition of the country is sound and there is little anxiety among those who are best acquainted with the West. Owing to the failure of the railways to ship the wheat last Fall there has been considerable trouble about collections, but the wheat is in the country and can be realized upon in the Spring. With the opening of lake navigation money will be plentiful again and store bills will be paid.

Buying for Spring has, therefore, been very active and in spite of the adverse conditions mentioned, the volume of trade has been greater than ever before. The demand has been, moreover, for a better class of goods than in previous years.

* * *

Wholesale houses unite in predicting a serious shortage in a number of staple lines. This is particularly the case in regard to cottons and cotton manufactured goods. For these lines there has been an unprecedentedly heavy demand for several months, and the assorting trade is very large. The mills are unable to take care of repeat orders and a serious shortage is expected during the coming months. The advice of the wholesale trade to the retail is to buy early.

* * *

The annual bonspiel brought a great many retail visitors to Winnipeg this month, although probably not quite so many as in previous years, as the uncertain railway service kept the timid and cautious at home. The wholesale houses called in a number of their travelers during the bonspiel and all were busy entertaining their customers.

BEAUTY AND UTILITY

Two factors which no Dry Goods man can afford to ignore.

Our store fixtures are original, chaste and artistic in design, as well as highly useful. The cut shows for ties, gloves, lace veilings, etc. Each arm is independent and adjustable on standard. Standard 32 in. high; cross rods, 24 in. Heavy 8-in. base. Finished in Nickel, Oxidized Copper or Polished Brass.

No. 156 Display Stand

You ought to have our Catalogue.

Toronto Brass Mfg. Co.

17-21 Temperance St., Toronto

ELECTRIC SIGNS

advertise you night and day. Without question the cheapest and most effective method of advertising to-day

We have an excellent proposition to make in most Canadian cities for merchants to use electric signs.

Let us hear from you, and we will send you circulars.

The Martel-Stewart Co., Limited
Montreal, Canada

Millinery Openings

You need our latest Hat Stands, made in all sizes and prices. Note the new cross top.

Our Wax Figures are unapproachable in expression and finish, and will not melt nor crack in any season. Values the best. Catalog mailed promptly upon request.

CANADA'S GREATEST FIXTURE HOUSE

DELFOSSE & CO.

5 Hermine St. MONTREAL

NICKEL HAT STAND
From $3.50 per dozen upwards

BRITISH AMERICAN DYEING CO

The Largest and Best Equipped

DYE WORKS

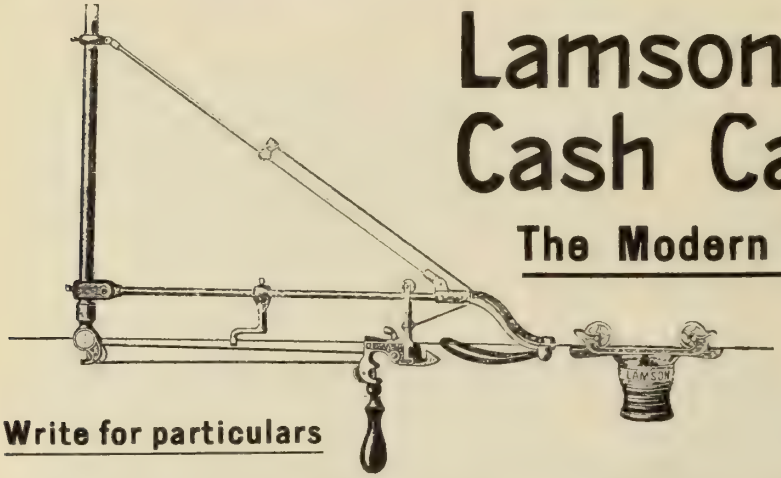
In the Dominion

SEND FOR PRICE LIST

GOLD MEDALLIST DYERS

JOSEPH ALLEN, Manager

Dress Goods, Cloths, Tweeds, Drills, Ducks, Cottons and Velveteens, Hosiery Yarns, Gloves, Braids, Etc.



DYED, FINISHED AND PUT UP

ALSO

Feathers, Silks, Velvets, Ribbons, Lace, Etc.

All Work Guaranteed Unequaled

MONTREAL, TORONTO, OTTAWA, QUEBEC

Lamson Rapid Spring Cash Carrier

The Modern Labor and Money Saver.

LAMSON CONSOLIDATED STORE SERVICE CO.

126 Wellington Street West, TORONTO

Write for particulars

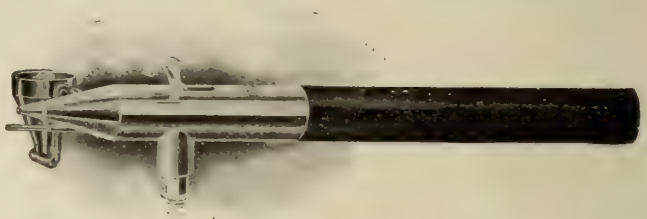
WE ORIGINATE,

manufacture and promptly supply everything we advertise.

As the oldest, largest and only complete house in the display form and fixture line, we are in a position to do this. Our Cuts are made from Our Goods. Originality is a rare quality and in this respect we are unique.

Write for particulars of our new form models for 1907

Catalogue Mailed upon Application.



J. R. Palmenberg's Sons

Suit Form No. 60 P.

FACTORY 9-97 W. Third St.

710 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, U.S.A.

(ESTABLISHED OVER 50 YEARS)

The most attractive Show Cards

ARE MADE WITH THE

FOUNTAIN AIR BRUSH

WRITE FOR CATALOG.

THAYER & CHANDLER, 160-164 W. Jackson Boulevard :: :: CHICAGO

CONDENSED ADS.

AT A COST OF

2 CENTS PER WORD

All clerks requiring positions will do well to invest a few cents in the Dry Goods Review and state their requirements.

Those merchants who wish to dispose of their business can in ert their ad. under a box number and we will forward any replies. This ensures secrecy to those that desire it.

The Review is read by 90 per cent of the entire trade. This ensures your wants being read by the merchants throughout the Dominion of Canada.

ADDRESS ALL CORRESPONDENCE TO

THE DRY GOODS REVIEW

10 Front St. East, TORONTO

232 McGill St. MONTREAL

"UNISYSTEMS"

Systems built to fit into each unit of your organization

SALES OFFICES:

Toronto Montreal Quebec

UNIVERSAL SYSTEMS, LIMITED

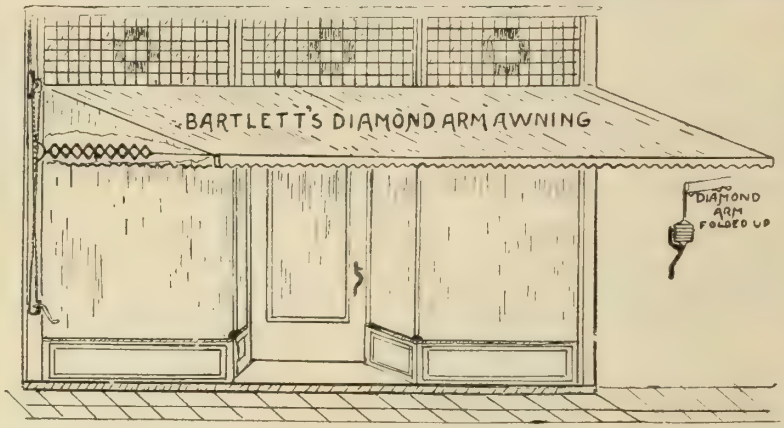
8-10 Adelaide Street West

Toronto, - Canada

STORE FRONTS, WINDOW AND SIDEWALK PRISMS, ORNAMENTAL GLASS

If everybody could see our goods we would do far more business. This is the reason we make an EXHIBIT AT TORONTO FAIR, as there more people see our goods than possibly could otherwise.

Always ready to show our goods.



Seeing is Believing.

If you cannot VISIT US, WRITE US. We can send you valuable information and designs.

LUXFER PRISM CO., Limited - TORONTO

The Awning for Prism Glass Fronts

This awning overcomes the difficulty in covering low store fronts—or prism glass fronts when the awning is wanted below the prisms.

The Diamond arms allow a very low altitude. They can be arranged to work where no place has been provided by the architect upon which to fix the arms. This awning may be operated with our sprocket gear, or by a rope on spool. Send for measurement sheet and get quotations. For other style see January and February numbers.

WM. BARTLETT & SON,
20 Adelaide Street, W., Toronto

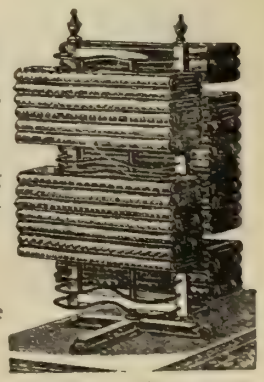
Practical Display Fixtures Dress Up the Store and Concentrate the Stock

No. 3 Ribbon Cabinet

PRACTICAL RIBBON CABINETS

PRICE LIST

Cabinet No		Capacity, Bolts		Cabinet No		Capacity, Bolts
0	27½ x 6½ x 26½	50	$6 00	4	28¾ x 23½ x 38	325	$23 00
1	28¾ x 14 x 26	100	10 00	5	28¾ x 27¾ x 38	400	26 00
2	28¾ x 14 x 38	150	13 50	6	28¾ x 32½ x 38	475	30 00
3	28¾ x 18¾ x 38	250	18 50	8	28¾ x 42¾ x 43½	700	42 00



Made of Oak. Sold by the leading jobbers of dry goods and notions

PRACTICAL PIECE GOODS FIXTURES

The proper display of ginghams, prints and piece goods in general requires a Practical Counter or Floor Fixture. Either holds forty pieces. Any piece removed without disturbing the others. Strong spring wire shelves, adjustable to any thickness of goods.

Practical Counter Fixture, height 3 ft. 6 in., 20-inch counter space. Price $6.50
Practical Floor Fixture, height 5 ft. Price - - - - - 7.50

For full description of the Practical Display Fixtures send for a catalogue to the manufacturers.

Counter Fixture

Practical Fixtures are made for all sorts of merchandise
Send for Catalogue to the Manufacturers

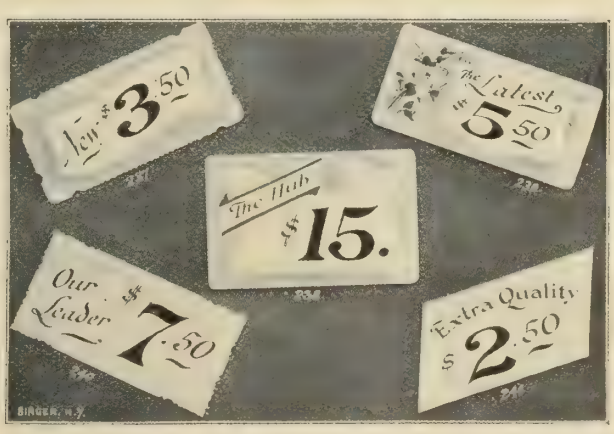
A. N. RUSSELL & SONS CO., ILION, N.Y., U.S.A.

SHOW CARD WRITING

BY CRAFTSMAN.

(Continued from February Number.)

Price Tickets



The student who has followed and faithfully practised the preceding alphabets illustrated in this series of articles should now be in a position to execute a fairly good price ticket. The numerous price ticket illustrations in this and the two following articles offer to the student ample opportunity for studying designs of tickets as well as pen and brush lettering.

The colors of the designs from which these photo engravings were made are mentioned in detail. These may, of course, be changed to suit the fancy of the maker or to suit the colors of inks he may have on hand. The card, beveled edges; 209 and 218, plain white with gold bevel; 210, egg-shell mat, with fancy gold bevel edge, embossed gold ornaments, green centre; 211 and 229, white and black hat tickets, with embossed gold circles; 212, pink shield, glued on green shield; 213, shoe ticket, white mat, fancy gold edge, gold ornaments, black centre ; 214, olive green suit ticket ; 219, gray card, with colored painted floral spray ; 220, heliotrope shoe ticket ; 237, 238 and 239 have shaded back-grounds, made by using an air brush. On number 238 the dark lines are gold, and 239 has a colored floral spray. No. 240 has a fancy edge colored in red in the centre and blue on the ends, and 241 has a glazed bevel edge. No. 221 is a light green egg-shell mat, with fancy gold edge and embossed gold ornaments, the mat is glued on purple beveled card ; 222, heliotrope shoe ticket, with gold embossed frame ; 223, imitation light oak card, with bevel edge ; 224, imitation burlap gray ; 225 and 227, black waterproof, with bevel edges ; 226, white mat, with fancy gold edge and embossed gold ornaments, glued on a white beveled, gray card having a white paper centre ; 228, white mat, with fancy gold edge, mounted on imitation light oak panel ; 230, white card, gold bevel, rococo gold scrolls ; 231, green hat ticket ; 232, and 235, gold embossed hat tickets; 233 and 234, shoe tickets ; 236, green linen, with white bevel. These hat tickets have very thin strips glued on the centre of the back. The glue is only put on one end so that the strip can readily be slipped into the hat band and the ticket project in front of the band.

WELFARE WORK IN CANADIAN FACTORY.

"A pretty safe road to success is the one that leads to a savings bank every pay day," was the remark of the head of Williams, Greene & Rome, of Berlin, Ont., on the occasion of the annual gathering of the employes held recently as a result of the welfare work, which has been inaugurated in this establishment. Mr. Williams then presented each employe with a savings account pass book in the Bank of Toronto and announced that hereafter all wage payments would be by cheque and that bank clerks would be in the factory every pay day to cash the cheques, and take deposits. Each employe received as a present a sum equivalent to one dollar for every year he had been in the service, with which to begin the savings account. Mr. Williams then directed his remarks against the mining, oil well, and wild cat schemes and sharks who were on the hunt for the savings of the people and he warned them to shun as they would poison the loan agents who lend money at from 2 to 10 per cent. per month. He told them that if any one of them were in close circumstances : "You will find no better friends than we are. Come to our front office. We will help you. We are your friends. When in trouble to whom should you go but to your friends ?" The address was concluded by this sound maxim : It is just as important to learn to save as it is to earn.

The incident marks the continuance and success of a very interesting departure made by the firm of Williams, Greene & Rome four years ago, and while the idea has been carried out with success in the United States and England, the instances are sufficiently few, both there and in Canada to warrant a further notice. Since the information is gathered from the reports of employes who are, active in the welfare work, as the association is called, it cannot be considered as tinged with the enthusiasm of the first promoters. Four years ago in the factory there was a good deal of friction and a lack of harmony among the employes. It was felt that there was an absence of responsibility and enthusiasm. A meeting of the heads and subheads of the departments was called, and welfare work was begun and the buildings which had hitherto been regarded among the employes as a factory and a house of work began to be the focus of their social life and a contributor to their enjoyment.

In due course a girl's rest-room was begun. This room was managed by a committee representing each department and was furnished for the comfort of the girls and as a place of repose when they were feeling indisposed. There is a bath in connection and the firm allows each girl 20 minutes off working time each week for a bath. The fee of five cents per bath is collected by the committee and applied to the maintenance of the room.

A library and reading room was soon established and it now contains 300 volumes of the best books, the magazines and newspapers.

The employes' dining room has grown from a lunch counter into a comfortable refectory. An interesting feature is that the waitresses are volunteers from the factory and are chosen weekly. It was equipped by employes with some assistance from the firm.

The men's club room is under the charge of the athletic association and has free for members tub and shower baths and indoor games. A small fee is charged for lockers.

The dry room is used for drying employes' wearing apparel in inclement weather. A supply of skirts, slippers, hose and umbrellas is kept and lent at the rate of one and two cents per article.

The flower and relief fund is the result of voluntary contributions and is managed by a committee who look after sick employes and visit them with flowers, fruit, etc.

The athletic association has the use of the ground in the rear of the factory and encourages bowling, tennis and football. There is a benefit association, formed by the employes, and a dramatic society, a literary and debating society; and the firm has lately built an assembly hall where the employes meet as occasion renders desirable and hold their celebrations as they may occur.

At the meeting a tribute was paid to the National Cash Register Company, of Dayton, to whose establishment a visit was paid by officers of the W.G. & R. welfare work and from whose operations many ideas of value were gathered. A recent departure as a result, in the Berlin factory, is the classes of instruction. The men meet to study mathematics, grammar, composition, reading and parliamentary procedure. The girls' classes embrace plain sewing, basketry and domestic science, for the pursuance of which the firm recently installed a complete equipment.

The most interesting point is yet to be mentioned : the result of the mutual self-help movement. The employes are much more comfortable and happy, and the idea of saving their money in a systematic manner has been gladly welcomed. The results to the firm sound like a fairy tale, but as they were corroborated by both employers and employes they will be readily accepted.

The firm's business in the last four years has increased by 90 per cent., or nearly doubled. The number of employes has decreased from 522 to 430, or nearly 100 less. The number of working hours has been reduced from six days of ten hours each to five days of nine hours each, with a half holiday on Saturday. The 430 employes drew $28,000 more last year than 522 did four years ago. The firm's output, however, not merely doubled, but the quality of workmanship had greatly advanced on account of the good work done and the enthusiastic spirit shown.

The above subject has been treated at some length not merely on account of its being one of interest, but because it shows how the bank can assist the manufacturer in inculcating the saving habit and the spirit of self-help—Financial Post.

"There's a Reason for our Succ ss"

OU can take our word for it; or you can buy some other line of underwear --- Either method will prove that our goods have no equal, for satisfaction to yourself and your customer; and will also prove that there are

"NONE BETTER AT THE PRICE"

JOSEPH SIMPSON SONS

KNITTING MILLS - - - TORONTO

BALDWIN'S BEEHIVE FINGERING

The ORIGINAL Fingering

GREAT BRITAIN'S BEST

Cannot be surpassed for warmth, comfort and durability.

LATEST SPECIALTIES:

Beehive Double Knitting Wool. A grand yarn for warm garments, such as Socks, Stockings, Golf Hose, Gloves, Comforters and Combinations. It is the same length and thickness as the best 3-ply Wheeling Yarn, but is much stronger and more durable in wear.

Beehive Rug Wool. A novelty for making Rugs and Mats at home. Cable twisted, lustrous finish. Supplied in 3-dozen art shades.

Beehive Eider Wool. A really choice article for making dainty shawls and wraps. It washes beautifully and is particularly suitable for Undervests.

Beehive Feather Wool. A novel looped thread for Knitting or Crochet. Reproduces the wavy appearance of an Ostrich Feather or of Astrachan.

White Heather. "Baldwin's 2nd Quality," supplied in Scotch Fingering, 2, 3, 4 and 5-ply; 3-ply Wheeling; Vest Wool; and Petticoat Fingering, 4-ply. Good, reliable, high-class Wools at a popular level of price.

J. & J. BALDWIN & PARTNERS, LTD.
HALIFAX, ENGLAND

AGENT:
DUNCAN BELL
MONTREAL & TORONTO

Established 1785 WHOLESALE ONLY Please Send for Samples.

"The Black that Doesn't Budge"

That's the black in a "Hermsdorf-Dyed" Stocking. It doesn't budge because it can't. It just stops there defying suds, sun, wind, water, wear and everything else. And that's why "Hermsdorf-Dyed" Stockings give unlimited satisfaction to every woman. Next time you buy hoisery remember that "Hermsdorf-Dyed" are the real fast blacks. None genuine unless my signature is on the toe.

Every buyer, window trimmer, ad-writer, salesman and clerk is invited to send for 48-page Booklet—"The Story of a Successful Hosiery Week." It's free.

Louis Hermsdorf Dyer

Works: Chemnitz, Saxony

American Bureau, 200 Greene St., N.Y.

Electro of above cut will be supplied on request to all dealers who carry Hermsdorf-Dyed Hosiery.

Crescent Brand

Hosiery and Underwear

S. Lennard & Sons

DUNDAS, ONT.

Manufacturers of all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's

RIBBED UNDERWEAR

in Cotton, Wool, Worsted, Merino, and Silk, and "Bolton's" process for Unshrinkable Underwear.

GUARANTEED UNSHRINKABLE AND NON-FELTING.

SOLE SELLING AGENTS

The Richard L. Baker Co.

Empire Bldg., Wellington St. W. TORONTO, ONT.

Knitted Goods

Hosiery
Underwear
Golfers

Underwear

Sales So Far Indicate Bigger Season Than Last—Market Strengthened During Month.

Comparing sales with the corresponding month of last year it is noticed that the mills have already booked more orders, and their utmost capacity is now assured. During the month, as predicted, sales improved in all lines and indications point towards active ordering from the retailers when jobbers present their full lines. Late orders for Spring are coming in from the dilatory section of the trade, but it is doubtful if deliveries can be made in time. The severity of the closing Winter months tended to clean out the retailers' stocks and the jobbers go out with the assurance of large orders. The few large retailers who have placed their orders for Fall directly with the manufacturer have, without exception, ordered greater quantities and better qualities than last year. Some have more than doubled the quantity, and none have shown, so far, a smaller increase than one-third over the previous year.

There has been open competition on the part of manufacturers, who sell direct to the retail trade, in their $9 lines. Frequently the retailers have had several sets of samples for inspection at the same time in order to choose the best. This, no doubt, is precautionary under the present circumstances, when manufacturers admit that, owing to the high prices of yarns, values are not up to even last year's standard.

The lower grades of cotton underwear have sold remarkably well, especially corset covers at $2.25. While these articles are selling better than ever in white wear, the sales of the knitted goods are not affected. Wool articles at the same price are selling equally as well, and some jobbers report that they cannot keep sufficient in stock. Higher priced articles have not been so successful.

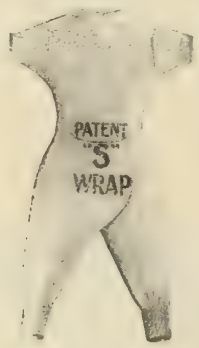
Again the characteristic requirements of the various parts of the country are plainly manifested in the orders being booked. White ribbed goods are being ordered by the eastern provinces, but the west shows a greater tendency for flat grey goods. It is claimed that greys are warmer than whites, and there is some substantial reason in this contention. It is argued that the white wools are bleached and much acid is used in the process ; it is claimed that this detracts from the softness and warmth of the wool, while the greys retain their washed color. This again goes far towards explaining the distinct preference for flat goods in the West. Closer texture and softer surface is more evident in these goods than in the ribbed goods, which are made more than formerly of the white yarns. The market is well cleared out in the west and better orders are reported. Union suits are meeting with a slightly improved demand, but in no way do they interfere with the sale of the piece garments. The growth of the population makes room for more varied lines and retailers are alive to the interests of their customers when they purchase more lines. In wool ribs, the plain and spring needle stitched are meeting with continued favor. They meet the requirements of those who prefer the clinging garments, as they are particularly adaptable for this feature. The flat goods do not possess this quality to the same marked extent and are not so greatly favored in the larger centres.

During the past month several of the large British manufacturers withdrew their prices on account of the upward tendency of the yarn markets. This should be noted by those who are deferring their orders, as in all probability there will be still further advances.

Hosiery

Unexpected Demand for Tans for Spring Trade—Chemnitz Market Strained—Deliveries Will be Slow for Fall.

As stated some time ago, there is likely to be a late demand for tan hosiery. Whites and fancies had occupied the attention of the retailers during the buying season for Spring, but because they have lately demanded light and medium colored tans it does not essentially mean that they have misjudged the season, but rather that there will be a big market for both. Seconds were snatched up quickly throughout the month and all incoming orders show large figures for tans. Deliveries from abroad have not been satisfactory, but it is expected that they will show improvement before the reason is reached.



For Fall and Winter trade, ordering has not been very active on the heavier lines. This may be explained by the fact that the majority of jobbers have not yet decided upon their full line for Fall. Buyers abroad report great difficulties in placing orders and state their intention of placing further orders with the home manufacturers. Ribbed hose with reinforced knees, heels and toes are selling better than ever, the qualities ordered being above the average of last year. Retailers are experiencing some difficulty in securing as good values in the $2.25 lines as last season and are taking higher priced goods more freely. The better class of retailers are ordering largely on the $4.50 lines for Fall and Winter trade, and as their goods have been well cleared out during the past few cold months, they are enabled to place more freely on all the higher grades. Markets abroad are in a strained condition ; already many manufacturers have withdrawn Fall price lists and in a few cases mills are booked to full capacity and cannot accept more orders.

THE LEADING
English Underwear
JAY
Unshrinkable Woollen
UNDERWEAR

SPECIALITIES:—

LADIES' COMBINATIONS fitted with the Patent "S" WRAP, which affords complete protection where this is most necessary. No button is needed, and the garment does not drag when wearer is sitting.

Any Garment shrunk in Washing will be replaced.

Gentlemen's "STAR" Seated Pants & Drawers.

NO SEAMS at fork, up back, and down inside of leg to chafe, or give way.

EXTRA SPLICED with great freedom of movement.

These Specialities can also be obtained in Merino, and Silk and Merino.

SEE THIS MARK

ON EVERY GARMENT

Wholesale only:—
Messrs. I. & R. Morley and Geo. Brettle & Co.
LONDON, ENGLAND.

Worsted lines are scarce on the market at present and further advances are anticipated.

Chemnitz manufacturers, according to returned buyers, are filled up with orders and repeats will be impossible to obtain for practical time for delivery. The shortage of both cotton and wool yarns is hampering the manufacturers, and there is some misgiving as to future prices. Deliveries for Fall are not expected to be satisfactory, and although ordering was done much earlier than usual, it will be impossible to turn out the full orders in time.

Canadian manufacturers will undoubtedly be booked to their full capacity as their lines are giving every satisfaction to the trade in general.

Golfers and Sweaters

Eton Jackets Are Selling Well for Spring—Sweaters Strong for Fall.

For Spring and Summer trade Eton jackets are selling more freely than even the most sanguine had expected. There was some doubt expressed earlier in the season regarding the final disposal of jobbers' stocks, but this diffidence has been dispelled, and everything points to a favorable demand for the novelty of the season. A few repeats from jobbers will be necessary before the close of the present month, as they had ordered sparingly, but since the selling has been free they feel confident of better demand later in the season. The light-weight jacket makes a desirable garment for Spring and early Summer wear, and is meeting with the favor of the trade.

Sweaters have again sold well this Winter, and there is every indication that next Winter there will be even a larger call for them. The long rolling neck which opens at the front in a V-shape has proven so acceptable that manufacturers will make no change in them. Some handsome color combinations are being shown in the new range for Fall, and they are being freely ordered.

The splendid sales of the Norfolk jackets should prove a quietus to those who constantly cry down golfers as a doubtful and uncertain line. In Britain the sales are bigger than ever and the United States has again bought freely.

THE HOOD KNITTING CO.

An Ontario charter has been granted the Hood Knitting Compnay, Limited, Lindsay, with a capital of $40,000, divided into $50 shares. The incorporators were Ebenezer Hood and George Hood, Toronto, manufacturers; and Alister C. Campbell, merchant; John A. White, physician, and Alex. Horn, manufacturer, all of Lindsay. The object of the company is "to manufacture, make, sell and generally deal in all kinds of knitted goods, cloth, clothing fibre, fabric, yarns, and material of every kind and description, and generally to carry on the business of manufacturing knitters."

The directors of Lord & Taylor, New York, which succeeded to the business of the dry goods firm of that name three years ago, have decided to increase the dividend rate on the common stock from 7 to 8 per cent. a year. On May 1 the new quarterly dividend of 2 per cent., involving $60,600, will be paid. The $2,500,000 of preferred stock pays 6 per cent. yearly.

The Ellis Spring Needle Ribbed Underwear

is knit on SPRING NEEDLE RIBBED MACHINES, of which we are SOLE USERS in CANADA. These machines will knit ONLY THE FINEST YARN and produce a finished fabric of the most REMARKABLE ELASTICITY. Garments of this fabric fit EASILY and NATURALLY. They yield readily with every movement of the body, yet ALWAYS retain their original ELASTICITY. Our travellers are now out with Fall samples. Wait for them.

SOLE MAKERS IN CANADA

The Ellis Manufacturing Co., Limited

Hamilton, - Ontario

Selling Agents
Monypenny Bros. & Co., Toronto and Montreal

FALL SEASON, 1907

Watson's Ribbed Knit Underwear (will not shrink).

As our representatives are now showing a full assortment of Fall Underwear for Ladies, Men and Children, we wish to call your attention to a few of our specialties.

The "Allen Nursing Vest" still retains its popularity, and we are the sole makers of same in Canada.

Something new in bifurcated garments is the patent Isabelle Drawer Skirt. The only skirt for winter wear.

Overwhelming testimony as to the excellence of our men's and boy's goods comes entirely unsolicited. See our Ribbed Knit Plush Lines.

Nothing so conducive to the comfort and well-being of infants as our "RUBENS" and other vests and bands specially designed for youngsters.

Stimulate your trade by carrying underwear that will wear.

AGENTS:

McCLUNG & BURNS, 117 Wellington St. West, TORONTO
J. A. MURRAY, SUSSEX, N.B.
A. L. GILPIN, 232 McGill St., MONTREAL
BRYCE & CO. Box 238, WINNIPEG

Watson Manufacturing Co., Limited, Paris, Ont.

PRINCESS RIB

The genteel stocking for Boys and Girls. Made of fine double Egyptian Lisle Yarn.

ROCK RIB

Strong as Gibraltar

The Stockings made especially for Boys' and Girls' hard wear.

HERCULES RIB

The Limit of Strength

Made of Three-ply Specially Strong Yarn.

MANUFACTURED FOR THE WHOLESALE TRADE BY CHIPMAN-HOLTON KNITTING CO.
E. H. WALSH & CO., Sole Selling Agents, TORONTO and MONTREAL

Stanfield's Unshrinkable and "Truro Knit" Underwear

—fine, pure, all-wool and unshrinkable—knitted in every size and every weight—a size for the short, the stout, the tall, the thin and every other hard-to-fit figure—and a weight for every climate.

No customer need ever be turned away from your Underwear Department, when you carry Stanfield's. New samples ready. Write

Stanfield's, Limited
Truro, N.S.

126a

"Craftana"

THE HALL-MARK OF Registered No. 262,500

Maximum Comfort and Durabilty at Minimum Cost.

FIRST in the Field and STILL LEADING.

Made on the GRADUATED PRINCIPLE, and starting with TWO THREADS in the TOP, it increases in WEAR-RESISTING PROPERTIES as it descends. Thus THE LEG HAS THREE THREADS, THE INSTEP AND FOOT FOUR, and the HEEL and TOE FIVE. By this process the WEIGHT and STRENGTH of the Sock are where they are most needed IN THE FEET, making it essentially

A HALF HOSE FOR HARD WEAR

Absolutely Seamless.
Perfect in Fit.
Guaranteed Unshrinkable

THE ACME OF PERFECTION IN FOOTWEAR

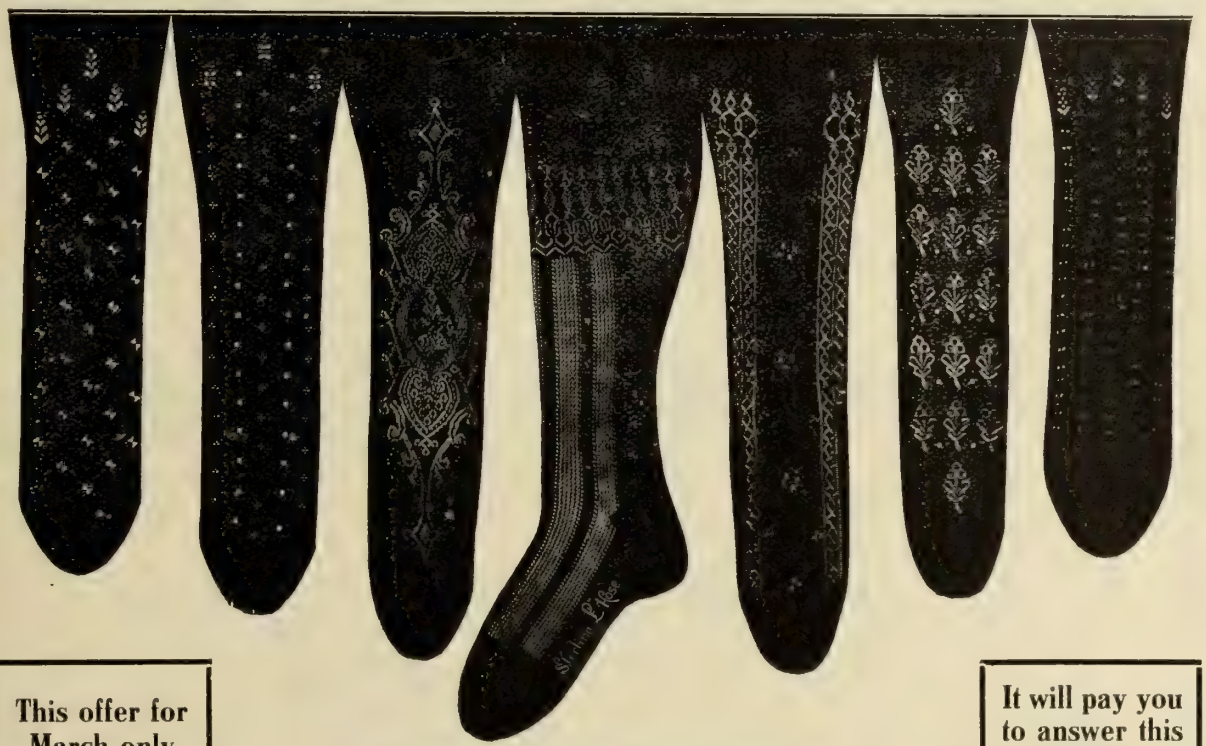
SOLE AGENTS FOR CANADA: R. HENDERSON & CO. MONTREAL and TORONTO

Manufactured by W. RAVEN & CO., Ltd. Leicester, Eng.

WOLSEY

Pure wool unshrinkable underwear has won its way into every corner of the world.

Order Early. From Your Jobber



READ THIS

Sterling & Hosiery

NOTE CAREFULLY

THE SPRING HOSIERY SEASON IS HERE

Good hosiery is not plentiful, and these offerings are opportune. We make a special offer of the following lines regardless of profit, but just as a test of this "ad."

A GROUP OF ATTRACTIVE STYLES

This offer for March only

It will pay you to answer this call

These Lines are Money-makers

Style 89—Ladies Plain Black Cotton Hose, $2.15
Style 90— " " tan " " 2.15
Style 102—Ladies Plain Black Cotton Hose, $2.25
Style 102— " " White " " 2.25
Style 103—Ladies Plain Cardinal Cotton Hose, $2.25
This style shown also in Grey, Navy, Tan, Pink and Sky

SAMPLES UPON REQUEST. DELIVERIES ON THE MINUTE.

Our stocks of Ladies' Embroidered Cotton, Lisle as well as Gauze and Lace Hosiery, are probably the best assorted in the Dominion, ranging in prices from $2.25 to $40.00 per dozen.

The Leading Hosiery House

KONIG & STUFFMAN

Victoria Square MONTREAL

Nazareth Waist

You're running a store for just two reasons.

FIRST REASON, is to make money.

SECOND REASON, is to give such satisfaction with your merchandise that you'll make more money.

The NAZARETH WAIST is with you on both counts.

It affords a sensible, satisfying profit to the merchant who gives it shelf room.

It satisfies the child that wears it and the mother that buys it so well that you never hear of anyone quitting it for some other brand. This is more than advertising claim—it's a fact.

THESE

CANADIAN WHOLESALE HOUSES

Carry complete lines of the Nazareth Waist

ST. JOHN, N.B.
The Vassie Co., (Ltd.)
The London House Wholesale
Manchester, Robertson & Allison
Scovil Bros., (Ltd.)

WINNIPEG, MAN.
R. J. Whitla & Co., (Ltd.)
Greenshields Western, (Ltd.

VANCOUVER, B.C.
The Gault Bros. Co.

CALGARY, ALTA.
W. R. Brock Co., (Ltd.)

TORONTO
John Macdonald & Co.
Gordon, Mackay & Co.
W. R Brock Co. (Ltd.)
Burton, Spence & Co., (Ltd.)
Beatty, Kerr & Verner
Denton, Mitchell & Duncan.

HAMILTON, ONT.
John Knox Company, (Ltd.)

HALIFAX, N.S.
W. & C. Silver
Smith Brothers

KINGSTON, ONT.
Macnee & Minnes

LONDON, ONT.
R. C. Struthers & Co.
Robinson, Little & Co.

MONTREAL
W. R. Brock Co. (Ltd.)
Greenshields Limited
Hodgson, Sumner & Co. (Ltd.)
A. Racine & Co.
Brophy-Cains, (Ltd.)

This mark woven in Red is on every genuine Nazareth Waist, and it means something.

ADDRESS, ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

Nazareth Waist Co.

350 BROADWAY

NEW YORK

E. H. WALSH & CO.

TORONTO AND MONTREAL.

CANADIAN REPRESENTATIVES.

Peerless REGISTERED UNDERWEAR CO., Manufacturers of Ladies' and Children's

HIGH-GRADE

Ribbed Underwear

Fall 1907

Our samples for Fall 1907 are now being shown by our various representatives, and we would advise intending buyers to place their orders now, so as to insure early deliveries.

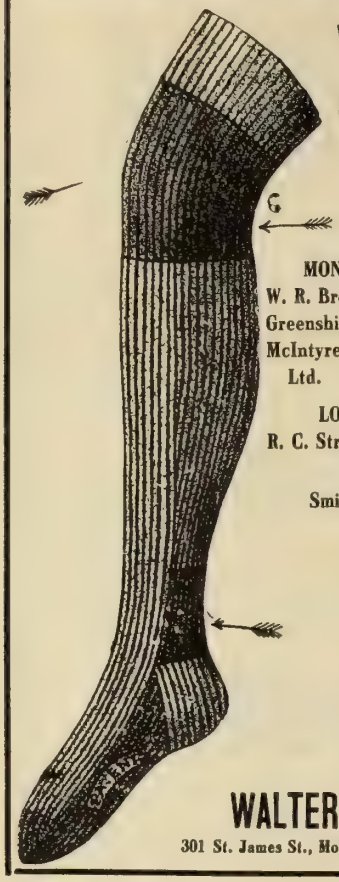
It will pay you to see our Special lines at popular prices before placing your order elsewhere.

REPRESENTED BY

ONTARIO—Peerless Underwear Co. Hamilton, Ont.

MARITIME PROVINCES—G. H. Woodill Halifax, N.S.

QUEBEC—L. A. Prevost Montreal, Que.



MANITOBA—A. J. Snell Winnipeg, Man.

BRITISH COLUMBIA—G. A. Campbell Vancouver, B.C.

PEERLESS UNDERWEAR CO.

Hamilton, Canada

ADAMS LOCKSTITCH HOSE

Will win and hold your trade

Note: 10 FOLD KNEES
6 FOLD ANKLES

Absolutely the Best Wearing Stocking.

MONTREAL
W. R. Brock Co., Ltd.
Greenshields Ltd.
McIntyre, Son & Co., Ltd.

TORONTO
Gordon, McKay & Co., Ltd.
W. R. Brock Co., Ltd.
Beatty, Kerr & Verner

LONDON
R. C. Struthers

KINGSTON
Macnee & Minnes

HALIFAX
Smith Bros.
W. & C. Silver,

VANCOUVER
Greenshields Limited

A. E. ADAMS & CO.
LEICESTER, ENG.
Manufacturers

AGENTS

WALTER WILLIAMS & CO.
301 St. James St., Montreal
33 Melinda St., Toronto

"Ceetee" Underwear

That's the name of the most reliable underwear on the market.

"CEETEE" is velvety, always fits right—because it cannot shrink, and declared to be the most comfortable underwear that money can buy.

Perfect Fitting Elastic-Ribbed Underwear

has long been the favorite of Canadian women. They will have none other for their children — because quality and price are both right.

It Does Pay To Feature Our Underwear

THE C. TURNBULL CO.

OF GALT, LIMITED

GALT, CANADA

THE

IMPERIAL MILLS COMPANY

OF DUNNVILLE, ONT.

Manufacturers of—

Lumbermen's Socks
Club Sweaters
Cardigan Jackets
Ladies' Golf Capes
Knit-to-Fit Jackets
Blouses, etc., etc.

Our goods bear the guarantee of responsible makers.

The Yarns and other Materials are specially selected by experts. The goods are all fashioned to fit by hand—Every garment goes under the hands of four Expert Examiners before being sent out.

We take back any goods which are not as ordered. By these means we have succeeded in placing our Knitted Fabrics in the same category as Tailor-Made Goods.

Our travelers are now on the road with our new and complete line for 1907, which we feel confident surpasses, by far, any former season.

SALESROOMS

60 Front Street West, - TORONTO

SQUIRREL BRAND UNDERWEAR

PURE WOOL

Cartwright & Warners

LIMITED.

Loughborough, England.

WOOL IS A NON-CONDUCTOR, keeping the heat in and the cold out; it is the most porous of all materials, permitting free circulation of air next the body. Made for Men's, Women's and Children's Wear.

Guaranteed
Absolutely Unshrinkable.

CARTWRIGHT & WARNER'S name on a garment carries with it the value of a hundred years' successful experience in the manufacture of the best knit Underwear in the world, and stamps it with a character of superiority that places it above and beyond all others in a class by itself.

R. FLAWS & SON, Agents, Manchester Bldg., Toronto.

Mr. Dealer—You Simply Can't Lose if You Sell—

"Hygeian" REGISTERED UNDERWEAR

FOR PARTICULAR PEOPLE

MADE IN ALL STYLES, SIZES AND WEIGHTS

BECAUSE

Those who have handled it know that it brings in profit and gives satisfaction. If you doubt this, place your next order with your dealer for "Hygeian Brand" and be convinced.

Eagle Knitting Co., Ltd., Hamilton, CANADA

"Hygeian Waists" sell when others won't

WESTERN RETAILERS' ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada was held in Winnipeg. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, W. G. McLaren, Souris; 1st vice-president, J. D. Vain, Boissevain; 2nd vice-president, W. C. Painter, Tantallon, Sask.; treasurer, F. J. Hunter, Boissevain; secretary, W. A. Coulson, Winnipeg.

A resolution was passed that a petition be presented to the legislatures of the three provinces praying that a bill be introduced regulating the activities of pedlars and transient traders, in the direction of an increase of license fees, and providing for fines for contravention of the Act.

It was decided to petition the Dominion Government to amend the criminal code by placing retail merchants on the same footing with the classes of the community with regard to the right of combination, and making it possible for them to enter into specific agreements with manufacturers and wholesalers.

During the session the report of a joint deputation to Ottawa of the Eastern and Western Retailers Association regarding he C.O.D. parcel post proposal was received and read, and it was announced, amid applause, that the scheme had been withdrawn.

A committee, consisting of members of each province, was appointed to formulate a scheme of mutual fire insurance. The retailers of the West are anxious to control their fire insurance as is done by elevatormen, lumbermen and others.

DAVIES WHOLESALE TAILORING CO.

An Ontario charter has been granted The Davies Wholesale Tailoring Co., Limited, Toronto Junction, with a capital of $40,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were, C. H. Davies, manufacturer, and Geo. H. Laugan, foreman, of Stratford; Edward J. Kurtz, of Nashville, farmer; Robert, W. Cressman, New Hamburg, commercial traveler, and William W. Stoddart, Toronto, broker. The object of the company is "to manufacture, sell and deal in clothing and men's furnishings."

NOVEL IDEA IN TRADE.

It was at the time when the syndicate shoe store had installed in every one of their stores all over the States boot-blacking parlors where the shine was free of charge, irrespective of where the shoes were bought, provided they were their own make. Brooklyn was one of the towns where this scheme was carried out, and the local individual shoe dealers began to feel it.

One of them, says a correspondent, made up his mind that he would have to do something. To throw back the effect he might install a shoe-shining parlor, too, but that would merely put him on an equal basis with the others, and he finally hit upon a scheme which was just the reverse of the syndicate plan. He, too, equipped and opened a shoe-shining parlor, but here the patrons paid for their shine and each time they spent a nickel or a dime in the parlor they received a coupon of even amount. When they had paid for shines to the amount of $3.00 or $3.50 they could bring in their coupons and get for them a pair of shoes of equal value.

In other words, instead of buying shoes first and then getting a shine free, the patrons were to buy their shines and get their shoes free.

The scheme worked. At any rate the business of the little store grew and the proprietor seemed to be making a profit.

Patons Alloa Scotch

Knitting Yarns

are known the world over for smoothness and warmth besides which—quality for quality they are cheaper than any other.

Should there however be the shadow of a doubt in your mind, our Samples are waiting your Post Card to convince you.

JOHN PATON, SON & COMPANY,
Alloa, Scotland

Sole Agent for Canada
Philip De Cruchy, 207 St. James St., Montreal.

EDMONTON

and the enormous territory for which it is the distributing centre is developing faster than any other section of this continent.

Edmonton's Building Record for 1906, places it in 5th place on the list of Canadian Cities

Clearing House Returns

give Edmonton 13th place. It is rapidly climbing up

DO YOU WANT TO SHARE THIS TRADE?

Premises to Let—Consignments Received for Storage and Distribution

Best Storage in the West—on spur track in the wholesale centre

F. T. FISHER
Drawer 14
Edmonton, Alberta

It's a Good Scheme

TO BUY YOUR FURS FROM A HOUSE WHOSE GOODS ARE KNOWN FOR RELIABILITY AND SURE SELLING QUALITIES.

YOUR ATTENTION IS INVITED TO OUR LINE FOR 1907-1908.

THE HOUSE FOR YOU IS

M. SILVER & CO.

12-14 St. John St., MONTREAL

Fur Sales

You Can Buy
our Furs with confidence.

You Can Sell
our Furs with confidence.

Our buying and manufacturing facilities are unexcelled.

Our complete lines of ladies' and men's manufactured Furs are now ready.

If not on our visiting list,

WRITE TO-DAY

A. Kirschberg & Co.

Established 20 years

457 St. Paul St., - - Montreal

The Last Call
"Not Yet, But Soon"

Shrewd Fur Buyers buy now—if not in the middle of summer.

You can make this month a record in Fur Selling—because we stand ready and willing to help you. If you are anxious to corner the Fur Trade of your town send your orders on to us. Have the measurements right and we'll care for our thoroughly tested reputation. Besides, it does pay us to make good.

WM. E. ORR & CO.

MANUFACTURING FURRIERS

The House of Reliability, Excellence and Style

93 YONGE ST., TORONTO

EASTER HATS

For Young Men

All  Prices

Send an Open Order Now—
We'll Rush it.

Get posted on our line of Spring Hats. If in Ontario or Quebec, have our representative call.

Felt Hats Renovated
Panamas Blocked

Ladies' and Gentlemen's Fur Samples now ready.

CALL WHEN IN TOWN

A. E. Clement

8 Lemoine St. Montreal

The Canadian Fur Trade

Season 1907-08

First Of All

LET'S see what Canada's Largest Fur Factory has to say upon the subject nearest its heart! This house, above all others, should know a thing or two about furs—that is to say good furs, reliable furs—furs that it pays the dealer to handle and the consumer to wear. And you know that means "Paquet Furs." When you consider that this is the largest Fur Factory in the country and one of the largest in the world, it does seem appropriate that the first page of this should be our messenger to you this month—doesn't it? And here in Old Quebec, the fur-centre of America, we stand ready to dish out satisfaction in big hard lumps to all our customers old, new and "on the fence." Not our satisfaction—not merely your satisfaction—but the satisfaction of customers like the lady in the illustration. And that's the sort of satisfaction that means fried eggs every morning, at 40c. a dozen (if you want them).

Special Fur Section

Now, give the other fellows a chance!

J. Arthur Paquet

Quebec

Winnipeg Montreal

Toronto Ottawa

St. John, N.B.

TRADE MARK

SEAL BRAND

IT'S A SEAL BRAND

That's All You Need to Know About a FUR.

OUR MR. B. SILVER anticipating the rise in prices of raw furs, has been able through his expert judgment to purchase his stock before this sharp advance.

This will secure to our customers a very material advantage. Our styles will be select. Our travellers early.

B. SILVER & Co.

420 St. Paul Street MONTREAL

MY GUARANTEE

The skins in this article have been selected and manufactured by us with the greatest possible care, and knowing this, we therefore GUARANTEE this article against any fault arising from same. We will willingly repair this article free of charge, should it with ordinary usage, and allowing for the nature of fur, prove unsatisfactory.

The Fur Proposition

If you want to do a more profitable Fur business I will tell you how.

Sell my furs. They possess Quality, Style, Fit, Workmanship.

The store that has back of it my guarantee has an asset to be reckoned with.

Full lines for 1907-1908 ready for your inspection.

Alexandor Furs will help. Write to-day.

A.J. Alexandor

504-508 St. Paul Street

MONTREAL

SATISFACTORY OPENING OF SEASON.

With the coming of March there has begun a new fur season. For the past few months the fur manufacturers have been briskly preparing their samples for the season 1907-1908. A very optimistic feeling prevails in all branches of the trade, based upon the brilliant close of last season and also on the continued call for good furs. The severity of the weather during the past few months gave a stimulus to the retail trade and stocks have appreciably diminished. This makes them ready for fresh stock, and, encouraged as they are by the ready sales of good furs, manufacturers feel safe in turning out better lines than ever before. Another good sign of the continued prosperity of the country, and particularly of the flourishing condition of the fur trade, is that comparatively few failures have been recorded. Payments were never more satisfactory than at present. Even the merchants of the province of Quebec, who were behind with many jobbers last year, have throughout this season paid their accounts before maturity. It may be mentioned, however, that this province still clings to its proverbial dread of drafts, and, this, perhaps, had something to do with the improved payments. Furs have brought retailers good returns, and they are now prepared to give better placing orders.

Large manufacturers of furs are at present working at high pressure in order to place before the retail merchants their productions for the season's trade. As the travelers are expected to be on the road early in March, it is no easy matter to assemble the really excellent range of goods, shown by the average house, in the short time since the closing of the past season. It must be considered that raw material has to be purchased, graded, dressed, and, for certain productions, dyed and blended. It, of course, naturally follows that the first samples shown are somewhat incomplete. It must occur to any one that it would be an utter impossibility to manufacture the many lines and styles now required in the space of two months. The lines, however, are nearing completion, and even excel those of last year.

Fur Lined Garments Strong Feature.

Last season there was a decidedly improved demand for ladies' fur-lined coats. In different parts of the country these are designated as wraps or mantles, and even many of the manufacturers catalogue them and refer to them in the various names. It is quite true that, on acount of the ruling high price of mink and Persian lamb jackets last year, the conditions were favorable to the popularizing of fur-lined garments. As the same conditions rule this year as to firm prices, it is conceded that these articles will more than hold their place in the trade. Being light in weight, comfortable, and durable, they have taken a strong hold with the ladies. The sale prospects in these articles are of the brightest, and merchants who study their customers' and their own interests will give this line prominence in their buying for the ensuing season's trade. The colors of the shells, linings and trimmings are so varied as to suit all classes of trade. The staple blue and black shells will, of course, hold the foremost place, but manufacturers are prepared to supply other colors should there prove to be an unexpected demand. Last year a few browns, greys and greens were sold during the latter part of the season, but it is not probable that these colors will be favored by the trade to any material extent. The styles remain about the same as last year, the loose coat being thought a staple article and safe property at any time. The sleeves are only slightly changed and fur cuffs are spoken of as a possible feature. Of the linings it is difficult to name a leader. Opposum, which was a favorite a few seasons ago, is not aceptable now, as other furs are more popular as linings, both for appearance and durability. Hamster, squirrel, muskrat and mink will in all probability hold their places as linings in order named. The trimmings will again be varied, but as the demand for mink at the close of last season could not be met, it is thought that there will be a continuance of the run on this popular fur as trimming for fur-lined coats. Otter, sable, Persian lamb and seal will undoubtedly be used extensively as trimmings but not to the same extent as mink.

The prices will again range from $25 to over $100, but for good work and right material it must be expected that the prices will rule firm. Mink, as one of the moderate priced popular furs, looks like a sure leader in trimmings.

THE BROADWAY
Muff and Stole, Natural Mink, showing
Natty Whole-Skin Effect

Small Fur Neckwear Again Popular.

Last Fall there was so great a demand for small neckwear that manufacturers were kept busy turning it out throughout the entire Winter months. Not even did the cold weather, which stimulated the demand for heavy furs, spoil the trade in small lines of furs. For this season, manufcturers have given greater attention to these lines and will introduce a more varied range than ever. There will be no appreciable changes made in the various styles which gave such entire satisfaction to the trade last year. Stoles and collarettes in sable, mink and fox will in all probability be the leading furs. Some firms are again specializing mink, while others are bringing out a new style in Russian sable and squirrel. The same lengths will be again fashionable, and trimmings of heads, tails and claws will be the leaders. A few larger heads will be noticed during the season, especially in the fox collarettes, and only one will be used instead of two in many of the designs for the season. Mink will retain its leading position in the larger centres, but for country trade caperines, with long fronts of Isabella fox, and Australian opposum for ruffs, will continue to do good business.

Electric seal, marmot and sable caperines are again to be used for country trade also, as merchants regard them as safe stock. The prices are not changed from last year, the range running from $4.50 to $25.

Improved Demand for Ties.

Few changes are noticed in the ties or throw-overs which sold so remarkably well last season. The line which winds around the neck and throws over the shoulder is a serviceable article, and is made in various prices so that it is within the reach of all. There are but few additional furs used in this line; the short-haired furs are apparently the only acceptable ones. Ties are now recognized as very useful articles for both street wear and outing purposes. Persian lamb and electric seal are the most popular lines, but there has been a growing feeling in favor of grey squirrel. This may have been due to the fact that they matched the grey winter coats worn last season, but with an apparent change in colors of coats they are not likely to improve in demand over the more prominent lines of furs. Ties have gained a firm place in the trade and there is no apparent sign of their popularity waning. Some lines are exceedingly cheap, retailing as low as $2.

Mink Four-Tab Stole, New Model 1907

Some New Ideas in Muffs.

Following the tendency to match neckwear with muffs, manufacturers have again brought out some really elegant novelties. Fancy muffs in mink, fox, lynx and sable with suitable designs in stoles will be interesting articles for the high class trade. Manufacturers, who, catering to the tendency for higher priced goods, so evident in the increasing demand each year, have made special efforts to display effective creations combining style and utility. What is called the book muff will be the real novelty of the season. This muff is long and flat, it opens up and folds over a small satin-covered muff inside. The lining is of satin and is both warm and attractive. A design of particular beauty is of striped mink with trimmings of heads and tails alternating at the ends. Considering the great amount of labor involved in the making of these articles and the well selected skins, trimmings and linings, it is surprising that it can be made to retail at $100.

Muffs of black lynx will, undoubtedly, be much inquired for during the season. With shoulder stoles, large muffs will be largely worn by fashionable ladies next Winter. Again the flat, or Empire, muff will be actively demanded by merchants in the larger centres and mink will be the principal fur used. Natural trimmings will again prove to be as popular as they were last year.

Pillow muffs and coronation muffs, showing both the flat and square ends, will again prove to be good property to the country merchant. On account of the prevailing high prices of Persian lamb skins, muffs of this skin will only be available at higher figures. It is generally admitted among the manufacturers that this will centre the damand more upon the lines made of Australian opposum and Isabella fox to match neckwear. Marmot is considered the staple line for the country trade, and this year manufacturers have given special attention to more varied designs than usual.

Big Season for Fur Jackets.

As before stated in these columns, the Russian blouse front Persian lamb jackets are now regarded as a staple line. This year they will even hold a stronger position than ever before, and while there may be a few exceptions to this belief, the great majority of manufacturers are preparing to bank heavily on them. "The blouse front jacket still holds first place in popularity, and will, with very slight sleeve changes, be the biggest seller of the season," is the declaration of an undisputed authority in furs. Retailers are prepared to give large placing orders on these jackets and ridicule the opinion of the few who believe that loose or Empire style jackets will supplant them. The military style is spoken of, but not to any great extent. Deep revers of mink or otter will again lead as popular trimmings.

Prices will be firm owing to the high prices of skins and the uncertainty of the sources of supply. It is quite likely that before the season is far advanced there will be increases in the prices. A Persian lamb jacket from any reputable house will this season cost from $125 to $200. It is advisable to order early as the best furs will be snatched up during the early part of the season, and under the present conditions of the market there will be still higher prices for even the lower grades of skins.

Near seal will remain firm, and should the demand prove to exceed the present expectations there will be increased prices before the season is far advanced. Again the seal jackets will be largely of the same designs as last season, self trimmings retaining the leading place. Mink is at present considered too expensive to be very popular for jackets, although the high class furriers show a tendency to carry them. As the demand for mink exceeds the present visible supply, the prudent retailer should cover his requirements at an early date.

Auto coats in muskrat will be very much in evidence during the season. Other creations in this fur will again be specialized for country trade. It is growing more in favor each year and makes a very warm and durable garment. In the hands of capable furriers it can be made into an attractive jacket with blended effects, to which it peculiarly lends itself.

Popular and High Class Furs.

Mink is the most popular fu rof the season, and even the extreme styles in it will be safe ventures. The trade has heretofore very reluctantly handled the ultra fashionable styles, but everything in mink will be good property this season. Style of garment is only a secondary consideration to the all-absorbing wish of ladies to secure the fur they desire.

Black lynx, so much worn by fashionable American ladies, is gradually coming into favor in Canada. It makes a beautiful and rich addition to a lady's apparel, and, while somewhat high in price, yet, for real good quality it will, no doubt, be much inquired for during the season.

Isabella fox for stoles, ruffs and muffs is considered a good popular line for the season, but the supply at present is inadequate to the demand, and prices are slightly increased over last year. Dyed coon to imitate Alaska sable will not be much in evidence this year, as it is too high Skunk, which is much cheaper, will be used instead.

Coon Coats Sell Well.

When a traveler fails to interest a customer in his leading lines he can safely turn to the old reliable coon coats and be sure of an attentive hearing. They form the old unchangeable body of the retailer's stock of furs upon which he depends so much. Within the past few years prices have steadily increased and are now more than double what they were fifteen years ago, but still the demand is unflagging. Despite the prices coon seems to be a necessity in this rigorous climate. Last season the Maritime Provinces consumed a greater number than ever before and the expanding West demanded more than could be supplied. Manufacturers are of the opinion that the present cold winter will still further increase the demand, and have prepared themselves accordingly. They have bought as many skins as possible, although 10 per cent. higher than last year and much scarcer. A coon coat at $75 this season will not be so good in quality as that of last year, but it has been noticed that the best is sought and price is not considered before quality. No doubt the retailers will govern their buying acording to the anticipated shortage if they purpose securing the articles upon which so much depends.

RECENT LONDON SALE OF FURS.

The sale of skins held on January 21 to 25 in London by C. M. Lampson & Co., were considered important as an indication as to the tendency of price for future sales. The collection was well up to the standard of January sales and prices, with but very few exceptions, were well sustained. As was expected, the bidding on mink was lively and the large collection cleared out. During the present month there will be a very important sale, and it is being looked forward to with great interest. Below will be found a list of the furs in which Canada is most interested :

Raccoon—10 per cent. higher than last March.

Muskrat—All grades averaged about 20 per cent. higher than last January.

Skunk—20 per cent. lower than last March.

Opposum—30 per cent. lower than last March.

Mink—15 per cent. higher than last March.

Marten—15 per cent. higher than last March.

Russian Sable—20 per cent. lower than last March.

Silver, blue, grey cross fox remained the same as last March.

White Fox—20 per cent. lower than last March.

Red Fox—10 per cent. higher than last March.

Kitt Fox—50 per cent. higher than last March.

Otter and lynx remained the same as last March.

Beaver—5 per cent. lower than last January.

Squirrel—20 per cent. lower than last March.

Ermine—Same as last March.

Chinchilla remained the same as last October.

Australian Opposum—10 per cent. higher than last October.

Wombat—15 per cent. higher than last October.

Wallaby—Same as last October.

Attractive Fur Department of L. A. Coderre, Sherbrooke, Que.

CARE FOR FURS IN SUMMER.

Caring for fur stock in summer is one of the retail merchant's unprofitable jobs, but the time expended should not be considered lost as it prevents untold damage being done by moths. To systematize the precautionary methods should be the aim of the retailers if they mean to make the burden less arduous.

Stock, in many parts has, fortunately, been exhausted during the past few months and retailers have but little to store away during the hot months. Of course, the larger centres will have attractive displays of furs during the tourist season and with the goods constantly exposed to light and watchfulness the care will not be so burdensome. But the merchant in the small place has not this opportunity and should periodically take his stock from the storing cases during the Summer months and shake and lightly beat the short haired furs. The long haired fur should be combed in its natural direction direction as this process prevents matting and sustains the fresh look of the goods. A cool, dry place is most desirable for storing and moist places or proximity to artificial heat should be avoided.

A. Mather ,of A. Mather & Co., lace merchants, Nottingham, was in Toronto recently on his annual trip.

ROBES AND RUGS.

The tendency at present is towards robes of a curly nature which will be carried this season chiefly in Moscow and Prussian lamb. Black is the favorite color in these robes, while brown stands a good second. The goat robes are much higher this year and it is thought that the lamb furs will do the largest business of the season. They are warm and serviceable and the loose curls of these furs make up quite handsomely. The goat robes were cheap last year, but on account of the much higher prices their popularity is not expected to be as great this year. Angora rugs, for which there has been a growing demand in late years, will again hold a firm place in the trade. Musk Ox robes are getting to be very high and will soon be as scarce as Buffalo robes ; there are but few on the market, which are available at a very high price.

Among the Warehouses

The Leak Fur Manufacturing Co., of Canada.

For the season 1907-1908 this firm have made preparations to handle a large increase of business and the reputation they have already gained for selling reliable furs should aid them in attaining increased business. Their factory organization and buying facilities cannot be excelled and their representation to retailers is made by a splendid class of men.

S. Saxe will again cover the far western ground and an additional representative in the person of Wm. J. Power is in part of this territory. In Western Ontario Leaks furs will be shown by Rolland Bay, a fur traveler who has gained an enviable reputation with such houses as J. Arthur Paquet and Brereton & Manning. D. J. Hunter, formerly with Kyle, Cheesbrough for many years, is their new representative in Northern Ontario and Ottawa Valley. Central Ontario will again be covred by Charles Carter, the manager of the fur department, and H. S. Stern, of the firm, will make occasional trips in this ground. Frederick Beaugrand will cover the Province of Quebec, including the city of Montreal. H. Langelier will be in the Maritime Provinces. These men have left enthusiastic over the new lines and the many novelties in ladies' fine furs and the specialty Leak coats.

* * *

A. Kirschberg & Co.

A fur house of twenty years' standing, and each year showing a safe, steady growth, is the record of A. Kirschberg & Co., St. Paul St., Montreal. For the ensuing season they are making a still greater bid for business and their values and "rightness" of the line throughout gives every evidence of their attaining success.

With ample capital and unexcelled buying facilities, they are in an enviable position. Their customers are on the ground floor. The annual trip of Mr. Rose to the Russian fur markets is productive of large saving in many lines of goods. Their 1907-1908 line covers a general line of men's and ladies' furs and is well worth inspection. If you are not on their visiting list, mail business is solcited.

* * *

The Albert Vineberg Fur Comany.

This new fur house is starting out the season with a full line of samples which should win for them an attentive examination wherever shown. The experienced head of the firm, Albert Vineberg, will call on the trade in Western Ontario where has has a splendid connection gained while with M. Vineberg & Co. W. C. Willis will represent the firm in Northern Ontario.

The firm will make a specialty of fur-lined and astrachan jackets, which will be manufactured under the skilful direction of Mr. Barthos, who has full charge of the factory. Mr. Barthos gained much of his experience with Revillon Bros., Paris.

* * *

The Northwestern Fur Manufacturing Co., manufacturing furs and selling to the retail trade, with J. Franklin, as proprietor, has been changed by him into a limited company under the style of the Northwestern Fur Company and the firm will deal in raw and dress furs. The incorporators are: J. Franklin, L. Friseckling, N. Fyolski, J. Bois and I. Vogel.

* * *

J. E. McComber, of the growing fur house of McComber & Cummings, St. Paul St., Montreal, sailed from New York on the 22nd of February to attend the London fur sales. Before he returns he will visit Leipzig and Paris markets.

* * *

Swift, Copland & Co. Burnt Out.

On Tusday, Feb. 12, fire destroyed the premises of Swift, Copland & Co., Limited, wholesale fur and hat house, 517 St. Paul St., Montreal, doing damage to stock and building amounting to about $160,000. The building was an old one, and was once the warehouse of Greene & Sons, Company, one of the pioneer fur firms of the Dominion. The presen proprietors of the old stand had recently formed a limited company and had prepared more samples than ever before and were looking forward to a successful season. The fire coming at the time it did, destroyed a good portion of the samples which had involved so much expense and labor. Part of the Spring and Fall Stock was in the building at the time of the fire and was destroyed. With commendable enterprise the firm, within a few days, secured premises on Notre Dame St., and new machinery was intsalled and work started on the samples for the Fall. Offices and warerooms were secured at the old McKenzie buildings, 381-383 St. Paul St., and the utmost efforts are being made to fill customers' Spring orders.

Fortunately, there were, at the time of the fire, a large number of cases of goods waiting to be delivered in the railway sheds, and with this and other goods on the way the firm hope to supply the large majority of their customers' orders for Spring. The firm are fighting against time and are striving with every possible endeavor to have their fur samples ready during the month of March, and their travelers on the road. On the first of May the firm will occupy 318 St. James St., for one year, and at the expiration of that period they hope to again occupy their old premises after they have been thoroughly renovated.

A. K. JEFFERIES FUR COMPANY.

An Ontario charter has been granted The A. K. Jefferies Fur Company, Limited, Toronto, with a capital of $40,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators are: Reginald W. Eyre and Elmer Eugene Wallace, barristers-at-law; Olive B. Clarke, book-keeper; Anna Ezard, strenographer, and Arthur K. Jefferies, furrier, all of Toronto. The objects of the company are "to carry on the business of wholesale and retail manufacturing furriers; to buy, sell and deal in furs; to cure, dye, tan and preserve fur skins, hides and pelts; to establish stores, factories and warehouses; and to purchase the business now carried on by A. K. Jefferies & Co."

Announcement Fall 1907

'Tis our pleasure to state that our Fur productions for coming Season will include a magnificent collection of Natural Mink Stoles and Muffs,

Black Lynx Setts,

Blended Fox Setts, Sables, Etc.

typifying the highest skill of the Furrier's Art.

Ladies' and Gentlemen's Fur-lined Garments,

Ladies' and Misses' Fur Jackets and Auto Coats, all produced in our own workrooms by highest class skilled furriers.

Fox Sett Showing Latest Model Book Muff.

(We Manufacture everything required for the Fur Department.)

We invite your criticism of our samples.

The Waldron, Drouin Company, Limited

Makers of Good Furs

MONTREAL

The Growing Fur House

Our continued growth implies the prosperity of our customers, for without merit permanence in success is impossible.

The Promise :

You are interested in our growth we admit, only as a proof of the merit of our goods. Starting 8 years ago in a modest wholesale way, we agreed to make furs right, price them right, and treat our customers right. Moving along quietly, we gave satisfaction to a growing few customers, and—they called again. We aimed to have our goods right, and the proof is the liberal orders from old accounts. To do entire justice to this increase, Mr. J. E. McComber, the founder of the business, associated with himself two years ago with Mr. E. E. Cummings, Jr., and since that time we have enlarged twice. We appreciate the confidence bestowed upon us. We intend to hold it. We promise you furs that will add to your reputation for selling reliable goods, and give you splendid profits.

The Fulfilment :

For the season 1907-1908 we trust to fulfil many of our early desires, and maintain old promised standards of quality. To provide for many new accounts, we will on May 1st take possession of a larger and more modern factory, 5 stories and basement, at the corner of St. Sulpice and St. Paul Streets. With these increased facilities, every order will receive individual care in its execution and go forward promptly. Mr. J. E. Hand, of enviable reputation, is now associated with the firm, and his skill as a fur designer will be used in our work-rooms. Our sales department has also been increased by the addition of Mr. P. Jobin, who will represent the firm in the Province of Quebec, and Mr. Frank Craig, who will call upon the trade in Ontario. Mr. Geo. H. Buckham is again in the West.

The new line is particularly strong in Persian Lamb Jackets and Raccoon Coats, and all Ladies' Staple and Fancy Fine Furs.

Where Do You Buy Your Furs ?

If you'll arrange to look at our line, we know you'll agree with us, that it presents opportunities for profitable buying unequalled on the market to-day. Choose wisely, and break away from prejudice.

McComber & Cummings

516 St. Paul Street, Montreal

The

Bishop Label

IS THE PROTECTION OF EVERY DEALER AND EVERY BUYER OF FUR ROBES AND FUR COATS AND FUR LINED COATS

The Bishop

Fur Robes and Coats and Fur Lined Coats

ARE TRIED AND TRUE. SELL BRANDED GOODS—GOODS OF KNOWN QUALITY. LOOK FOR THE BISHOP LABEL. IF YOU DON'T FIND IT DON'T TAKE THE GOODS. : : : : : : : :

THE J. H. BISHOP COMPANY

SANDWICH, ONT.

Wyandotte, Mich.; Tientsin, China; New York and Chicago

Fire Notice

As our customers are no doubt aware our premises were almost entirely destroyed by fire on the 12th instant.

We are glad to announce however, that only a portion of our spring goods had come in and the balance are arriving daily at our

Temporary Quarters

383-385 St. Paul Street

(Old J. G. McKenzie Building)

Where we have secured a Commodious Warehouse

We cabled the day after the fire for what goods we were short of and expect to

FILL ALL ORDERS

with little or no delay

We would be pleased to have you call and inspect our stock which will soon be

QUITE COMPLETE AGAIN

We move to

318 St. James Street

on or about

MAY, 1st.

Wholesale Furs, Hats and Caps

Swift, Copland & Co.

Limited

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

FURS

1907

FURS

A

Big Growing

Business

SOMETHING NEW IN FURS

1907

FURS

A

Most Profitable

Business

We have made great preparations for 1907 and promise you a bigger assortment to select from, and better values than ever.

Samples now Being Shown

DO NOT MISS SEEING THEM

BEAR SKIN COATS

CONTROLLED LINES

Every mail brought us repeats for these popular Bear Skin Coats. The best values hown—and we control them for Canada We regret not being able to fill all orders last season, but you can help us by placing your orders now.

"SHIELD BRAND" ready to wear garments mean success—we prove it

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

BRIGHT FUR PROSPECTS

Fur Buyers will readily recognize strong points in the line we are now showing.

"LEAK" BRAND Reg. FURS

Represent the best in the making. If you consider style workmanship and material you should consider our line.
If not on our visiting list, a postal will bring one of our 8 Salesmen.

We have something new to show in Men's Coats which will be readily recognized as a coat which has been wanted for many years.

THE LEAK FUR MFG. CO., of Canada, Ltd.

5 Recollet Street, - Montreal

Catalogue Houses vs. Retailers

Court Refused Temporary Injunction Restraining Retailers from Boycotting Jobbers Who Sell Mail Order Concerns.

A decision important to the retailers of the United States was handed down recently by Judge Garland, of the Supreme Court of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, in refusing to grant to Montgomery, Ward & Co., of Chicago, a temporary injuction against the South Dakota Retail Merchants' and Hardware Dealers' Association. The decision is especially important in view of the fact that it is generally believed that the intentions of the mail order concern were to institute proceedings against the merchants' associations in other states, where a vigorous warfare is being waged against the retail catalogue houses. The case has not been altogether disposed of, for it is to come up again for regular trial in the April term of the United States Court at Sioux Falls, but this refusal to grant a temporary injuction is looked upon as a distinct victory for the merchants' association, and the general belief is that it indicates how the case will be disposed of in the regular term of court.

Briefly summarized, the points in the case are these : Some time ago members of the South Dakota Merchants' Association decided as one method of combating the retail mail order house competition to withdraw their patronage from all jobbers and wholesalers who sold to the retail catalogue houses. Letters were sent out to jobbers and wholesalers asking if they sold goods to the catalogue houses. The names of all those houses who refused to answer this letter were compiled and the list circulated among all the members of the association for their information. Montgomery, Ward & Co. claimed that the circulation of this list was in reality a boycott on their business, that some of the jobbers and wholesalers had refused to sell goods to them, and that they had been damaged through being unable to purchase the goods required to fill the orders of their customers.

The court decided "that retailers have a lawful right to agree among themselves that they will not purchase goods from wholesalers who sell to catalogue or mail order houses, and it necessarily follows that they have the right to inform each other as to what wholesalers and jobbers do sell to catalogue or mail order houses." According to the opinion of the court the only question in the case is what the merchants might do further than this to influence wholesalers and jobbers not to sell to catalogue houses. The court then went on to say that so long as forcible or violent means were not employed to prevent wholesalers and jobbers from selling to the catalogue houses, and that if the influences they might bring to bear could be defined as persuasion then there was no infraction of the law. The court held that the retailers and the catalogue houses are competitors in business, and that in the protection of their own interests the retailers had a full and legal right to agree among themselves not to purchase goods from those wholesalers who supply their competitors with merchandise, have the right to inform each other of those houses who do sell them, and also have the right to use persuasion to induce jobbers and wholesalers not to sell them.

The retailers of the United States will make a grevous mistake if they rely entirely on a boycott of jobbers selling mail order houses as a means of solving the mail order problem. A few small concerns, who use jobbers' stocks almost exclusively, would be put out of business, but the big ones would be little affected. If the jobbers do not care to sell them goods they will buy from the manufacturers ; if the manufacturer withdraws his lines they will start a factory of their own. As we have stated before, the competition of catalogue houses is legitimate competition that must be squarely met, and the retailer can best equip himself by studying his natural advantages and improving his facilities. He can, by adopting the proper methods, keep his fair share of trade at home and prevent the abnormal expansion of the mail otder business.

A NEW FUR HOUSE
(NEW IN NAME ONLY)

Samples 1907-8 now ready. Strong range of Astrachan Jackets, Fur-Lined Garments, Novelties in Small Furs.
Our representatives will call upon you shortly.

The Albert Vineberg Fur Co.
622 St. Paul Street, MONTREAL
All Our Garments Bear A Guarantee Label.

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

C. Rich, a dry goods merchant of Chatham, N.B., was arested at Montreal on a capias issued at the request of the Montreal Waterproof Clothing Co. The charge is that of secreting property with the intention of defrauding his creditors. He was incarcerated after an unsuccessful atempt was made to secure bondsmen. About three weeks ago he asigned with liabilities amounting to $10,000. It is said that his assets barely exceed $600. He went to Montreal and endeavored to effect a compromise with his creditors, but he could not satisfy them, and he found himself in the clutch of the Quebec capias law. At a meeting of his creditors he admitted having sold several thousand dollars worth of goods, but he could not satisfactorily account for more than $1,000.

DEFIANCE MANUFACTURING CO.

An Ontario charter has been granted to The Defiance Manufacturing Company, Limited, with a capital of $40,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were Jason Haugh, manufacturer; Edgar P. Howe, merchant, and John C. Douglas, Wm. McTaggert and A. G. Malcolm, esquires, all of the city of Toronto. The object of the company is "to manufacture, buy, sell and deal in all kinds of men's, women's and children's garments, headwear and furnishings, and all articles entering into the manufacture thereof. The head office of the company is at Toronto.

BERLIN COMB AND NOVELTY CO.

An Ontario charter has been granted the Berlin Comb and Novelty Co., Limited, Toronto, with a capital of $40,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were, John B. Gateman, Berlin, manufacturer; Charles H. Westwood, manufacturer; Anthony L. Malone, and Albert Mearns, solicitors, and Frederick L. Whatley, bookkeeper, all of Toronto. The object of the company is "to carry on the business of manufacturing combs, smallwares and novelties, and to sell such manufactured novelties either by wholesale or retail, and generally to buy, sell and deal in such articles as combs, smallwares and novelties."

Established 1832

Cable Address:
"LAW," Bradford

SPRING 1907

"Lawrus" Fabrics.

(Registered)

MOHAIRS

Unique Specialite
Mohair De Soie

Of Wonderful Texture and Exceptional Brilliancy

Rainproof Goods
Latest Productions

Brilliantine Suitings
At Popular Prices

Law, Russell & Co.

Converters of Bradford Goods LIMITED

BRADFORD AND LONDON

Another White Goods Season in Sight!

Part of our showing in Dress Materials

French Lawns
Victoria Lawns
Persian Lawns
India Linens
Piques, Reps
Fancy Poplins
Swiss Muslins
Organdy Muslins
Emb'd Muslins
White Ducks
White Drills
Dress Linens
Dimity Muslins
Tarleton " Fancy "

Send a list of your wants to our Letter Order Dept. Goods shipped the day order is received.

The W. R. Brock Company (Limited)

MONTREAL

THE REVIEW FORECAST FOR THE FALL AND WINTER OF 1907-1908

The approach of the period when the merchant must consider the question of supplying his wants for the Fall brings with it a situation that is full of perplexity. The conditions of the market are abnormal and prices have reached a very high figure, so high in fact, that it gives food for serious thought as to the wisdom of contracting so far ahead for the needed stock. Will present prices continue? Is there anything in the situation that denotes a break in the market before the end of the present year?

The difficulty of forecasting prices so far ahead is an immense one for there are so many factors in the situation that may serve to bring about a change. The present condition, as merchants are well aware, is one of acute shortage. Deliveries are daily growing worse, and the spinner and manufacturer have decidedly the control of the situation. They are in a position to make their own terms, and to demand their own prices. The full realization of this fact, and the knowledge that mills are in many cases sold up very far ahead—right into 1908 in some instances, it is said—points to the necessity of the retailer placing large and early orders if he would be sure of his assortments when the selling season opens up.

But it is the price situation that makes him pause. Can the present high prices continue, or is there any factor in the situation that seems to warrant the entertaining of the expectation of a change before the Fall season of 1907 opens. The bare possibility of such a change must make buyers cautious.

The present scarcity is most undoubtedly a genuine one, born of the big demand on one hand, and a shortage of productive power on the other. A scarcity of wool and other raw materials has had much to do with creating the situation. It is, however, the inability to produce, that is becoming the main factor now. This being the case, the world's industrial prospects seem to be the pivot on which the situation turns.

It is true that the wool market shows no improvement, and that so strong a tone was maintained at the last London sale as to impart to it an added firmness, and the Bradford holders of wool, who practically rule the world's prices for raw wool, are rigidly adhering to their very highest quotations and have, in addition, advanced prices upon some especially short lines.

Still, as we said before, it is the size of the demand that rules the situation, and the question is as to whether the present prosperity is to continue, not just in Canada alone, for Canada's demand is but a small factor as yet in the world's markets, but in the greater nations generally. In other words, is their buying and consuming power to continue unchecked?

Everything in Canada points not only to a continuance, but to a greater expansion. Immigrants continue to flock to our shores in increasing numbers, and as they arrive are quickly absorbed. Though it will be many a long day before our wheat lands are filled, each season sees an increase in our grain exports. In industrial circles the cry of our manufacturers is for more help, so that our industrial population is fully and profitably employed. The present is an era of railway building and there is an increasing development of many other sources of natural wealth.

So far as Canada is concerned everything points to a continuance of the present prosperity. The big country to the south presents also a future of unchecked prosperity. Europe, with its many millions, is, with the exception of Russia, peaceful and prosperous, and the mother country's big population is better employed than for many a decade.

It is just possible that conditions may arise between now and next September that will bring about a change, but no such thing seems possible at present. So far as can be seen there is nothing that can restrict business, and cause a drop in values before the opening of trade the coming Fall.

There seems to be every reason to put face cloths, with broadcloth, first on the list of Fall materials. Broadcloth is one of the most beautiful of fabrics, and has been growing in favor for some seasons past. One reason for this is that the serious faults which told against it have been eliminated in the past few years. It used to be that the soft glossy finish did not last, and that the first shower it was subjected to, or the least drop of water, spotted it beyond repair. It also used to shrink very materially when subjected to dampness. The process of sponging has mended this last fau,t, and improved methods have made the lovely finish permanent. The removal of these defects has paved the way to a wide popularity, and broadcloths promise to be the leading fabric for the Fall and Winter of 1907-1908.

There is to be no change in weights and the softly draping chiffon varieties will be the vogue, the darker shades for street wear, and the pastel shades and higher colorings for evening and afternoons. Handsome wraps will also be developed in broadcloth.

Broadcloths occupy so high a position at present in New York that they are carried in a spearate department, and not only this, but each color is carried in its own section and with its own special salesmen or men. Big orders have already been booked for next Fall and there is every confidence expressed in its selling strength for the coming Winter. Another factor that strengthens the position of broadcloth is the fact that the Fall promises to be a strong color season, and there is no other fabric that shows up rich colors to such advantage as broadcloth.

There is a very decided development in favor of fancies and we have not yet seen the last plaids and checks. Plaid broadcloths in subdued color effects are to be decidedly good. These fabrics have already been tried with satisfactory results on the exclusive trade, and will now have their innings in the popular end. Plaid materials generally will make a strong running, but they will be in subdued checks and plaids. Tartans will be wanted, but only for misses' and children's wear.

Inasmuch as there are many occasion when broad cloths are hardly suitable, cheviots, both plain and fancy, and serges, are expected to gain recognition next Fall. Prices, however, may be a controlling factor here. For street wear worsted and wool suitings are again featured and checks, plaids and stripes will rule. The goods wanted are light weight and smooth finish. Plaids are in high favor now, and their vogue is increasing. The plaids indicated are very subdued though rich in coloring. Stripes, to some extent, may be taken up by the high class trade, but will have little following in the popular end. Voiles, both of silk and wool, and other light weight materials, will sell for evening wear.

There is one development that must be strongly noted and that is the strong tendency towards dark and subdued colors. This is a vogue that has been growing for the past two seasons and will be still more marked in the coming Fall and Winter. In the placing of colors brown certainly must stand high. Brown in many shades is undoubtedly the most worn color in New York to-day. All the tan shades, from champagne and biscuit up are excellent. Leather is a leader, and a quantity of the darker shades are also worn, brown being also a large feature in many of the new plaids. The shade worn is a little different from the golden so much in evidence a few seasons ago; it is the "bois" or wood brown having a hint of bronze or green in its make-up. Mahogany or copper brown is another well worn shade. Black is also extremely fashionable. Various shades of navy and delft blue are strong, and blues should develop well when the selling season opens. Green is a good color in the dark olive and myrtle shades, and bordeaux and garnet should be sellers. A grey, with a hint of brown is often seen in high class goods, but as it does not reproduce well in the cheaper cloths, it does not seem as though it would count in the popular trade. Amethyist is worn, but should only be used to give variety to the selection, as its vogue will be limited.

The United States exported $500,000,000 worth of cotton and cotton products last year. Of the $413,000,000 worth of raw cotton exported, $173,000,000 went to the United Kingdom, and $7,333,000 to Canada.

Silks

Reviving Interest in Silks — Foulards Selling Freely in New York.

The position of silks, both plain and fancy, is decidedly improving and the material is much more in evidence now than it was a few months ago. There is much talk of silk suits for the Spring trade, and jumper suits, shirt waist suits and little coat suits of silk are confidently recommended notwithstanding the fact that prices are higher. The silks selling for this purpose are those with a bright soft satin finish, and satin duchesse is said to be in high favor in Paris. Stripes, checks, particularly black and white effects, are very popular.

The most remarkable development, however, is in the case of foulards. Foulards have been out of it long enough to be held now as a novelty, and there is a strong tendency existing in their favor at the present time. In the New York stores they certainly are proving at the present time big sellers, particularly in brown and tan shades. The coin spot is the wanted pattern, and other spot and ring patterns are much favored. Indeed, spots seem to be coming into vogue in silks and in wash materials.

Wash Dress Goods

Demand Continues Strong — Deliveries Improving — Spring 1908 Forecast.

During the month of February deliveries have improved and jobbers have been busy making heavy shipments to the retail trade. The interest of the wash goods department is at present centred upon the opening of the season in the retail stores. Large stocks have been laid in and the indications point to a tremendous season's business. Extensive preparations are being made for effective display, and for the facilitating of selling methods. Now is the time, preparatory to the opening, to see that the shelves are well proportioned and adequate to the holding of the stock in various sections so that confusion in replacing it will be avoided. The well equipped dress goods department last year found that dressed forms and models were attractive and conducive to profitable sales. It should be the aim of the retailer to add up-to-date forms to his store and to dress them as regularly as he opens his store in the morning. It takes but little time to do this, and constant changing appeals to many customers daily.

Deliveries on sheer white goods have improved, still there is a shortage for these much needed goods and the buying has been forced lately on to the colored lines. Persian lawns are upholding the wash dress goods business at present and now that a shortage is felt the colors which were comparatively neglected are eagerly sought as the easiest way out of the situation. The call for all lawns is exceedingly strong, and although manufacturers have posted several advances lately, jobbers' prices will not be affected as they have well covered their requirmnts.

Sheer whites, white fancies and neat floral effects are still holding the predominating place in the ordering. A large variety of stripes have been moving better than in the earlier part of the season, and are being taken, even by those who had considered their stocks complete. The demand throughout the month has been shifting around to larger checks than were taken at an earlier date, and repeats have already been placed on lines which were thought some time ago to be inactive. Linen pongees are being shown in a larger variety than ever, and are bound to prove leaders for Summer dress goods. In the United States last year these lines were used extensively for men's shirts, and are thought to be the future cloth for this purpose. They have excellent and durable dyes, and the strength of the texture makes them well suited to these purposes.

Muslins are as active as ever, and during the present month there is expected to be some sharp ordering to wind up the season's requirements. The recent demand has been for the better qualities, in the shades of pink, sky blue and mauve. Light green and champagne have bene steadily improving, but the best lines undoubtedly are the light dots and spots on light grounds. The novelty in muslins is, of course, considered to be the check effect, shown in sizes from the pin check to squares of two inches. The tendency is at present towards the large fancy checks, which, at the beginning of the season, were slow compared with the smaller shepherd checks. The fancy colored organdie muslins still continue to do good business, but stocks are being reduced rapidly and there is little left to choose from in many warehouses.

1908 Spring Forecast.

Buyers abroad are reported to be much interested in their lines for the Spring of 1908. They report the mills are too busy on the present season orders to allow of much attention to new creations, although a few designs have been shown. The indications point to a return to stripes in greater variety than ever. White fancies and floral effects are promised to excel the productions of this year, and more active buying is expected to result from more ambitious efforts. Buyers send in glowing accounts of the prospects for the coming year, and, with better machinery, better deliveries are expected from abroad.

ARTIFICIAL SILK.

According to U. S. consul J. C. Covert, of Lyon, the uses to which soie de chardonnet, or artificial silk, are increasing. He writes: "Several manufacturers in and around Lyon are employing it in the manufacture of light goods for summer wear, and one company informs me that the exports to England, Belgium, and the United States, are holding their own, and in some countries are marked by an important augmentation. It is being used in some factories in combination with the natural silk. In mousseline de soie the wark is made of natural silk and the woof of charbonnet. In some houses a thread of charbonnet and a thread of natural silk are passed alternately on two different shuttles.

"A great difficulty that the manufacturers of goods from artificial silk have had to contend with is that the stuff could not stand exposure to dampness or the least rain. I am told that in blending the artificial with the natural article this difficulty is very largely overcome. It is also said that by combining a thread of charbonnet with a thread of natural silk the former adds a very desirable briliancy to the finished material which adds to its value as used in laces, passementerie, mousselines, ribbons, gauzes, and anything used in trimmings.

"A new article called chifolineis, a species of goods manufactured from crin de charbonnet, is used very largely in the trimmings of ladies' hats. All the milliners in France use it, and one firm in Lyon has orders for it six months ahead."

After the Shutters are Up

"My boy, here's the place for you. Hours, from ten to two; Saturdays, ten to twelve; work genteel and light; experience unnecessary; salary, one hundred dollars per week. How does that suit you?"

"G'wan! I ain't got no fifty thousand dollars to invest in the business."

* * *

An elderly lady went into a chemist's shop, and looked in surprise at the youth who came forward to serve her.

"Aren't you rather young to be left in charge of a chemist's shop?" she asked.

"Perhaps so, madam," was the reply. "What can I do for you?"

"Do your employers know it's dangerous to leave a boy like you in charge of such a place?"

"I am competent to serve you, madam."

"Don't they know you might poison someone?"

"There is no danger of that, madam; what is it you require?"

"I think I had better go to the shop down the road."

"I can serve you just as well as they can, and as cheaply."

"Well, you may give me a cake of soap, but it doesn't seem right."

* * *

"Your testimonials," said the business man to an applicant for a situation, "are very good, and you appear to be a very pushing traveler. By the way, I suppose you have never been in trouble of any kind?"

"Once in my life, sir," was the reply. "I was in prison for a month."

The business man started.

"Well—er," he began, "I'm afraid that puts rather a different complexion on the case. But tell me what you were sent to prison for?"

"For nearly killing a man who refused to give me an order," answered the applicant.

"Good!" answered the busines sman. "You're engaged!"

* * *

"When you come down from the 'look-out' you'll perhaps tell me what you require."

The bluejacket after entering had stood staring into space, asking himself if, after all, he really needed the thing which he had come to purchase. The assistant's saucy remark, however, quickly brought him to earth. Sizing up the youth with a look, he decided on his tactics.

Assuming a vacant stare he ejaculated "Eh?"

"What do you want?"

"Have you a pair of gloves, the left hand one having two short fingers?" holding up his hand and showing the stumps.

"No. This is a cutlery shop."

"About two shillings will suit."

"We do not sell gloves!"

"Blue by all means—'tis my favorite color."

"I tell you we do not sell gloves. Cutlery!"

"Patent fasteners? Yes, please."

"No gloves!" raved the other, "Cutlery!"

"Thanks. No hurry. Have you a chair about?"

At this stroke the assistant bolted in search of his master.

"What do you want?" asked that individual sternly.

"I want a penknife, if you please—price about a shilling."

"Certainly, sir."

The next day that assistant was looking for work.

THE WOMAN IN WHITE
SUIT OF MUNSTER CLOTH

¶ When a jobber's salesman comes your way with WHITE GOODS, ask him to show you these cloths:

MUNSTER 28 and 32 in.
(Linen Finish)

ULSTER 28 and 32 in.
Slightly heavier plain cloth.
(Linen Finish.)

LIMERICK 28 and 32 in.
(Soft Finish)

BELFAST
Slightly heavier. (Soft Finish)

You'll see something worth while and you'll get the goods. Write us for sample swatches and we'll tell you where to get the goods.

THE MONTREAL COTTON CO.
Address, Main Sales Office: MONTREAL

HARRIS
HOMESPUNS

NONE BETTER

HARRIS & COMPANY
LIMITED
ROCKWOOD, ONT.

Cable Address, "MACKER," Winnipeg. Office, 511 Ashdown Block

McRAE & WALKER
Manufacturers' Agents and Wholesale Jobbers
WINNIPEG

Correspondence solicited from manufacturers desiring live, up-to-date representation in the West.

MENTION
DRY GOODS REVIEW
IN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS

Some Observations by a Merchant

Examples of Both Stupid and Clever Salespeople —Treat Customers Honestly and Sell Good Goods.

The greatest trouble a retail merchant has in building a business is with his clerks. It is hard to get men to work for you who are bright and snappy and who, for so much per week, will take an interest in your business. So many of them, too, are downright stupid. Now, for example, I had a case like this only a few days ago. A woman came into my store to buy some matting. I was writing in my office and let one of my young women clerks wait upon her. Instead of spreading out two or three rolls on the floor of the carpet room, she let the customer herself finger around over the matting. The customer and my clerk were near where I could see them. The woman asked the clerk, "Has this piece a pattern?"

Stupid Clerk Causes Trouble.

"Yes, it has a pattern—40 cents a yard."

"Forty cents?" said the lady, as if she were a little surprised at the price. Then the clerk showed her another piece. This was 35 cents.

"Thirty-five? Has that a pattern?" Well it was clear to my mind that that woman was looking for two things—she wanted a piece of matting that had a pattern and that was cheap. "Won't you let me see this piece?" the customer asked. The clerk was too stupid or too lazy to display the rolls. She stood like a dummy and after a while the lady said: "I will have twelve yards of this 40-cent piece, please. You say 40 cents is the price of this? It seems to me I saw some such like this the other day for 30 cents a yard." That clerk made no answer whatever. She didn't say that perhaps the day the lady saw it the store was making a special sale, or that the price on matting like that on many other things was going up, or that the quality of that which she saw was not so good. She merely started to cut off the twelve yards and was going to let it go at that.

Danger of Losing Sale.

At this I left my office and explained how the price could be different or the quality they were selling in ——— not so good; and when I had made a reasonable explanation to her, she then said, "Perhaps-yes-all-right-um, um-12-no-24 yards. I wish enough for two rooms."

There I stood in danger not only of losing that sale, but of having that customer feel that I was high-priced. Of course she would have talked this around with her neighbors and this would have kept more customers from coming to my store.

Ah, a clever clerk helps a store a great deal. "Not a great while ago, when I went to shave one morning, I found I had no soap. As I passed by the drug store in the hotel, on the way to breakfast, I dropped in and asked the clerk for a stick of shaving soap. "Yes, sir," said he, politely, and he at once laid out three kinds before me. When I had picked up the piece I wished he said to me, "It is possible that I have something here that will just exactly strike you. You carry a shaving outfit, I am sure," and with this he showed me half a dozen rubber lined toilet cases. "O, I haven't time to fool with anything like that," I answered. "I throw my razor and brush and everything right in."

How Clever Clerk Succeeds.

"Well, you see this is rubber lined and it will keep your brush, if it is not quite dry when you put it away, from soiling your collars or anything in your grip. Then you see when you have to shave in the morning on a sleeper you don't have to lug your whole grip to the washroom, but merely stick this under your arm. Then you have all of the articles together. Nice place here, see, for your razor, soap, shaving soap, comb, brush—everything. This is a fresh lot we have just got in. We are selling them rapidly. Everybody is pleased with them—not expensive, either. This one far $1,50; the next for $2, and this elegant one for $2.50." This boy was just a young fellow, but he was so polite, bright, and to the point that he really convinced me that I should have one of those toilet cases and I bought it; and on top of that he sold me a new shaving brush, a comb, and a few other small articles. And he knew when to stop. A great many clerks, you know, try to rub it in and tire you out. Do you know I liked this young fellow to wait on me and instead of going to the cigar stand I would go in and patronize him when I wanted something to smoke.

Honesty and Good Goods.

You must treat your customers honestly, and back it up by giving them good merchandise. I instruct my clerks always to sell something good if they can, and always to show something good, even if the customer wants something cheap. The old saying that "the quality is remembered long after the price is forgotten" is a true one.

In the retail trade, you see, the one who sells the goods comes right up against the one who uses the goods. If what you sell proves O.K. then the customer is coming back to tell you about it; but if what you sell is poor you may never hear of it, because the customer does not wish to go back the second time to a place where he has once been bitten. This idea if a customer's coming back to a place where he has been swindled to get even—well, there's nothing in that. I instruct my clerks to always sell something good if they can, and if they sell a poor article to tell the customer so at the time, so that the disappointment may come before they get the article, rather than afterwards.

"TAKE CARE OF THE DIMES," ETC.

I saw the other day three $8 a week young fellows. I say $8 a week, for they looked it.

All three were smoking; all three were sitting in a "Dago's" shine chair getting a "shine." After the shine all three went to a barber shop for a "shave." Here were three wastings of cash by these $8 a week boys.

First, they need not smoke, or need not until they can better afford it. Next, they should both shave themselves and shine their own shoes. Done, as it doubtless is, twice a week, it costs them 50 cents a week; this is $26 per year, and is equal to the interest on $500 a year at 5 per cent.

I don't speak of undue saving; I rather bespeak liberal spending if one can afford it, but an $8 a week boy has no judgment when he throws away $500, for this is what he does when he wastes the interest on that much capital.

The saving system, until you can afford to spend, would put many a "young feller" beyond the caprices of fate.

SUCCESS COMES——————HOW?

By placing your orders with a house you can depend on for quality and promptness of delivery.

Isn't it reasonable to suppose that can be supplied quicker and better by a house which specializes exclusively on these lines?

Braids, Trimmings and Laces

There isn't the least doubt about it.

Our commercial existence depends on the quality of our goods and our prompt shipments.

Let us supply your Braids and Trimming wants and success will come easier—a good deal easier

WE WOULD LIKE TO TELL YOU HOW AND AT THE SAME TIME EXPLAIN OUR HELP - THE - DEALER SYSTEM OF DOING BUSINESS

THE LACES & BRAIDS MFG. COMPANY

TORONTO JUNCTION, ONT.

IT IS A

FOWNES

That is all you require to know about a glove.

FALL SAMPLES BEING SHOWN COMPLETE.

FOWNES BROS. & CO.

Rooms 1 to 4 Coristine Building

MONTREAL

WHB Walter H. Barry & Co WHB

THE RIBBON HOUSE OF CANADA

Ribbons—scarce

Ribbons—very dear

We bought at the right price and are open to protect our customers.

234 McGILL ST - MONTREAL

DRESS ACCESSORIES

Trimmings, Braids, Buttons

Situation Improving—Braids and Bands Still the Big Factor—Considerable Interest Taken in Buttons.

The trimming situation is being eagerly watched this Spring, for upon its strength depends, in a measure, the reception that will be accorded to the new lines for Fall.

The waist of the gown or dressy suit is still the chief trimming field, though there is a certain tendency towards a more elaborately trimmed skirt, braid being chiefly used for this purpose. Braids are still the chief item, and novelties in this line are constantly shown. Pulls are good and there is a fair demand for soutaches and other narrow kinds. Mohair braids are in moderate demand. Embroidered bands are decidedly and deservedly good, for the patterns and color effects are admirable. The chief use of these bands is to form the vest that is so prominent a feature of the majority of the suit coats now worn. They are wanted in bright, yet harmonious colorings, to light up the somewhat dull tone of the fashionable cloths. When other trimming is used on a coat it consists of a braid to match the cloth of which the suit is made.

Ball fringes and drop ornaments are becoming leading features. The Paris dressmakers have been using them for some time now. The ball fringes are used to edge the short Etons and boleros, and the larger balls, tassels, acorns, motifs of lace or braid centred with drops, etc., are used on the sleeves and back, and the front corners. Acorns, cherries, currants and other fruits are made up into drops.

What about spangles for Fall? is a question often asked. They have been decided good in New York in the late Winter and early Spring and have also been in evidence in Toronto and Montreal for evening wear, chiefly in silver and pale colors. There has not been much done with them for the popular trade, however, and the question seems to be as to their position when trade opens in the Fall. Gold and silver tinsel still keeps its place and the majority of trimmings show a touch of it.

Prospects point to a good button season, with a decided leaning toward odd shapes and fanciful effects. Buttons made from the cloth of the costume are still good, and there are many novelties in metal effects. Medium-sized gold buttons are well used and the manufacturers are still talking crochet buttons.

Lace

Nottingham and Calais Laces in Big Demand, But Both Centres Are Away Behind in Their Deliveries.

There is not much change in the lace situation and the chief feature seems to be the trouble experienced in obtaining deliveries of both Nottingham and Calais laces, which means that the majority of the most wanted laces are decidedly scarce. The situation in Nottingham is fully explained by a letter from that centre to a large importer in Canada. In Calais matters are perhaps even worse, and deliveries from that quarter are very bad indeed.

On the heavier laces the demand is well scattered, and, luckily there is little trouble in this quarter. Filet laces are to be a prominent factor and filet in some form or other enters into the majority of patterns seen now. There are some lovely novelties coming to hand in the shape of bands and galoons with a detached flower and leaf patterns, that are sure to command attention.

Lace medallions of all kinds are selling and rounds and even squares are the novelty now. They are considered newer than the ovals and more fanciful Large separable medallions and festoon effects are much in evidence, being used intact upon the skirt, and separated for the waist trimming. The majority of these motifs have centres of either filet, embroidered batiste, or net.

The call for allovers is a good one, as they are used for yoke and sleeve effects for separate waists, and both the heavy and tht net laces are wanted. Esprit and figured nets are also good sellers for this purpose. Net laces are in moderate demand.

This promises to be a great robe season and robes of lace, and lace and embroidery, embroidered batiste, etc., are extremely good property. Princesse applique and Cluny is the latest combination. Robes and coats of Irish crochet are also shown. Irish crochet still maintains its place among the fashionable hand made laces.

Specially woven yokes and plastrons are not to be had for trimming waists, etc., at the lace counter. This is a development that the dressmaker ought to appreciate.

Ladies' Neckwear

Good Season Anticipated — Many New Lines — Slow Delivery of Materials.

The Review's prediction of an extra good season, made when Spring neckwear was yet a thing of the future, is being amply verified, and the best season yet, since ladies' neckwear became a settled and profitable feature in the trade, is confidently anticipated. Though the manufacturers have made big preparations, they are being sadly hampered by the slow and uncertain deliveries in many lines, and trips over to Europe, in the hope of securing new goods and of hastening on tardy shipments long ordered, and badly wanted materials, are talked of.

The turned-down collar is a settled feature of the season in New York, and will certainly have to be taken into account in Canada also. It is not the plain linen collar that is worn, but the much more dainty and feminine embroidered one. The principal point of interest about this collar at present is as to whether the stiffly starched or the soft unstarched collar will be most fashionable. This is a matter that the future will decide.

but as the feminine portion of the community have for so long a period been used to the freedom and comfort of a soft neck dressing it is hardly likely that it will brave the summer heat in a stiffly starched and uncomfortable collar. Whichever way the fad turns, the neckwear manufacturer stands to win, for he has in preparation a host of smart ideas, to wear with a turned-down collar.

There are smart and natty lawn and lace plastrons, perky little bows of silk or lawn, embroidered lawn Windsors, jabots, etc., that will be wanted as a finish either with the starched or unstarched collar.

The jabots, plastrons, etc., are made in such a manner that they can be fastened on to the stud or button that holds the collar. The plastrons are much like those worn with the neckpiece attached last summer, only the side finish is a pleating of lawn and lace. The made-up ones reach to the waist line, or are somewhat shorter, but they can also be bought by the yard the same as last year. The jabots are of embroidered Swiss or lawn, with hemstitched edges, and valenciennes lace trimmings. The cravat bows are nattly little affairs of lawn and lace, and are embroidered or hemstitched.

Lawn Bow for wear with Turn-down Collar. Shown by Rhys D. Fairbairn.

One of the strongest features of the season promises to be the Windsor, particularly that of embroidered lawn. These are a little shorter than usually seen. They pass under the collar, and either bow or knot like a man's tie in front. The Review was shown a good example last week of one of these lawn Windsors. Some are decorated with allover sprigs, and the sides are either hemstitched or scalloped. The newest finish, however, is the scalloping, which is very much the vogue this season. These Windsors will be worn with the Peter Pans, which will again make their appearance when the season opens.

Lace and embroidered collar and cuff sets, sets of stocks and cuffs, and also of chemisettes and cuffs, which promise later to rival the popular collar and cuff sets, will all be worn.

Lace yokes attached to a stock collar are to be an important factor in neckwear lines, and there are to be the separate collars, and the collars and cuffs shaper specialiy to wear on the outer coat. A new shape in the yokes divides in front and forms a sharp point on each side. The laces favored for neckwear are fillet, which is very strong, baby Irish, heavy crochet, Cluny, Venise and Carrick-ma-cross. There is generally a combination of two or more laces in a neck-piece, and heavy embroidery in batiste, lawn or net is also freely used.

Frillings are more than holding their own and are beginning to be classed under the heading of decidedly scarce goods. There is hardly an order received in the neckwear houses that does not make a heavy demand upon the stock of this popular and dainty accessory.

The question of stock collars of embroidery is a moot one, but they are still selling, the buyers figuring out that though they may not be first style they appeal strongly to the woman who thinks that she is no longer able to wear the extremes of fashions in neckwear. Merchants will find that their stocks are not complete without a nice range of this class of collar.

Veilings

The Lace Veil Likely to Prove a Good Seller—Many Other Attractive Novelties Worn.

Judging from what is seen in New York now, veils are again coming into high favor, for the veil there may be said to be almost as much a part of a woman's costume as her hat. The lace veil has scored a great success in New York and promises to be favored for the coming Spring, those shown for that season being both delicate and effective in design.

With the heavier lace veils, and with the chiffon veils for outing and motoring, face veils are worn, a favorite mesh being a double thread pattern with a large or small dot. The latest veil, however, has a border of pleated tulle or net, or newer still one or two rows of fringe, the body of the veil being of Chantilly or point d' esprit. Another smart effect shown has a heavy border of silk cord applique, and fine crossed mesh veils with large dots are finished with a plain border of a contrasting color, hemstitched onto the body of the veil. Veils of this kind are bordered with three rows of ribbon velvet. These are the latest New York ideas in modish veilings.

No matter how handsome a veil is, a great deal of its style depends upon the manner in which it is worn, and upon its proper adjustment. The smart way now is to drape it gracefully over the hat and loosely in front, forming a straight line from the hat brim in front, free from the chin. Then gather the folds closely at the back, and fasten them to the hair, low down, with a fancy pin or fastener.

Long veils are not worn now, the usual length being one and a half or two yards. The veil, solely as a drapery, and having the ends extending almost to the waist at the back, is seen upon some of the new Paris model hats. Paris is using the lace veil for this purpose, but for the early southern trip that so many Americans now take, this style has been duplicated with the veil in chiffon. This is a point that is worth watching as it may mean developments when our own tourist season comes along.

Tuxedos still hold their own in the array of staple styles, and hair-line meshes with a small figure, share the favor of the trade with velvet and chenille dots. Combinations of chenille and velvet dots are seen, but the trade still clings to the chenille dot.

Black, and black and white effects, are regarded as leaders now, but as the Spring advances there is to be an increasing demand for the colored veil. As the veil must accord with, or match the hat, it is an easy matter to prophesy the big lead for all shades of brown, running the gamut from biscuit and champagne, through the light tans, up to golden brown. Green, grey, blue and garnet are also esteemed especially good selling colors, and light shades and white are expected to follow as the season advances. The demand for chiffon veils will come for auto and outing wear and will be a big one.

Gloves

Style for Fall Not Yet Decided—Prices Will be Firm—Suedes Advanced—Long Champagne Silks a Coming Style.

Not until Easter is over will active ordering on gloves be done, until the retailers' stocks are reduced so that merchants will know their requirements for Fall. The dress goods department will be watched closely and ordering will be governed according to the colors of the dresses to be worn during the coming Fall. In the meantime the retailer should prepare for Easter trade. There is a big rush expected at that season and to handle customers should be the aim of the progressive retailer. A good plan for a large store is to have a complete selection of the lines carried placed directly behind each clerk so that they will not conflict with one another in looking for the same size or line in the same place. It is when waiting for one saleslady to finish with one box that the customer is wearied, and such unsystematic methods often loses a sale. Each clerk should have his or her own stock in the section behind their alotted counter space. A clear counter is desirable, so that plenty of room can be had for laying the goods before the customers and also for trying on the gloves when necessary.

Throughout the month there has still been an improved demand for both ladies' and gents' grey kid gloves. Jobbers had expected this but ordered too late to get timely deliveries. Orders placed last September, in a great many cases, have not yet been delivered. This is due to the kid glove manufacturers being overbooked with orders, which, under the present strain of the market, scarcity of skins and other raw materials, are most difficult to fill in time.

As before stated, many small manufacturers have suspended operations because they could not get the advanced prices which were quoted last Fall. This enabled the larger makers to secure the better part of the skins, and the situation is now practically in their hands. While many of them have declared advances on the suede lines they have adhered to last year's prices on the glaces. In many countries the length for Fall will be positively 16 buttons, but it is thought that the fashionable length in Canada will continue to be 12 buttons. This length has been the leader throughout the present season and black has been by far the most popular shade lately. Black lisles have also sold well during the Winter season. All colors have moved briskly, the tendency being to match the colors of evening dresses. For next season cream and champagne shades in silk gloves of 26 button length will be fashionable.

Tan, straw and Tuscans have sold well in order named, and it is more than likely that next season will begin strongly with the last-named color. White is also spoken of, but not until Easter is over and some responsible orders are placed will the leaders be decidedly named. The recent demand for greys cannot be accepted as an indication of the tendency towards that color, for in dress goods it is thought to be on the wane; with a white summer season assured it is only reasonable to expect the white gloves to be more brisk than they have been. On the other hand, the white summer dress goods will have black trimmings or colored accessories, and the tendency may possibly be for gloves to match.

On the first of this month travelers will show their new lines, but they do not expect brisk ordering at the start, ofing to the stress of business in retail circles during this month, preparatory to Easter trade and millinery openings.

Ribbons

Scarcity Still Evident, and Prices Continue to Advance —Twenty Per Cent. Higher Than Four Months Ago.

As ribbons are one of the leading millinery trimmings and for this purpose there will be a great quantity used, the retail trade is ordering heavily, and as, in addition, there is a big call for ribbons for other uses, the demand continues to be strong. With the opening of the millinery season stocks are bound to move rapidly, and it is not improbable that some houses may find themselves in the unhappy position of not having a sufficient supply on hand to carry them over until the later deliveries arrive. Buyers who are now returning from Europe state that it is well nigh impossible to get orders placed for the goods to arrive before the present season's rush will be over. Owing to the high price of raw materials many advances have been recorded, and it is estimated that ribbons now average fully 20 per cent. higher than they were four months ago. Some lines in the United States have recently advanced a half cent per ligne, and European manufacturers are increasing their prices, but even advances do not tend to diminish the steady demand, for the goods are wanted now at any price. It is the question of delivery that is bothering the buyer, and with an enormous season before him he realizes that his stock is inadequate, and that the market is short. The demand, however, is not confined to any particular style or width, but all kinds and all widths of ribbon are sure stock for the coming season.

The millinery demand is for the wider widths chiefly, and five and seven-inch ribbons are now taking the place of three and four-inch widths for the making of hair bows. White in narrower widths will be used for dress trimmings.

Velvet ribbons, both in black and colors, are strong sellers. The wider widths are much in evidence on the later New York millinery models, and, in all widths, they are wanted for trimming purposes. Three graduated bands of velvet ribbon form a favored trimming for the new Summer gown. Narrow widths are in high favor and have been classed amongst the scarce goods for some time.

Chene effects, tartans, plaids, fancy stripes with fancy borders are good sellers to-day and maintain their position. Taffetas are the undoubted leaders, although it is difficult to choose the leading color. Some time ago the run was on pale blues, but the pinks are now selling equally as well. Taffetas of three to six-inch widths are selling in all colors and styles, but the above colors have a slight lead. Fancy stripes with checks on the edges are also coming into favor. Some high priced floral stripes with a fancy colored velvet strip running through the centre is another novelty recently introduced. The champagne effects, which were spoken of some time ago as good property, have fulfilled all expectations and the demand continues strong. Milliners report short stock and this indicates a further rush for these ribbons. Requirements should therefore be covered as speedily as possible as the market is expected to be more strained than ever.

Ribbon hat scarfs, ready made, with fringed ends, are selling remarkably well wherever they have been introduced. They will be one of the decided novelties for the season and are shown in a wide range of fancies, taffetas, moires and tartans. Among the latest novelties to be seen on the market, which are being introduced almost daily, is the moire and duchess combination. These are shown in a quantity of shades, and embrance many splendid blends. New tans, light yellow, pale blue, green and white and some three tone effects are among the shades shown.

HANDKERCHIEFS.

Advance novelties for the Fall season have made their appearance, and as in all other linen lines, prices have been advanced. The advances may be put at from 10 per cent. to, in some cases, as much as 25 per cent. on some special lines. Business promises to be brisk and orders large, notwithstanding the advances and scarcity of goods.

Over on the other side of the line all the complaint heard is not about price but about the shortage in novelty lines and in saleable goods.

The new assortment includes the usual class of hemstitched goods, and lace and embroidered novelties are also shown. Taped borders, which made their appearance last year, have been expanded into a novelty line. Some very taking effects are shown with fancy taped borders with the usual hemstitched hem. The most radical departure is the cross-barred check handkerchief. The taping is carried over the handkerchief in an over-check pattern. This taping in over-check fashion is not confined to white, but comes in colors and in white and colors also. Another new idea is to have the centre of the handkerchief dotted with spots or rings of color, while the border is of the colored and white taped stripes. The colors are for the most part decided and are deeper in tint than those of the pastel order. Blue, green, pink, black, and a fairly strong mauve, are those chiefly seen.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM LACE CENTRE. ..

A letter to Mr. Kyle, senior, of Kyle, Cheesbrough & Co., Montreal, from a prominent Nottingham agent, giving an account of the exceptional conditions in all lace markets, has been handed to The Review and affords retailers a first-hand glimpse of the actual situation. The letter is re-produced and is self-explanatory :—

"I wish to send you a few lines upon the state of the market here, and to advise you strongly and at once, to place an order for the factory for Spring. Without any doubt prices in a month will be higher considerably than to-day, and to-day they are 15 per cent. higher than prices on your last import spools. Every manufacturer is full of orders, and upon fine Calais Vals. cannot obtain goods for 8 to 12 weeks. Yarn is scarce and at a very high price, so altogether the lacemaker has gone about crazy.

"I have put off writing this as long as possible, hoping the market would resume its usual condition, but am convinced there's no chance of this yet for some months to come.

"If you are here in a month it will be too late to book an order at to-day's prices, so I suggest that you cable as large as order as you can—for late delivery—for the designs you find the best. A stock of lace will be good money in March and April next, if bought at to-day's prices.

"We have many orders on hand for the States—never had half so many—and it is six to eight weeks before the rush was expected. Only wish we were able to get the goods we have on order. Can assure you we are sending out a lot.

"The general advance in price is, however, so serious that I thought I had better write you, so that on designs that were safe you could save something.

"The continental lace markets, Calais, Plauen, St. Gall and Lyons are, from what I can learn, in a similar position. I know they are very busy in Calais, and it will be hard to buy goods the next three or four months unless at advances—considerable advances."

LOGAN BROS., LIMITED.

An Ontario charter has been granted Logan Bros., Limited, Renfrew, with a capital of $50,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were: Daniel H. McAndrew, gentleman; Robert and Thomas Logan, woollen manufacturers; John Mackay, merchant, and Thomas W. McGarry, and Stanley T. Chown, solicitors, all of the town of Renfrew. The objects of the company are "to acquire and take over as a going concern the business now carried on at the town of Renfrew, under the style of Logan Bros., and all or any of the assets of the proprietors of that business; to purchase and sell wool; to manufacture, buy and sell woollen goods and to acquire by purchase, lease or otherwise and to own, sell, lease mortgage, convey, improve, and operate factories and buildings for the production and storage of all kinds of woollen goods."

DISCONTENT.

Discontent quickens the blood of inactivity and makes the heart throb with future hopes.

Discontent broadens the mind of the sluggard and enlists him in the army of pushers.

Discontent drove an oxen-team across the prairies and built cities in the West.

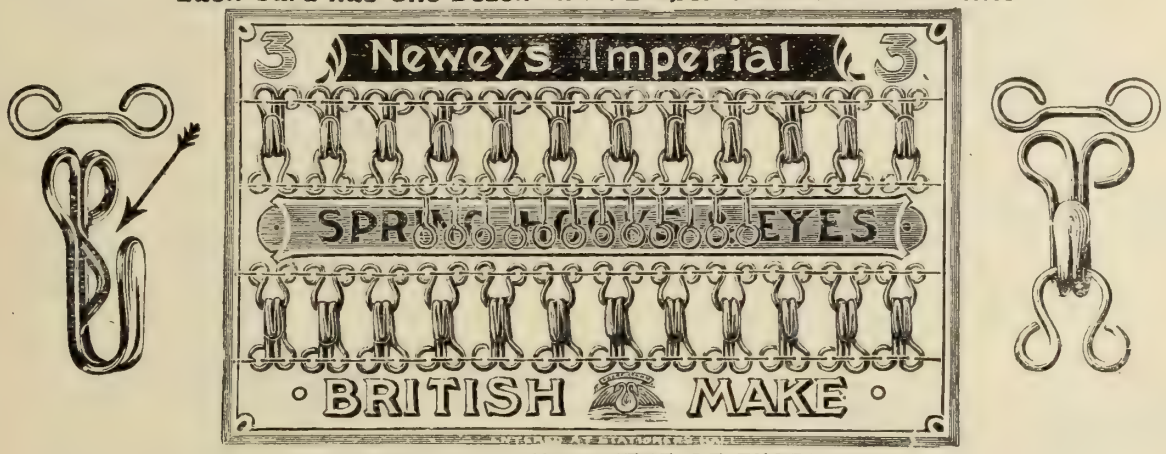
Discontent turned the candle light of our forefathers into the electric power of to-day.

Discontent is the spur that pricks the heels of progress—that makes the rivulet a running river.

Discontent abandons the fossils of the valley and climbs the mountain in search for nuggets of gold.

Discontent changed the merchant from selling one line of goods to the modern department store.

Discontent got out of the rut made by his progenitors on to the highway of modern business.



Get up and get—new ideas, new methods—all members of the Push family are the offspring of Discontent.

Ogilvie, Lochead & Co., Brantford, have purchased the store they now occupy and also the premises adjoining, for $30,000. The two will be turned into one store at a cost of about $10,000, giving a floor space of about 17,500 square feet. It is expected everything will be completed in time for next Fall's business.

NEWEY'S SPRING HOOKS & EYES.
IMPERIAL QUALITY

Made in 5 Sizes, Black and White. A Centre Spring Hook with a Swan Bill, made from hard drawn Brass Wire. Beautifully finished and machine carded.

Each Card has One Dozen Extra Loops. Retails at Five Cents

OUR NAME IS A GUARANTEE OF EXCELLENCE

Sole Agents for Canada, Dieckerhoff, Raffloer & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg

Buyers when in England, cordially invited to call and see these and our other productions.

NEWEY BROS LTD BREARLEY ST. BIRMINGHAM.

"Debenhams for Novelties"

Laces and Allovers — A New Department

We are now carrying a stock of PLAUEN and ST. GALL, LACES, INSERTIONS, and ALLOVERS in the NEWEST STYLES. With them we include some special values in EMBROIDERED SPOT NETS. We can confidently recommend this department to our clients, our assortment being one of the finest in Canada.

Dyed Shantungs and Tussores	in Medium and Dark Shades
Fancy Silks	in the ideas of the moment
Dress Goods	in the Latest Colorings
Fancy Ribbons	including a full range of Chines and Tartans
Tulles	in a variety of Prices and Colorings

The House for Standard Makes of Ribbons and Silks.

DEBENHAMS (Canada) LIMITED

Ottawa, 111 Sparks St. MONTREAL Quebec, 70 St. Joseph

N.B. Our travellers are now on the road with a complete range of Fall Import Samples

DEBENHAM & CO. { London (West) London (City) } Paris, Brussels, New York, Boston, Melbourne, Sydney, Cape Town. Johannesburg.

The Glove House of Canada

PERRIN FRERES & CIE.

302 Lagauchetiere, Corner Beaver Hall Hill,

MONTREAL

Easter Gloves

In all the newest shades and in all lengths are now in stock.

Long Gloves at all Prices.

Our stock is by far the largest of its kind in Canada and we can fill all orders promptly.

Write for Prices and Samples or for our traveller to call.

Fall Samples will be on the road March 1st.

The Power of Gloves

The Retailer who handles a good line of gloves takes out a policy assuring commercial success.

But—the gloves must be good, first-class, dependable in every way. That explains why most dealers feature

Storey's Gloves

Of course there are other reasons known to every man who has ever placed an order with us. If you do not know the trade-building power of Storey's Gloves send along that test order to-day.

We'll stand by your decision.

W. H. Storey & Son

ACTON, ONT. Limited

Established 1868. The Glovers of Canada

K. Ishikawa & Co.

Manufacturers and Importers

24 Wellington Street West,

TORONTO

RHYS D. FAIRBAIRN, LIMITED

MANUFACTURERS

Ladies' Waists —Exclusive designs in Net, Lace and Silk Waists.

Neckwear, Belts and Frillings - Latest novelties for the Easter trade.

HUGH HENRY
204 St. James Street
MONTREAL

107 Simcoe Street (Cor. Pearl)
TORONTO

LACES Valenciennes, French, Nottingham and German, in immense range of effective patterns. ALLOVERS — Immense range.

EMBROIDERY CORSET COVERS

EMBROIDERY STRAPPINGS

Muslin, Nainsook, Cambric. Complete range.

DRESS TRIMMINGS

Appliques, Pull Braids. All colors.

STRIPPED BELTINGS

Travellers now showing our Spring range of Ladies' Neckwear and Belts

SANDERSONS, LIMITED
172 Front St. West, TORONTO

DRY GOODS REVIEW

has enquiries from time to time from manufacturers and others wanting representatives in the leading business centres here and abroad.

Firms or individuals open for agencies in Canada or abroad may have their names and addresses placed on a special list kept for the information of enquirers in our various offices throughout Canada and in Great Britain without charge.

Address: Business Manager.

DRY GOODS REVIEW
Montreal and Toronto.

CONDENSED ADS.

AT A COST OF

2 CENTS PER WORD

All clerks requiring positions will do well to invest a few cents in the Dry Goods Review and state their requirements.

Those merchants who wish to dispose of their business can in ert their ad. under a box number and we will forward any replies. This ensures secrecy to those that desire it.

The Review is read by 90 per cent of the entire trade. This ensures your wants being read by the merchants throughout the Dominion of Canada.

ADDRESS ALL CORRESPONDENCE TO

THE DRY GOODS REVIEW
10 Front St. East, TORONTO
232 McGill St. MONTREAL

SPRING 1907

Silk

Waists Suits

Too busy to Advertise

The American Silk Waist Co.
MONTREAL

E. T. CORSETS

The following six lines are the best and most popular lines in the trade:

No. 175 with 2 garters in front, a corker, at	$4.50
" 226 no garters, military hips, at	4.50
" 233 with 4 garters, a seller, at	6.50
La Desse 802 with 4 garters, a beauty, at	9.00
No. 481 Century, with abdominal bands for stout women, at	9.00
" 688 Watch spring movable steels, at	11.50

LETTER ORDERS FILLED PROMPTLY

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS MFG. CO.,
LIMITED

337 St. Paul St., Montreal

Factory at ST. HYACINTHE. Branch Office: 74 Bay St., TORONTO

A Record Garment Season

¶ Record orders for Coats, Suits and Skirts prove our garments, please the trade.

¶ We make popular-priced lines that possess style, fit and workmanship.

¶ Our Garments sell readily and bring you the greatest profit.

For stylish and selling garments ask for samples of Separate Coats at - - - $4.25 and upwards

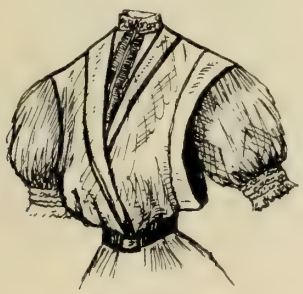
Separate Skirts at - - - $2.25 up to $10.00

The Empire Mfg. Co. 138 Craig St., West Montreal



Easter Suits and Coats

The Eton Still the Favorite—Many Other Models, Some of Which are Illustrated.

Though it has stood the test of so many seasons the Eton, or Bolero coat, is still the first favorite. It, however, has changes that stamp it as the product of the present season. One point of change is the drooping shoulder, finished either in the Gibson or some epaulet form. Another shape often seen has the lower edge drawn into a band. The hip length coat with the rounded corners is another strong style. This coat comes in easy-fitting and decidedly ornate models and also in the severely tailored styles.

The latest novelty shown by the Fifth Avenue stores is known as the Japanese style. This plainly proclaims its origin, as the chief features are the wide armholes and the crossover front. This model is a three-piece one and a lace or lingerie blouse or guimpe must be worn to complete the suit. One of the sketches given shows the waist of a suit of this type. It was sketched in Redfern's Fifth avenue store. The suit was made from fine white, black and blue worsted suiting, the skirt of alternate box pleats on the straight and gores cut on the bias. There were two bias folds, edged with a narrow one of black velvet, used as a trimming around the bottom of the skirt. This is a style of trimming that is extensively used in New York this Spring.

New Suit Coat Japanese Effect

The full length suit sketched was of leather-colored chiffon broadcloth, and the cut clearly shows the way in which it was made. The sleeve, it will be noted, is a modification of the extreme Japanese idea. The third cut shows a severely tailored suit coat that is an extremely popular model. This was sketched on Twenty-third Street, and the suit was of soft tan and cream block check worsted.

Block checks, both small and of a fairly large size, in black and white, navy and white, and various shades of tan and cream, are much seen. White ground materials with line and broken checks of black, blue, green and grey are immensely popular, and there is an endless variety of materials of this class, not only made up into suits, but shown also in the dress department.

Stripes are seen only in a minor proportion, but most often in the most exclusive stores, and this is easily accounted for by the difficulty experienced in making up striped materials.

New Spring Suit as seen in New York

Wool and worsted suitings, Panamas, voiles, smooth tweeds, etc., are the materials from which the suits shown for the Spring trade are developed. When the suit is made of plain materials it is either of broadcloth, Panama or voile and is usually of some shade of leather, brown or tan. Black is much used, and there is a sprinkling of navy, old blue and reseda.

Silk suits are gaining ground in the New York market, and the showing is a comprehensive one. Eton suits in plain and fancy taffeta, shirtwaist suits, and an immense variety of jumper, suspender, and fichu models are displayed.

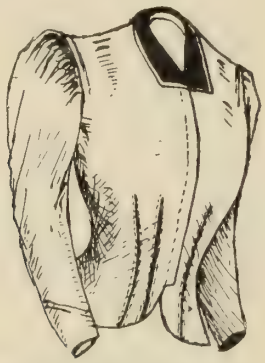
Leather has been a big seller, and so have light tans and champagne. Block checks in black and white, and broken checks in black, white and a color are extra good. There is some revival of the plain silk coat with the fancy silk skirt idea.



Fancy tweeds, often striped, are made up into novelty coats, both short and three-quarter. The favorite model for the long coat of tweed, is cut exactly like a man's coat. Long and short silk coats are featured, and checked silks are used as well as black.

Separate skirt models differ little if at all from those seen for suits. They are all pleated effects stitched down to form a yoke.

The Lingerie Waist

The Button-Back Elbow-Sleeve Lingerie Waist Still the Leading Seller.

Though tailored styles in waists and colors have been so much talked up in advance it is still the white lingerie waist that leads—and by a big margin. Shapes are practically the same, that is, the open-back, elbow-sleeved, much-trimmed model is selling best. A new feature, due no doubt to the number of jumper and kindred styles in suits, is the extra amount of attention bestowed upon the elaboration of the back of the blouse. The broad-shouldered cut, with some form of yoke, is the predominating style. The collar is attached, when a collar is used at all. Valenciennes is still the most used lace, and many blouses are trimmed with this lace alone. The combination idea is by no means played out, and Cluny, which is immensely popular, and crochet and Venise are also used upon the 1907 waist. In high-class lines handworked crochet medallions and insertion was noticed. The tailored linen models have a knife pleating down each edge of the centre box pleat. Plain lawns and crepes in soft colors are coming into favor for waists.

Severely Tailored Suit Coat

Whitewear

Extravagance One of the Chief Features of The New Garments Finest of Materials.

No one can deny the tempting beauty of the new lingerie models as seen in New York. But they certainly are extravagant in their wealth of detail and their delicate sheerness. The softest and sheerest of materials and the finest of laces and embroideries are used in their fashioning.

Princesse and combination effects under the influence of the present fashions, which demand a smooth, snug fit for all undergarments are decidedly gaining ground, and their vogue promises a considerable extension this season.

There are some extreme models shown in night gowns, cut with a very decided decolette and with hanging sleeves of lace or with the short Empire puff. Empire gowns are prominent in the collection. Even the more practical gowns are cut with the low round or the square Dutch neck and with the three-quarter length sleeve..

Narrow edgings of lace are sewn together for yokes and trimmings and free use is made of various widths of ribbon run through beadings.

Quite a few novelties in corset covers are shown, one of the prettiest of which is the surplice. The fullness is set in narrow tucks at the back, but in front it is just gathered into the band at the waist. The slip-over covers are also new, and doubtless will be seen upon the market here before long.

Sun Pleated Skirt—Shown by Rhys D. Fairbairn

The lingerie petticoat promises to be the seller of the year, and deservedly so, for it does not seem possible for the designer's skill to evolve any style more attractive than those shown this season. Embroidery and lace are freely used and embroidery motifs are edged with valenciennes and set into the deep flounces.

In preparation, doubtless, for the coming June bride, matched trousseau sets are largely featured, their leading characteristic being sheerness, elaboration and daintiness.

Ribbons run through beadings of different widths are used on all lingerie garments and a very favorite and effective method of producing an attractive window display is to have all the ribbons in the goods of one color.

Corsets

New Models All Shown, But There is Not Much Change Apparent.

The corset has always been a favorite mark for newspaper criticism, and the beginning of each season is safe to witness an outbreak of some kind of absurdity on the part of the daily press. This Spring it is the return of the hour glass figure that is talked about. Few writers seem to realize what this would mean either to the trade or to the women who wear corsets. After wearing the straight front for so long a time it would be a brave woman indeed who would endure the corset that gives this figure. It would mean also that the difficulties experienced in fitting all kinds of ready-made garments would be increased a hundredfold, and would constitute the most serious setback to the prosperity of the ready-to-wear garment branch that that influential section has yet received, its present success being built, in a large measure, upon the basis of the present straight front corset.

True, the rounded waist is in high favor and every effort is made by the corset maker to give this rounded effect to his models. This is done by clever cutting, and by the arrangement of the gores at the sides, an arrangement, by the way, that does not interfere with the modified straight front which is now worn.

Critics who write about the tight lacing do not realize the attention given to correct shaping and designing on the part of the manufacturer, nor do they realize that the compression is more apparent than real, and that the corset is so cut as to produce the round waist without undue compression and without interfering with the comfort of the wearer.

The hour-glass figure was the product of the curved front corset, and the average woman could not now wear that old-time style. That some figures can and do still wear this model, and that a few are sold each year, is not denied. It may not be quite impossible that the curved front will ever be revived, but it is extremely improbable.

Petticoats

Higher Prices Rule for Silk Skirts—Clecks and Stripes in Cotton Goods.

The advanced prices of silk have caused trouble to the manufacturers of silk underskirts, for fixed prices are the rule in this department, and the manufacturers find that buyers are not very willing to pay advances because it will necessitate a revising of their scale of prices. It now looks as though the popular priced $5 petticoat that so many merchants made a lead of, will have to be eliminated.

Just what effect the higher prices will have on the sale of silk skirts remains to be seen, but it is hardly likely that its influence will be much felt. The woman who is in the habit of wearing a silk underskirt will still buy her usual quota, and as the underskirt also serves as a drop skirt under the voiles and other sheer materials, an increased rather than a decreased demand should come this season.

There is a larger showing of other silks than plain taffeta in the high priced lines—brocades, warp prints, plaids, Pekins and shots. China silk is also used, but plain taffeta is the leading silk for the popular trade, and probably always will be.

Some nice styles are again brought out in moirettes and there is still a big sale for the many mercerized and other lines.

Wash petticoats of checked and striped gingham, Madras and kindred fabrics also promise well for the coming season.

Mail Orders and Abuse of Credit

Caused Retailers in Manitoba Village to Amalgamate—Strong Appeal for Local Support from Standpoint of Dollars and Cents.

The retail merchants of Cartwright, Man., have suffered heavily from the competition of catalogue houses, particularly Eaton's Winnipeg branch. This, combined with the fact that the credit system was steadily abused, prompted six firms to amalgamate and form a joint stock company. Their novel manner of dealing with two problems which confront almost every retailer, will be watched with interest by the trade throughout the country.

Cartwright is a small village of about 500 population, serving a rich and prosperous farming community. Its merchants would have found business conditions quite satisfactory were it not that they could not escape the extension of long credits to their customers, and many of these were sending their ready cash to the catalogue houses. It is an old story, which may be duplicated in almost any part of Canada. The local store gives credit and its customers will allow accounts to stand while making cash purchases by mail. In a single week, it is said, one catalogue house took $1,200 from the little village of Cartwright.

Confronted with these conditions, the Cartwright dealers have taken a bold step, the results of which it is too early yet to predict. Six firms—Moore & Hills, McKenzie & Bryce, L. H. Phillips, Wm. Gemmill, W. Macklem and Cannon & Pickell—have formed a joint stock company, to be known as "Merchants Limited." In a circular letter to their customers these firms announce that the new company is capitalized at $50,000, divided into shares of $100 each, and that any farmer or private individual may purchase these shares to the extent of $500. R. F. Moore is president and general manager; Wm. Gemmill 1st vice-president; L. H. Phillips, 2nd vice-president; and J. J. Hill secretary- treasurer.

To Fight Department Stores.

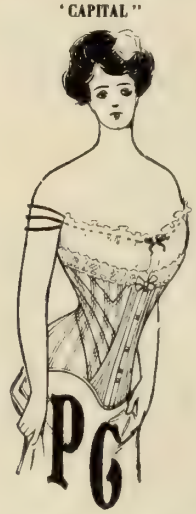
In the circular to their customers announcing their new departure the promoters do not disguise the fact that one of their main objects is to fight the city department store. To quote from their circular:

"We would impress strongly upon our patrons that this company is not formed for the purpose of inflating

It's Selling Time for Blouses

Don't Let Your Stock Get Low

Look It Over



Send us a rush order for what you need

Victor style will sell them quick

The Victor Mfg. Co., Quebec

THE FAME OF P.C. CORSETS

"CAPITAL"

A new model. Extra long waist, new high bust. All sizes and colors.

is added to by the distinctive style touches of the spring models.

Our extensive co-operation with merchants solves the selling problem.

We have the facilities to fill orders promptly, and expect the greatest season of our career.

Samples prepaid and returnable at our expense.

P.C. 810

A Canadian favorite. English coutil. Medium high bust. Four silk hose supporters. All sizes and colors.

The Parisian Corset Mfg. Co., Limited, Quebec

For the convenience of Western Ontario Merchants a full stock is carried at Brampton, Ontario. F. W. GILLIES, Manager.

Jumper Suits
Tailor-made Suits
Dress Suits
Or separately. Jacket Suits

Jap Waists
Taffeta Waists
Lingerie Waists
All other materials conveyed into the above mentioned. Linen Waists

Garments are made by the Reliable Makers. If you did not see our line this season do not delay. You will find it very interesting. Will arrange to show you them by advising us.

We give special attention to Mail Orders.

I. MISHKIN & CO.
423 St. James St.
MONTREAL

Best materials
Excellent finish
Latest style
Made in Canada
Only see samples
Now
To be convinced.

Best sellers
Remember, orders big
And small executed.
Now don't Delay ordering at once.

THE GROWING RAINCOAT HOUSE

The Belmont Manufacturing Co.
LIMITED
Office and Factory:
131-133 YOUVILLE SQUARE, - MONTREAL

HEMMED SHEETS

TRADE Laurentian MARK

PILLOW SLIPS

¶ We want to show you the way to do a better business in Hemmed Sheets and Pillow Slips—a growing trade.

¶ One of our specialties is this line. Result: Laurentian goods are, we have proven, the very best goods in the trade.

¶ Laurentian Sheets and Slips are thoroughly well made, selected English cottons, and the goods are torn, not cut—a point your customers will appreciate. Then, too, attractive packages command trade readily.

Samples cheerfully sent. Write us now.

THE
Laurentian Whitewear Co.
LEVIS, P.Q.
Whitewear repeats promptly filled

THE HOUSE OF RAINCOATS

Boost Your Cloak Department

BY SELLING

NATIONAL RAINCOATS AND SPRING COATS

for Ladies and Men. Largest range in our history.

LATEST NOVELTY:
OUR RANGE OF AUTO COATS.

TRAVELLERS NOW ON THEIR ROUTES

CANADA'S LARGEST EXCLUSIVE RAINCOAT HOUSE

National Rubber Co. (of Canada)

MONTREAL

THE FALL RAINCOAT PROPOSITION

Our men are out showing a complete line of Ladies' and Men's Raincoats for immediate and fall delivery.

The favorable reception given our Spring range of True Fit Garments is a criterion of the many profitable numbers in the new range.

One of the specialties in the Men's range which will appeal to you is a Guaranteed Water-proof Coat, shown in a wide range.

Your Children's Cloak Department will benefit from a range easily the largest in the trade.

Our Garments will help you to do more and better business.

SAMUEL WENER & COMPANY

The New and Modern Raincoat House

Notre Dame and Dupre Streets, - - Montreal

prices or restraining trade; on the other hand, it is formed expressly to enable us to compete successfully with catalogue houses.

"On account of the merger we shall be enabled to buy on the very cheapest available markets, and to save local freights, as practically all our stocks can be bought in car lots. This fact will allow us to sell goods very much cheaper than under present conditions. We would recommnd any person who entertains any doubt on this point to from time to compare our prices with those ruling in adjacent towns."

While Merchants, Limited, will conduct what is really a department store, the departments are not all under one roof. Stocks have been consolidated and re-arranged, dry goods and ladies' wear being in one store, clothing, boots and shoes in a scond, groceries in a third, hardware in a fourth, and flour and feed in a fifth. Millinery and dressmaking departments will also be established.

The business, while out to fight the credit system, is not insisting upon the strictly cash plan. A customer who wants credit must secure a coupon book good for a stated amount, say $10 or $25. In order to get this book he must give Merchants, Limited, his note for the amount; he is allowed credit in no other way. When he buys goods on credit he pays for them with his coupons. Book-keeping expenses are thus eliminated, and in their advertising the new firm are making a strong feature of his point. Reduced expenses, they say, will allow a reduction in retail prices.

The Produce Question.

Every country dealer, whether in Western Canada or Eastern Canada knows the difficulty of handling butter and eggs and other farm produce satisfactorily. Competition among rival stores has often forced dealers to pay for butter and eggs a higher price than they can get from the wholesale produce houses. Of course payment is made in goods upon which there is a profit, but the practice is suicidal nevertheless. The customer who pays cash should get the discounts, not the customer who pays in produce which costs time, trouble, and money to handle. Moreover there is seldom in the country store any efficient method of grading butter, and because he does not want to offend an otherwise good customer many a pays for poor butter as high a price as he pays for the first-class article.

Merchants, Limited, announce that all butter is to be graded and paid for according to quality; and it may be presumed quite safely that prices for produce will not be more than the market value. A big, strong concern can grapple with a problem of this kind and solve it satisfactorily.

It seems that the general public in Cartwright are disposed to regard the new move with approval. Merchants, Limited, are making a strong bid for local sympathy, and they are appealing to local self-interest in a convincing way. They state that they are prepared to compete with the catalogue houses, and that they invite comparison of prices. In the course of their circular announcement they say:

"We feel that our patrons will agree with us that these departmental stores are drawing the resources of the small towns and building up the cities. This it is evident cannot be for the wealth of people residing in the country and on farms, for it is generally admitted that a good town helps materially to enhance the value of adjacent farm lands; therefore we would ask your cooperation and we will prove to you that you will be benefited in dollars and cents."

In a communication to The Review, Merchants, Limited, state: "Our first week's business was highly satisfactory, and from the outlook we anticipate no trouble."

H. W. WILSON & CO.

4 Kingly St., London, W., England
REGENT STREET

FURS, TRIMMINGS, BUTTONS, SILKS, Etc.

Novelty House exclusively for Ladies' Tailors and Department Stores

Novelties in 40in. Twill Victoria Lining

A combination of Silk and Cotton

For Coats, Costumes, etc.

Plain, Shot, Stripe and Floral Design

Patterns on application.

THE NEW

SUEDE SKINS

For Trimming Collars, etc.

24 Shades. Shade Card on application

Open Indents in Novelties carefully executed.

LIDDELL'S LINENS

The "Gold Medal" brand is known to every housekeeper whose trade is worth having. It means

ARTISTIC PATTERNS
AND SERVICEABLE QUALITY TO HER.

It means SURE SALES and HANDSOME PROFITS to you

SEE SAMPLES NOW ON THE ROAD
WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED PRICE LIST

R. H. COSBIE
30 W. Wellington St. - TORONTO
IRISH LINEN AGENCY

DRY GOODS REVIEW

AND MEN'S FURNISHER

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE :

Canada, Great Britain, United States, Australia, South Africa and the West Indies - - $2 a year.
Other Countries, - - - - - - - - - $3 a year.
Single Copies, - - - - - - - - - - 25 cents.

Invariably in advance.

DIRECTORS :

J. B. MACLEAN, Montreal, - - - - - - PRESIDENT
W. L. EDMONDS, Toronto, - - - - - - VICE-PRESIDENT
A. B. CASWELL, Montreal, - - - MANAGING DIRECTOR

CHIEF OFFICES :

CANADA—

MONTREAL, 232 McGill Street. Tel. Main 1255.
TORONTO, 10 Front Street East. Tel. Main 2701.
WINNIPEG, F. R. Munro - - 511 Union Bank Building Telephone 3726
VANCOUVER, - - - - - - - - Geo. S. B. Perry
ST. JOHN, N.B., J. Hunter White - No. 3 Market Wharf

GREAT BRITAIN—

LONDON, ENG., J. M. McKim, European Manager, 88 Fleet St., E.C. Telephone, Central 12960.
MANCHESTER, H. S. Ashburner, - - - 92 Market Street

UNITED STATES—

CHICAGO, J. Roland Kay, - - - 1001 Teutonic Bldg.

FRANCE—

Paris - - - - - - Agence Havas, 8 Place de la Bourse

SWITZERLAND—

ZURICH - - - - - Lomis Wolf, Orell Fussli & Co.

EUROPEAN STAFF CORRESPONDENT :

MR. A. E. DACAM, Paris.

ADVERTISING RATES

Are based on $35 a page and will be furnished on application to Mr. A. B. Caswell or to the manager of the nearest office. The value of THE DRY GOODS REVIEW as an advertising medium is unquestioned. The character of the advertisements now in its columns, and the number of them, tell the whole story. Circulation considered, it is the cheapest trade newspaper to advertise in. Advertisements, to insure insertion in the issue of any month, should reach this office not later than the eighteenth of the month preceding.

Office of Publication, 10 Front Street East, Toronto

MONTREAL AND TORONTO, MARCH, 1907.

NEW ADVERTISERS.

Adams Furniture Co., Toronto.
Bishop, J. H., Sandwich, Ont.
Carter-Crume Co., Toronto.
Dominion Paper Box Co., Toronto.
Fisher, F. T., Edmonton, Alta.
Old Bleach Linen Co., Randelstown, Ire.
Silver, B., & Co., Montreal.
Silver, M., & Co., Montreal.
Waldron, Drouin & Co., Montreal.
Wener, Samuel, & Co., Montreal.
Wolsey Underwear Co. (H. L. Smythe & Co., Montreal.)

WHOLE POSTAL EXPRESS SCHEME DROPPED.

In the House of Commons, on February fifteenth, the Postmaster-General stated, in answer to a question, that his postal express scheme would not be put in operation at the present time. In making that decision he was guided by the practically unanimous opinion expressed by members on both sides of the House. His faith in the practicability and great national value of the prospect is unshaken, however, and he believes that public opinion, if properly educated, would stand behind him. From this we may conclude that Mr. Lemieux will await a favorable opportunity to bring forward his idea again.

The fight of the local merchant against the efforts of the catalogue houses to secure legislative concessions is just commencing in Canada, and from now on the situation will require close watching. In regard to the forces which these efforts can employ we have an interesting object lesson in the conditions which exist across the line. For instance, a Parcels Post League was formed some time ago and representatives went through the country lecturing to consumers on the advantages that would accrue to them through extension of the parcel post system. Articles along this line were written for various publications, and mail order journals were sent broadcast to assist in moulding public opinion to their point of view. The expense of all this must be borne by the catalogue houses, but the consideration would be small compared with the returns if the campaign were successful; the investment would be a splendid one indeed. The Postoffice Department, anxious to improve the efficiency of the service, made some recommendations, which, if adopted, would have greately helped the development of the mail order business. Congress was able to analyze the proposed changes and place upon them their true value. However, no one supposes that the matter will be allowed to drop there; the catalogue houses will go on working and come back harder than ever. In Canada they want a c.o.d. parcel post system—really a postal express—which would mean the absorption of the present express companies and the reduction of rates to the minimum. The plan looked fine on the surface and the Postmaster-General took it up with enthusiasm. He and his department had power to adopt it without consulting Parliament in any particular. This was a favorable situation, but in order that it might work out smoothly publicity was not desired. That point was easily safeguarded, for nearly all the metropolitan dailies are held securely under the thumb of the department store interests. If the matter came up for discussion in the House the members, unprepared by previous study of its provisions, and undisturbed by protests from their constituents, were relied upon to make only a superficial examination of it and put no serious obstacles in the way. It was first mentioned by one of the members on November 30th, 1906, but if any reference appeared in the parliamentary reports of the daily press we missed it entirely. Hon. Mr. Lemieux was silent on this occasion, and afterward, until he was asked, on December 6th, what plan was under way for the extension of the postal system. He said merely that an arrangement was being considered whereby the postoffice should transmit parcels c.o.d., and promised further details later. Then The Review made drygoodsmen, from one end of Canada to the other, acquainted with the circumstances, and organized such active opposition, assisted by a couple of other MacLean trade publications, that on February 15th the Postmaster-General announced definitely that the scheme had been withdrawn.

The Review may fairly claim chief credit for the victory. We made the first move and had the entire trade stirred up before opposition to the proposal was offered from any other quarter. We do not say this in a boast ful spirit, but to impress retailers with the fact that we are always on the alert to protect and advance their interests. Also, we wish them to be ready to co-operate promptly with us should any similar occasion arise. If the catalogue houses cannot get all that they want they'll get as much as possible.

We were greatly surprised, and so were most members of Parliament, to know that the Postoffice Department could adopt Mr. Lemieux's proposal without asking the people's representatives whether they liked it or not. Our idea, in the first place, was that a bill would have to be introduced into the House, and our campaign was mapped out acordingly. On January 31st the Postmaster-General stated, in repliyng to a question, that no legislation was necessary; that it was merely a matter for departmental regulation. Yet on December 6th he permitted himself to use the phrase "postal express legislation" in his answer to Mr. Armstrong. Whether intentional or not, this helped to strengthen the idea that a bill would have to be introduced.

No doubt Canadians in general would be very much surprised if they knew the extent of the Postoffice Department's power in this respect. The present procedure is all right when the matters in hand are not of any great moment, but where a change is proposed that would cause such widespread harm as the one in question we most emphatically object to the Postmaster-General and his department having arbitrary power. It is enough that recommendations should come from or through them; the acceptance of any proposal should rest with the House of Commons. The latter has a better knowledge of the needs of the people at large in regard to a postal service than have the officials of the department, who are sometimes blind to the injury that may be inflicted upon the business of the country by innovations, which may, perhaps, be of advantage to a considerable number of citizens, but by no means to a majority. The Postmaster-General's own words show how incapable he was of handling the matter:—"I wish to say a word or two about the parcel post system. I may say that I was born and brought up in the city of Montreal, although I represent a rural constituency far away on the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Perhaps I have been brought up with all the prejudices of a gentleman who has spent most of his life in the city. I did not know, I never dreamt of that great rivalry which seems to exist between the departmental stores and the country stores, but I quite agree with hon. gentlemen on both sides of the House that there is certainly to-day an undercurrent against the establishment of the parcel post system, on account of the injury it might cause to the country merchants. For my part, I have been biased in favor of cities, having been born and brought up in a city, but it was not my intention to hurt at all the interests or feelings of country merchants when I thought that I should perhaps give this country the benefit of that system. . . . We thought that the Canadian mails could, perhaps, be used to bring to terms the express companies of this country. We could have afforded additional channels for the public, and at the same time we would, perhaps, have put an end to what is practically a monopoly. But, however, I find public opinion, that is to say public opinion framed by the country merchants, against the proposed system, and I may frankly say that I would not run against public opinion in the present case." Surely Mr. Lemieux does not mean that he would ignore public opinion in any other case. Again we say that the adoption or rejection of such proposals should be subject to the wishes of the people, through their representatives.

The Government has a means at hand of securing for the country reasonable and uniform express rates without going to the length of absorbing the express business itself. The Railway Commission is the medium through which this may be accomplished. Plenty of evidence showing non-uniformity of rates can be secured. We gave a typical instance in the February number of where two distinct rates were charged on shipments of identically the same nature and weight between the same points.

In another section of this issue we reproduce extracts from Hansard's report of a discussion in the House on the subject of c.o.d. parcel post.

SALES AGENTS.

From time to time we receive communications from merchants enquiring whether or not we would advise them to employ sales agents for the purpose of reducing stock. We invariably advise against such a course, and that on very good ground. In the first place putting his business into the hands of an outsider looks to a merchant's customers like an acknowledgement of incapability to conduct his own sales, and that impression is liable to do him a great deal of harm later on. Then it must be remembered that all agencies work on a commission basis and their object is to dispose of just as much merchandise as possible. In doing so their natural inclination must be to hand out the most saleable stock, without regard to that which the merchant is most anxious to get rid of. Their advertising methods are sensational and many materially reduce the reputation for steady reliabilty which a merchant has spent years in building up.

Early last month an Ontario drygoodsman engaged a firm of agents in conection with a stock reduction sale, but he went about it in a manner somewhat out of the ordinary. He really conducted the sale himself, and used them merely for advertising purposes. They asked their percentage, but he cut them down considerably and allowed a commission only during the first four days of the sale, which lasted ten days. He marked all stock himself and revised the advertising matter that was issued. The Review asked him what he wanted them there for at all, and he replied: "Just to create a stir and keep the people guessing." The sale was a big success, but even at that he declares emphatically that he would never attempt another. He admits that he would not have put this one on if sales agents had ever operated in his town before.

While he does not anticipate any bad after-effects, he has promised to inform us if any should appear. As to the methods of these agencies he agreed that they would likely lose money for a man who gave them a free rein.

MERCHANTS AND COMPETITORS.

It does not place a competitor in a difficult position when we advertise something we haven't got at a ridiculously low price. It does not reduce his profits when we sell at four cents that which costs us six. We do not cut holes in his business or his reputation when we sell at a cut price a certain muslin, or print, or flannel, purporting to be a certain brand when it is not that brand. We do not increase our business at his expense when we constantly attack whatever he does. We do not really gain anything by being fiercely belligerent. We do not make anything by playing falsely or meanly anywhere. Why not dwell in peace and harmony together and make our noise out of our own assets rather than attempt to make it out of the liabilities of another ? Why not build up our own business rather than so closely watch and endeavor to tear down the business of our neighbors ? Why not be real men ?

MAIL ORDERS AND ABUSE OF CREDIT.

The growth of mail order business and the abuse of credit was responsible for a move on the part of merchants in Cartwright, Manitoba, that is unique in the history of Canadian retailing methods. They have formed themselves into a joint stock company and pooled their entire interests. Different lines of goods have been confined to separate stores, and with their large buying power the company will be able to secure quite a substantial advantage. To curtail credits a coupon system has been inaugurated. A customer—if he has settled up his back account—may secure a book of coupons entitling him to so much credit, and in return he must give his note, which bears no interest until after a date in the Fall when farmers should have plenty of ready cash. Cash coupon books are issued also. A discount of two per cent. is allowed on $10, three per cent. on $25, and five per cent. on $50. The plan has only been in operation a short time, and cash sales have improved noticeably. When the announcement of amalgamation was first made public there were cries of "combine," and many people talked of sending to Eaton's in Winnipeg for all their goods ; some even threatened to start another store. The merchants, however, met all arguments squarely and there is now a disposition to give them a fair trial. They are told that prices will be cheaper for the reason that purchases can be made in larger quantities, and that is thoroughly satisfactory.

We would not advocate the emulation of this plan, except where extreme conditions exist, as they no doubt did here. The retailers of Cartwright were fortunate in having no local jealousies strong enough to place serious obstacles in the way of organization.

In Havelock, Ontario, a merchant recently went into liquidation. He attributes his failure to the credit system and the habit people of the community have formed of buying from catalogue houses. The local paper makes this reference to the matter : "The practice of purchasing out of town is bound to seriously injure the expansion and prosperity of any village or town. It has grown to big proportions in Havelock, and is indulged in by people who gain their substance and livelihood from this place and people, whose incomes or salaries depend, to a large extent upon the prosperity of the village. If every business man in our town could operate on a strictly cash system it would be a blessing to all. If we all had to pay cash we would learn to live within our means. It would save business men the expense of book-keepers and loss through bad debts, all of which someone has to pay for."

These two instances tell eloquently the story of how keen catalogue house competition has become, especially in the towns and villages, and gives a good indication of what would happen if the big catalogue houses were,permitted to send goods through the country more cheaply than they are now doing.

We again counsel retailers to study their natural advantages, improve their general methods of doing business, get as close to the cash basis as possible, use descriptive advertising, and carry larger assortments of goods in smaller quantities.

The successful combat of mail order business is not an impossibility by any means, as may be illustrated by a visit to a number of small towns that we know of. The stores have been improved, modern methods adopted, better stocks carried, and, in consequence, people are not sending away for goods nearly so much as they used to.

THE SCARCITY OF LABOR.

The knitting industry in Canada is in a prosperous condition, but there is a decided scarcity of labor in all of its branches. Additional mills are to be established, which means a still greater demand for help. In this connection it is interesting to note that an employment bureau has been established in London, England, by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, for the benefit of its members. It will be used principally for the securing of skilled labor, and already there are over five hundred applications in hand. Employers who make use of it will be charged a fee, which is calculated to make the bureau self-sustaining.

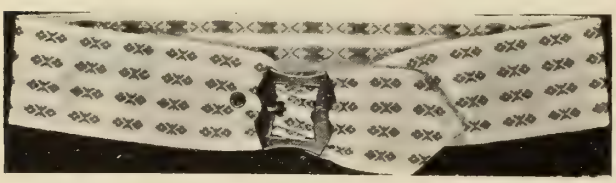
A merchant has inquired of The Review if the retailers' business would suffer from the new clause in the traffic allowing gift articles, on which the duty would not ordinarily be over 50 cents, to come in free. We assured him that he need fear no injury to his business from this source.

B. D. A. Mohairs and Secilliennes will figure largely in the new season's fashions. The B. D. A. Brand is the quality mark of Mohairs, as necessary to their good reputation as "pure silk" is to taffeta.

These goods are worthy of any company because of their beautiful patterns and the splendid colorings and suppleness and lustre given them by the B. D. A. processes of dyeing and finishing.

Women look for style in a fabric, but they wisely demand service with it. They get both qualities in Bradford Dyed Mohairs. Every Merchant who carries them earns profits and reputations with every sale.

BRADFORD DYERS' ASSOCIATION



BRADFORD, ENGLAND

FANCY GOODS AND NOTIONS

Prospects are very bright for the fancy goods and notions branch of the trade, and there has been little between-seasons dullness felt this year in the houses carrying this class of goods. For just as soon as the new year opened, substantial orders, many for immediate shipment, began to come in, and an active business has been in progress ever since. This activity covers not only the later novelties, but extends to practically all staple lines.

* * *

For a long time now fancy combs have been a prominent and profitable line, and the fact that very decided style changes are promised should be a big help to the comb business this Spring. Changes in hat fashions, and consequent changes in the manner of wearing the hair are responsible. Fashion seems bent upon forcing the Empire styles, and the coiffure must now be arranged in some manner that approaches the way in which the hair was dressed at that period. In front it must be full and fluffy, and the back high. With this coiffure a single large comb is worn, placed directly in the middle of the back, and below the rolls, loops, or twist of hair. The high Empire comb is coming into vogue, but combs with a deep high band are much worn, as they are not quite so extreme as the Empire. Shell and amber are both good, with shell, as usual, leading in the volume of sales. Jet is decidedly good, and is favored by those who do not mind paying the price. From a style point of view, the comb of carved shell leads, and that, with the metal and stone mount is losing its hold, though the ones set with stones still continue in favor. The tendency, however, is towards the all-shell comb, and besides fancy carvings, balls, olives, etc., many of considerable size, are used to decorate the fashionable Empires.

Novelty Wash Belt—Shown by Ladies' Wear.

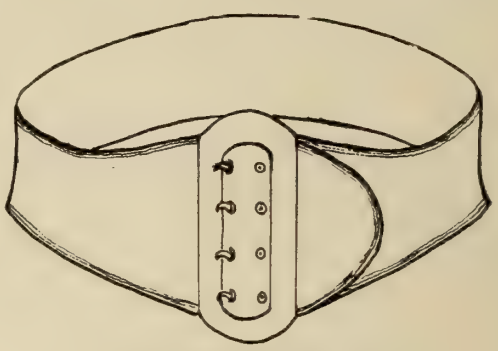
* * *



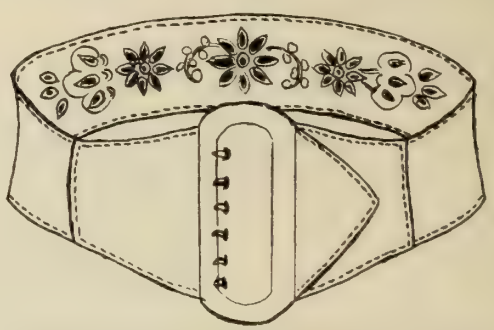
Another novelty that should sell well in the jewelry section is the fancy veil pin and veil fastener, for there are quite a number of them on the market. The pins are of the fancy oar variety, and are long and narrow. The veil is draped over the hat and the ends pinned to the hair at the back by one of these pins or fasteners. They come chiefly in rolled gold and in art nouveau designs.

* * *

Hat pins are to be a big feature this season, and as they must harmonize with the hat, a good business should be done. They are of extra large size, generally in the ball or large oval order, and they come in pearl, shell, amber, gold, silver, oxadized, porclain, enamelled metal, jet, crystal and colored glass and many other kinds. The variety of materials is great, but one shape, the large ball head, predominates.

* * *

The mesh bag of metal, particularly of gold, is a big seller. Gun-metal takes the next place, and then silver.



Tailored Style Duck Belt—Shown in New York.

Some of the later ideas show a mixture, and those of gun-metal and silver are highly attractive. Bead bags are still on the crest of the wave, and many beautiful ideas are introduced for the Summer trade. Flower, particularly rose patterns, copies of those our great grandmothers used to work, are very popular, as are also conventional designs worked out in tinted beads.

* * *

The belt line is a big and a varied one. There is a big showing of wash belts of duck, linen, etc., both plain and embroidered, and though the straight band is much in evidence, there is a decided tendency towards a belt with more graceful curves. The belts we illustrate show what is now regarded as good style in the New York market. The shaping of the ends is important, and besides the spoon-bill effect shown in our illustrations, other graceful shapes are used. The gilt buckle goes on lines where a price has to be made, but the pearl buckle is the thing this year. Shapes vary, but the oblong and oval buckles are best liked, and some of the more expensive ones are carved. Plain taffeta belts, lined and interlined, are made in the same style as the wash belts, and the same and similar shapes are shown in New York made of gold cloth, lined with moire. A novelty taffeta belt

Embroidered Wash Belt, Tailored Style—Shown in New York.

Women Prefer the Duchess Hoop

"Seeing through the merits of the Duchess"

for embroidering, because it holds thick or thin fabrics tightly stretched, without injury to the work, and has no metal about it to rust and stain the material, nor any attachments to catch the silks.

Duchess Hoops are made in sizes 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10 and 12 inch diameters.

It's the felt band on the Duchess Hoop that holds equally firm light or heavy fabrics and renders slipping impossible.

Made from light-colored hardwood, very smooth and true in circle.

Are you one of the 18,000 merchants handling this quick-selling and profitable notion article? If not, don't fail to stock it.

The dealers who carry the Duchess Hoops in the full assortment of sizes, and give them prominent display are getting the business.

Any jobber can supply you. Order to-day.

Also makers of the "Princess," "Royal Oval" and "Special-Select" Embroidery Hoops.

The GIBBS MFG. CO. CANTON, OHIO, U.S.A.

JULIAN SALE
LEATHER BELTS

FOR LADIES In absolutely new styles and new leathers.

FOR MEN Every belt is perfectly finished on the edges. We have our own special designs in buckles.

FOR CHILDREN New ideas in "Buster Belts," in combinations of colors and new shapes and buckles.

The JULIAN SALE
LEATHER GOODS CO., Limited
105 King Street West, TORONTO.

Tuck's

Easter Cards

Easter Post Cards

Easter Novelties

Easter Booklets

The Largest Variety and Best Selling Line in the Market.

RETAILING FROM

One Cent

TO

One Dollar

Raphael Tuck & Sons Company

LIMITED

9-17 St. Antoine Street

MONTREAL

LONDON PARIS BERLIN NEW YORK

shown in the same line, was of rows of pin tucking bound and stitched and shaped by featherbone stays. This belt was shown in different colors and had a five-inch-high buckle of gold, nickel or black. Elastics are well to the fore and many of them have kid covered buckles, also studded with steel points. Fancy belts come in many styles, some of the best of which show pretty generous touches of tinsel, both silver and gold. There is a wide variety shown in leather and kid belts, and a novelty here is the many buckles covered to match, and studded with steel rivets, the same as the body of the belt. Japanese embossed leather in both white and tan, and in floral and other patterns, is a new feature in belt lines. Though there is a wide choice, harness buckles in the oblong and oval shapes, and with jeweler's prongs, in gilt, gun-metal, nickel, silver and pearl, and covered either with kid or other material are in highest favor. Embroidered effects, particularly in wash lines, are a big thing this season.

Empire Comb of Carved Shell.

* * *

There is much that is novel in fancy goods which should be added to the attractive retail store. House renovating time is coming on and the fancy housefurnishings should be given special attention. Fancy tablecloths of silk have recently taken a popular hold and should be well displayed in the department. Metal ware ornaments of bronze and antimony are always good property for Spring business. Table doilies of silk and linen are among the lines which will be sought this Spring. Piano drapes are better property than ever before and many large retailers have secured a better assortment than ever, realizing that they go far in perfecting the department.

High Back Comb.

DILIGENT SERVICES REWARDED.

An instance of modern progressive methods in business was given recently by the China and Japan Silk Co., Limited, of Toronto and Montreal. This firm has been in business since June, 1904, and at the commencement of the present year an interest in the business was given to the following young men who have been with the company since its formation: J. F. Hughes, G. H. Taylor, W. R. Moreland and Thos. Drummond. It is understood it is the intention to give an interest to others as they show their worthiness.

MANSON, REDMAN & WALDER.

An Ontario charter has been granted Manson, Redman & Walder, Limited, Toronto, with a capital of $40,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were, Alex. P. Manson and Robert Walder, merchants; Harry W. Redman, traveler, and Annie Manson and Maggie Walder, married women, all of Toronto, and Ruby Wolff, of Hamilton, married woman. The object of the company is "to manufacture, import and sell all kinds of stationery, pictures, fancy goods, dry goods, jewelry, gold and silver novelties and wares, and gold and silver plated wares and novelties.

D. J. Nicklin, who has represented The Leak Fur Manufacturing Co., of Canada, Limited, Montreal, in Western Ontario, will cover the Maritime Provinces this year for the same house.

Owing to the fire which damaged adjoining buildings (although no damage was done to his own goods) a New York state merchant has claimed from his insurance companies $1,000, because of the loss which might occur to him from people thinking his goods might be damaged.

Make Your FIXTURES
SELL GOODS

YOU WILL NEED NEW
MANTLE RACKS
MILLINERY STANDS
and WAX FIGURES to display your
EASTER NOVELTIES

Our FORMS are of LATEST SHAPES and MOST ARTISTIC

British and French Plate MIRRORS (all sizes)

SILENT SALESMEN, Showcases and everything for the Effective Display of Goods.

A Post Card will bring you our large Catalogue Free.

Beautiful Metal Mantle Racks four styles, at $9.00, $10.00 $11.00 and $12.00.

CLATWORTHY & SON
38-40, West Adelaide
TORONTO - ONTARIO

Some Trade Matters of Wide Interest

Discussed by Retiring President of Toronto Board of Trade — Freight Rates, Anti-Dumping Law, Etc.

At the annual meeting of the Toronto Board of Trade, Peleg Howland, the retiring president, discussed several matters of wide interest. Following are some extracts from his address :

"Comment is timely on the deplorable revelations made during the past year by the investigations into some of our commercial, financial, insurance and political affairs. While doubtless periods of prosperity and specu lation must have accompanying evils of this kind, the conclusion cannot be avoided that they are also fostered by paternalism, whether taking the form of protection by customs duties, by bonuses, national or other, or of sumptuary laws that tend to make the individual lean on Government help for his rate of wages, his profits or for the safety of his investments, to the weakening of the sturdy independence, self-reliance and toughness of fibre which is of such essential importance. The lesson taught in my opinion, is against any attempt to effect a cure by further adding to the criminal code, increasing the list of restrictions or by making Government still more responsible.

Opposed to Preferential Treatment.

"It may perhaps be proper for me to say here that personally I do not favor the resolution urging preferen tial treatment of our products in the Old Country, nor that indicating that Canada should contribute to the de fence of the Empire, feeling as I do that we are able to progress without favors, and believing that entanglements must arise from any attempt to alter our rela tions to the mother country or to make contributions without representation, with the grave danger of our either breaking away entirely or losing that measure of independence which is of so much importance to us.

Freight Rates.

"In regard to representations made before the Rail way Commission that an investigation should be made into the freight rates of Ontario, and that there is a discrimination in favor of Montreal in the rates to points both east and west of Toronto, no judgment has yet been given.

"The conclusion is forced that the commission has not the necessary expert assistance to get through its work, and I would advocate representations to the Government for such changes as will make the commis sion more efficient, including the extension of it jurisdic tion to Dominion Government railways, which are now, in my opinion, improperly exempt. The question of rates and of discrimination is of more importance to the people at large than the rights of one railroad to cross another, or matters of a similar nature which seem to chiefly occupy the attention of the commissioners.

"The railroads have recently submitted to the commission schedules of rates for merchandise bound inward from many places in the United States; they are substantially higher than those now existing, and their adoption is suggested in order to overcome the discrepancy in the rate existing from American and Canadian places on the border, those from the latter being now much higher. The co-operation of the manufacturers is sought by placing certain of their raw materials on a special basis, which will mean practically no advance. Generally speaking, however, their adoption will mean higher freights for merchants and consumers on inward stuff from the United States. A protest has been entered against these being considered at all until a general and thorough inquiry be made into the fairness of the rates now existing throughout Ontario. Any adjustment of rates upward should be resisted by every possible means.

Commission Raises Rates.

"I would also call attention to the arrangements existing between railroads which prevent them from competing in rates with one another. Such combinations are surely as harmful as arrangements affecting the prices of commodities, and are as much entitled to be forbidden by law. The Railway Commission has undoubtedly up to the present been an aid to these freight associations, and has served to increase rather than reduce the rates, thus helping to add to the revenue of the railroads, and it is questionable if the uniformity obtained is a compensation to the people generally for the additional cost of the service.

Unfair Discrimination.

"The custom of charging the ordinary shipper from various centres in the northwest in some instances more than double the rates given to wholesale dealers located in those centres shipping to traders, and which is a factor in the many difficulties experienced by the eastern merchant in getting into that country with his goods, still exists, and should have the attention of the commission at once. An eastern merchant shipping to—I will say Calgary—a carload of goods to a distributing agent to be broken up and reshipped to various consignees at points in the neighborhood, must be on a list as carrying stock in Calgary, and the consignees must be traders before these consignees can get the benefit pf the so-called traders' rates, otherwise being charged the ordinary class rates. The following examples of these rates, given as existing on January 5 last, will give an idea of before these consignees can get the benefit of the so-called class rates which are paid by the ordinary shipper or consignee, the figures being per hundred pounds :

"Calgary to Revelstoke : Class rates—First, $1.35 ; second, $1.13 ; third 90c.; fourth, 68c. Trade rates—First class—64c.; second, 55c.; third, 45c.; fourth, 37c. Calgary to Fernie, B.C.: Class rates—First, $1.27; second, $1.06; third, 85c.; fourth, 64c. Traderss' rates—First class, 61c.; second, 53c.; third, 44c.; fourth, 37c.

"Similar conditions exist at Winnipeg, Brandon, Re gina, etc., though the differences are not so extreme. This system meets with the favor of the local wholesale merchant, as it protects him from his eastern competitor, and also of the retailer in the smaller towns, as he is in his turn protected, the tendency being to force the consumer to patronize the nearby merchant. It is improper, however, and contrary to the principle upon which the charters are granted. It is not practised in the east, the tendency here being rather to give the advantage, if any, to the more distant place. It should be stopped.

Reciprocal Demurrage.

"The country suffers every year from a shortage of cars and from the inability of the railroads to move promptly the rolling stock they are able to supply. This year the trouble has been particualry serious, and has been felt by all classes of the business community, being one of the causes of the scarcity of money. The railroads now very properly enforce demurrage charges on customers detaining cars over a certain specified time, but are under no penalty themselves if shipments remain in their possession longer than is reasonable. Any system of reciprocal demurrage will be vigorously opposed by the railroads and many strong arguments will be used against it. It seems reasonable, however, to think that what works well in one way should in the other, and that its adoption might lead to such exertion on the part of the companies as will overcome, at least to some extent the evil complained of. The system has already been advocated by board, and it is well worthy of further consideration.

Anti-Dumping Law Unfair.

"The attention of the Toronto Board of Trade Council has recently been called to the anti-dumping clause in the custom tariff, the application of which is being extended at the present session of Parliament. I cannot urge too strongly that the matter be thoroughly investigated. A regulation that restricts a merchant's right to buy as cheap as his ability and capital will permit, and penalize him if he does exercise such ability by requiring, besides the regular duty, the payment in the shape of special duty on any concession he can obtain in price below what the authorities fix as the home value of the goods in the country of export up to fifteen per cent. of such home value, and compels the taking of such an oath as the following—"That no arrangement or understanding affecting the purchase price of the said goods has been or will be made or entered into between the said importer and the exporter, or by anyone on behalf of either of them, other than as shown in the said invoices, either by way of discount, rebate, salary, compensation or in any other manner whatsoever," which forms a part of the oath taken on the entry of goods for consumption —approaches too nearly to despotism, surely, to be borne by this community, and is besides calculated, as the oath suggests, to encourage fraud and dishonesty, and is not in the interest of the consumer. In my opinion, as a restriction on trade, no combination can compare with it. If the manufacturer requires more protection it should be afforded him in some less objectionable way."

New York Millinery

What New York Accepts of the Paris Fads — Picturesque Easter Parade Promised.

It is almost attempting the impossible, this trying to describe the new French hats Words can do little or nothing, for it is not so much the hats themselves as the manner in which they are worn much counts. To begin with, bandeaux are not nearly as extreme, and the majority encircle the entire head size, for the tendency of most of the models is to set way back on the head. It is only for wearing them this way that the pot shape hats become possible at all, for otherwise the head would seem to be quite buried under its burden, and the hair entirely hidden. Naturally there will be modifications of the Empire hat, and yet to judge from the models which were not only shown, but sold at the first and second displays among the importers, the most extreme Empire effects will be in high favor. One thing is certain, with the Empire gown, the of which is now assured, the large poke and bowl-shaped models of the same period are most consistent.

Large crowns and brims, wide and of a decided downward tendency, are among the salient features. There are pressed and hand-made hats with huge balloon crowns, and there hats of straw and other material with full crowns of lace, net, silk, or of ribbon. For these purposes nothing is prettier than the wide Dresden sash ribbons, which make charming crowns when veiled with figured net, or lace. The lighter weight laces, such as chantilly all-over, Valenciennes and Princess are used in preference to Irish crochet or Arabian laces. Point d'esprit and figured or dotted silk nets are charming for this purpose. With such voluminous crowns it would seem as if little or no trimming was required besides, but flowers, feathers and ribbon are lavishly used.

Flower crowns are very strong. There are lovely effects possible with June roses and lilies of the valley, lilacs and roses, wistaria, hyacinth, sweet peas and daisies. Field flowers are used in abundance—poppies, corn flowers and lovely grasses, with dandelions and even berries. Poppies and cherries were combined on one Empire poke which was toned down by the introduction of a large bow of black faille ribbon set well toward the back as most bows are. I would mention daisies, in all colors, as being especially strong. They are used in tight bands or loosely nodding on ther stems, in much the same manner as roses were used last season and are to be again this year. Comparatively few violets are seen. It is not the color, apparently, which is handicapping them, since lilacs, wistaria and other flowers on the amethyst, mauve and violet shades are in evidence. Undoubtedly the rose will remain the favorite, but lilacs, lilies of the valley and daisies are by no means to be overlooked when buying your flowers.

Ostrich is always worn in Paris, even in the warmest weather, and each Spring one sees more and more of it in New York. It is only natural that this season should be no exception, since Empire models call for high feather arrangements, and this in turn gives an excellent excuse for the introduction of a handsome ornament. Those of rhinestones, set in bands of metal or pearl, are the favorites. Indeed, so much lace and flowers and feathers and ribbons and ornaments are loaded on to such huge frames, that the result is formidable and heavy in effect, instead of light airy as befitting the season. Very wide ribbons are fashionable. These are bowed or "scruntched" into small places, but howsoever handled, the handsomest and widest of ribbons are necessary if one wishes to obtain the best results. Plain silk ribbon, soft or glace are the preference, excepting for the fancy crown foundations already mentioned.

As for the straws—all weaves are in favor. Unquestionable leghorns will lead for the dress hat Pan amas are shown not only for the midsummer outing hat, but for the early dress hat. Many are colored, Empire green, rose and bronze being particularly in favor. Milans are scarce, owing to the enormous demand for this serviceable straw. Suit hats and high class tailored hats are mostly of Milan. Neapolitans and pyroxilines, especially in hoods, are shown. From these is made the airship hat, which is the novelty of novelties of the season. There are of course, many varieties of the airship but they are all small, draped affairs made of these double hoods. At last the flat hat appears to have been ousted, not by the high crown but by the balloon and huge tam-o-shanter effects which are characteristic of the Empire revival. As for color, bronze, golden brown and the apricot shades lead, but that is by no means to the exclusion of all other shades. The white lingerie model is already shown, but seldom without color, either in the flower or ribbon decoration.

An Empire Model—With Crown of Princess Lace

A Striking Model—Rough Bronze, Green Straw and 22-in. Plume

The Empire model shown is extreme, of course, but not conspicuously so since hats of this character are shown on all sides. I have chosen this particular model for several reasons, other than that the shape in itself is worth picturing. A fine Milan is used, mounted on a bandau, filled in with brown maline. The crown is a large full tam affair made of

Rose-Trimmed Picture Hat in the new Bronze Browns

Princess lace and in order to avoid confusion in your minds as to the kind of lace Princess lace is, I was glad to be able to show a picture of a handsome sample of this very fashionable mesh. Then, too, the ribbon is a novelty. It is a soft faille with a thread of silver interwoven, a novelty which appears on not a few of the handsomest importations. The arrangement speaks for itself, and will give you an idea of how the back trimmings look, after so long an absence. The roses, of the palest pink are nested in the lace at either side. and also toward the back, so that at least this hat is consistent, which is something in these days of go-as-you-please millinery.

The rose-trimmed picture hat is in the new bronze browns. A wide mesh net is used for the crown, while the wire frame is veiled, first with chiffon and then with the net put on full. Six large pinkish tan roses with foliage and blues are arranged among the net. A bon

Buyers of Millinery Goods

WE ARE
SOLE MANUFACTURERS OF THE
"ORB" BRAND HATS

The "ORB" straw factory at Luton is The Largest in the World

In Staple and Fancy Lines we show the best of everything at prices that are sure to interest Canadian buyers.

SAMPLES SHIPPED to the retail trade on supplying usual trade references, description and quality of goods open for.

Will find it to their advantage to make our acquaintance and see what we are offering in

Millinery, Flowers, Feathers
Ribbons, Velvets, Ornaments

We specialize in

MEN'S and BOYS' STRAW HATS
BOYS' JACK TARS
and LADIES' PARIS FASHIONS
in Straws, etc.

VYSE, SONS & CO.
LIMITED
76 Wood St., LONDON, ENG.
LUTON, PARIS AND BRUSSELS

of brown velvet ribbon, with ends reaching half way to the waist, finishes the back.

I am sorry that the third picture gives such a poor idea of the hat which really had many unusual features. The shape, to begin with, is quite new, the brim having a downward tendency, excepting at the left side, where it turns back rather abruptly. The rough bronze-green straw is effective, and when I tell you that the plume is twenty-two inches long, is very full and of the most illusive bronze-blue-green shades, and that the velvet ribbon is cherry color, you may get some vague idea of how striking a model this is. The plume is wired to stand out from the back at a most ultra angle, and rather tight strap-like bands hold it to the hat as shown in the photograph. These models were imported by Mathille Spiege and give a very general idea of the picturesque trend of th present day millinery.

Instead of looking like the proverbial fashion plate, the Easter girl of 1907 will look as if she had just stepped from a frame, for if ever fashion were a delight to the artist eye it is now when color and line combine to make up a harmonious whole, and when, from the tips of her dainty bronze shoes, to the topmost feather of her wide picture hat, the Easter girl is in every truth a picture come to life.

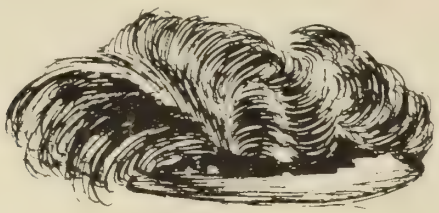
NELLIE GUNN McCLELLAND.

TORONTO BOARD OF TRADE OFFICERS.

The annual election of officers of the Toronto Board of Trade resulted as follows: President, R. C. Steele; 1st vice-president, Lionel H. Clarke; 2nd vice-president, J. P. Watson; treasurer, J. W. Woods; council, J. D. Allan, Henry Brock, R. J. Christie, R. A. Donald, Peleg Howland, Mark H. Irish, John D. Ivey, H. Langlois, H. McQuillan, J. C. McKeggie, David Plewes, O. F. Rice, James Ryrie, Chas. B. Watts, and W. A. Wilson. Board of Arbitration, Hugh Baird, John Carrick, A. Cavanagh, John Firstbrook, Thomas Flynn, R. Dawson Harding, F. W. Hay, F. C. Jarvis, W. D. Matthews, A. C. McLeod, W. M. Stark and D. W. Spink. Industrial Exhibition, S. E. Briggs, D. O. Ellis, Geo. H. Gooderham, Noel Marshall and Joseph Oliver. Harbor Board, W. H. Pearson, jr., and J. T. Mathews.

A NEW IDEA.

David Spencer, Limited, Victoria, B.C., adopted an idea in connection with the Christmas and New Year's trade, which they say, made a big hit. They issued scrip to any desired amount, redeemable at their stores in Victoria, Vancouver, and Nanaimo. The point is that instead of purchasing gifts that appeared to be suitable and might not be, customers could buy scrip to the same value, and the recipients could make purchases to suit themselves. The novelty of the plan would, no doubt, appeal to numbers of people, but by patronizing it one would lose most of the fun and excitement conected with holiday gift-hunting, a fact which, to our mind, precludes the possibility of its becoming generally popular.



The Intercolonial Railway Company has issued a new edition of their map of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. The map is tastefully colored, clearly printed and contains along the margin views of interesting scenes along the route of the famous Maritime express. They will be pleased to send one free of charge to any reader of this paper upon request to J. J. McConiff, city passenger agent, Montreal.

Paris Fashions

By A. E. DACAM, for "Dry Goods Review."

All New Millinery Models Small, Although it is Admitted that Large Shapes Will be Much Worn.

It has been noticed that for the last two or three seasons all the earliest milliners' models were small shapes, and not till the season was well launched did the large forms make their appearance in any number. This year seems to be no exception to the general rule. Every one admits that large "cloche" or mushroom, directoire,

No. I—Black Crin and Feathers and eccentric picture hats are likely to be very much worn, and yet almost all the new models are small. The hat that predominates all others has a round brim, rather narrower in front than at the back and sides. This is bent down, forming "cloche" with the curve accentuated behind, and the crown is of the low sailor kind. Instead of being just bent down some of the brims are also indented and have a fluted effect. The calottes of velvet and silk that have had such a success this winter are being continued in spotted net and tulle, also many of the straw models are showing the same full, indented crowns, carried out in the straw itself, and "crin" being easy to manipulate, adapts itself well to this style. The "Tonkinoise" (sketch I.) is a round shape without a crown, the brim curving downwards, resembling a mushroom. The trimming, in this instance, consists of a bunch of four feathers shaded fawn and

No. 2—Navy Blue Crin, Trimmed Green Glace Ribbon and Feathers

brown to harmonize with the "crin mordore" of which the hat is made; the "entree de tete" is formed by means of a round "barrette" placed underneath and resting on the hair, covered with "mordore" tulle. The trimming of such a model as this can be caried in an infinity of ways. Without doubt all ribbons, plain colored pompadour and flowered will be much employed, but taffetas will also have an important part to play, at least until well into the summer. They are employed for the crown of toques, arranged in neat folds. The straw, which forms the brim, is often so sheeny and of such soft shades that it looks like narrow bands of velvet loosely braided. Another mode of employing the taffetas is in narrow tucks. Bands of this form insertion round the straw brim or edge, the angle of a sailor crown being about an inch wide round the top and another inch down the side. The "plumes de fantasie" also are very far from extinction and will be worn all through the Spring and probably Autumn. Feathers from almost every bird in creation seem to be employed, arranged together absolutely regardless of the laws of natural history, and dyed a tint to match or harmonize with the hat it is to decorate. Many of the brilliant shades employed would make a humming bird look pale.

No. 4—Paille-de-Riz Mordere and Red Ribbon

No. II. is of navy blue "crin" with the round brim slightly curved up in front. The trimming consists of a simple drapery of green glace ribbon, run through a strass buckle and a fantaisie consisting of a bird's head and wings and two large ostrich feather tips.

No. IV., in fine "paille de riz" mordore, considerably raised from the head on the left, is trimmed with a draped band of dull red ribbon, toning well with the brown of the hat, immense loops of the same falling on the crown and continuing into the hair at the back. This is a very good Spring model of the class of hat known as "pour tout aller."

No. V. is a Summer hat of very fine straw in its natural shade. This is turned quite down at the back, and turned back at the angle between the front and left side. Large bunches of white lilac and green leaves surround the low crown, while two pink roses nestle just by the raised brim in front. A straw colored tulle scarf is fastened under the flowers and brought forward over the shoulder.

No. VI., another Summer style, is also in natural colored straw, embellished with a heavy wreath of shaded roses, a bunch of the same being repeated under the left brim, raising it well up.

No. VII., which is a demi-saison hat, is carried out in raspberry-colored crin with a band of bordeaux-colored taffetas drawn round the crown. The edging of the brim is the same taffetas but arranged in narrow pleats. The "cache-peign" at the back is covered with a large choux of raspberry and bordeaux tulle, while at the side is posed a fantaisie bird called "manteau-de-velours" with a long panache of plumes carrying out the two colors.

A few models with high crown are showing, but they are not likely to become general, while another hat, introduced by an actress on the stage, and which seems to have captured a certain amount of public favor, is a large directoire shape with flopping brim except in the front, where it is turned sharply back and fastened under a choux of satin ribbon and two stiff quills. A band of ribbon drapes the crown. It will be noticed that hats are of many colors and large veils are being made in almost every conceivable shade to be worn with them. These large falls, about four foot, eight inches long and fourteen inches wide, are made of lace or tulle, malines or Chantilly, edged with a narrow lace of the same tone or small velvet bands, a narrow plisse of tulle or satin ribbon, but the lace or tulle edging gives the best results. These veils fall from the brim of the hat in straight lines, not touching the face and reaching to the shoulder. At the back they are lightly fastened and the two ends fall free over the hair. It does not seem to be necessary to have a costume to match the head-dress; provided the colors do not absolutely clash, perfect liberty is allowed.

No. 5—Fine Straw, Natural Tint, Trimed White Lilac and Pink Roses. Saffron Colored Tulle Scarf

There seems to be no falling off in the popularity of silks for gowns and costumes. The taffeta of to-day is so soft and agreeable to work, adapting itself to almost any style, that the couturieres themselves would cling to its use even if the clients wanted more novelty, which is far from being the case. The newest designs for cloths and dress materials are very neat, falling into small checks, vague plaids or minute stripes forming vertical bands. Even the flowered goods, with the exception of the pompadour, seem to be neater than their predecessors.

It is confidently expected that this season will be a

No. 6—Natural Colored Straw and Shaded Roses record one for laces and goods of a lacy finish. The plain slip covered by a lace or net blouse is likely to be much worn all through the Summer. In expensive goods Irish lace will be used as much as ever, trimmed with finer laces, such as Cluny, valenciennes and malines. A movement is being made in favor of Breton laces; with their straight borders they are excellent trimming and wash to perfection. A pretty tulle blouse is almost covered with frills of this lace and with very good effect, but I am told that, although a thread lace it cannot be very successfully imitated and therefore is not likely to have any wide popularity. The wide lace scarfs that are being used now for evening wear will certainly continue their sway for some time longer. These scarfs are made in almost any light material such as mousseline-de-soie, crepe-de-chine, and in some instances are plentifull embellished with beads and sequins, with hemstitched or

No. 7—Raspberry Colored Taffetas and Bordeaux Ribbon

frilled ends, but the most practical ones are made of lace or tulle. In the event of the latter being used an edging of plissed ruffles of the same is very general and looks particularly well.

The Canadian Millinery Review

The Spring Millinery

Shapes and Materials, as Seen at the Openings—Nine-tenths of Hats Have Drooping Brims.

Empire styles certainly have arrived in millinery lines, and the poke and mushroom effects have impressed themselves deeply on the new models. Practically nine-tenths of the Spring hats have deooping brims and the eleventh-hour development is in the direction of much higher crowns. Millinery is more picturesque than ever, and the treatment and trimmings are dainty in the extreme. A feature also is the strong dividing line between the suit and the dress hat. For the exclusive trade ostrich, paradise and a host of other waving and expensive plume effects are used, the fashionable feathers being immense and expensive. Very long flues are fashionable and to gain this effect they are pieced. Coque feathers are much used and prices are soaring. The quills wings and birds used are immensely large, particular preference being given to pheasant feathers in all shades. Wings and feathers will be combined with flowers on the new Spring hats.

No. 23.—Napoleon Shape. Hand-Made. Draped Brim of Straw Braid, Wings Same Material, and Looped Taffeta Ribbon on Bandeau. Assorted Colors.

"MABEL."—Tailored Ready-to-Wear, in Milan, Neatly Trimmed with Quills, Ribbon and Velvet. White Only.

No. 17.—High Side Toque. Hand-Made. Entirely of Straw Braid, Caught at Left Side With Gold Ornament.

SHOWN BY THE D. McCALL COMPANY, LIMITED.

One is tempted to say that the rose is almost the

NO MENTION need be made to assure the trade of the popularity of the Rose in the Trimming of Headgear this season.

IT IS THE BIG FEATURE in Flowers. We will draw your attention, with a few illustrations, to show what we are able to do for you.

No. 103. $2.95 per dozen

No. 103. Two roses, with foliage. Colors, White, Cream, Pink, Sky, Damask, Tuscan, Ruby, Old Rose, Coral. Per doz..... $2.95

No. 102. $2.00 per dozen

No. 102. Three roses, with foliage. Colors, White, Cream, Pink, Sky, Damask, Tuscan, Ruby, Old Rose, Coral. Per doz..... $2.00

No. 48. $2.00 per dozen

No. 48. Colors, White, Cream, Tuscan, Sky, Pink, Ruby, Cardinal, Damask, Vieux Rose, Castor, Heliotrope. Half doz. in packet. Per doz. packets $2.00

No. 49. $3.00 per dozen

No. 49. Colors, White, Cream, Tuscan, Sky, Pink, Ruby, Cardinal, Damask, Vieux Rose, Castor, Heliotrope. Half dozen in packet. Per doz. packets..$3.00

No. 802. $4.80 per dozen. Silk Roses

No. 802. Colors, White, Cream, Pink, Sky, Tuscan, Damask, Vieux Rose, Reseda, Wine, Heliotrope and Fancy Pastel Shades. Quarter dozen in packet. Per dozen packets $4.80

No. 50. $2.25 per dozen

No. 50. Colors, White, Cream, Sky, Pink, Tuscan, Champagne, Vieux Rose, Damask, Brown, Cardinal. Per doz. $2.25

The Assortment in all Departments Up-to-the-minute. No delay in Filling Orders

THE HOUSE FAMED FOR MILLINERY

THE D. McCALL CO., LIMITED

TORONTO

Winnipeg Ottawa Quebec

sole flower used. It certainly is queen, and is most lavishly used in all colors and sizes. There is also a good representation of other flowers, notably daisies. These and clover, wild rose, etc., combined with long grasses, are much used. Wisteria in all colors, but more particularly in soft pearly pinks, is a favored flower. Sweet peas and convolvuli are also flowers that are frequently seen. Hats are simply loaded with flowers, and the whole crown of blooms is a big feature. Trails and wreaths of roses or of mixed blooms, are frequently seen. Indeed most hats have trails or streamers, not just of flowers alone, but of ribbons or lace or net. Ferns and grasses are the favored foliage effects.

Velvet ribbons are most effectively used on all hats whether flower or feather trimmed, and black velvet ribbon is much seen on the many flat, flaring-brimmed hats, or in colors for the bandeaux trimming of the smaller type of hat.

"DOROTHY."—Semi-Dress Sailor. Can be had in Plain Colors, Also in Combination With Tuscan Braid. Shown by the D. McCall Company, Limited.

Ribbons are used in profusion, and the fashionable range is a wide one. Plain ribbons, taffeta, faille tine, satin duchesse, in all colors and shades are good. Then there are gorgeous Dresdens and warp prints, and brilliant plaids and clan tartans. Stripes are in high favor and quadrilles and cross-bars are shown in various colorings. Roman stripes are also in the lead. Maline is much used and the maline and lace hat promises to be a Summer development. Large rhinestone buckles that sparkle brilliantly are seen on many of the latest hats, but the chief ornaments are the big hatpins, the ball heads of which are becoming immense.

Besides the Empire and mushroom models a great variety of picturesque, flaring-brim hats are worn. These are very graceful models. Many are seen with the short front and wide back, and while lifting off the face at the sides there is a decided droop at the back. There is an immense number of sailor shapes, and these will be extremely popular here, more popular perhaps than the more extreme and exaggerated ones. The shepherdess is another good model, and there are also a goodly number of turban shapes.

A decided change has been made in the poise of the hat. It is worn more off the face and sets more squarely upon the head. The angle, however, may be changed to suit the wearer. Bandeaux as a rule are flatter. Some, while raising the hat in front, taper off to nothing at the back, and some of the more extreme hats have no bandeaux at all.

Chip is the leading straw here, but the supply is short. Crin, peroxaline, leghorn, Tuscan, Javas, etc., are all wanted, but the latest development is in favor of rougher straws. They will not amount to much this season, perhaps, but are an indication for another Spring.

Leather Shades. Banana Plume and Yellow, Black and White Daisies.

Burnt Straw. Olive Green Velvet, Shaded Pansies and Wing.

The Openings in Toronto

From early morning until late in the afternoon the show rooms of the millinery houses were crowded with visiting milliners and others connected with the trade, and this in spite of the fact that many buyers came to town unusually early and left the city before the actual openings took place.

When The Review representative visited the warehouse of the D. McCall Co. the crowd was so great that it was no use trying for the elevator, and to save time the stairs were taken. The display was an unusually clever one, replete with interest from a millinery standpoint, and note books and pencils were much in evidence. The display suffered from the fact that this firm has no proper showroom, and it is a pleasure to know that this will, in all probability, be the last time that this complaint will have to be made as they expect to be located in their new warehouse on Wellington West before another opening takes place.

The D. McCall Company give the following reliable information respecting styles, etc., for the Spring and Summer season, 1907:

"New York predicts hair-braids, Milans and chips in blocked shapes, the flop or hood being the leader, and, owing to its flexibility, can be arranged in any number of good designs. When trimmed with quills, wings or large roses it makes exceptionally smart suit or tailored hats. The pyroxaline and hair-braid placques can also be classed with the tailored effects. A great many new and novel designs have been created with a dash and smartness about them that appeals to those requiring something better than the ordinary ready-to-wear. Something new in this way is the Santos Dumont, made of two hoods or cones of pyroxaline, arranged in circular folds and brought together forming a shape of the mushroom order.

"The better, or dress hats, with but few exceptions, are hand-made of extreme fancy rustic and basket braids, also pyroxaline and mohairs of innumerable designs, which, being pliable, can be worked to the best advantage, and when combined with mechlins or chiffons have a lightness about them that at a glance suggests everything pertaining to Spring. Mechlins will be most popular as the season advances, and a great scarcity is anticipated. Chiffons and other nets of a similar nature will also be extensively used.

"The mushroom shape in the made hat will be extra good, and we feel safe in recommending it as the hat of the season, being sufficiently large to carry the great quantity of flowers used in the trimming of this season's creations.

"Garden mixtures are shown extensively. Roses of all kinds, including American Beauty in combination with lily of the valley, forget-me-nots, lilacs and innumerable small flowers with considerable foliage. In many instances fruit is also combined and carried out with good effect.

"Roses of all kinds and sizes, from the banksia to the large full blown effects, will predominate.

"Feathers will also command their share of attention for the better trade, and will be popular for reception and tea hats, tipped and shaded effects being very correct.

J. D. Ivey & Co. had a very large and tasteful display of pattern hats in their handsome showrooms, and besides the large number in the main room, each of the smaller selling sections contained a contingent of stunning models.

Remarkable among the many lovely models were two white Empire picture hats, the one draped with a white and the other with a black chantilly lace veil. These veils are almost square, and are worn lightly thrown over the crown of the hat, the corner coming well down over the face in front, while the rest of the veil is gathered into graceful folds at the back and pinned with a long veil pin to the hair. The all-white hat with the white veil formed an ideal bridesmaid's hat.

The leading colors, Miss Walsh says, according to her sales, are the burnt shades, banana, leather shades, Copenhagen, apricot and flammande. Copenhagen blue, which has sold extremely well, is something on the Alice Blue order, but a much more becoming color. This color has sold extremely well and promises to be one of the leading colors for Spring.

The colors are darker in tone than is usual for the Spring season, but the delicate materials, the tulles, nets, handsome ribbons, and the wealth of flowers and handsome plumes make the millinery extra attractive.

A shape somewhat on the sailor order, with a moderately high crown of plaited maline in leather shades, had as trimming some lovely shaded poppies in amethyst and yellows. These flowers were very noticeable among the many rose trimmed hats, for after all it is the rose that is queen of the season.

G. Goulding & Son's handsome showroom contained as usual a rich collection of Paris, New York and Toronto pattern hats. Among the many rich novelties were the new pieced ostrich plumes, the blondine and tipped paradise.

Tinted laces were much in evidence, and some lovely flower and lingerie hats were shown. The lingerie hats, by the way, are now lingerie in name only, and they are flower laden and elaborate in the extreme.

Debenham's, Ltd., had a number of handsome hats from their Montreal house on exhibit here, and also a splendid collection of French flowers and feathers. These millinery goods, along with their handsome collection of ribbons and laces, make a splendid display .

Empire Hat in Apricot Shades. Wreath of Cherries, and Feather in Apricot Tipped with Brown.

Empire Poke—Black Knife-pleated Lace and Crin Braid. Chous of Pink and Jack Button Roses.

Copenhagen Blue. Pink Rose Foliage and Forget-me-nots.

Amethyst Straw—Two Shades of the Same Ribbon. Pink, Banana and Purple Wisteria.

OUR LONDON LETTER

Reports from the Various Markets.

The chief topic of conversation in the trade has been the murder of William Whitely, of Westbourne-grove. Mr. Whitely was an unique figure in London life, and may be regarded as the pioneer of the department store idea in England—at any rate he was the first to develop it successfully. Like so many more men who have come into prominence in the drapery trade in London, he was from the North. Just what formed the motive for the deed is at present shrouded in mystery.

BRADFORD.

The strong tone of the market at the present series of sales in Coleman Street has caused Bradford wool dealers to adhere strictly to their highest quotations, and also to advance some lines. The demand for cross-breds is fully maintained and rates are fully ½d. above Bradford prices before the opening, nor is there any indication of easier prices in the near future. Manufacturers and spinners who use merino wool are exceedingly busy and fabrics made from fine wools are coming into strong favor.

Now that the London sales have established the fact that prices are in no danger of being disturbed there is altogether a more confident tone to the market that is most beneficial to the course of trade, though the high price of wool is certainly against the Bradford manufacturers.

Both for dress fabrics and for men's wear, cloths made from the finest stapled wool are coming into vogue, and manufacturers who are prepared to receive orders for the Fall season report that the first orders show a maked tendency in this direction. The coarse cross-breds are still in large demand, both for the home and the continental market, and their continued dearness is a serious matter for some classes of manufacturers, notably those making coating serges, etc.

MANCHESTER.

Though export buyers for foreign markets are not inclined to purchase freely, there has been an increase in the business done with the Dominion, and some big orders for heavy goods have been received lately.

The new tariff arrangement that puts a heavier duty upon British made colored cotton, and favors those made in the United States, has caused a good deal of comment here.

Spinners are deeply sold, and there is no pressure for further orders. This is all the more remarkable because of the big increase in spindles in Lancashire during the past two years. There are now eight and a half million more spindles running than in 1904.

It is said that propsects are bright for a big crop of cotton in the States, and that there are more favorable reports of the yield in from the Egyptian, East Indian and other small crop centres, though it is hoped that the quality will be better than that the mills are now working upon.

Fancy cotton goods, such as voiles, lawns, delaines, etc., are moving freely, and makers of woven goods, such as zephyr, checks, etc., are deeply under contract.

NOTTINGHAM.

The revival in the Nottingham lace trade promises a long continuance, and manufacturers are more than busy, particularly those making fine vals. and torchons. With many plants the condition is such that fresh orders will not be needed for months to come. The big trouble with most firms now is to make deliveries, and many of them have long lists of waiting and "kicking" customers. There is little change in the cotton yarn situation, and, though yarns rule high, deliveries are much below requirements. The gods in request are vals. of all kinds, in laces and insertions, six to ten widths in the sets. Torchons, Clunys and Maltese in fine numbers are in increasing request.

Tulles and nets are the only branch of the silk lace business that amounts to anything at the present moment.

BELFAST.

The general tone of the market is strong and healthy. Flax is firmer, and, while no advances have been as yet recorded, the tendency is in that direction. Yarns continue to advance,and spinners are so far booked ahead that they do not desire more orders. For this reason prices are often quoted that are intended to be prohibitive, though these are often paid. Continental spinners are much in the same position.

There is considerable pressure for deliveries of many kinds of linen fabrics, and manufacturers are looking for increased prices to offset the high rates that they are paying for yarns.

ITEMS OF ALL CANADA

ONTARIO.

W. C. Latimer, of Beaveston, was in Toronto recently.

The Bee Hive Co., Wingham, have opened a branch at Gorrie.

The store of Mitchell & Gills, Strathroy, was damaged by fire.

A knitting factory and woolen mill has been established at Port Arthur.

F. G. Knight sails for Europe on the Lucania in the interests of Rhys D. Fairbairn Co.

A. R. Leask, for many years a dry goods merchant in Hamilton, died in Toronto recently.

The first annual banquet of the Wingham Retail Merchants' Association was held recently

W. G. Martin, manager of the Hagen Shirt and Collar Co., Berlin, was in Toronto one day recently.

Wheadon, Germann & Co., Guelph, are discontinuing their clothing and men's furnishings departments.

The Pembroke Clothing Co. have taken over the business at Pembroke formerly known as the Woolen Mill Store.

J. W. Fleming, Galt, has taken the secretary-treasurership of the Dominion Manufacturing Company of that town.

Stanley Mills & Co., Hamilton, conducted a "Home Industry Week," with a special demonstration in each department.

A report from Brantford says that the Canadian Cotton Company, which has an idle factory there, will reopen it in the near future.

E. B. Crompton, of Brantford, returned recently from his regular trip to Europe. This was the sixty-ninth time he has crossed the Atlantic.

The establishment of a retail merchants' bureau at Ottawa was advocated at the annual banquet of the Retail Merchants' Association in Toronto.

The annual "At Home" given by Stanley Mills & Co., Hamilton, to their employes, was a fine success. A dinner and toast list was followed by dancing.

The town of Carleton Place will lend Bates & Ennis $10,000 to assist them in the establishment there of a knitting mill for the manufacture of papermakers' felt.

A report from Peterborough says word has been received to the effect that Crossley & Sons will not, for the present, locate a branch carpet manufactory in Canada.

The staff of J. W. T. Fairweather & Co., Toronto, tendered a complimentary dinner to John L. Loudon on his retirement from the firm to manage the Cosgrave brewery.

R. S. Ford, of Petrolea, has sold his dry goods business to W. W. Ferguson & Co. He intends going to the West. Mr. Ferguson, head of the new firm, was with Mr. Ford for the past eight years.

The new premises of Soper & Livingston, Alvinston, were opened during the last month. The store was in gala attire, an orchestra was in attendance, and visitors were served with a dainty luncheon.

The Coates Carpet Company have announced definitely that they will locate their Canadian works at Peterborough. The company has purchased 150 acres of land and the city has given them 100 acres adjoining.

Mr. Syer is opening offices and salesrooms for the Canadian Carpet Manufacturing Company at 84 Bay Street, Toronto. In addition to the ingrain carpets they will carry several lines of house furnishings.

A. W. Cressman, Peterborough, has purchased the block adjoining his present premises and will fit it up as his men's wear section. The store which now accommodates this department will be added to the dry goods section, and the whole remodelled on up-to-date lines.

Several Hamilton men have applied for a charter for a company with $300,000 capital to manufactute balbriggan underwear. A site 500 x 300 feet has been purchased. The incorporators are Adam Zimmerman, M.P., S. C. Newburn, A. F. Zimmerman and C. S. Scott.

John Brinton, president of the Brinton Carpet Co., of Peterborough, celebrated his 80th birthday recently. In honor of the occasion the Peterborough staff held a banquet at the National Hotel. A cablegram of congratulation was sent to Mr. Brinton.

Plans have been prepared for the enlargement of the premises of T. Lindsay, Limited, Ottawa. It is proposed to double the floor space by adding two storeys to the present building and extending along Sussex Street and Mackenzie Avenue. It is expected that the plans will be approved by the directors.

In our February issue we published an item to the effect that Inksater Bros., St. Catharines, were going out of business. This was a mistake; a dissolution sale was held in order to close out the estate of the late H. R. Inksater. The business has been taken over entirely by S. J. Inksater, and will be conducted under the old firm name of Inksater Bros.

Counter Check Books

"GET THE BEST"

THE CARTER-CRUME CO., Ltd.
TORONTO, ONT.

Montreal Representative

W. W. JOHNSTON, · · · 82 Mansfield St., Montreal

The Board of Trade of Paris tendered a banquet to John Penman, the occasion being his retirement from the presidency of the Penman Manufacturing Company, after an active connection with that concern for forty years. Mr. Penman started in a modest way in 1868, and from the foundation which he laid in the early days the company has developed until now it has an annual output of 3,000,000 pairs of hosiery and 3,600,000 shirts and drawers. Mr. Penman has offered the citizens of Paris a donation of 20 per cent. of the cost of a school, up to $10,000, that is, the school to cost up to $50,000.

QUEBEC.

The Ottawa Cord and Tassel Company, Ottawa, will move to Montreal.

A fire in the factory of the Alaska Feather and Down Co., Montreal, did $500 damage.

G. Orban, wholesale fur dealer, Montreal, is at present in buying centres of Europe.

L. W. Anderson, with Greenshields, Ltd., Montreal, has left for Europe to make purchases for the staple department of the firm.

H. Symmington and B. Simpson, buyers for Greenshields, Ltd., Montreal, have returned from a buying trip to European centres.

Chas. Alves, with Gault Bros., Ltd., Montreal, is at present in European centres buying for the smallware department of the firm.

TEXTILE
DOMINION
CO·LTD

Wrapperettes

No argument is needed when proof is established. The significance of Canadian Wrapperettes is understood by all dealers. The Fall showing will be most effective in variety, styles and colorings. Many added novelties will develop your trade. Recognition of Canadian lines means more business for you. Your jobber will soon show the range—and order early.

No. 2 cloth will help your spring print trade.

STAPLES AND RAW MATERIALS

Upward Tendency of Staples—Stock of Raw Cotton Market—Price Lists Issued for Fall—General Advances.

Upward Trend of Staples

State of Raw Cotton Market — Price Lists Issued for Fall—General Advances.

The raw cotton markets still continue to have a steady upward tendency. Reports to hand show that during the past few months buying of cotton has been liberal, but it is noticed that the lower grades are being pushed more actively than the higher grades, which are bringing very high premiums. The demand has been incessant from every quarter where cotton is consumed, and the supply is barely adequate. All grades of spot cotton have advanced greatly in value, say from a half to three-quarters of a cent. Receipts from cotton-pro. ducing centres during the past few months have been too insignificant to affect the situation, and it is quite evident that the good grades have been held back. Canadian manufacturers have been looking for cottons that possess spinnable qualities, but the visible supply is far from being adequate. Upon these congested conditions the manufacturers have been compelled to base their prices for Fall lines.

Fall Lines and Prices.

While jobbers and retailers have been anxious about the question of deliveries, the manufacturers have been busy trying to meet immediate demands, and there is less complaint heard now than a short time ago. The call for immediate deliveries has been so heavy that it is with much difficulty that the mills can recover from the stress of orders. During the month of February many prices were withdrawn and in a few cases slight advances have been posted, but these are no so general nor as much as was anticipated by those who follow the conditions governing the market. The Canadian Colored Cotton Co. has advanced prices on lines on which it was absolutely necessary to cover the advanced cost of production. These affect the low-priced lines more noticeably than the higher priced grades. Tickings have advanced about 4 per cent. A few lines of shirtings and saxonies have also been advanced, about 2 cents per yard, but the greater portion of the lines remain unchanged. There is a special demand at this time for saxonies and dress ginghams, which the company is doing its best to meet, and it is succeeding to the satisfaction of the trade, which has an intelligent understanding of the situation. Flannelettes and blankets show a decided improvement over last year's productions ; this is resultant from special new machinery having been installed, which was designed purposely for the manufacturing of these lines. All the lines show improvement, and a record season is ahead. It is quite evident that, under the existing conditions of the raw material markets, repeats will not be available at the same prices if there is no substantial easing of the markets soon.

The Montreal Cotton Company has withdrawn its price lists. The cotton and yarns used by the company have so greatly advanced in values that manufacturing at the old prices was impracticable. No very sharp advances are, however, expected, and all lines will be well up to the standard of the company's productions.

Dominion Textile's New Lines.

The textile people have issued their prices for Fall and are already showing their lines to the jobbers. While there has been a general advance on many of the lines, qualities have been improved, values being fully up to the standard. This is living up to the present demand for quality in preference to cheapness. Standards must be maintained ; to do this the textile people have slightly increased prices, and improved their lines. It can be safely said that Canadian productions compare favorably with the best imported lines. A high prestige has been gained for improved colorings, and the texture of the goods has met with favorable comment throughout the Dominion.

During the month of February shirtings were again advanced ¼c. per yard. This was anticipated for some time and even now the cutting up trade is of the opinion that the price limit has not yet been reached. Orders are pouring in faster than ever and it is evident that the shirting lines are well worth the price. The new price lists show a few new departures which prove that progress is being made and that steady improvement is the watchword. The lines shown are not only better in appearance all through, but in point of dyeing they stand the test of time. Among the new lines shown for Fall may be mentioned as embracing many splendid features are the prunella cloth and Magog indigo in the flannels. These will be well taken up by the trade as their values are exceptionally good. A new colonial mill production is the downette, which is a low-priced flannel and is purposely made to meet many requirements in the trade. A new rock fast diamond drill has been added and will prove a welcome addition to the already meritorious drills.

Spring Print Lines Withdrawn.

On the first of the month the Dominion Textile Co. withdrew their Spring prints. Further orders, it is thought, could not be filled in satisfactory time for delivery. The orders already on hand more than fill the mills' capacity. The demand for Spring lines has been abnormal and the textile people are anxious to fill all orders on hand. Further orders would only prove an encumbrance under the circumstances. Merchants who placed their orders early upon the advice of The Review are probably well covered ere this, the same advice is again reiterated regarding Fall lines. There is nothing to be gained by delay, for even if the raw cotton market should decline, is cannot affect the present stringent conditions.

Fall Price List.

Below is printed the new Fall price list issued recently by the Dominion Textile Company. The present prices are compared with those of the Fall of 1906, and where a blank is left there is no quotation :

FALL PRICE LIST.

Issued by the Dominion Textile Co.

Magog Branch—Twills and Drills.

	1907	1906
Heavy Twill, 31—32 in.	11½	11½
400 Drill, 33—34 in.		10½
350 Drill,33—34 in.		11½
265 Drill, 33—34 in.		13½

Cretonnes and Prints.

Twill Cretonne, 25—26 in.	9½	8
Oatmeal Cretonne, 29—30 in.	11	10
Sateen Cretonne, 30 in.	12	10
Flags and Bunting, 24 in.	7	6
Satine Rayee, 27—28 in.	11	10
D. Heavy Indigo, 31—32 in.	10
G.C. Extra Heavy Indigo, 30—31 in.	12½

Flannels.

Velours Fancy, 27—28 in.	9	8
Superfine Flannel, 28—29 in.	11	10
Kimona, 27—28 in.	12½	12
Swansdown, 27—28 in.	15	15
Alexandra Cloth, 35—36 in.	12	12
Magog Indigo, 27—28 in.	10

Skirting.

Princess Skirting, 36 in.	12	12
Moreen Skirting, 30 in.	10	10
XXK Skirting, 36 in.	12½	12
Alberta Skirting, 38—39 in.	13½	12½

Ducks.

A.A. Duck Indigo and Aniline, 25—26 in.	10½	10½
A. Duck, light, 25—26 in.	10½

Colonial Branch—Flannels.

Downettes, 24—25 in.	8
Royal Waist Flannelette, 27—28 in.	9	8
Empire Twill Flannelette, 27—28 in.	11	10
Komura Cloth, 27—28 in.	10	10
Outing Flannel, 27—28 in.	11
Henery Serge, 27—28 in.	11½
Cashmerette, 27—28 in.	11½
Foule Cloth, 36 in.	12

Art Ticking.

265 Ticking, 33 in.	13½	13½
288 Ticking, 30 in.	18	18

Drill.

Rock Fast Drill, 28 in.	12½	12½
Rock Fast Diamond Drill, 28 in.	13½

Moles.

Colonial Tweed, 27—28 in.	11½	10½
Colonial Tweed Aniline, 27 in.	12½	12
Light Mole Tweed, 27—28 in.	13½	12½
Light Mole Aniline and Navy, 27—28 in.	14½	13½
Heavy Mole, 28—29 in.	16½	15
Dominion Pantings, 28—29 in.	18
Colonial Quiltings, 31—32 in.	10

BUSINESS NOTES

Louis Foisie, McTaggart; sold out.
Neree Simard, Bagotville; deceased.
Hanna & Co., Wingham; burnt out.
Cayley & Tanner, Picton; burnt out.
C. O. Gardner, West Lorne; removing.
Jas. Rowe, general store, Avon; sold out.
J. P. Gervais, drygoods, Montreal; starting.
W. & J. Brass, general store, Fox; dissolved.
Lajorie, Freres & Co., Three Rivers; dissolved.
John Blais, general store, St. Agathe; registered.
G. C. Truman, gneral store, Fairlight; selling out.
R. Wedon, general store, Edgar's Mills; sold out.
Gervais & Lecompte, dry goods, Montreal, dissolved.
S. Bildodeau & Co., drygoods, St. Romuald; registered.
J. O. Gagnon & Co., drygoods, St. Ronald; dissolved.

C. H. Carbonneau, general store, Mariapolis; sold out.

Jas. H. Whitlaw, general store, Meadowvale; loss by fire.

B. F. Smith, East Florenceville; succeeded by E. Kilpatrick.

R. B. Jones Co., Limited, drygoods, Woodstock, incorporated.

J. Coleman & Co., manufacturer of furs, Montreal; dissolved.

R. Bellefeuille, St. Nonbert (Arthabaska); succeeds Jos. Noel.

C. O. Gardner, general store, West Lorne; removed to Vienna.

George McGregor & Co., Wilno; sold out to A. Slominshie.

J. H. Brault, St. Armand Station; succeeds Brauet & Michaud.

O. B. Fralick, tailor and men's furnishings, Picton; loss by fire.

Martin McGinn, general store, Glen Smail; giving up business.

R. S. Sargent & Co., general store, Hazleton; loss by fire, insured.

A. W. Beausoleil, general store, Richmond; succeeds J. A. Revard.

H. T. Baker Co., Limited, general store, Lumsden; incorporated.

Bishop & Redden, general store, Tyvan; E. D. Bishop, deceased.

Strassburg Clothing and Shoe Co., Strassburg; sold to McKay & Co.

J. A. Campbell, general store, Hawkesbury; succeeded by F. Dupuis.

Carrot River Trading Co., Limited, general store, Tisdale; burned out.

Martin Delany, general store, Brigham; burnt out, partially insured.

Lajoie, Frere & Co., drygoods, Three Rivers; Real Lajoie, registered.

A. L. Orvis, general store, Dryden; succeeded by Orvis & Kennedy.

Mackie & Smith, general store, Battleford; succeeded by Mackie & Co.

C. Gauthier, general store, Monteerf; succeeded by Martineau & Poirier.

J. A. Campbell & Co., general store, Hawkesbury; style now A. M. Steele.

Marquis & McCullough, general store, Wakopa; loss by fire, partially insured.

Marquis & McCullough, general store, Wakopa; succeeded by Morgan & Oles.

Mund & Schneider, general store, Lannenburg; sold to Miller & Fieseler & Co.

Vatusdal Bros. & Olafson, general store, Wadena; succeeded by F. E. Vatusdal.

Copy 1

That store gets a long start on rivalry which makes the FIRST showing of the new KINGCOT fabrics. Imported cottons for double the money provide the only real competition. Yet KINGCOT cottons sell on a quality basis—Canada's womenkind buy them from choice, not merely from economy.

Copy 2

All that is novel, catchy, worthy and saleable is included in the KINGCOT lines as a matter of course. These cottons provide any merchant, be he ever so progressive or his customers never so exacting, with every variey of cotton fabrics he needs to show to get trade and to hold it.

Copy 3

These are the KINGCOT lines for spring and summer—

Ginghams	Shirtings
Dress Goods	Oxfords
Apron Ginghams	Denims
Saxonys	Galateas
Flannelettes	Tickings
Domets	Cottonades

Awnings

Copy 4

KINGCOT cottons, alone, cannot make a store thrive; but they can and do help greatly to win a store reputation for giving genuine values and rare quality at the price. Your store never will be the store it might easily be until you learn by experience just how firm a grip on popularity KINGCOT goods can get you. Any traveler for a good house can show you the KINGCOT lines; the lines themselves will show you what the cotton-goods selling can be.

THIS means THIS

PRETTY much everybody who buys Underwear nowadays in Canada — man or woman—understands that the red trade mark before your eyes means Underwear that fits right, wears right, and satisfies because it has full value in every thread and won't shrink even a little bit. People know, too, that this Underwear is guaranteed by the dealer who sells it—and guaranteed to him by the maker. For fear people might forget any of these vital things, we keep telling them every day in every newspaper YOUR trade reads. What does that mean to YOU? Doesn't it mean that you are apt to miss some worth-while sales if you don't stock the Underwear that people know it's SAFE to buy?

Pen-Angle
Unshrinkable Underwear

Any traveller for a live house can show you just the grades and styles of this line that your store needs to satisfy the trade we will spend money to send your way. Pay to look over the line, at least, wouldn't it?

The Penman Manufacturing Co., Limited of Paris, Canada : : : : : : : : :

Men's Furnisher and Clothier

Suitings and Styles

Little Change in Cut of Suits—Very Pretty Grey Worsteds—A Few Browns.

The grey worsteds that are taking the public eye for Spring are exceedingly pretty. Some are seen with a self stripe or check, while others have vague stripes or checks of brown. The plain greys had their inning last season; now the fancies are almost entirely the thing. Fancy blues are a strong line, and, we believe, will be in even greater demand than the opening business would indicate. A great many people who wore grey last Spring want a change, and a few have turned to brown. The advance in prices has shoved up the tailor's figures a little, and some materials are in short supply.

Most of the clothing manufacturers are making a strong feature of their special order departments, and several concerns are specializing on this kind of business and doing a big trade.

The suit styles for Spring show very little change from the Fall and Winter vogue. Coats are all fairly long, with pressed side seams, but no vent. The form-fitting feature is modified somewhat, but still remains, and will until the length is reduced. Lapels are pretty long and slightly rolled. Three buttons are used and the bottom of the coat is cut almost straight. Trousers are generally semi-pegtop. Waistcoats have long opening and the bottom cut with deep inverted V.

WINDOW DISPLAY.

The effective display of men's wear is a vexed problem with most merchants. In the first place many windows are totally unsuited to this class of goods, and in the second place most stores are decidedly short on up-to-date fixtures. The result is that we see numbers of "plastery-looking" trims that do little justice to the goods. One great fault is the tendency to crowd too much into a display. Less merchandise and more frequent change would make a big improvement.

OUTLOOK FOR READY-TO-WEAR.

The ready-to-wear department should make a record the coming Summer in the sale of two-piece suits. It all depends on the quality and cut of the goods that are handled. Everybody knows that a ready-to-wear can be bought for considerably less than a custom tailored suit, but there is a stiff prejudice against the former because it so often carries in its general make-up the marks of the "hand-me-down." Manufacturers are putting forth very commendable efforts to produce a good article. The retailer should be careful that his stock is right, and then he may go ahead and attract a class of trade that heretofore would not think of buying a ready-to-wear suit.

The popular two-piece suit will be made up principally in light grey homespuns, with coat having two buttons and long lapel.

THE HAT TRADE.

There is practically nothing new in hats. We have already described the styles that will prevail, and about them there are few features of interest. All are pretty much along conservative lines. Values have kept up well considering the condition of the raw material market. In black stiff hats the leader has a rather high crown and a little less curve to the brim than last season. Browns are very quiet. The telescope in both felt and straw will be popular. There will again be a scarcity of straws. Of course the sailor will be just as much worn as last season and colored bands will be more plentiful.

Shirts and Collars

Coat Shirts Selling Well—Stiff Fronts for Fall—Neat Checks Good.

With the exception of those who cater only to the cheap trade, retailers in general show a disposition to handle the coat shirt, and they are selling it in good quantities, too. We need not again go into details to show that it is the coming garment, and that it is only reasonable to expect that in time it will crowd the old style off the market. In the meantime every merchant should carry and show it.

* * *

Values for Spring are not so good as those of last season, due to causes that are very well known. A choice must be made between selling an inferior article at the old figure, taking a smaller margin of profit, or advancing the price. The best course is maintain quality, even at some sacrifice, and push the sale of the better class goods. Of course, a merchant must be governed a great deal by the circumstances under which he operates, but this is what he should aim to do.

* * *

The re-appearance of the stiff front shirt will be a feature of Fall business. Many stores have been giving

COLOSSUS SHIRTS AND OVERALLS

9 Reasons Why It Pays to Handle These "Garments of Quality:"

(1) Materials are all carefully selected and represent the best that can be produced at the price.

(2) Only cloths that have proven their strength and wearing qualities are used.

(3) The patterns are certainly the latest.

(4) The workmanship in all particulars is thoroughly reliable, every garment being minutely examined before leaving the factory.

(5) All lines are double stitched throughout, thus insuring strength of manufacture in keeping with the materials.

(6) Special attention is given to the finish—both strength and attractiveness are emphasized.

(7) Size is an essential feature of Shirts and Overalls. Free-and-easy movements must be provided for if satisfaction is to be given. Colossus goods make a special feature of size. All garments are large and roomy, but not so at the expense of Fit.

(8) Uniformity is maintained at all times. No cutting or trimming in the size, or saving of materials in order to meet a price.

(9) COLOSSUS goods are registered and on the market to stay. If you are already handling this Brand of Shirts and Overalls, you can depend upon it the original standard on which you took it up will be equalled at least as the seasons go by, and that no deterioration either in Materials, Workmanship or Finish will be allowed. If you are not selling Colossus Shirts or Overalls you are not selling the best on the market, and there is no reason why you should not be.

Your wholesaler, in fact all wholesalers, carry Colossus.

it a place in their displays, and the public are coming to look upon it with decidedly more favor. A great deal can be accomplished in this way to ensure a good reception for it in the Fall. Our idea is that a fairly short, narrow bosom will be most strongly favored.

* * *

The attached cuff continues to gain ground, particularly as a dress garment.

* * *

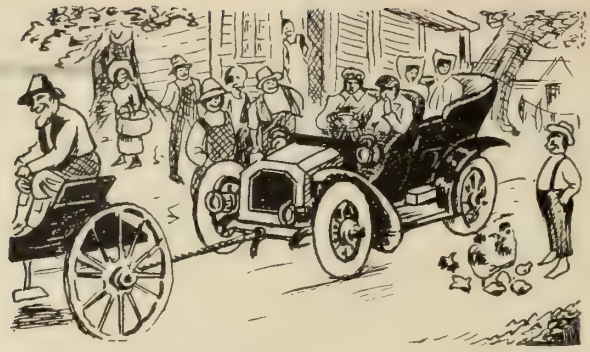
Neat checks are in big demand, but solid colors are holding their own. Pinks are considered by many to be good property. This Summer will, we believe, be a big white season.

* * *

There is very little change in collar styles. We notice a leaning toward the fold of medium height with straight opening. It has been shown extensively with two and a quarter and two and a half inch neckwear. The fold with V-shaped opening will be the big seller during the hot weather. For outing wear the soft "Shakespearian" collar promises to be popular.

One of the "Orb" Brand—Made by Vyse, Sons & Co., at their Luton Factory, England.

NO FIRE DAMAGE.



In the St. Paul street, Montreal, fire last month, which gutted the premises of Swift, Copland & Co., Limited, the adjoining buildings, 511, 513 and 515 St. Paul street, occupied by the cloak house of J. H. Waldman & Co. was reported by the daily papers to have been damaged. This report is entirely unfounded, as the firm was not in any way affected and busines went on as usual; in fact they were never busier, according to J. H. Waldman.

Neckwear

Narrower Widths are Being Readily Accepted by Public —The Best Sellers.

Purchases for Spring are about completed, and a feeling of optimism pervades the trade. The advances in the cost of materials have disturbed values very considerably, but this condition is met, in many quarters, by the buying of better class goods. Then the attractiveness of colorings and designs helps matters greatly.

The three-inch four-in-hand, which has been so popular, will give way to that of two and a quarter and two and a half inches. For one thing, manufacturers can afford to put better stock into the narrower widths, and any acceptable means of assisting quality is welcome. The public have become quite strongly attached to the wide tie, but in places where the others have been nicely displayed, with collar and shirt, the change is coming easily. The medium height fold collar, with opening about an inch in width, will be worn a good deal, and a three-inch tie would not be suitable at all. In Summer goods the narrower widths are more desirable, for the reason that they look cooler.

Were you ever left with a lot of Neckwear on your hands that will not move out?

Thought you got a bargain somewhere, when there is no such thing as bargains in Neckwear.

$4.50 goods are never sold at $4.00; nor $2.25 goods at $2.

Would you like to only buy Neckwear that moves?

We have a plan that Haberdashers who are doing a leading business are following, its free information carefully thought out by expert Neckwear men.

NIAGARA NECKWEAR CO., Limited

MONTREAL TORONTO WINNIPEG VANCOUVER

Grey will be one of the best sellers for Spring, and some exceedingly pretty materials have been made up. Many have small, neat designs in black, while many others are in self patterns. Red, in the quieter shades, should be in large demand. An attempt is being made to push browns, but we do not anticipate that it will meet with any very marked success, although window display will create a limited call for them. The trade is being shown a big range of plaids and is touching it lightly. We have seen some very pretty blues with white coin and polka dot.

* * *

The wash neckwear this Summer may be expected to surpass that of last year, so far as appearance is concerned. We still have a great fancy for whites and creams with coin dots, although we have not seen any made up yet.

* * *

There will likely be a big sale of bows, for the reason that waistcoats will be discarded by a great many when the weather gets warm.

* * *

It is surprising, the number of ties that are being purchased at 75c. and $1. This is a tendency that should be watched and taken advantage of by every retailer who can possibly do so.

UNDERWEAR.

We have before now advised the pushing of better grades of underwear. After one trial most men are willing to pay considerably more than they have been doing, for goods that give greater comfort and possess high quality. In durability they make up for a good deal of the difference in price.

For Summer, athletic underwear—knee-length drawers and sleeveless shirts—will be in excellent demand. Some are made up in mesh material.

Fancy Waistcoats

Will Be in Good Demand This Spring—Lightweight Flannels are Most Popular.

Some merchants are buying light on fancy waistcoats, but the majority are stocking them liberally. The former are afraid that the negligee shirt with belt will be so generally worn that the sale of waistcoats will be limited. They are taking a narrow view of the situation, just as they probably do in regard to stiff and soft front shirts. While the waistcoat may be discarded on most occasions during the hot months there are others on which it will be worn, and then there is the Spring to be considered. The indications are that fancy waistcoats will be in brisk demand then.

The most popular lines are lightweight flannels, but piques are selling well also. The three-button garment is in most general favor.

MARITIME PROVINCES.

J. E. McKenna, manager of the clothing department of Crowell's, Ltd., Sydney, C.B., underwent a successful operation for appendicitis.

At the annual meeting of the Cornwall & York Cotton Mills Company, at St. John, a dividend—the first in twenty years—on the capital stock was declared.

The Day of Buying Imported Cloth is Passing. One Reason Why:

OXFORD TWEEDS AND HOMESPUNS

have steadily increased in value as stylish materials. It is notorious that they are absolutely Pure Wool goods, but when the Newest Patterns and Smartest Colorings are added they certainly win their way on very merit. For men, women and children.

OXFORD MANUFACTURING CO.

OXFORD, NOVA SCOTIA Limited

MILLS ESTABLISHED 1867.

Wilcox Bros., St. John, will add two stores to their already large premises. They have purchased those now occupied by J. Corkery, dry goods, and E. Friel, men's furnishings.

Mayor Paton and Mrs. Paton, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., entertained the employes of James Paton & Co., and the evening was very pleasantly spent in musical entertainment and games. The occasion was an evidence of the agreeable relations existing between Mr. Paton and his staff.

Miss Corbett, who has been in the millinery department of H. G. Marr, Moncton, for ten years, left on February 9 to join the Misses Harrison and Warnock, of the same store, in Toronto. They remained in the wholesale millinery workrooms four weeks copying the new hats, and returned to Moncton via New York.

WESTERN.

Fire in the premises of the Montreal Fur Co., at Winnipeg, did a lot of damage.

D. Spencer & Co., Vancouver, B.C., will build an extensive addition to their store at a cost, at least, of $100,000.

N. Svaigher, lately manager of the Montreal Fur Co., in Moose Jaw, has gone to Vancouver. His successor is L. Lesage.

Mrs. G. Frankfurter and Roy Frankfurter, of G. Frankfurter, dry goods and stationery, Winnipeg, were in Toronto on a buying trip, and called on The Review.

The Portage la Prairie Board of Trade wired the local member at Ottawa that they had decided to protest against the change that was proposed in the parcel post system.

Hewson Woolens Mean Many Sales

Hewson Costume-Cloths—Fine and beautiful.
Hewson Tweeds—Known all over Canada.
Hewson Underwear—A new line of pure-wool, unshrinkable Underwear—as good as it can be made.

The people soon find there are no woolens they would rather buy—and every sale wins more.

If our salesman does not call at the right time, write us for samples.

Hewson Woolen Mills Co., Limited, Amherst, N.S. 96

PURE WOOL HEWSON, AMHERST. TWEEDS.

JAEGER

PURE WOOL

NEGLIGEE SHIRTS

FOR SPRING TRADE

Choice and exclusive styles and colorings in fine Twill Flannels, Wool Cambric and Wool Taffeta.

There is nothing so comfortable for business or holiday wear and far more healthful than cotton or linen goods.

SEND FOR PRICE LIST AND SAMPLES.

DR. JAEGER'S SANITARY WOOLLEN SYSTEM COMPANY, LIMITED

Wholesale Warehouse, 301 St. James St., MONTREAL

YOU WANT—

OVERALLS THAT SATISFY your customers and bring you good profits. We make that kind. Will you investigate?

THE ROCK ISLAND OVERALL CO.
ROCK ISLAND, QUE.

WHEN YOU BUY

Globe Suspenders

YOU WIN OUT EVERY TIME.

We Never Disappoint

Send Us An Open Order

The Globe Suspender Co., Rock Island, P.Q.

AERTEX

THE ORIGINAL

CELLULAR

THE HEALTHIEST

Shirts and Underwear

Illustrated Price List, of full range of Aertex Cellular Goods for Men Women and Children, sent Post Free on application.

Agents for Canada :

WREYFORD & CO.

Romain Buildings King St. West, TORONTO

WREYFORD & CO. Romain Building, TORONTO

WHOLESALE MEN'S FURNISHERS

UNDERWEAR SPECIALISTS

Ranges for Fall are ready, and our travellers will wait on you in March and April.
We are Sole Agents for following English Manufacturers :

YOUNG & ROCHESTER'S

Knitted and Tattersal Vests

DRESSING GOWNS AND SMOKING JACKETS

Good ranges of Fine English Flannel and Oxford Shirts, New Collars.

Cellular "Aertex" Underwear

HEAVY WEIGHTS FOR WINTER.

The only Hygienic Mesh Underwear that will wear well and is moderate in price. Good returns for both retailer and wearer.

Tress & Co., London, Eng.

Manufacturers of select shapes in

HATS and CAPS (Silk and Felt)

Latest West-End and City shapes. Specialties in CAPS.

Cooper, Corah & Sons,

St. Margaret's Works, LEICESTER

Cashmere and Worsted Hosiery,
Sweaters, Athletic Shirts etc.
Ladies' Blouses and Norfolk Jackets

☞ Any specialty of Men's Attire for sporting or general wear that is good in quality and likely to meet the requirements of particular customers—we have it.

Motorist (wet through)—Just look how my coat is shrinking !
2nd Motorist—My dear fellow, why don't you wear GARBIRNETT ?
Specially constructed weatherproof cloth.
The very thing for automobiling, riding, driving, etc.
All goods bear this stamp.

"GARBIRNETT",

"JENNWEL"

WATERPROOF

REGISTERED

Sole Makers, JOSHUA F. GARNETT & SON, Castle Mills, Idle, Bradford
Canadian Representatives : GEO. S. PLOW & CO., 232 McGill St., Montreal.
A. ALEXANDER & CO., 77 York St. Toronto.
MAKERS TO THE WHOLESALE TRADE ONLY.

Housefurnishings and Decorations

Carpets

Spring Shipments Heavy—Further Advances Are Expected.

Shipments to the retailers throughout the month of February were larger than any previous month, deliveries from the mills improved appreciably, and the retailers are pleased with the appearance of their large Spring stocks. The province of Quebec has ordered particularly heavy this year, which compensates the jobber and manufacturer for its slow buying last Fall. It should be understood by the travelers in that province that under the old French law, which calls for yearly leases from May to May, the demand for house furnishings is generally confined to the months of May and June. Apart from these months there is comparatively little buying done. Stock moves with great ease during the period following the moving season and then it lapses into inactivity. In other parts of the country Autumn is considered a very good season for the disposal of house furnishings, but in Quebec that season is poor. Retailers have secured much larger stocks than usual and are prepared for the rush season. The state of the foreign carpet market is, to say the least, somewhat strained and uncertain as to future orders and prices. Manufacturers abroad will not take orders at the present prices for delivery after the first of May, nor will they hold goods over three months. All this would indicate that further advances are contemplated. Comparing the present prices with those of two seasons ago would give rise to the question as to the ultimate end of the present upward trend. Tapestries, Brussels, Wiltons and Axminsters are 40 per cent. higher than two seasons ago; jute carpets are advanced 50 per cent. and are considered cheap under the prevailing conditions of the jute market. Hemp carpets are 60 per cent. higher, and while there are plenty on the market, Canadian buyers are hesitating to buy largely at current prices.

The green shades are still the predominating leaders at present but the fawns are being well received and are expected to improve as the Spring approaches. Piece carpets are still holding their position, and each month there is an improvement noticed in the qualities sold. The west has recently ordered large quantities of union and Wilton carpets.

CONVERT CARPET REMNANTS INTO RUGS.

A dry goods firm has adopted a method of converting carpet remnants into rugs, which has solved the problem of odds and ends in the carpet department very satisfactorily. They describe the plan as follows:

"We employ a man who is competent to make the remnants into rugs. The chief part of the work is this: We have no difficulty at all in disposing of the remnants after they are made into rugs, and also realizing a good price for them. The most popular size is 36 by 72. Velvets and Brussels are perhaps the best remnants to work into rugs, and are the most salable for small rooms, vestibules and dens.

It is one of the very best ideas we ever introduced into our store, and has been the direct means of conserving the profits of our carpet department.

"We have a novelty fixture for showing small rugs which I think is worthy of description. The fixture proper is made of gas pipe and is half a circle. The half-circle is about four feet in diameter. The ends of the semi-circle are securely fastened to the wall. Blocks were secured to the wall and iron collars on each side of a block, the ends of the gas pipe running through the iron collars and the wood. The rugs are attached to pants hangers by means of traverse rings, which are used for holders. The fixture is one of the most practical ideas which we have ever introduced in the store, and is recommended to other merchants."

Wall Paper

Manufacturing Season Completed—Sampling Season Started—Some Splendid Lines Promised.

Last month wall paper manufacturers completed their orders, and are now busy on next year's new set of samples. Warehouses are filled and shipping will be general during the next few months. What will be shown next year is the question holding the attention of the trade. A still further improvement is promised in all lines. In these days of hard competition goods must possess artistic value and quality to stand against, and compare favorably with the best. The best goods sell and the retailer will go far to find the best values. Therefor, it is incumbent upon each manufacturer to produce the best line of samples than he has ever done, for to reduce his range, or repeat too frequently the stereotyped patterns, would mean ruin. On novelty and freshness of patterns depends the result of the season. This sampling season will bring out some handsome effects in English designs. This means rich floral patterns of artistic qualities, open and highly colored. Ingrain has to a large extent been displaced by heavy figure and floral effects and also the landscape borders and woodland side-walls. These have taken well with the trade, and some entirely new patterns are being prepared for next season.

Geo. H. Hees, Son & Co.

LIMITED

Toronto,
52 Bay Street

Montreal,
20 St. Helen Street

N.B. Keep handy our new Catalogues and Color Books

Our new Office and Warehouse, 52 Bay Street, Toronto

Mail Orders Receive Prompt Attention

MANUFACTURERS OF

Window Shades
Curtain Poles
Lace Curtains
Bobbinet Curtains
Lace Door Panels
Furniture Coverings
Tapestry Curtains
Chenille Curtains
Table Covers
Draperies
Silks, Burlaps
Wall Coverings
Plushes
Velours
Upholstery Supplies
Upholstery Hardware

N.B. We sell our goods at a price that affords the Retailer Large Profits.

Geo. H. Hees, Son & Co.

Oilcloths
Linoleums
Cork Carpet
Inlaids

Never in any previous season have we showed as large and varied a range of Qualities and Designs in both Domestic and British Floor Cloths, as this year.

As the demand for 4-yard wide goods has been on the increase during the past year or two, we have anticipated a still greater demand for this Spring, and have stocked an exceptionally strong line, from a "SPECIAL" low-priced 16-4 British Oilcloth to the best grades "Domestic" and "Foreign" Linoleums and Oilcloths.

We cut Plain and Printed Cork Carpet and Inlaid Linoleums across a piece of 8-4 at a small advance over full roll price.

Write for Samples and Prices

THE IMPERIAL CARPET CO.

60 Front Street West LIMITED
TORONTO

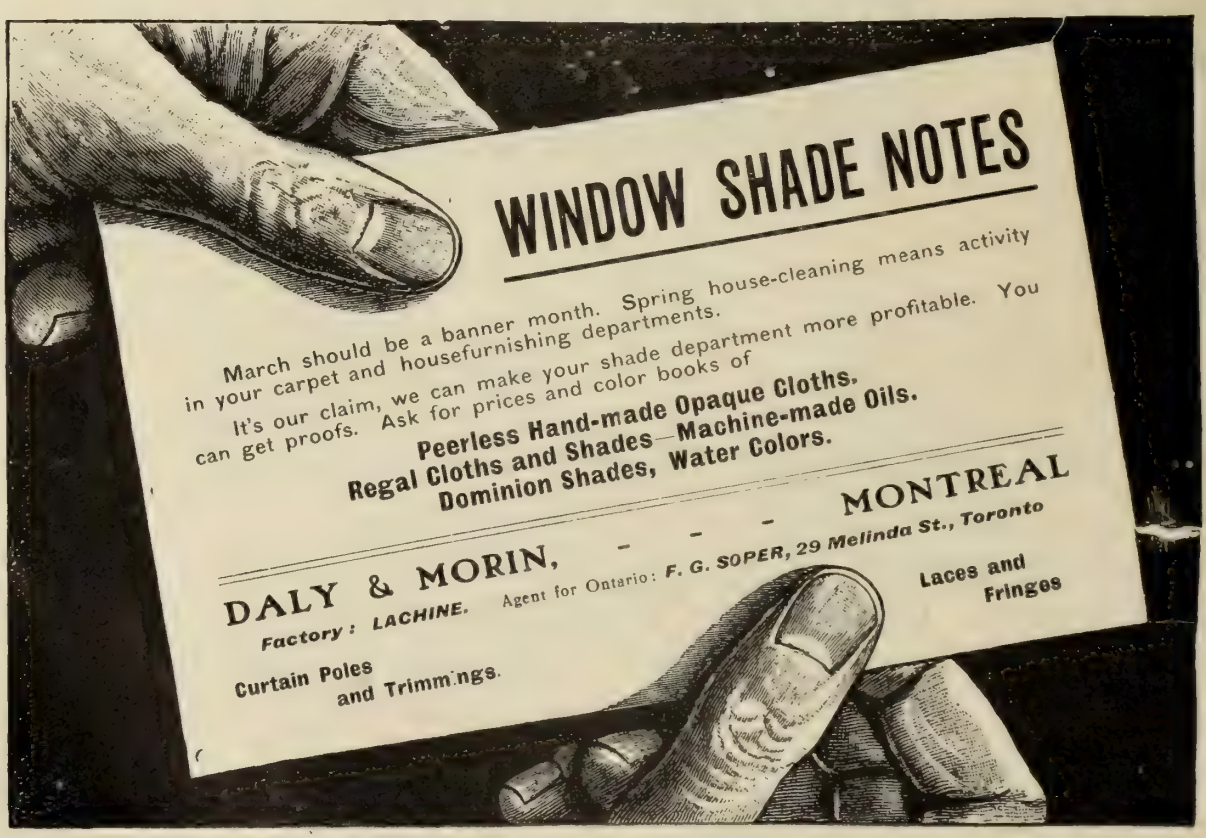
KING'S
Established 1775

FAMOUS
Sold by leading Jobbers.

SCOTCH
Every piece perfect.

HOLLANDS

Scotch Hollands, for nearly a century and a quarter, have been recognised by the Trade of the world as the most reliable and salable shading made.



or its non-shrinking qualities durability, coloring, and steadfast dyes. King's name on every piece.

Hollands, of John King & Son, are handled by all the leading houses. Made in all colorings and widths.

They are popular because they are the most effective shading for the money in the market, and dealers can turn them over more quickly than any other.

JOHN KING & SON,
GLASGOW, SCOTLAND.

Sole Selling Agent:
SYDNEY MOSS,
Nordheimer Bldgs., 8 Colborne St., TORONTO

QUOTE COST OF PAPER BY ROOM.

Is there a wall paper dealer who does not experience a feeling of pleasure in selling the better grades of wall papers? Is there a decorator or dealer who is not ambitious to increase his business in higher grade goods, which return more satisfactory profits, and which give the customer more satisfactory value in every respect? No doubt it has been your lot to handle customers who wish to purchase attractive, decorative, and reliable wall paper, but find that the goods which appeal strongest to them are just a litle higher in price than they intend paying. This difference in price may be but moderate, even trifling, but to the average consumer of wall papers it appears to figure up quite largely.

Many intending purchasers could easily be induced to select a higher grade paper—which is much preferred though a little more expensive, and on which there is a better profit—if the salesman were to quote the cost of the goods for the room instead of by the roll. It is a very simple matter to quickly and correctly ascertain the quantity required by referring to a wall paper chart. Some people have an erroneous idea of the extra cost of a better paper, and would understand the situation if the cost for the room were given instead of the price by the roll. It often means only a trifling difference, and the customer is more than compensated by seto carefully review your stock.

MAKE it a point NOW

Note any Weak Spots and take measures to strengthen them.

Refined, Attractive Parlor Styles are are often overlooked when buying

Wall Papers

Write us for samples to fill any short lines. We have on hand all the big sellers for 1907, in every grade.

Be in a position to satisfy every customer. Let us help you with samples.

Try us for BURLAPS (DYED, SIZED, OIL COATED), SANITAS.

Prompt service at all times, especially during the Spring Season.

STAUNTONS LIMITED

Makers of Superior Wall Papers

TORONTO

DOWN COMFORTERS
COTTON COMFORTERS
BED PILLOWS
WHITE CUSHIONS
COSIES, MUFF BEDS, etc.

PRICE LIST ON APPLICATION

FEATHERS BOUGHT

The Toronto Feather & Down Company, Limited

74 King Street West, - - - TORONTO

Sell carpets without carrying stock

Store keepers should be interested in knowing of a plan whereby a good carpet trade may be done in connection with the regular business without necessitating an enlargement of premises or any investment beyond a very small amount. Some features to consider are—

No Capital Involved. No Old Stock at End of Season Always a Good Range of Patterns. No Worry. Prompt Service.

Upwards of a half hundred enterprising dry goods dealers in Ontario are finding this a profitable acquisition to their business. Send in a request and let us give you full particulars of this matter. You'll be glad if you do. Address –

"Cut Order" Department.

The Adams Furniture Co., Limited

CITY HALL SQUARE, TORONTO, CANADA

curing a room decoration that is much preferred, more attractive and decorative, will be a source of pleasure daily, and will also keep its appearance better, thus giving longer wear

It really is practical economy to select better quality papers because of their superior wearing qualities. It costs no more to hang them than cheap and inferior papers, and when you consider the average life of wall paper and compare the cost of the decoration, and the excellent returns, with the cost of a rug or carpet, or a purely ornamental article of furniture, It will be found that really wall papers actually give you a better return in every way for the money expended than for any other household goods. Point out and emphasize the fact that the judicious selection of an appropriate wall paper does more to embellish a room and gives more pleasureable results for the expense incurred, than any other household furnishing.

Try this method, Mr. Dealer: Quote your customer to whom the better clases of wall paper appeal, but who thinks he cannot afford them, the cost of the room instead of by the roll, and increase the business of your wall paper department in better grade goods, and establish the local reputation of keeping the best variety of up-to-date, attractive, decorative and reliable wall papers. Such a reputation has a distinct money value.

Rugs

Demand Continues Active—Taken in Preference to High Priced Piece Goods.

Manufacturers of rugs state that their orders are much larger than last year and they are satisfied with the season's business. Wilton rugs have thus far held a prominent position in the sales, and as they are within the reach of all it is likely that the sales of them during the next few months will be enormous. The rug at presents forms a solution of the perplexed question of price to the consumer, and while the piece goods remain firm in price they will continue to sell in even greater quantities. Oriental rugs have also sold well throughout the entire country, and the numerous auction sales in many of the large centres have in no way interfered with the retailers' trade. The Axminster rug is a great favorite in the Eastern Provinces, while the west is ordering large quantities of Moravian rugs, The red shades have a slight lead and then follows green and fawn.

Rugs should prove a boon to the small merchant. They are sure stock and will aid materially in building up a trade in carpets.

A NEW MANUFACTURERS' AGENCY.

Dodd Bros., manufacturers' agents, have opened an office and sample room at 8 Colborne St., Toronto. Among the firms which they represent are: Walters, Limited, manufacturers of furniture silks and upholstery trimmings, London; F. Withall, manufacturer of dress and mantle trimmings, and belt specialist, London; and W. & T. Lock, wholesale cabinet manufacturers, Bath. Wm. Dodd has had about twenty years' experience in all branches of the drygoods trade in Great Britain.

QUEBEC.

H. S. S. Molson, with Gault Bros., Ltd., Montreal, is at present on a buying trip to Europe in the interests of the dress goods department.

A. B. Mole, manager of the Dominion Textile Co., Ltd., Montreal, was in New York and other American centres on business during last month..

A. O. Dawson, with D. Morrice, Sons & Co., Montreal, has left on a busines trip to the West in connection with the cotton department of the firm.

W. E. Walsh, leather and fancy goods merchant, Montreal, has admitted to partnership his brother, P. F. Walsh. The firm will now be styled W. E. Walsh & Bro.

W. T. Whitehead, general manager of the new cotton company, The Mount Royal Spinning Co., Ltd., Montreal. spent some time last month visiting American centres.

A report comes from Montreal that plans are in progress for the erection of another big departmental store there. Already some property on St. Catherine street has been acquired.

At the recent meeting of directors of the Paton Manufacturing Co., Sherbrooke, held in Montreal, the following officers were elected: John Turnbull, president and managing director; Hon. Robt. Mackay, vice-president; D. Forbes Angus, Jonathan Hodgson, George Hyde, George M. Loy, Frank S. Meighen, Robert Reford and Lord Strathcona.

Ladell & Butcher, general store, Trout Creek; sold to Trout Creek Store Co.

Marquis & McCullough, Killarney and Wakopa; Wakopa branch burnt out.

Swift, Copland Co., Limited, women's hats and furs, Montreal; burnt out, insured.

W. E. Southgate & Co., manufacturers of clothing, Berlin; removed to Seaforth.

Gervais & Lecompte, Montreal; dissolved, business continued by Albert Lecompte.

Postal Express Discussed in House

Postmaster-General Still Believes in Merit of His Scheme, But Yields to Practically Unanimous Opposition of Members.

House of Commons, Nov. 30, 1906.

H. H. Miller (South Grey)—"Notwithstanding a substantial decrease in the postal rates, we have to-day the magnificent surplus of $1,000,000. But I would like to see that surplus, or a large part of it, in time to come, devoted to a still more rapid extension and improvement of the rural mail service. And I am exceedingly pleased—and I am sure the people of Canada will be pleased—to know that the hon. Postmaster-General (Mr. Lemieux) is contemplating the establishment of a postal express that will be a matter of great convenience to every Canadian, whether he dwell in the city or upon the farm."—Hansard.

House of Commons, Dec. 6, 1906.

Mr. Armstrong—"What is the nature of the postal express legislation referred to in the speech of the member for South Grey on Nov. 30 ?"

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux (Postmaster-General)—"The postal express legislation referred to in the speech delivered by the member for South Grey on Nov. 30 foreshadowed an arrangement for the transmission and delivery of post parcels c.o.d. It is contemplated that the post office should be the means by which parcels could be despatched and collection of any charges thereon made by the department on some definite scale. The details have not been perfected, but are now the subject of consideration. Parliament will be more fully informed when the project has been completed."—Hansard.

House of Commons, Feb, 15, 1907.

The Postmaster-General said his own view was that a parcel post system should be established, just as in England, but in order to avoid useless discussion he might say that he had yielded to the practically unanimous opinion expressed by members on both sides of the House. For the present no such scheme would be put in operation.

February 8th was the only occasion on which the House really entered into any discussion of the matter, and, in line with the policy which they have steadily followed, the metropolitan dailies carrying catalogue house advertising absolutely ignored the free expression of opinion that took place. The Review, therefore, reproduces the following extracts from Hansard, which give a good idea of the stand which the members took :

Alex Martin—"I do not believe that the postal service of this country should be used for the purpose of carrying parcels at unremunerative rates, to the advantage of some large business concerns in the cities, but to the detriment of the storekeepers throughout the country. Our country merchants are doing an honest business and bearing their share of the municipal and provincial taxation in their several localities, and I do not think it is any business of the Postoffice Department to endeavor to injure their trade by such a proposal."

Mr. Logan—"I agree with the Postmaster-General that we should use every possible means to increase the postal facilities throughout our country, and I feel that it must be gratifying to him to be able to announce that this year there will be a surplus of $1,000,000 on the working of this department. At the same time I do not think that, at the request of certain large departmental stores we should undertake to carry post parcels at a rate lower than the actual cost of transmission, and at the same time to assume the responsibility which would be entailed by delivering them c.o.d. In my opinion, such a system would create unfair competition to the retailers throughout Canada, who pay municipal and provincial taxation, and who contribute in no small measure to the maintenance of social institutions in the communities in which they live. * * * The department ought to give facilities in the towns and wherever possible rural mail delivery."

J. J. Hughes—"I understand it is not the intention of the Postmaster-General to make any radical change in the postal system or any great reduction in the charges for carrying parcels. But I believe it is the intention of the department to make some change in that direction. I therefore presume that he would like to know the feeling of the country as represented by members of this House, and as one of the members I wish to say that I am decidedly opposed to giving additional facilities to the large mail order houses in the cities for sending their goods all over the country to the detriment of the retail merchants. These retail merchants pay their share of taxes and take their part in all the local improvements in the localities where they live. They do their duty as citizens, and are at present subjected to very keen competition from the large mail order houses, which are in a position to send their goods everywhere—goods no better and perhaps not so good as local merchants carry, although people, ladies particularly, think they are better. They send out circulars stating that they can furnish all kinds of goods, and they can do that very cheaply under present conditions. But those who give the orders have to pay the money in advance, and I know that in many cases when the goods are received there is disappointment. If the facilities for sending out these goods be increased the evil will be increased. I would impress upon the Postmaster-General as earnestly as I can that it will not be a wise policy, in the public interest generally, to tax a whole people in order that a few large mail order houses may be enabled to send their goods more cheaply, and make a delivery wagon of our postal system."

Mr. Gordon—"The Postmaster-General deserves to be congratulated on the efforts he is making to extend our postal system and the country expects it of him, but I trust he will not consent to putting into effect the c.o.d. feature of the package scheme. I believe it would be unfair to make every postal official in Canada a collecting agent for the departmental stores, and that is what the thing would amount to."

Mr. McLennan—"I must add my protest against the c.o.d. syatem being established in connection with the parcel post service for the reason given by the other speakers: that the postal service in Canada would be merely an express agency for the benefit of a few departmental stores, to the great detriment of the local traders."

Mr. Alcorn—"We are aware it is threatened that what is called the c.o.d. postal express delivery may be established by departmental regulation in this country, and I join with the other hon. gentlemen who have spoken in protest against such a scheme. The Postmaster-General is no doubt aware of the strenuous objection raised by the retail traders throughout Canada to the establishment of any such service. I have received many letters of protest, some of which I have handed over to the department."

Mr. Lennox—"I have had many communications addressed to me on the subject. One of them is signed by some fifty merchants and business men of Barrie. Were this matter one which the people generally undertook there would probably be a greater number of petitions sent in against the proposal. Most people are under the impression that what is proposed is the introduction of a bill, but it is a change that can be effected simply by departmental regulation. One of the effects of such a change would be injury to the trade of local merchants."

Mr. Clements—"I think the c.o.d. system would work to the detriment of the rural storekeepers and not to the advantage of the country. As against this, I would strongly urge that greater attention should be paid to the rural postal service."

Mr. Henderson—"I desire to say a word in regard to the proposition which has been discussed here this evening, that of a cheap parcel post. I do not think it is the duty of the Government to become a common carrier of goods, and I think the Postmaster-General will make a mistake if he prostitutes—if I may use the word—the postal system to any such purpose. It seems to me that it is beneath the dignity of the Government to become a common collecting agency and take away the work from banks and other institutions which perform services of that kind to-day. I think that the Postmaster-General, when he considers the subject from every point, will see that there is no merit in the proposition."

Mr. Miller—"I wish to say just a word as to the proposed parcel post and c.o.d. system. As to what the hon. member for Halton (Mr. Henderson) said on the subject, I do not think it undignified on the part of the Government to do anything that promotes to comfort or convenience of the people. I do not think it was the intention of the Postmaster-General, in introducing the c.o.d. system, to assist the departmental stores at the expense of the stores in the towns and villages of Canada. It has occurred to me that, perhaps, a c.o.d. system might be established; that, instead of bringing grist to the department store mill, will help the stores in smaller places to hold their own against departmental stores. I think there is a provision already by which newspapers pay a certain rate within a certain distance and a certain increased rate at a longer distance from the place of publication. I have wondered if it would not be possible to bring into effect the proposed parcel post system on somewhat the same plan. Nobody seems to object to anything but the c.o.d. feature. Could you not have the c.o.d. part of the system only applicable to mails within a certain distance, say ten miles from the point of departure? That would not bring in the large departmental store, but it would procure a great advantage to people in the rural sections, who, by means of the rural telephone system, could procure parcels by mail from the neighboring town not more than ten miles away."

The Postmaster-General—"I wish to say a word or two about the parcel post system. I may say that I was born and brought up in the city of Montreal, although I represent a rural constituency far away on the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Perhaps I have been brought up with all the prejudices of a gentleman who has spent most of his life in a city. I do not know, I never dreamt of that great rivalry which seems to exist between the departmental stores and the country stores, but I quite agree with hon. gentlemen on both sides of the House that there is certainly to-day an undercurrent against the establishment of a parcel post system on account of the injury it might cause to the country merchants. For my part I have been biased in favor of cities, having been born and brought up in a city, but it was not my intention to hurt at all the interests or feelings of country merchants when I thought that I should perhaps give this country the benefit of that system, because my hon. friends on both sides must not forget that the parcel post system is not at all a new system; it exists in Europe, it exists in England; in fact, in England you can send practically anything through His Majecty's mails and the English mail system is considered to be the most modern and best equipped in the world. There they have the parcel post system and the c.o.d. system. We thought that the Canadian mails could perhaps be used to bring to terms the express companies of this country. We would have afforded additional channels for the public and at the same time we would, perhaps, have put an end to what is practically a monopoly. But, however, I find public opinion, that is to say, public opinion framed by the country merchants, against the proposed system, and I may frankly say that I would not run against public opinion in the present case, but I think that if public opinion was educated, public opinion would back up the Post Office Department in the proposed establishment of this c.o.d. system."

A. Martin—"Now let me tell the Postmaster-General that he never should impose on this country such a scheme as the free parcel post delivery. I am as anxious as anyone could be that people should get cheap goods, but I do not believe that the departmental stores of this country should be able to sell cheap goods at the expense of the postal service. I may tell the Postmaster-General—I need not tell the Minister of Finance, because he is too good a financier, and I need not tell the Minister of Agriculture, because even he can see it—that the departmental stores in Montreal and Toronto come into competition with the retailers all over Canada, and every dollar's worth of goods they sell in Nova Scotia or in New Brunswick or in Prince Edward Island tends to crush out the power of the merchants in those provinces to make a living. It cripples the power of that merchant and the result is people cannot obtain the goods they want at the prices they should. That is the result of killing off local trade and centralizing it in the hands of a few. Well, I think the policy favored by the people of this country, as well as the people of the United States, is to break down these large corporations and not centralize the purchasing and selling power in the hands of the few to the detriment of the many. I do not see why any large corporation in this country should be allowed the privilege of using our mail service for the carriage of its goods and thus preventing that service from being self-maintaining. We do not want to carry the stock of the department stores at a loss. That would not be fair to the mass of the people, and I hardly think that the Postmaster-General will allow it."

HINTS TO BUYERS

From information supplied by Sellers, but for which the Editors of THE REVIEW do not necessarily hold themselves responsible.

Greenshields Limited, Montreal.

Activity is general throughout the entire establishment of this firm. Every department reports improved deliveries from mills and factories, and thus they are in a better position to cover the requirements of their customers. The lines upon which there was a shortage feared have been improved throughout the past few months, and all orders will be filled within a more satisfactory date than was anticipated. The wash dress goods department has some fine lines for Spring which are well worth inspection. The fine assortments of

Priestleys'

HUGUENOT CLOTH.

This Fabric is Priestley's latest creation. It possesses all the durability and close texture of the old time serge with the soft rich draping qualities of a French Cashmere.

IN ALL COLORS.

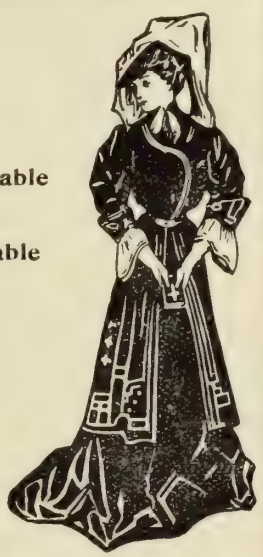
For Hard and Dressy Wear.

sheer white waistings, Victoria and Persian lawns are still the great sellers of the department and merchants should bespeak their requirements at the earliest possible date as further repeats from the mills are uncertain.

Orders should be placed immediately for Summer gloves, as a greater scarcity of goods than even last year is feared. There is now a good stock to choose from, and now is the time to secure a good assortment. The same applies to cotton and lisle hosiery; the state of the foreign and domestic markets is such that no dependence can be placed upon future orders. The old reliable brands upon which the trade reposes every confidence are being carried and there are many lines which will boost the retailer's business. Underwear will be found in greater variety than ever, and again early ordering is urged. Handkerchiefs in all the novel styles and patterns of the season are being carried in well assorted ranges and are of the right prices to attract the merchants looking for bargains. The carpet and housefurnishings department presents a scene of activity during this season of shipping Spring orders. It is noticed that the orders are larger than ever and this is a very consistent criterion of the satisfaction the goods are givng to customers. Still the heavy demand continues and every effort is being put forth by the company to keep well supplied. There is everything in the travelers' samples to suggest many ideas to the merchant and prices are right. Carpets, curtains, oilcloths, linoleums, squares, matings, mats, cretonnes and art muslins are kept in stock and every need can be supplied.

The dress goods department, realizing that their success depends upon the turnover of the retail merchants who carry a line of Priestley's cloths do all in their power to aid the retail merchants. The firm is ever ready to enhance the oportunities of the trade. Modern progrsive methods are always employed, and a helping hand always extended to merchants who are willing to accept timely hints in the selling interests of their stock. The firm has had a set of electros made which show various garments made from Priestley's cloths. These will be furnished to merchants handling this cloth and they will be found a great attraction in advertising.

Two of the five illustrations are herewith given.



Daly & Morin.

The moving, renovating, and housecleaning season is approaching and the progressive retailer will not deem his stock complete unless he has a pleasing range of window shades to offer his customers. The season is propitious to the sale of window shades, which are more than ever considered a household necessity. Not only are they ornamental, but useful as well. Daly & Morin's goods have the selling qualities that appeal to the retailer and consumer alike. The latest ideas and novelties are embodied in their goods, and they stand preeminently as the best that latest methods and skill can produce. There is at present a great scarcity of raw materials, cotton having increased in price materially, and there is an upward tendency in all lines manufactured. The trade seems to be drifting towards piece goods and the retailer has found trade brisk when a good stock is carried. With so many different-sized windows now being put in the modern buildings, piece goods are desirable and the trade is drifting towards them. There is a steadily improving demand for the better quality of laces, Battenberg and Guipure being leaders. Next to the staple greens there is a tendency towards light shades, white and cream. Now is the season to cover requirements to catch the best trade of the year and besides this, there is likely to be further advances in prices within a short time.

Priestleys'

BROADCLOTHS & VENETIANS

Fashionable and Serviceable

Known the world over for their appearance and wearing quality. -:- -:- -:- -:-

Demand for "J. A. P." Lines.

The enterprising firm of J. Arthur Paquet, Quebec, reports business unusually brisk for this time of year. The demand for "J. A. P." gloves and mitts has never before been so great, and new customers are being added daily to their lists. This is, indeed, an encouraging state of affairs, and in the face of the scarcity of certain grades of leather this firm has so far been able to fill all orders promptly. The demand for "J.A.P." shoe packs and mocassins has also increased to a remarkable degree. This speaks well for the quality and workmanship of their products, which are now sold by leading general stores and dealers from Halifax to Vancouver.

Globe Suspender Co.

The Globe salesmen are now on the road with Spring samples, which are the best ever produced in their factory. It only needs a short time to inspect the line and they will convince all that they are the best that modern progress can produce. The values are well up to the high standard of the firm and their merits are quickly recognized. Merchants are advised to order early as the demand this year is expected to be very heavy for the lines warrant speedy ordering.

Debenhams (Canada), Limited.

At this season of the year the first floor of Debenhams (Canada) Ltd., Montreal, is of special interest to the trade, containing as it does, some very novel lines which for qualities and values forcibly appeal to the higher class trade. Infinite pains have been taken to make their blouse department an unparalleled success; the most modern methods and ideas have been employed and the closest attention has been given to the manufacturing of the line so that the firm could make a bid for the trade upon thoroughness. The new blouses for the season have been made under their personal supervision on the latest American models and the latest New York ideas. A meritorious line and one which is bound to meet with the favor of the trade is the Shantung blouse. It is made in a variety of styles and colors and is washable and specially attractive to those desiring goods of durability. They are also carrying an extensive range of Japanese silk blouses at prices to meet the requirements of all. The lawn and muslin blouses embrace many novel features and a stock of them should add to the selling values of any store. The house is making a specialty of laces, allovers, laces and insertions to match, a big range of vals., for which there is a big demand this year, has been carefully seclected and the firm is prepared to meet the requirements of all.

The latest novelties in veilings and made up veils, painted chiffon and crepe de chene scarves will prove a boon to the novelty seekers. A handsome range of collars and neckwear will be found on this floor in styles and prices to satisfy all customers' wants. Their range of belts is particularly seasonable and contains all the fashionable designs in silks, elastic and kid. The firm has prepared to meet the demand for chiffon and tulle. They are enabled through their valuable London connection to place large contracts and are in a position to offer the best the market affords to the trade at prices which cannot fail to attract the attention of even the most fastidious. Trimmings, ruchings, and frillings are also big features with this house. The ranges are well up to the latest productions of the fashion plates, and every line in itself is complete.

On the same floor will be found the children's ready-to-wear department which the firm is making special efforts to keep thoroughly up-to-date. A complete range in well assorted styles of linen, cotton, silk, cashmere and serge dresses, overalls, coats and many other articles is carried. The methods of display adopted by this enterprising firm is propitious to their endeavors to cultivate a house trade. Nothing is left undone to make the various departments as attractive as possible.

Travelers are now on the road with full lines of furs, ladies' coats and skirts, children's wear and woolen goods for Fall trade.

The W. R. Brock Co., Toronto.

The W. R. Brock Co., Limited, Toronto, are showing new lines of rainproof mantles for ladies—"Evelyn," "Trixie," and "Irene"—to retail at $10.50 and $11; "Victor," and "Challenge" for men to retail at $12.

Scarce goods—Swiss spot muslins to retail from 10c to $1 per yard; in variety of spots, sprigs and embroidered patterns, and all choice designs; embroderies in carton lots and regular stock, edgings and insertions to match; allovers, etc., not to be surpassed for value as they are worth 15 to 25 per cent. more than when Brock's placed orders. Laces pronounced by millinery buyers to be embrace the choicest variety seen, and in allover, with laces and insertions to match, and sets in vals and plauen there is all that could be desired; long kid gloves, dressed and undressed; special value in India linens and Persian lawns; their well-known lines of cashmere hosiery, "Brockbest," "New Cairo," "98," "Llama" and "Angora," all in stock and A1 value; ladies' vests and corset covers; children's vests, univrsal stock, all prices, all kinds; special values in ladies' and gents' umbrellas; new styles in back and side combs from New York; corset cover embroideries in white, pink and blue—extreme novelties.

The men's furnishing department is showing a particularly large and attractive range of fancy half hose in embroidered cotton and cashmere, fancy striped cotton and lace effects in blacks, tans, pearl, greys, navys, and all the season's shades. There is also a complete range in Summer underwear in balbriggan, merino and light-weight natural wool. Two lines of natural wool are extra value: M138 to sell at 75c; M139 to sell at $1. All sizes, from 34 to 46 in stock. In men's overalls, smocks and work shirts there stock is complete and their values are much better than present prices. In men's work shirts, Big Four and Wabash, to retail at 50c and Great West and Rock Fast to retail at 75c, are worthy of special mention. They are fast colors, and large roomy shirts made for comfort and wear.

Greenshields Western, Limited, Winnipeg.

Greenshields Western, Ltd., Winnipeg, are emphasizing to the trade the importance of early buying of all staples, particularly cottons and cotton manufactured goods. The mills are behind with their orders and deliveries will be delayed. All indications point to higher prices in these lines.

They have an attractive line of ginghams which they are offering at a reduced price.

In carpets they have an extensive and handsome range of American draperies, silkilines, art crepons and denhams.

They wish to direct special attention to a line of flannelette blankets (seconds). These blankets are not torn and they are offered at a very low figure. There are a few singles among them.

In tapestry squares Greenshields Western have a strong showing in all sizes from 2¼ x 3 up. They have also a particularly strong assortment of Wilton squares in attractive patterns. There stock of inlaid linoleums is complete and they are prepared to ship in large quantities.

In the men's wear department the stock is now almost complete. They have a handsome line of soft neglige shirts and fancy embroidered hose to which they direct special attention. Their new line of Spring neckwear is in and is meeting with a ready sale.

In the ladies' wear department, cotton and lisle hose are selling freely and the mills are not able to take care of repeat orders. The retail trade are advised to buy early, as it will not be possible to get these goods later. The same remarks apply to embroideries, laces, summer gloves and lawn gloves. Cashmere hose will be higher.

Greenshields Western have a good stock of ribbons, which will be sold at present prices while it lasts. The price is advancing owing to the increased price of silk. Silk handkerchiefs are also advancing, and delivery from mills is very slow in linen and cotton handkerchiefs.

In silk blouses Greenshields Western offer a special line at a close price. Close prices also in black sateen underskirts.

John Macdonald & Co.

John Macdonald & Co., Limited, are showing in their carpet department fifty pieces of tapestry carpets at clearing prices. Nine qualities in tapestry carpets, representing hundreds of pieces to be sold considerably below to-day's market prices; five qualities in British Brussels carpets; over one hundred patterns of goods in stock at prices below to-day's market prices. They are clearing out all their surplus stock of union and wool ingrain carpets at old prices. Ask to see these goods. They are sole Canadian wholesale selling agents for Crossley's Brussels, velvet and tapestry carpets. Their new goods are arriving in large quantities. They carry the largest range of tapestry, velvet, Axminster, union and wool squares, piece goods and linoleums in Canada.

John Macdonald & Co., Limited, are showing in their men's furnishings and haberdashery department men's neckwear for Spring and Easter trade, all the leading shapes and colorings to retail at from 15c. to 50c. each; a complete range of men's outing shirts in plain and fancy stripes to retail at from 50c. to $1.25 each; men's fancy half-hose in all the leading patterns, to retail at from 15c. to 50c. per pair; a special display in ladies' fancy hose supporters, one dozen assorted colors in box, which retails at 25c., 50c. and 75c. each. Ladies' fancy embroidered wash belts, correct thing for the coming season, to retail at 15c. and 25c. each.

John Macdonald & Co., Limited, are showing in their silk and dress goods department superior value in val. and torchon laces, chiffon nets and ruchings, Victoria lawns, India linens, Persian lawns, Swiss book muslins, fancy checks and stripes, washing novelties in cotton voiles, both plain and checks; colored taffeta silks, black peau-de-soie and taffeta silks. A beautiful assortment in the following makes of dress goods is shown: Chiffon broadcloths, tweed effects, voiles, panamas, cashmeres and mohair waistings.

John Macdonald & Co., Limited, are directing special attention to their letter order department. Letter order business has been a specialty with them for a number of years, and as the years roll by business increases in this department. They are now sending out a catalogue giving description, quality and price of the different lines carried by them. If you have not received one they will be pleased to mail you

LEGAL CARDS

ATWATER, DUCLOS & CHAUVIN
Advocates, Montreal
Albert W. Atwater, K.C., Consulting Counsel for City of Montreal. Chas. A. Duclos. Henry N. Chauvin.

ROBINSON & GREEN
Barristers, Solicitors, Etc.
John A. Robinson, John R. Green, Solicitors for the Imperial Bank of Canada, the Southern Loan & Savings Co., St. Thomas, Ont.

COLLECTIONS, ETC.

THE MERCHANTS MERCANTILE CO.
260 St. James St., Montreal
Mercantile Reports and Collections
Our method of furnishing commercial reports to our subscribers gives prompt and reliable information to date. Every modern facility for the collection of claims. Tel. Main 1985.

AFTER THE SHUTTERS ARE UP

"My dear," announced a lady whose husband had acquired a fortune rather suddenly, "I believe you ought to get a coat-of-arms."

"Nonsense," replied the man, whose wealth was considerably in excess of his education. 'I've already got more clothes than I know what to do with!"

* * *

A customer walked into a boot shop recently and asked for a pair of boots. The assistant, a youth of fourteen, showed him a suitable pair, the price being $4.50. The customer stated that he only had $3.50 with him, and inquired if he could pay that and bring the $1 next day. He was told he could do so. After the customer, who was a stranger, had left the premises, the proprietor severely reprimanded the assistant for allowing the man to take the boots, saying he would never see him again.

"Ay, but I shall," replied the smart youth. "I wrapped up two boots for the left foot, so he's bound to come back."

* * *

In the high street of a certain northern town there lived two drapers who were determined rivals, and who were always trying to undersell or over-reach each other in every possible way. Both were shrewd, smart men, but one had slightly the advantage of the other in this respect.

The smarter of the two had his shop always open first in the morning, and his brother tradesman had to pass it on his way to his own.

Every morning the first draper was in the habit of marking down most of his goods displayed in his windows, and after his rival had passed and noted the reductions he withdrew the low-priced tickets and resumed his former prices.

* * *

He repeated this ruse morning after morning for several days, until the other, not to be outdone in cheapness, was selling for eleven pence stockings which cost him fifteen pence wholesale.

This was the opportunity for which the smart man had been scheming all along. z

He hired boys and girls to buy the stockings of his rival at the greatly reduced rate, and before his unsuspecting rival was aware of the fact his entire stock of hosiery was transferred to the counter of his wide-awake opponent at eleven pence per pair, and were sold by him as a "bankrupt lot at a terrible sacrifice" at eighteen pence per pair.—Smith's Weekly.

* * *

"You have some fine ducks this morning," said a schoolmaster to a poulterer.

"Yes, sir, all fresh to-day."

"What is the price?"

"You can take you choice, sir, for I have them at all prices."

"Well, I want to give my boys a treat; but I do not want them to be too tender. There are a dozen here—pick out four of the toughest."

The poulterer obeyed.

"Here, sir, you have four of the toughest birds in my shop."

"Thank you, sir," said the schoolmaster; "I'll take the other eight."

Dress Accessories.

At the annual meeting of W. H. Storey & Son, Limited, Acton, it was shown that the operations of 1906 were the most profitable since the re-organization of the business in 1903. The Board was elected as follows: President, W. A. Storey; vice-president, W. Stark; sec.-treas., John Firstbrook, Toronto; D. D. Christie, Guelph, and John Moore, Acton, directors.

R. B. Hutchison, head of R. B. Hutchison & Co., Bay Street, Toronto, is dead. He was 69 years of age, and heart failure was the cause of death. Mr. Hutchison went to Toronto about 17 years ago, having been in the wholesale woolen business in Montreal as a member of Mills & Hutchison. He was associated with one or two firms in Toronto before becoming the head of R. B. Hutchison & Co. His only son, Harold, is engaged in the business.

HOTEL DIRECTORY

WINDSOR HOTEL
HAMILTON, BERMUDA
This house is pleasantly and conveniently located on the East side of Queen Street. The rooms are bright and cheerful. Every attention paid to guests. Billiards and Pool. Hot and cold water baths. A. McNICOL, Prop.

TOWER HOTEL GEORGETOWN DEMERARA
BRITISH GUIANA.
This first class hotel is most conveniently situated in the coolest and healthiest part of the city. Five minutes from railway station and steamer stallings and near to all principal public buildings. Cool and lofty bedrooms. Spacious Dining and Ladies' Rooms. Billiard Room. Electric light throughout.

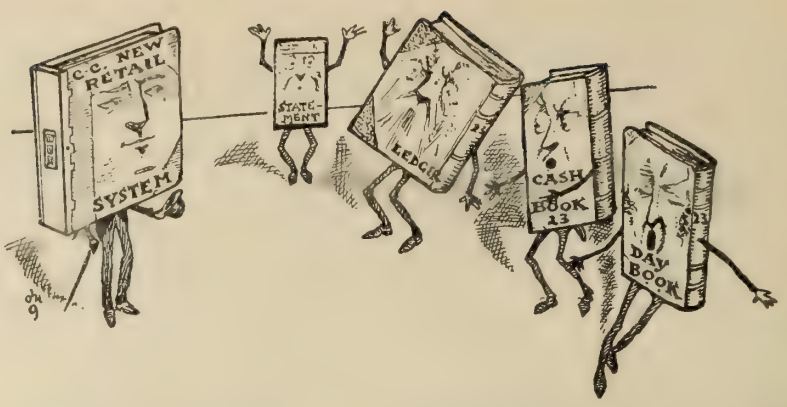
WOODSIDE BOARDING HOUSE
Corner of Main and Lamaha Streets
GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA.
Cool and airy Bedrooms. Excellent Cuisine Attendance qualified. Terms moderate. Electric Car Loop at gate of premises. Patronage Solicited. Manageress, E. COTTAM.

VICTORIA LODGE
HAMILTON, BERMUDA
Mrs. J. F. SMITH Proprietress.
Opposite Victoria Park and Cedar Ave.
Private Board $12 to $14 per week.
Open Nov. 1 Closes in May.

WINTER RESORT
QUEEN'S PARK HOTEL
PORT OF SPAIN, TRINIDAD, B.W.I.
JOHN McEWEN, Manager. For Rates, etc apply Trinidad Shipping and Trading Co., 29 Broadway, New York.

THE GRAND UNION
The most popular hotel in
OTTAWA, Ont. JAMES K. PAISLEY, Prop.

DOMINION HOUSE
W. H. DURHAM. Proprietor
RENFREW, - - ONTARIO
The most popular Hotel in the Ottawa Valley.



HALIFAX HOTEL
HALIFAX, N.S.

HOTEL IMPERIAL Large Sample Rooms
Steam Heated and Gas Lit
GEO. W. WEBSTER, Prop., Swift Current, Sask.

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS

JENKINS & HARDY
Assignees, Chartered Accountants, Estate and Fire Insurance Agents, 15½ Toronto St., Toronto. 465 Temple Building, Montreal.

DAVENPORT, PICKUP & CO.,
Chartered Accountants and Assignees,
622 McIntyre Block - WINNIPEG, MAN.

New Retail System: "Gentlemen, I'm the new clerk—I'm the Copeland-Chatterson New Retail System—I do your combined work in half the time you take to do it, and with half the labor." The Copeland-Chatterson Co., Limited, Toronto, will send catalogues of their Systems for Business on application.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS.

The ANDREW H. McDOWELL CO.
(Incorporated)
Dry Goods Commission Merchants, Mill Agents,
Woolens, Cottons, Dress Goods, Shoulder Pads, etc.
Head Office: 329 St James St., Montreal, Que.
Branch Office: 1 Wellington St. E., Toronto.
Manufacturers accounts SOLICITED on favorable terms

R. FLAWS & SON
Manchester Bldg., Melinda St., Toronto
Dry Goods Commission Agents.
Representing—S. & L. Ash Brothers, Leeds, Cloths, in great variety. Cartwright & Warners, Limited, Loughborough, Eng., Hosiery and Underwear. Bentley & Tempest, Leeds, Eng., Casket Cloth, Vicunas, Serges, Cap Cloths. Hood, Morton & Co., Newmilns, Scotland, Lace Curtains.

ALFRED WEYERSTALL
Head Office, 77 York St.
TORONTO
IMPORTER of all kinds of Buttons, Laces, Neckwear, Belts, Dress Trimmings, etc. Complete stock of Buttons and Tailors' Trimmings always on hand.

MOULTON & CO.
Proprietors of the old and reliable
MONTREAL FRINGE AND TASSEL WORKS
165 Nazareth Street, - Montreal
Manufacturers of
Braids, Cords, Barrel Buttons, Chenille, Dress and Furriers' Trimmings, Girdles, etc.

J. SPROUL SMITH
Empire Building - - - TORONTO
Representing: Cornwall & York Cotton Mills Co., Ltd. Cotton Goods, St. John, N.B.; Paris, Wincey Mills Co., Flannels, etc., Paris, Ont.; John Bright & Bros., Carpets, Rochdale, Eng.; Wm. Ewart & Son, Linen Goods, Belfast, Ireland; H. Longbottom & Co., Cravenettes, Linings, etc. Bradford, Eng.

W. E. WALSH & BRO.
207 St. James Street, - Montreal
SPECIAL LINES IN
Fancy Leather Goods, Bags, Purses, etc. Toilet Sets, Fans, Back and Side Combs, Brushes, Postcard Albums, Papeteries, etc., etc.

Condensed Advertisements

AGENTS WANTED.

ABARMEN (Germany) ribbon factory, specialin linen, underwear, laces, embroidered and woven linen marks and shirt labels wants a live agent for Canada. He must visit linen underwear factories and the wholesale firms. Apply with offers to No. 5 Orell Fussli, Annoncen, Zurich, Switzerland.

BUYER of Montreal dry goods store, residing in Paris, speaking French, English, German and Spanish, is open to represent a good Canadian firm. Apply Box P, DRY GOODS REVIEW, Montreal.

STRAW GOODS AND MILLINERY—London, England, house wishes to correspond with manufacturers' agents in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg, with a view to representation; women's and men's straw hats, flowers, feathers, shapes, etc., and fur goods; good inducements offered to the right men. Address Faire, care of DRY GOODS REVIEW, 88 Fleet St., London, Eng.

WANTED

BRIGHT intelligent boy wanted in every town and village in Canada, good pay besides the gift of a watch for good work. Apply The MacLean Pub. Co., 10 Front St. East, Toronto.

WHOLESALE HOUSES

BROCK & PATERSON LIMITED
ST. JOHN, N.B. HALIFAX, N.S.
The Wholesale Millinery and Fancy Dry Goods House of the Maritime Provinces.
MAIL ORDERS OUR ESPECIAL HOBBY.

GILMOUR, NEPHEW & CO.,
THE LEADING WHOLESALE JOBBING HOUSE
IN DRY GOODS AND SMALLWARES
We have at present several job Lots well assorted. RETAILER, it would pay you to give us a call.
GILMOUR, NEPHEW & CO.,
366 St. Paul Street, Montreal
TELEPHONE MAIN 2202.

CANADA HAIR CLOTH CO.
MANUFACTURERS OF HAIR CLOTHS
St. Catharines, Ont.

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

Wholesale

General Dry Goods

Something Different

Our principle of always carrying an up-to-date stock is evidenced by the many new and exclusive lines in our

Men's Furnishing Department

where we try to get away from the old stereotyped lines which are shown season after season and endeavor to secure some newer and more up-to-date lines with noticeable improvements that help to make selling easy for the retail merchant. Our buyers have scoured the world's markets and have gathered together for the Fall of 1907

the finest range of nobby and up-to-date goods that we have ever placed on the road.

Our travellers are in your vicinity. Drop us a postal and we'll instruct the man nearest you to call.

54, 56, 58, 60 ARTHUR STREET | Winnipeg | 53, 55, 57, 59 KING STREET

To the Trade March 1907

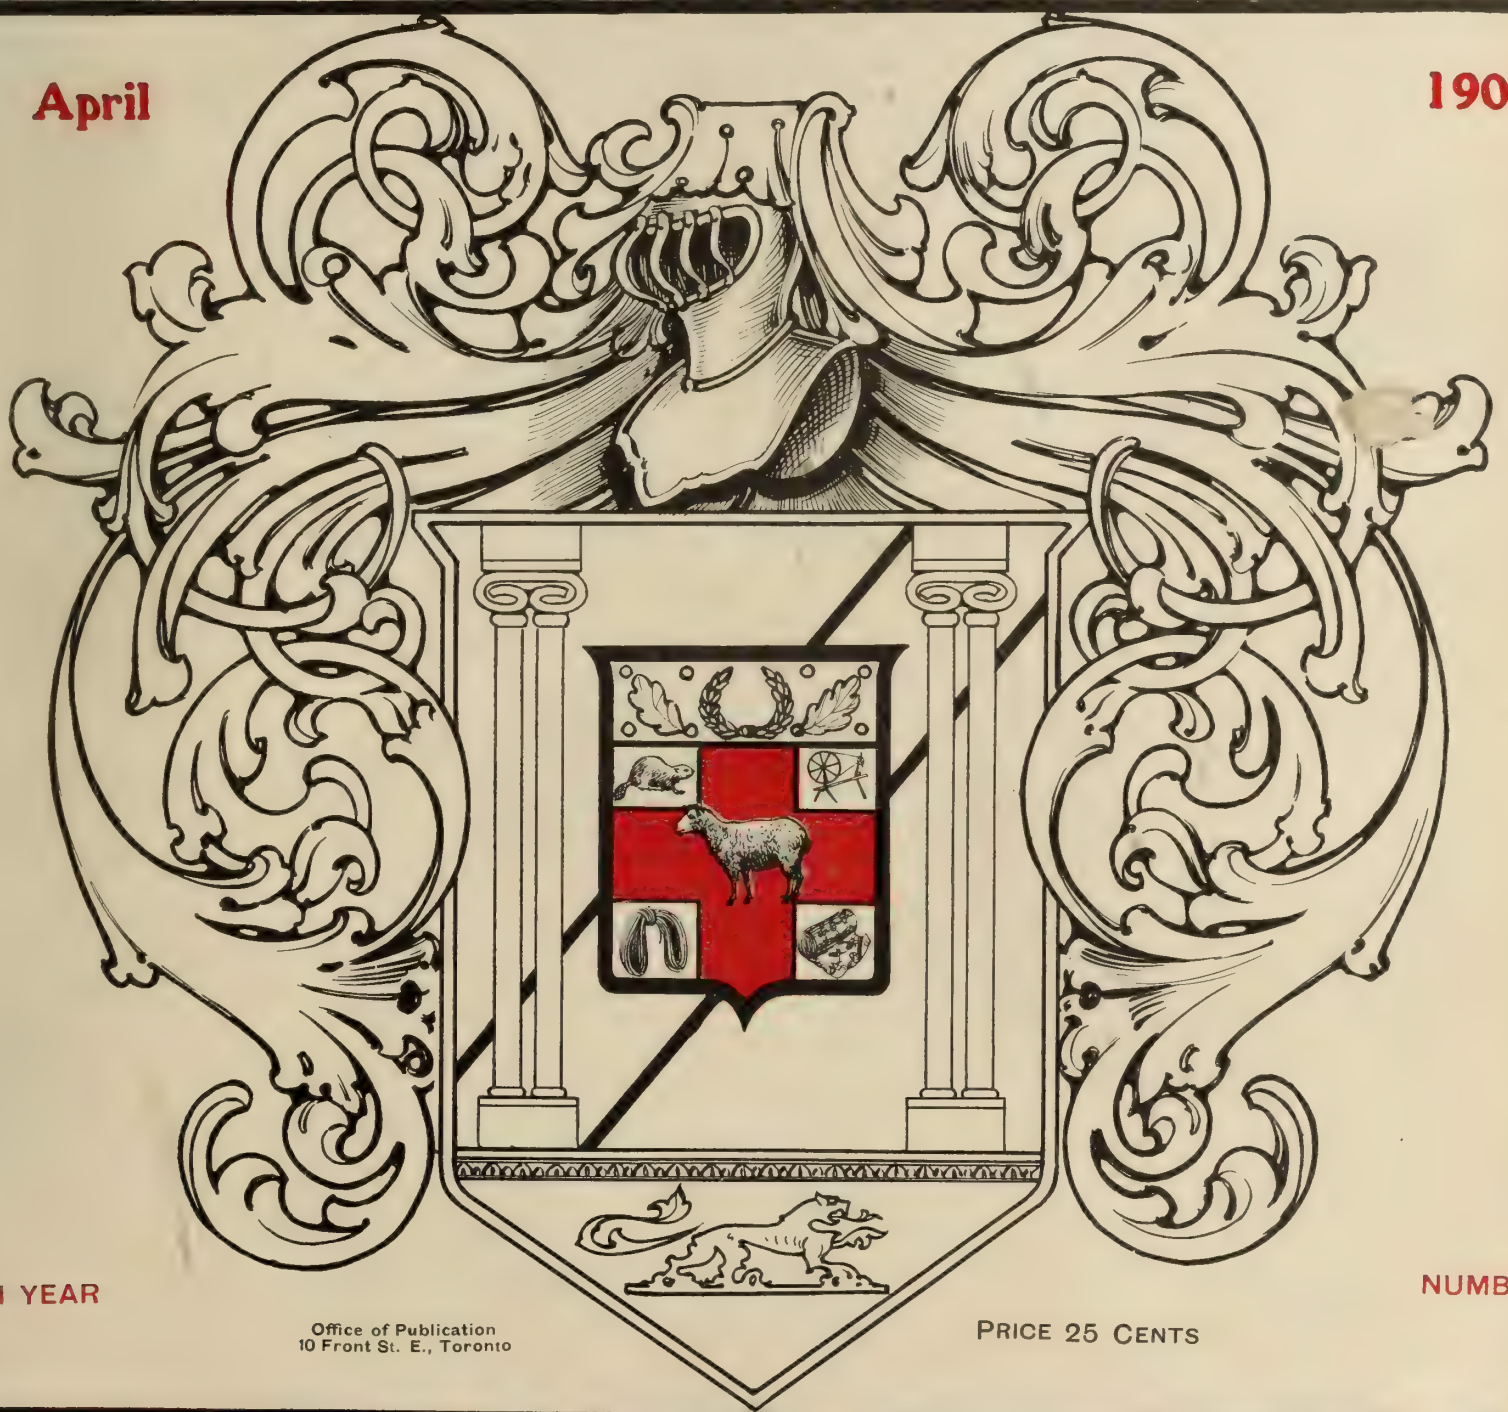
Letter Orders

Ordering by letter will save you time and trouble. Those who commence ordering by letter from us continue to do so, because of the superior value of our goods, the careful attention paid to all orders and the prompt dispatch in all our deliveries.

If you have not received one of our catalogues write for one, it will not cost you anything and will give you an idea of the assortment of lines we carry in general dry goods, men's furnishings, haberdashery, carpets, house-furnishings, woollens, tailor's trimmings and ready-to-wear goods.

If you will call and see our warehouses and the extent of our stock when you are in the city it will do you good. We shall be pleased to show you through our different departments and give you some idea of how well fitted we are to fill your orders no matter how large or small they may be.

Filling Letter Orders a Speciality



John Macdonald & Co., Limited

Wellington and Front Sts. E.

Toronto

THE DRY GOODS REVIEW AND MEN'S FURNISHER

April 1907

18TH YEAR NUMBER

Office of Publication
10 Front St. E., Toronto

PRICE 25 CENTS

THE MACLEAN PUBLISHING CO. LIMITED
MONTREAL, TORONTO, WINNIPEG.

Starting the Season with New Stocks

This is not a difficult matter if you know how well old or soiled or off-color stocks can be made to rank with your new stocks, once having been re-dyed and finished in these works.

For over thirty years we have been doing this class of work for the best men and women in the Dry Goods and Millinery trades.

We are very successful in cleaning and re-dyeing fine Plumes and Feathers.

R. PARKER & CO., Dyers and Finishers to the Trade.

TORONTO - - - CANADA

COLORED UMBRELLAS

are the correct style for early spring wear. We have in stock the following lines—

Navy Blue (wide tape border) - -	$24.00 per doz.
Navy, Brown, Myrtle, Garnet (tape border) -	27.00 "
" " " " all silk (tape border)	39.50 "
Navy with White border - - -	45.00 "
Navy with self-colored floral border -	60.00 "

MANUFACTURED BY

The Irving Umbrella Company LIMITED

79-83 Wellington St. W., - Toronto

"ROOSTER BRAND"

Best

Made

Travellers now out for Fall.

Heavy Working Pants
Heavy Working Shirts
Heavy Winter Smox
Overalls and Jackets
White Coats and Sleeve Vests
Boys' Knickers

ROBT. C. WILKINS
MONTREAL.

N.B.—All lines of Summer goods for assorting.

Greenshields Western Ltd., Winnipeg, Wholesale Dry Goods.

See our ads on pages 6, 7, 8 and inside back cover.

Spring Sorting Line for Quick Shipment

You will want a few lines to brighten up your stock for Spring business. Our assortments are all new, and include the most salable goods.

Cottons, Flannelettes, Ginghams, Prints, Wash Goods

Newest Patterns and Latest Colorings at CLOSEST Prices.

Carpets and House Furnishings

These goods will have a great run during this month. Our lines are the latest importations, and assortment is large.

Smallwares

Summer Goods for Ladies and Misses are a special feature here.

A big line of Embroideries and Laces.

Send us a list of your wants or see our Travellers' Samples. You will be equally satisfied.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited,
Winnipeg, Man.

Greenshields & Co., Limited,
Vancouver, B.C.

PRIESTLEYS' HUGUENOT CLOTH

Their Latest Creation

Priestleys' All-Wool "Huguenot" cloth is a combination of beauty, suppleness and durability, which will add to the reputation of these celebrated makers.

"Huguenot" cloth possesses all the durability and close texture of the old time serge, with the soft, rich draping qualities of a French Cashmere.

YOU NEED IT. YOUR CUSTOMERS WANT IT.

Samples and particulars upon request from the Sole Agents for Canada.

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED
WINNIPEG

GREENSHIELDS & CO. LIMITED
VANCOUVER

JOHN M. GARLAND SON & CO.

Wholesale Dry Goods

146, 148, 150 and 152 Queen St.
45, 47, 49 and 51 O'Connor St.
OTTAWA, CAN.

Bousters for Spring Business

Are Real Swiss Spot and Embroidery Muslins, 20-yd. ends, to retail for 25, 35 and 50 cents.

Our Anglo Swiss Spots and Stripes, natty designs, 24-yd. ends, to retail for 10, 15, 20, 25, 35 and 50 cents.

A soft finish Embroidery Linen, special cloth for eyelet embroidery, 40-in., 27½ and 37½ cents.

Attractive Woolens

The many attractive weaves shown in Coatings, Suitings and Trouserings will appeal to careful buyers. We have cut up ready for mailing, a very select range from the best cloths that our merchant tailors may have for the asking.

New Veilings and Laces

Our New Veilings will interest the retail millinery trade. They are the right goods. Valenciennes, Oriental, Chantillys—special widths for short sleeves.

Embroideries in Boxes

SHORT ENDS

These are made up of splendid assortments and comprise insertions and embroideries to match, etc.

Gloves and Hosiery

With the advent of warmer weather the demand for silk and lace gloves will be very large. Special long lengths will be scarce. The demand for Tan Hose will revive with the call for golden brown dress stuffs. Samples of our new Spring tweeds for costumes are ready for your asking. Mail orders filled same day as received.

Yours to serve,

JOHN M. GARLAND, SON & CO.

OTTAWA, CANADA

ESTABLISHED 1791.

Horrockses'

Longcloths, Nainsooks,

Cambrics,

India Longcloths,

Shirtings,

Ready-made Shirts

(plain and hemstitched).
HORROCKSES' name on each sheet.

Flannelettes of the highest quality.

N.B.—SEE "HORROCKSES" ON SELVEDGE.

Horrockses, Crewdson & Co., Limited

Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers.

PRESTON, MANCHESTER, LONDON, ENGLAND.

TAFFETA SUPRÊME

THE GUARANTEED SILK

After a year's experience with this silk we find it to be firmly established as one of the most popular makes of black silk, and it will give the satisfaction desired.

WE GUARANTEE Taffeta Supreme not to split or wear creasy, if subject to fair wear, and we undertake to replace any length which does not fulfil these conditions.

WRITE FOR SAMPLE

DEBENHAMS (Canada) LIMITED

TORONTO

BATTING

Guaranteed free from threads and other weak and lifeless stock.

NORTH STAR, CRESCENT and PEARL

COTTON BATTING

Quality for this season still better than ever. The best at the price. Made of good pure cotton—not shoddy.

Ask for

North Star, Crescent and Pearl Batting.

THREE SELLING QUALITIES IN

Pewny's Kid Gloves

GOOD FIT. GOOD STYLE. GOOD WEAR.

Besides every pair is guaranteed.

Fall Samples Ready for Inspection

GREENSHIELDS LIMITED

MONTREAL

Greenshields Western Limited
Winnipeg

Greenshields & Co., Limited
Vancouver

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

Wholesale

General Dry Goods

Ready-to-wear Goods
New Lines for Fall

Our travellers are out on their respective grounds now with samples of Furs, Golfers, Tam O'Shanters, and Children's Coats. In a few days they will have the complete range of ready-to-wear lines, such as Blouses, Silk Waists, Skirts, Wrappers, Flannelette Wear, Children's Dresses, Bearskin Coats and Mantles.

Be sure and have a look through our range this season as we are offering some special values in all lines and have a very choice lot of styles and patterns.

See our new skirts specially designed.

E. T. Corsets at factory prices.

Write us for a catalogue.

54, 56, 58, 60 Arthur Street	Winnipeg	53, 55, 57, 59 King Street

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

Wholesale

General Dry Goods

MEN'S WEAR DEPARTMENT

As usual, this department has many "good things" to offer. We will just mention one of them. Ask our travellers to show you Line No. 1007 Working Shirts; extra large English make. SPECIAL.

Negligee Shirts

We have a complete range of these Summer Shirts and show many exclusive lines.

Balbriggan Underwear

We have a huge stock of this light underwear at all prices.

Suspenders

Our special "Western Brand" Cord Suspender is second to none.

Neckwear

Newest shades in all styles. We have the largest assortment in the market.

Fine Gloves

Dog Skin, Kid and Undressed Kid.

Letter orders receive careful and prompt attention.

54, 56, 58, 60 Arthur Street	Winnipeg	53, 55, 57, 59 King Street

GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED

Wholesale

General Dry Goods

Have you seen

PRIESTLEYS' New Spring range of Dress Goods? If not it will repay you to do so and will be well worth your while.

The complete range is now in the hands of all our travellers and it is well worth an inspection.

54, 56, 58, 60 Arthur Street

Winnipeg

53, 55, 57, 59 King Street

I. B. KLEINERT RUBBER CO.

No. 1 Mincing Street, - TORONTO

Mr. Busy Man

You may not have much time for reading but it is essential that you read

The BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE

It will acquaint you with what the successful business men have accomplished. It will keep you in touch with existing conditions in other countries as well as your own. Every article will suggest ideas, which, combined with your own, cannot fail to bring you success.

his many-i n-one magazine will interest you deeply, as it embodies the best features of the world's publications. The cream of hundreds. Have your subscription commence with our March issue.

THE BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE

Toronto, Canada

British America Assurance Company

A. D. 1833

FIRE & MARINE

Head Office, Toronto

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Hon. Geo A. Cox, President W. R. Brock, Vice-President
Robert Bickerdike, M.P., W. B. Meikle, E. W. Cox, Geo. A. Morrow, D. B. Hanna, Augustus Myers, John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D. Frederic Nicholls, Alex. Laird, James Kerr Osborne, Z. A. Lash, K.C. Sir Henry M. Pellatt, E. R. Wood.

W. B. Meikle, General Manager; P. H. Sims, Secretary

CAPITAL - - - - - - - - -	1,400,000.00
ASSETS - - - - - - - - -	2,162,753.85
LOSSES PAID SINCE ORGANIZATION,	29,833,820.96

THE METROPOLITAN BANK

Capital Paid Up, - - $1,000,000
Reserve Fund, - - - $1,000,000
Undivided Profits, - - $ 133,133

We Solicit Your Account

GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS

Drafts bought and sold.
Letters of credit issued.
Collections promptly attended to.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

open at all branches.
Interest allowed on all deposit of one dollar and upwards.

Australian Trade

is worth looking after. The following figures are extracted from the official statistics of imports into Australia:

	1903	1904
Socks and Stockings	£1,162,449	£1,236,743
Towels and Handkerchiefs	281,194	390,821
Cosies, Cushions, etc,	117,125	159,856
Curtains	74,050	92,446
Frillings	13,019	18,836
Piece Goods (various)	4,826,523	6,134,389
Sewing Silks, Twists, Threads and Cottons	261,160	275,085
Umbrellas, etc	42,842	54,536
Boots and Shoes, etc'	702,543	767,581
Carpets and Rugs	329,610	489,454
Hats and Caps	372,133	427,876
Yarns	74,442	106,585
Feathers	21,546	34,825
Trimmings	215,984	247,279

The Draper of Australasia is the organ of the drapery and kindred trades of the Antipodes, and is subscribed for by all the leading firms in Australia and New Zealand.

You may obtain advertising rates and secure space by communicating with the American representative, J. C. Halsby, No. 1, Broadway, New York City, who will also supply specimen copies on application.

Publishing Offices

Melbourne, Fink's Buildings
Sydney, Post Office Chambers
London, 112 Wood St.
New York, 1 Broadway

THE TELEPHONE

Is a companion, friend and servant combined.
Invaluable for convenience in the household.

LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE SERVICE

Has no equal for the facility it affords in business life.
Full particulars as to rates and service at the nearest office of

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

WESTERN ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Incorporated 1851

FIRE AND MARINE

HEAD OFFICE—TORONTO, ONT.

Assets over - - $3,570,000
Income for 1906, over 3,609,000

HON. GEO. A. COX, President,
W. R. BROCK, Vice President
W. B. MEIKLE, General Manager
C. C. FOSTER, Secretary

Money

CAN BE SAVED BY MEANS OF AN ENDOWMENT POLICY.

YOU CAN ONLY SECURE SUCH A POLICY WHILE YOU ARE IN GOOD HEALTH.

Pamphlets and Full Particulars regarding the New Accumulation Endowment Policy sent on application.

Confederation Life

ASSOCIATION

W. H. BEATTY, President.

W. C. MACDONALD, ACTUARY. J. K. MACDONALD, MANAGING DIRECTOR.

HEAD OFFICE, - TORONTO, CANADA.

W. H. Whittingham & Co.

GENERAL

Shipping, Forwarding, Railway, Insurance, and Commission Agents and Warehousemen.

ESTABLISHED 1890

Head Office: Liverpool, 20 Chapel St.

and at

London, Manchester, Birmingham, Hanley, Swansea, Cardiff, Newport, and Hamburg

AGENTS IN CANADA:

H. V. COWIE, 476 Temple Bldg., Montreal

W. R. BEGG, 88 Bay Street, Toronto

A CHILD CAN OPERATE IT

Make Your Own Buttons

WITH THE

NEW DEFIANCE BUTTON MACHINE.

Make all kinds of covered buttons, rim, half-ball or flat, complete to make three sizes of button.

$7.50

Call or send for samples of our work.

Defiance Button Machine Co.,
266 Greene St., Cor. 8th St.,
NEW YORK, U. S. A.

This is an illustration of another

ENGLISH MADE REGISTERED SAJONIC TRADE MARK SAFETY PIN

Size 4

NICKELED STEEL "SKELETON" IN 4 SIZES

Carded or Boxed in Dozens.

J. NICKLIN & CO., - Birmingham, Eng.

Fibre Papers of Quality are

"Scotch Fibre" and "Invictus Fibre"

"Made in Canada" from specially selected pulp. Let us send you samples.

CANADA PAPER CO. Limited

TRADE MARK

Toronto
Montreal
Windsor Mills, Que.

Cable Address, "MACKER," Winnipeg. Office, 511 Ashdown Block

McREA & WALKER

Manufacturers' Agents and Wholesale Jobbers

WINNIPEG

Correspondence solicited from manufacturers desiring live, up-to-date representation in the West.

"Spero"

Accept no substitute for

"SPERO" Bleached Calicoes

Every yard made of highest grade cotton—every yard unrivalled in wear.

"SPERO" Make is stamped on the selvedge

Be on the safe side!

"SPERO" Flannelette

is not only of excellent quality and durability, but almost fire-proof.

"SPERO" Make is stamped on the selvedge

"SPERO" MAKE Regd

For Ladies' Overalls and Children's Dresses, get

"SPERO" Apron Cloths

Real Indigo dyed; printed in newest designs; the last word in utility.

"SPERO" Make is stamped on the selvedge

For Skirt Linings, buy 44-inch

"SPERO" Cambric Linenette

Light in texture, Bright in finish, will not drag.

"SPERO" Make is stamped on the selvedge

Manchester

Dominion Hammock Manufacturing Co.

There's something about our Hammocks which hold the reputation for Quality their excellence gained as soon as marketed.

You'll have the Hammock the people insist on having---if you place our name on your order list NOW.

WRITE FOR OUR CATALOGUE

Feature Tapestry Curtains if you want more business.

Ignore your curtain department and you woo commercial disaster.

We don't pretend to manufacture all good curtains---but we do manufacture the best. Write NOW.

Dominion Hammock Manufacturing Company :: :: Dunnville, Ont.

Fashion Cuts

TO OUR READERS

The Review uses monthly in its reading columns late fashion cuts which we secure from the old and new worlds.

These are only used once by us, and we offer these cuts to our supporters for their advertising work at the following low rates:

15 cents per square inch for half-tones
7 " " " " " " zinc etchings

Only the originals will be sold.

When ordering please mention page and month of the Review in which the cut appeared.

Address:

MONTREAL
232 McGill Street

TORONTO
10 Front St. East

LATEST SPECIALTIES:

BALDWIN'S BEEHIVE FINGERING

The ORIGINAL Fingering

GREAT BRITAIN'S BEST

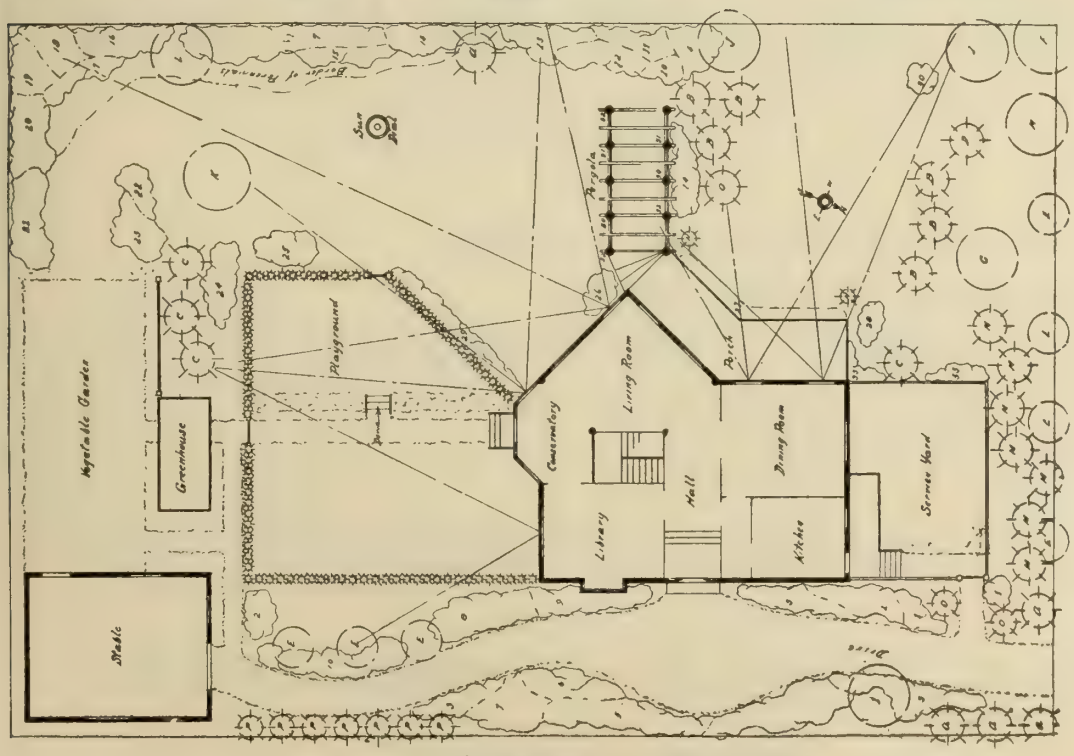
Cannot be surpassed for warmth, comfort and durability.

Beehive Double Knitting Wool. A grand yarn for warm garments, such as Socks, Stockings, Golf Hose, Gloves, Comforters and Combinations. It is the same length and thickness as the best 3-ply Wheeling Yarn, but is much stronger and more durable in wear.

Beehive Rug Wool. A novelty for making Rugs and Mats at home. Cable twisted, lustrous finish. Supplied in 3-dozen art shades.

Beehive Eider Wool. A really choice article for making dainty shawls and wraps. It washes beautifully and is particularly suitable for Undervests.

Beehive Feather Wool. A novel looped thread for Knitting or Crochet. Reproduces the wavy appearance of an Ostrich Feather or of Astrachan.



White Heather. "Baldwin's 2nd Quality," supplied in Scotch Fingering, 2, 3, 4 and 5-ply; 3-ply Wheeling; Vest Wool; and Petticoat Fingering, 4-ply. Good, reliable, high-class Wools at a popular level of price.

J. & J. BALDWIN & PARTNERS, LTD.
HALIFAX, ENGLAND
Established 1785 WHOLESALE ONLY

AGENT:
DUNCAN BELL
MONTREAL & TORONTO
Please Send for Samples.

Landscape Engineers

We are the Largest Canadian Nursery Company in this line of work.
We supply working drawings and also supervise plantings.

Ornamental Trees
Shrubs
Vines

Our prices are right—
So is our stock.

SET YOUR HOME IN A FRAME OF FOLIAGE

Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, Roses and Vines.

write for Terms and Prices.

BROWN BROTHERS CO., Limited, Nurserymen
BROWN'S NURSERIES P. O., ONT.

"MEN'S WEAR," London, says:
"Tailors and Outfitters all over the kingdom are greatly indebted to Messrs. Saml. Kirk & Sons, Limited, for the perfection to which they have brought their permanent finishes for Linings (Italians, Mohairs, etc.)."

The BEST Italians

BEAR THE STAMP OF

SAMUEL KIRK & SONS

LIMITED

There are two finishes with this name as a guarantee of excellence in brilliancy, permanency and strength:

(1)

The Original "Permanent" Finish

(2)

"Velper" (Reg.)

THE VELVETY PERMANENT finish for those who prefer a soft handle

Obtainable from the leading Importers, or particulars from
THE BRADFORD DYERS' ASSOCIATION, Limited, BRADFORD, ENGLAND

The Dominion Linen Mfg. Co., Limited

BRACEBRIDGE, ONTARIO

MANUFACTURERS

Cream and Bleached Damask Tablings.
Bleached Damask Cloths.
Napkins, Towels and Towellings.
Dress Linens, Dowlas, Tea Cloths.

The best value in the trade. Write us for samples.

COMPLETE STOCK CARRIED IN TORONTO

Sole Selling Agents for the Dominion

WALLACE, BLAKE & SHOULDICE

Successors to E. B. WALLACE & CO.

79 Wellington Street W., - TORONTO, ONT.

The new B D A Mohairs show the smartest fabric patterns of the season—narrow and medium stripes, block checks, skeleton checks, and some stunning plaid effects.

Their style alone would assure them ready sale. Then consider this style added to the iron-wear qualities of the goods. That's what brings the trade. The B D A brand is a mascot for big business.

The W. R. Brock Company. (Limited)

TORONTO

The Leader

500 Men's Oxford Grey Rainproof Coats, Tailor Made, to retail at $7.00 to $8.00, worth $10.00.

100 Dozen Ladies' Sunshades

Mercerized Gloria Cloth (durable), to retail at 50cts., worth 75cts.

Best Value—500 Pieces White Victoria Lawn

39 inch, to retail at 10 to 12½cts., worth 12½ to 15cts.

500 Pieces White Spot Muslin

25 inch, to retail at 12½cts., worth 15cts.

Long Kid Gloves (in stock)

Undressed in Black, White and Greys;
Glace in Black, White, Pastelle and Greys.

500 Dozen Job Excelda Handkerchiefs to retail at 10cts.

Hosiery, Gloves and Underwear

are three of our pet lines. See our stock and values.

MEN AND METHODS

Fine General Stores in a Village of 650 People—Successful Cash Business in Sarnia—Millinery on Third Floor — Other Items of Interest.

YOUNG FIRM "MAKING GOOD."

Mills Bros, of Sarnia, are a young firm—little more than a year old—but one that was founded on the right principles and is "making good." The Messrs. Mills are Sarnia boys, who spent some years in the trade there and had the advantage of being generally well known. They saw an opening for another store and grasped the opportunity Acting on an intimate knowledge of local conditions, they decided to start out on the strictly cash basis, and are well placed with the results.

"We knew all the disadvantages of the credit system," said one member of the firm, "and the way in which it operated in Sarnia. We had no more than enough money to pay for our stock, and figured that we could not afford to carry people for such periods as we knew many of them had become used to it. It would be better to do a fair business for cash than a considerably larger one and extend a good deal of credit. We are attracting a nice patronage and find our premises too small to carry all the lines that we would like to. We take all cash discounts, and they represent a substantial amount which will grow steadily."

This firm makes a specialty of dress goods, silks and linens. A good trade is done also in fancy goods and notions, which are well displayed. An ad. is run regularly in one of the Port Huron, Mich., papers and also in one daily and two weeklies in Sarnia.

Mail order business has developed into quite an item. Express charges are paid on all parcels sent out. It is regarded as found business, and the firm is glad to do this. No mailing list is used; the public is informed through the newspaper advertising that all letter orders will be promptly filled and charges prepaid.

For every Saturday a couple of leaders are advertised, but further than that bargains are not made a strong point.

LARGE FUR BUSINESS

With Geddes Bros., of Sarnia, furs are an important line, and the firm claim to carry one of the largest stocks in Western Ontario. Woolens and silks occupy a good portion of the shelving down one side of the store, and, we were informed, command a very active trade.

The millinery department earns a profit and a formal opening is held. Ready-to-wear business is good. No charge is made for alterations except on reduced-price goods.

A BRIGHT STORE.

Smith & Ash, of Sarnia, are successors to C. S. Ellis. Their store is bright, neat and well appointed throughout. Three floors are used for selling space, a condition made possible by the installation of an elevator. Up till recently the third floor was devoted principally to reserve stock, but it has been remodelled to accommodate the millinery section. Ready-to-wear, a department that is going ahead splendidly, occupies the entire second floor.

A formal millinery opening is held. The firm would like to start the Spring season earlier than at present, but does not see how the formal opening can well be dispensed with.

A charge is made for alterations in all ready-to-wear garments and customers are so informed.

The lighting of this store is excellent. The first floor has prism glass back and front, and each of the upper floors has a window across the entire front in which goods can be displayed, if so desired.

The Review asked if there were many pedlars operating in Sarnia and was told that they were practically excluded. The municipality looks after the local merchants pretty well. A by-law makes it impossible for Port Huron stores to distribute bills on this side of the line.

PROGRESS IN A GENERAL STORE.

Five years ago McKenzie & Meldrum, of Thedford, Ont., were burned out, with liabilities of $8,000 and only one asset, insurance amounting to $6,000. Their creditors accepted settlement at so much on the dollar, leaving them a balance of $300, which could not be collected within about three months. Eight days after the fire the firm were again doing business. Their premises were previously utilized as a butcher shop, and millinery was displayed on a billiard table in a back shed. No time was lost in making plans for the erection of a suitable store. The necessary capital was quickly secured and in September— the fire occurred in May —the building herewith illustrated was occupied. It has store space 60x70 feet, while the rear section, 30x60, is used as a warehouse. On the second floor are the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie, and also the town hall. The firm have a commodious driving shed for the accommodation of their customers.

McKenzie & Meldrum's Store, Thedford, a Village of 650 People.

This business has made fine progress during the past five years, and on March 2 last, a store in Arkona was purchased.

The cash plan has not been adopted, but credits are not at all heavy. Last year, at stock-taking time, there was only $390 on the books.

McKenzie & Meldrum carry just about every line of goods that it is possible for a general store to handle—dry goods, groceries, hardware, stationery, boots and shoes, crockery, etc.

"We don't sell much of the real cheap stuff in dry goods," said Mr. McKenzie. "We don't carry much of it, and our people are demanding better goods right along."

The firm ship a lot of produce, which they receive in exchange. Asked if this branch of the business paid a good profit Mr. McKenzie said it did not. Very often —gauged by the selling price of the merchandise—more is paid for butter and eggs than can be got for them. Local competition is very keen and keeps the prices high.

The store uses the barter coin system instead of issuing due bills for produce that is brought in.

Millinery always pays a small profit, and that is the most it is expected to do.

GOOD CARPET DEPARTMENT.

Thos. Symington & Co., of Sarnia, do an excellent business. The store runs right through the block, with an entrance on both streets. At the front are general dry goods lines and at the back a large carpet department. Woolens, silks and furs are strong lines with this firm.

Diagram Showing General Arrangement of C. Austin & Co's Store, Chatham.

LONG CREDITS STOPPED.

The Thedford branch of A. Beattie & Co., St. Marys, is an exceedingly neat store. Its stock comprises dry goods, men's wear, hardware, groceries, boots and shoes, etc. Long credits were stopped seven or eight years ago and for four or five years the business has operated very close to the cash basis.

In carpets and linoleums sales are made mainly from sample, the stock being carried at St. Marys.

A good trade is done in seeds. The store closes at six o'clock every evening except in the berry season, when someone stays latter.

LESS CREDIT ASKED FOR.

Clark & Fowler, of Sarnia, have a store that impresses one with its appearance of roominess. It is L-shaped, and one section is devoted to carpets and other house-furnishings. The cash system is not in force, but the firm find that not nearly the same number of people desire credit as formerly. This tendency is carefully fostered and encouraged.

CASH SYSTEM IN FRANK, ALTA.

Out in Frank, Alta., the merchants of that and neighboring towns have organized the Pass Mercantile Association, the object of which is to introduce a rigid cash system. The following circular, isued by the merchants interested, explains itself.

To Whom it May Concern:

On and after Monday, the 11th day of March, 1907, all goods will be sold for cash only.

The above matter has been under consideration for some time and the undersigned have agreed to abolish the credit system.

In taking this action we have carefully considered the welfare of our customers, as well as our own, and we feel that the cash system has proved a grand success.

Hoping all will see and derive the benefit of buying for cash and soliciting a continuance of your patronage, we are,

Yours truly,
The Geo. Cobley Co., Frank.
A. V. Lang, Frank.
Western Mercantile, Limited, Frank.
S. J. Watson, Frank.
The Frank Drug Co., Frank.
J. H. Bricker, Frank.
Western Mercantile, Limited, Bellevue.
Burnet and Lang, Bellevue.
Western Mercantile, Limited, Blairmore.
Western Mercantile, Limited, Lille.

Dated at Frank, Alta., this 22nd day of February, 1907.

P.S.—Any member violating the cash rule will forfeit the sum of $200 to this association.

The secretary has sent us a copy of the agreement which the members of the association have signed, but unfortunately it is too long to be reproduced in full. It provides that each member shall furnish the secretary with his bond for $150, and in case he breaks the agreement to sell for cash only he shall forfeit his bond and also pay a fine of $50.

THE NATIONAL CLOTHING CO.

A Dominion charter has been granted The National Clothing Company, Limited, Montreal, with a capital of $20,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were: Geo. J. Jajour, merchant; Alex. G. Coudsi, accountant; Adelard Rivet, clothier; Odillon Gratton, clothier; and Edouard P. Beaudry, accountant, all of Montreal. The objects of the company are "to manufacture, sell and deal in generally, by wholesale or retail, clothing of all kinds; to import and export and trade in generally, by wholesale and retail, all sorts of dry goods, or other goods, merchandise, materials or supplies generally used in businesses of similar nature; to acquire by purchase or lease, or otherwise take over, own and operate the business now owned and operated at Montreal by A. Rivet, O. Gratton and E. P. Beaudry, under the style of National Clothing Manufacturing Company, Limited, as a going concern."

JOHN KNOX COMPANY, Limited

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS

18, 20 and 22 King Street East, - - - HAMILTON, ONT.

APRIL SPECIALS JUST TO HAND

American Batistes

White Grounds, Red, Blue and Black Polka Dots. 2 lines—Elite, 7c.; Dauphine, 11½c.

Poplinettes*—*White Figured

A very special line, 6 patterns, price 25c.

White Checked Muslins

A special lot of 50 pieces at 11½c.

Washable Belts*—*Ladies'

3 lines, very latest, retail 15, 20 and 25c.

Black-hide Shirtings have advanced, but we are offering another lot at old prices.

"Old Bleach"

Expert buyers say

"Old Bleach" Linens

are unrivalled.

This brand of Irish Linen is now known and sold all over the Dominion. Why not place a trial order and compare?

Write for illustrated booklet on the "Care of Linens"

R. H. COSBIE

30 W. Wellington Street TORONTO

IRISH LINEN AGENCY

Good Advertising

How to Produce It

Brief Talks Given Monthly
By T. Johnson Stewart

To advertise, or not to advertise ; that is the question :
Whether 'tis wiser in a man to suffer
The wants and worries of an unprofitable business ;
Or—to sling some ink into a telling ad
And make things hum. To drone—to sleep—
Perchance to dream of dollars when the milliner's bill
Just hangs fire and all the babies in the house
Are crying loud for frocks—when a few words
About the values of our wares would make our stores

The marts of all the people in this town and change
These antique-laden shelves into a silver stream
And boost our bank accounts. This surely is

A consummation devoutly to be wished for. Then,
Let us advertise and keep on advertising.

* * *

To grunt and sweat under a weary life
But that the dread of something not to eat
Makes us keep hustling. The lack of advertising
Explains the weary routine of our days and the game
Of checkers in the back store. Let us shuffle off
Old-fashioned methods and attune our ways
Like unto those of shrewd players of the game
And enterprises of great pith and moment,
In this respect, will no longer turn away—but
Be what they were meant to be—a source
Of affluence for us and our posterity. Then,
Let us advertise and keep on advertising.

Now wouldn't I be a first-class chump if I were to step to the front of the platform and solemnly declare that the shade of the late Mr. Shakespeare was responsible for the retailer's soliloquy. On the contrary, I apologize to the immortal William—not because the parody is inapt or untimely ; but because I have turned the idealistic ravings of Denmark's incomparable dreamer into common-sense, twentieth-century, business philosophy. Besides, the only ghost that disturbs our slumbers is—a delicate treasury and if I can impart a few hints which will be useful to my dry goods friends here and now I'll take chances on being able to mollify Brother Bill hereafter.

* * *

The last quarter of the nineteenth century demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt that printed salesmanship would be the mightiest lever in the commercial life of the twentieth. Incidentally that just explains why I am an advertising man. This century will revolutionize business methods so thoroughly that the astutest business men of the last—men who have heaped up millions—would be hopelessly outclassed could we fling them unprepared into the year 1920. I tell you there is joy in being alive to-day. Because it does not matter how insignificant your business may be this vast country of ours will call strong men from every department of commerce and the lesson of all the ages is that the practical, sagacious young man of to-day in any line of endeavor will be the big man and the leader of to-morrow. There can be no doubt about such an assertion because history makes it good. Moreover, I think that Canada's drygoodsmen stand to win big prizes during the coming years. This immense country cannot be developed without making thousands of wealthy retailers. You can be one of them. Save your dollars, use common sense and advertise—advertise.

* * *

Let me dispel the fears of the man who imagines he cannot "get up an ad." This fact cannot be emphasized too much, viz., you do not need to be a first-class scholar, a master of language to advertise and advertise pretty effectively. The best of us are merely finding out things as far as the advertising game is concerned. The intellect of no one man can comprehend it in all its fulness. We are simply standing on the threshold of a new world which offers huge rewards to men of versatile and creative genius. Set down the advertising man who knows it all as a nonenity in the advertising world.

I intend to reproduce a few ads by amateurs, ads written by retailers, and the longer you consider them the more you will be convinced of your own ability to produce good strong advertising copy—copy with a jingle to it—just the kind of copy that sells goods. There are specialists (so-called) who might study the advertising of many country and small city merchants very profitably. You know your business, you know the value of your goods and their selling points, you know the wants of the people in your section and because of that knowledge you can produce good advertising—just the kind of ads which will clear your shelves. Get out your copy, take it to the printer, tell him to arrange it properly and gently hint that if he can help you to make your ad. a paying investment you'll be inclined to buy space regularly.

Material interests sway the business world. The newspaper man dreads the milliner's bill et cetera just as much as you do. Scratch his back and he'll scratch yours. And banish for all time the idea that you cannot produce an ad that will sell goods. You can. Every business man can. At least 99 dealers out of every 100 can do so because there is nothing intricate about retail salesmanship. Try it now. Advertise !

* * *

The man who swears fervently that advertising does not pay, because he has tried it, has either wandered from the truth in his advertising, or expected the whole community to make a bee-line to his store after his first ad. or two. Wooing business is pretty much like wooing a girl, and we all know enough about coy damsels not to try rushing tactics. You would not drop on your left knee, place your right hand on your heart and pour forth your song of adoration to the "dearest girl on earth," after the first, second, third, or even the sixth, visit. You cannot make her Mrs. Jones that way and you know it. You see the happy day approaching every time you look into her darkly, deeply, beautifully blue eyes ; but there's a glint of resistance still there which says plainer than words, "Don't rush things. Don't expect too much."

* * *

Some dealers expect a great deal too much from their advertising and expect it a good deal too soon. That's just why we have reproduced Thos. Symington & Co.'s ad. It would not be too much to say that Mr. Symington expects a good many things in this world which he won't get, and it is equally apparent that he will get quite a number of things which he does not expect. Apparently Mr. Symington advertises for "The Fun of It." If he intended to add to the gaiety of Sarnia in particular and the nation in general by the ad, we have reduced and reproduced, he has, like a good many of us, failed to live up to his intentions. I humbly confess that I am unable to understand just what our friend from Sarnia means. One of Napoleon's fairest and most ardent champions once remarked : "Napoleon is not a man ; he's a system."

"Splendid, splendid," murmured every adult present. However, a young girl knocked the profundity out of the Duchess's remark by asking what she meant. No one knew; not even the Duchess herself. And I am very much inclined to think that our mutual friend in Sarnia does not know exactly what he means by "The Fun of It." Probably he derives some pleasure from buying space in the newspapers far the purpose of filling it up with kind remarks about the ways and means employed by his competitors in securing trade. "There's heaps of 'Fun' in the analysis of modern advertising of a class," says this most prodigal space-buyer. To analyze anything on this green earth one must know something about it. But Mr. Symington doesn't believe it. It is immaterial whether he knows anything about advertising or not so far as his analysis is concerned. He states that "advertising of a class is largely composed of "Ferment and Froth," and, then, with the grace and ease of the average lady discussing mental philosophy, he goes on to show how beautifully he can sling "Ferment and Froth" all over the page—after darkly insinuating that the business methods of his competitors are far from being as righteous as they might be.

Now, Mr. Symington ! I do not pretend to know what the first paragraph of your ad. means. It resembles the orations of not a few of our modern preachers. They are good talkers ; but they never say anything. You start out with a rushing, bubbling torrent of words and we'll leave your first sentence in all the glory of its midnight obscurity. There is no doubt—there can be no doubt—about the meaning of your second paragraph. You simply make the bald statement that you're about the only drygoodsman in Sarnia conducting a business worth considering. The other fellows are running peanut concerns, so far as size is concerned, and as a consequence they cannot buy nearly as profitably as you can.

What's your opinion of your fellow citizens ? Do you

"The Fun Of It"

Sarnia, February 25, 1907

☞ There's heaps of "Fun" in the analysis of modern advertising of a class—which all intelligence and experience attests is largely composed of "Ferment and Froth"—this indisputible "Fact" being admitted your clear and bounden duty is in every instance to make comparisons—We'll be glad to give you every facility—every assistance in so doing.

☞ The man who does a pea-nut business can't either buy or sell merchandise or anything else in competition—how many storekeepers in Sarnia don't enjoy this enviable distinction? Let your every day comparison and experience make reply.

☞ Every day brings new goods to this store—they're placed in stock as fast as received —new merchandise is herein all its unmatachable exclusiveness—if you've nothing else on hand—come and see what it looks like—courteous, obliging and competent salespeople will greet you—newness and novelty go hand in hand you'll probably be unable to find anything like he stocks,the prices, the inducements, anywhere else—test it.

☞ Storekeeping is the connecting rod between the Manufacturer—the Importer—the Jobber—the Consumer Only guaranteed goods, best values and largest stocks are handled and offered here—These are no empty exclamations—but facts, if you don't find it so, we don't want your trade.

☞ House Furnishings, there s a fascination for every Carpet and House Furnishing buyer here and marked enthusiasm in the Swelling Sales, you can't but be delighted with the Curtain display, the Rug displays, the Mat and Rug displays, and wonder how many cars would take to carry away the tons of merchandise—took just as many to bring them We invite you to come and see—we lift the store, the stocks the prices above you and compel attention. This statement of fact refers with equal force to every department in the Store.

☞ Great Slaughter Sale of Furs and Winter necessities still going on Thos. Symington & Co.

CHRISTINA & FRONT STREETS, SARNIA

think that they cannot distinguish between common-sense and utter rubbish ? You can fool lots of people for a time ; but you cannot fool all the people all the time—not even in Sarnia. You're doing your future business an irreparable injury, imperceptibly, but surely undermining your reputation, simply because the statements you make in your ad. are as untrue as your insinuations are unfair.

The copy of the best ad-writer on earth will soon lose its pulling power, unless he sticks to the truth. Exaggeration is entirely out of place in all effective advertising matter. And since there are no drygoodsmen in Sarnia conducting peanut-sized establishments, Mr. Symington's insinuation is only a libel on his own veracity.

"Every day brings new goods to this store." That isn't exactly true, and Mr. Symington knows that it isn't. He simply means to fill up so much space and he rattles along throwing out words and phrases which come mighty near being dyed-in-the-wool, ancient and honored bluffs clean through and through. But, friend Symington, bluff as a business asset is in a delicate condition. You have probably as good values in your store for the people of Sarnia as any retailer. Tell the people so. Liven up your talk with some items with prices attached. Forget all about your favorite style of writing up that stuff for the newspapers—stuff which no stretch of even the most excursive imagination could ever designate as effective advertising. Write ads, not to show the strange and varied extent of your vocabulary or the wild and picturesque use you can make of the King's English, but for the simple purpose of selling goods. Stop throwing bombs labelled "trade-destroyers" at all competition, because they're sure to burst about your own doors. Take some thought for the morrow, conserve your nerve force and your trade at the same time, and your posterity will have solid and material reasons for remembering your name.

The man who makes his advertising space a medium for belittling the wares and business methods of his rivals is almost beyond the pale of a charitable thought. Not because he can destroy the reputation of his competitors, but because he would do so if he could. I do not think that Mr. Symington was actuated by purely business motives when he penned that ad., and others of the same class which lie on my desk at present. It seems to me that all such advertising is produced by men who cannot appreciate the effect of printed salesmanship, and, of course, since they buy space they must fill it up with something. Mr. Symington is too shrewd a business man for one to suppose, even for a second of time, that he gave any thought or consideration to the production of that copy. One can hardly imagine the average business man producing copy which is bound to injure his own business sooner or later. It is a disastrous policy to attack the policy of one's rivals—the extent of their businesses—or the poor economy of their buying methods. The public isn't at all interested in your opinion of either Jones or Brown. The public has its own opinion. The people look for some interesting news, some good values in your ads. Ordinary mortals are gifted with some common sense. And they weary very quickly of all second-rate attempts on the part of second-rate humorists to become great. My advice to all retailers who write their own ads, reads this way. Tell the story of the values you have for the people, in a straightforward manner. Use the same language you would use if you were speaking across the counters to a group of customers. Be honest and sincere with the people. That means—avoid all exaggeration, mind your own business and leave the business of your neighbor severely alone. These are the only directions that will carry a man far along the success road. If you're out for success—observe them.

* * *

It is with something akin to real joy that we turn to the ad. of the G. B. Ryan Co., which we have greatly reduced to reproduce. There is nothing startling about this ad. in any way. There's nothing strikingly attractive about the copy, but there's a good deal of sound common-sense packed into that space. The Ryan Co. have excellent values for the people of Guelph, and they know it. They do not pretend to know anything about the values offered to the public by their rivals, and they do not seem to either know or care about the business methods of their competitors. There is no slashing and cutting of prices here. The Ryan Co. credits the people of Guelph with good sense and so they tell their story in a dignified manner—in the language of truth and soberness. That kind of advertising always lands me. There's a guarantee of honest value about it. The Ryan Co. have good values for the people of their community and —these good values are easy priced. The people are bound to attach considerable importance to that kind of advertising sooner or later. The ad. could be arranged better. And perhaps it has the appearance of being a little crushed in places. But the matter is good—just what advertising men call "meaty," and the man who wrote that ad. can arrange his copy a good deal better—if he tries.

* * *

We intended to reproduce a few more ads., but space forbids us doing so. Currie Bros., of Saskatoon, have sent us in a splendid ad, which would do credit to any expert in the business. We are sorry that the ad. is too big to reproduce; but if Currie Bros. mail us a smaller one on the same line we'll be only too glad to reproduce it. The ad. is nicely balanced and attractively illustrated, items as well as prices being displayed.

* * *

What is easily the best sample of town store advertising we have seen in months has been forwarded to us by the Playfair, Preston Co., Limited, of Midland. The ad. is in circular form and would fill one page of any of our big metropolitan dailies. The copy is good, strong, trade-pulling stuff—just the kind of copy which simply cannot help selling goods; but what surprises me most about the ad. is the work of the printer. To say that it is good work is putting it very mildly. And because we have little more space this issue we will lay this ad. aside for special reference in our next.

* * *

Ads. sent by readers whose names we have not mentioned as yet will come up for criticism in their turn. A number of surprisingly good ads. have been forwarded during the last few weeks, and we will be glad to receive lots more. Be patient. Your ads. will be criticised in their turn.

INTERESTING EXTRACTS AND IDEAS.

"A comprehensive exhibition of Spring millinery will be made on Thursday next—chiefly adaptations from the French hats we have been studying. Not copies, but studies, and, therefore, fairly called 'White styles.'"—The John White Co., Woodstock.

"Unprecedented values for spot cash. * * * Spot cash must accompany each transaction to get the above discounts."—The Anderson-Langstaff Co., Kemptville, Ont.

"Shirt waists at popular prices. See them! That's the best way of knowing just how beautiful, charming and stylish they are, and the extraordinarily good value they represent."—Stanley Mills & Co., Hamilton.

"At the White carnival. Back before the advance in cotton fabrics our order for counterpanes for this sale was in the hands of the makers. Every price is especially cut for the White carnival."—Moore & McLeod, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

"We have determined to clear out every Winter jacket we have in stock. Wednesday you can have your choice from our stylish stock of garments at exactly one-half the regular selling price. We would sooner make this sacrifice than carry over any garments until next season."—The T. H. Pratt Co., Hamilton.

"We have gathered within the four walls of this department what we feel sure you will say is the best stock of carpets it is possible to get. First of all the makes are reliable. Then the patterns are new and tasteful. The assortment is larger than ever and the prices are all in your favor for they are below the market prices of to-day. Bring in the sizes of the rooms or halls you wish to be carpeted and let us show you suitable patterns."—Campbell Bros., Woodstock.

SOMETHING NEW

Something new but different is what a great many retail merchants are looking for, but this it is often very difficult to find. Our buyers make it a point to spice their assortments with just this "something" which lends zest to business, and scores a "scoop" in favor of the finder.

Speaking generally, our stock as a whole this season, was never larger or better selected, and the price-values will bear the scrutiny of the closest buyers, and come out ahead. We pride ourselves on Dress Goods, but we equally pride ourselves on Staples, and so on throughout all the departments of our warehouse. We also pride ourselves on being quick shippers even at a time when the congested state of manufacturing makes the reputation hard to maintain.

Test the foregoing statements, and we'll hold your trade.

BROPHY-CAINS, LIMITED

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS. MONTREAL.

QUICK SHIPPERS

"March linen and beddings sale."—W. W. Wilkinson & Co., Galt.

"The question just now is not 'What might these goods sell for,' but 'What price will surely sell them at once.' "—E. R. Bollert & Co., Guelph.

"The money is better to us than the goods, and the old-fashioned idea of carrying goods from one season to another is not ours."—Hollinrake & Son, Milton.

"This is Barrie's corset specialty store, where every pair of corsets bears the stamp of excellence and every sale is accompanied by our own personal guarantee of satisfaction."—Geo. Vickers, Barrie.

"There is as much difference between ———— brand garments for men and the ordinary or garden variety of clothes, whether custom-made or ready-made, as there is between an automobile and a stone boat." Farthings, Aylmr.

"Europe has sent us her best. No need to go to Paris; Paris is here. New York can't beat us; she's not as near to Europe's heart as we are. We'll have a show here on Monday that will be a credit to Canada, and when you see it you'll be just as proud of it as ourselves."—The John Murphy Co., Montreal.

"Towel Day at the White carnival. Little towels and big towels—cotton towels, linen towels, huck towels, Turkish towels, bath towels—every sort of towels."—Moore & McLeod, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

"The store of best service—that's Crompton's."—Crompton's, Brantford.

"A woman can never have too many waists—especially when she can get them at three for the price of two."—T. H. Smith, "The Cash Store," New Westminster, B.C.

"There are hundreds of small lots of Winter goods that, individually, it would not pay us to advertise. We can only ask you to visit this busy store on Saturday and likely find just the thing you want, most likely at half price."—Shea's, Hamilton.

"The store that guarantees customers absolute satisfaction."—Scroggie's, Montreal.

"The Great Emporium of the Great West."—David Spencer, Limited, Victoria.

"Handled whitewear at 'given-away' prices. The sale of whitewear herewith announced represents the aftermath of our January sale of women's undermuslins. These garments have been tossed and mussed somewhat by handling or through display upon tables, so they have been classified and re-marked at a fraction of their actual value."—The Murphy-Gamble Co.

"Our 'White Sales' are not theoretical or visionary, but are practical realities that put better whitewear, better values, in cottons, sheetings, embroideries, and the many other lines, into the homes of the people, and save them a third and more"—The John White Co., Woodstock.

"Where Things Are Done That Count! Looking backward. To carry poor goods when good ones are available is little short of commercial suicide. To cater to a rational demand for ready-to-wear garments that have character and distinction is the wisest kind of a move but to deliberately sacrifice future prosperity for the sale of what is apparently present gain is a serious error. * * * * If you are not satisfied we will give you back your money."—Currie Bros., Saskatoon.

"Nobby styles for late Winter, between seasons and early Spring."

"Half dollars do full dollar duty in the buying of high-grade overcoats for men and boys." D. E. Macdonald & Bros., Guelph.

"Everything in our window will be ticketted in plain figures. Remember these prices only hold good for four days—not a day longer."—G. B. Ryan & Co., Guelph.

"We use 'handsome' advisedly in connection with these fine French and English dress fabrics. There is a dash and style about them that places them at once far above the ordinary class you have been accustomed to seeing."—J. D. Creaghan Co., Moncton.

"Everything marked at a price to clear it out must be cash, cash, cash. We must have money and room for the new goods now arriving for Spring trade."—Chas. E. Neff's, Medicine Hat.

"Smart, fashionable styles in silk shirt waist dresses, $10. No nicer dresses are to be seen even at $20—certainly none with more style or with more care in making. Beyond the $20 figure you'll see more elaborateness, but for smart effects these dresses embody all that comes within the realm of correctness. The skirts are full pleated styles, plenty of width to give a graceful flare at the foot. Waists, both in jumper and fashionable shirt waist effects, handsome lace fronts, lace trimmed neck and sleeves, in attractive shot effects, every thread pure silk. Sizes 32 to 40 inches."—W. A. Murray & Co., Toronto.

"Yes, ribbons are destined to play an important part in fashionable women's attire this season, and, of course, we have prepared for a phenomenal demand."—Jas. A. Ogilvy & Sons, Montreal.

"February patrons of our clothing department never fail to get exceptional values."—Manchester, Robertson, Allison, Limited, St. John.

"Studying ceaselessly to obtain goods that build up rather than destroy a business in what this aggressive, progressive, go-ahead store is doing every day. Well, of course, the profits are not so large, but then it's nice when you are able to buy and sell for cash—it pays."—Currie Bros., Saskatoon. In a recent ad. this firm reproduced letters from two customers relative to the goods and values that they offer.

"This is always a very quick sale. Exert clerks, prompt service."

"There seems to be no limit to the exquisite effects obtainable in lawn and linen waists."

"Words lose their force unless you can come here and witness for yourself the remarkable values, the beautiful tailoring of the garments, and the distinction of both styles and materials. * * * The freshness and daintiness and the excellent workmanship on these waists would commend them to the interest of almost every woman—even at higher prices. * * * We are proving our utility to men around town these days by keeping them in touch with the latest furnishings."—David Spencer, Limited, Vancouver.

"Refreshing springtime newness everywhere about the store."—Weiler Bros., Victoria.

"Facts only over this name."—O. H. Bricker, Essex.

"You will save money by retaining us as your exclusive outfitters."

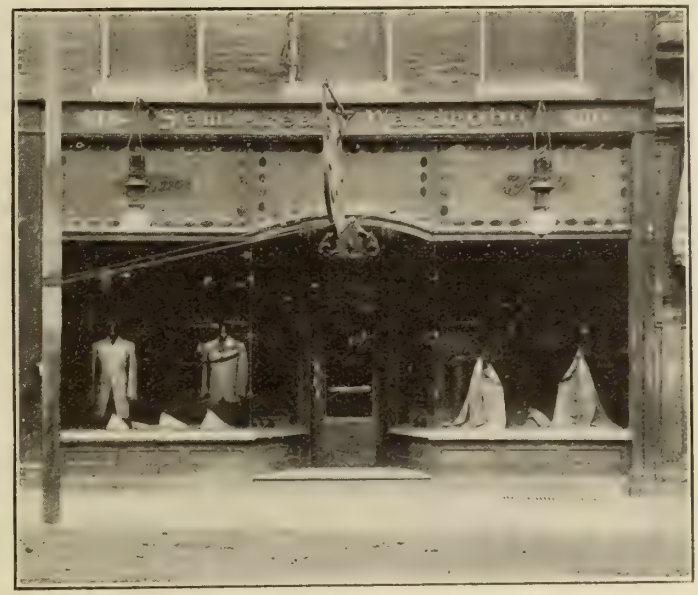
"Clothes to please the lads; prices to please the dads." Mulcahy, Orillia.

"Satisfied customers are our best advertisement."—Sandersen Bros., Cash Store, Waterford.

"A delightfully gay exhibit of new wash materials chic, tastefully designed, new."

"Buying these high-grade carpets now is like buying government bonds. A substantial investment, the dividends on which are the difference between the regular prices and these we are now quoting to close out discontinued patterns and make room for the new Spring Stock."

"All our corsets from $1 up are filled with genuine illuminized non-rustible steels, and are warranted not to rust or mark your apparel."



White Opalite Glass Tile

The only Sanitary, Non-Crazing, Weather-Proof, Light-Reflecting and Non-Absorbent Tile on the Market.

Complete with Corners, Mouldings and Cove Base.

The Cleanest and Best Material for Wall Protection.

Estimates and Samples Supplied.

Used in Vestibules, Halls, Lavatories, Bathrooms, Operating Rooms, Kitchens.

One of Our Latest Store Fronts

LUXFER PRISM CO., LIMITED

100 KING STREET WEST, - - - TORONTO

Section of Modern Store Equipped with our System

Weir Wardrobe System

PATENTED

For the Economic and Scientific Handling of Men's and Women's Ready-to-wear Garments.

Sectional Wardrobes—each complete in itself

Fitting Rooms, Stairways or Dummy Fronts, all of uniform style, size and height.

Capacity: High Boys—in 30 in. frontage—50 Suits
Low Boys —25 Suits and 25 pairs odd Trousers.

Hardwood or Metal Roller Bearing Slides. Price list and catalogue on application. Estimates furnished.

Intending purchasers are specially requested to see our Trouser Slide and Suit Counters—the only thing of the kind in existence.

Weir Wardrobe Co. of Canada, Limited

Head Office and Factory: Mount Forest, Ont.

U. S. Factory: Mason City, Iowa

HARRIS & SHELDON, LTD.

STAFFORD ST.

BIRMINGHAM

ENGLAND

SHOPFITTERS

And Manufacturers of BRASS FITTINGS and Display Fixtures and Forms for STORES, Etc.

Illustrated Catalogues mailed free on application

ENGLISH BRANCHES:		DEPOTS
LONDON:—	70 Wood St.	BERLIN:—	40 Krausentrasse
MANCHESTER:—	38 Thomas St.	CAPE TOWN:—	94 Hout St.
GLASGOW:—	71 Queen St.	JOHANNESBURG:—	102 Fox St.
DUBLIN:—	15 Wicklow St.	Agencies all over the world.

"UNISYSTEMS"

Systems built to fit into each unit of your organization

SALES OFFICES:

Toronto Montreal Quebec

UNIVERSAL SYSTEMS, LIMITED

8-10 Adelaide Street West

Toronto, - Canada

WINDOW DRESSING

THE ART OF DISPLAY

INTERIOR DECORATION

Spring Opening Windows

What Toronto Trimmers Are Doing and Showing—Some of the Most Striking Displays.

Toronto has been treated to some exceptionally good windows since the Spring goods have been on display, windows that have not only been a delight to the eye, because they were dignified and artistic, but which also have been a delight to the heads of departments, because in the effort to evolve a display that attracts, the main object of window trimming—the sale of goods—has been well kept in mind. This is the proper ideal for every window trimmer to keep before him. He should strive to produce just that combination of artistic merit and practical effect that will prove the best trade winner. It is on this that his success depends. To hold the attention of the buying public, samething more, at this season of the year, than a bare display of goods is necessary ; there must be something extra used to attract the eye. To hold the attention the window display must have richness and harmony of line and subtle blending of color, and though the background is responsible for this in a great measure, it must not, by over-elaboration, draw one's eye from the goods—in short, it must serve to emphasize the goods and still be a background, nothing more.

One of the R. Simpson Company's windows, dressed for the millinery opening, we reproduce. This was in the "new art" style. The shaped pieces which formed the background feature were covered with white felt, as was the floor also. The floral decorations were sprays of small crimson roses and foliage, arranged over the background. The curtains used were of velours in the new soft grey-blue, "Copenhagen." The same background was used also for a splendid dress goods window, the materials being light-weight tweeds and wool and worsted suitings. After this was taken out, suits and costumes were put in. Another noticeable millinery display afterwards put in the same window had the background somewhat altered. The fancy panelling was replaced by a narrow, straight one, also covered with white felt, and with the rambler roses and foliage sprays trained and bunched over it. A little to one side of the centre was placed a copy of Gainsborough's Duchess of Devonshire in a hand-some gilt frame, and depending from the picture were long loops, bows and ends of handsome ribbon. The ribbon, and all the millinery displayed, was of the new Copenhagen blue, the curtains at the back being changed to a very light tint of blue in raw silk. This window has been one of the most successful shown, and has done much to stamp upon the minds of the women of Toronto that Copenhagen blue is a leading millinery color this season. Nearing Easter, a lovely mauve and white window was dressed. The curtains used were of Madras over white and paneled above with white felt, the floral decorations being white geraniums leaves shaded with violet. All the hats, which were very handsome, were of shades of mauve.

Display of Curtains—The Ross Co., Welland.

The W. A. Murray Co., while relying, as they always do, on the beauty and style of their goods, have gone more than usual into background effects, but they cannot be congratulated upon their success in this direction. The goods this firm display are always well draped, but further than that the windows contain nothing of interest to the trimmer.

The T. Eaton Co. have lately devoted a good deal of space to house furnishings. A showing of Oriental rugs occupied nearly all the windows of their Yonge street front. Men's furnishings have also been well pushed. The most effective of this firm's displays was devoted to millinery. The floor of the window is only a foot or so higher than the sidewalk, and this brings the trims into particular prominence. In this instance the floor was covered with white felt, softly clouded over with pink chiffon or some other soft material, draped against a panelling of bronze green. In the centre of the panelling was an arrangement of ribbon streamers, held on one side by a dove and on the opposite side by a mirror, with a heavy gilt frame. In the centre was an inlaid mahogany stand, with a rich vase containing a sheaf of Malmaison roses upon it. Two wax figures, besides the millinery, were used, one at each side of the window. Behind the one at the left, and placed across the corner of the window, was a large dressing mirror. Really, it was the soft effect of the pink chiffon, and its treatment, that made the success of the window. Another good point that it scored was the appearance of warmth that it gave. There are days in the early Spring when millinery displays have a decidedly chilly look—a look of rushing the season—and it was just this that the soft, rosy, pink effect excluded.

A Millinery Window—The R. Simpson Co., Toronto.

France expects that her colonies will soon supply the greater quantity of raw cotton which she requires. Last year her purchases amounted to 400,000,000 francs, chiefly from the United States.

Ideas for Draping

Some Home-made Stands That Any Trimmer Can Make for Himself.

The up-to-date trimmer is always on his guard against falling into a rut in the matter of drapes, and a new idea is always acceptable. The Review is giving this month a number, and while they may not all be new to some of our readers, they will be so to many of them. Though the fixture manufacturers are always producing novelties in stands, etc., the leading trimmers are not content with combining them and putting them to new uses ; they are also utilizing a number of ingenious, home-made stands, that, while not superseding in any manner the manufactured fixtures, which are indispensable, are being used to supplement them in making varied drape displays.

The mission style lends itself particularly well to this purpose, as both shape and finish are well adapted to display uses.

The large stand explains itself, and figures 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 give the construction of the most complicated one. The others are made either over T-stands, or uprights with a brass draping ring screwed in, with the exception of one that has an arm raised at an angle from the upright.

Wash Goods Windows

A Few Simple Directions as to Ways in Which Loss Can Be Avoided.

From now on, the new season's wash goods will have to be pushed to the front, and the display artist will have to be prepared to put in some telling windows. The buyer for this department will be very eager for the usual special window representation that it is his right and privilege to enjoy at this season. He will also be, no doubt, a little loth to part with his daintiest patterns and choicest goods, unless he is very sure that they will be carefully handled, and that they will return to stock in such a condition that the bargain table will not be the only place to sell them. Some loss must be expected, but proper care on the part of the trimmer can minimize this. For one thing he can guard carefully against damage by dust, and he should personally see that both floor and fixtures are free from all dust before the window is put in. If

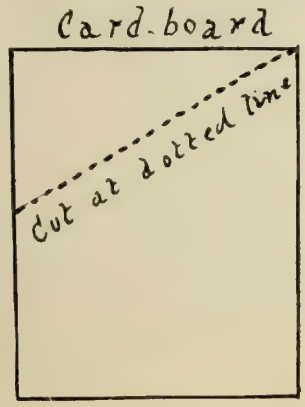

Fig. 1.

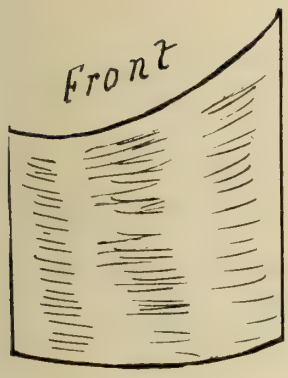

Fig. 2.

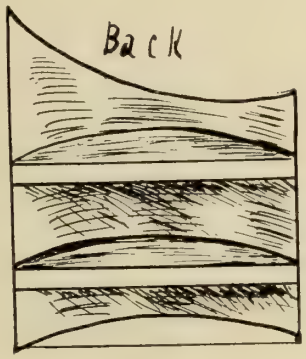

Fig. 3.

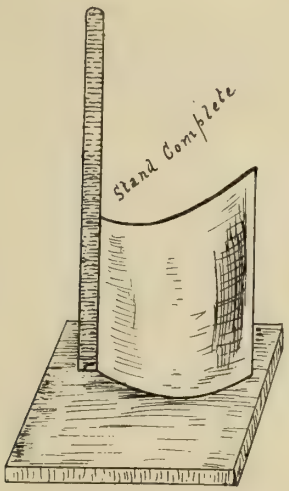

Fig. 4.

the window floor is of hardwood, it should be covered, as felt, carpet, etc., will hold fast to much dust and dirt that would be free to leave a polished surface and cling to the materials used in making the display. If a trimmer has any doubt about this fact, let him drag a length of fine wash fabric over both a carpet and a polished window floor and note the result.

Clean felt slippers should be worn while dressing the window, or a piece of white flannelette tied over the feet, and the trim should have been so carefully and thoroughly planned that no unnecessary handling has to be done. Another way in which a trimmer can avoid damage to goods is to carefully limit the number of pieces used in making a display, and by using, as far as possible, waist and dress lengths, rather than whole pieces of material.

The class of drapes used should be as simple as possible, and of a kind that requires little manipulating and pinning. Pinning should always be avoided, but if it must be done, should be confined to the selvedge of the goods.

The very best drapes to use for wash materials are of the loose, flowing order, of the kind made with T-stands, and suspended rings, etc. Possibly to obtain some given effect, you may have to resort to plaiting and puffing, but this should be done as sparingly as possible, especially where the fabrics to be shown contain a considerable amount of dressing.

Lavenders, purples, certain shades of blue, and other well-known fugitive shades, should be as little used as possible, but when they have to be shown should be placed near the background and in such a position that the direct rays of the sun will not reach them. Careful attention to the awnings while the display is in the window, will save a lot of loss through fading.

If the trimmer can afford a fairly elaborate background he can confine the drapes he uses to these simple types; in fact, the goods may only be arranged loosely over T-stands of different heights. To draw away attention from the uniformity of his drapes, he will have to devise various schemes. He can, for instance, show a central figure in an appropriate wash suit or costume, or a lace robe, or he can use a draped dress form. Parasols, millinery, ribbons, laces, hose, belts, bags, neckwear, etc., can be freely and effectively used for this purpose.

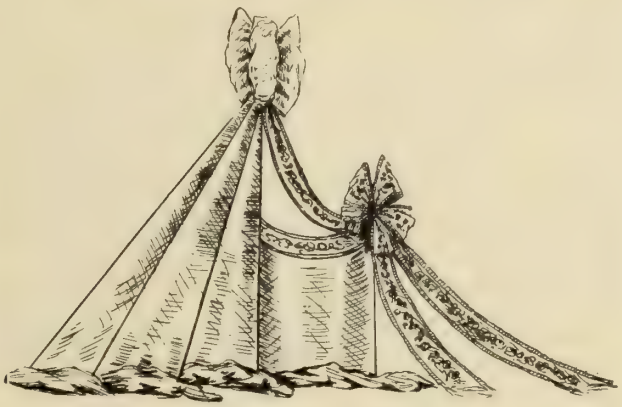

Fig. 5—The Finished Drape.

AN INTERESTING DECISION.

Draper's Record:—At the Central Criminal Court, Harry Cohen, a furrier, was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment in the second division for obtaining by false pretences goods from P. L. V. Rosentower to the amount of £639. The evidence showed that while Cohen was obtaining these goods, he was selling them on the very day of delivery to anyone who would take them for cash, and that he had already booked his passage to New Zealand in an assumed name, clearly with the intention of gathering in all he could and disappearing. Acting on his counsel's advice, the prisoner pleaded guilty to the charge of obtaining these goods from Mr. Rosentower, and also to the charge of leaving the country with intent to defraud his creditors. The prisoner was then duly sentenced. At this stage of the trial an interesting and unusual development took place. At the time that the prisoner was arrested a sum of £565 was found upon him. Mr. Rosentower, who had been solely instrumental in securing the arrest of the prisoner, claimed that the money should be handed to him in part satisfaction of his debt of £639. To this the counsel for the trustee in the bankruptcy of Cohen objected, claiming that the money should be handed over to him for the benefit of all the creditors. None of these other creditors, however, it would seem, had taken any steps to secure the debtor's arrest, the burden of the day having been left to Mr. Rosentower. The judge, having discussed the question with his confreres, decided that Mr. Rosentower was entitled to the restitution of the money in question, as he had taken the trouble and expense of bringing the prisoner to court. We fully concur in the judge's decision, and would give it the widest publicity. It should act as an incentive to creditors to combine in matters of this kind, instead of leaving it to one of their number to pay the expenses in bringing an offender to justice.

CAPITAL INCREASED.

John Northway & Son,, Limited, have been granted authority to increase their capital stock from $150,000 to $500,000 by the issue of 3,500 shares of new stock at $100 each.

NEEDLES AD INFINITUM.

The Scientific American is responsible for the statement that the daily consumption of needles all the world over is something like 3,000,000, and our contemporary asserts that "every year the women of the United States break, lose, and use about 300,000,000 of these little instruments." It is impossible to state how reliable these figures are, but it is rather startling to be told that the world's consumption of needles, reckoning 300 days to the year, amounts to "something like" 900,000,000.

As a contrast to present prices it may be stated on the authority of an English drapery paper that in 1624, 600 needles cost five shillings. This would represent in modern currency at least twenty-five shillings, or one half-penny for each of the needles; and as they were then, of course, made by hand, the cost does not seem excessive. Stow tells us that in the reign of Queen Mary, a Spanish negro "first made needles in England, which he sold in Cheapside," but he would not, the historian says, "teach his art to any." On the other hand, the origin of the Needlemakers' Company dates back to the reign of Henry VII. It was incorporated by Oliver Cromwell in 1656, and received another charter from Charles II. "Whereas," so the charter runs, "we are informed that sundry persons using the trade and mystery of needlemaking in our City of London, have used, and still do use and practice many abuses and deceits in making of iron needles, and needles of bad stuffs and unworkmanlike, to the great abuse and wrong of the people of this kingdom," etc.

A Group of Drapes.

The United States was the first to adopt needlemaking by machinery. This was carried on in America in 1818, and was introduced into England in 1824.

TRAVELERS' TAX REPEALED IN B.C.

By a bill brought in on March 8 the British Columbia Legislature repealed the tax on commercial travelers from other provinces. The only exception is in the case of travelers for tobacco and liquor firms which have no branch houses in the province.

BIG SHIPMENT OF WOOL.

The British steamship Ashanti arrived in Boston with the largest and most valuable cargo of wool ever shipped to the United States. Stowed in the holds were 13,941 bales of the finest grade of Australian wool, valued, duty paid, at $2,000,000. This enormous shipment weighed 4,362,642 pounds. The consignees will have to pay $755,000 in duties before the wool can be distributed. The freight paid the owners of the steamer amounted to $60,000, and the underwriters have received $15,000 in premiums for insuring the shipment.

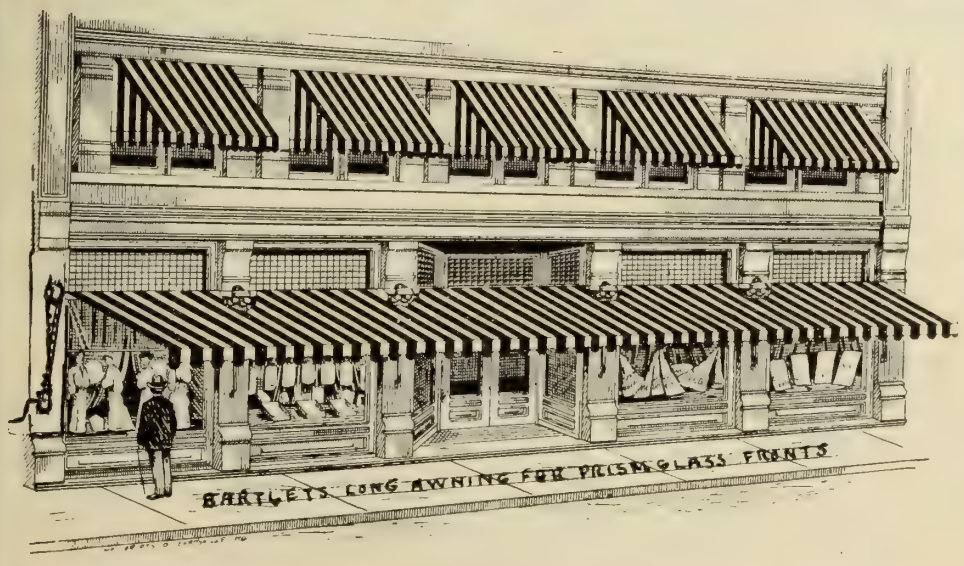
PRETTY nearly every Modern Business Man is willing to admit that the conducting of accounting by Bound Book Methods is a thing of the past.

We introduced the Perpetual System in Canada, and alone, opposed at every step, we conducted a campaign that eventually revolutionized the system of accountancy.

Our ledgers are as far ahead to-day, as much in the to-morrow class as, when we placed the system before a world of bound book methods.

Copeland-Chatterson Perpetual Ledgers save you money and facilitate business. They lessen the possibility of error and assist in the transacting of business by making it easy for you to know at once the condition of your outstanding accounts, and in helping you to find the particular account wanted, quickly.

The Copeland - Chatterson Perpetual Ledgers can be adapted to meet any changes in any business at a moment's notice. New accounts may be added and old ones given more space if desired.



The inactive accounts may be filed away in the Transfer Ledger — active accounts only remaining in Current Ledger—never ceasing.

The alphabetical arrangement of the Copeland-Chatterson Ledger makes the Ledger an Index itself.

The Copeland-Chatterson Co., Limited

General Offices: TORONTO Works: BRAMPTON

DON'T RISK A SINGLE DOLLAR!

You need an awning this spring. But that's no reason why you should risk a single dollar. We will ship, according to your measurements and dimensions, our famous which we guarantee to give the utmost satisfaction and if it does not it does not cost you one cent. Here is a simple proposition. We claim to manufacture the best awnings in Canada. If you know it—all right. If not—write to us for the proofs. You get the awning you want, the way you want it, when you place your orders with us—or it costs you nothing. Is that fair?

ROLLER AWNING

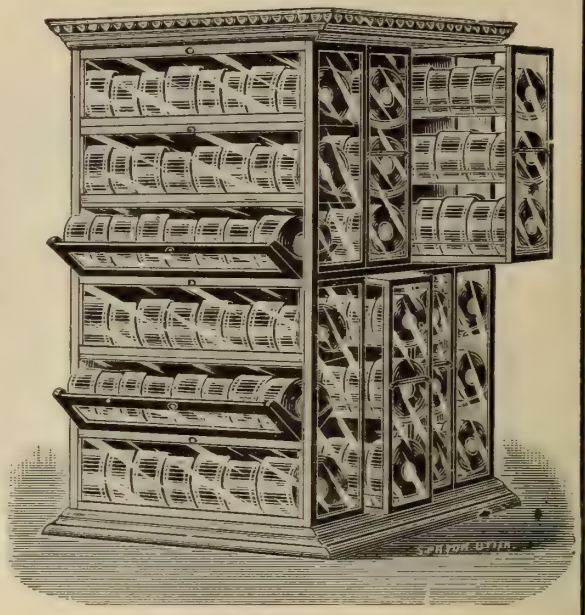
WRITE FOR PARTICULARS

WM. BARTLETT & SON, 20 Adelaide St. W., TORONTO

Ribbons - Ribbons - Ribbons.

Display them Properly by Using a Practical Ribbon Cabinet.



No. 2 Ribbon Cabinet

PRICE LIST

Cabinet No.		Capacity Bolts
0	27¼ x 6½ x 26½	50	$ 6 00
1	28¾ x 14 x 26	100	10 00
2	28¾ x 14 x 38	150	13 50
3	28¾ x 18½ x 38	250	18 50
4	28¾ x 23¼ x 38	325	23 00
5	28½ x 27½ x 38	400	26 00
6	28¾ x 32½ x 38	475	30 00
8	28¾ x 43¼ x 43½	700	42 00

Capacity based on No. 7 Ribbon.

MADE OF OAK
ANTIQUE FINISH

No. 4 Ribbon Cabinet

No. 0 Ribbon Cabinet opens from one side. Nos. 1 and 2 open from two sides. Nos. 3 to 8 open from four sides.

Sold by the Leading Jobbers of Dry Goods and Notions. Send to the manufacturers for Catalogue, which describes not only the Ribbon Cases, but various other Fixtures for the Dry Goods Trade, and the list of jobbers through whom the fixtures may be ordered.

A. N. RUSSELL & SONS CO., Ilion, N.Y., MANUFACTURERS OF DRY GOODS STORE FIXTURES

Suit Form No. 60 P.

WE ORIGINATE,

manufacture and promptly supply everything we advertise.

As the oldest, largest and only complete house in the display form and fixture line, we are in a position to do this. Our Cuts are made from Our Goods. Originality is a rare quality and in this respect we are unique.

Write for particulars of our new form models for 1907

Catalogue Mailed upon Application.

J. R. Palmenberg's Sons

FACTORY 91-97 W. Third St. 710 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, U.S.A. (ESTABLISHED OVER 50 YEARS)

Are Your Fixtures Paying Investments?

Beauty and artistic arrangement count; but neither should be allowed to shadow utility when it comes to store fixtures.

Here's a new shape, finely made and mounted on heavy base, 11 in. in diameter. Of course, there's nothing artistic about this, but—it does sell Fancy Vests.

Have you our catalogue? A post card brings it.

Toronto Brass Mfg. Co.

17-21 Temperance St., Toronto

BRITISH AMERICAN DYEING CO

The Largest and Best Equipped
DYE WORKS
In the Dominion
SEND FOR PRICE LIST

GOLD MEDALLIST DYERS

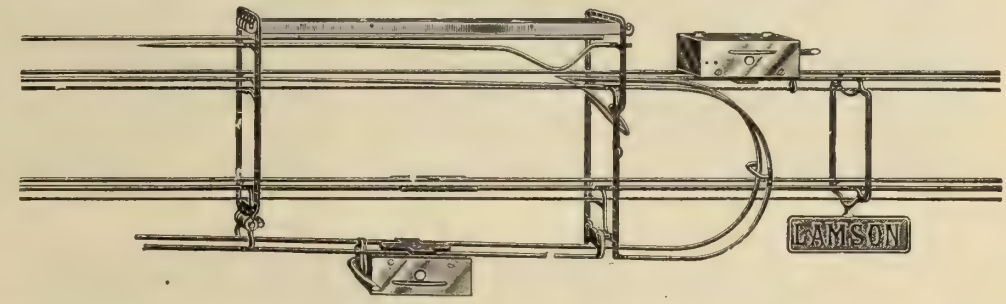
JOSEPH ALLEN, Manager

Dress Goods, Cloths, Tweeds, Drills, Ducks, Cottons and Velveteens, Hosiery Yarns, Gloves, Braids, Etc.

DYED, FINISHED AND PUT UP

ALSO

Feathers, Silks, Velvets, Ribbons, Lace, Etc.



All Work Guaranteed Unequaled

MONTREAL, TORONTO, OTTAWA, QUEBEC

Lamson Perfection Cable Cash Carrier

Serves any number of floors from one cash desk.

Hundreds of users testify to its excellence.

Write for particulars . . .

Lamson Consolidated Store Service Co., 126 Wellington Street West, Toronto, Ont.

Calendar Ads Catch and Hold Attention

That Calendar Advertising produces the best results has been proven beyond doubt by the evidence of the most experienced advertisers. Let us show you our superb line for 1908. A request will insure a call by one of our men.

The London Printing and Lithographing Co. Limited

LONDON, ONTARIO

We Want Your Name
on our catalogue list

If you want good, substantial, artistic Store Fixtures

DELFOSSE & CO.
Canada's Greatest Fixture Factory has them.

Our wax figures are the most attractive, and will not crack nor melt in cold or heat. Try them.

Vest Stand. No. 476 DELFOSSE & CO. 5 Hermine St. MONTREAL

SMALL'S

Show Card Paint

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY SHOW CARD PAINT. Ground by machinery, and ready for immediate use with the addition of water for thinning.

This paint is made expressly for brush lettering on display signs, show cards, price tickets, etc., and fully answers all the varied requirements—sets up firm in lettering, will not rub, scale or crack.

Only Water Color Show Card Paint that will show up in full strength on any colored surface.

Write for Circular

Address— SMALL'S, College & Dufferin, Toronto

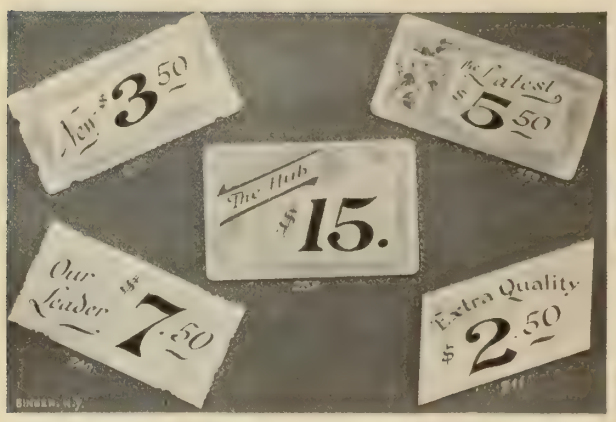
SHOW CARD WRITING

BY CRAFTSMAN. (Continued from March Number.)

Subject Cards.



Window cards that always attract attention are those known as subject cards. They can be made with or without mats, to please your own fancy. Take any small object and by means of wire or glue attach to it your card. In as few words as possible write your "catch phrase" underneath it in bold letters, and put the rest of your matter in smaller letters.

I will give a few examples, which are simple, and, I believe, original. Take a piece of chalk and under it write: "Chalk it down—our prices are the lowest"; a screw might be accompanied by "A good many turns in this business have taught us how to please you"; a large nail by, "We nail the prices low in this store—one price to all"; a small doll by, "For the little ones we are showing new styles. See them"; a penny tin whistle by, "There's harmony in our qualities and prices"; a stick by, "Stick to us and you will never get stuck"; a toy rooster by, "Be the cock of the walk—wear our stylish ——— hat"; a row of pins by, "We can give you pointers in fashions and low prices."

Show Card Talk.

The most desirable style of card suitable for any line of business is white with black lettering. Ample white space around the lettering, proper spacing of the words and correct display with neat execution make this a card of excellence. The display lines shaded in gold, grey, drab or pearl is the next step from simplicity and still within refinement. With the exception of ver-million, turkey red and white, there is no real reason for using any other colors on show cards than those mentioned above, unless you write what may be termed a monotone card, using only one color, like green, brown, yellow, etc., for lettering the entire card on white. The color effects should be created by the use of various colored cards, but the paint need be only white or black or combined.

Plain gold letters on white cards are very pretty. If you make a block letter in gold and shade it with drab or black you have a neat combination of color. Painting a narrow edge line around letters enhances their beauty, but takes time.

An odd but pretty card is a drab background with a turkey red initial, edge-lined white, and the letters all white. Dark green, lettered white and gold; light green, lettered black, shaded white; grey, lettered white, shaded gold; and red, lettered black, shaded white, are all good combinations.

In our May issue we will treat of cut-outs, stencils and floral cards.

CANADA-JAPAN TRADE.

The following is a comparative statement of the value of some of the principal items of export and import between Canada and Japan, as shown by the Monthly Return, for the eleven months ending November 30, of the present and the previous year:

Exports to Canada.

	1906.	1905.
Silk (raw)	$165,473	$ 40,373
Silk tissues, habutae	283,506	194,594
Silk tissues, kaiki (incl. cotton mixture)	10,925	26,976
Silk handkerchiefs	138,071	206,700
Cotton tissues	4,532	4,204
Mats and matting for floor (Hanagoza)	38,901	59,765
Porzelain and earthenware	88,563	84,733
Lacquered ware	9,440	10,058
Straw plaits	1,776	3,462
Rice	121,004	105,779
Camphor	6,623	10,244

Imports From Canada.

	1906.	1905.
Flour	$70,500	$52,054

We Have Worked Out Your Problem.

BUSINESS SYSTEMS LIMITED — SYSTEM THE SECRET OF SUCCESS — TORONTO.

When you go home at five o'clock, there is no reason why you should have your after-dinner smoke spoiled with a lot of worries over little details of your business.

There is no need for you to jot down memoranda on the back of an envelope for to-morrow.

If your books were arranged on a proper system, they would shoulder all these petty details for you—to-morrow morning they would show you everything you want to know just at the moment you want to know it.

■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■

Business Systems leave petty routine to your books.

Business Systems do the work but leave you time to think and plan and act.

Business Systems leave nothing to chance and allow no possibility of anything being forgotten.

Business Systems enable one clerk to do the work of two and to do it more accurately.

■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■

We would like to go into this matter with you either in your office or in ours at your convenience.

A request to know more about Business Systems, will not obligate you.

BUSINESS SYSTEMS
LIMITED
83 SPADINA AVE.
TORONTO, CANADA

THE AUTOMATIC MARKING PENS are universally used by leading show-card writers, as with them they can do much faster and better work than with any other pen or brush It necessitates months of practice to master the brush while it requires but a few hours to become proficient with the pen.

Complete Set of Pens, 7 sizes, $1.00 postpaid, including alphabets and instructions.

$2.50 Spray Outfit

Consisting of sprayer complete, six colors of ink; background patterns, all sizes; six background copies, finished in colors, with complete instructions.

We carry everything for making Show Cards. Send for Catalogue.

Air-Pencil Outfit

For making raised letters and relief work on show cards, comprising air-pencil, bottle of bronze liquid, medium and dry compound, improved filler, cleaning wire, camel's hair brush and directions, 75c. Larger outfit, 90c.

AUTO PEN AND INK MFG. CO., 40 Dearborn St., CHICAGO, U.S.A.

Business Management.

By HOWARD R. WELLINGTON.

Cash Discounts — Percentage to add for Profit—A Point for Bookkeepers.

A SUGGESTION FOR THE BOOK-KEEPER.

A great deal of time is unnecessarily wasted in posting items to a customer's account in the ledger, and it might not be out of place to suggest a few simple ideas, which are not new by any means, but which will save considerable time in posting. When posting merchandise to the debit of an account, use the letter "M"; for cash use the letter "C"; for bills payable, "B.P."; for bills receivable, "B.R."; for January "1", the first month; for February "2," the second month, etc. Some ledgers have item after item written in carefully in detail. Note the difference :—

1907.
Jan. 2, Mdse.	$25.50
Feb. 2, Cash		$25.50
March 5, Bills Rec.		25.50
Apr. 5, Bills Pay.	24.50
May 6, Bills Pay.	25.00
1907.
1, 2, M.	$25.50
2, 2, C.		$25.50
3, 5, B.R.		25.50
1, 5, B.P.	24.50
5, 6, "	25.00

It is a small matter, but of some importance when a number of items are involved.

WHAT PER CENT. SHALL I ADD FOR PROFIT?

Is it a general practice in the retail trade to add a certain percentage to the cost of an article in order to obtain the selling price, or does the dealer say, for instance : "These goods cost me 80 cents per yard ; I can get $1.50 per yard for them ?"

Is it more profitable to impress a customer favorably with the fact that your prices are right, than to have him leave your store feeling that he has paid a fairly high price for the article purchased ? There is no doubt that a customer who is well satisfied with his purchase is the most valuable advertisement a dealer can have.

As to percentage to be added for profits, this depends upon several things :—

1. The cost of selling.

2. The general expense cost of maintaining the store outside of the selling force, such as rent and taxes, insurance, stationery, bookkeeping, etc.

3. The profit which the dealer should have over and above all expenses.

It is difficult to state any definite percentage which would represent a fair margin of profit, as it depends altogether upon the particular business in which the dealer is engaged. For instance, the margin in a certain business is very fine, owing to necessity of maintaining low prices on account of keen competition. In such a case the dealer will have to be satisfied with a small margin on this particular line, even though his selling expense is high. Again, there may be a good margin on a certain line, but sales are rather slow and the selling expense is fairly high. In such a case the dealer will find it necessary to maintain a good price for his goods in order to meet expenses and leave a fair profit.

It should be ascertained definitely at the end of a period what percentage of the sales or profits, the expenses, salaries, rent, taxes, insurance, light, etc., formed, and in this way a certain percentage added to the invoice cost of the goods for each expense item involved, will give the true cost, to which the percentage for clear profit is added.

CASH DISCOUNTS.

The system of paying all accounts once a month, either on the 10th, 15th or 25th, as the case may be, is steadily growing in favor, and this is a good indication of the fact that the merchant is becoming more conversant with his business, the stock he carries, and his ability to handle quantities of goods during the season when his stock is largest.

Have you ever stopped to think, Mr. Merchant, of the amount which could be earned annually through taking advantage of cash discounts ? Suppose your purchases amount, as per invoices, to $30,000, subject to cash discounts of 2½ per cent., 3 per cent., or even 5 per cent. By taking advantage of each in turn, our cash discount amounts to $750, $900, and $1,500, respectively.

Now the question arises as to whether this cash discount should be taken into consideration when arriving at the selling prices placed on goods. Suppose a shipment of goods is subject to 20 per cent. trade discount and 5 per cent. for cash within 10 days. Should this rebate of 5 per cent. enter into the matter of cost and selling price, or is it simply a clear profit for the merchant who buys the goods ? The retailer almost invariably sells his goods for cash or "net" terms of 30 or 60 days, and does not, therefore, allow the item of cash discount to enter into his selling price. This being the case, one might suppose that it would be in order for the retail merchant to figure his cost price on the basis of 20 per cent. trade and 5 per cent. cash discount ; but look at it from another standpoint : the merchant finds that business is not very brisk, money is tight and he is unable to take advantage of his cash discount, although his prices have been figured on this basis. It will be seen that the wiser plan is to figure cost and base selling prices irrespective of cash discounts. The merchant will either take "time" on his goods to run his business or borrow money from his banker in order to take advantage of his cash discounts. In the first place he loses his discounts, in the second he makes a profit of the difference between the cash discount earned and the interest paid the bank for the use of money borrowed. It is only by actual experience in operating a business that a merchant knows whether or not he is in a position to take advantage of all his cash discounts. An unusually backward season, when sales are comparatively small, will tighten up the finances of even a business with ample capital for ordinary requirements to such an extent that renewals must be asked for or cash discounts lost, through not being in a position at a particular time to take advantage of short dates and cash discount.

THE NOVELTY FUR HOUSE

SAMPLES WILL BE SHOWN YOU SHORTLY

We make a specialty of

Fancy Neckwear, also Astrachan Jackets, Fur-Lined Garments, etc.

The Albert Vineberg Fur Co.

622 St. Paul Street, MONTREAL

All Our Garments Bear A Guarantee Label.

We make coats lined with Marmot, Wallaby, Russian Black Lamb and Australian Oppossum.

Sellers for Western Trade

One of our special lines this season is Black Serge-covered Overcoats, lined with Black Lamb skin, so-called Mennonit coats. Ask for prices.

Our travellers are now on far western ground with complete lines. Write for an appointment.

The Livingstone Mfg Co.

Manufacturers of Fur, Leather, Duck and Sheep Lined Clothing

144 Craig Street West, Montreal

Furs that Satisfy

That's the Right Kind

and

The Only Kind We Make

A pretty bold statement

but

We Stand Ready to Prove It.

Our salesmen are now showing a full range of Ladies' and Men's Manufactured FURS.

WRITE FOR AN APPOINTMENT.

A. Kirschberg & Co.

Established 20 years

457 St. Paul St., - - Montreal

FURS

SPLENDID RANGE OF FUR SAMPLES

Our Travellers are now out. It will pay you to see our line before placing orders elsewhere.

SPECIAL VALUES IN

COON COATS

MUSKRAT and MARMOT LINED COATS

FUR LINED GARMENTS OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS.

FULL LINES OF STOLES, MUFFS, RUFFS, CAPS, TIES, COLLARS, CAPERINES, GAUNTLETS, ETC., ETC.

LADIES' FUR JACKETS

OF ALL KINDS.

OUR ASSORTMENT OF

CLOTH CAPS

IS VERY COMPLETE AND UP-TO-DATE, IN THE LATEST CANADIAN, ENGLISH, AND AMERICAN STYLES.

SWIFT, COPLAND & CO.

TEMPORARY QUARTERS 383-385 ST. PAUL ST.

LIMITED

MONTREAL

AFTER 1st MAY 318 ST. JAMES ST.

Have You Seen the New Fur Samples ?

WELL, there is a treat in store for you and a surprise as well. It sounds almost like some old familiar quotation to say "don't buy before seeing our samples"—but that's what we would like to say in a way that would appear as "different" and as attractive as the samples themselves. And one thing we would ask you to remember well—Paquet Furs always open up to your entire satisfaction. If the samples appeal to you, then the goods will appeal even more strongly—for you know, yourself, how much handling these samples of ours must get before the buying season is over—and if goods don't come up to the samples you are earnestly requested to return them at our expense.

THEY SELL LIKE ——WELL, SIXTY !

Now, you know, we could not make an offer like this if we weren't in a position to know that you will be more than satisfied when the goods arrive.

Furthermore, you know that the reputation, which the good-will and satisfaction of yourself and thousands of other Fur Men have made for this house, is too precious to be tampered with. This reputation means a steady increase in orders for us—and wouldn't we be foolish to "kill the hen that lays the golden eggs ?"

If you are not now on our visiting list drop us a line and you'll be on immediately.

J. ARTHUR PAQUET, QUEBEC

Branches at Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and St. John, N.B.

I'll Tell You This:—

The sale of my Furs is starting off better than ever this season.

Merchants acknowledge they have never seen a finer line of

Ladies' and Gentlemen's Furs—

Special Showing of Fur-Lined Garments.

You can sell my Furs with a clear conscience and a big profit.

Perhaps you'd like a man with the entire line? If so write.

A. J. ALEXANDOR

504-506 St. Paul St., Montreal

THE CANADIAN FUR TRADE

SEASON 1907-08

Splendid Prospects—Styles Changed but Slightly—Prices Firm, with some Advances—Trade Optimistic—London Sales—Mink Again Demanded.

Splendid Initial Orders

Higher Prices Paid—The Advantages of Early Buying—London Fur Sales.

Sample lines for Fall and Winter have been shown at a few points in every section of Canada during the past month. The initial business is good, as a result of the severe Winter. There was the usual keen competition to get first on the ground and the specialty houses had generally a week to the good. In Montreal the trade is assuming larger proportions each season and small firms which formerly confined their attention to city business are expanding in a wholesale way and sending out travelers. Toronto, Quebec and Winnipeg and smaller centres are all keeping pace in a manufacturing way, and a new record for the Canadian trade will doubtless be made this year.

Many merchants have been encouraged by the good business last year to stock furs more heavily, and many new accounts will be opened among retailers desirous of securing a share of this profitable trade. The fur trade, if weather is not favorable in the Fall, is always risky, as a stock carried over in January means that sacrifices must be made. However, large profits are worth the worry entailed in stocking a representative range and usually merchants are able to dispose of stock, even if the season is unfavorable.

Manufacturers and jobbers report a very good business for Fall so far, and throughout Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces retailers are buying steadily. Merchants have, practically speaking, disposed of nearly all of last year's stocks, and are placing steady orders for Fall. In Manitoba and the Northwest manufacturers find that merchants have heavy stocks on their hands, and that payments are coming in slowly. However, they are looking forward to a very good Fall trade, and more satisfactory collections in the future.

General Advances.

The advance on raw skins in general, but especially in heavy coat goods, such as wombat, wallaby and coon, would, under ordinary circumstances, retard their sale, but the general opinion is that, although prices are high, they will not affect trade, owing mainly to the prosperous condition of the country. Mink furs have advanced again recently, but the trade requirements are not great enough, throughout the smaller communities, to affect business to any great extent. The demand for astrachan, more especially in the higher qualities, has forced the price of this article still higher. More attention than ever is given astrachan jackets, but the wearing qualities of this line are not nearly good enough to justify the high prices being paid. The advance is considerable, owing to the higher cost of the fur, the lining and all classes of labor.

The demand for both ladies' and men's fur-lined coats has increased greatly of late, and the present outlook indicates a very large sale on the lines with collar laps trimmed with otter or Persian lamb. Colored cloths in ladies' jackets are not in demand as much this year, the preference running to black, as it is much more serviceable for all kinds of weather.

Fur Neckwear.

The call for fur neckwear is becoming stronger, in stoles, ruffs and scarfs of mink and sable of the better grades, and caperines for the general trade which demands an article that is serviceable as well as ornamental. Neckwear with fancy muffs is shown in profusion in the new lines and early orders show a tendency on the part of merchants to sample one of the novel ideas. The book muff is the leader in the novelty way and another style, Columbine, is having some sale. The Empire is again the leader from a sales viewpoint. As predicted, natural trimmings are on almost every piece of neckwear and muffs.

Place Orders Early.

More strongly than ever before, the advice is given to place orders early, since trade will be heavy and deliveries none too prompt. Then, it is a well-known fact that furs do not run as evenly in quality as cloth, and that there is always a selection in the made-up garments. When selecting orders for customers, travelers usually give the best selections to buyers ordering early. The retailer, too, in possession of his Fall stock has the advantage of early sales, more especially in towns where annual fairs are held, and even if sales are not effected, the inspection of goods may lead to business later on.

Another strong reason for giving advance orders early is the difficulty experienced in the Fall season by manufacturers in securing skilled help. Every factory is busy during the Fall and prices always show a tendency to go higher. As a result, deliveries of a general line are almost out of the question.

MARCH LONDON SALES.

The results of the recent fur sales have again surprised the Canadian public, as Russia, Germany and France have been purchasing very heavily on the better skins, and have forced the prices higher.

Below are the results of the first series of the March London fur sales:

The Hudson's Bay Company's Sales.

Otter, 10 per cent higher than last March.
Fox, silver, 10 per cent. higher than last march.
Fisher, 20 per cent. higher than last March.
Marten, same as last March.
Ermine, 20 per cent. lower than last March.
Fox, cross, same as last March.
Fox, white, 25 per cent. lower than last March.
Fox, red, 10 per cent. higher than last March.
Mink, 50 per cent. higher than last March.
Lynx, 5 per cent. lower than last March.
Wolverine, 10 per cent. higher than last March.
Skunk, 35 per cent. lower than last March.
Wolf, same as last March.
Bear, same as last March.

FURS
WELL WORTH SEEING

Our salesmen will show you the strong points in our line of

Persian Lamb Jackets
Raccoon Coats
Fur-lined Garments and new ideas in Small Neckwear

Values will appeal to you. Arrange to see the line.

The Growing Fur House
McCOMBER & CUMMINGS
516 St. Paul Street
MONTREAL

If you believe
THE RIGHT FURS in selling
The Right Kind of Furs give one of our salesmen a chance to show you the line.

M. SILVER & CO.
12-14 St. John Street MONTREAL

At C. M. Lampson & Company's Sale.

Beaver, same as last January.
Lynx, same as last March.
Wolverine, same as last March.
Otter, 10 per cent. higher than last March.
Sea otter, same as last March.
Fox, silver, dark, 50 per cent. higher than last March
Fox, silver, pale, same as last March.
Fox, blue, 10 per cent. higher than last March.
Fox, red, 10 per cent. higher than last March.
Fox, cross, same as last March.
Cat, wild, 25 per cent. higher than last March.
Cat, house, 15 per cent. lower than last March.
Fisher, 20 per cent. higher than last March.
Badger, same as last March.
Fur seal, dry, 30 per cent. higher than last March.
Opossum, Australian, 10 per cent. higher than last January.
Wallaby, same as last January.
Wombat, same as last January.

TRAVELERS PETITION FOR VOTING LAW.

A petition, signed by about two thousand citizens all over Ontario, has been presented to the Ontario Government, asking for a voting law by which commercial travelers, railwaymen, etc., be permitted to mark their ballots before the county judge, magistrate, or justice of the peace on a Saturday or Monday preceding an election, after swearing that they are duly entitled to vote, and cannot reach home on election day without losing time or money. The vote would be deposited in a special ballot box, in the judge's presence, and, after the election, the judge would count the ballots before the returning officer.

The petition also suggests that breaches or fraud in connection with such legislation be severely punished by terms of imprisonment ranging from one month to three years.

DRY GOODS TRADE DIRECTORY.

The Dry Goods Trade Directory, including the department stores, of the United States for 1907 has just been published by the Standard Book Co., Limited, of Newark, N.J. The work has been revised and compiled to the last possible moment and is uniform in size with the editions published since 1894; the arrangement is alphabetical by state and town; department stores have been placed in the body of the work and are indicated; the population of towns and cities has been added. It contains 20,000 names, addresses and rating of firms whose rating is $1,000 and upward. This directory will be found of great convenience to traveling salesmen, as well as for circularizing the trade and for general office reference. It is convenient in size; bound in flexible leather; good, clear type and paper, and does not contain any advertising matter. The price of the book is the same as in former years, $5.

Petitions are being circulated by a Hamilton man, asking the Dominion and Ontario Governments to allow commercial travelers and railway men to vote before the county judge, a justice of the peace or returning officer if a resident on the Saturday or Monday preceding the election, during fixed hours.

Reminding you that our samples are now being shown throughout Canada.

THE BROADWAY

Muff and Stole, Natural Mink, showing Natty Whole-Skin Effect

The favor of your criticism invited.

THE

Waldron, Drouin Company

LIMITED

MONTREAL

1907 is Big

with Promises of Prosperity and Profits for Fur Retailers

The fact that our output is of a character that led to demands last season in excess of our ample facilities is a sufficiently good reason for your selling a stronger line this season.

The popularity of

LEAK BRAND FURS

(Reg.)

is continually increasing, therefore we advocate liberal buying now.

Our eight representatives are now showing a large range of Ladies' Fine Furs and the specialty men's Leak Coats.

Leak Fur Mfg. Co.

of Canada, Limited

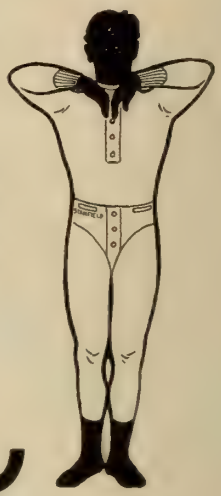
PRINCESS RIB

The genteel stocking for Boys and Girls.
Made of fine double Egyptian Lisle Yarn.

ROCK RIB
Strong as Gibraltar

The Stockings made especially for Boys' and Girls' hard wear.
Made of Three-ply Specially Strong Yarn.

HERCULES RIB
The Limit of Strength



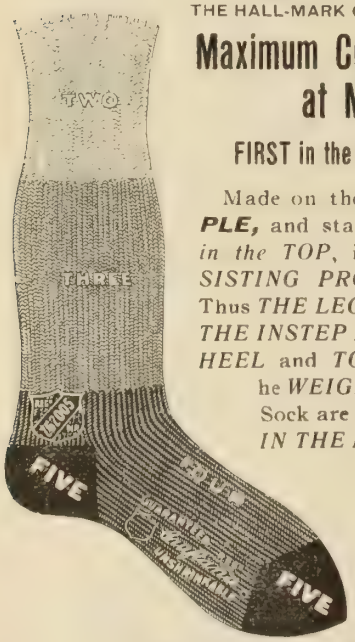
MANUFACTURED FOR THE WHOLESALE TRADE BY CHIPMAN-HOLTON KNITTING CO.
E. H. WALSH & CO., Sole Selling Agents, TORONTO and MONTREAL

Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear Never Fails to Satisfy

There are no flaws in the Stanfield Knitting—no dropped or uneven stitches to pull or tear. The finishing is perfect, neat and well-sewn—the buttons are on to stay.

In the thousand details which mean comfort, this pure-wool Underwear is complete.

People who once wear Stanfield's can seldom be induced to change. Shall we send you samples of Summer and Autumn lines?



Stanfield's Limited
Truro, N.S.

127

"Craftana."

THE HALL-MARK OF Registered No. 262,500

Maximum Comfort and Durabilty at Minimum Cost.

FIRST in the Field and STILL LEADING.

Made on the GRADUATED PRINCIPLE, and starting with TWO THREADS in the TOP, it increases in WEAR-RESISTING PROPERTIES as it descends. Thus THE LEG HAS THREE THREADS, THE INSTEP AND FOOT FOUR, and the HEEL and TOE FIVE. By this process he WEIGHT and STRENGTH of the Sock are where they are most needed IN THE FEET, making it essentially

A HALF HOSE FOR HARD WEAR

Absolutely Seamless.
Perfect in Fit.
Guaranteed Unshrinkable

THE ACME OF PERFECTION IN FOOTWEAR

SOLE AGENTS FOR CANADA: R. HENDERSON & CO. MONTREAL and TORONTO

Manufactured by W. RAVEN & CO., Ltd. Leicester, Eng.

WOLSEY

Pure wool unshrinkable underwear has won its way into every corner of the world.

Order Early. From Your Jobber

Knitted Goods

Hosiery
Underwear
Golfers

Underwear

Deliveries Poor and Price Tendencies Still Higher—Large Orders Being Placed for Fall.

Comparing deliveries with those of last year, so far as the jobbing houses are concerned, the conditions ruling are much the same as those of last Spring. The market continues to be a difficult one for the buyer to operate in, as advances are frequent, and manufacturers require long dates for delivery. Even at that it is only with considerable difficulty that orders can be placed at all, as manufacturers are not anxious for further orders.

The fact that Easter fell on the last day of March has caused an early opening up of the Spring season, and buying has begun briskly. This has caused those merchants who have held back from buying in the hope of better terms, to come into the market in a hurry in search of the goods they are now wanting or will be wanting. Their eyes are open to the fact that the shortage is a real one, and they are paying the high prices that the manufacturer is compelled to ask. In most cases they are also paying a material advance over the price at which they could have bought the same garments if they had exercised more foresight, and had placed their orders when first the samples were shown.

The merchant who is going to come best out of the situation is the one who accepts it, and putting a fair profit on his goods, devotes his energies to pushing the better grades. The present day house-keeper is aware of the fact that prices all along the line are up; she is paying more for practically everything she has to buy now-a-days. Therefore, a little explanatory advertising talk, and a little talk of the same nature from your salespeople, will do much to reconcile her to the fact that she must be prepared to spend more money upon knitted goods. To ensure success the advertising man must fall into line, and must make use of neat, plain and pointed introductory talk, explaining the how and why of the present situation. But, Mr. Merchant, your selling force must also be instructed, and either your buyer or you yourself should see that they possess the necessary talking information, and that no sales are lost through their ignorance of the situation. Co-operation of this kind is always necessary between buyers and the selling staff, but was never more so than now, under the present abnormal conditions of the market. Another cogent reason why the better goods should be pushed now is the fact that much better values can be given for the money than in the lower grade lines. If you have to carry the low-priced lines see that your customers have it clearly explained to them that values are not so good as formerly. Some buyers are trying to meet those old cast iron prices, but as this can be done only by material sacrifice of values, and one that seriously impairs the wearing qualities of the goods, their policy is a poor one.

Now that trade has settled down in earnest, it is noticed that in ladies' lines the sleeveless underwear, with low neck and fancy yoke, is largely in demand.

The Hosiery Trade

Fashion of Wearing Hose to Match the Gown—Embroidered Lines Strongly Favored—Lighter Weights for Fall.

Spring orders have come to hand in a fairly satisfactory manner, and merchants are, therefore, in fairly good shape to meet the three best selling months of the year in this department—April, May and June. In spite of predictions to the contrary, deliveries this year have been far better than those of last year, being from five to six weeks ahead.

Hosiery prices have advanced upon a general basis anywhere from 5 per cent. to 10 per cent., but, although prices are higher, the retailer must sell at the standard rates.

Embroidered goods are having a decided preference over all-over lace effects. Silk hose are good sellers in light colorings. Black, of course, is always first in sales, but this season there is a more general demand for whites and other colors.

Chemnitz manufacturers are, according to jobbers, over-run with orders, and it will be simply impossible to obtain repeats for some time now. Buyers are placing orders now for 1908. Also some manufacturers have withdrawn some of their lines pending a new quotation of prices.

For the Fall and Winter trade, ordering has not been quite so active on the heavier lines. Orders are centreing more upon cashmeres, and merchants are also ordering more heavily on lisles and cottons than ever before, black, as usual, being in the lead.

From a fashion point of view the hose must match the gown, or, if the gown is of white with colored relieving accessories—hat, gloves, belt, etc.—the hose and shoes will match. This means, in the cities and larger centres, that there will be a demand of fairly large proportions for colored hose, particularly for blue and pink. The high favor in which tan and brown shades are regarded is once again bringing tans to the front, and indications point to an increasing sale as the season progresses. Grey, navy, and the new shades of Alice blue are also included in the Spring hosiery colors. This is the list in the popular price stores, but in the exclusive end of the trade it will be more extended.

Peerless REGISTERED UNDERWEAR CO.

Manufacturers of

Ladies' and Children's Knit Underwear

"MERIT WINS RESULTS"

¶ Although a new concern, we had record sales for Spring, and our sales for Fall are away beyond expectations.

¶ Why ?

¶ Because Peerless goods are the best on the market—the finish and quality being unexcelled.

¶ Because we treat our customers right.

¶ Are you selling "Peerless" goods ? If not, it's worth your while to investigate.

"The recollections of value remain long after the price is forgotten."

REPRESENTATIVES :

ONTARIO—Peerless Underwear Co. Hamilton, Ont.
MARITIME PROVINCES—G. A. Woodill Halifax, N.S.
QUEBEC—L. A. Prevost Montreal, Que.
MANITOBA—A. J. Snell Winnipeg, Man.
BRITISH COLUMBIA—G. A. Campbell Vancouver, B.C.

PEERLESS UNDERWEAR CO.

Hamilton, Can.

The fashion of wearing hose to match the gown, though undoubtedly extravagant, is decidedly a dainty and elegant vogue, and one that adds considerably to the distinction of any costume. It also centres attention upon the department in a manner that is very beneficial.

Retailers will do well to stock a limited line of colored novelties, if only for display purposes, as a window or two containing a fair sprinkling of these will prove decidedly attractive, and even if they do have to be sold at near cost they will have served the purpose for which they were obtained.

FALL ORDERS.

Already mills are busy manufacturing goods to fill orders received from jobbers. Prices in certain lines will, if anything, go higher, although in most cases they will remain about the same as at the present time—very high—and in view of the domestic and foreign conditions, merchants should anticipate their requirements and order liberally, as no relief from the present high rates is in sight.

On account of the steady Winter weather retailers' stocks are well depleted, and manufacturers are having no difficulty in securing large initial orders.

WOOL SALES AND SHEEP SKIN MARKET.

J. S. Larke, Canada's commercial agent at Sydney Australia, writes:

"The wool sales have been characterized by firm prices for first-class wool, but rather weaker for inferior sorts. The sheep skin market has been unchanged for some little time. The quotations at the last sales were: for merino three-quarters to full wools, 6¼d. to 8¾d., exceptional lines sold at 9¼d.,; cross breds, fine, 8¾d., coarse, 7½d. The prices of hides have also undergone little change. Butchers' hides, which are not those usually exported to Canada, are the only ones sold at last sales."

WILL ENLARGE MILLS.

The C. Turnbull Company, of Galt, will build an addition to their mills during the coming Summer. The new section will be of stone and almost as large as the present mill.

WILL LOCATE AT COTE ST. PAUL.

The Mount Royal Spinning Company have decided to etablish their mills at Cote St. Paul, on the outskirts of Montreal. The buildings will comprise a four storey mill 350x120 feet, and several smaller structures. The block of land purchased by the company has a frontage of 800 feet and is 900 feet in depth.

WAGE INCREASE OF TEN PER CENT.

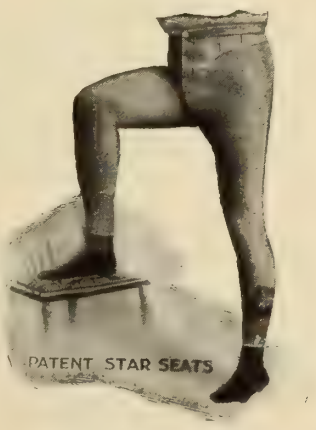
The Dominion Textile Company have increased the wages of their 7,000 employes, an average of 10 per cent., which will mean an additional outlay of about $200,000 annually. The increase went into effect on April.

Three big warehouses in the Finsbury district, London's busiest industrial centre, were destroyed by fire on the morning of March 16, the loss amounting to about $1,000,000. One was the warehouse of Cox & Company, hat manufacturers.

THE LEADING
English Underwear
JAY
Unshrinkable Woollen
UNDERWEAR

SPECIALITIES:—

LADIES' COMBINATIONS fitted with the Patent "S" WRAP, which affords complete protection where this is most necessary. No button is needed, and the garment does not drag when wearer is sitting.



Any Garment shrunk in Washing will be replaced.

Gentlemen's "STAR" Seated Pants & Drawers.

NO SEAMS at fork, up back, and down inside of leg to chafe, or give way.

EXTRA SPLICED with great freedom of movement.

These Specialities can also be obtained in Merino, and Silk and Merino.

SEE THIS MARK

ON EVERY GARMENT

Wholesale only:—
Messrs. I. & R. Morley and Geo. Brettle & Co.
LONDON, ENGLAND.

Nazareth Waist

It doesn't make any difference how good a man is—if he jumps into the water and can't swim, he will drown.

It doesn't make any difference how fine a store you have—if you don't handle the goods folks want they'll let you sink, and do their buying from "the other fellow."

Ask ten mothers what knit waist they prefer for their children; at least seven of them will say: "The Nazareth."

Just as well push the goods that push your store, Mr. Retailer.

THESE

CANADIAN WHOLESALE HOUSES

Carry complete lines of the Nazareth Waist

ST. JOHN, N.B.
The Vassie Co., (Ltd.)
The London House Wholesale
Manchester, Robertson & Allison
Scovil Bros., (Ltd.)

WINNIPEG, MAN.
R. J. Whitla & Co., (Ltd.)
Greenshields Western, (Ltd.

VANCOUVER, B.C.
The Gault Bros. Co

CALGARY, ALTA
W. R. Brock Co., (Ltd.)

TORONTO
John Macdonald & Co.
Gordon, Mackay & Co.
W. R. Brock Co. (Ltd.)
Burton, Spence & Co., (Ltd.)
Beatty, Kerr & Verner
Denton, Mitchell & Duncan.

HAMILTON, ONT.
John Knox Company, (Ltd.)

HALIFAX, N.S.
W. & C. Silver
Smith Brothers

KINGSTON, ONT.
Macnee & Minnes

LONDON, ONT.
R. C. Struthers & Co.
Robinson, Little & Co.

MONTREAL
W. R. Brock Co. (Ltd.)
Greenshields Limited
Hodgson, Sumner & Co. (Ltd.)
A. Racine & Co.
Brophy-Cains, (Ltd.)

This mark woven in Red is on every genuine Nazareth Waist, and it means something.

ADDRESS, ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

Nazareth Waist Co.

350 BROADWAY

NEW YORK

E. H. WALSH & CO.

TORONTO AND MONTREAL.

CANADIAN REPRESENTATIVES.

THE

IMPERIAL MILLS COMPANY

OF DUNNVILLE, ONT.

Manufacturers of—

Lumbermen's Socks
Club Sweaters
Cardigan Jackets
Ladies' Golf Capes
Knit-to-Fit Jackets
Blouses, etc., etc.

Our goods bear the guarantee of responsible makers.

The Yarns and other Materials are specially selected by experts. The goods are all fashioned to fit by hand—Every garment goes under the hands of four Expert Examiners before being sent out.

We take back any goods which are not as ordered, By these means we have succeeded in placing our Knitted Fabrics in the same category as Tailor-Made Goods.

Our travelers are now on the road with our new and complete line for 1907, which we feel confident surpasses, by far, any former season.

SALESROOMS

60 Front Street West, - TORONTO

REPEATS

Being the only mill in Canada running exclusively on Fine Swiss Ribbed Ladies' and Children's

KNIT UNDERWEAR

OXFORD BRAND

for SUMMER TRADE

we beg to advise you that we can fill orders at short notice any time during the year. ¶ This will fill a "long felt want." ¶ Our goods are the finest gauge and purest bleach of any on the market :: :: :: ::

WRITE AT ONCE

THE OXFORD KNITTING CO. LIMITED

Woodstock, Ontario

PREMIER FINISH
TRADE MARK
NON-SHRINKABLE

SQUIRREL BRAND UNDERWEAR

PURE WOOL

Cartwright & Warners

LIMITED.

Loughborough, England,

WOOL IS A NON-CONDUCTOR, keeping the heat in and the cold out; it is the most porous of all materials, permitting free circulation of air next the body. Made for Men's, Women's and Children's Wear.

Guaranteed
Absolutely Unshrinkable

CARTWRIGHT & WARNER'S name on a garment carries with it the value of a hundred years' successful experience in the manufacture of the best knit Underwear in the world, and stamps it with a character of superiority that places it above and beyond all others in a class by itself.

R. FLAWS & SON, Agents, Manchester Bldg., Toronto.

THE SHREWD DEALER KNOWS that there are two famous brands of Underwear which assure a comfortable profit while making his reputation solid and lasting.

"Ceetee" Underwear

is marvellously good and does satisfy customers.

¶ "CEETEE" is so carefully manufactured that it cannot shrink. It does remain velvety.

Perfect Fitting Elastic-Ribbed Underwear

is appropriately named, because it's just as perfect as it is humanly possible to make Underwear.

It Does Pay to Feature Our Underwear

THE C. TURNBULL CO.

OF GALT, LIMITED

GALT, CANADA

FALL SEASON, 1907

Watson's Ribbed Knit Underwear (will not shrink).

As our representatives are now showing a full assortment of Fall Underwear for Ladies, Men and Children, we wish to call your attention to a few of our specialties.

The "Allen Nursing Vest" still retains its popularity, and we are the sole makers of same in Canada.

Something new in bifurcated garments is the patent Isabelle Drawer Skirt. The only skirt for winter wear.

Overwhelming testimony as to the excellence of our men's and boys' goods comes entirely unsolicited. See our Ribbed Knit Plush Lines.

Nothing so conducive to the comfort and well being of infants as our "RUBENS" and other vests and bands specially designed for youngsters.

Stimulate your trade by carrying underwear that will wear.

AGENTS:

McCLUNG & BURNS, 117 Wellington St. West, TORONTO
J. A. MURRAY, SUSSEX, N.B.
A. L. GILPIN, 232 McGill St., MONTREAL
BRYCE & CO. Box 238, WINNIPEG

Watson Manufacturing Co., Limited, Paris, Ont.

Jaeger Pure Wool

The Golfing Season is fast approaching.
We are Specialists in

GOLFING ATTIRE

KNITTED COATS, NORFOLKS,
SWEATERS, HOSE, CAPS, &c.
FOR LADIES and GENTLEMEN

For all Outdoor Sports there is nothing to compare with "JAEGER."
— Write for our 1907 Catalogue —
Liberal Terms to the Trade.

DR. JAEGER'S SANITARY WOOLLEN SYSTEM COMPANY LIMITED

Wholesale Warehouse, 301 St. James St., - MONTREAL

Take A Little Time

THINK IT OVER

? Got a little space in your store for a stock of Hygeian Underwear.

? Got a little room in your cash drawer for a little bundle of profit.

Then—just tell your jobber to send in some "Hygeian."

The rest will be Easy.

MANUFACTURED BY

Eagle Knitting Co., Ltd., Hamilton, CANADA

DON'T OVERLOOK "HYGEIAN WAISTS"

Safeguard Your Profits

IT is reasonably certain that most Retailers would do so—if they knew how.

Hundreds of Drygoodsmen are doing so because they push our honest-value, popular-price Underwear.

Are you doing so?

Forty years' experience in every garment we market. The quality of the material is the best, and the price right —there's a good honest profit in it.

JOSEPH SIMPSON SONS

Corner Berkeley and Esplanade

TORONTO

We Find It Necessary,

in view of certain misrepresentations which have come to our notice, to once more repeat and emphasize the fact that we are sole makers in Canada of SPRING NEEDLE RIBBED UNDERWEAR. Assertions to the effect that underwear of the same description is made by any other firm in this country, are false and misleading. This we are prepared to prove: You will make no mistake in stocking ELLIS UNDERWEAR, as the only genuine Spring Needle Ribbed Underwear made in Canada.

THE ELLIS MANUFACTURING CO., Limited

HAMILTON, ONTARIO.

MONYPENNY BROS. & CO., - Toronto and Montreal. - Selling Agents

RUBBING IT IN

There is such a thing as rubbing a certain warmth in a person, so that yarn which has no warmth of itself and is uneven and knotty performs its own rubbing at the expense of the wearer of garments made of such yarn.

But why buy such yarn?

when the noted Alloa Yarn, made by JOHN PATON, SON & CO. is known the world over for being

EVENLY MADE GIVING WARMTH AND WEARING LIKE PIN WIRE

as compared with yarn made with short wool which often breaks in the knitters' hands.

JOHN PATON, SON & COMPANY,
Alloa, Scotland

Sole Agent for Canada
Philip De Cruchy, 207 St. James St, Montreal.

Crescent Brand

Hosiery and Underwear

S. Lennard & Sons

DUNDAS, ONT.

Manufacturers of all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's

RIBBED UNDERWEAR

in Cotton, Wool, Worsted, Merino, and Silk, and "Bolton's" process for Unshrinkable Underwear.

GUARANTEED UNSHRINKABLE AND NON-FELTING.

SOLE SELLING AGENTS

The Richard L. Baker Co.

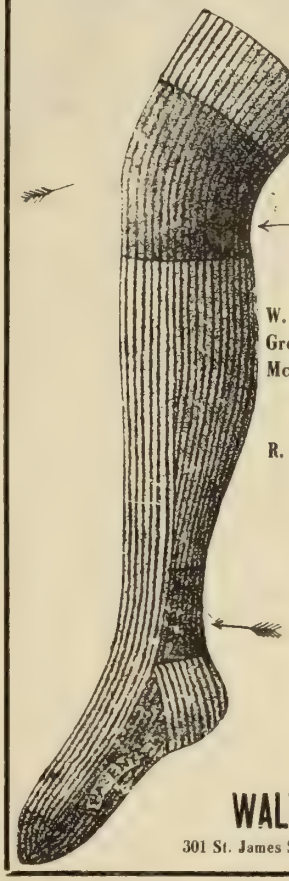
Empire Bldg., Wellington St. W. TORONTO, ONT.

VERY LITTLE DAMAGE AT M'CALL'S.

It was reported in the daily press that D. McCall & Co., Toronto, suffered considerable loss in a fire which occurred on Wellington street east a few days ago. In reality they had only a small quantity of stock damaged, and that by water. When the fire broke out there were, fortunately, some members of the McCall staff in the warehouse, and they moved the greater portion of the stock over to the other side of the building. The fire did not get as far as these premises, and the only loss was caused by water. It did seem for a while as though the McCall building could not escape, and had it caught fire the company, though carrying full insurance, would have suffered a great loss, as, in the present state of the market, it would be simply impossible to replace the stock. The Review is authorized to state that the fire has been no hindrance to their business in any way.

ED. MACK, LIMITED,

An Ontario charter has been granted Ed. Mack, Limited, Toronto, with a capital of $40,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were: John E. Mack, merchant tailor; Louis Ervin Thomas, and Norman B. Henry, merchants; Nicholas R. Miller, manufacturer, and William H. Ferguson, solicitor, all of Toronto. The objects of the company are "to carry on the business of wholesale and retail clothiers, drapers, tailors and haberdashers, and to buy, sell, manufacture, repair, alter, exchange, let or hire and deal in all kinds of articles and things which may be required by any of said businesses; to acquire the business, trade name and goodwill of the business now carried on by Ed. Mack in Toronto."



THE SMART BAG COMPANY.

A Dominion charter has been granted The Smart Bag Company, Limited, Montreal, with a capital of $2,500,000, divided in $100 shares. The incorporators were: Charles A. Smart, manufacturer; Charles E. Archibald, manufacturer; Abner Kingman, merchant; Frank H. Wilson, manufacturer, all of Montreal, and James W. Woods, merchant, of Ottawa. The objects of the company are "to carry on any or all of the businesses following, namely, manufacturers of jute, cotton, paper and all other kinds of bags; flax, hemp, jute and wool merchants; manufacturers and dealers in burlaps, buckrams, paddings, linens, ducks, tailors' trimmings, ropes and twines, and to purchase, prepare, dye, spin, weave and deal in flax, hemp, jute, cotton, canvas and other fibrous substances; to acquire and take over as a going concern the undertaking and all or any of the assets of Smart Bag Company, Limited; to purchase or otherwise acquire and undertake the whole or any part of the business, property and liabilities of the Canadian Bag Company, Limited."

"THE MECHANISM OF WEAVING."

We have received for review "The Mechanism of Weaving," by Thomas W. Fox., M.S.C. Tech., professor of textile manufactures at the Municipal School of Technology, Manchester. The publishers are the Macmillan Company of Canada, Ltd., Toronto, and the price of the volume is $2.25. The subject is treated exhaustively, and there are two hundred and seventy-four diagram illustrations showing the various processes and mechanisms.

ADAMS LOCKSTITCH HOSE

Will win and hold your trade

Note: 10 FOLD KNEES
6 FOLD ANKLES

Absolutely the Best Wearing Stocking.

STOCKED BY THESE JOBBERS:

MONTREAL
W. R. Brock Co., Ltd.
Greenshields Ltd.
McIntyre, Son & Co., Ltd.

TORONTO
Gordon, McKay & Co., Ltd.
W. R. Brock Co., Ltd.
Beatty, Kerr & Verner

LONDON
R. C. Struthers

KINGSTON
Macnee & Minnes

HALIFAX
Smith Bros.
W. & C. Silver,

VANCOUVER
Greenshields Limited

A. E. ADAMS & CO.
LEICESTER, ENG.
Manufacturers

AGENTS
WALTER WILLIAMS & CO.
301 St. James St., Montreal
33 Melinda St., Toronto

For Your Reputation's Sake

DON'T

tell your customers that a stocking is fast black unless you know it. The best and surest way to know is to sell only black stockings that bear the signature trade mark of Louis Hermsdorf. They're the real fast blacks.

Write for booklet about window trimming and ad. writing. It's free.

Louis Hermsdorf Dyer

Works:
Chemnitz, Saxony

American Bureau,
200 Greene St., N.Y.

Electro of above cut will be supplied on request to all dealers who carry Hermsdorf-Dyed Hosiery.

L DEPT.

LINENS

BEST GOODS LOWEST PRICES

TABLE DAMASK LINENS

CLOTHS AND NAPKINS TO MATCH
IN ALL SIZES, AND IN 18 QUALITIES

CRASHES, GLASS CLOTHS, TEA CLOTHS
HUCK TOWELLING, EMBROIDERY LINENS

ELABORATE ASSORTMENT OF HUCK,
OATMEAL AND DAMASK TOWELS

DRESS LINENS

The latest novelties for Ladies' Summer Costumes and Blouses, and the most complete assortment ever shown in Canada.

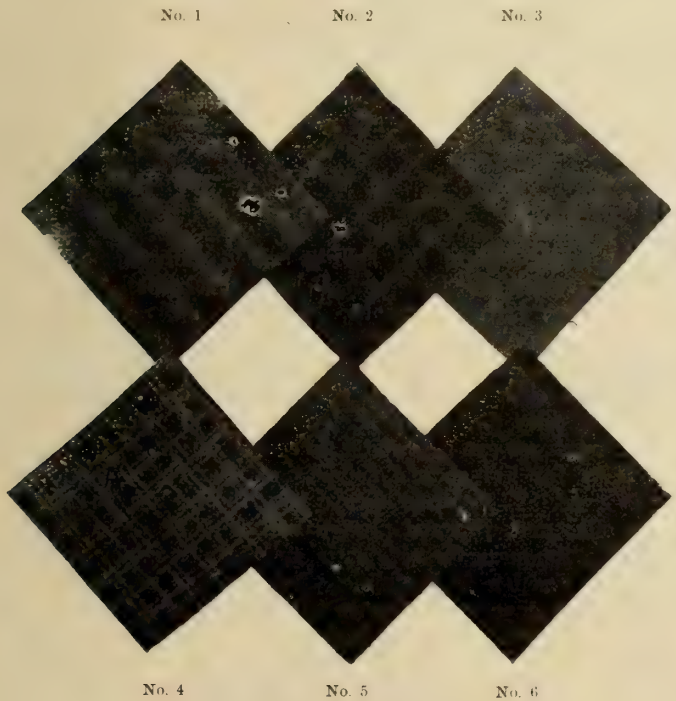
We are Sole Selling Agents for Canada for the old established and well known Linen Manufacturers

J. & T. Alexander, Limited
DUNFERMLINE, SCOTLAND

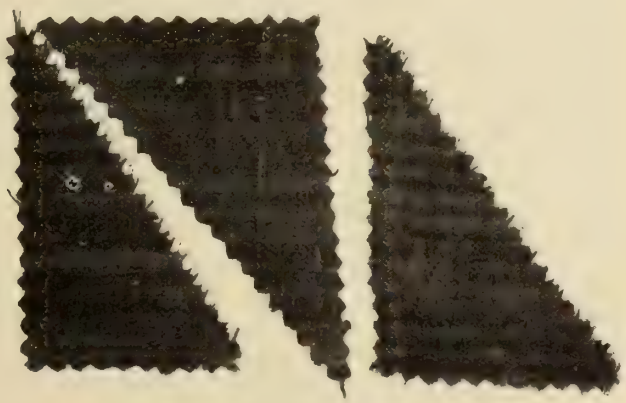
Greenshields Limited - Montreal



GREENSHIELDS WESTERN LIMITED
WINNIPEG, MAN.

GREENSHIELDS & CO., LIMITED
VANCOUVER B.C.

The buying season has progressed so far that there is no real possibility of any change in the basis of prices, and the present high level is sure to be maintained, at any rate until the end of the year. There are many, who have a complete knowledge of the wool market, who think that the present high values are to remain for some years. They point to the fact that it is the demand which is controlling prices now; that it is not in the power of spinners and manufacturers, with the existing plants, to turn out enough fabric to meet the wants of the trade, and until either the demand lessens or the manufacturer becomes better equipped there can be no drop in price.



Though fancies are increasing in fashionable favor, plain cloths will be big sellers. These will be chiefly in broadcloths and cloths of a like nature and finish—that is, of a smooth, close texture and bright, unspottable finish, and in weights similar to those selling last Fall and Winter, viz., chiffon weights. In this class are included, besides broadcloths, habit cloths, amazons, box cloths, Venetians, etc. Panamas are selling well for Fall, and brown, navy and black are the colors banked upon.

Fancy Effects in Fall Dress Goods.

Brown, navy and black are the big sellers so far in all plain cloths, but there promises as well to be a wide range of colors chosen, always providing that the coloring is low in tone, for the Fall of 1907 is going to be a season of dark and decidedly subdued shades.

The demand for broadcloths will not be confined to plain cloths, but indistinct stripes and checks, with one color predominating, will be a big feature. In checks the block effect will be a leader—a tiny block in the plain shade and the other in indistinct, mingled coloring. Fancy cheviots and serges in stripes and checks, much on the same order, are making a decided bid for favor and seem to be likely goods for the Fall season. Plain serges, not only in black and navy, but in all the fashionable colors, are indicated. Suitings are again to be a big line, and smooth-surfaced worsted suitings are in active demand. Tweeds in smooth pressed finish are shown in big variety. As the season opens up stripes are becoming more and more prominent, and a decidedly good sale is confidently anticipated. Checks are specially good in block effects and also in shaded, indistinct and in over-check effects. There is a considerable wealth of coloring in the new fabrics, but the effect sought for is an indistinct mingling—a blur, as it were—and you have, in most cases, to look into the cloth to see the pattern. Brown is freely used and the majority of the best liked effects have a good deal of brown in their make-up. Even brown and grey are combined with good effect this year, giving a taupe shade that is decidedly fashionable. A small showing of cloths with a brushed surface have been seen but they have not met with much encouragement, as it Fancy Tweeds for Fall—Block Check, Over-Check and Stripe.

THE WOMAN IN WHITE
SUIT OF MUNSTER CLOTH

¶ When a jobber's salesman comes your way with WHITE GOODS, ask him to show you these cloths:

MUNSTER 28 and 32 in.
(Linen Finish)

ULSTER 28 and 32 in.
Slightly heavier plain cloth.
(Linen Finish)

LIMERICK 28 and 32 in.
(Soft Finish)

BELFAST
Slightly heavier. (Soft Finish)

You'll see something worth while and you'll get the goods. Write us for sample swatches and we'll tell you where to get the goods.

THE MONTREAL COTTON CO.

Address, Main Sales Office: MONTREAL

is almost too soon to expect much from this class of material after the run it had a few seasons ago.

The cut of Fall goods in this issue will show the type of patterns. No. 1 is a brushed-surface cloth; No. 2, a chevron striped cheviot in blue and green; No. 3, a pressed milled-finished tweed in blue, brown, bronze, brown and grey indistinct check; No. 4, another tweed in grey with an over-check of a lighter tone; No. 5, a fashionable fine worsted suiting in mingled grey and brown block check; No. 6, mixed stripe worsted in navy and two shades of brown.

Silks

Fashion Favoring Silk Fabrics—Fall Silks Will Carry the Full Advance.

Hitherto the retail trade has not felt the full force of the advance in silk fabrics, but in the Fall these materials will be more in demand, and the retailer will have to pay the full advance of from 20 per cent. to 25 per cent. above present prices. Up to the present he has been protected by the contracts of the wholesale houses with the manufacturers. Another feature of the siuation that he will do well to bear in mind is that, although silk manufacturers are now willing to pay the price for raw material, they are unable to get deliveries, and this means trouble in connection with fabric deliveries later on in the selling season.

Fashion is still favoring soft makes, such as merveilleux, paillettes, messaline, satin, mousselines, etc. There is a growing feeling for soft satins and for satin-faced silks.

In blacks and in standard colors the double width silks are slowly but surely making their way, and it seems strange that, although there is every appreciation of the economy of buying wide widths—as in the case of double fold woolens—the movement in favor of wide silks should be such a slow one.

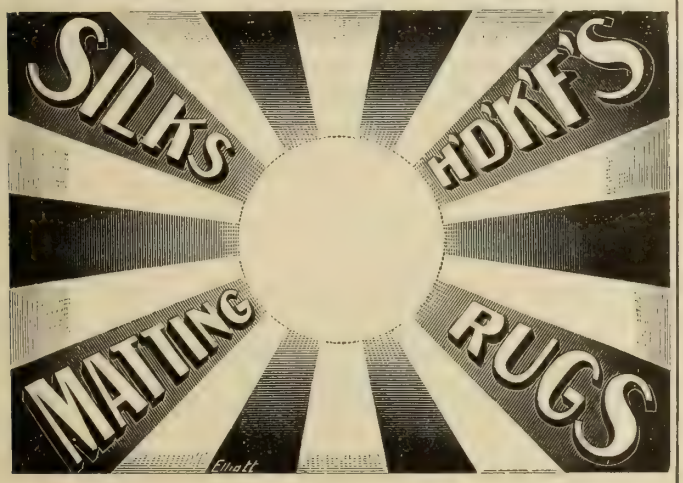
Although, before the selling season fully opens up other novelties will be shown, Pekins, checks and tartans in taffetas; tartan louisines; Pekins in satin and taffeta; and taffeta and louisine chenes, in both light and dark shades, will all be in popular demand. Shot effects in striped, checked and figured taffeta are a lately introduced novelty and gris-aille louisines, and white and black mixtures are all to find a representation.

Silks for linings and foundations are being increasingly used. Taffeta has always been the leading foundation silk, and, perhaps always will be, but there is a growing fondness for soft satin foundations under sheer gowns. Fashion is becoming very fond of a glittering effect these days, and the satin finish shows bright through the nets, chiffons and silk voiles so much worn now for dressy gowns.

Linings

Increasing Interest Manifested in Silk-Finished Cottons for Lining Purposes.

The increasing vogue of transparent and mesh fabrics is bringing silk-finished cotton linings to the fore. Most firms stock quite a number of makes of these kinds of cloth in both day and evening shades. There is a big sale of these linings for drop skirts, and for many lining purposes as a substitute for silk. They have more or less the appearance and rustle of silk, and are put on the market under a number of special names. Some lines, such as taffetine have reached the dignity of being considered a standard article.



FALL, 1907

HARRIS
HOMESPUNS

LADIES' SUITINGS

MANTLE CLOTHS

HARRIS & COMPANY
LIMITED
ROCKWOOD, ONT.

K. Ishikawa & Co.

Manufacturers and Importers

24 Wellington Street West,

TORONTO

THE 'PIRLE' Finish

Indispensable for the Open-Air Girl.

"LADY'S REALM" says:

"The out-door girl who loves to cycle, walk and drive will never wear anything but a 'PIRLE' costume when she has once donned one. It may be the shower of May or the storm of November, her neat cloth dress will remain unspotted and unshrunk, and, when dry, will be as fresh as when it came from the tailor's hands."

REGISTERED TRADE MARK

"Madge" in "Truth" says:

"Every dressmaker ought to leave out a bit of selvedge somewhere with the 'PIRLE' stamp on it, as this affords an absolute guarantee for the wearer.

"The proprietors undertake to make good any material so stamped that has been actually damaged by rain."

TO BE OBTAINED FROM THE LEADING IMPORTERS or full particulars from

EDWARD RIPLEY & SON, Limited
100c., Queen Victoria Street, LONDON, E.C., ENGLAND

Established 1832

Cable Address: "LAW," Bradford

FALL 1907

"Lawrus" Fabrics.

(Registered)

These goods are rolled on Special boards and stamped "Lawrus" every five yards.

SUITINGS

in all the latest weaves including our new range of Vicunas.

The Royal Squadron Serge

The Dreadnaught Serge

Unspottable Finish.

"Lawrus" Showerproof Regd

We are showing a most extensive line in these fabrics.

Mr. Haley will be at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, April and May.

Law, Russell & Co.

Converters of Bradford Goods

LIMITED

BRADFORD AND LONDON

Coming!

Our traveller is on his way to show you our samples of dress goods for Fall 1907.

OUR SPECIALS

"Kurragh" tweed suitings
"Korbai" plaids
"Auto" suitings
WA31 Clan tartans
JB34x Tartan dress goods

Don't delay ordering. We have only a limited quantity and when it's sold we can't repeat, and that means you can't. . . . . .

The W. R. Brock Co., Limited

MONTREAL

We have in stock

SCARCE GOODS

such as

BUTTER VALENCIENNES LACES
EMBROIDERY STRAPPINGS
EMBROIDERY CORSET COVERS
EMBROIDERY ALLOVERS
LACE ALLOVERS
SWISS EMBROIDERY STOCK COLLARS

Ladies' Neckwear and Belt Novelties for immediate delivery

SANDERSONS, LIMITED

172 Front St. West, TORONTO

Gloves Sell More Than Gloves

Shrewd Retailers are aware of that fact.
The gloves you stock proclaim the tone of your business.
You cannot afford to carry inferior gloves.
Make sure and stock

Storey's Gloves

for three excellent reasons.
1st. The people demand Storey's Gloves.
2nd. Storey's Gloves secure your reputation, while working for a please-the-dealer balance.
3rd. Because they are Storey's Gloves.

W. H. Storey & Son
ACTON, ONT. Limited
Established 1868. The Glovers of Canada

HONE'S BONES HONE'S BONES
It sells on sight, so it must be right.
WHALEBONE

8/9 Dozen Pairs

8/9 Dozen Pairs

Real Whalebone Corset Shield

No more rusty, dangerous, broken steels.
WHOLESALE ONLY.

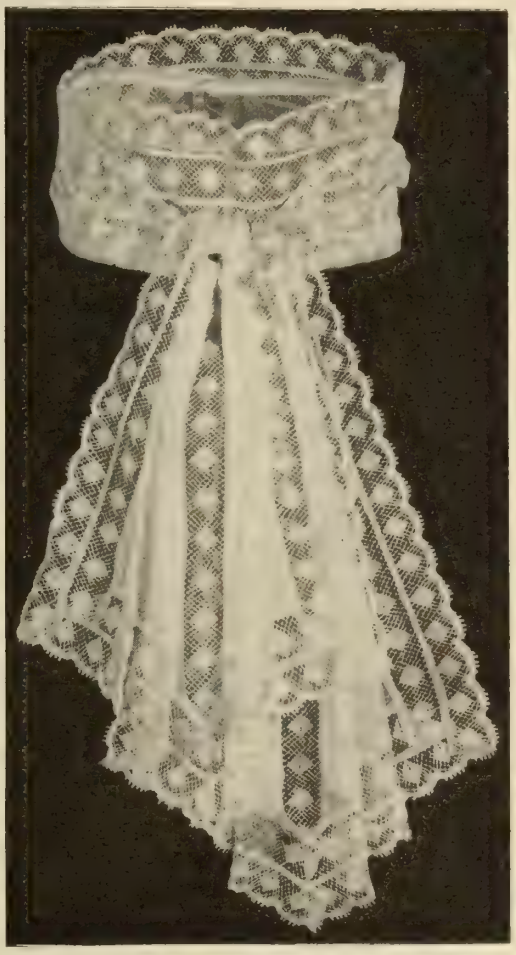
DANIEL HONE, 1 Chiswell Street,
LONDON, - - ENGLAND

DRESS ACCESSORIES

Lace

Very Satisfactory Business so Far—Many Complaints About Slow Deliveries.

The season's business has so far been a most satisfactory one, marred only by the fact that deliveries of Calais and Nottingham laces have been decidedly slow. Indeed, it is no unusual thing for shipments to be months over-due. The lace importers are not making any particular kick for they know that the manufacturer would only be too glad to accept cancellations, as he is simply over-whelmed with orders. Moreover prices have materially advanced since the early orders were placed, and when goods do come to hand those ordered months ago will be extra good value at present prices. The trade in other laces is of a general nature, but there is an increasing interest manifesting itself in filet effects, and filet motifs ornament most of the newer laces. Baby Irish is the big seller in the heavier lines and Venise is decidedly a close second. Net laces are selling well and net all-overs with Venise or filet medallions, are much favored. All-overs in all the selling laces are decidedly good, as the present style of dress calls for both yoke and sleeves of all-over net.



Lace robes have scored a decided success for the present Spring and Summer, and their vogue promises to be even more extensive in the coming Fall. Brussels applique, lierrie in white and chantilly in black are the leading laces, and robes with a flounce or flounces are decidedly good sellers.

Neckwear

Many Easter Orders Still Unfilled—To Cancel Would Be Very Injudicious—Business Booming.

Ever since the setting in the Fall of 1906, ladies' neckwear has been booming, and Fashion has been doing her best to make amends for her previous partial neglect. So great has been the demand this Spring that manufacturers have been taxed to their utmost to keep level with their orders, and the conditions have been further aggravated by the extremely poor deliveries of lawns, laces and other materials. The situation is so acute that buying representatives from different firms are, in spite of the heavy amount they have on order, now on their way to Europe to place further orders for materials.

No doubt there will be considerable disappointment experienced, and no little kicking done, by those retailers who did not get the full percentage of their Easter orders filled. No doubt the first impulse of many merchants is to cancel, but The Review advises buyers to take a second and calmer thought before adopting this course. Easter was exceptionally early this year—some two weeks ahead of its usual date—and there will be an extra long pause to fill in before Summer goods come freely to the front. Trade is brisk and neckwear is in high demand, and The Review maintains that the merchant cannot afford to cancel the orders which the manufacturer has on hand now, and that he will be glad to have the goods to fall back upon before Summer stuff begins to sell. This is just the predicament of a manufacturer who has had a large shipment of val. laces on order for over eight months now and has not yet received a single yard. When asked why he did not cancel he replied: "I cannot afford to do so, for I want the goods, and, besides, the prices are considerably better than I could get now." This is just the situation with the retailer; he cannot afford to cancel the orders given for Easter because he wants the goods.

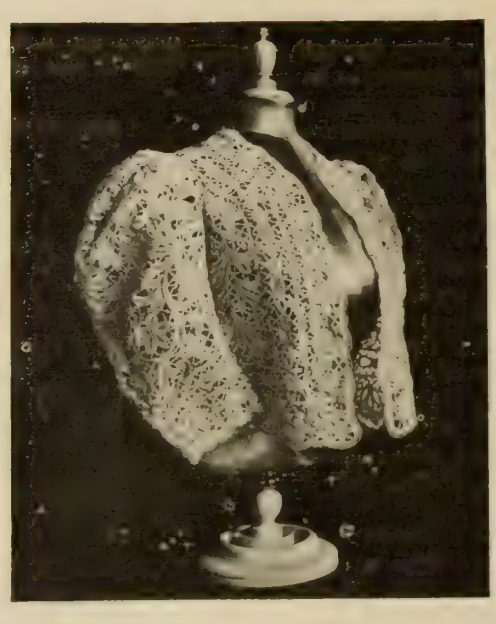
Fancy Windsor—Shown by Rhys D. Fairbairn.

The certainty is growing that embroidery turn-down collars are going to be a big thing, not necessarily the stiff, starched ones, though they are being vigorously pushed, but soft-finished ones of just the same shape. Some pretty novelties now shown have a pleating of lawn around the collar. Peter Pans are to be decidedly good, particularly the new shape, which is narrower at the back, doing away with any flare there. It has slightly long-pointed ends in front. These come in handsome embroidered effects, the newest with filet introductions. Windsors and long tie novelties will be specially good. They are narrow embroidered lawn or silk crepe, and

REVILLON BROT

IMPORTERS OF HIGH-

¶ Import samples for Fall of exclusive Dry Goods lines are now in the hands of our representatives, and are on view in our Montreal showrooms. Your inspection is invited.



A RARE COLLECTION OF EXCLUSIVE DE

Cloths, Silks, Velvets, Ribbons, Laces, Embroideries,

Stocks carried, and exclusive Perfumes

Feather Boas

Largest range in the trade of Feather Boas. Rich, full dye, select Amazon feathers. Prices range from $3.25 to $95.00.

Irish Lace Coat, $39.00

The illustrations give an idea of the high-class Lace effects shown in our samples.

Deliveries will be made promptly.

Handkerchiefs

An original collection of Real Lace Handkerchiefs. Prices start as low as $1.25 and run as high as $35.00.

Bretonne Lace Bolero, $32.80

As our collections represent the best of European markets, you will be able to form some conception of our unlimited source of supplies.

When you want exclusiveness come to us.

Revillon Brothers, Limited,

PARIS LONDON NEW YORK LEIPZIC SHANGHAI EDMONTON

HERS, LIMITED

CLASS NOVELTIES

¶ Revillon Goods are winning renown for originality and selling value. Import prices will appeal to you.

SIGNS, LATEST STYLES AND COLORS IN

Gloves, Hosiery, Leather Goods, Fancy Goods, etc., etc.

Canadian Distributors of P. L. Bockairy's and Soaps

Laces

A wide variety of High-Class Laces in Point de Gaze, Duchesse, Flandre, Bretonne, Princesse, Chantilly, etc., etc.

Point de Gaze Lace, $175.00 yard

Lace Robes

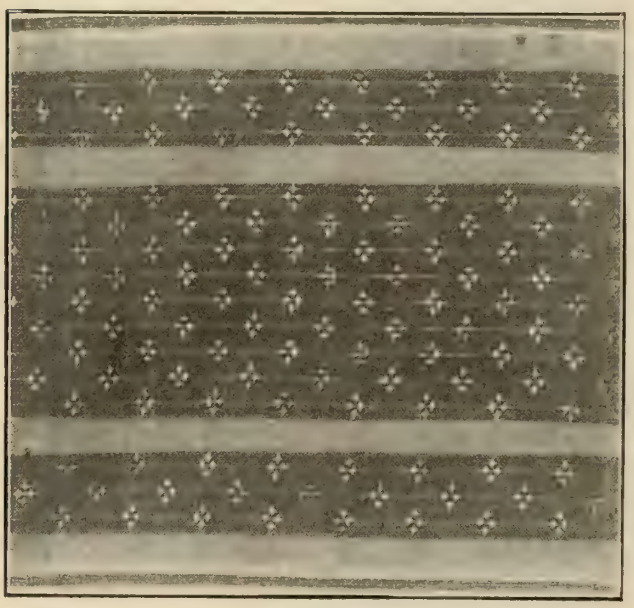
A complete selection is shown in Duchesse, Paillette, Princesse, Venise Broderie, Printed Marquesette. Exclusive designs are the keynote of this line, as in all other lines.

Bretonne Lace Robe, $195.00

134-136 McGill Street, Montreal

MOSCOW NIJNY NICOLAEIV RHABAROSK BOKHARA PRINCE ALBERT

in fancy effects of lace and lawn like the one shown. Turn-over tab collars are good as the wheat and collar and cuff sets are good sellers. Those houses which were well stocked with the new ideas in embroidered stock collars have good reason to congratulate themselves, and have done a splendid business, as the trade finds there is nothing to take their place.



Sleevelets of lace are showing in numerous pretty designs, and will doubtless command a fairly good sale, particularly with the better trade. One house has gone into the manufacture of lace mitts, importing the lace for this purpose, but there will, it is believed, only be a limited demand in spite of the fact that long gloves are still high priced.

Dainty, full ruffs of pleated tulle, with a silk edging in white and in black and colors, and with velvet ends are extremely good sellers. There are also a number of pretty stole effects in this most successful line.

Acute Ribbon Situation

Continued Scarcity With Higher Prices for Spring—Fall Deliveries Will be Slow.

Conditions in the ribbon situation grow more acute daily, as importers find deliveries of desirable Spring

A Popular Priced Fancy Ribbon (Pink.)
Shown by W. H. Barry & Co., Montreal.

ribbons slow and unsatisfactory. As yet the situation has not seriously crippled available supplies, but as the season progresses retailers will find assorting orders hard to procure. Trade has opened actively at retail and importers and the domestic source of supply have no difficulty in securing orders.

Silk markets abroad continue very strong in tone, and it is clearly evident the supply of raw silk is not adequate to meet the manufacturers' wants. The large London houses and the American trade have placed contracts with Swiss manufacturers sufficiently large to keep them busy for months to come, and as a result Canadian houses anxious to secure duplicates for Summer trade find they cannot get anything like prompt delivery even at marked advances. Ribbons worth 8c. to lay down are bringing as high as 10½c and this represents the general immediate advance. With this in view, Canadian prices have again assumed a higher level and importers have sent out revised lists to their salesmen. However, the majority of houses continue to protect customers, and owing to keen competition the full force of the true situation has not yet been felt.

The demand continues strong for all grades and widths of taffetas, and failletines are gaining strength in millinery ribbons. Black velvet ribbons are proving good property, and colors are beginning to be called for. Light shades are strong in every line. Every description of fancy ribbons seems assured of a ready sale, and both retailers and importers express confidence in their continued strength throughout the season. On this class of goods the price situation is peculiarly noticeable, and retailers must be prepared to pay advances. Importers speak of the readiness of large city stores to protect themselves, even at present prices, while many smaller merchants hold off in a hope of lower prices. This latter policy is suicidal, and repeats should be anticipated, as far as possible.

Looking towards the Fall, prices and deliveries will be even more of a trying question, and many importers are beginning to wonder where they will fill in many lines.

Gloves

Easter Trade Taxed Available Supplies—Long Gloves Active—Fall Orders Freely Placed.

The Spring trade among the jobbers and retailers has opened up early, and it gives every indication of being a record-breaker. So far a splendid business has been done, and importers may confidently look forward to heavy repeats during the next few weeks.

Certain retailers who bought heavily in long silk gloves, and received generous shipments, have been a bit shaky lately and have been making sales at a very small margin of profit. These sales have been mostly in the lower grades of silk, however. This attitude seems hardly warranted, however, for silk gloves have sold freely during the Winter, and considering also the high prices of leathers, as well as the fact that the season for fabric gloves is now at hand, retailers should experience no difficulty in disposing at full prices of every fabric glove that they have in stock.

Spring shipments of long leather gloves ran largely on 12 and 16 button lengths in glace styles, in blacks, tans, and whites. Some buyers have also included grey in their orders.

Deliveries this year are just about on a par with those of 1906, as the Chemnitz and St. Gall fabric markets are over-run with orders, and the French kid markets extend deliveries continually. Owing to these conditions, and to the tremendous demand from the United States, merchants must expect to pay more for repeats.

Regarding colors in kid gloves for this Spring, there is a very decided tendency toward shades to match costumes.

It is expected that fully forty per cent. of the Spring business will be in long gloves, in glace effects, and at present they are in great demand. Suedes are not nearly so much favored, although there is a tendency toward this line for Fall. Prices are fully 10 per cent. to 25 per cent. higher than last year, and jobbers, in nearly every case, are getting any price asked.

Opening of Fall Season.

Importers have had their representatives showing Fall lines during the past few weeks, and initial orders are being booked. It is felt that the majority of Fall orders will be placed this month after Easter trade shows the trend of the demand. The price and delivery problems remain unchanged, as leather markets are still in an unsatisfactory condition. Importers are urging early orders and again bank upon a fair number of long kid gloves. Domestic manufacturers have no difficulty in securing a fair amount of orders for their various lines of wool and fur-lined gloves, as retail stocks were well cleared this year. The new short terms have been well observed. Cashmere and Ringwood gloves are selling freely at advanced prices.

Veilings

A Strong Development in Favor of Separate Veils During the Past Month—Mourning Veils Scarce.

There have been quite a number of new and attractive styles in separate veils, put upon the market during the past month, and it would look as though a revival of the drape veil is due this Summer. Fancy goods and millinery houses report that the trade has taken kindly to these veils, and that some very expensive ones have been sold. Lace veils and Brussels net veils, with either a lace edge or a fancy edge, have been free sellers. The pleated edge of a maline is a big favorite, and another good style is the hem of chiffon. A novelty line that appeared late in the month has a heavy silk embroidered scalloped edge. Fancy chenille dotted veils have also these borders, and borders of narrow taffeta and velvet ribbon. In the more expensive lace veils shaped effects are shown. One that is almost square is worn with one point over the hat and the others gracefully draped, and pinned to the hair at the back. Long lace scarf veils and fancy shapes are also shown.

Chiffon veils, with fancy borders, are free sellers, and there are many new ideas and styles in motor veils shown. The colors are black, brown, tans, champagne, wine, green, navy and white. The darker colors are the big sellers just at present, but white promises to become a strong factor when the weather gets warmer. Though the draped veil is selling, its vogue is not in any way interfering with the sale of tuxedos and mesh veilings; indeed, the two veils are very often worn at the one time. Tuxedos, etc., are having a ready sale, and the colors above cited are those wanted.

Trimmings, Braids and Buttons

Braids and Bands the Chief Lines—Paris and New York Showing Balls and Pendants.

Travelers have been out for some time now with dress trimmings, and though there is more interest taken in the sample lines, and though it is felt that the day of dress trimmings is again coming, orders have been sparingly placed. This, however, does not apply to braids, which are coming into increasing use. It is now used upon the skirt of many gowns as well as for a coat trimming. French bands are also good, as the vest is just as much as ever an indispensable feature.

Paris gowns show a good deal of trimming. Ball and drop fringes, and pendant ornaments are freely used, and the same tendency is becoming manifest in New York. Pendant ornaments are shown in large variety and in simple as well as elaborate styles. Ball fringes are used to edge the short coats and boleros, and pendants on the stole fronts and as sleeve trimmings. Single balls are used to scatter over coats of Irish and guipure lace.

The Glove House of Canada

PERRIN FRERES & CIE.

302 Lagauchetiere, Corner Beaver Hall Hill,

MONTREAL

Spring Gloves

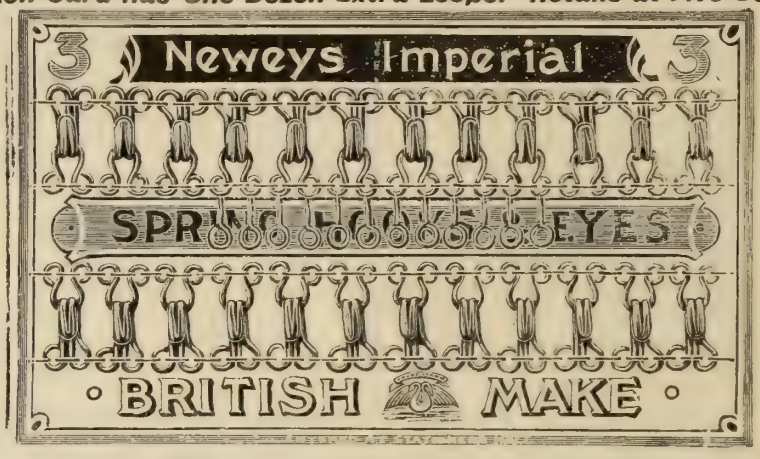
In all the newest shades and in all lengths are now in stock.

Long Gloves at all Prices.

Our stock is by far the largest of its kind in Canada and we can fill all orders promptly.

Write for Prices and Samples or for our traveller to call.

Fall Samples of Kid Gloves now on the road.



NEWEY'S SPRING HOOKS & EYES.

IMPERIAL QUALITY

Made in 5 Sizes. Black and White. A Centre Spring Hook with a Swan Bill, made from hard drawn Brass Wire. Beautifully finished and machine carded.

Each Card has One Dozen Extra Loops. Retails at Five Cents

OUR NAME IS A GUARANTEE OF EXCELLENCE

Sole Agents for Canada, Dieckerhoff, Raffloer & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg

Buyers when in England, cordially invited to call and see these and our other productions.

NEWEY BROS LTD BREARLEY ST. BIRMINGHAM.

IT IS A

FOWNES

That is all you require to know about a glove.

FALL SAMPLES BEING SHOWN COMPLETE.

FOWNES BROS. & CO.

Rooms 1 to 4 Coristine Building

MONTREAL.

WHB WHB

Walter H. Barry & Co.

THE RIBBON HOUSE OF CANADA

Ribbon Buyers

We have a full assortment of desirable Ribbons at Right Prices.

Strong range of Fancies in stock and many deliveries to follow.

Your Orders Filled at Once.

In view of the Ribbon situation the above is a bold statement but We Stand Ready to Prove It.

234 McGILL ST. - MONTREAL

RHYS D. FAIRBAIRN, LIMITED

MANUFACTURERS

Lawn Waists Wash Collars Wash Belts

BRIGHT NEW IDEAS—MADE TO YOUR ORDER. SAMPLES SHEWN BY OUR TRAVELLERS.

HUGH HENRY
204 St. James Street
MONTREAL

107 Simcoe Street (cor. Pearl)
TORONTO

The embroidered trimmings show a free use of tinsel, and gold in particular is just as much the vogue as ever. Tinsel is also freely introduced into the fancy braids. Pleated effects are decidedly good in pulls.

A developing style is the free use of buttons, both on suits and upon the new coats. Gilt buttons are talked of in other centres, but in Canada as yet metal buttons have only been sparingly used. The new lines are extra attractive, and business should be active in metal buttons this Fall.

Tiny studs, buttons and buckles in brilliants and mock jewels for centreing bow knots, ruches, etc., are shown in big variety, and it would seem as though these sparkling little effects ought to appeal to dressmakers and also to the makers of collars and waists.

Some Grievances

A London Wholesaler Discusses Returned Drafts, Cancellations, and the Return of Goods.

London, Ont., April 6.—A well-known London wholesaler aired some grievances to The Dry Goods Review the other day.

First of all, he spoke of the retailer who dishonors drafts, very often returning them marked, "Will send cheque when due." "There is only one reason for this," said the wholesaler, "the man doesn't expect to be able to pay the draft when due if he accepts it, and he knows if it's an open account he can advise the wholesaler to draw on him at ten, twenty or thirty days, so as to get extra time without interest. Unless he is in a position to pay spot cash he should never mark a draft as described..

"Then there is the man who cancels orders. That he has taken up the time of the traveler and the warehouse staff matters not to him; he seems to think that is what we are in business for, and that it is all one to us whether we cancel or fill an order.

"But worst of all is the man who returns goods. can show you letters right here making requests, that for monumental nerve beat the draft dishonorer and the order canceller to a standstill. Fancy a man carrying goods for a whole season and then asking me to take back what he has left over, and give him in exchange goods that are right in season!" And the wholesaler displayed for inspection letters of just such a character as above mentioned.

"Of course these merchants are in a class by themselves; they are known to the trade, and you can depend upon it they do not get any better treatment at the hands of the wholesalers on account of their business methods. As a matter of fact they are very often shunned, and travelers are inclined to give them the go-by.

"Any person who will suggest a remedy for these conditions," concluded the wholesaler, "will perform a lasting service for a long-suffering branch of the business community.

* * *

Spring business is looking up in the various lines. Travelers report orders liberal, while retailers, both in the city and surrounding towns and villages, are enjoying a good trade.

* * *

Smallman & Ingram are branching out, and before the end of the year will have the largest exclusively dry goods store in Ontario. Unable to secure the corner premises east of the present stand, they bought the two stores on Richmond street south of the corner, and when operations are completed they will have an L-shaped building, with entrances on two streets as well as one on the market square.

SHARED PROFITS WITH EMPLOYES.

At the annual meeting of Stanley Mills & Co., Hamilton, the president, Stanley Mills, stated that the business during 1906 had reached far beyond the half million dollar mark. The mail order department had shown a very satisfactory increase. About forty of the employes are now interested in the business as shareholders, and he advised them to try and increase their holdings and advise others to take up stock. The regular bonus of eight per cent. was paid on preferred stock, and a bonus of two per cent. was declared also, making a total of ten per cent. on the investment to be paid to all the employes who hold shares in the company. In addition to the dividends a substantial sum was divided amongst the entire staff, from superintendent down to office boy.

S. R. Wickett, president of the Commercial Travelers' Mutual Benefit Society, entertained the directors at dinner at McConkey's, Toronto.

The milliners of Washington, D.C., have organized a union and are to have a label.

WHERE

BANNER BRAND

GOODS ARE MADE AND SOLD

BANNER BRAND

LADIES' LINES

Ladies' Wash Waists.

Ladies' Lingerie Waists.

Ladies' White Waists.

Ladies' Silk Waists.

Ladies' Walking Skirts.

Ladies' Dress Skirts.

Ladies' Wash Skirts.

Ladies' Shirtwaist Suits.

Ladies' Wrappers.

Ladies' Kimonos.

Ladies' Dressing Sacques.

Ladies' Petticoats.

Ladies' Dusters.

IT is but a few years ago that we started with one number in a Ladies' Black Sateen Waist, which shortly grew into a complete line, and in this manner other lines were added, until now we easily figure as the largest manufacturers of ladies' wearing apparel in the west, if not in the entire country. No line was ever presented before the trade until we had mastered the details of production and brought the garments up to the "Banner Brand" standard; hence merit follows the sale of each garment, adding to the growth of Banner Brand business. From a small factory of 12 machines we have in 21 years grown until now we employ over 3,600 hands and operate 2,300 machines and our own laundries.

To satisfy the wearer is the Banner Brand Motto.

BANNER BRAND

CLOTHING LINES

Boys' Two-Piece D. B. Suits.

Novelty, Buster and Knickerbocker Suits.

Boys' Three-Piece Knee Suits.

Boys' Norfolk and Bell Suits.

Russian Military and Sailor Suits.

Washable Suits and Knee Pants.

Young Men's Suits.

Men's Suits.

Knee Pants.

Boys' and Men's Pants.

Boys' Waists and Blouses.

EVERY Banner Brand Suit or garment is turned out with the one idea of satisfying the wearer, which builds business for the retailer and in turn accounts for the growth of Banner Brand business. In this branch of our business, we long ago passed the figure that conceded us the largest manufacturers of children's, boys' and young men's clothing in America. Our lines have also gained the reputation of showing more distinct styles and clean cut values than are offered by any other house in the business.

We operate our own shops—where our garments are made strictly under our own supervision — we do not send them out to small shops, where can be found clothes of other manufacturers. There is an individuality to Banner Brand clothing.

Catalogue No. 44C on Request

STROUSS, EISENDRATH & CO.

The House with a Record

Jackson Blvd. and Franklin St., CHICAGO, U.S.A.

St. Louis, Mo., Jefferson Hotel

St. Paul, Minn., Merchants Hotel

Waists

Manufacturers Are Finding it Difficult to Fill the Demand—Lingerie Waists Already Freely Ordered for Fall.

The situation as regards the procuring of the necessary waist materials has been eased considerably by the receipt of various shipments from the manufacturers, and, in consequence, the retailer is getting his stock in better shape. The situation is, however, acute, and deliveries are by no means as good as they might be. This has led retailers to make early inquiries for lingerie waists for Fall—for this kind of waist is an all-the-year article now—and decidedly large orders have been placed.

Jap Silk Waist, Irish Guipure Yoke, Trimmed with Val. Lace and Insertions. This and the Lawn Lace Shown by Debenham's (Canada) Limited.

Styles vary only in detail from those shown now, and are invariably of the ¾ sleeve and the button-up-the-back variety. Valenciennes and cluny, and also baby Irish and guipure laces are the trimmings most favored.

For the Fall also net waists—which, by the way, are good sellers at the present time—are indicated as being in high favor. The models shown are in both plain and figured nets, and are trimmed with Venise, Valenciennes and Cluny. These waists are in big demand for wearing with the new jumper, fichu and Japanese suits, and the trimming is massed upon the yoke and the sleeves. The returning vogue of brown in all its shades is resulting in a big call for ecru net waists in the States, and the Fall season is likely to see very many worn in Canada, as brown is safe to be the leading Winter color on this market. These waists must be made up over silk of the same shade.

Mercerized Lawn Waist, Val Yoke, Trimmed Strapping with Silk Motifs, Made in White, Sky, Helio and Pink.

The Fall will undoubtedly be a big silk waist season, as silks are coming daily more to the fore. Quiet plaids and warp prints will do fairly well. but the big seller will be the plain chiffon taffeta. Crepe de chine and chiffon waists will be in good demand.

Whitewear

June Sales to be Generally Held—Higher Prices for the Fall.

From what can be learned in the trade the usual June whitewear sales will be generally held, as they are too potent an attraction at that season of the year to be lightly passed over. From the fact that there is nothing in the nature of a reduced line obtainable it is safe to say that nothing extra tempting in the bargain line will be offered. There will, however, be soiled and shop-worn goods, and the odds and ends to close out lines. The same as at the January sales in the cities, some good values may be expected, particularly in the high-priced goods, where the cost of material does not figure so prominently. This is one of the chief reasons why the present tendency towards the buying of the better grades of whitewear is so welcome to the manufacturing end of the trade.

Lingerie Waist for the Midsummer Trade.
Shown by Ladies' Wear, Ltd.

The manufacturers are beginning to prepare for the Fall season, and samples will soon be on the road. It may not be welcome news to the retailer, but it can hardly be unexpected, that prices will again show an advance, as under the present cotton conditions garments cannot be made at old figures. Not only are cottons higher, but trimmings cost more, and competent operators are very scarce and are demanding big wages. The expense of handling is increasing each season, and, in consequence, the retail trade is having to pay more for its goods.

The tendency to buy better goods, as we have said before, is a big help to the situation, and is one that the retailer should, for many reasons, encourage. For one thing, the wearing qualities are better. Profits also are better, for a larger turnover is made with the same expense. Then the big advances in materials that have taken place do not show so clearly in the better goods as in the lower priced ones.

Flannelette samples will be included in the Fall range, but each season—outside of a few sections of the country—sees flannalette garments in a lessening demand. This is due to the fact that so many houses are steam-heated these days.

Corsets

Heavy Business Done in All Lines—Should Hose Supporters Be Put on Cheap Corsets?

As in other lines, the manufacturers of corsets are overwhelmed with business, and have considerable difficulty in keeping up with orders and making deliveries to date. Though orders are larger and in greater volume than ever, the pressure of business is not the only trouble that the manufacturers are having to contend with. They, in turn, are harassed by delays in the delivery of cottons, laces, etc., and these delays, not infrequently, are a serious hindrance to the processes of manufacture.

Not only are deliveries of batistes, coutilles and other materials, used in corset-making, slow, but the advanced prices are becoming a serious matter, cotton fabrics now being on a basis of 40 per cent. higher than at the same time last year. Other manufacturing expenses have increased in proportion.

Considering all these difficulties, the retailer must see that it is impossible for the makers to fill orders, on the short notice, that has hitherto been sufficient. They cannot undertake to ship on receipt of order, and the retailer, to keep his stock in proper shape and assortments unbroken, must order well in advance of his requirements.

Another point that is beginning to be important is the question of hose supporters on cheap corsets. Keen competition amongst the manufacturers led to placing of them on these grades. The attaching of hose supporters to corsets to retail under $2 or $2.50, and their acceptance by the trade, has always been regarded as a mistake by The Review and the reasons why have often been discussed. Every buyer must know that the price of the hose supporter comes out of the value of the corset; that to get the corset down to the necessary price poorer materials, poorer workmanship, and poorer finish must be given. If anything that was really of permanent value was obtained in return it would not be so bad, but as the cheapest supporter possible to obtain is used, it is only a matter of a week or so until it becomes useless. Indeed, where stock is only slowly turned over, the elastic is often gone before it leaves the merchant's hands. Rubber, as is well known, will not stand sudden changes of temperature, and the elastic rots after being exposed to such. No man ever expects to get $1.50 in exchange for $1, though many seem to be looking for it. How can the retailer expect that he is going to get a dollar corset, with a fifty-cent hose supporter attached, for the price of the corset alone? As a matter of fact, he does not, and what is worse, he is sacrificing his department's reputation for keeping dependable goods in the effort.

The high price of raw materials is making the situation still more serious, as it is meaning a further weakening of the already impaired value of the corset. It is true that to the eye there is little difference noticeable between the appearance of corsets with and without supporters. It is the manufacturer's business to see that there is not, but he knows, the man who is selling to you knows, and your customers soon realize, that the quality is not there, and then your department loses prestige and trade. The value that ought to have gone into building up your trade went into low grade hose supporters that lasted no time after they were once worn, and in cases where sales were slow they did not even last until they had left the store.

This is a matter that is vital to every corset buyer, but particularly so to the man who has only a small department and who, to do business, has to stock a fairly large number of styles and sizes. Many of these styles and sizes stay on his shelves a considerable time before they are sold, and if the rubber rots he is going to have endless loss and trouble in the shape of exchanges and returns.

In this matter the interests of both retailer and manufacturer are identical, and before long something definite will have to be done, for the trouble is becoming acute. Should any manufacturer conclude to make a stand, and put the value where it belongs—that is, in the corsets—and leave off the hose supporters, The Review hopes that for the preservation of their own interests the retail trade will give him their strongest support.

The Fall Coat

The Staple Lines Are Out—The Merchant is Strongly Advised to Place Orders Now.

The staple lines for Fall are now out, and retailers would do well to give them the most careful consideration as the present market conditions show signs of becoming yet more difficult as the season approaches. The cloth manufacturer is sold away ahead of his production, and there are mills that can not take another order for the next eight months. There is no sign of any relief and the man who requires his goods when the season opens must place his orders now.

The styles put out by the Canadian manufacturer are well considered and are entirely adapted to the needs of the Canadian trade. The lighter cloths are really considered right for the early Fall trade, but it must be remembered that dark colorings are down on the slate for Fall.

Japanese Effects

The Japanese Robe Idea the Latest, and One That is Being Generally Accepted in New York.

The Japanese robe idea is certainly the latest development in the garment section, and the wide arm hole, drooping shoulders and cross-over effect are now generally applied to the later New York costumes and suits. This idea has also been extensively taken up by the leading dressmakers, and promises to appear in modified form in not only the Fall suits but in the novelties in the cloak and coat line.

As this style applies only to the waist it has no influence upon skirt fashions. The tailor-made has little charm for the Parisienne, and the walking skirt was only a short-lived fashion in Paris. Paris is now favoring the long, clinging circular-cut skirt, almost entirely plain save for a fold or so of the material. The modified Empire waist line, only slightly shortened in front and high at the back, is universally worn.

On this side of the ocean women still cling to the short skirt, and will accept no other; indeed, many skirts are unusually short this season. Some form of a pleated skirt is almost universal, though a good new model shown lately to The Review had circular-cut gores at the sides. Those firms who are making machine pleated skirts have more orders than they can fill.

In walking suits the vogue of the drooping shoulder and Gibson effects is a strong one, and though the Eton is still the big seller, the new cut-away coat is increasing its lead. It is the smartest as well as the leading style novelty.

Stripes, as the season progresses. are making a gain, and striped costumes are decidedly more in evidence than at an earlier date. The plainly marked feeling is all for darker colorings, and there is an unusually large proportion of dark suits sold, notwithstanding the fact that they are for Spring wear. Brown is gaining ground, and a window showing only brown suits was a big attraction in Toronto lately.

SPRING SUIT MODELS
Manufactured by The Hart Mfg. Co., Montreal.

The Raincoat Trade

Rubberized Garments on the Market—Ladies' Rainproofs in an Assured Position.

Spring trade thus far at retail is proving that ladies' rainproof garments have an assured, if not a growing position. Plain cloths of proofed goods are still in the running in many sections of Canada, while tweeds are shown everywhere. The competition on tweeds has been very keen, as cloak and raincoat manufacturers have shown large lines. The result is that manufacturers of popular cloths have not been able to supply the demand. However, the inevitable consequence of competition is the cheapening process, and the majority of tweed garments are not proofed. These coats, made mostly in loose styles, can be turned out quickly, and the majority of good stores have as many garments as they can conveniently dispose of. These goods have been running three seasons, and it is felt that the end is in sight.

Across the line, trade has turned on rubberized garments or unlined waterproof goods, and these are now shown by Canadian manufacturers. They come in plain cloths in such shades as black, blue, brown and fawns, and their initial reception has been good, especially on ⅞ lengths. These garments not only look well, but are actually waterproof, and can fill all the purposes of the ordinary raincoat as well. Silk coats are also doing well for city trade.

Montreal Retail Trade

Large Sales of New Styles in Coats—Suits and Skirts—Trade Opening up Well.

Montreal trade on Spring lines of garments is sufficiently advanced to give a fairly clear indication of the popular effects in both medium and high-grade goods. Mostly all departments were very busy last month, owing to the early Easter business and managers of the ready-to-wear departments find the trade opening well. They are looking forward to a record year.

A SPRING COAT
Manufactured by Claman Waterproof Garment Co., Montreal.

Spring Coats.

For the popular trade, coverts have proved a fairly successful line. A very good business has been done in long, loose models of light weight fabrics. The shades most in demand are light grey effects, and brown and white stripes.

The trimmings of the present are of a lighter order than has lately been the case. The most fashionable are Alice blue, golden brown and onion shades.

There is a decided feeling for striped tweed effects in light greys and fawns, in the half-Gibson effect and John Noble Stearns, pioneer silk manufacturer of America, is dead at the age of seventy-seven.

semi-back, or the ordinary sack back. These will be important features of the Summer trade. For the better class trade, a lace coat over taffeta silk, also coats of taffeta silk with embroidered silk braid, are greatly in demand. Very smart dust cloaks in tussore silk, box-pleated back and embroidered collar will be good sellers this season.

Suits.

The heavy snowfalls and the damp weather have not been beneficial to the suit department. Still, towards the end of the month the weather man brightened up and brought out large crowds to the city stores.

The choice in style when the retail season opened up lay between the Eton and the pony suits. Although the general trade have favored the popular Eton style, pony suits will be much more demanded by the better class trade. The military pony, which is very stylish and has a mannish appearance, is popular. The hip-length coat with the rounded corners is another strong style. It is being worn in plain colors of black and navy, in serge and Panama cloths.

Suits of striped tweeds and light shades of plain tweed, made with bolero-coats, are finding great favor with the city trade. These effects are also being shown in Panama cloths. The colors most popular are navy, black, fawn and grey. These lines are picked to become quite popular during the Summer months. Taffeta waist suits, in black, navy, brown and green shades, are being shown in large displays.

Washing Skirts and Suits.

Now that the Easter trade is out of the way, Summer goods will come to the front in the garment department. These, of course, will consist largely of linen or so-called linen suits. Besides white a good many unbleached linens will be seen, and also a few colored linens, blue, mauve, etc.

Skirts.

The Spring season is usually a short one in the garment trade, but this year it promises to be an unusually busy one. One active feature has been the demand for separate skirts. The style favored has been some form or other of the pleated and braided skirts. The voile embroidered and braided styles will sell freely this Summer, with the high-class trade. There has also been a large demand for sun-pleated and knife-pleated skirts. Various colors of black and navy will be almost exclusively worn. Only a very few tweeds are being shown at the present time. White linen skirts, both plain and embroidered, will be extensively handled during the Summer months. White always suits the demands of the public during the hot season.

Box-pleated and gored-pleated skirts are being well looked after. Light effects in stripes and checks, also blacks and navy Venetians are in demand. Lustres and Sicilians are meeting the public's fancy and they are shown in nearly every shade.

DEATH OF GEORGE H. EVANS.

In the death of George H. Evans, manufacturers' agent, Montreal, the dry goods trade has lost one of its pioneer traveling representatives. The deceased was in his sixty-sixth year, and his death occurred at the family residence, Sussex street, Montreal, Sunday, March 31st. He was a sufferer from Bright's disease, which had affected his health during the past three years. For nearly a year he was forced to absent himself from active business. His death was thus not unexpected. He leaves a widow, two married daughters and one son, A. W. B. Evans, who has been associated with his father for some time and has had active charge of the business during the past year. No change in the firm will be made and business will go on as formerly.

George H. Evans was born in London, England, and at an early age served an apprenticeship with Northcote's in that city. In time he became a traveling representative and advanced rapidly. Like many young men in those days he turned his eyes toward Canada and came here over thirty years ago. He has traveled in every part of Canada, representing many well known firms. Ten years ago he settled in Montreal as a manufacturers' agent, and has successfully marketed many dry goods specialties. He was a man of untiring energy, who believed in the gospel of work. His successful career was made possible by close attention to business and strict integrity in all business dealings.

The Late Geo. H. Evans.

ANOTHER FIRE IN MONTREAL.

On Thursday, March 21, the David Morrice Building, at 309-311 West Notre Dame St., Montreal, suffered loss by fire. The damage to building and contents is estimated as follows: Canada Tag and Label Co., $50,000; Hudson Bay Knitting Co., $30,000; David Morrice, building, $15,000; D. Morrice, Sons & Co., stock, $5,000. The Hudson Bay Knitting Co. used the top floor as a stock room, and D. Morrice, Sons & Co. a large portion of the remainder of the building in their capacity as agents for the Penman Manufacturing Co., and the Canadian Colored Cotton Mills Co. The building is in the central part of the Montreal wholesale district, and almost adjoins the ruins of the building, damaged last Winter, a portion of which was occupied by the Excelsior Cloak Co.

Not a leader, but one of our Spring values. Sample sent upon request. Price, $3.25.

Raincoats and Tweed Garments

So differently better are "None to Beat" Brand Goods. Our Spring styles have proved our early claims of the best line on the market.

KNOWN

EVERYWHERE

Our Spring catalog is yours for the asking. Seeing is believing. Ask for samples.

"THE HOUSE THAT MERIT BUILT"

Claman Waterproof Garment Co.

Montreal

OUR FALL LINES NOW READY

SPRING 1907

Silk

Waists Suits

Travellers now out for sorting

The American Silk Waist Co.

MONTREAL

E. T. CORSETS

ARE

LEADERS

in Fit, Finish and Quality. When buying, stop and think, then insist on having our product.

Your customers will be buying a guaranteed article every time you sell them an

E. T. CORSET

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS MFG. CO.,

LIMITED

337 St. Paul St., Montreal

Factory at ST. HYACINTHE. Branch Office: 74 Bay St., TORONTO

THE FALL WAIST SEASON

NOVEL IDEAS | FINE WORKMANSHIP | PROMPT DELIVERIES

¶ This coming Fall is going to be a great Waist Season, and early in May one of our eight representatives will show you some one hundred styles in Shield Brand goods.

¶ The line embraces every known high-class Waist Form. We do not enumerate the styles, but you can make an attractive addition to your stock by arranging to see the line of Lace Waists, Novel Lace Jumpers, Waists of Messaline, Taffeta, Eglatine, Merve, Japs, Peau de Soie, etc.

¶ We show a great many new and taking features that you cannot see anywhere else. There is every reason to believe that when re-order time comes this Fall it will be difficult to get the goods. Our new and enlarged factory location places us in an enviable position.

THE NEW YORK SILK WAIST MFG. CO., Limited

Cor. St. Catherine and Montcalm Sts., MONTREAL

MENTION

DRY GOODS REVIEW

IN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS

DRY GOODS REVIEW

has enquiries from time to time from manufacturers and others wanting representatives in the leading business centres here and abroad.

Firms or individuals open for agencies in Canada or abroad may have their names and addresses placed on a special list kept for the information of enquirers in our various offices throughout Canada and in Great Britain without charge.

Address: Business Manager.

DRY GOODS REVIEW

Montreal and Toronto.

Spring, 1907

is a Banner

Ready-to-Wear Season

Wouldn't it be good business to get into closest touch with

The Leading Raincoat House?

Our salesmen are now showing a line of special interest.

Canada's Largest Exclusive Raincoat House

National Rubber Co. of Canada

MONTREAL

WE'LL DELIVER ON TIME

GRIFFIN BRAND GARMENTS SELL

WE'RE SHOWING A FULL LINE OF Popular-Priced Spring Coats, Suits and Skirts

STYLISH—Well-made and priced to sell.

IF YOU'LL ASK US FOR SAMPLE GARMENTS WE'LL RUSH THEM.

The Empire Mfg. Co. 138 Craig Street West Montreal

TRADE Laurentian MARK

FLANNELETTE UNDERWEAR

We invite your inspection of Fall line now in travellers' hands.

Goods sold under above trade-mark is a guarantee of quality, style, fit and finish.

Place your orders promptly.

LAURENTIAN WHITEWEAR CO., - LEVIS, P.Q.

WHITEWEAR REPEATS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.

H. W. WILSON & CO.

4 Kingly St., London, W., England
REGENT STREET

FURS, TRIMMINGS, BUTTONS, SILKS, Etc.

Novelty House exclusively for Ladies' Tailors and Department Stores

Novelties in 40in. Twill Victoria Lining

A combination of Silk and Cotton

For Coats, Costumes, etc.

Plain, Shot, Stripe and Floral Design

Patterns on application.

THE NEW

SUEDE SKINS

For Trimming Collars, etc.

24 Shades. Shade Card on application

Open Indents in Novelties carefully executed.

The Reliable Waist and Shirt Waist Suits

We were compelled to recall our travellers from the road in order to keep up the delivery of orders already taken. This is the reason why we were unable to cover the ground thoroughly as we expected. We have increased our output double this season, and our orders were tripled. This explains our situation and the demand for the Reliable Waist. Made by

I. MISHKIN & CO.

423 St. James Street

Montreal, - - Que.

We give prompt attention to mail orders.

P. C. 125

For stout ladies, lace sides, long waist. Strong coutil and steels.

"P. C."

THE CORSET OF QUICKEST TURN-OVER

There is unlimited pains taken in the cutting and fitting of every pair of P.C. CORSETS. We spare no time, trouble, or expense to make our corsets worthy. No question of hurrying out goods with us. They must be right in every respect before they are presented to the trade.

We're Busy, But Can Take Care of You

P.C. 810

A Canadian favorite. English coutil. Medium high bust. Four silk hose supporters. All sizes and colors.

Have you a good stock of Health Brand Waists?

THE PARISIAN CORSET MFG. CO., LIMITED.

QUEBEC, P.Q.

Ontario Branch—Brampton, Ont.
F. W. GILLIES, Manager.

DRY GOODS REVIEW

AND MEN'S FURNISHER

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE:

Canada, Great Britain, United States, Australia, South Africa and the West Indies - - $2 a year.
Other Countries, - - - - - - - - - $3 a year.
Single Copies, - - - - - - - - - - 25 cents.

Invariably in advance.

DIRECTORS:

J. B. MACLEAN, Montreal, - - - - - - PRESIDENT
W. L. EDMONDS, Toronto, - - - - - - VICE-PRESIDENT
A. B. CASWELL, Montreal, - - - MANAGING DIRECTOR

CHIEF OFFICES:

CANADA—

MONTREAL, 232 McGill Street. Tel. Main 1255.
TORONTO, 10 Front Street East. Tel. Main 2701.
WINNIPEG, F. R. Munro - - 511 Union Bank Building Telephone 3726
VANCOUVER, - - - - - - - - - Geo. S. B. Perry
ST. JOHN, N.B., J. Hunter White - No. 3 Market Wharf

GREAT BRITAIN—

LONDON, ENG., J. M. McKim, European Manager, 88 Fleet St., E.C. Telephone, Central 12960.
MANCHESTER, H. S. Ashburner, - - - 92 Market Street

UNITED STATES—

CHICAGO, J. Roland Kay, - - - 1001 Teutonic Bldg.

FRANCE—

Paris - - - - - Agence Havas, 8 Place de la Bourse

SWITZERLAND—

ZURICH - - - - Lomis Wolf, Orell Fussli & Co.

EUROPEAN STAFF CORRESPONDENT:

MR. A. E. DACAM, Paris.

ADVERTISING RATES

Are based on $35 a page and will be furnished on application to Mr. A. B. Caswell or to the manager of the nearest office. The value of THE DRY GOODS REVIEW as an advertising medium is unquestioned. The character of the advertisements now in its columns, and the number of them, tell the whole story. Circulation considered, it is the cheapest trade newspaper to advertise in. Advertisements, to insure insertion in the issue of any month, should reach this office not later than the eighteenth of the month preceding.

Office of Publication, 10 Front Street East, Toronto

MONTREAL AND TORONTO, APRIL, 1907.

NEW ADVERTISERS.

Auto Pen & Ink Mfg. Co. Chicago, Ill
The "Cravenette" Co., Ltd., Bradford, Eng.
Harris & Sheldon, Birmingham, Eng
Daniel Hone, London, Eng
Japan Trading Co. Montreal.
Samuel Kirk & Sons, Bradford, Eng
The London Printing & Lithographing Co., London, Ont.
Oxford Knitting Co., Woodstock.
Edward Ripley & Son, Ltd., London, Eng
Small's, Toronto
Strouss, Eisendrath & Co., Chicago, Ill

THE RIGHT AND THE WRONG WAY.

A drygoodsman in an Ontario town sends The Review a marked copy of one of the local papers in which appears an article which aims to show citizens why they should patronize home stores, instead of sending away for goods. The merchant, in a letter, says that the practice of buying from catalogue houses has developed enormously during the past few years, and he asks our opinion in regard to the above-mentioned article, which we here reproduce :—

"Is it fair to your town or to yourself to send your money out of town for goods that can be had from your merchant here? There is not the slightest doubt that the people of town contribute more to the income of the departmental stores in the cities than the gross profits of any one merchant here amount to. What do the town or individual get for this magnanimity? Do these outside concerns help to pay the taxes of your town? Do they contribute towards your churches or other worthy institutions of your town? How can you expect your town to thrive if you spend your earnings with outside concerns? We have never known of a local merchant who has not invested practically every dollar he earned in the community where he made his money. You may say that you don't owe the town anything. You may, perhaps, be earning a salary that is not directly contributed to by the community in which you live, and feel that you are under no obligation to patronize local institutions. Do you suppose the managers or directors of the interests you represent would take this view. It is a law of nature that we live on each other. There are very few people in a town the size of ——— who can say they are independent of their neighbors. There is no class of the community who contribute more towards the general revenue that the merchants. Do you appreciate this fact? Besides this, it's not neighborly or just. Apply the golden rule: "Do unto others, etc.," be patriotic in the true sense of the term. Where you live your interests should be; if they are not, the sooner you remove to where they are the better for the community. Don't flatter yourself that you are clever enough to patronize outside institutions without the fact becoming general property. Give it up; it's a mean practice, not worthy of anyone who wishes to be considered a good citizen."

In the first place we see in this article—no doubt either written or prompted by the merchant in question—an excellent advertisement for the catalogue houses. That is, perhaps, the chief end that it will serve, for we cannot bring ourselves to believe that, as a result of its publication, the business of local stores will be benefitted a particle, or that fewer mail orders will be sent to Toronto. If the merchant who is responsible had tried to view the matter with the eyes and understanding of one of his customers he would not have been anxious to see his own hasty opinions in print.

A citizen picks up his paper and reads the paragraph headed "Buy at Home." At the first sentence he observes that it is fair enough to send out of town if he can get better values. In the second he finds an admission that the mail order business is a serious competitor of the local stores, and it probably assumes an appearance of substantiality and permanency in his eyes that it never had before. Farther on he is admonished not to flatter himself that he is clever enough to patronize outside institutions without the fact being known. Then if he has been trying to conceal his mail order transactions he may angrily resolve to engage in more of them and do it openly, in the future. To the article as a whole he will very likely retort that it is nobody's business where he purchases his goods; that he is under no obligation to the local merchant, etc.

Even allowing that merchants should follow the plan of addressing their customers on this subject through newspaper columns, is there a drygoodsman in the country who believes that the arguments used in this instance are likely to carry conviction to a single person? We think not. It is admitted that the people "contribute more to the income of the departmental stores than the gross profits of any merchant here." To many persons it will look like an acknowledgment of defeat, and more so because they are not asked to trade at home because it is more convenient and because just as good or better values are obtainable; the appeal is made from the standpoint of patriotism and the economic relationship which every person in a community bears to his fellow-citizens.

Remember, we are not quarreling with the truth of anything that is stated in the article; we merely wish to indicate the attitude of the public toward it, and show how ineffectual such tactics must always be in cutting down the business which catalogue houses do in competition with local merchants.

Merchants must regard the purchase of goods from catalogue houses as legitimate competition and oppose it in the same way as they would any other competition of a legitimate nature. People must be shown that it is not only more convenient for them to buy at home, but just as profitable, too. Merchants should study their natural advantages over the city houses, keep larger assortments, with limited quantity of each, find out on what lines they are losing most trade, use descriptive advertising, and generally make the purchase of goods at the local stores more attractive than it now is. Each one should go over his business thoroughly and see that there are no leaks. If he can buy for cash and get his discounts he will find it a big help.

We have several times gone so fully into this matter that we do not feel disposed to take up further space with it here. We would refer our correspondent to the January issue to an article headed, "Competition of Catalogue Houses," for our views in detail, and we would also advise him to read T. Johnson Stewart's remarks on descriptive advertising in the March number.

WORKING ALONG THE RIGHT LINES.

In announcing the opening of an annex to his store a Glencoe merchant secured the publication of some splendid advertising matter in the local paper, in the form of an interview. One paragraph that strikes us as being particularly good reads as follows: "Shopping in Glencoe presents a problem that will be interesting to solve. If a big store here is run on lines that are elastic and adaptable; if it starts without any old-time prejudices and methods, except the essential virtues of hard work and honesty; if it deliberately tries to please people, first, last and all the time; if it realizes that a woman's shopping can be made more pleasurable to her than ever was the case before—then I venture to think a real want will have been supplied."

This paragraph is certain to create a good deal of interest among the ladies of Glencoe and vicinity, and they are sure to investigate the new conditions which promise to make the task of purchasing dry goods more pleasant than heretofore. It is up to the merchant to make good in the very best manner possible. If he does his efforts will surely be well rewarded. And, by the way, we would just like to add that catalogue house competition is not likely to bother him very much.

RAILWAY CONGESTION AND A REMEDY FOR IT.

Never in the memory of the majority of Canadian retailers have deliveries of all classes of goods been so slow and unsatisfactory as at the present, and manufacturers and jobbers are besieged with hurry-up calls. This situation is mainly attributable to the over-sold condition of practically all textiles throughout the world. Nearly every Canadian manufacturer has on his books more orders than he can conveniently cope with. Just now there seems to be no relief in sight as regards either delivery or price.

An aspect of the matter which some retailers do not recognize is the continued railway congestion, which operates against jobbers both in receiving and shipping goods. Strong evidence of the jobbers' efforts to relieve the situation is found in the fact that goods ordinarily shipped by freight are now brought forward by express, and a special train for the accommodation of express goods leaves Halifax almost daily; in fact, shipments from English markets are sent by express from Liverpool, and the cost is not always considered in securing desirable merchandise. In every part of Canada retailers are familiar with the inadequate supply of freight cars and locomotives. Bearing these facts in mind they will better understand the dilemma most manufacturers and jobbers are in.

In a letter to The Review an Alberta merchant says: "Before we can get our goods delivered by the railway, the fashion, prices and anything else connected therewith may be changed. So far as we can see, all that is left for the western merchant to do is to purchase nothing but staple goods, something that cannot go out of style." Even if we allow for a good deal of exaggeration in this man's tone of discouragement, there still remains abundant evidence that the conditions are exceedingly bad.

With respect to the west the railways seek to excuse themselves on the ground that traffic could not be kept up to any satisfactory mark in face of the conditions which prevailed during the past Winter. We find no fault with that, so far as it goes, but the fact remains that traffic was in bad shape before a snowflake fell, and this is a point on which the railways will find it difficult to answer back. If they had operated sufficient rolling stock during the Summer and Fall the conditions which now exist would be vastly different. They did not, however, and when Winter opened up shipments were away behind. That the western merchant feels very strongly in this matter is clearly indicated by the quotation given above.

In the opinion of the Winnipeg Jobbers' and Shippers' Association, the railways should be forced to keep abreast of the requirements of the times by obtaining the necessary cars and locomotives to move freight promptly. Reciprocal demurrage is the remedy which they would apply to the present situation. A precedent is found in the case of the State of Virginia. There, when a shipper makes verbal or written application to a railway company for a car or cars to be loaded with any kind of freight embraced in the tariff of said company, stating in said application the character of the freight and its final destination, the company shall furnish same within four days of seven o'clock a.m. the day following such application. For failure to comply with this provision the company so offending shall forfeit and pay to the shipper applying, $1 per car per day, or fraction of a day's delay after expiration of free time, upon demand in writing, made within thirty days thereafter by the shipper. Freight once received must be carried forward at the rate of not less than fifty miles a day of twenty-four hours. Further particulars in this regard are given in the news section of this issue.

The Review agrees with the Winnipeg Jobbers' and Shippers' Association in saying that Canada should have some system of reciprocal demurrage, to ensure better service from the railroads. It is not likely, though, that a general rule could be formulated that would apply satisfactorily to the whole country. It would hardly be right to expect the delivery of cars at a town along the C.P.R. away out west as quickly as at Winnipeg. The passage of legislation applicable only to the shipping centres would be a good point to start from. If thought advisable, the scope of the system could be extended later on.

A BREEDER OF BAD FEELING.

We visited a town a short time ago where each drygoodsman in turn deplored the lack of such good feeling in the local trade as would make the organization of a merchants' association possible. They recognize what a benefit it would be to them, but have little hope that it will materialize so long as the present men continue in business. After looking over the situation we concluded that the greater portion of the bad feeling which exists is traceable to one merchant, who seems to be most heartily disliked by some of his competitors—not, perhaps, without such provocation as would almost justify their feeling. That sounds pretty strong, but it must be remembered that it is human nature for a man to resent a persistent attempt to belittle himself and his efforts. The merchant in question seems to have incorporated into his business the policy of shouting through his newspaper space that he and his goods are so much superior to his competitors and their goods that the latter are not worth considering. He warns the public to beware of "dry goods fakirs," which term, presumably, is meant to include all his fellow retailers. For himself, he erects a pedestal of virtue and climbs up on it. After reading some of his ads. one would expect to find people falling over one another to get into his store, to take advantage of the unprecedented values which he is offering, while his competitors—sinister-looking individuals, of course—lie in wait for stray people who forget to take the opposite side of the street, and whom they lead in and deliberately swindle out of the contents of their pocket books.

The only quarter in which any real harm is ever done by such tactics is the one from which they emanate. The objects of the attacks referred to above are good, progressive merchants, some of them with better looking stores than the man who pretends to despise them. They are all doing well and expect to do a great deal better. They find sufficient to occupy their minds in attending to their own businesses and letting competitors alone. Merchandise and values constitute the text of their advertising, not personalities, and that is the policy which wins.

A POINT FOR CONSIDERATION.

A drygoodsman in Chatham put in a furniture department several years ago, entering directly into competition with several good exclusive stores. From a small beginning trade grew wonderfully until now this is one of the best paying sections of his business. Recently we learned that a Stratford merchant is preparing to try the same plan, and, with this in view, has purchased a block adjoining his store. The conditions are just as favorable to success as those under which the Chatham man embarked. The latter first thought of breaking into the new field when he found that people who are furnishing a house nearly always buy their carpets where they get their furniture. Then, people who start out to purchase dry goods only very often take a look through the furniture department and see something that they decide to have. The association of the two lines—in distinct sections, of course—benefits both of them.

There are, very probably, other places where drygoodsmen would find it profitable to extend their businesses in this way. It is a point well worthy of serious thought.

THE PUBLIC ATTITUDE.

Postmaster-General Lemieux stated his belief that the people at large would stand behind him in his desire to establish a postal express service in Canada, if the circumstances were fully explained to them. In our opinion they would be more likely to do so if as few details as possible were given them and the decision left to their own superficial examination. Even members of Parliament failed to see the great damage that the adoption of such a proposal was capable of doing, until it was pointed out to them. Before that they had looked upon it with considerable favor. As to the attitude of the public, it is significant that many newspapers—those which are outside the large centres, and free from department store domination—have attacked the short-sighted policy of the Post-office Department in attempting to foist such a change on the country. We have before now registered our protest against the power to do so being vested in the department, without requiring that any reference whatever be made to the House of Commons.

IN OUR NEW HOME, APRIL 1st

DESBARATS BUILDING, BEAVER HALL HILL, :: MONTREAL

On the edge of the wholesale district.

DOUBLE THE FLOOR SPACE. NO INTERFERENCE WITH BUSINESS.

We are moving this month to our new building, but as our old premises are retained, the task will be accomplished without any interference with business.

To reduce the labor and expense of handling, we are prepared to sacrifice many lines now in stock. Let us know your wants—or write for particulars.

Our new location is an outward sign of the prosperity of our customers, and the rightness of our lines. Our ample facilities will be a distinct advantage.

Travellers now showing import lines for Holiday Trade.

The China and Japan Silk Co.

MONTREAL LIMITED

Japan— Yokohama, Kobe

Canada— Montreal, Toronto

China— Shanghai, Hong Kong

ANTIMONY WARE, BAMBOO, BASKET, CHINA, MATTINGS

BRONZES, BRUSHES, IVORIES, SCREENS

BEADED PORTIERES, LAQUER GOODS, HANDKERCHIEFS, SILK GOODS, CLOISONNE

Raphael Tuck & Sons Company, Ltd.

London, Paris, Berlin, New York,

and 9-17 St. Antoine Street, MONTREAL

Announces the Completion of its lines for the SEASON OF 1907-8.
These consist of Christmas and New Year Cards in endless variety.

Calendars
of all kinds. A range of values that appeals to all purses—a variety of styles that embraces all tastes.

Special Holiday Publications such as Holly and Maple Leaf Seals, Holly and Maple Leaf Christmas Tags. Holly Wreaths, Book Marks, etc.

Christmas Post Cards strikingly beautiful, extremely novel, highly artistic and of unparalleled value.

Gift Books, Juveniles, Toy Books, etc., etc.
A collection which must be regarded as the best ever offered in the Dominion.

Travellers will start on their respective journeys on or about April 15th, and will visit every important point in Canada.

N.B.—Write for Booklet entitled "TUCK'S CANADIAN RECEPTION."

Women Prefer the Duchess Hoop

"Seeing through the merits of the Duchess"

for embroidering, because it holds thick or thin fabrics tightly stretched, without injury to the work, and has no metal about it to rust and stain the material, nor any attachments to catch the silks.

Duchess Hoops are made in sizes 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10 and 12 inch diameters.

It's the felt band on the Duchess Hoop that holds equally firm light or heavy fabrics and renders slipping impossible.

Made from light-colored hardwood, very smooth and true in circle.

Are you one of the 18,000 merchants handling this quick-selling and profitable notion article? If not, don't fail to stock it.

The dealers who carry the Duchess Hoops in the full assortment of sizes, and give them prominent display are getting the business.

Any jobber can supply you. Order to-day.

Also makers of the "Princess," "Royal Oval" and "Special-Select" Embroidery Hoops.

The GIBBS MFG. CO. CANTON, OHIO, U.S.A.

EXCLUSIVE LINES OF Japanese Fancy Goods

DIRECT FROM

Japanese Manufacturers to Canadian Retailers

Travellers are now taking import orders for Fall and Holiday Deliveries.

We are Manufacturers and Importers of Antimony, Bronze and Lacquered Wares, Crockery, Baskets, Curios, Etc., Etc.

Samples now Ready for Inspection.

Our Buying Facilities assure you Exclusive Lines and Right Values.

THE JAPAN TRADING COMPANY

209--301 St. James St., - - Montreal

HOME OFFICE:—KOBE, JAPAN.

FANCY GOODS AND NOTIONS

The interest in fancy goods keeps up, and there is more activity than ever in this department. As a consequence, there is an almost endless line of tempting novelties on the market. The Spring season nas been an unusually good one, and the importing houses are preparing for a very heavy Midsummer and Fall trade. Indeed, the only complaint heard is the usual one, that the trade is slow to take to a novelty, and that when orders commence to come in it is impossible to get the goods. The trade is reminded that all manufacturers are requiring extra time for deliveries nowadays and that any article which strikes the popular taste is soon over-sold. Under these conditions, to be sure of having the goods, they must place early orders.

* * *

There is such activity in fancy jewelry that it warrants the merchant who has a fair-sized store in making this, for a season, into a separate department. It need not take up much counter space, but there must be sufficient room to show the goods, for it is chiefly by introduction that they are sold. Cheapness in these goods by no means is their only recommendation, but even in the low-priced lines there is a high degree of artistic merit. Necklets and collars of beads can be stocked not only in an immense variety of styles, but of prices also, for they can be sold over the counter at from 25c. up to $10. Pearls lead both in necklets and collars. Single rows of pearls of various sizes are shown, with both pearl or brilliant clasps. In the higher priced lines, which will be particularly good sellers for the Christmas trade, the collar is preferred, and when the cheaper lines are passed over, these come with brilliant bars and heart-shaped or other ornaments in the centre of the front. These necklets are very handsome and are close copies of very much higher priced goods, from which it is very difficult to tell them. Coral is also well shown—both real and imitation. Coral comes in pretty necklets and collars, and is also combined with brilliants. The pinkish shades are best liked, and there is also the white with pink cloudings. Torquoise, amethyst, amber and other colored beads are also selling, and there is a strong demand for jet, both dull and cut, and in beads and collars. Bright jet collars have brilliant slides. Bead designs worked upon velvet ribbon are showing, and there are slides that sell by the set to wear on a ribbon also. Delicate chains with festoons and pendants in the "new art" style in fire gold, green gold, bronze gold, silver and gun-metal and set with mock jewels are shown.

The continuance of the vogue of the short sleeve is resulting in a revival of the fashion of wearing bracelets. Bracelets commenced to sell in the big department stores during the holiday season, and have continued to do so during the past few months. Now that the time of the year is coming when the arm will be in evidence, bracelets are sure to be extensively worn. The fancy jewelry houses are showing a big line in rolled plate silver and jet. The glove bracelet is a useful novelty that it will pay to stock. It is flexible, and when pushed into place a nip from the hand secures it, and prevents the long glove from slipping down.

Beauty pins are indispensable to my lady's toilet now, and are stocked in big variety. The latest addition to the pin line is the veil pin. This is a long bar or safety pin set with fancy stones, and is used to pin the folds of the veil to the hair at the back. Combs continue to be a leading and profitable line. The tendency is towards the adoption of the Empire style of hair-dressing, with the one large comb at the back. There are many women, who are slow to change, and these will still buy the sets of three—at least for some time yet. The combing of the hair straight up at the back has led to a call for barrettes, and fancy pins are also good sellers.

Mounted effects have been relegated to the lower priced lines, but are selling well there. Jewel-studded combs, barrettes, pins, etc., are greatly favored, but the novelty in studded effects is steel. Cut steel is selling for the high-priced trade, and excellent imitations are shown in the popular-priced lines. There is a fine line of these goods put on the market by a Canadian manufacturer in a large assortment of handsome styles, and in designs specially adapted to the Canadian market.

Hat pins are another jewelry line that is worthy of the closest attention. This year they must match the hat, and this fact properly exploited ought to be a very profitable item in this department, as it must lead to an immense sale. The style idea is the ball head and the bigger the size the better. Porcelaine, decorated in floral and pompadour effects, is having an immense vogue, from the fact that each pin can be selected to match the fancy Dresden ribbons so much used. Shell, pearl, amber, and enamelled effects in all colors and shades are decidedly good. Jet is also a big seller in dull and in bright effects.

* * *

Novelties in hand and carriage bags are numerous, long shapes in beaded effects in every conceivable color being still in the running. Steel, gilt, and nickel bags in prices ranging from $4 to $48 per dozen, and with purses to match from $2 to $4 per dozen are good property.

Leather bags are coming into high favor, particularly in fancy leathers, such as alligator, etc. The latest novelty is the bag with the strap handle and the concealed frame. The frame and clasp are hidden by the side of the bag, which, apparently, has no fastening. The majority of these new bags have a small ticket purse attached to the side, and also are furnished with a bevelled glass mirror underneath.

A dainty novelty for the Christmas trade is an opera bag of kid. The bottom part of the bag is shaped to hold the opera glass, and there is a convenient mirror set into it. Above the space given to the glasses is room for the handkerchief, etc., and the soft kid draws together with silk cords run through ivory rings. This bag is particularly dainty in white, but comes in a variety of other colors. Silk bags with the spring and chain top are again selling.

* * *

Belt lines are immensely varied, the Summer belt of course being that of embroidered washing material. The

As usual, the

LEATHER BELTS

MADE BY

JULIAN SALE

are the most striking for 1907, and that means—easy to sell.

The Julian Sale
Leather Goods Co., Limited
105 KING ST. WEST, TORONTO

HIGH-CLASS LINENS

Gold Medal Brand

MANUFACTURED BY

Wm. Liddell & Co., Limited

BELFAST

How to increase your Linen Sales.

HAVE AN EXHIBIT IN YOUR TOWN

Write for Particulars and Illustrated Catalogue.

R. H. COSBIE

30 W. Wellington Street, - TORONTO

IRISH LINEN AGENCY.

high front is new, but possibly it will be Fall before it is fully established in this market. At any rate the buckles brought out for Fall show the high buckle in overwhelming variety. Elastics are decidedly in evidence, and lines are very varied, and include Dresden patterns, steel studded effects, and tinsels. Leathers are strong and in big variety, and steel studding and buckles are much seen.

* * *

To the merchant who is in search of a novel attraction for his fancy goods section the suggestion is made that he install a Japanese department. It will not be expensive to do this, as there are so many useful and attractive articles available. Prices as a rule are very reasonable, and with a little management this department could be made a decided success. Paper fans, lanterns, umbrellas, etc., could be freely used as a decoration, and if the dates of private lawn parties and church garden parties were watched for and estimates for decorations put in, quite a nice amount of business could be done. A good deal of advertising could be gotten out of it as well. Japanese china is quaint and cheap and always commands a ready sale. In the picnic and traveling season, baskets and suit cases made of reed, bamboo, fancy straw, cane, etc., are very good sellers. They come in numerous shapes, some with folding top, and others with folding sides in club shape. The natural color is the big seller, but there is a better tendency observed for other shades and colorings. Compared with last year prices show an advance of about 10 per cent., but this has made little difference to the trade, and orders are coming in freely.

A very large range of small baskets is being shown, made of decorated straw, bamboo, etc. The styles are elaborate and every conceivable shape and shade is shown. Prices at retail run on an everage-sized basket from 5c. up, and the line is an excellent profit bringer.

There is a large showing of suit cases manufactured from straw, bamboo, cane, etc., very neatly finished on strong frames, with leather corners and binding, and some fitted with lock and key, and others with straps. Prices at retail run from $1 to as high as $8 and $10.

A very large range of silk fans is being shown at the present time, many of these being hand-painted in beautiful designs, even those selling as low as 10c. each or as high as 35c. They furnish a very large profit to the retailer.

Retailers would find it to their advantage to look over the large range of lacquered goods, now being shown for Fall and holiday trade. These lines consist of trays of all styles and prices, crumb and bread trays, brushes and fancy boxes suitable for ties, handkerchiefs and gloves.

* * *

Many of the larger dry goods stores are stocking large quantities of picture postal cards, which not only are profitable, but also serve to attract customers, and in numerous cases other sales result. The business is increasing at an enormous rate, and many new firms are constantly appearing, while the older established factories are taxed to meet the demand. Lines in souvenir postal cards selling the best are local cards, such as views of prominent buildings, and localities, etc., and these cards can be bought for a very small sum. Post card albums continue in steady demand, partly on account of the ever increasing sales of the cards. Very nice albums can be bought from the jobbers from 75c. to $21 per dozen. Those with padded covers are having very good sales at the present time.

Paris Fashions

By A. E. DACAM, for "Dry Goods Review."

Public to be Educated Regarding the Evolution of Costumes—Favored Styles at the Present Time—A New Glove.

Paris, even in these early days of Spring, bathed in glorious sunshine, spells Fashion, multiplied by experience. Buyers from all parts of the world are here and they cannot remain indifferent to the problem of how and with what passion the Paris couturier studies his art. The creation of any novelty for "La Dame Elegante" requires much thought and time, and the Bibliotique National is a sure retreat to many a perplexed man for there one finds engravings and fashion plates of many generations, and so it is that the novelty is nothing but an evolution of an old idea, always based on what has been done before. A new branch of the Musee des Arts Decoratif is being organized, which will be a Musee du Costume. Monsieur Maurice Maindron, a well-known "archeologue," has undertaken to carry out the idea and he says the intention of the organizers is to represent before the public the history and evolution of costumes during the different centuries—not only French, but European. He adds that such objects as boots and shoes, hats, canes, umbrellas, purses, hair combs and ornaments, etc., will also be included. The society, which begins very modestly, is hoping soon to be enriched by a grant from the Government or the Ville de Paris.

* * *

In tailor gowns this season particular attention is called to the striped cloths which are being freely used and bought. As is always the case, the season opens with short coats, this year reaching to just below the hips, and demi-sacque, but long redingotes and a good imitation of a man's cutaway, both short-waisted, are likely to be much worn before the hot weather makes them impossible. Boleros, too, will do more than hold their own. They are quite short, showing the waist line underneath and fall a little away from the figure, being open in front over a soft shirt, or, as is more often the case, a fancy vest. A good model in this style is represented in the first sketch. The stripes are fairly wide apart (by the way, these stripes vary much in width, but the majority will be narrower, rather than wider, than this model) grey and white, ornamented with different widths of black silk tresse, and trimmed down the front with grey galon. The short vest is of pervenche blue cloth over a point d'esprit blouse; the belt is of draped taffetas, and the rather full sleeves are finished just below the elbow by a straight cuff.

* * *

Another style which will be much in vogue all through the Summer is the short shoulder cape. This, when carried out with two or three small capes round the neck, a full flounce forming an elbow-length sleeve, and with points of the garment descending nearly to the waist, at both back and front, is really smart and most useful. Then there are the capes that merge into boleros, as in the second sketch. The cape is cut in one piece and is naturally without shoulder seams. Edged with black satin biais, the same idea of trimming is carried out at the back as in front. The band, en biais, which forms the bolero, is fastened to the lining. Lace corsage with short puff sleeves, the cuff terminated by black satin. Although the corselet skirts have run their course as a novelty, evolutions of them will still be seen with these short capes. This model shows the skirt with the corselet carried up at the back and front only, while the waist is draped with a scarf of black satin.

* * *

Of the long jackets the cutaway is, perhaps, the newest, and a novel idea is to have the collar reaching to the waist. A fancy model carried out in Irish guipure over a spotted taffeta waist (blue spots on white ground) is made with a long roll collar, which, being cut "en biais," falls in waves from the neck to the waist where the skirt of the jacket commences. The waistcoat is a cross-over, but made to button, and not as has been usual, to hook, thus ensuring the wearer against torn ends of lace. The skirt is very long, made up over a taffeta lining and being held out round the hem by innumerable frills of pleated mousseline. The waist-belt, worn over the jacket, is of white kid, surmounted by a floral design carried out in silk and turquoises. The short-waisted model sketched is in violet passe cloth, heavily ornamented with deep bands of embroidery carried out in black over a faded cherry tinted velvet, with black silk galon falling from the waist at back and in front. The bodice part is made rather full, being pleated both into the shoulder seam and into the belt. The fancy vest and collar are composed of white lace and tulle.

Sketch No. 1.

Traveling coats to-day are so perfected that a smart appearance is quite as essential as comfort and the style must suit the character of the material. A plain cloth is strapped and squarely built, looking tailor-made, while a fancy material mixes well with velvet and braid stitchings.

* * *

Blouses and shirtwaists are profusely trimmed and white cross-over walking blouses are much embellished with lace; lace, of course, is the keynote of all these garments. It will probably be a record season for the lace manufacturers and never have so many fine imitations been seen on the market. Marriages of different laces will be seen more often than not, and they will be made up into entire blouses, short boleros or zouaves, yokes and fronts, or be employed as entredeux and trimming. It is to be remarked this season that blouses are more trimmed at the back than formerly. A white washing nainsook, hand embroidered, ornamented with entredeux of Valenciennes and narrow tucks round the yoke, will have all the upper part of this trimming repeated at the back. The great majority of washing blouses are in nainsook, but for more dressy occasions they are made in crepe-de-chine, voile-de-soie, guipure and entredeux, taffetas, both striped and ecossais, paillette, and any kind of heavy lace.

Cloth Costume, "Blue Transatlantique." Cape Bolero Without Shoulder Seams and Biais of Black Satin. Silk Blouse.

* * *

Even parasols are likely to follow the fashion of stripes this year; in any case a great number of them are being put on the market. They include all widths, but incline to wideness. A striped gauze with wide lines is very effective, and a black and white stripe has the black stripe framed by very narrow white satin lines. A pale blue gauze has the stripe embellished by a wider satin stripe. All parasols made of gauze, muslin or lace are lined with a thin silk to hide the ribs, which is quite an old fashion revived. Embroidery is much used for decorating silk covers—flowers embroidered in colors or white on white and generally in a large, bold design. Frilled and flounced parasols, which are dreams of beauty, but very fragile, are the "dernier-cri." A plain silk cover falling over the edge and scalloped all round is also a good model. The most correct handle is a small gold or crystal knob or one of rosewood, ornamented with a slight design in jewels. The little Marquise parasol, which was used to a very limited extent last year, is now predicted a greater popularity, as, folding at the top and in the middle, it is convenient for touring, and can be held up when motoring without fear of blinding Short-Waisted Redingote in Violet Passé Cloth; Black Silk Embroidery over Faded Cherry Velvet.

the chauffeur. These small covers are generally carried out in black or white and of lace or taffetas frills.

* * *

Another novelty this year is the glove with invisible fastening, brought out by a large "Maison de nouveaute," the "Printemps." The appearance of these gloves is very smart, no part of the palm or wrist being seen as the two edges just meet.

A. E. DACAM.

Buyers of Millinery Goods

WE ARE SOLE MANUFACTURERS OF THE "ORB"
BRAND
HATS

The "ORB" straw factory at Luton is The Largest in the World

In Staple and Fancy Lines we show the best of everything at prices that are sure to interest Canadian buyers.

SAMPLES SHIPPED to the retail trade on supplying usual trade references, description and quality of goods open for.

Will find it to their advantage to make our acquaintance and see what we are offering in

Millinery, Flowers, Feathers
Ribbons, Velvets, Ornaments

We specialize in

MEN'S and BOYS' STRAW HATS
BOYS' JACK TARS
and LADIES' PARIS FASHIONS
in Straws, etc.

VYSE, SONS & CO.
LIMITED
76 Wood St., LONDON, ENG.
LUTON, PARIS AND BRUSSELS

BUSINESS NOTES

ONTARIO.

E. Watson, general store, Rutherford ; sold out.

Geo. E. King, general store, Wingham ; deceased.

Alex. Macdonald, dry goods, Stratford ; sold out.

Joseph H. Saddington, general store, Mull ; burnt out.

Robert Botting, general store, Charlemont ; sold out.

R. Armstrong, general store, Toronto Junction ; deceased.

A. Beatty, general store, Oxdrift ; sold to James Latimer.

Donald A. McLeod, general store, Vankleek Hill ; deceased.

Chas. E. Hall, dry goods, Dunnville ; succeeded by Schier Bros.

J. G. Watts, general store, Walsh ; succeeded by Turvey Bros.

Ault Bros., Ltd., general store, Aultsville ; A. E. Ault, deceased.

Ault Bros., Ltd., general store, Aultsville ; A. E. Ault, deceased.

Black & Fowler, general store, Callender ; John Black, deceased.

QUEBEC.

Alf. Morin, clothing, Sherbrooke; burnt out.

The Lachute Knitting Co., Chatham Tp.; incorporated.

Denis Freres, dry goods, Valleyfield; burnt out, insured.

Darche & Gervais, general store, Ascot Corner ; dissolved.

J. D. Guay, dry goods, St. Jerome ; stock damaged by fire, insured.

Karley, Teskey & Co., dry goods, Montreal (Westmount) ; dissolved.

P. Barbeau & Co., dry goods, Montreal ; J. O. Gareau, registered.

E. N. Fontaine, general store, St. Bartheleim ; sold to Mrs. F. Morand.

G. B. Morrison, general store, McKee ; deceased, business to be sold.

Mendel Lecker, general store, New Carlisle ; burned out, partially insured.

THE WEST.

Ouralt Bros., general store, Lebret ; dissolved.

A. E. Fremlin, general store, Neepawa ; sold out.

McRorie & McCosh, general store, Souris; dissolving.

Ruttan & Fitzpatrick, general store, Swan Lake; dissolving.

Howard & Miller, general store, Kenton ; sold to M. Hoffman.

Salmo Trading Co., general store, Salmo, B.C. ; incorporated.

Tipling & Belden, general store, Griswold ; sold to Garth Bros.

D. Morosnick, general store, Winnipeg ; sold out to M. Haymon.

Johnson Bros., general store, Rouleau ; succeeded by Moore Bros.

R. Newman, general store, Earl Grey ; succeeded by Albert Schmidt.

The Canadian Millinery Review

The Easter Trade

Copenhagen Blue One of the Leading Colors—An Enormous Flower Season Assured.

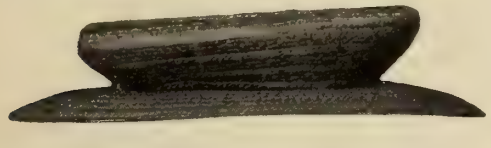
Easter trade, in spite of the fact that the festival fell unusually early, has been particularly active, and the past month has been a very busy one in the importing houses. Later buying developments have further strengthened the tendency manifested at the openings in favor of the new blue—Copenhagen—and this color promises to be a leading one this season. Leather, tans, champagne and burnt shades are growing in favor, rose is good, and amethyst and the mauve shades, particularly with the better trade, are well considered. This is not, however, a one-color season, for almost every color is included in the range, and is more or less worn. There is also a wide choice in materials, and the milliner can work up almost anything this Spring, as it is the manner and effect that counts.

This is decidedly a pressed hat season, though braids are still in evidence; but not one in ten hats seen is made of braid sewn over a shape. When they are used they are put on as smoothly as possible, and the effect tried for is as nearly that of the sewn hat as possible.

Simply trimmed shapes, designated street hats, and trimmed chiefly with ribbons, pins, quills, wings, etc., have had a heavy sale, and this type of hat is taking the place of the ready-to-wear. These hats, milliner-made, can be bought ready for sale from the millinery houses, and are a convenience where only a small workroom staff is kept.

In the straw department the interest manifested in chip is still maintained, and this straw is easily the leading one of the season. Javas are good sellers, and Milans are also among the leaders. Crins will become increasingly popular as the season advances, but there is certainly a feeling manifested for a slightly rougher type of straw, which is probably an indication that will be further followed another Spring.

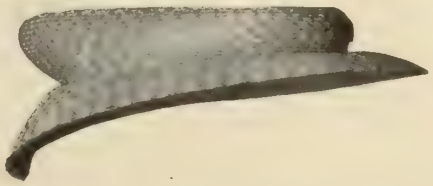
The most striking feature in trimmings is the lavish use of flowers; the hats are simply loaded with them. The rose, as is usual, in a flower season, is a big factor. No one size can be said to have the exclusive field; all are used, from the very large cabbage and beauty rose, with stem, foliage and thorns, to the tiny button and banksia roses. Though they still come in all colors, there is more preference this year for the natural shades, the crimson "Jack" roses being in high favor. Roses, however, do not comprise the full list—daisies, buttercups, cornflowers, heather, cowslips, violets, clover, etc., are all in evidence, and the milliner is combining them with grasses and ferns in bunches and trails, for trimming the mid-season's hat. Yellow, black and white daisies are leading flowers, and small pansies and sweet peas are much used. The use of wisteria is taking hold this season, and ferns, grains and grasses are combined decoratively with all flowers. Fruit is becoming more in evidence as the season progresses. Cherries are good, and so are other small berries, such as currants, and gooseberries; grapes, too, are still worn.



A flower-trimmed hat often carries feathers as a trimming as well. On the street hats, and the less pretentious dress hats, quills and a varied assortment of feather mounts are freely used, but it is the lovely ostrich plumes that form the real feather feature of the season. Plumes are strong with the high-class trade, and will most assuredly become more and more the vogue as the season progresses. The plumes used are rich and handsome, and the fashion is for very long flues. This has brought into prominence the feather with the pieced flues. Particolored and shaded effects are much in evidence, and some of the fashionable feathers show as many as three different colors. Thus a plume will show, intermingled, such colors as brown, Copenhagen blue and green, and pale pastel shades, such as blue, pink and yellow. Pieced plumes come in two colorings—a pink plume will be pieced with brown, or a white one with black. Long plumes are sure to be required, as the season advances, for large picture hats and bonnets are outlined for the Summer trade, and the long plumes will be required to give them the proper lines.

Another important change is in the manner of placing the hat upon the head. It is worn off the face now, set squarely upon the head or slightly tilting back and revealing the hair in front and the high back is giving way to a deep droop. To wear the hat in this fashion the hair must be suitably dressed. It must be full and fluffy in front and the back hair must be combed up straight Empire fashion. Though the brim droops at the back the trimmings still centre at that point and ribbon streamers, feathers, fox-tail plumes, lace scarfs, fancy veils, trails of flowers, etc., are all used as back trimmings on the new hats.

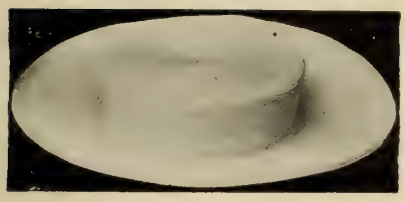
Ribbons, both plain and fancy effects, are indispensable, and yards of the soft, pliable, fashionable ribbons are knotted and bowed into trimmings for the Spring hat. Fancy Dresdens, plaids, stripes, etc., are very much in evidence. A typical ribbon seen lately was a taffeta in black and white check with colored stripes running lengthwise of the ribbon. Copenhagen blue, rose, and Empire green were very attractive, backed up by black and white.



HATS

A good Millinery house must necessarily be a good hat house, and correct hats naturally suggest "McCall's." Being the largest Canadian buyers of Women's, Misses' and Children's Headwear in European, American and Local Markets, we lay claim to be able to correctly gauge the popular tendency. We have a full stock of all the best shapes—many exclusive designs. There is no delay in filling orders.

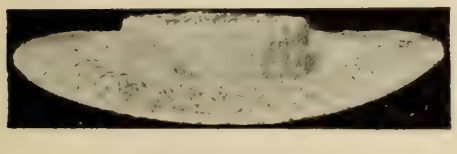
VIOLA



VIOLA—Mushroom Sailor, made of Tuscan Braid. Natural shade only. Can also be had in Jap Rustic in Burnt and White.

SURF

SURF—Droop back, latest Mushroom. Made of Narrow Chip Straw Braid. Colors, Black, White, Champagne, Navy, Pearl, Sky, Pink, Burnt.

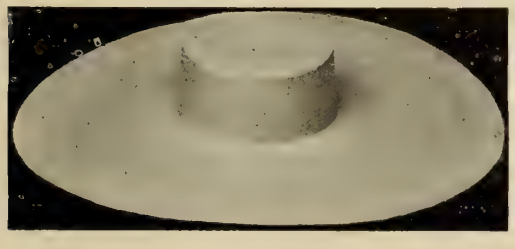


FOAM

FOAM—Patent Milan Sailor, raised back bandeau. White only.

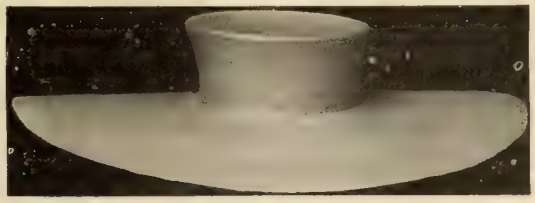
HALCYON

HALCYON—New Crown Fine Milan Sailor. Color, White only.



TEMPLETON

TEMPLETON—Hand-made new Mushroom shape. Colors, Black, White, Sky, Champagne, Reseda, Navy.



No. 926

No. 926—Solid Chiffon Tucked, Side Roll Turban. Colors, White, Navy, Brown, Cardinal.

HARRIET

HARRIET—Staple Crown Leghorn Flop. All prices.

BOWDOIN

BOWDOIN—Belle Crown Flop. All prices.

The D. McCALL CO. Limited, TORONTO

WINNIPEG, OTTAWA, QUEBEC.

Ribbons for Fall

Trade Will Be Good for Fall in Spite of Higher Prices —Fewer Cheap Grades.

Manufacturers are away behind on their orders, and in popular makes, such as failletine and firm taffetas, it will be some time before they level up. Failletines, because they have sufficient substance, are again favored for Fall, as they are particularly suitable for the Winter trade. Shots also promise to be a feature, and because of their warmth of coloring promise to be in demand. Milliners this Summer are making good use of ribbon velvets, and their outlook is very promising for the Fall season. The colors that are coming into prominence for the Fall season are taupe, bois-de-rose, reseda, gobelin, chinchilla, ivy green, navy, brown, myrtle, helio and a new wine shade

Fancy ribbons will be strong, particularly chines. Slightly stiffer bow effects are promised, and better grades of ribbon will be asked for. There will be fewer cheap ribbons on the market, as manufacturers are too fully employed to take orders for very low grades.

Tulles, Chiffons and Nets

Place Orders Now for Tulles to Get Assortments for Fall—Prices on the up Grade.

We would remind our readers again of the high price of all silk fabrics, and would press home the fact that each repeat is sure to be placed only upon a higher basis, and often then with difficulty. This situation has a most important bearing upon tulles, the demand for which is enormous now and promises to continue unabated for the coming Fall.

As there is an immense difficulty in procuring tulles, and as prices are almost sure to be considerably higher, retailers ought in their own interest to come into the market without delay for Fall. This is the only way in which they can be sure of having a full color assortment, and, indeed, of having the goods when needed. By buying early they will also ensure a good margin of profit, as they will not have to pay the later advances that are, in the opinion of the trade, bound to come.

There is an increasing field for the use of chiffon, and in the better trade it is now sold both as a lining material and also for gowns. Nets of all kinds are being used for gowns and for trimming purposes.

The Summer Styles

The White Hat Likely to be Much in Evidence—The New Lingerie Types.

Hats of white, cream or ivory crin, or of fancy straw and tinsel embroidery over white nets and tulles, and hats of pleated tulle, etc., are being prepared for the Summer trade. Lace hats, and those of esprit net, are classed as lingerie hats, but this must not be taken to imply that the hat has any washing qualities. Rather the term is now used to designate a light, airy hat that is not of straw. The lingerie hats shown for the coming Summer are generally large and picturesque, though there are exceptions. They have usually the medium high, or bell crown, and drooping brim. Valenciennes, embroidered batiste, openwork embroidery, princesse lace, baby Irish, Oriental, and esprit and lace nets are all used for these hats. Long scraves of chiffon, edged with lace, are much fancied as a trimming.

A favorite method of developing a lingerie hat, is to sew narrow ruffles of val. or Oriental lace upon the edge of shaped flounces of net or maline and cover both brim and hat with them. Sometimes it is only the brim that is covered, the crown being a large mob of esprit, or sprigged net. When baby Irish or all-over embroidery is used the shape is plainly covered. Shaped pieces in princesse lase are also used for this purpose. An esprit net hat seen has a brim with a ruching of net at the edge, and the rest of the brim covered plainly with the net, encrusted with medallions of Irish lace.

All lingerie hats are elaborately trimmed, chiefly with wreaths and trails of daisies and other field flowers, and also with ribbons, green and brown velvet ribbon being in high favor. One pretty hat seen had a wreath of daisies and cherries combined with moss. Some of the more expensive lace hats are trimmed with rich white plumes, but this seems to lift them out of the lingerie class.

IN A LONDON MILLINERY HOUSE.

Cosmospolitan in every sense of the word is the establishment of Francois & Co., whose show rooms in Wood St., E.C., reflect the millinery ideas of Paris, New York and London. In these three fashion centres Francois & Co. have large houses, and the free and constant interchange of ideas and models results in each house having the latest and the next novelty ready to offer its customers.

The word studio seems almost more applicable than show room to the Wood St. house, for this season's productions are undoubtedly of a more artistic order than any of recent memory. Amongst the materials and in the made-up models one sees everywhere shades and blended colorings, such as an artist would use, and as the principal models this season are exact, or slightly varied, copies of headwear from old pictures, it is evident at once that subdued tones can alone convey the picture impression.

Most fascinating are the large hats modelled on the old ideas again brought to life. In these the mushroom shape predominates, but there is a tendency to turn the brim up from the face, which is shown with most charming effect in a tan chip "De Morny" model by Reboux. Several other illustrations of this were noted in saxe blue and "Ecaille," a new brown coloring that is neither tortoiseshell, cinnamon nor copper, but takes shades from all three. Many of the principal models, while noticeable for great simplicity of trimming, had an effect of backward sweep produced largely by the use of bird of paradise plumes and mounts, or flowing aigrettes of ostrich feathers mounted as osprey and known as "Khedive" plumes.

The absence of decided color in this season's millinery is fully made up for by the abundance of new shades and shadowy tints. Roses and foliage in unnatural coloring are offered in elusive shades of browns, lichens, copper, shell tints and even pure whites.

Francois & Co.'s stock is more a selection than a collection of Spring millinery offerings, and to the connoisseur in millinery it presents many attractions. In all departments there is great activity, which is not to be wondered at in view of the freshness and novelty that pervades every floor.

EASTER AT ATLANTIC CITY

On Account of the Weather the Fashion Parades were not as Splendid as Usual.

Atlantic City, Easter Sunday.

Well, Easter is over, and in spite of all the glowing predictions for fine weather, and the weeks of preparation of fine clothes, the day was a clouded one and the result was that the various Easter fashion parades were not as splendid as formerly. Such a disappointed crowd as thronged the corridors of the Atlantic City hotels! I think it was even worse than having the morning absolutely impossible, for the rain hadn't started to come down and there was that awful uncertainty as to what to do. Not a few ventured forth in gala array, but all carried umbrellas, which somehow spoiled the effect, and, frankly, one saw more cravenettes and "rainy-day hats" than Easter finery. But there is a silver lining, you know, to every cloud, so that the prospect of dressing for dinner at the hotels brightened the women up considerably and gave those who came to see the spectacle some chance to get their "money's worth," if indeed they did not feel as if Saturday night had answered that purpose, for Easter eve was a regular carnival, and all evening the hotels, cafes and other places of amusement were filled with the gayest throngs clad in Spring attire, for the weather was unusually warm.

* * *

Conspicuous among the many colored suits one saw, were those of white serge, broadcloth, or other wool fabrics. Many of these had turn-over collars or other touches of black velvet, and in every instance a note of contrast was given by the hat. A surprisingly large number of leghorns were worn, also thin straws, such as Neapolitan and pyroxyline. Japs, chips and yeddahs were prominent in black and colors, hardly one color predominating, unless, possibly, it might be the natural straw and burnt shades. Greys and blues were prominent, and all shades of apricot and browns and tans. There were, of course, hats of all colors and sizes, and yet mushroom effects so far out-numbered all other shapes that it seems hardly worth while discussing any others. As I have already told you, the new hats are worn very far back on the head. Indeed, it is only by arranging the hair very full at the sides and back that they are at all possible, for so very round and inverted are they that if worn at the usual angle the head would appear completely buried under its load of flowers and feathers, for, naturally, such large shapes necessitate quantities of trimming. Crowns are extremely large and full, many being made of figured net, wide ribbon, silk or lace. Those of straw are in the huge balloon shape—higher and fuller than a tam-o'-shanter, but much on the same order, excepting that the base of the crown is small.

* * *

In millinery circles it has been a matter of much speculation whether these extreme Empire styles would come universally into favor. Even at this early date the usual fate peculiar to all things new and stunning seems to await them. It looks very much as if they would be over-popular, and instead of having a tendency to elevate the fashions of the day, by bringing in distinctive and picturesque effects, the original effect is lost sight of, in fact entirely spoiled, by being taken up by all sorts and conditions of people. It is the same in New York and Philadelphia; I do not refer to my impressions here alone. When worn with the exquisite Empire gowns, which are so lovely when created by an artist, and so unlovely when made by an ordinary dressmaker, the new mushrooms are splendid in their own way. There is something in their favor, namely, their suggestion of youth, for the round frame set well back on a waved coiffure is a charming frame for a fair face and one that brings out its most youthful points.

* * *

Turbans are conspicuously absent, but the ever-popular sailor is well to the fore and very charmingly trimmed, chiefly with breasts and wings, but not infrequently with flowers. Sailors, too, are worn well off the face, which gives them an entirely new effect. They are trimmed either directly in the front or at the back, and hardly ever are higher at one side than another. Milan is the favorite straw for the tailored hat, and, in consequence, as I understand in the trade, difficult to get in sufficient quantities to supply the demand.

* * *

Instead of photographs of special models I am sending you an excellent photograph of the board walk to give you an idea what a vastly important event the Easter parade is, for its influence is felt in far-away as well as near-by cities, since people from all over the United States and Canada flock to Atlantic City for the event.

* * *

In New York, the week preceding Easter, Spring toilettes were a necessity owing to the unusually warm weather. The smart street suit is the first to make its appearance, and the majority of these are made with decidedly short skirts, pleated or circular as the case may be, but all fitting snuggly over the hips. As to coats, they are various, the majority reaching about to the hip and being semi-fitted. Taffeta coats are very strong and are worn with skirts of thin or rather heavy material. The trend seems decidedly toward materials which are not transparent; such, for instance, as voiles. I mean, of course, for street wear, for gowns for dressy occasions are fashioned from such materials as are soft and clinging, and that will show a faint suggestion of the under-lining, which, if the material is plain, may be of a pronounced design. For such effects wide stripes in Easter Sunday at Atlantic City.

DEBENHAMS

THE HOUSE FOR STANDARD MAKES OF RIBBONS AND SILKS

DEBENHAMS FOR NOVELTIES

We shall exhibit a splendid assortment of

Latest Model Hats

Novelties in Special Materials

FOR SUMMER WEAR

For sorting we have what you want, when you want it—such as Crinoline Braids Flowers

Chiffons Feathers
Tulles Ribbons

In the latest and most popular shades.

Inspection Invited. Filling Letter Orders a Specialty.

SUMMER OPENING

April 22

and following days

LATEST MODEL HATS

DEBENHAMS FOR NOVELTIES

DEBENHAMS (Canada) LIMITED

Ottawa, 111 Sparks St. MONTREAL Quebec, 70 St. Joseph

DEBENHAM & CO. { London (West), Paris, New York, Melbourne, Cape Town.
London (City), Brussels, Boston, Sydney, Johannesburg.

strongly contrasted colors, or prominent plaids, are used. When veiled with a light-weight cloth of silk and wool texture, or with chiffon or kindred stuffs, the effect is novel and charming.

* * *

In spite of all talk to the contrary, sleeves which reach just to the elbow continue in vogue. Consequently the glove manufacturer is smiling and the retailer is on the anxious seat, since here again the problem of supply and demand must be taken into careful consideration. Glace gloves continue in first place, but the demand for suedes in colors (not black) is increasing. Silk gloves are scarce, and, of course, the demand will be enormous.

* * *

A word anent the separate waist. The trend seems to be toward less elaborate effects. Batiste and the finer materials are used, but there is more hand embroidery and less of lace inserting. A conspicuous model has a box pleat down the front, finished at either side by a fluting of lace-edged material, the same trimming extending round the sleeve, at the elbow. Nuns' tucks are fashionable and the rather ugly fashion of wearing stiffly starched collars with a lingerie blouse is in vogue. With the severe linen waists the stiff collar is always in good style, but worn with the sheer fancy waist the fashion seems hardly in good taste.

* * *

A perfect craze for tan footwear has seized upon us. The hosiery departments are kept busy trying to supply a record-breaking demand for tan hosiery, since almost every woman in New York has taken to wearing tan shoes, no matter what the color of the gown may be. Pumps are the most fashionable thing, and there are several pretty models in the laced and buttoned tie. Some of the most effective have suede tops. Naturally the shoes make tan hosiery a necessity. Sheer silk effects, plain or embroidered, are the handsomest hosiery offerings, and then come many beautiful lisle stockings, embroidered or plain as one may fancy. There is scarcely any demand for open-work effects in either tans or blacks. It would be impossible to dwell too strongly on this new fad, that of tan footwear, for it is something altogether new, since heretofore tan shoes have been considered correct only for midsummer wear, and then not for the dressiest occasions.

* * *

There is an enormous demand for plain and figured net waists in white and ecru, so much so that these materials are difficult to obtain, and have gone up considerably in price. All-over lace waists are also in demand. Princesse lace is the most fashionable for millinery and for trimming purposes. German valenciennes is used for inserting in preference to the French val., which has so many cheap imitations.

Sleeves, they say, are "the barometer of fashion." Certainly sleeves change in shape and size more frequently than any other part of a gown. The newest is the kimona sleeve, with which an under-sleeve is a necessity. In my next letter I will go more fully into detail.

NELLIE GUNN M'CLELLAND.

OUR LONDON LETTER

The Year's Trade Marked with Splendid Success—The Making of Chiffon Introduced into Nottingham — The Various Markets.

The reports of the annual meetings of the large limited companies connected with the trade, taken as a whole, reflect the decided improvement that has taken place in the nation's commercial progress during the past year. At the meeting of shareholders of the Bradford Dyers' Association, reference was made at length, to the increase being made in the company's capital, by the creation of additional ordinary and preference shares, to the number of 1,000,000 in each class, making the total authorized capital of the company £5,000,000. The net profit for the year amounted to £358,187, an increase of £23,327 over the preceding year, and the dividend on the preference shares has been increased by £16,327, and will have £8,400 added to it during the present year. In concluding his speech the chairman directed the shareholders' attention to the fact that the company are equipping their plant for the handling of different branches of the Manchester trade, and that tenders had been already let for the laying down of a large plant at Salford. At a meeting of the directors of S. Courtauld & Co., the net profit was set at £23,237 and a dividend of 6 per cent. was declared upon all ordinary shares free from income tax. Redfern's are paying 6 per cent. on preference shares for the past six months. D. H. Evans & Co., are paying a final dividend of 7½ per cent., making in all a dividend of 22½ per cent. for the year on ordinary shares and £10 for the year on founders' shares. In almost every other instance also the year's trading has been marked with success.

The Spring trading has, so far, come up to anticipations, and the activity, combined with prevailing market conditions, is responsible for an increasing firmness in many lines of goods, an increase that must make itself felt before the Autumn season advances far. Silken fabrics are becoming more popular, and the crop reports from the producing centres are being watched with much interest now. But even though the crop be a large one the demand is so great that it could only make a fractional difference in prices.

BRADFORD.

Not only does the manufacturer see the end of his requirements for the present Spring season, but also a large proportion of the wool clip is either in the market or in sight. The quantity of wool to be offered at the March series of sales is unusually small. This is accounted for by the large quantity that has gone direct to the consumer, or has been purchased for other industrial centres, at the source of supply. Values, in Bradfard, show a distinctly hardening character, and the competition at the sales will be keen.

Cross-bred worsted yarns are in heavy demand, chiefly for the continental trade. Prices of these yarns have been on the up grade since the beginning of the year, but this has had no effect on the demand, as users are fully employed and evidently do not anticipate any break in prices, in the near future.

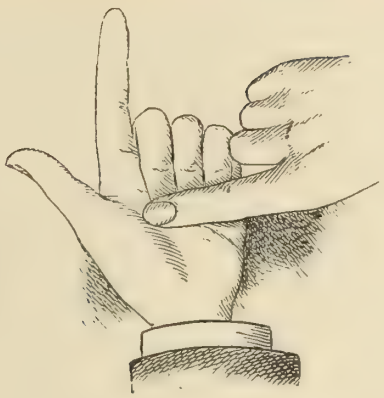
Though the better qualities of silver grey tweeds are still selling, their vogue is evidently passing with the million, and the big run for the Spring trade has been upon plain dyed cloths of the amazon and Venetian class, in the producing, dying and finishing of which Bradford has made great strides. Voiles have been quite a feature, and the makers here have had great success with mercerized novelties.

NOTTINGHAM.

The most interesting news, for many a long day, from this centre is that the making of chiffon has been introduced, as a new industry. Chiffon is largely used in some branches of the Nottingham trade, and though not strictly a lace, or a net, its manufacture is closely allied to that of tulles. Lyons has all along held practically a monopoly of the making of this fabric, but Nottingham is going to make an attempt to gain a share of the business. E. Lacharrierre & Cie, of Lyons, have introduced special machinery for this industry, and are now producing chiffons in a factory on Queen's Road. Special machinery for dressing has been put down by the lace dressing firm of W. E. & F. Dobson. It is to be hoped that the new enterprise will meet with the success its promoters deserve, and that the making of chiffon will remain permanently as one of the town's industries. That there is a special opportunity will be seen when the statement that the value of the Lyons output last year exceeded £4,000,000 is considered.

There is some little easing off in the lace situation now that the bulk of the season's shipments to the United States have been made, but there are still plenty of orders around. The scarcity of cotton yarn is a big trouble in the trade, particularly with the smaller manufacturers. Canada has been a generous buyer of Nottingham goods this season.

MANCHESTER.



Business conditions are generally healthy, but labor troubles are threatening in some localities. A source of trouble also is the poor quality of much of the present season's cotton crop. Stocks of yarn are low, at most mills, and the finer counts are not easy to secure for early delivery. Prices continue at a high level, but in spite of this business is good, and where anything like an early delivery can be made, there is no difficulty experienced in securing the highest rates.

The next Congress of Cotton Spinners of the World will be held in Vienna, in May, and Manchester will be well represented there.

BELFAST.

There is not much change in the linen market. Flax is in good supply, and prices are fair and steady. Rates for yarns continue very firm, and there is no prospect of any change in values. Manufacturers do not care to take more orders at present, as they are engaged a long way ahead. The home trade in linens is not quite so good, but the export trade is very large.

It is estimated that the silk industry of the United States gives employment to 79,600 operatives and represents a capital of $109,556,621.

We want to emphasize one fact in connection with our Fall line of Printed Cottons.

Order Canadian Goods

The right kind—and give that order early.

This is of the utmost importance to every retailer.

Be sure your stock will have a good representation of these wrapperettes :

Magog Indigo
Prunella
Empire Twill

TEXTILE
DOMINION
CO·LTD·

STAPLES AND RAW MATERIALS

Continued Slow Deliveries — Buy Early for Fall.

As far as immediate business is concerned at wholesale the scarcity of desirable cottons is still apparent. Retailers are glad to have their back orders filled with almost any substitute. Jobbers are practically in the same position, and, failing to obtain adequate supplies in Canada, have tried the States and England, many times without avail. The world's demand for cottons is enormous and has over-taxed the capacity of all mills. Canadian mills have been delivering contract goods at prices below market value. This should add considerably to their reputation and credit, as there are many temptations to do otherwise.

With manufacturers, print and gingham trade for Spring is a matter of history. At the present time the market is short of goods and there are no jobs to be had. The higher price lists for Fall have served to boom Spring business in white and grey cottons, sheetings, flannelettes and wrapperettes. The exceptional demand for goods, coupled with prospects for a strong raw material market, indicate no relief during the coming months.

Opening of Fall Trade.

Last month jobbers were busy contracting for all lines of Fall cotton requirements and Canadian mills are rapidly sending forward their samples. Before this month is out retailers will be called upon to settle the Fall buying problem. Higher prices must be confronted in nearly all lines, and in order to secure goods no hesitancy should be shown in placing liberal orders. Jobbers have pursued the same policy as a result of poor Spring deliveries. The higher cotton level is justified by demand exceeding supply, with every evidence of continuing so, the strength of the staple itself, increased wages in all mills, and the higher cost of all ingredients.

Heavy Wrapperette Orders.

Jobbers have been quick to recognize the values in the Fall price list of the Textile Co., and the listed lines of wrapperettes have been ordered heavily. Wages have gone up 10 per cent. in these mills and another 10 per cent. will be granted May 1. Buyers for wholesale concerns also speak of the increased cost of dyes, metals, leather, coal and everything in connection with manufacture, so that the new price list is considered fair in every respect. Imported goods will be bought in small quantities from the United States, England and Germany this season. A few exclusive lines, where price is not a consideration, will be shown by jobbers.

The enormous range of patterns shown by the Textile Co. have pleased the jobbing trade. There is also a feeling that colors on wrapperettes are going to be as good and bright as print colors. Orders have been well placed by jobbers, and the fact that no bulk orders are accepted by the Textile Co. is a good criterion of the strength of the situation. Jobbers have specified patterns in every case.

Downettes, the low line at 8c., will, of course, be a seller, but, as might be expected, the cloth is not equal to value of years ago at the price. It is light in weight but looks well and will be represented in all jobbers' lines. Velour, fancy and royal waist cloths at 9c. should be ordered heavily. Considering the situation broadly, they are exceptional values. One of the new lines is Magog Indigo, at 10c., about the same cloth as velour fancy, only colors are absolutely fast. This line is destined to become a leader, and will be featured by more than one house. Over one year ago there is only a ½c. advance in kimona cloth, and naturally jobbers have been quick to appreciate its value. The higher class lines have been ordered by jobbers more than ever. Retailers will find plenty of exclusive patterns to choose from.

The new price lists have caused an activity in wrapperette lines now in jobbers hands. Regarding the Fall delivery problem authorities in the trade think the Textile Co. will have trouble as they did with the Spring prints. The moral—order early—is obvious.

Higher Flannelette Prices.

While flannelette lines are not listed, the advance to the retail trade for Fall is in about the same proportion as wrapperettes. The two large Canadian mills making these lines are already crowded with orders, and jobbers are not very sanguine about early deliveries. Sales will only be limited to the ability of the mills to turn out the goods. Many lines have been strengthened for the Fall season, and it is expected still higher prices will be asked during the Fall. There is no limit to the number of bull reports, and no let-up in the situation is in sight. Samples of these lines have been given jobbers and will soon be on the road. Some surprising values will be shown in Saxonies. There is also a decided improvement in patterns of stripped flannelettes.

Staple Cotton Trade.

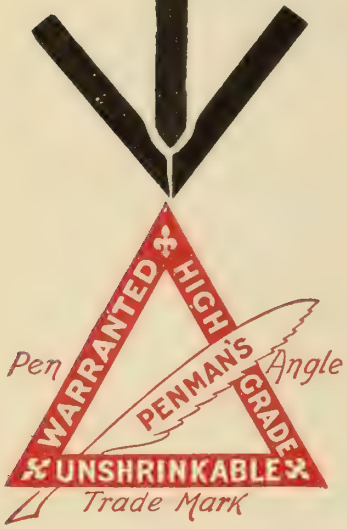
Compared with a year ago, jobbers are forced to pay an advance on practically all lines of white and grey cottons. The tremendous demand for goods, on account of the expansion of the Canadian market, is working the mills to the fullest capacity. The new Fall prices average a rough advance of 7½ per cent. Many lines are short in the trade, although the better class of goods is gradually being delivered more satisfactorily. Retailers should not fail to anticipate requirements where possible.

The Lining Trade.

Following up the withdrawal of prices by manufacturers and jobbers last month, the Montreal Cotton Co. have issued a new list to the trade. Slight advances are noted, and the trade is urged to order early for Fall in order to make sure of requirements. Schreinered and mercerized cloths are still doing the business, and the better lines are in most active demand. In many cases these goods take the place of silk. In smaller centres lining trade remains staple, with a growing demand for such lines as silkoline and peau de soie. These mills are in the same condition as other Canadian manufacturers, and retailers should give orders to jobbers early.

Acute Spring Situation.

The strength of all cotton markets and the scarcity of all lines is clearly shown by the statement of a prominent selling agent. He said that jobbers do not question price to-day; it is simply a matter of getting the goods. He also outlines the expansion of the English cotton industry, where ten million spindles have been added and still the demand cannot be met.



¶ Since your store sells far more cotton fabrics, yard for yard, than any textile you handle, doesn't your store's reputation depend mostly on cottons? Can't you get most advertising value out of cottons? Won't cottons help you best in every department of your business?

¶ Many modern merchants all over Canada think so. They find no line so strong a business-builder as KINGCOT Cottons. Their stores appeal most potently to women simply because KINGCOT Cottons offer more novelties, more value for the price, less price for the value.

¶ These are no mere "commonplace of commerce." KINGCOT Cottons do sell better because they are better cottons,—because the KINGCOT lines include fresher patterns, newer weaves,—because the store that sells them is in step with fashion, and local womankind knows it.

¶ If that could be proved to you, you would be a good KINGCOT customer. Any traveller for any good house carries the samples that will prove it—samples of these lines:

Ginghams	Shirtings
Dress Goods	Oxfords
Apron Ginghams	Denims
Saxonys	Galateas
Flannelettes	Tickings
Domets, Awnings	Cottonades

The Merchant

who retails underwear with our trade mark on it can rely with absolute certainty upon these things:

It will be advertised for him, amply.
It will be warranted to him, wholly.

and

He can sort up his stock, even in mid-season, and be sure of getting exactly what he wants to suit his trade.

The first certainty will get any merchant more trade than he gets now. The second will hold the trade he gets. The third makes it easy for any store to stock right without a chance of overstocking.

This underwear, trade marked in red and advertised so you get the good of it, is made in every style and fabric for either sex of any age. You will find it in the samples of any traveller who visits you from a live house.

Pen-Angle Unshrinkable Underwear

PENMAN'S LIMITED

Of Paris in Canada

Men's Furnisher and Clothier

How to Figure Profits

There is no doubt that many merchants follow an incorrect method in figuring profits and that many failures are due to the fact that merchants figure they are making, say a 20 per cent. profit on a certain article, whereas in reality they are making considerably less. The importance of the frequent turnover is another matter that is not sufficiently understood. Both of these questions are admirably discussed in the following article by J. Malcolm Stewart in "Furniture Journal":—

Various letters have been received by the writer for more information on the subject of figuring profits on merchandise. The information desired is on the method of figuring those profits in the way most likely to avoid error, and unconscious losses, with the accompanying disaster that must overtake those groping in the dark. I contended that the only way to arrive at the proper percentage of profit on any commercial transaction was to ascertain what proportion of the sale was, or would be, profit, never attempting to arrange the percentage of gain by adding to the cost, a percentage of that cost, equal to the amount of profit desired, or in other words, in adding 25 cents to a dollar, assuming you are making a profit of 25 per cent.

Of course, we all know that it is difficult to convince every one on any subject, and bring them all to one way of thinking. In a case like the one before me it probably would be the best way out of the difficulty to refer those in search of information to the head of the office in any large wholesale house. A visit to any of these houses would, I think, furnish the seeker after information with plenty of it, all of which would be in favor of my contention. I would much like to see this matter brought before the public at large more forcibly than I ever could hope to do it, for, as one of my correspondents remarks, "It is a matter of the most intense and vital importance to the business world," and I might add, but little understood.

Only a few days ago, an amusing case came under my observation, going to show how poorly armed for business is he who doesn't understand this subject clearly.

A young business man, a plumber, strange as that may seem, was figuring on a contract. His labor and raw material, he figured, would cost him in round figures $500. Wishing to make a profit of 20 per cent. he proceeded to add 20 per cent. to the cost, making his complete bid $600. When he got through I asked him how much profit he would make at that rate if he did a business of $10,000. He answered with a knowing smile and triumphantly, $2,000. I asked him to apply the mode of reasoning by which he had reached that conclusion to the bid before him and see if it would work, and his surprise when he found it wouldn't was great. He had been doing business all along with the idea that adding 20 per cent. to the cost would give him a profit of 20 per cent. on his business.

It is not necessary to state that figuring one of these on the investment, the other on the amount of business, must lead to error. Don't say you understand that and provide for it. What is the use of doing that; why not figure right in the first instance? Try and find any advantage to be gained by figuring the profit on the cost. There is none that I know of. Ask some merchant who figures his profit on the cost the question I asked the plumber and see what answer you will get. A little study will convince any one with any business experience of the justice of my contention.

To figure the profit on any article correctly: Subtract cost from the selling profit, the difference, of course, being the profit. Divide the latter (decimally) by the selling price, and the result will be the true profit; thus: Cost $5, selling price $8, profit $3, and $8 is contained in $3 .375 times, showing a profit of 37½ per cent. For the benefit of those who did not read the former article on this subject, I will repeat the table by which goods can readily be marked at any of the percentages common to business:

To make a profit of 16 2-3 per cent., add 20 per cent. to cost.

To make a profit of 20 per cent., add 25 per cent. to cost.

To make a profit of 25 per cent., add 33 1-3 per cent. to cost.

To make a profit of 33 1-3 per cent., add 50 per cent. to cost.

To make a profit of 50 per cent., add 100 per cent.

The highest profit that really can be made in business is 100 per cent., and this can be done only when you get something for nothing, and having sold it for something, the entire transaction is profit; in all other cases the sale being 100 per cent. and the cost something, the profit is less than 100 per cent. An article costing 10 cents and selling for $1 pays a profit of 90 per cent. of the selling price, 10 per cent. being the cost and 90 per cent. the profit. Figure your profits according to the above table, then try if you can to figure yourself out of anything.

As to the methods of proof submitted by me in these articles from time to time, I have this to say: Captious criticism doesn't amount to anything. The man who is constantly looking for an argument and trying to frame up impossibilities to prove his case only injures himself. I can say for those rules that I recently made an inventory, amounting to over $3,000,000, and consisting of over 10,000 hard extensions, and 1,500 pages of footing. I think I can figure as quickly and correctly as the next man, but I was glad to use those rules, proving any extension or footing I was afraid of by their aid. I was rewarded for my work by a fine present from the general manager, in addition to my regular compensation, he saying at the same time, "I would not believe it possible, but I have had your work carefully examined and have not found a single error." Of course, I was trying to use those rules, not abuse them.

The following table shows the immense advantage of quick sales. It is based on the careers of four $100 bills invested in business for the term of ten years at a profit of 20 per cent., and turned over with their respective profits at various intervals. The difference in earning power is almost incredible, but can be easily verified :—

$100 turned every two years at 20 per cent profit, for ten years	$ 305.18
$100 turned every year, at 20 per cent. profit, for ten years	931.00
$100 turned every six months at 20 per cent. profit, for ten years	10,844.16
$100 turned every three months, at 20 per cent. profit, for ten years	891,752.50

Push Better Shirts

That's Where the Money Lies—Don't Neglect the Stiff Bosoms—The Trade is Brisk.

In conversation with The Review a few days ago a Western Ontario clothier and furnisher spoke of the possibilities for doing a much better class of trade than ever before. "Why," said he, "we seldom used to think of selling many shirts at more than $1.50. Now we find no difficulty in disposing of a $2.50 article. We constantly endeavor to sell better goods in all departments, and the plain is meeting with fine success all round. Where is the man who has believed right along that his trade wouldn't stand more than certain prices? Why, someone else has taken away his best customers, leaving him only the people he has educated to paying only certain prices; his goods cost him considerably more than they did—that is, if he maintains the same quality—and he is in a poor position to advance his figures, consequently his profits must be shortened. If he buys cheaper qualities at the old prices, with the object of keeping up his old margin of profit, he is sure to encounter trouble. Thank goodness, I have got clear of such circumstances."

* * *

We were in a Toronto furnishing store recently when a gentleman asked to be shown some shirts. It was still pretty cold weather, and the clerk brought out some of the nicest stiff bosoms in stock first thing. The store has followed the policy of showing them at every opportunity during the Fall and Winter. If every merchant would follow the same course there would be little opposition next Fall to the acceptance of the stiff bosom as the proper shirt for cold weather. Let us help the situation along as much as possible.

* * *

A novelty has been brought out in New York, in the shape of a neglige and stiff bosom combined. The bosom is very little larger than the opening of the waistcoat. It is only from the standpoint of appearance that it has anything to recommend it.

Shirt trade is brisk, and the Summer season promises to be particularly good.

* * *

The medium height fold collar with narrow opening will come into strong demand during the late Spring and Summer. It suits the narrower width in neckwear much better than the wing, and then bows will be quite popular also.

Neckwear

Brown Has Been Prominent in Displays—Reds, Greens and Greys Among Most Popular Colors.

In the Easter neckwear displays of some smart Toronto stores brown, with self-stripe or shot effect, was given a place of prominence, but we have not heard that the public took to it very readily. It is attractive all right, but does not fit in well with the present vogue of grey and blue suitings.

* * *

Nearly all the window displays now contain four-in-hands of two and a quarter and two and a half inch widths only, and while a good many three inch widths are worn, and will be for a while, the others are taking hold satisfactorily. One feature that is proving very helpful is the fact that they are being made up with lots of body, so that they may be tied in a nice firm, full knot. We have before now touched on the fact that they require less material, and thus permit of better values than the three inch widths.

* * *

Of all the colors being shown, plain and fancy greys, reds and greens, the latter two in dark shades, are among the most attractive. An effort is being made to push plaids, but we have noticed no great progress along this line.

* * *

The wash neckwear will, of course, run on the narrow widths, and will contain some lines with neat designs and polka or coin dots.

SOME HAT STOCKS NEGLECTED.

We have noticed a decided lack of interest in the men's hat stock in general stores and dry goods stores which cater for men's wear trade. The employes consider a hat is a hat, and the customer who wants one will take the thing that pleases him, no matter what the clerk may have to say about it. With that we cannot agree, for the clerk can have as much influence over the customer in the buying of a hat as in the buying of a suit of clothes or a dress pattern. It should not be as it is, for the goods that go out on men's heads should fit the countenance as well as the head—for the good of the store and the good of the trade that is hoped to be always gained.

That there is a large lack of interest on the part of the clerks we believe to be due to the accessory lack of interest on the part of the bosses. When the hat stock is kept in a pile of cartons away back at one side of the store and it is a Sabbath day's job to look for what is wanted, with no certainty of it being there, is it small wonder that clerks don't take more interest than they do? It is really a misuse of the opportunities offered by men's headwear, an injustice to the store, and what we might call a criminal neglect of the goods in question.

COLOSSUS

Shirts and Overalls

Properly Designed and Carefully Made

SIZE AND FINISH SPECIAL FEATURES

Made in Fine Negligees Working Shirts

Overalls and Smocks

Goods should be in wall cases, where they can not only be easily seen, and help to advertise themselves, but easier to get at as well.

AN ORIGINAL SCHEME.

One of the most original and resultful schemes seen in a long time was that employed last month by an enterprising young firm, designated a "Hidden Hand Sale." Their newspaper ads. and other announcements of this event bore the outline cut of a big hand, the fingers and palm covered with advertising. This in itself was striking enough to secure a reading. The idea was quite clearly explained in the ad., which ran as follows :—

Great Hidden Hand Sale.

"$300 in merchandise to be given away this week at Blank's. Go to Blank's and get a hand with a number on it then find an article with the same number on it, and it is yours. The Hidden Hand : Its possession means an invitation to participate in a grand distribution of gifts free. Thousands of these hidden hands will be distributed. Be sure and get one and see the hundreds of articles to be given away displayed all over our store or in the windows. Each Hidden Hand is numbered. Look all over the store ; if you find an article that corresponds with your number, that article is yours free. The free distribution of gifts to commence Feb. 1 and continue during the week. A sale of wonderful bargains and free gifts. It's unique ; it's fascinating. Come every day."

Each person, on entering the store, was presented, by two clerks who stood near the entrance, with an oddly folded strip of paper. On opening this strip, a picture of a red hand, printed with the above announcement, was disclosed, each hand bearing a different number. The clerks distributing them urged the throng to look all over the store for some article bearing the number corresponding to that on the hand—if not found on the first floor, to look in the basement and the upper floors. All over the store, attached to walls, pillars and shelving, were various articles of merchandise, each bearing a red hand and a number in plain figures. Men, women and children thronged the store every day during the sale, and patiently wandered all over every floor comparing numbers. When anyone was successful in securing a prize the news spread like wildfire through the crowd, and greatly stimulated the hopes of the other searchers. The $300 spent in this way in giving unique publicity to their February sale brought such highly satisfactory returns that the scheme was extended for another week, and still the crowds came with unabated interest.

A GOOD ADVERTISING IDEA.

In order to awaken unusual interest in their Mid-winter sale, one big clothing and furnishing goods firm determined to do "something different." They first thoroughly advertised, in the town and the surrounding country, that at a certain hour on a stated date they would send up, from the roof of their store, twenty-five toy balloons. Each balloon would bear a tag, on which would be written the name of some article of merchandise in their store, these articles ranging in value all the way from a necktie to a suit of clothes or an overcoat. Any person securing one of these balloons, and presenting the card attached at the store during the week of the sale, would be given, absolutely free, the article named thereon. This announcement caused a big sensation, and the vacant space in front of the store was crowded with spectators when the hour for sending up the balloons arrived. Everybody for miles around was on a still hunt for the balloons, and the lottery nature of the prizes added to the interest. Some of the balloons were found at a considerable distance from the store, and a few were never recovered.

WATERPROOFS IN DEMAND.

One of the salient features of the Spring raincoat trade is the demand in smaller towns for the old-fashioned waterproof garments. This trade was ruined by the introduction of cheap garments some years ago, and a revival is taking place for the better class of goods, which are really waterproof and a necessity for men who are out in all kinds of weather. While it is not advisable to stock them heavily the feeling for these goods should be catered to.

Special Order Clothing

One Concern Will Make No More—It Would Damage Ready-to-Wear Trade.

The special order departments of most of the clothing manufactories have grown very rapidly, with every prospect—if encouraged—of developing a great deal more. But shall they be encouraged? One concern that we know of has dropped the department altogether, after working up a very brisk business; in fact, orders became so heavy that it was feared the ready-to-wear trade would suffer. That is the branch in which the money lies and the one which every manufacturer wants to see progress. Catering strongly to "specials" is bound to to prove a bad policy, and will tend to put farther away the time when ready-to-wear clothing shall take the same position in Canada that it occupies across the line. Under present conditions, too, merchant tailors lose a lot of business.

Suitings for Fall

They Have More "Life" to Them Than Usual—Natural Shoulder Among New Styles Announced.

Fall suitings received by the manufacturers show a good deal more "life" than usual. Fancy blues and greys—some of the latter of fairly light shades—are prominent. Vague checks or stripes appear in most of the materials, which are certainly very attractive.

For Spring there has been a big call for greys, and before Easter some lines were entirely sold out, with no prospect of getting any repeats on them. One big clothing house was utterly unable to supply the demand for certain greys in their special order department. Blues are in strong position also. Other colors are thrown pretty well into the background for the time being.

Public favor still clings tenaciously to the long coat more or less form-fitting. It is a dressy garment and a change back to moderate length and plain "boxy" effect will have to come gradually. The pressed side seams are still used, but the vent has gone. To make this latter condition possible the coat, particularly the "skirt," must be more roomy. The popular coat has three buttons, fairly long lapels and breast pocket. The waistcoat has long opening, three buttons, and the bottom cut to form a deep inverted V. The trousers fit snug around the hips, but are semi-pegtop otherwise.

The most conspicuous feature of the styles already announced for Fall is the return to the natural shoulder for both under coats and overcoats. Dame Fashion is putting her mark of disapproval on the broad shoulder effect, and it is to be relegated to "out of date." So 'tis said, but we cannot altogether agree. Experience has taught that nearly all decided modifications in men's wear must come gradually—they must evolve. To jump suddenly from the broad to the natural shoulder would be too much. In Canada we may take to it, in a degree, a year from now. but hardly before. The padded shoulder has been a very popular style and one which will die hard among the great proportion of people. That the natural shoulder will come back before long we do not doubt, but it will not come with such a rush as has been prophesied.

Of the possibilities of skilful padding in the making of a coat some men have a curious idea. A young fellow, whose figure was anything but of the Adonis type, approached a Toronto tailor with the request that he be "fixed up" and made to "look good," suggesting that his defective points might be hidden by padding. The tailor replied that he could not be expected to do what God himself had not done.

A NOVEL CO-OPERATIVE SYSTEM.

In Boston, Massachusetts, there is a flourishing store, the management of which is conducted on a novel co-operative method allied with a profit-sharing system. The staff are entrusted with the entire control and administration of the business. The owners have just as much

Oxford Homespuns

and

Tweeds

PURE WOOL

OXFORD MANUFACTURING CO.

OXFORD, NOVA SCOTIA Limited

Frank W. Nelles, Selling Agent
301 St. James Street
Montreal, P. Q.

BUYERS OF

RAINPROOFS

Should get those proofed by the 'Cravenette' Co., Ltd.

and stamped

The "Cravenette" Co., Limited, affix their stamp only to such goods as are suitable in quality for Rainproof purposes.

Therefore, this stamp Is a guarantee not only of Rainproof properties, but also of the quality of the material.

DUSTPROOF

AS WELL AS

RAINPROOF

The "Cravenette" Co., Ltd., BRADFORD, Proofers to the trade.

Announcement

Fall and Winter, 1907

A large volume of business at a very small expense is the explanation of our

Fall Line of Men's Suits and Overcoats

Our facilities are large enough to make this step a necessity. You know our reputation in the Raincoat Trade. It will be strengthened when you handle our clothing line.

Our tailors are trained to our exclusive idea of good clothes making. Each workman devotes himself to but one grade of work. All garments are made with the precision and exactness of the best merchant tailors, and the product reaches the highest degree of uniformity. It's most important for you to sell clothing made this way.

And you've the assurance that the quality in the cloths will satisfy and bring your customers back again. We leave it to you to see and judge whether we make "Better clothing for the price than any other manufacturer." Our salesmen are out. Do not delay in making an appointment.

The

Montreal Waterproof Clothing Co.

Limited

MONTREAL

Elite Brand Raincoats

In selling a Raincoat make up your mind you are going to continue to sell to your customers. To do this you must have the right kind of Raincoats. You will have by stocking with

Elite Brand

Cravenette Proofed Raincoats for Ladies and Men.

Many new ideas now being shown for sorting.

The largest and oldest manufacturers of Raincoats in the world.

The Montreal Waterproof Clothing Co.,

MONTREAL

GARBIRNETT

The Great English Cloth for

Waterproof Coats
Motoring
Riding Breeches

A cloth for all whose occupations are outdoors in rain or shine.

Guaranteed Absolutely Waterproof by the "JENNWELL" Process. Made in All Shades.

Sole Makers:

G. Garnett & Sons, Limited
Apperley Bridge,
Near Bradford, - England

Samples and quotations furnished to all jobbers and manufacturers on application to the undersigned.

GEO. S. PLOW & CO., - 232 McGill St., MONTREAL
A. ALEXANDER & CO., - 77 York St., TORONTO

WREYFORD & CO. Romain Building, TORONTO

WHOLESALE MEN'S FURNISHERS

Latest Novelties for High-Class Trade

Dominion Agents for

YOUNG & ROCHESTER, LONDON

Complete ranges for Fall now in hands of our travellers.

Latest Productions in Knitted and Fancy Tattersal Vests

DRESSING GOWNS AND SMOKING JACKETS

Novelties in FABRICS and designs. In NECKWEAR, we receive the latest from London Market 1st of each month.

Tress & Co., London, Eng.

Fall styles in SILK, FELT and TWEED HATS.
TRESS CAPS are in a class by themselves.

Cellular "Aertex" Underwear

The increasing demand for this genuine "Aertex" Underwear has led us to stock the several weights in Undershirts, ordinary and Coat style, Pants, Knee Drawers and United Garments.

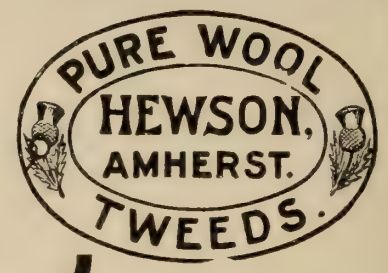
Cooper, Corah & Sons,

St. Margaret's Works, LEICESTER

If you wish to supply your customers with an Underwear, Durable, Comfortably Elastic and at a moderate price, their "Nelson" unshrinkable Ribbed Underwear, fulfils every requisite.

C. C. & Sons are also manufacturers of the popular Motor Scarves in Silk, Wool and Mercerised. Orders for these should be placed early.

Now, for Outing Tweeds!



People know, from our advertising, that Hewson Tweeds are ideal for raincoats, yachting costumes and other outing purposes.

They'll be pleased when you tell them you have them—and the pleasure will be doubled after you wear them.

Therefore, stock these fine, unshrinkable, unspottable, pure-wool Tweeds.

And see our samples of pure-wool Underwear. Heavy weights for next winter.

Hewson Woolen Mills Co., Limited, Amherst, N.S. 98

A COLLAR THAT'S CLEANED LIKE A WINDOW

THAT'S THE BONIFACE

A rub with a damp cloth, a little soap and water, and there you are. A linen collar as spick and span as a freshly laundered one. It saves your customer laundry bills, temper and time and makes him your friend.

Globe Suspender Co., - - Rock Island, P.Q.

J. ALPHONSE OUIMET
8 Notre Dame Street East
MONTREAL

L. O. PAQUETTE
70 Church Street
QUEBEC

THERE'S NOTHING EASIER TO SELL THAN OVERALLS

IF YOU HAVE THE RIGHT KIND. You'll get the Right Kind if your stock includes some of our Fall Lines of Overalls and Working Shirts.

THE ROCK ISLAND OVERALL CO.
ROCK ISLAND, QUE.

Custom Shirt Business

You have customers that stock shirts will not fit or suit. Stout and thin men, particular men, are among the number. You can suit them by getting in touch with our Special Custom Shirt Order Department.

Accurate Fit and Workmanship. Exclusive Patterns.
Measurement Blanks, Samples with full particulars upon request.

The Smith & McKeown Shirt Mfg. Co.
LIMITED
16 COTE ST. - MONTREAL

Persons addressing Advertisers will kindly mention having seen their Advertisement in this paper.

share in the management as a floor-boy, one vote each, and there are no suffragettes, for all the girls and women vote too. It is co-operative, not on the divi-ridden plane, but on the higher level of clanship. The store in which this new constitution has been set up is owned by the William Filene's Sons Company, and deals in clothing, and on those lines is characteristically claimed to be the biggest of its kind in the world. Some dozen years ago it had no more than 25 assistants. When the old order was changed, in 1899, it had grown to 100 employes, but it is now a big branch with between 700 and 800 on its pay-roll. The premises have been enlarged four times, and the stock is turned over "nearly once a month"—two tokens of prosperity that can be readily recognized. If actions speak, results such as these may be said to shout; the principals all the time seem to be shedding their authority, handing over first one and then another of the privileges of their position, and, as most of us would think, parting with the safeguards of their supremacy.

SOME SOUND ADVICE.

Represent all kinds of merchandise correctly, avoiding every species of deception, and be truthful and honest with customers; keep on hand the best goods the community will buy, for good goods will in time help the trade by advertising themselves. Besides, when a man has a good article to offer the public, he can present its good qualities with more sincerity and energy than is possible for him to do with an inferior article. The little things in a store management can never be overlooked with impunity. Neglect nothing that will contribute to the betterment of your store. Watchfulness begets prudence, and prudence, steadfastness.

WINDOW DISPLAY.

The window display is the best advertising medium within the reach of the retailer. Concentrate your attention upon it week by week, and compare the result of one week's display with another. Remember that every man who passes your window is a possible purchaser of your goods. Give them always something new to look at, induce them always to wonder what you are next going to offer them, and finally, when you have succeeded in persuading them to enter your shop, see that you exert every effort in your power to please them and make them permanent customers.

Montreal Removals

Many Firms Changing Quarters—A Number of the More Important New Locations Given.

In Montreal during April of each year the moving season sets in, and the majority of business firms, when anxious for new quarters, are forced to make the change then. More than the ordinary amount of moving is taking place this year, owing to the growth of the Montreal wholesale district, and some of the more important new business locations are given.

The new Mark Fisher Building, Victoria Square, which is practically completed, is causing quite a series of changes. This building is to be occupied in the lower floors by Mark Fisher, Sons & Co., and their old building diagonally opposite will be the new premises of Brophy-Cains, Limited, who will have enlarged quarters, and better facilities than heretofore. As has been stated previously, the W. R. Brock Co. will shortly move across the road into the Brophy-Cains premises and their newly renovated adjoining building. These two large warhouses connected give one of the most imposing buildings in the city, and form a welcome addition to St. Helen St. The old Brock location in St. Helen St. will soon be occupied by Finley, Smith & Co., wholesale woolens, now at the corner of St. Peter and Recollet St. The old quarters of Finley, Smith & Co. are to be used by George H. Hees, Son & Co., whose Montreal premises were destroyed in the recent St. Helen fire. The glove house of Perrin Freres & Co. will soon find permanent quarters on the 6th floor in the new Mark Fisher Building. They are fitting up this floor most elaborately, and every modern convenience for stock and office is being installed. Their temporary quarters in the 3rd floor of the new Desbarats Building on Beaver Hall Hill, secured after the fire in McGill St., will be utilized by the China and Japan Silk Co., Limited. While moving this month the latter are retaining their old location in St. James St., and like many other firms, state that there will be no interference with business. This firm will occupy the entire third floor of the Desbarats Building, which will give them just double their former space. An illustration of the Desbarats Building is given, as this large structure shows the trend of the Montreal wholesale district further north and west. It is on Beaver Hall Hill, a couple of blocks from Victoria Square. Among the fur houses which are changing locations are McComber & Cummings. They will occupy the large building at the corner of St. Sulpice and St. Paul Sts., and will retain their old premises at 516 St. Paul. Swift, Copland & Co., Limited, as already stated, are moving to 318 St. James St. Clement Michaud & Co., 85 St. Peter St., are moving to a substantial building at 496 St. Paul St., corner of St. Peter, joining the numerous fur houses in this street. Guilbault, Desparois & Garneau, 319 St. Paul St., are moving to larger premises at 244 Notre Dame St. west.

Desbarats Building. Third floor to be occupied by China and Japan Silk Co., Ltd.

Office premises in Montreal are at a premium, and there is a lively scramble to secure desirable quarters. New office buildings are planned to relieve the pressure.

MAINLY ABOUT OURSELVES

In an important law suit last month the condition of the Canadian cotton markets during 1905 was brought into question. The authoritative position of The Dry Goods Review was recognized, and one of its editors was called upon to give testimony in this regard.

* * *

"The Review is practical, and of vital importance to every progressive dry goods merchant; in fact, of all the papers that reach us here, it is the only one I like to take home for careful reading."—Mr. Ross, of the print department of the Dominion Textile Company.

* * *

The editor of The Review recently received a communication from a retailer in the Maritime Provinces asking if a prominent manufacturer in Montreal was still in business. The letter went on to say that he had written the firm in question, but had received no reply. Not only did he think this unbusiness-like—if it still existed—but he wanted to know where he could purchase the goods elsewhere.

Canadians could take example from our neighbors to the south in the important matter of answering correspondence and answering it properly. We have often heard favorable comments upon the promptness and politeness with which firms in the United States answer correspondence, even upon trivial matters, and comparison made with the dilatory methods of firms in Canada who fail to answer at all, or are very tardy in doing so.

* * *

"A word about your January number of The Dry Goods Review. We think this a credit to your firm and a great help to the progressive merchant. We trust that we shall have the pleasure of receiving as valuable information during 1907 as during 1906 from your paper."—A. F. Binning, Medicine Hat, Alta.

* * *

"I am a subscriber to both The Review and Canadian Grocer. I have been exceedingly interested in them, and would not be without them. Hoping you will meet with continued success," etc.—Stephen C. Morris, Trinity, Nfld.

Interior Views of W. H. MacBeth's Store at Saskatoon, Sask.

Interior Views of W. H. MacBeth's Store at Saskatoon, Sask.

Housefurnishings and Decorations

With the Canadian carpet manufacturers Spring business shows an increase of about twenty per cent. over last year. Three-quarter piece goods have sold as well as formerly in Brussels, Wilton and tapestries. With the jobbers Spring lines are nearly all in stock by now, and every indication points to a good business, and the same may be said for the retailers.

Deliveries.

Deliveries of domestic goods, generally speaking, have been right up to the standard, and the productions of the mills are sold out up to May. Deliveries of imported lines have not been so good.

Prices Advancing.

Comparing prices of domestic mills with those of last year we find that there has been no increase, but it must be remembered that wools are still advancing. To the jobbers, imported goods are higher, and on jute carpets a further advance of ten per cent. was made recently. Tapestries of the cheaper grades have gone up nearly forty per cent., and Brussels and Axminsters about thirty per cent. For Axminsters selling at $1.25 two years ago, jobbers are now getting $1.65. The advance on the cheaper lines has been 49c. to 80c., and in the best lines 55c. to 80c. Wilton carpeting, which two years ago was 3s. 1d., has advanced to 3s. 10d., and in a better grade the rise has been from 4s. 3d. to 5s. 6d. The standard quality has gone up from 5s. 6d. to 7s., but at the figure very few sales are being made. High-grade Brussels once 3s. 1d. are now 3s. 10d. To retailers prices have advanced about ten per cent., and in view of conditions they should anticipate their requirements and order liberally, for no relief from the present high rates is in sight. Merchants state that many customers have taken the precaution of selecting their carpets and rugs early and having them stored, in expectation of an increase in price.

Repeats at the present time cannot be had at old prices and the public will have to pay from 2c. to 5c. more per yard, and the tendency, even for next Spring, is upward.

Designs, Colorings and Qualities.

The principal colors and designs sold for Spring are greens, in the softer tones and shades, and also cream grounds. Light chintz effects in Axminster, Brussels and Empires, as decorations of the present time, harmonize well with the soft tones and shades in these qualities. There is a better feeling in the trade for wool carpets and squares, and some very good two-tone effects in reds, greens and blues are being shown. They are certainly of attractive appearance, and they give satisfactory wear.

Good Fall Business Expected.

Domestic mills for Fall are bringing out some of the finest lines of three-quarter piece goods in Brussels, Wiltons, Empires and Louis XIV's that they have yet produced, made suitable in designs and colorings for this country. They should do a very large business in all lines as special efforts are being made by all domestic manufacturers to maintain the highest standard. Jobbers and manufacturers' travelers start on the road on or before the 15th of the month, carrying all lines for Fall trade, and as the outlook is very bright deliveries are expected to be in plenty of time.

Novel Proposition Re Ingrains

An Alliance of Philadelphia Manufacturers—Merchant and Mill Man Promised Healthy Profits.

It is proposed that the manufacturers of ingrain carpets in Philadelphia shall join hands in an effort to put new life into the industry. The proposition has been submitted by W. & J. Sloane, of New York, who desire to act as selling agents for the combination, and who have outlined a comprehensive and aggressive selling campaign, to include extensive advertising throughout the whole United States. They state the belief that the business can be made to take its rightful position in the trade and pay to the manufacturers a fair return on the capital and energy employed. One feature of their plan is that every roll of carpet and art square shall bear a ticket containing the guarantee of the associated manufacturers and their selling agents. A combination as proposed would eliminate the fierce competition which has existed; purchases of raw material will be made in large quantities, and, consequently, at better prices; it will save the voluntary retirement of mills whose individual conditions are said to be in low water. The idea is to preserve the mills as individual concerns except in so far as the product would all pass through the same channel, and a representative executive committee would look after the details of the allied manufacturers. The selling agents would distribute the business to the different mills on the basis of percentage that each bears to the whole.

The plan was explained by a representative of W. & J. Sloane at a meeting of mill men, who regarded it favorably. However, final action was postponed, although it may be expected at an early date.

The largest manufacturers in the business consider the proposition the best solution of the problems with which the ingrain manufacturers have been contending, and believe it would bring about much needed improvement in the business. The matter is received by the smaller concerns in exactly the same way, it being regarded as equally favorable to the manufacturer with a

Geo. H. Hees, Son & Co.

Toronto,
52 Bay Street

LIMITED

Montreal,
20 St. Helen Street

N.B. Keep handy our new Catalogues and Color Books

Our new Office and Warehouse, 52 Bay Street, Toronto

Mail Orders Receive Prompt Attention

MANUFACTURERS OF

Window Shades
Curtain Poles
Lace Curtains
Bobbinet Curtains
Lace Door Panels
Furniture Coverings
Tapestry Curtains
Chenille Curtains
Table Covers
Draperies
Silks, Burlaps
Wall Coverings
Plushes
Velours
Upholstery Supplies
Upholstery Hardware

N.B. We sell our goods at a price that affords the Retailer Large Profits.

Geo. H. Hees, Son & Co.

larger or smaller number of looms. The only delay in giving an affirmative answer is the desire to consider the working out of the details of the plan.

WALL PAPER ADVERTISING.

Good stores are paying more attention than ever to the advertising of wall papers, and such a policy must certainly be profitable. Some have even devoted an exclusive ad. to this line occasionally. We note with satisfaction the better tone that pervades their talks to the public, and this comes from a better appreciation of the merits and possibilities of the goods. One ad. that we have picked out at random has an attractive illustration and is headed "Artistic Wall Decorations." Part of the matter following is reproduced:

A characteristic fruit and foliage design in a scroll movement, remarkable for its grace and strength, Shown in various rich color associations which bear closest resemblance to genuine weaves. Manufactured by Stauntons Limiied.

"Spring is at hand, which means that you soon will be brightening up your present home. We have a very nice line of high-grade wall papers, made for those who appreciate the best efforts of clever artists in most elaborate combinations, with which you will be able to match any particular kind of housefurnishings." The heading is excellent; the word "decorations" gives the goods a higher standing in the eyes of the public than would the mere term "wall papers."

DALY & MORIN CATALOGUE.

On account of the many natural colors in the third catalogue of Daly & Morin, Montreal, it is a veritable sample book in itself. It is handsomely gotten up and printed on very heavy stock. It is about 14 x 9 inches, and has a green cover with gold lettering. Some 70 pages are given over to complete illustrations and descriptions of window shades, curtain poles, trimmings, and all accessories. There are numerous pages illustrating the different lace borders, and the price list at the beginning of the book gives the cost at a glance. A copy will be mailed by the firm on application.

A HANDSOME CARPET.

The Kidderminster Shuttle says: "Brintons, Ltd., have just delivered to the order of Waring & Gillow, of Oxford street, London, a handsome hand tufted Axminster carpet, made on their new loom. The carpet is 16½ feet, and is a perfect example, both in design and coloring, of the Louis XVI. period. The ground of the carpet is Rose "Du Barry." The medallion is French gray in ground with roses bunched in centre and a rose festoon. The border consists of trailing roses, and within the edge is a band of olive leaves. The carpet is an exceedingly handsome fabric."

RUGS IN GOOD DEMAND.

The rug trade is ever increasing. Orientals have been much in demand, and the trade are well satisfied with this line, generally speaking. Plain green shades, with very little design, have been accorded a good deal of favor, and very little change in price has been made over last year. Antique Persian rugs are becoming scarce, and prices are accordingly very high. Seamless Axminster squares are still in active demand in the popular priced goods. The Smyrna, a reversible all-wool rug, which is a beautiful imitation of Oriental goods, will stand a lot of hard wear.

AN AUTHORITATIVE VIEW.

A prominent Montreal jobber discussing the recent advances in Canadian and foreign oilcloths and linoleum, spoke as follows: "The advance of Canadian oil cloths and linoleums made on the 20th of March is simply an offset to the increased duty of five per cent. on foreign goods. Scotch and English linoleums average an advance of 20 per cent. to 25 per cent., and with the increased five per cent. duty this means an advance of from one-quarter to one-third on the price of all imported goods. In my opinion a further advance must come on domestic goods, and retailers would do well to cover their needs for the Spring and Fall as far as they can get the goods."

DUTY ON FLOOR OILCLOTHS AND LINOLEUMS.

One of the most recent changes in the tariff, and a change which materially affects the oilcloth and linoleum trade, is the increase in duty last month of five per cent. on oilcloths and linoleums coming into Canada. The new duty became effective at once. This increase is the direct result of the duty of ten per cent. placed on flax seed, which formerly entered free of charge. Linseed oil, the product of flaxseed, immediately scored a sharp advance of ten per cent. As linseed oil enters largely into the manufacture of varnishes, white lead and paints this advance is felt by Canadian manufacturers of oilcloths and linoleums. In order to give Canadian interests a fair protection, the duty on foreign oilcloths and linoleums was advanced as noticed above.

SENT RUGS TO GREAT TOGO.

H. A. Moore, manager the Moore carpet Co., Sherbrooke, Que., has an interesting and prized letter which

DETERMINE
To Fully Satisfy
Every Customer
For
WALL PAPER

If you have not just the Right Goods in stock, give us the particulars and get

Stauntons' Decorative Specialties which will help you make the sale and win for you another pleased customer.

Write us for samples. Be assured of prompt and efficient service.

Look to us for your BURLAPS (Dyed, Plain, Oil Coated,) SANITAS, CHURCH DECORATIONS, LODGE ROOM SPECIALTIES, Etc.

STAUNTONS
Limited
MAKERS OF SUPERIOR WALL PAPERS
TORONTO

DOWN COMFORTERS
COTTON COMFORTERS
BED PILLOWS
WHITE CUSHIONS
COSIES, MUFF BEDS, etc.

PRICE LIST ON APPLICATION
FEATHERS BOUGHT

The Toronto Feather & Down Company, Limited
74 King Street West, - - - TORONTO

a Review representative had a glimpse of recently. As the trade is well aware, this company manufactures "Togo" bath rugs, and Mr. Moore sent two of these to Japan to the great Togo. The following letter was received from the famous naval commander:

H. A. Moore,
Sherbrooke, Que.

Dear Sir,—I have received two of "Togo" bath rugs, manufactured by your company, which you kindly sent me, and am obliged for them.

Yours truly,
H. TOGO.

Oilcloths and Linoleums

Long Expected Advance in Domestic and Foreign Goods —List of Dominion Oilcloth Co.

Last month the low prices on table oilcloths, floor oilcloths and linoleums, which has been maintained notwithstanding the high cost of all materials entering into their manufacture, were revised considerably. English and Scotch manufacturers are settling their troubles and every mail brings news of a readjustment of prices. Before the month is out material advances will undoubtedly take place.

The first inkling of a change in the situation was the new price list on table oilcloths sent out by the Dominion Oilcloth Co.. March 1. These small advances were a direct result of the increased cost of cotton goods. Late in March a new list of floor oilcloths and linoleums was sent out to the trade. The advances made are a direct result of the high rates on jute canvas, linseed oil and white lead. The entire price list of the Dominion Oilcloth Co. is here reproduced:

Linoleum.

Widths.	8-4 Plain.	8-4 Printed.	16-4 Plain.	16-4 Printed.
A quality per square yard	.60	.65	.65	.72
B " "	.50	.55	.55	.62
C " "	.40	.43	.46	.48
D " "	.34	.34	.40	.40
E " "	.28	.28	...	.33

Linoleum Bordered Passage Cloth.

Widths.	2-4	5-8	3-4	4-4	5-4	6-4
A quality per lineal yard	.40	.50	.55	.70	.85	1.00
B " "	.35	.40	.45	.60	.75	.90
C " "	.24	.30	.35	.45	.60	.70
D " "	.20	.25	.30	.38	.50	.60
E " "	17	.21	.25	.32	.42	.50

Floor Oil Cloth.

		Per sq. yd.
No. 1 quality	in widths of 4-4, 5-4, 6-4, 8-4, 10-4	.32
No. 2 "	" 4-4, 5-4, 6-4, 8-4, 10-4	.25
No. 3 "	" 4-4, 5-4, 6-4, 8-4, 10-4	.20
Mats or Rugs—No. 2 quality, all sizes.		.30

Canvas Stair Oil Cloth.

Widths.	2-4	5-8	3-4	4-4
Canvas back, per lineal yard	.10½	.13½	.16
Painted back, " "	.12½	.15½	.19	.22

Length of pieces 30 yards.

Shelf Oil Cloth.

	11 in. wide.
Shelf, per piece of 12 yards	.58
" " 24 yards	1.15

Table Oil Cloth.

	5-4	6-4
Fancy Mosaics, per piece of 12 yards	$2.00	$2.90
" Woods. " "	2.00	2.90
White Marbles, " "	2.20	3.10
" Muslin, " "	2.20	3.10
" Muslins, printed, "	2.20	3.10

Cotton Stair Oil Cloth.

	15 in. Wide.	18 in. Wide.
Muslin back, 50 yard pieces	.06	.08
Duck " 40 "	.10	.12

Enameled Oil Cloth.

(In 12 yard pieces.)

	5-4	50 in.	6 4
Muslins
Black, bright (glazed) and dull finish .. per yd.	.19	.21	.25
Black, patent face "	.23	.25
Browns, greens and maroons "	.24	.27	.31
Russet and tan "	.24	.27
Blue, yellow and red "	.31	.35
Scarlet, white and crimson "	.43	.48
White sign cloth "	.19	..	.25
Drills
Black, bright (glazed) and dull finish .. "	.24	.26	.32
Black, patent face "	.27	.29	..
Black, tan back, patent face "	.33	..	..
Black, figured back "	.29	.32	.37
Black, brown back "	.32	.34	.39
Browns, greens and maroons "	.33	.35	.40
Russet and tan "	.33	.35	..
Blue, yellow and red "	.38	.42	..
Scarlet, white and crimson "	.50	.56	..
Ducks, Etc.
Black, bright (glazed) and dull finish .. "	.30	.32	.37
Black, patent face "	.34	.37	..
Black, figured back "	.35	.37	.42
Black, brown back "	.38	.40	.44
Browns, greens and maroons "	.40	.42	.46
Russet and tan "	.40	.42	..
Oiled, for waggon tops (50 yd. pieces) "	..	..	.44
Black moleskin, patent face "	.78	..	..
Black, glazed No. 6 (25 yd. pcs) 50 in. wide "	..	.90	..
Black, " " 8A " 52 " "	..	.75	..

Carriage Floor Oil Cloth.

(In 30 yd. pieces.)

	5-8	3-4	7-8	5 4
No. 2 Quality, per yd	.15	.18	.21	.30
" 3 " "	.12½	.15	..	.25

INCREASED THEIR CAPITAL.

Geo. H. Hees, Son & Co. have increased their paid-up capital from four hundred thousand dollars to six hundred thousand dollars. The increase of capital is needed in their business owing to the great development in their upholstery and lace curtain department, but while they are increasing that part of their business they are by no means neglecting their original business of manufacturing window shades, curtain poles and metal goods.

"WOODS WESTERN."

A Dominion charter has been granted to Woods Western, Limited, Ottawa, with a capital of $500,000, divided into $100 shares. The incorporators were: James W. Woods, manufacturer, Ottawa; Roderick McLennan, manufacturer, Winnipeg; and David N. Finnie, manufacturer; Ernest Linton, manufacturer; and George Coupar Murray, manufacturer, all of the city of Ottawa. The object of the company is to carry on the business of general wholesale manufacturers, merchants, and manufacturers' agents and to deal in dry goods contractors' and lumbermen's supplies, tents, terpaulins, flags and smallwares.

SILK MANUFACTORY IN TORONTO.

A site 150 feet square, at the corner of Eastern Ave. and Carlaw Ave., Toronto, has been purchased by Mons. de Lauzen, of St. Etienne, France, representing a concern which will establish a branch of their silk industry there. Operators and machinery will be sent out at once. The intention is to bring out about seventy-five or more skilled workers from St. Etienne, and further help required will be secured in Toronto.

Tapestry Carpets

There is no more popular carpet on the market to-day than Tapestry.

We make this one of our strong lines, and carry, in our four qualities of King, Harvard, Ellesmere and Dominion,

Exclusive Patterns and Colors — that will hold their own alongside of either Brussels or Velvets.

We carry 5-8 Borders to match all patterns in our "Dominion" quality, so that the trade can have Squares made where necessary in any size.

These are all represented in our "Cut Order Department."

Write for Prices and Samples

THE IMPERIAL CARPET CO.

60 Front Street West LIMITED

TORONTO

KING'S
Established 1775

FAMOUS
Sold by leading jobbers.

SCOTCH
Every piece perfect.

HOLLANDS

Scotch Hollands, for nearly a century and a quarter, have been recognised by the Trade of the world as the most reliable and salable shading made or its non-shrinking qualities durability, coloring, and steadfast dyes. King's name on every piece.

Hollands, of John King & Son, are handled by all the leading houses. Made in all colorings and widths.

They are popular because they are the most effective shading for the money in the market, and dealers can turn them over more quickly than any other.

JOHN KING & SON,

GLASGOW, SCOTLAND.

Sole Selling Agent:

SYDNEY MOSS,

Nordheimer Bldgs., 8 Colborne St., TORONTO

The Moore Carpet Company

LIMITED

SHERBROOKE, QUE.

Manufacturers of High-Grade Carpets and Rugs

Royal Wiltons,
Kashmir Wiltons,
Burmah Wiltons,
Sirdar Wilton Rugs,
Magog Brussels Rugs,
Windsor Brussels,
Balmoral Brussels,
Magog Brussels,
Togo Washable,
Cotton Bath Rugs,

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

Owing to the large demand for High-Grade Wilton Rugs in Carpet Sizes, we have brought out a large range of Oriental designs in a heavy three-shoot Wilton fabric, which we are prepared to show the trade immediately.

The designs are largely close reproductions of original Oriental carpets, and are woven with a deep luxurious pile of the best materials. They will be made in all the regular sizes and sold at a popular price, and we invite the courtesy of an inspection of this line before placing your orders on rugs.

All of our regular lines of Carpets and Rugs have been greatly strengthened and improved for the Fall season, and we are showing many new and original effects both in coloring and design.

Mills and Main Office, Sherbrooke, Que.
Toronto Office, 43 Scott St.
Winnipeg Office, 23 Hammond Block.
St. John, N.B., 53½ Dock Street.

The Moore Carpet Company

LIMITED

SHERBROOKE, QUE.

READY

Our Big, New Catalogue of Window Shades, Cloths, Curtain Poles, etc., etc.

Easily the largest and most complete sales help ever issued. Write for a copy now.

¶ Right now you will appreciate this catalogue, as a distinct aid in selling lines not stocked.

¶ Every page is of interest, and the natural colors of all work make it of practical value.

There's money in Window Shades. A few feet of your floor space will do. That new catalogue is a sample book in itself, and will post you on the line of quality.

DALY & MORIN - - MONTREAL

FACTORY—LACHINE

Agent for Ontario, F. C. Soper - - - - 29 Melinda Street, Toronto

BUSINESS NOTES

ONTARIO.

Fred C. Burton, general store, Staples ; advertising business for sale.

Wm. Graham, general store, Valetta ; succeeded by Graham & Hope.

Geo. Cushing, general store, Kenilworth ; sold to T. P. McGillicuddy.

H. T. Merrill, general store, Lansdowne ; Arthur Latimer, successor.

H. T. Merrill, general store, Lansdowne ; Arthur Latimer, successor.

John H. Birch, general store, Dorchester Station ; sold to Wm. Watson.

L. C. Kells & Co., general store, Arkona ; sold to McKenzie & Meldrum.

Broddy & Porter, general store, Uxbridge ; advertising business for sale.

H. & J. W. Kennedy, general store, Cedar Grove ; sold to James Malcolm.

W. J. Cameron, general store, Southampton ; advertising business for sale.

John H. Birch, general store, Dorchester Sation ; sold to Wm. Watson.

L. C. Kells & Co., general store, Arkona ; sold to McKenzie & Meldrum.

QUEBEC.

Desroches Freres, dry goods, Montreal ; dissolved, J. E. Desroches, registered.

J. D. Decelles & Co., dry goods, Montreal ; Mrs. J. D. Decelles, registered.

C. O. Gervais & Frere, general store, St. Johns ; dissolved, Elisee Gervais, registered.

N. Hebert & Fils, dry goods, St. Leonard ; N. Hebert and J. R. Hebert, registered.

E. N. Fontaine, general store, St. Barthelemi ; sold aged by fire and water, insured.

S. Rosenberg & Co., manufacturers furs, Montreal ; Jacob Gordin and S. Rosenberg, registered.

Hill & Depatie, general store, St. Armand West ; James M. Hill and Arthur Depatie, registered.

Helleur Bros., general store, Rimouski ; dissolved, W. G. Helleur retired, Geo. F. and E. M. Helleur continuing under same style.

THE WEST.

The MacKenzie Co., milliners, Regina ; sold to Carroll Coyle Co.

I. L. Forrest, general store, Plumas ; sold to Mattick & McKenzie.

A. J. Milligan, general store, Beinfait ; succeeded by Milligan & Watt.

J. B. Bryce, general store, Gilbert Plains ; succeeded by Chalmers Bros.

James Gadsden, general store, Norris ; removing stock to Winnipeg.

Hames & Gleiser, general store, Gainsboro ; succeeded by A. G. Gleiser.

B. D. Westman, general store, Churchbridge ; sold to Jonas Thorvaldson.

B. Clark & Son, general store, Borden ; sold to Smith & McQuarrie.

George Renuart, general store, Otterburn, succeeded by Renuart & Moir.

Dalgleish & Co., general store, Margaret ; sold to Morrow & McMillan.

THE DOMINION OIL CLOTH COMPANY

Limited - Montreal

MANUFACTURERS OF

Linoleum
Floor Oil Cloth
Table Oil Cloth
Enamelled Oil Cloth
Carriage Oil Cloth
Shelf Oil Cloth
Cotton and Duck Back Stair
Oil Cloth
Canvas and Painted Back Stair
Oil Cloth
Decorative Burlaps

Our Goods are handled by all the leading Wholesale Dry Goods Trade in the country

Observations On The Cash System

Conditions that Exist in Various Localities — General Adoption Would Produce Higher Standard of Citizenship.

Every drygoodsman would like to adopt the strictly cash system, or at least place his business on such a basis that he would know all accounts on his books to be perfectly safe. We have in mind a large store in a city of between twelve and fifteen thousand population which does a big credit trade, and another store in a town of less than two thousand population which will not extend a cent's worth of credit to anyone. The explanation of this condition lies in the merchants themselves, not in any peculiar circumstances. Let these men change places and the city in question would have a cash store in short order, for the situation is much more favorable to such than that in which the smaller merchant now operates. Put the latter almost anywhere, under normal conditions, and he would follow the same course. Another man might not go so far, although he would be reasonably sure that where he gave credit the money would be forthcoming inside of thirty days. The latter might get a larger return from his business than the former. It is impossible to lay down a general rule, and even if it were possible to do so the different points of view of different people would reveal to many of them very good reasons why they should not observe it.

We realize thoroughly that there are places in which a merchant cannot sell for cash only and be successful. One such town that we have visited has a population almost entirely of day laborers. That is an exceptional case. One merchant attempted the cash plan some time ago, but was forced to drop it, although he tries hard to keep credits down as low as possible, with the aid of a monthly account system. In emphasizing the influence of circumstances he told The Review of a business, which he conducted in a village of less than four hundred people, with a turn-over of $28,000 annually and less than $50 on his books at the end of two years. This village was the centre of a prosperous farming district, and, he believes, would almost have supported a cash store. Where he is now he has to carry customers for fairly long periods, and loses a good deal through bad debts. We would advocate the application, as rigidly as possible, of the monthly account system. We feel sure that the present condition of affairs can be improved considerably.

A large number of merchants throughout the country have adopted the cash plan, and we have yet to meet one who regrets the change. They have said good-bye to their chief worries, and can do business much more economically, with greater satisfaction to their customers. Nearly all of them formerly carried heavy book accounts. Of course, there are many of the best stores which do not advertise the cash basis yet give very little credit, and that only to people who are perfectly safe, but who prefer to settle up periodically. These stores have practically all the advantages of a cash business.

In taking up the cash system there is one thing that cannot be too strongly impressed upon a retailer: Under no circumstances must he depart from the principles first laid down. He will invariably receive requests from people whom, previously, he would not have refused and whose accounts he would have been glad to carry for almost any amount. If he is wise he will courteously decline to make any exception in their cases, and they will respect him all the more for his firmness. "My refusal to sell on any but spot cash terms to the best people in the city was one of the best advertisements I ever had," stated a merchant to The Review. "They were very much surprised, and perhaps a little indignant at first, but they talked about it, and both they and their friends buy a good deal from me now. They have confidence in me and in my goods. If I had given them credit and refused others it would have become generally known and I would have been forced into the old system of doing business." This is perfectly true. If you make the change stick to it and treat everyone alike, even though at first you do lose old customers.

It is unnecessary for us to detail the many advantages of having the cash in your till when goods leave the store. The ability to take advantage of discounts is a big consideration. Retailers in cities of ten to twelve thousand population have told us that if their only profit came from this source, merchandise being sold only at such a margin as would cover the cost of doing business, they could be well satisfied.

In the March issue we referred to a Midland store which adopted the cash plan about a year ago, after doing a big credit trade. There was very little difference in returns even at first, and since then there has been a substantial increase. It was found that families receiving credit had, in nearly every case, an account at the other dry goods stores as well. This exploded one theory that some merchants cite to show that it would be inadvisable for them to exact cash for every purchase.

A retailer whom we met a short time ago looks farther than his own material interests in operating a cash business. He holds that it will make better men and women of his customers who have long been used to receiving credit; that the general adoption of this system would tend to produce a higher standard of citizenship among Canadians. He is right. There are thousands of people in whom the knowledge that they can run to their dealer and procure supplies, without having ready money in their pockets to pay for them, discourages industry and thrift. Many a woman would be a much better manager of her household if she had to pay cash for everything that she bought. This point is one that permits of great enlargement, but the facts are evident to anyone who has given the matter a moment's thought.

Writing to The Review a New Westminster, B.C., retailer says: "I started a cash store because I could not do otherwise and do the business justice. I was a stranger in the country and had not the money to finance my own business and that of my customers, so I decided that a small profit and quick turn over for cash was the best course I could follow. The people fell in with the method very readily. I could scarcely call it a new plan, as the majority of my customers were in a position to pay cash. There is a small percentage in every community who buy on credit at home and send their cash away to the departmental stores and larger places, but will come to the new store until they get their names on the books and receive the first bill. Then they have no more use for you, and find fault with your method of doing business. To these it is better to turn a deaf ear. The conditions vary in different places. Where a business is depending upon one class of industry for existence it has to be governed very much by the time the money is in circulation. In places such as this, where people are engaged in various employment, such as farming, mining, logging and lumbering, and have pay days at intervals throughout the month, there is no necessity for other than a cash business."

The merchants of Oak Point, Man., are determined to fight the credit system, and they have signed a hard and fast agreement to sell only for cash for one year from March 1. Each one has paid in $300 as a guarantee of good faith. For the first breach of the agreement the fine is $50, for the second $100, and for the third $150. Fines are to be devoted to charitable purposes. This plan is worthy of consideration in many other places.

We say to every merchant: If you can't do business for cash, or do not consider it advisable to make a strict rule in this regard, get as close to that basis as possible, and strive to get closer all the time; the closer you get the greater will be your success.

The Wool Trade

The Financial Aspect of it—Amount of Money Required to Lift Crop in Various Years.

The following article on the financial aspect of the wool trade was written by a special correspondent of The Yorkshire Post in the woolen and worsted district:

"The more one thinks of the wool trade and the prices that are ruling, the greater becomes the surprise that things are moving so smoothly and confidently. Many a woolman said in 1900 and 1901 that we should never see high prices again, but it is perhaps in order now to ask, When are we to have low prices? Nobody desires to see good, greasy combing back at 6d. per pound, for that is neither good for producer nor consumer. Users of wool, yarn, and fabrics are buying to-day a thousand times more lustily than they did when prices were in some cases half what they are to-day. But a 5 per cent. bank rate raises the question of its bearing upon the wool trade, and it is worth while just now to consider its relation to current prices, and the prospect of the trade being able to get on comfortably without fear of any set-back.

Increased Cost of Wool.

"It is obvious that when wool is costing double what it did in the nineties, the amount of capital required to lift the same number of bales is vastly different. I may give here the yearly total since 1859 of the colonial supply, the average cost per bale, and an approximate total of the money which it represents. Schwartzes' figures may be relied upon, and the following table shows the amount of money required to lift simply the Australian and the Cape wood clip:

Year.	Total bales.	Avg. value per bale.	Total value.
1895	2,270,000	£11 0 0	24,970,000
1896	2,134,000	12 0 0	25,608,000
1897	2,108,000	11 10 0	24,242,000
1898	1,982,000	12 5 0	24,280,000
1899	1,908,000	14 10 0	27,666,000
1900	1,596,000	13 10 0	21,546,000
1902	1,933,000	11 15 0	22,713,000
1903	1,685,000	13 10 0	22,747,000
1904	1,572,000	14 10 0	22,794,000
1905	1,842,000	15 15 0	29,011,000
1906	2,071,000	17 0 0	35,207,000

"We have not yet reached the height at which wool was selling in December, 1899, but the wool trade is now absorbing considerably more capital than it did in that memorable year, cross-breds being considerably dearer than they were then, and this year, I am positive, will break all records in the amount required to lift the wools which are and will be available.

"This is an advantage both to the spinner and topmaker, for, in broad Yorkshire parlance, 'there is nowt like shaking t' brass poke in the eyes of a top maker to get him to take a farthing less. It is well known in Bradford that many top makers have to seek the aid of the bank in their business, and not unfrequently this works to the injury of the trade. Men buy frequently double the weight of wool which they can lift with their own money, the consequence being they have to seek financial aid in order to lift the wool. This practically means putting half their purchases into 'pawn,' and scores of times prices have been helped down by a forced sale, for when a bank requests either a top maker or spinner to reduce his overdraft in a slack time it is certain that some cheap tops can be picked up. When, as at present, wool and tops are moving most rapidly, forced realizations are unknown; but when everybody is filled up, and wool and tops begin to accumulate, things soon become a little shaky.

"Last May and June, when the trade was carrying its full share of the last world's clip, a little financial difficulty was experienced in more quarters than one, and many think that in the coming season this may be repeated. If, it is argued, the burden reached straining point in the middle of 1906, what can we expect when the trade carries upon its bank another big increase? But 'sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.' The manufacturing world is more hungry for wool than it has ever been, and the trade is nothing near filled up, nor are bank balances anything near exhausted. Users will find the 'brass' if they want the wool, and banks will not refuse help when they see the money is required for real, legitimate trade purposes.

Healthy Condition of Industries.

"In taking a broad survey of the situation, it is impossible to overlook the fact that the woolen and worsted industries were never in a healthier state than they are to-day. I have not so much fear about cash being wanted to lift all the wool grown, as about the weight of the wool which will come on to the market. What men buy they will pay for readily, but it will be the surplus, if such it can be called, which will test the buying resources of the trade. It is extremely difficult to say if to-day's rates are going to continue intact through the next six months, or whether the weight of offerings will break prices. My own view is that the trade is able to lift all the wool that is grown, providing the quantity offered is not rushed too heavily upon consumers.

"The trade cannot be gorged week after week, and month after month, without time for digestion; it is the possible forcing on to the market of large weights of the raw material which causes a little uneasiness. There is a stronger feeling of safety in to-day's values than there can possibly be if prices are forced to a higher level, and this should be guarded against. Prices this last two months have responded because of the hungry state of users, and a romping trade is assured for the next six months, but I don't think that after a while users are going to tread upon each other's toes for the raw material as they recently have done. Some seem to think that the top has not yet been reached, but the wisest heads in the trade make no secret about their opinions, and express themselves in favor of current rates remaining stady, in preference to a rush being made, to be followed by a serious fall."

ITEMS FROM ALL CANADA.

ONTARIO.

J. M. Farthings, Aylmer, has put in a stock of carpets.

St. Thomas has a retailers' association with a membership of 125.

The premises of J. D. Fligg, dry goods, Meaford, were destroyed by fire.

The Watson Clothing Co., of Sarnia, will in future conduct a strictly cash business.

Wheadon, Germann & Co., Guelph, are closing out their men's wear department.

C. F. Dempsey, late of Sarnia, has gone to London as manager of T. F. Kingsmill's store.

G. C. Hanna, of Wingham, has called his new clothing and house furnishing store "The Little Eaton."

F. P. Evans, of Ladies' Wear, Limited, Toronto, sailed for Europe via the Celtic from New York on April 6.

The Metropolitan Costume Co., St. Thomas, have settled in new premises, which are bright and well appointed.

Leslie C. Hatcher, of Walkerville, has secured a position with the Geo. W. Robertson Co., Limited, Hamilton.

E. Ireland, late of Milwaukee and Minneapolis, has taken a position with the Duncan Ferguson Co., Stratford.

Frank Stitt, manager of William Stitt & Co., Toronto, is dead. His brother, George, will continue with the business.

C. E. Hall, Dunnville, has sold his dry goods business to Manford Schier. The latter was formerly a merchant at Rainham.

R. H. & J. Dowler, of St. Thomas, clothiers and men's furnishers, have built a new store that is up-to-date throughout.

Inducements are being offered the Dominion Suspender Company and Niagara Neckwear Company to remove to Welland.

J. J. Cavers, of Hamilton, has accepted the position of manager of A. A. McKay & Co.'s store, Queen street east, Toronto.

The store of J. N. Currie, Glencoe, has been enlarged and remodeled. A new annex will be devoted to carpets, linoleums, curtains, shades, etc.

E. E. Wilkinson, for several years manager of carpet department of McLaren & Co., St. Catharines, has gone to Regina and taken a similar position with Rankin & Co.

A by-law to provide for the granting of a $5,000 bonus to Strauss & Ross, to assist them in establishing a knitting factory at St. Mary's, was defeated by the ratepayers.

Finch Bros., of Hamilton, have a fine new store on King street west. It is a roomy building, 39 x 128 feet. The lighting facilities are splendid. Three floors are occupied.

William Coutts, of St. Thomas, died at the age of 22 years. He was manager of the Oak Hall boys' department, and was formerly with the Stanley Mills Co., Hamilton.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association have decided to hold their annual convention in Toronto. Between 400 and 500 delegates were present at the Winnipeg meeting.

Rutherford & Wheadon, of Galt, have dissolved, the business being continued by the former. They also have conducted a store in Guelph, with Mr. Wheadon in charge, and in which he has purchased Mr. Rutherford's interest.

Fire did considerable damage at the Ingersoll Glove and Mitten factory on March 13. It broke out in the stock room, which was completely gutted. There was $1,400 insurance on the building and $3,000 on the contents.

Harris & Co., of Rockwood, have completed their samples for Fall, which are now in the hands of E. J. Dignum & Co., Toronto, for Ontario and Quebec, and G. H. Woodill, 70 Granville street, Halifax, for Maritime Provinces.

Mr. Neelands, for some time manager of the G. B. Ryan & Co. clothing store, Guelph, has accepted a position as a traveler for Chalcraft & Co., Toronto. His fellow employes presented him with a traveling bag before his departure.

The Barber Co., Essex, have placed their men's wear stock at the front of the store where groceries were formerly located, the latter being moved back behind the dry goods section. The millinery department has been placed upstairs.

Application by G. D. Perry, president of the Imperial Carpet Co., to wind up the Coupe Manufacturing Co., makers of knitted goods, has been filed at Osgoode Hall, Toronto. The Imperial Carpet Co. is a creditor to the amount of $462.28.

David Morrice was re-elected president of Penman's, Limited. The other directors elected were. C. B. Gordon, vice-president, James Gordon, H. V. Meredith, D. Yuile, A. Zimmerman, M.P., John P. Black, E. B. Greenshields and Robert Thomson.

Property on the corner of Queen and Parliament Sts., Toronto, has been purchased by an American company, and it is said that the present buildings will be torn down to make room for a department store, which will cater to the east end trade.

Mr. Haas, of Geo. H. Hees, Son & Co., has returned from his European buying trip. He states that everything is up in price and hard to get at that. He had great difficulty in securing the acceptance of orders for delivery eighteen months ahead.

W. R. Chester, formerly a traveler for McLauchlin & Sons, Owen Sound, is retiring from that firm to go into the general dry goods business there. A partnership has been formed with S. C. Dunbar, and the style of the new firm will be Dunbar & Chester.

At the regular meeting in Toronto of the directors of the Commercial Travelers' Association of Canada an address and cabinet of silver were presented to the retiring president, Thomas McQuillan. The cabinet contained 165 pieces and was manufactured expressly for this occasion.

After an illness of nearly four years, Mrs. Donald Mackay died at her home, 5 Queen's Park, on March 19. She was the third wife of Donald Mackay, of Gordon, Mackay & Co., and was married twenty-seven years ago. She was in her seventy-ninth year. Interment took place at Niagara Falls.

The building in course of erection at the corner of Wellington and Bay streets, Toronto, for T. Ogilvie & Sons, woollens, will cost about $100,000. It will be seven storeys high, four of which have been leased by the John Knox Co., of Hamilton, and the Ogilvies will occupy two themselves.

The Slingsby Manufacturing Co., of Brantford, will erect a $10,000 addition to their mills this Spring. It will be so located that in a couple of years the entire works, as at present constituted, may be converted into a warehouse and a large new structure built for manufacturing purposes.

H. B. Dawson & Co., of Port Arthur, are occupying their new premises. The building is 34 x 80 feet, with two floors and a basement. The two show windows are each twelve feet wide and six feet six inches deep, with mirrored side and oak panelled background. Outside of general dry goods lines the firm carry a stock of china.

W. F. Wolfe, Owen Sound, has sold his dry goods business to H. C. Moore & Co. Mr. Moore was for the past two years with Ryan Bros., and for twenty years previous with Mr. Wolfe. The carpet and housefurnishing section has been merged into what will be known as the Wolfe Carpet and Housefurnishing Co., with John Hart as manager.

QUEBEC.

B. Tooke, of Tooke Bros., Ltd., is expected back this month from abroad.

Mr. Evans, of Blake & Evans, Montreal, was in Toronto for the Easter holidays.

Robert Henderson, manufacturers' agent, McGill St., Montreal, is still in European markets.

H. Hawley, manager Fownes Bros. & Co., Montreal, visited the firm's New York offices last month.

J. P. Black was in Toronto for a few weeks in the interests of the Imperial Neckwear Co., Montreal.

John W. Shouldice, of Wallace, Blake & Shouldice, Toronto, was in Montreal for a few days last month.

W. E. Walsh, Montreal, is now on his annual Spring trip out west, carrying various lines of fancy goods.

H. S. Albright, dress goods buyer for the W. R. Brock Co., Montreal, is again in the city after his foreign buying trip.

A. B. McPherson, of McPherson & Wright, manufacturers' agents, Montreal, is at present in England on business.

Mr. Cleghorn, manager staple department the W. R. Brock Co., spent a few days in Quebec last month, traveling in the interests of the firm.

Mr. Anderson, staple department, Greenshields Ltd., Montreal, returned from Europe April 1st, where he had been traveling in the interests of the firm.

C. V. Allan, of the glove department Greenshields Ltd., has returned from Ontario, where he has been for a short while with lines of Fall goods.

C. V. Harding, of the Toronto Carpet Manufacturing Co., Toronto, was in Montreal for a few days this week in connection with the company's business.

Herb. B. Tait, formerly with Greenshields Ltd., is a new addition to the W. R. Brock Co., Montreal. He will be the special representative of the carpet department.

M. Silver & Co., St. John street, Montreal, have retained the services of J. Maitland and E. Robitaille, the former representing this fur house in Ontario and the latter in Quebec.

The Montreal Cotton and Wool Waste Company have purchased the block on Common street, Montreal, part of which they now occupy. As soon as present leases expire they intend to devote the entire premises to their own uses.

Owing to their increase in business the National Rubber Co. of Canada, Montreal, have opened a branch factory, corner St. Lawrence Main and Craig street, for the manufacture of men's goods.

Davidson & Gatehouse, manufacturers' agents, 30 St. John street, Montreal, have dissolved partnership, and will conduct separate agencies. G. A. Gatehouse was in the English markets last month.

F. A. Quigley, traveler with a splendid connection in the west, has taken an additional line, that of the Livingstone Manufacturing Co., Montreal, manufacturers of sheepskin clothing and all kinds of heavy western goods.

P. DeGruchy and his son, P. M. DeGruchy, 207 St. James street, Montreal, had a successful trip through the Province of Quebec last month in the interests of Tiger Brand underwear, manufactured by the Galt Knitting Co., and Paton's Alloa Yarns.

The W. R. Brock Co., Toronto, had several of their important men in Montreal last month, among whom were W. R. Smallpiece, head of the smallwares department; A. A. Cockburn, manager of the prints and wash goods department, and J. A. Catto, secretary of the company.

On March 14th, at the annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Montreal Branch, W. U. Boivin was elected president and the other officers as follows: First vice-president, J. G. A. Filion; second vice-president, J. B. Lamoureux; treasurer, J. A. Maynard; secretary, J. A. Beaudry; auditors, Messrs. Laniel and Dubreuil.

At the annual meeting of the Mount Royal Spinning Company, W. C. McIntyre was elected president, James W. Pike, vice-president, and W. T. Whitehead, managing director. Apart from these gentlemen the board of directors consists of A. Racine, T. E. Hodgson, C. W. Trenholme, J. H. Burland, F. W. Molson and H. M. Marter. P. C. Shannon was appointed acting secretary.

Matthews, Towers & Co., wholesale men's furnishings, Montreal, who secured temporary quarters in the Desbarats building after the disastrous fire which destroyed their old warehouse, will move during May to permanent quarters at 10 St. Helen street, almost adjoining their former location. The new premises are being fitted up in a modern way, and will give them increased facilities.

Henry Morgan & Co., Montreal, have purchased an entire block in the immediate vicinity of their St. Catherine street store. The block is bounded by Berthlet street on the north, Mayor street on the south, Aylmer on the west and City Councillor on the east. The total area is about 32,000 square feet, and the price paid was $80,000. It is the firm's intention to erect a factory on the site, as an adjunct to the store.

R. C. Wilkins, the "Rooster Brand" man, has a strong sales force out for Fall. The lines are being shown by the following representatives: J. M. Hamilton, Vancouver, B. C., and Robert D. McDonald in the western provinces; T. W. Dynes, Ontario; L. R. Brodeur, western Quebec; Joseph Cote, eastern Quebec; Alf. R. Trudeau, Maritime Provinces; J. W. Benson, Montreal. Mr. Wilkins will himself call upon his old trade in Toronto and other centres.

WEST.

Currie Bros., Saskatoon, have opened up a millinery department.

A. C. Binning, of A. C. Binning & Co., Calgary, was in Toronto recently.

Misses Carrol & Doyle have purchased the millinery establishment of McKenzie & Co., Regina.

Misses E. Bolton and L. Wilson, of Kingston, have opened a ladies' ready-to-wear and novelty store at Medicine Hat.

Owing to ill-health, E. B. McRory, of McRory & McCosh, Souris, Man., is retiring from business. J. L. McCosh will continue the business.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The W. E. Sanford Manufacturing Co., of Hamilton, have opened a permanent sample room in Vancouver.

Wm. Mackenzie, of Guelph, and David Logie, of Vernon, B.C., have purchased a men's wear business at the latter place.

MARITIME PROVINCES.

James C. Robertson, of Sharon, Mass., formerly of the dry goods firm of The Murdocks, Halifax, died recently.

A. D. Murray, manager of the Humphrey Clothing Store, Moncton, has left for Calgary, where he intends locating.

The business of H. R. Moody, men's furinsher, Bear River, N.S., has been purchased by James Seeley, of Kentville. Mr. Moody is on the road for Humphrey & Sons' Clothing Co., Moncton.

B. B. Manzer, Woodstock, N.B., has enlarged his premises by leasing an adjoining store. Modern hat cases, show cases, wardrobes for clothing, and mirrors have been installed in the men's wear section.

Transportation in West

Need for Reciprocal Demurrage to Keep Railway Companies Abreast of Requirements of the Times.

The Winnipeg Jobbers' and Shippers' Association, which has recently been organized under the presidency of Mayor J. H. Ashdown, is actively interesting itself in the transportation requirements of the west. G. E. Carpenter, the manager of the freight department of the association, writes this paper as follows:

Much is being said regarding the severe conditions under which the railway companies are laboring in their endeavors to meet the transportation requirements of the public, and justly too, because one and all agree that the weather conditions west of the Great Lakes have been the worst in years. At the same time the present situation would have been much better if the railway companies had had a clean sheet to work on when the Winter commenced. On the contrary, they were very far behind.

Therefore, the present congested condition is due to more than the exceptional weather conditions.

If a law had been in effect last Summer providing for reciprocal demurrage it is safe to say that the railway companies would have kept abreast of the requirements of the times by obtaining the necessary locomotives and cars to move freight promptly. Then we would have had no such accumulation when Winter broke upon us.

In several of the states to the south of us reciprocal demurrage is in effect. In the State of Virginia a very fair law is in force, which, if applied here, would do much to overcome the serious delay of freight, and present car shortage.

Under the ruling of the Corporation Commission of verbal or written application to a railroad company for car or cars to be loaded with any kind of freight embraced in the tariff of said company, stating in said application the character of the freight, and its final destination, the railroad company shall furnish same within four days of seven o'clock a.m. the day following such application.

Or, when shipper making such application specifies a future day on which he wishes to make a shipment, giving not less than four days' notice thereof, computing from seven o'clock a.m. the day following such application, the company shall furnish such car or cars on the day specified in the application.

For failure to comply with this rule, the company so offending shall forfeit and pay to the shipper applying the sum of $1 per car per day, or fraction of a day's delay after expiration of free time, upon demand in writing, made within thirty days thereafter by the shipper.

When freight in carloads or less is tendered to a railroad company, and correct shipping instructions given, the railroad agent must immediately receive the same for shipment, and issue bills of lading therefor, and whenever such shipments have been so received by any railroad company, they must be carried forward at the rate of not less than fifty miles per day of twenty-four hours, computing from seven o'clock a.m. the day following receipt of shipment, and for failure to receive and transport such shipments within the time prescribed, the railroad company so offending shall forfeit and pay to the shipper the sum of $1 per car per day, or fraction thereof, on all carload freight, and one cent per hundred pounds per day on freight in less than carloads, with minimum charge of five cents for any one package, upon demand in writing by the shipper, or other party whose interest is affected by such delay, provided that in computing the time of freight in transit there shall be allowed twenty-four hours at each point where transferring from one railroad to another or rehandling of freight is involved.

The period during which the movement of freight is suspended on account of accident, or any cause not within the power of the railroad company to prevent, shall be added to the free time allowed in this rule, and counted as additional free time.

Rule 3—Railroad companies shall within twenty-four hours after arrival of shipments, give notice, by mail or otherwise, to consignee of the arrival of shipments, together with weight and amount of freight charges thereon, and where goods or freight in carload quantities arrive, such notice shall contain also identifying numbers, letters and initials of the car or cars, and, if transferred in transit, the number and initials of the car in which originally shipped. Any railroad company failing to give such notice shall forfeit and pay to the shipper or other party whose interest is affected, the sum of $1 per car per day, or fraction of a day's delay, on all carload shipments, and one cent per hundred pounds per day or fraction thereof on freight in less than car loads, with minimum charge of five cents for any one package, after the expiration of the said twenty-four hours, provided that not more than one dollar per day be charged for any one consignment not in excess of a carload.

This rule is also applicable to steamboat and steamship lines.

AID TO MILLINERY

The "Non-Collapso" Hair Pad

IT'S SO LIGHT

PATENT

OUR SPECIALITY

OUR SPECIALITY

"MARIE STUART"

Made of the finest unbreakable watch spring steel, self-adjusting and half the weight of any pad on the market.

Pads suitable for every style of coiffure kept in stock. Boxed in dozens, assorted shades in each dozen.

The Boyd, Brumell Co., Limited,

11 Wellington Street West
TORONTO

THE PARISIAN NOVELTY CO.

NEW YORK

MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS OF

FINE ART HAIR ORNAMENTS and TOILET ARTICLES.

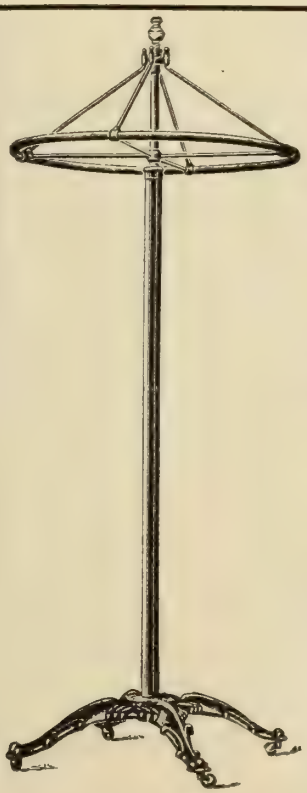
Full Range of Samples now being shown by the Sole Agents for Canada.

For Particulars see Our Heading in Hints to Buyers.

L. HIRSHSON & CO.



BUYERS OF JOBS

4 DOLLARD ST., opposite ST. HELEN ST.
Phone Main 2715. MONTREAL

Gault Bros., Montreal, have lost one of their trusted employes, in the person of Douglas Mackedie, who severed his connection last month after a period of twelve years faithful service. He intends going into the agency business in Vancouver, but before settling down it is his intention to take a well earned rest, in the form of a trip through Europe with a friend. As a token of the good fellowship that existed, he was presented with a gold watch by the firm and staff.

Jos. L. Black & Sons, Ltd., general store, Middle Sackville; J. L. Black, pres., deceased.

Rockwell Bros., general store, Avondale; bought out by J. M. Dysart and G. S. Waterville.

Make Your

FIXTURES
SELL GOODS

YOU WILL NEED NEW MANTLE RACKS
MILLINERY STANDS
and WAX FIGURES to display your SPRING and SUMMER NOVELTIES

Our FORMS are of LATEST SHAPES and MOST ARTISTIC

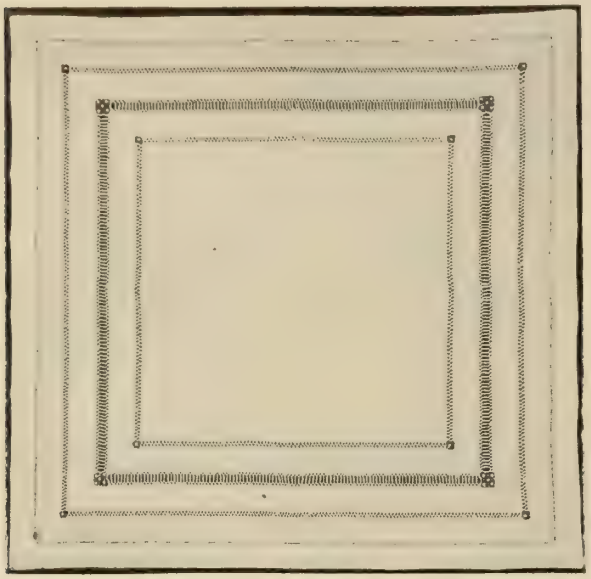
British and French Plate MIRRORS (all sizes)

SILENT SALESMEN, Showcases and everything for the Effective Display of Goods.

A Post Card will bring you our large Catalogue Free.

Beautiful Metal Mantle Racks, four styles, at $9.00, $10.00, $11.00 and $12.00.

CLATWORTHY & SON

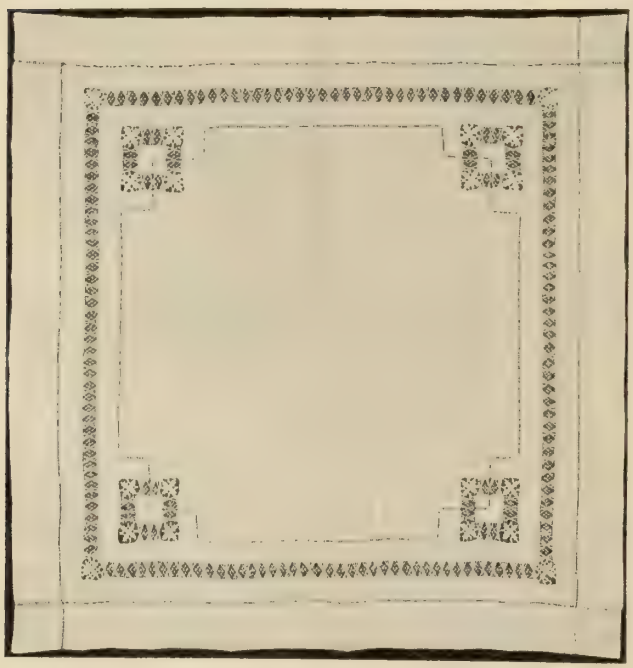


38-40, West Adelaide

TORONTO - ONTARIO

Linens

Heavy Sales for the Spring Season—The Demand of a Wide Nature.



That the price of the raw material, though an important factor, does not of itself entirely govern the price of the finished article, is shown by the fact that the recent decline in flax has not been, and is not likely to be, reflected in the finished fabric. This only furnishes one more illustration that it is now the size of the demand that is the controlling influence.

Drawn Work Centrepiece—Shown by The W. R. Brock Co.

The Canadian demand for linens has been a very large one, larger than ever before in the history of the trade. It has not been confined to any one section; staples, household, art and embroidered linens, and dress linens, have all been freely ordered. The market is very firm and delay in deliveries is an annoyance, but some of the jobbing houses still have a fair-sized stock and on some lines are still able to offer goods at old prices.

Drawn Work Centrepiece—Shown by The W. R. Brock Co.

The general tendency in the linen department is towards the sale of better goods, due no doubt to the general prosperity of the country.

That the retailer keenly appreciates and understands the present situation is shown by the fact that many of them, when placing their Spring orders, also at the same time duplicated it in its entirety for May delivery.

As the season advances there is an increasing call for embroidery linens, as the beginning of Spring is turning the attention of many women to the hand embroidering of linen garments for personal wear, such as waists, lingerie hats, jumpers, corset covers, collar and cuff sets, belts and bags. This linen is specially woven for the purpose, and is easier to work than the ordinary kinds.

Fancy linens are finding an increased sale and are now in good demand all the year round. The very reasonable prices at which hand-worked doilies, tray cloths, centre pieces, runners, etc., can be purchased have brought about this change, as women find that they cannot duplicate the articles of this class found in the stores, without a considerable amount of labor and prefer to turn their attention to articles for personal wear.

Battenberg Centrepiece—Shown by The W. R. Brock Co.

Women do not seek so much for novelty in this department as for pretty designs and finished work, and when once a lace, etc., has gotten hold it is apt to be a good seller season after season. This is true of Battenberg, which has been years before the public, and is now as free a seller as ever. Japanese and Mexican drawn work, though not new, enjoy a great popularity, and in the higher priced lines the Irish hand embroideries and Cluny edged goods cannot easily be displaced.

S. J. Williams, of W. G. & R., Berlin, delivered an address at the luncheon of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association on welfare work in that firm's factory, a description of which was given in the March Dry Goods Review.

U. S. Mill Men Organize

Will Limit Cancellations and Rectify Other Trade Evils —Abuses by Cloth Jobbers and Clothiers.

After a month of active organizing the representative of men's wear mills of the United States have effected an association for the purpose of mutual protection against trade abuses arising from indiscriminate cancellation on the part of clothiers and cloth jobbers. The organization is called the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers, and at the time of the first meeting there was a membership of 115, representing more than 15,000 looms. Over seventy mills were represented.

It has been the practice with many of the trade to allow their salesmen to go on the road with the lines for a new season, and to sell sample order lots to clothiers subject to opening values. This soon led to over-zealous salesmen making tentative sales subject to the ultimate price on lines. If the goods advanced after the official opening the orders generally stood, but in the event of the lines proving unsuccessful or only a moderate success the clothiers cancelled the orders. From this to exercising the privilege of unconditional cancellation was a short step, and clothiers and cloth jobbers for several seasons have been in the habit of ordering many more styles than they intended to use, and then cancelling after the goods had been put in process of manufacture.

Another serious abuse of which men's wear mills complain is the responging charges that clothiers make after receiving goods. In many instances the charges that they make more than offset the advance which mills have made on their goods for a new season. The purposes of the association are conciliatory in their nature, and many of the clothiers and cloth jobbers who are fair in their dealings are in hearty accord with the millmen in their attempt to rectify conditions in the trade.

The association will include the manufacturers of dress goods also.

INTERESTING TEXTILE CASE.

The dissatisfaction of the minority shareholders of the Dominion Cotton Co., regarding the terms of the lease of those mills to the Dominion Textile Co., reached a climax last month. Headed by George E. Amyot, Quebec, they instituted a suit against the Dominion Cotton Mills Co., Ltd., in other words the Dominion Textile Co., to set aside the lease of the Dominion Cotton Mills property to the Textile Co. The plaintiffs and defendants produced a good deal of evidence regarding the value of the Dominion Cotton Mills property and the situation in cotton circles over two years ago when the merger was formed. It will be some time before a decision is given.

ANOTHER NEW COTTON COMPANY.

Charles R. Whitehead, of wide experience in Canadian cotton circles, will be the managing director of a new Canadian cotton company to be styled the Wabasso Cotton Co. The capital stock is to be $1,750,000, and the company will manufacture the finer class of cotton goods. Various daily newspaper reports have appeared as to the location of the plant at Three Rivers, Ottawa, St. Johns, Quebec or Sherbrooke.

When presented with a list of questions regarding the formation of this new company, Mr. Whitehead gave out the following: "The articles that have appeared so far are without our knowledge, and we are so far unable to answer your questions, as they are matters that we have not decided. Will give you a correct statement later.—C. R. Whitehead."

The export of linens from Belfast in 1906 brought receipts £700,000 in excess of the previous year.

HINTS TO BUYERS

From information supplied by Sellers, but for which the Editors of THE REVIEW do not necessarily hold themselves responsible.

Raphael Tuck & Sons.

We have been favored with just a peep at the holiday lines of Raphael Tuck & Sons, and discovered the usual brilliant array of Christmas cards, calendars, toy books, juveniles, gift books, and, of course, that department of the art publishing business of which, it is said, this firm were the pioneers, the post card department, was much in evidence.

In our perforce hasty inspection we noted some special Canadian calendars which should not fail to interest the trade throughout the Dominion. Among these are two leaflet calendars, entitled respectively "Winter Sports in Canada" and "Canadian Sports;" a novelty calendar entitled "the Maple Leaf," showing two young Canadians in winter garb, wearing snowshoes and seated on a clump of brilliantly-colored maple leaves; a block calendar, entitled "Canada, Day by Day," shows the beaver in a circle nibbling at a grain of wheat, surrounded by views of a harvest field, a grain elevator, a train of harvest cars, and an ocean steamship.

Each of the 365 leaves on the block pad chronicles an important event connected with the history of Canada. In a subsequent issue we shall review at greater length this very important collection.

Debenhams (Canada) Limited, Montreal.

The general lull that usually occurs after the opening has not happened this year. Trade has been brisk and steady. Fancy silks which promised well for the Spring, have even surpassed the expected demand. Both natural and colored Shantung are having a very steady sale. They expect these lines to grow brisker as the season advances. Fancy ribbons are having much larger sales than for a good many years past. They expect them to stay in fashion for some years. In plain ribbons they find the demand concentrating on very bright and soft finished goods. These goods can be used in a very artistic way. The demand for hats has been larger and earlier, in this part of the country, than ever before. The early Easter business is largely responsible. So far the popular taste has not settled down to any one shape, still they are perfectly satisfied that the greatest volume of business will be done in much-room-effect shapes, both medium and large. Judging from the early demand, flops will still, this season, be very popular. The principal colors are sky, pink, pearl, grey, champagne, brown, navy, and the old reliable black and white. Fancy feathers in shaded effects are in very great demand. The attraction of these is enhanced by the beauty of the colorings. Flowers are, as usual, having a very large sale. Amongst the most popular are roses, in both medium and large sizes, wild flowers and grass. Fine flowers of the different sorts are also very largely used. Plain and fancy crinoline braids wil, still hold in the popular favor. They are being largely used in the making of hats. The once popular ornaments are forcing their way back, under the appearance of fancy ball hatpins. On account of the big demand which has existed for these ornaments, they are at the present time hard to procure. The blouse department is now replete with the very latest ideas in silk blouses. Lines range in price from $1 to $10. The ideas embodied in these designs are the latest American productions. The house is making a great specialty of Indian mull and lawn blouses, at prices ranging from $1 up. They have also the latest novelties in laces, carrying a very big range of vals. and fancy laces to suit all tastes, and all requirements of the trade. The stock of chiffons and tulles is also complete with every shade. The house is finding no difficulty in regard to supplying the trade in these goods, on account of the firm being able to draw from their London warehouse. They are also making a show of trimmings and ruchings. Their stock of petticoats, both in silk, moirette and moireen, is complete.

Swift, Copland & Co.

Until a firm has passed through the trying experience of a disastrous fire they never appreciate the seriousness of such a situation. When a firm triumphs over all obstacles, credit must be given. To Swift, Copland & Co., Ltd., the recent fire was a severe blow, but, fortunately, they had plenty of Spring stock in hats and caps yet to arrive, and they have filled Spring orders remarkably well. Even a greater struggle has been the preparation of Fall and Winter fur and cap samples. What was thought almost impossible has been accomplished. Their fur samples are ready and are now being shown by their representatives in every section of Canada. It is a complete fur line and orders may be placed with the knowledge that deliveries will be prompt and goods turn out as represented. Their traveling representatives and territories are as follows: T. C. Johnston, Northwest; A. T. Matthews, Ontario; J. J. Louson, Prince Edward Island, Cape Breton and Eastern Townships; W. H. McGregor, Ottawa Valley and Eastern Ontario; E. Leblanc and A. T. Lussier, Province of Quebec; C. H. Ross, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. On May 1st they will move their office and warehouse to 318 St. James St., Montreal.

The New York Silk Waist Manufacturing Co.

